

CANADIANS IN GERMANY

Cable to Halifax Man Indicates That 85th Regiment Forms Part of the Army of Occupation.

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 22.—That the Canadians are to be part of the army of occupation in Germany, if they are not already there, is evident from a cable received today by A. E. Wiswell of this city, from his son, L. D. M. Wiswell, who a few days ago was sent over from the reserve battalion in Bramahurst to join the 85th. The cable which was dated November 20th, reads: "Cable me 85th, Germany." This can have only one meaning, that the Nova Scotia Highland Battalion is either in Germany or is close to the border.

TEN THOUSAND SOLDIERS.

Within the next two weeks there will be landed at the port of Halifax ten thousand Canadian soldiers, the majority of these being men who have been in England and were not absorbed in the overseas forces. The soldiers will be brought over in the Aquitania and Olympic, five thousand in each ship. The first one is due to reach Halifax on November 27th, and the second a week later.

WOUNDED AND GASED.

George H. Seeley, 255 Tower street, West St. John, received an official telegram last evening from Ottawa informing him that his son, G. Glendon Seeley of the Fighting 26th Battalion in France had been admitted to a casualty clearing station on November 9th suffering from gunshot wound and shell gas. No further particulars were received and Mr. Seeley is endeavoring to find out just how badly his brave young son is wounded.

FRANK K. STUART DIED LAST NIGHT

Member of the Firm of G. E. Barbour Co. Ltd. and Master of Carleton Union Lodge

The many friends of Frank K. Stuart of G. E. Barbour Company, Limited, will regret to learn of his death last evening at his residence, De Monts Street, after one week's illness of pneumonia. Mr. Stuart, who was thirty-five years of age, leaves his wife, a daughter, one son, George, of West St. John, and five children, one girl and four boys. Also one sister, Miss Nellie Stuart. In the Masonic order Mr. Stuart was widely known, being late master of Carleton Union Lodge P. & A. M. He was a member of Carleton Presbyterian Church, and teacher of the Boys' Class, and Secretary of the Board of Trustees. For many years he has been connected with the management of G. E. Barbour Company, Limited. His sterling character and cheerful manner made for him many friends, and St. John loses one of her best citizens by his early death. The funeral will be held Sunday, November 24th, at 3 o'clock, from his late residence, De Monts Street.

ONE WENT DOWN BEFORE SURRENDER

London, Nov. 22.—Twenty more German submarines were surrendered to Admiral Sir Reginald Tyrwhitt off Harwich this morning. This makes the total of 59 submarines thus far handed over. There would have been 21 surrendered today, but one sank during the night.

LITTLE DAUGHTER DEAD.

Much sympathy will be felt for Mr. and Mrs. Arthur O'Brien of 235 British street, in the loss of their three-year-old daughter, Margaret Rita, which occurred last evening. The little girl was taken to the Epidemic Hospital on Monday suffering from whooping cough and influenza. A feature of the case is that her brother is seriously ill at the Epidemic Hospital, and two other children are ill with influenza at home.

Patients Are Able To Talk With Doctor Who is Chopping Them Up

The method is extremely simple and of liquid in which the spinal marrow should be enveloped by return mail. Cut out the degree of the anaesthetic desired, a solution of cocaine is forced into the puncture, with the syringe. This is repeated two or three times until the desired mixture of cocaine and liquid in which the spinal marrow floats has been obtained. The complete anaesthesia of the lower part of the body is almost instantaneous and that of the trunk and upper limbs and the head is obtained a few minutes later. The new method, added Filatre, is especially valuable for operations about the abdomen and the thorax especially in the cases of elderly people. While he is operating the surgeon may converse with the patient who feels absolutely nothing. I saw numerous cases at the Grand Palais where the new method has been applied with complete success. Among them was a young man who had been operated on for disarticulation of the hip. All the patients were enthusiastic in their praise of the new method, and those in neighboring beds who were about to be operated on had evidently heard enough of the process to be deprived of all fear of what was before them.

BEATTY PRAISES OFFICERS AND MEN

German Surrender Without Firing a Shot is a Striking Tribute to the Efficiency of the British Navy.

London, Nov. 22.—After the surrender of the main installment of the German fleet of the Fifth of North Sea, Vice-Admiral Sir David Beatty, commander-in-chief of the grand fleet, issued the following message to the men of his command: "I wish to express to the flag officers, captains, officers and men of the grand fleet my congratulations on the victory which has been gained over the sea power of our enemy. The greatness of this achievement is no way lessened by the fact that the final episode did not take the form of a fleet action. Although deprived of this opportunity, which we had so long and eagerly awaited, of striking the final blow for the freedom of the world, we may derive satisfaction from the singular tribute which the enemy has accorded to the grand fleet. Without joining us in action he has given a testimony to the prestige and efficiency of the fleet without parallel in history, and it can be remembered that this testimony has been accorded to us by those who were in the best position to judge. I desire to express my thanks and appreciation to all who have assisted me in maintaining the fleet in instant readiness for action, and who have borne the arduous and exacting labors which have been necessary for perfecting the efficiency which has accomplished so much."

POLICE COURT CASES HEARD

William Daley appeared in the police court yesterday morning charged by Constable Roberts of the G. G. B. with rushing in the Union Station and grabbing the suit case of a passenger, and also with not standing in the proper position for the constable. Evidence was given by Constable Roberts, after which the defendant was allowed out on deposit of $20. Captain Rudder of the schooner General Hog, appeared, accused by two of the seamen of the vessel of having committed a riotous and unruly conduct in the case showed that the vessel although considered unseaworthy, was in port for repairs. J. King Kopy appearing for the complainants argued that this was not sufficient or satisfactory, and the case will come up again for hearing on Monday.

Wm. G. MacDoo Has Resigned His Many Jobs

"I do not wish to convey the impression that there is any actual impairment of my health, because such is not the fact. As a result of long overwork I need a reasonable period of genuine rest to replenish my energy. But more than this, I must, for the sake of my family, get back to private life, to retrieve my personal fortune. I cannot secure the required rest by the opportunity to look after my long neglected private affairs unless I am relieved of my present responsibilities. I am anxious to have my retirement effected with the least possible inconvenience to yourself and to the public service, but I think, be wise to accept my resignation now as secretary of the treasury to become effective upon the appointment of my successor so that he may have the opportunity and advantage of participating promptly in the formation of the policies that should govern the future work of the treasury. I would suggest that my resignation as director general of railroads become effective on January 1, 1919, or upon the appointment of my successor for the way in which you will understand, my dear Mr. President, that I will permit nothing but the most imperious given me to serve the country under public life. Always I shall cherish as the greatest honor of my career the opportunity you have so generously given me to serve the country under your leadership in these epochal times. "Affectationally yours, "W. G. MACDOO."

WOODROW WILSON.

The president's letter of acceptance dated November 21, follows: "My Dear Mr. Secretary, "I was not unprepared for your letter of the 14th because you had more than once served the country under the circumstances which long have made it a serious personal sacrifice for you to remain in office. I knew that only your high and exacting sense of duty had kept you here until this moment. But I am none the less distressed. I shall not allow our intimate personal relations to deprive me of the pleasure of saying that to my mind the country has never had an able, a more resourceful and yet prudent, a more uniformly efficient secretary of the treasury, and I say this remembering all the able, devoted and distinguished men who preceded you. I have kept your letter a number of days in order to suggest if I could find some other solution of your difficulty than the one you have now felt obliged to resort to. But I have not been able to think of any. I cannot ask you to make further sacrifices serious as the loss of the government will be in your retirement. I accept your resignation, therefore, to take effect upon your appointment of a successor, because in justice to you I must. "I also for the same reason accept your resignation as director general of railroads, to take effect, as you suggest, on the first of January next, when your successor is appointed. The whole world admires, I am sure, as I do, the skill and executive capacity with which you have handled the most complex problem of the unified administration of the railways under the stress of war and will regret, as I do, to see you leave that post just as the crest of its difficulty is passed. "For the distinguished, disinterested, and altogether admirable service you have rendered the country in these posts, and especially for the way in which you have guided the treasury through all the perplexities and problems of transitional financial conditions and of the financing of a war which has been without precedent alike in kind and in scope, I thank you with a sense of gratitude that comes from the very bottom of my heart. "Gratefully and affectionately yours, "WOODROW WILSON."

THE AFTER EFFECTS OF DREADED LA GRIPPE

Worse Than the Disease Itself—Victims Left Weak, Nervous and Worn Out.

La Grippe, or Spanish influenza as the epidemic now sweeping over all America is called, is one of the most dangerous diseases known to mankind. Anyone who has felt its pang is not likely to forget the trouble. La Grippe, or influenza, starts with a slight cold and ends with a complication of troubles. It lays the victim on his back, it tortures him with fevers and chills, headaches and backaches, bronchitis, consumption and other deadly diseases. Its after effects are often more serious than the disease itself. It is quite possible to avoid a grippe by keeping the blood rich and red by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—a tonic medicine which enriches the blood and strengthens the nerves. If, however, the disease attacks you, the patient should at once go to bed, and call a doctor before complications set in. That is the only safe thing to do. But to recover your strength after severity of the attack has passed, you will find Dr. Williams' Pink Pills an unsurpassed tonic. Through the use of this medicine all the evil after effects of this trouble will be banished. This has been proved in thousands of cases throughout Canada, where in previous seasons la grippe has attacked them. Among the many thus restored to full health is Miss Irene Boetes, Portsmouth, Ont., who says: "I take much pleasure in recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, because I have proved their worth in my own case. Last winter I had a severe attack of la grippe and it left me weak and all run down. I had severe pains in the chest and under the arms, palpitation of the heart and attacks of neuritis which left me with the feeling that life was scarcely worth living. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and began their use only on the principle that I would try anything that might better my conditions. I had only been using the pills a couple of weeks when the pains began to leave me. Gradually my strength returned, my appetite improved, and in a little more than a month I felt all my old time vigor had returned. I am sincerely glad I was persuaded to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I shall always have a good word to say for them. "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills not only cure the disastrous after effects of la grippe, but are also a specific for all troubles due to poor blood, such as anemia, rheumatism, indigestion, women's ailments, and the generally worn out feeling that affects so many people. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CONDITIONS IN FRANCE DURING GERMAN RETREAT

St. John Soldier Tells of Comforts Left by Fleeing Hun, Who Had No Time to Destroy.

Conditions in France during the latter part of October while the Hun was being chased by the Allies, are shown in a letter recently received from a St. John boy who went into action early in the war under the command of Col. Harrison of the Ammunition Column. The soldier writes as follows:

27th October, 1918.
The last letter I wrote was under real war conditions, but this one is somewhat different. We are now enjoying a respite from our exertions, and I can tell you it is very much appreciated by everyone—even the Hun! When I speak of we, I mean our unit at least, what other people are doing does not interest me very much at present. The papers and map will show you that the Hun has been chased from very nice country which up to this time had not seen any war; furthermore he was chased so quickly that he did not have time to destroy anything as he usually does, therefore at the present time we are in the best billets we have had since coming to France, even though they do bear a little evidence of war conditions. Three planes are now in a huge chateau which has been renamed Chateau d'Harrison, after Colonel Harrison. The building is very large and well made, the material used being stone, the work very expensive. It is very well furnished, the furniture being old oak and mahogany, in all cases hand carved, and therefore of antique value. Three pianos also make the Chateau very musical. The place has been quite modern with telephones, baths, hot and cold water, large stables, furnace rooms, etc., etc.—in other words, at the present time we are fixed "jake."

My pal, Don Noble, and I have a very nice little room, just large enough for two. We have two beds (real ones, too), a dresser, large bevelled mirror hanging over the mantelpiece under which burns a real cozy open fire, in one of the most ornamental grates you ever set eyes on. Heavy linoleum adorns a hardwood floor (it's a shame, too). In the left-hand corner we have our washstand, water, and outside the door, a large bronze statue clock, and overhead hangs a large fancy chandelier. So we are for the short present at least very comfortable, and at home in a foreign country. Of course, the officers were all taken away by the fleeing Hun, therefore only the heavy tread of soldiers' feet can be heard in the village, and to think that the Hun was enjoying all this less than a month ago.

I hope you are not quite so pessimistic about the war as you were last June. Really, I am entertaining hope of being in Canada at the beginning of 1919, as Marshal Foch is sure giving old Von Hindenburg a valping that he won't forget in a hurry.

Must close now. For Sincerely,
ROY,
France, and my fifth Christmas from home coming around the corner, but good things come to those who wait; and I think I have been a darn good waiter, too.

GIRLS! MOISTEN A CLOTH AND DRAW IT THROUGH HAIR

It becomes beautifully soft, wavy, abundant and glossy at once.

Save your hair! All dandruff goes and hair stops coming out.

Surely try a "Dandergine Hair Cleanser" if you wish to immediately restore the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Dandergine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and soft and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Dandergine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair. Dandergine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will spend a few cents for a bottle of Knowlton's Dandergine at any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

Save your hair! Keep it looking charming and beautiful. You will say this was the best money you ever spent.

A BIT OF VERSE

THE REFUGEES.
(By Mary Siegrist, in the Times, New York.)

Slowly they come—these motley sorrows
These newly risen Dead, these sad Remembers,
Back to their fields—back to those places
Of old the hearthfires burned. Nothing is left
Of those days but tears—the tears that live
In mortal things—ashes and tears. For these—
These who have tasted Sorrow's deepest cup
And lived, they know not why, and
Not how—their lives again—what shall be done
For these, Grief's children, in the days to be?

Back from the tomb—slow Lazaruses
—they come
With wounds so deep that even God has not Long while the power to ease them or to cure—
Back into sudden sunshine! How shall these Remember to forget the days that were?
How lose the old deep horror of the days?
How fly from madness of remembered
days?

Lo, Life is still the answer—Life that comes,
Tenderly bearing gifts and clothed anew
With healing Freedom. Life will light again!
Those darkened faces through World
Brotherhood
And touch dry eyes to tears, mute lips to speech.
The dawn of great Tomorrow will give back
The upward looking and the light
again.
And Love will lay her fingers on their hair
And touch their hearts to singing.
Hope
Will walk all ways. But they who snatched the torch
And left these lamplights in an utter night—
How shall they answer in that Letter
Day.
What shall they render in the Reckoning?

A BIT OF FUN

The professor encouraged his theology class to collect specimens, and one day they deposited a piece of brick, streaked and stained, with their collection. Taking up the specimen one by one the professor said: "This is a piece of baryta from the Cheddar mines. This is a piece of Feldspar from the Portland quarries. And this," coming to the brick, "is a piece of impudence from some member of the class."—Kansas City Star.

Mr. Brown had not a very good opinion of landladies in general until the other day, when he happened to see her bestowing kindness on the cat, relates Tit-Bits. Of course he reasoned that anyone who would be kind to dumb animals would be kind to human creatures, and he hastened to commend her actions. "I'm glad to see that you give all the scraps to the cat, Mrs. Gilligan," said he. "Oh, yes, sir," she cat. "Wot I says, Mr. Brown, is be kind to the cats, and yer'll find it saves 'ar the washin' up."

Mike Gilligan entered a police office and intimated that some abominable thief had stolen his watch. It was a valuable watch, he asserted, but more than that, it had been given him by his father back in County Donegal. He told a very stirring story about his loss. The officer at the desk was much impressed. "Well, leave no stone unturned to find your watch," Mr. Gilligan said he. "Thank you, sir," said Mike, "I was a fine watch. Mike went home and there found his watch. It had slipped from beneath the sheets. He hurried back to the police office to report the fact, and save the police further trouble. On his way he came across a gang of laborers tearing up the street for sewer purposes. "Hi, boys," called Mike, "have them shone alone. I've found me watch."

The man's shirt was far from spotless, and his waistcoat and coat were covered with grime and grease, but on the lapel of his coat
"What do you think of this?" he said to a casual acquaintance, pointing to the boutonnet. "Where do you think I got it?"
"Don't know," admitted the other. "Perhaps it grew there."—Adeleide (Aust. All.) Chronicle.

A country visitor to London engaged a taxi driver to take him to see some of the sights. They inspected the Tower, Westminster Abbey, Petticoat Lane and the Marble Arch, among places, according to Answers. After one halt, the "fare paused beside the driver and said, "I suppose you're pretty familiar with London. Do you know all the ins and outs?" "I do," replied the taxi-man, added meaningly, "especially the ins."

A Popular King.
Central Gazette.
A crowd of 20,000 persons waited in front of Buckingham Palace for hours until King George made his appearance, when the multitude gave vent to its enthusiasm in "God Save the King." The incident shows how the King is beloved by his subjects in the centre of Empire. The war has but served to intensify their devotion.

Serviceable School Shoes For All Ages of Children

From Kindergarten to High School. The two cardinal points in the selection of Children's Shoes are: First, correct fit; second, sturdy wearing qualities. This is, however, not so easy as it sounds as years of experience are really required to determine just how growing feet should be fitted and just how to strengthen shoes where the wear comes hardest.

We offer to you our years of expert study on these very points and ask that you entrust to us the care and safety of your children's feet as well as the protection of your own purse.

Since March, 1917, there have been 76,000 sailings with the loss of but a few hundred vessels. Of the soldiers transported, 4,391 were lost.

Ontario has a surplus at the end of the fiscal year just closed. That is satisfactory, but it cannot be expected that war expenditure will cease when the war ends. Money will be required for many purposes as a sequence of the war.

Czar & Kaiser.
Montreal Gazette.
Czar Nicholas of Russia remained to face the terrible anger of his revolting subjects, and asked humane consideration for his wife and children. Kaiser Wilhelm fed the ren only. Kaiser Wilhelm fed the danger. The reputedly weak Emperor of the Russians played the nobler part in the extremity.

Foch's Idea.

"We do not understand Foch's strategy," complains the military critic of a German newspaper. And sometimes in our artless way, we wonder if the sagacious marshal hasn't constructed his strategy purposely to produce that effect.

JUDGE WILKINSON OF CHATHAM IS DEAD IN HIS NINETY-THIRD YEAR

One of the Eminent Jurists of the Last Generation, He Retained His Faculties to the Last—A Sketch of His Successful Career.

Chatham, N. B., Nov. 22.—At his residence, Bushville, this morning, at 10 o'clock, after a long illness, passed away on Thursday night, in his ninety-third year, His Honor William Wilkinson, Judge of the County Court of Restigouche, Gloucester and Northumberland Counties from 1881 until he retired in 1906. His Honor possessed all his faculties and excellent health until about a month ago.

William Wilkinson, of Bushville, Chatham, N. B., ex-Judge of the County Courts of Northumberland, Gloucester and Restigouche counties, was born in Liverpool, England, February 11, 1826. He came to New Brunswick in 1840, arriving at Chatham on September 11, after a passage of forty-nine days. This step was taken on the advice and encouragement of his half-brother, the late James Johnson, who had arrived in this country many years previously, and who had then lately entered into business as a merchant on his own account. He remained with his brother as an apprentice and clerk for two years. Then he entered into the law office of the late Hon. John M. Johnson, Jr., as a law student, and was admitted as such in Michaelmas term, 1842. In the same term of 1847, having satisfactorily passed the necessary examination as to his fitness he was duly sworn in and enrolled as an attorney of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick, and also received his commission to act as Notary Public in Michaelmas term, 1849. He was duly called to the bar. For a few years after his admission he practiced alone, but on December 20, 1852, he entered into partnership with the late John M. Johnson, Jr., which partnership lasted up to the time of the death of Mr. Johnson, in November, 1858. During its continuance they were engaged in many very important cases, and always had the reputation of being very careful, successful practitioners.

Mr. Wilkinson's first governmental office was that of Surrogate Judge of Probate for the county of Northumberland, which was resigned by the late Hon. Thomas H. Peters, on July 8, 1851. This Mr. Wilkinson resigned in the spring or summer of 1870, with the view of becoming a candidate for the New Brunswick legislature; and it may be mentioned that during all the time that Mr. Wilkinson held the office no appeal was ever made from any decision or judgment made by him in any cause before him. In the spring or summer of 1853 Mr. Wilkinson was appointed (under the first educational act of New Brunswick) authorizing inspectors, in the spring or summer of 1870, with the view of becoming a candidate for the New Brunswick legislature; and it may be mentioned that during all the time that Mr. Wilkinson held the office no appeal was ever made from any decision or judgment made by him in any cause before him.

On November 8, 1870, he was appointed by the commission of the Intercolonial Railway, an officer for examining and reporting upon the titles of lands taken for railway purposes through the county of Northumberland, and later by the railway authorities, to perform a similar duty in regard to many unsettled and disputed cases in the adjoining counties of Gloucester and Restigouche, and at intervals for several years after his appointment as railway solicitor he was appointed one of the paymasters of the Intercolonial Railway, for the time being to appraise and (after the preparation of a new policy in regard to the transfer of title) pay the land damages for the rights of way, water courses, and conduits taken for railway purposes throughout all these counties.

In the fall of 1872 he was appointed by the Dominion government, on the resignation of John G. G. Layton, immigration agent for Northumberland. This office he had held for a few years, when, on a change of government, a new policy in regard to immigration was inaugurated. But on the cessation of the office courteous and full acknowledgment was made by the Dominion government of the ability and zeal with which the duties had been performed.

On April 2, 1873, he was appointed by the Dominion government, one of Her Majesty's counsel, learned in the law. On March 6, 1877, he was appointed, by the Vice-Admiralty Court, Surrogate of the Vice-Admiralty Court of New Brunswick, and on March 11, 1881, on the resignation of Judge Williston, he received the appointment of Judge of the County Courts of Northumberland, Gloucester and Restigouche. On the next day he was duly sworn in, and held his first county court at Bathurst, Gloucester county.

On February 13, 1884, he was ex-officio appointed first commissioner under the Liquor License act of 1883 for the several license districts of Northumberland, Gloucester and Restigouche, and held the same until the decision of the Privy Council declared the act ultra vires. On October 26, 1885, he was appointed, under separate commissions, the revising officer of the electoral districts of the counties of Northumberland and Restigouche respectively, under the electoral franchise act passed in 1884.

Judge Wilkinson is a member of the Church of England, and for thirty years, without a break, he was the vestry clerk of the church corporation in Chatham, where he has always lived, and only resigned the office a few years ago, because of his necessarily frequent absence from home to fill judicial appointments. For a life period with a very rare exception he has been a delegate to the Diocesan Church Society and to the Diocesan Synod at and ever since its formation, and on several occasions he has been elected by the Diocese to the Provincial Synod. WALL STREET IS QUITE DEPRESSED

Yesterday's Apathy Similar to That of the Previous Day—Few Features of Strength.

New York, Nov. 22.—In its essentials, today's stock market was largely a duplicate of the previous session, prices reacting very generally after an early manifestation of comparative strength. Trading was very much broader, but the occasional intervals of activity were invariably at the expense of values. Professionals governed the day's operations, public or investment interest being altogether negligible. The monetary situation occasioned further restraint, local financial institutions maintaining their attitude of extreme conservatism, although tomorrow's bank statement is expected to rectify in part last week's adverse exhibit.

Post-war conditions were again apparent in the heaviness of motors, copper and other shares whose status is likely to undergo radical readjustment in the transition to peace basis. The caution with which various corporations are proceeding in this connection was further illustrated by the suspension of dividends by a former Standard Oil subsidiary and the decision of the General Chemical directors to discontinue extra stock dividends. Metals, secondarily motors, utilities and fertilizers bore the brunt of the liquidation at extreme recessions of 2 to 4 points, Studebaker being freely sold in the last hour. Recessions of 1 to 2 points in telephone and telegraph shares were ascribed to federal control. Shipments and oils were the sole features of strength, but those issues reacted later with rail and United States Steel, the latter declining 1 1/2 points and making feeble recovery.

Is Your Boy's Education Guaranteed? WE hear much of men who, though poorly educated, made a success of life. These are exceptions! Don't be deceived by them! How many uneducated men succeed? How many educated men fail? Statistics collected by the United States Bureau of Education show that education increases, enormously, a person's chances of success in life. Here are the facts: "Uneducated laborers earn on an average $500 per year for forty years, a total of $20,000. High school graduates earn on an average $1,000 per year for forty years, a total of $40,000. This education required twelve years of school of 180 days each, that is 2,160 days in school. Now if 2,160 days in school add $20,000 to the income for life, then each day at school adds $9.02. Therefore a child that stays out of school to earn less than nine dollars a day is losing money." Tells How to Stop a Bad Cough Surprising results from this famous old home-made syrup. Really prepares and cures you.

If you have a severe cough or chest cold accompanied with soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing, or if your child wakes up during the night with a cough, or if you want quick help, try this reliable old home-made cough remedy. Any druggist can supply you with 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth). Pour this into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. This makes 16 ounces of really remarkable cough remedy. It tastes good, and in spite of its low cost, it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief. You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that makes business. It loosens and raises the phlegm, stops throat tickle and soothes and heals the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is probably the best known means of overcoming severe coughs, throat and chest colds.

There are many worthless imitations of this mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

To Mrs. R. D. BARRICK:
The Rectory, Yarmouth, N.S.
Dear Mother—
I am keeping well, have good food and well protected from the weather, but have some difficulty keeping uninvited guests from visiting me.
Have you any patriotic druggists that would give something to a gift overseas—if so do you know something that is good for everything? I do—Old MINARD'S Liniment.
Your affectionate son,
Rob.

RED CROSS SOCIETY DECIDE TO HELP SERBIAN REFUGEES

Executive of St. John Branch Held Session Yesterday Morning to Arrange for Resumption of Work—Reports from Various Committees Were Received—Considerable Business Transacted.

The executive committee of the St. John branch, Canadian Red Cross Society met in the Red Cross building yesterday morning to arrange for the resumption of work. On account of the epidemic of pneumonia which has been steadily engaged in the making of pneumonia jackets, were ordered to discontinue work. During the interval the cessation of hostilities has made some change necessary in the nature of Red Cross supplies, and this was considered at the meeting.

Miss Walker stated that Lady Trollope, organizing president of the provincial branch, had sent to her patients and samples of Serbian clothing, as it was thought that Serbia would be apportioned to New Brunswick. A request from the committee and a number of the patterns for distribution and to also make up the sample garments was accepted and definite arrangements made to give out this work through the needlework committee.

Reports were read from needlework committees by Mrs. Geo. F. Smith in the absence of Mrs. Frank S. White, in which the quantities of material now on hand were stated, and plans for the carrying on of the cutting committees under Mrs. F. Sayre arranged. Mrs. Sayre also reported for her department stating that the cutters were going on with the usual work until further notice from headquarters.

Mrs. Geo. K. McLeod reported for the knitting department. The income of socks was good, three hundred pairs having been received during the past week; arrangements had also been made for the purchase of yarn, which had increased in price, for the next five months. In addition to the yarn report Mrs. McLeod also reported for the Canadian War Contingent Association. The contributors to this fund had agreed to support it during the war, and she did not know whether contributions would automatically cease or not. Over a thousand dollars had been expended last year and there was on hand now but $28.90. It was unanimously decided to contribute $500 to this work.

Mrs. Harding, who received congratulations on the success of her sphenium moss committee work, reported that during the past five months the surgical committee had made a large number of pneumonia jackets in response to requests for them from all over the province. Her committee was now making sphenium moss dressings, 700 having been finished since the return of the workers.

Miss Edith Skinner, convener of the campaign fund, announced the closing of that fund. It was only for duration and stopped automatically with the cessation of hostilities. With few exceptions, said Miss Skinner, the collectors who began the work three years ago had continued through out. They had done very faithful service, and in accepting the vote of thanks tendered her from the meeting Miss Skinner said she would be very glad to pass it on to the men and women who had so faithfully done the work. During the three years in which the committee was active over $16,000 had been collected, and there was now on hand a balance of $3,000. The cessation of the active work of the committee did not mean that subscriptions need cease, those desiring to continue to aid the Red Cross whose work during the next two years will be exacting, can do so by sending their money to Miss Alice Walker, secretary of the Local Red Cross. Miss Skinner also reported for the Christmas stocking appeal, saying that of the 1,000 asked for from Saint John's were received, but as the province generally overran its allotment this was not a serious defect. The full report of that committee would be made at the provincial quarterly meeting in connection with the Christmas stocking appeal Miss Walker referred to the fund for the Nurses Christmas. This, it was explained, is not for the nurses personally, but is a gift from the Local Red Cross to Saint John girls overseas, and is for some extra need among the men at Christmas. Among the contributions to this fund were Mrs. J. F. Harding, Mrs. MacDonald, Macdonald's Point, Saint George's circles, senior and junior; Red Cross Circle, Cody's, and the Local Red Cross. Miss Walker has sent from the amount on hand $25 to each of the following Saint John women: Mrs. G. de Pretoria, who is deeply interested in the welfare of our Brunswick men in South Africa, to Sisters Edith MacCaffery, Elizabeth Britain, Agnes Warner and Sara Ellis Calhoun.

Mrs. James F. Robertson reported for the overseas newspaper department asking for a continuance of contributions, as she would send the local papers to the hospitals during their time of operation.

Mrs. Lawrence, for the publicity, read the following instructions received from headquarters: "The following telegram has been sent from the central office of the Canadian Red Cross Society to its various provincial and district headquarters: 'Executive committee in session congratulates officers, members and helpers of Red Cross Society on splendid work accomplished during war. Council meeting on November 23, will discuss fully peace policy of society. Meanwhile materials on hand should be used for refugee work which becomes increasingly urgent as German evacuate occupied lands. Reserve of supplies also needed in Canada for work in military hospitals. Have requested government to obtain for society earliest possible information as to arrangements for return and repatriation of prisoners.'

Until the session of the Central Council the above telegram would seem to cover the confusion which exists in the minds of many workers, and would point a clear hand to continued service. The telegram referred to in the above message as having been sent to the government was as follows: "Canadian Red Cross Society requests government to inform the so-called arrangements are being made with regard to present condition, release and repatriation of 2,300 Canadian prisoners of war now receiving food and clothing from Canadian Red Cross. Friends and relatives of prisoners look to society for authentic information."

Friends and relatives of prisoners are naturally most anxious, but until the war office has communicated with Canada it will be impossible to receive definite information. On motion it was decided to hold the regular quarterly meeting of the local branch on December 19, place of meetings to be announced later. There were present at the meeting: Mrs. John A. McAvity, president of local branch; Miss Alice K. Walker, secretary; Mrs. Geo. F. Smith, Mrs. James F. Robertson, Mrs. H. Lawrence, Miss Edith Skinner, Mrs. F. Sayre, Mrs. Geo. K. McLeod, Mrs. W. J. Ambrose, Mrs. R. O'Brien, Mrs. F. J. Harding, Mrs. Winslow, Mrs. A. W. Adams, Mrs. Roy Campbell, Mrs. L. A. Belyea.

Not a Corn or Callus on Feet

Apply few drops, then lift them off without pain.

A noted Cincinnati authority discovered a new ether compound and called it frezone and it now can be had in little bottles for a few cents from any drug store. You simply apply a few drops of frezone upon a tender corn or painful callus and instantly the soreness disappears, then shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it off with fingers.

No pain, not a bit of soreness, either when applied or after, and it doesn't even irritate the skin. Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes, also toughened calluses, just shrivel up and lift off as easily as a charm.

Wonderful! It works like a charm. Try it! Women should keep frezone on their dressers and never let a corn ache twice.

The telegram referred to in the above message as having been sent to the government was as follows: "Canadian Red Cross Society requests government to inform the so-called arrangements are being made with regard to present condition, release and repatriation of 2,300 Canadian prisoners of war now receiving food and clothing from Canadian Red Cross. Soldier on Trial for Shooting Explains Again Just How He Carried Out His Orders.

Sherbrooke, Nov. 22.—The trial of Pte. Crandall for the murder of A. Picard at Winslow continues in the court of King's bench. The accused gave evidence on his own behalf. He told the same story as at the coroner's inquest. He stated that when he went to arrest Picard the latter ran away and he fired three shots in the air. This did not halt his man, and he fired the fourth shot with the idea of wounding Picard. He had no intention of inflicting a fatal wound. When he was after Picard he yelled that he would shoot if he did not surrender. Crandall said that he had been two years and eleven months overseas, fifteen months of that period was spent in France, where he had been wounded three times. Several other military police were examined and Mr. C. D. White, K. C., began his address to the jury this afternoon. The case may finish tonight if an evening session is held.

LONGEST PIPE LINE IN THE WORLD, OPENED

Will Carry Fuel Oil for the British Fleet to the Naval Base at Rosyth.

London, Nov. 22.—The inter-Allied petroleum council has been visiting Scotland during the past few days, attending the formal inauguration of a pipe line laid across Scotland along the Clyde-Forth Canal to secure a continuous supply of fuel oil for the British naval base at Rosyth. The primary object of this pipe line, which can deliver one hundred tons of oil per hour and is the longest in Europe is to avert the necessity of tank steamers sailing around Scotland to the east coast and thus to diminish the loss of tank steamers by submarine attacks.

Construction was begun in March and completed on November 11. Rear Admiral H. H. D. Tothill, fourth British sea lord, performed the inaugural ceremony.

—That's why it means so much

It is from an actual photograph of Anna Case of the Metropolitan Opera singing in direct comparison with her own voice on the New Edison.

"But what's remarkable about that?" you ask. The amazing fact is that no human ear can distinguish the artist from the instrument; so perfect is the RE-CREATION. This is what we call the "tone test". And it proves the truth of the Edison Company's claim about

The NEW EDISON "The Phonograph with a Soul"

It proves that the instrument does RE-CREATE, not merely imitate. Hundreds of these tone tests have been conducted. More than 2,000,000 people have attended them. And not one could say when it was the artist he heard and when the instrument. With the lights lowered to hide the singer's lips the audience was completely baffled.

Youth and Age

"SO this is your birthday, grandmother."

"Yes, dearie, I am seventy-five years old to-day. It doesn't seem possible, for I don't feel old."

"And you certainly do not look old. Besides, you are always so happy and cheerful that you do not seem at all old."

"A woman is only as old as she looks you know, and I have always tried to keep young and healthy."

"And were you never sick, grandmother?"

"Oh, yes, indeed, there was a time in my life when I never expected to live to be fifty, say nothing about seventy-five. When your mother and my other children were small I had my hands full and got run down in health. I got so nervous that I could not sleep and had frequent headaches. Every little thing the children would do seemed to annoy and worry me until, finally, I gave out entirely, and was in bed for months with nervous prostration."

"Did you have a doctor?"

"Yes, dearie, I had two or three doctors, but they only told me that it would take a long time for me to regain strength. One day your grandfather came in with some of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. He said some one told him that it would cure me, and he went away to the drug store and bought half a dozen boxes."

"What did your doctor say about using it?"

"Well, what could he say? He only said that he had done all he could, and that he had run across a great many cases in which the Nerve Food had been used with excellent results. So I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and it was not long before I was on the way to health and strength."

"And did it cure you?"

"Well, the best evidence is that I am here to-day, well and happy, after all these years. And I am more than ever enthusiastic for Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, for I have used it several times during the last few years when I felt that I needed some assistance to keep up vitality. As a person gets older I think their blood gets thinner, and they seem to need something like Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to increase their strength and vigor."

"That is something worth knowing, grandmother."

"If you will take my advice, dearie, you will not forget about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food when you get run down, tired out and nervous. This has been my advice to a great many people, and I know that it has done them good."

In this view of the matter, he added, he was in agreement with Dr. Weitzmann, of London, the Jewish leader of the Zionist movement who expressed himself as Red Cross party in London. Weitzmann is now in Jerusalem ministering relief among his legionists. On the topic of British were handling administration he declared they were in splendid attitude and one of the great support of the principle determination. Continuing he said: "The fine attitude of the British in their official one, not only officially or unofficially as a conquered land, but as a territory. PALESTINE TO NAME ITS GOVERNMENT

Dr. Finley Would Not Turn Country Over to Any One Nation, Race, or Religion—Sees English Methods—No British or Other Flag Floated as Emblem of Rule—Land Little Scarred by War.

Self-determination by Palestine as to the form of government to be cast for the Holy Land was suggested yesterday by John H. Finley, State Commissioner of Education, who discussed his four months in Palestine as Red Cross Commissioner. He had high praise for General Sir Edmund Allenby's army of occupation, and disclosed that the war had left few scars on the country—the only visible evidence, in fact, being the passage of German institutions to Allied control.

Commissioner Finley was accompanied on his trip by Colonel E. St. John Ward, Major Theodora Waters, and Major Solomon Weinstein, all of the Red Cross, and the latter is head of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, Amsterdam avenue and 138th street. Speaking of the future of Palestine, Commissioner Finley voiced his convictions thus:

"I do not think that Palestine should be given over to any one nation, race, or religion. It should be held in trusteeship by the nations jointly, as in international agreement, until such time as the country, through agriculture or other means, becomes self-supporting in a sense and population grows. As the country develops, the people themselves will gradually come to agree upon the form of government they wish, and then the nations should withdraw and permit the evolution of this government.

In this view of the matter, Mr. Finley added, he was in agreement with Dr. Weizmann, of London, the noted Jewish leader of the Zionist movement who expressed himself to the Red Cross party in London. Dr. Weizmann is now in Jerusalem, administering relief among his fellow Zionists. On the topic of how the British were handling administration, he declared they were maintaining a splendid attitude and one that indicated support of the principle of self-determination. Continuing he said: "The fine attitude of the British is apparent in their unofficial acts, as well as their official ones. They do not refer, officially or unofficially, to Palestine as a conquered land. Officially it is known as 'the Holy Land territory.' The British are not in command, but the British flag does not float over Palestine. In fact, no flags of any nation appear there. When the Americans held a Fourth of July celebration we were told courteously that we could not run up the Stars and Stripes, and while this may seem extraordinary, it was explained that the action of the British in preventing the natives from getting too accustomed to any one flag is the proper thing."

Dr. Finley entered the Holy Land on June 21, having been joined by an African Red Cross unit of fifty persons at Port Said. He found the country's population of 1,000,000, of whom 100,000 are Jews and the remainder Syrians and Arabs, in good trim. The British victors had established relief agencies which apparently had put the situation in good order. The Finley party, however, promptly established a hospital and a dispensary and 10,000 were treated in one month, many of them being soldiers from the army of occupation.

"The British held only Jews when we arrived in Palestine," he said.

CROWN PRINCE WAS HATED BY SOLDIERS; CALLED A MEDDLER

He Caused First Break in the German Front and Let Allies Through.

Until the announcement came from Berlin that the Crown Prince of Germany had renounced his rights to the throne as the oldest son of the Kaiser, here loomed on the horizon a shadow even more sinister than that of the Kaiser himself. For Frederick Wilhelm von Hohenzollern, as incompetent as he was arrogant and despised by the soldiers he sought to lead.

As commander of the Fifth German Army his amateurish meddling with the strategic plans of the experienced generals caused the first real break in the solid German front and enabled the Allied armies to turn the battle into the hands of the French. The Kaiser's fall into the hands of the Allies and the German lines all along the front.

On numerous occasions during the war the Crown Prince was accused of vagary, brutality and robbery, and evidence which subsequently came to the hands of the French authorities showed that he violated even the human rules of warfare against pillage and plundering. Now that the Kaiser's fall has been announced, there is a revival of discussion about the possibility of an international effort to try the Crown Prince and some of his subordinate officers for crimes that were committed in the war.

In the early days of the war the Crown Prince gave to Karl H. von Bayard, William Bayard Hale and other war correspondents who posed the German side interviews in which he spoke many words about the enemy and professed being opposed to bureaucracy and able to understand the attitude of the French.

After his fall from the French front the Crown Prince transferred his presence to the eastern front, where the German generals were winning the annihilation of the Russian armies. He promptly laid claim to the task of conducting the center attack, which was intended to reduce and deal the death blow to the Russians.

Again he stacked his military book on the table and, by inviting and favoring professors at Lötzenburg, against the expertise of the generals. As a result, his army was shattered and fled from the scene of conflict. It was reported that he was entirely to his subordinates' credit of covering the German retreat.

FIRST U-BOAT BUILT IN 1850

Frightened Off the Danish Fleet That Blockaded German Shores.

Had Inglorious Record—Stayed at Bottom and Blew Crew up.

Germany's first U-boat to be used as a weapon of offense was built in 1850, and by means of it the Germans drove off the Danish fleet which then blockaded the German shores. This first submersible was known as the Sea Diver, and was planned and navigated by one William Bauer, a Bavarian corporal who had had no technical training in boat construction or engineering, but who was an unusually good mechanic.

The place of construction was Kiel, then the cradle of Prussia's infant navy, and the vessel was so speedily put together that it was ready for sea in a few weeks' time. It was built of sheet-iron, was 28 feet in length, and had a displacement of 28½ tons. In appearance it was almost lemon shaped, and light was supplied to the crew by means of small plate-glass windows set into the hull. The torpedoes were carried outside and could be by simple but ingenious arrangement be attached to the hull of a ship and exploded by an electric charge.

Entrance to the vessel was by hatches with water-tight lids, and subsidence was accomplished by admitting water into a double bottom, whence it could be pumped out when it became necessary to rise. The air supply contained in the Sea Diver was not calculated, however, to serve her crew of three for longer than four hours, as no artificial methods of ventilation were employed to permit of any prolonged submersion. To enable the craft to descend a heavy weight was sent to the stem, so that it dived nose downward, instead of merely settling—a device of doubtful value. The means of navigation were entirely manual.

Bauer took command himself with all the confidence in his machine of the born inventor, and his operations during the latter days of January, 1850, aroused such panic of the naval craft in the commanders of the Danish fleet that they withdrew several miles from the German coast. This retreat, however, was dictated more by fear for an invisible enemy whose destructive capacity was an unknown quantity than by any real strategic value on the part of Bauer's undersea boat.

Nor was the inventor able to repeat his success. In the first place, the manual apparatus by which his vessel was navigated rendered its submersion progress extremely slow, and all its operators could hope for was to reach and destroy single enemy craft, as it was obvious that no other hostile ship would remain in the neighborhood of a disaster, but would take advantage of its slow-moving submersible.

It was on Feb. 1, 1850, that an incident occurred which convinced the Prussian authorities that the Bavarian corporal's invention was not sufficiently developed to render it a serious naval weapon. The submersible was unfortunate. The great weight which Bauer employed for nose-diving rolled with such violence from stern to stem that it displaced the ballast and the enormous strain put upon the compartments of the vessel threatened to break them down. In a trice, Bauer and his crew of two found themselves in an iron prison resting on the ocean bed, without any hope of ascent to the surface, the machinery for pumping out the water having been put out of gear by the shifting of the ballast. To add to his difficulties, the inventor had to face mutiny on the part of his despairing assistants, who began to revile him as the cause of their misfortune, and, after the manner of his race, to lament their fate rather than make any attempt to mitigate it.

Inventor Narrowly Escapes Death.

Bauer, however, admirably cool and did everything in his power to lighten his companions. At first they would not listen, but at last they consented to help him, and worked desperately to get the pumps in order. Their efforts were rather hampered than assisted by the good intentions of their comrades above water, who, concluding that some mishap had occurred, were attempting to raise the Sea Diver by means of grappling irons. To the horror of Bauer and

Although Bauer's career as an inventor of submarines was at an end so far as the Prussian government was concerned, he determined to push his ideas elsewhere, in the confidence that they would meet with ultimate success, and with this object he came to England, where he submitted his plans to certain Mersey shipbuilders. But Bauer, nothing daunted, betook himself to Russia, where his ideas met with a greater measure of sympathy, for he constructed a submarine in

Tired Nervous Mothers

Buffalo, N. Y.—"I am the mother of four children, and for nearly three years I suffered from a female trouble with pains in my back and side, and a general weakness. I had professional attendance most of that time but did not seem to get well. As a last resort I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which I had seen advertised in the newspapers, and in two weeks noticed a marked improvement. I continued its use and am now free from pain and able to do all my household work."—Mrs. B. B. ZIELINSKA, 202 Wells Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Portland, Ind.—"I had a displacement and suffered so badly from it at times I could not be on my feet at all. I was all run down and so weak I could not do any housework, was nervous and could not lie down at night. I took treatments from a physician but they did not help me. My Aunt recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I tried it and now I am strong and well again and do my own work and I give Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound the credit."—Mrs. JOSEPHINE KNABE, 936 West Race Street, Portland, Ind.

HOW? WHY?

Fawcett Grates are all made to admit an immense amount of air from below the fire which forces the fuel to burn entirely to a white ash. Fuel burns longer and the gases and smoke are converted into fuel, because the fire boxes in Fawcett Ranges and Heaters are all built with hot-blast, smoke-consuming devices which burn the hot gases and smoke, thereby saving half the fuel.

These are only a few Fawcett features. Others can only imitate.

FREIGHT HANDLERS DISCONTINUE WORK

Seven Hundred Men Attend Meeting Last Night—Trouble Over Wage Schedule With C. P. R. Results in Action Taken.

At a meeting of the Freight Handlers' Union last night in their hall on the West Side, it was decided to discontinue working until further notice. This action was taken after a delegation from the union had visited the C. P. R. and had unsuccessfully tried to effect a change in the wage schedule. The freight handlers took intense interest in the meeting and over 700 men turned up at the hall. Asked regarding the meeting, James Brittain, the business agent of the union, stated to The Standard that the meeting was held so that the men could discuss the wage question. He advised that the delegation appointed to see the C. P. R. did not get satisfaction, so the men decided to quit work. When asked what wage schedule the men were demanding, Mr. Brittain stated that he had nothing to say for publication.

The Standard got into communication with Edward McGinnis, who is associated with the union. He was adverse to talking about the meeting, but did say that there was some trouble over the wage schedule, and that nothing was settled yet. He was of the opinion that the matter might be arranged at 7 o'clock this morning, or possibly at noon.

As the Winter Port season is just commencing and ships are arriving practically every day at Sand Point, a strike of the freight handlers would mean a very serious thing. Last night there were five ships at the Point, and the C. P. R. liner Tunisian was docked this morning. If these ships are held out by the lack of men to unload them, valuable foodstuffs, destined for overseas consumption, will be delayed and trade in general will be held up indefinitely. Every day that the walk-out lasts, provisions the matter is not settled today, the congestion at the Point will become greater, due to the arrival of more ships, and a bad state of affairs would be the result.

INDICATIONS POINT TO IMMENSE BUSINESS THROUGH PORT OF ST. JOHN THIS WINTER.

Present indications are that St. John will be the biggest passenger trade that has ever passed through the port, boom immigration times not excepted, and the harbor master has been asked to provide berths for from two to three passenger steamers each week, in addition to the large fleet of cargo steamers which are bound this way. Yesterday the Manchester liner Adjana and the C. P. R. liner Dunbridge arrived. This makes five winter steamers now in port, and another is expected today.

FOUR NEW CASES OF INFLUENZA

SUBSTITUTES TO BE PURCHASED

Rye, Barley, Oats and Corn Flour Will be Taken off the Hands of Wholesalers and Shippers.

The Canadian government has arranged with the Allied Purchasing Committee to purchase the substitutes that were being used in Canada for shipment overseas, according to W. S. Potts, local food inspector, who stated that he had received word to that effect last night. He stated that the substitutes to be purchased by the Allied Purchasing Committee were four in number: rye, barley, oats and corn flour. There are large quantities of substitutes in Canada and by this action of the government the wholesalers and shippers will be relieved by having them taken off their hands. Mr. Potts stated that only one food restriction had been removed by the government, that being the necessity of using substitutes with flour. He added that there had been no change in regard to the sugar regulations.

STEAMER ARRIVES WITH RETURNED MEN

Lieut.-Col. E. C. Deane With Other Officers in the City to Arrange for Disposal of Soldiers Today.

Lieutenant Colonel E. C. Deane, Quebec; Captain Doane, Halifax, and Captain Grant, Quebec, reached the city yesterday afternoon and are quartered at the Royal Hotel. When seen last evening, Lieut. Col. Deane stated that he, in company with the above mentioned officers, were attached to the Canadian Clearing Service Command, whose duties, as such, called them to this port to arrange for the disposal, etc., of a number of Canadian soldiers, who were due to reach the city today at one o'clock on the C. P. R. liner Tunisian. This ship carries three hundred soldiers of the Canadian Expeditionary Force; two hundred women and children (the wives and families of the soldiers); twenty officers; seventy-five Imperialists; and thirty-five Newfoundlanders. Immediately on the arrival of the liner these men will be dispatched, and given transportation to their homes, many residing in Western Canada.

To handle these men is in itself seemingly a mighty task, but the department in charge can, in a few short hours, get everything in readiness for the departure of the men to their respective homes. Whether among the list of officers arriving today there are any who have been in the front line, but it is believed that some of the men finished in time to catch the evening train.

Speaking of civil life the Colonel stated that he was at a time connected with the newspaper life, from which he resigned in 1903. At a former time he was stationed in Halifax, two years previous to his going overseas. In reference to the officers of this city he mentioned some whom he was intimately acquainted with, among whom were Lieut. Colonel Powell, former A. A. G. Military District No. 1, no was at present in command of the Siberian Contingent at Victoria, B. C., and Colonel Sturdee, of this city was also among the number of his speaker's friends.

He mentioned General A. C. Powell, O. C. Military District No. 2, a brother of the former A. A. G. of this military district, who was at a former time the O. C. Division Two, in France. Referring again to Colonel A. H. Powell he paid a glowing tribute to him as a soldier, and a citizen of the Dominion.

Concluding the general speaker hoped to be able to finish up his duties in the city today, so as to catch the train for his home. He returns in the near future, but it was understood that he will proceed to Halifax on a similar mission as here.

BOARD OF TRADE DELEGATE REPORTS

Various Boards Represented at Important Conference in Ottawa With the Acting Minister of Trade and Commerce.

The delegate sent by the St. John Board of Trade to Ottawa to the shipping conference, called by Hon. A. K. Maclean, acting minister of trade and commerce, to consider the steps necessary to be taken to provide a sufficient steam tonnage to present Canadian trade requirements, presented his report yesterday to the council of the Board of Trade. The principal result of the conference was the removal by the Canadian government of the rule forbidding sailing ships to visit the West Indies, and this will allow the use of sailing vessels for the carrying of lumber, leaving the space in the steamers for the carrying of other goods. This matter will be taken up with the Imperial authorities and they will be asked to use sailing ships for the conveyance of lumber crossing for use by the Imperial Munitions Board. The Imperial authorities will also be asked to expedite the removal of the lumber tax which was brought some time ago by the Imperial Munitions Board, and which has caused more or less congestion at the mills where it is piled.

The Imperial government will as a result of the conference be asked to release the two Royal Mail Packet steamers so that they may resume their runs on the West Indian route, and a request will be forwarded that all Canadian ships requisitioned be released as soon as possible, as this step would greatly help the Canadian steamship owners.

The absolute need of more steam tonnage for the trans-Pacific and South African trades will also be pointed out to the Imperial authorities, and they will be requested to do everything possible to remedy this defect.

The conference was a most representative one. The Boards of Trade of St. John, Halifax, Quebec, and Montreal had representatives; twenty-five members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and ten of the leading steamship agents in the Dominion being around the council table.

A suggestion from the Saskatchewan Board of Trade that November 11, the date of capitulation by Germany, be observed in perpetuity as Thanksgiving day on this continent, was approved by the council, with the opinion that the day should be the Monday nearest the 11th.

The Correspondence School Detective's Latest Adventures
By ELLIS PARKER BUTLER

PHILO GUBB'S GREATEST CASE
The correspondence school detective is engaged to solve the mystery of the murder of H. Smitz.

(Copyright by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Philo Gubb, wrapped in his bath robe, went to the door of the room that was the headquarters of his business of paper hanging and decorating, in the office of his detective business, and opened the door a crack. It was still early in the morning, but someone should see him in his scanty attire, he peered through the crack of the door before he stepped hastily into the hall and captured his copy of the Riverview Daily Eagle. When he had secured the still damp newspaper, he returned to his cot and spread himself out to read comfortably.

It was a hot low morning. The thermometer had registered 90 degrees at sun-down; at midnight the mercury had risen to 94, and in the early dawn it stood at 96 with every sign of a ferociously hot day—one that would strain the thermometer to the utmost.

Business was slack with the celebrated graduates of the Rising Sun Correspondence School of Detecting. But P. Gubb was not downcast. The let-up in the paper-hanging and detecting lines gave him time to read the Course of Twelve Lessons in Detecting, and he was making the most of the opportunity.

P. Gubb opened the Eagle. The first words that met his eye caused him to sit upright on his cot. At the top of the first column of the first page were the headlines:

Mysterious Death of Henry Smitz.
Body Found in Mississippi River by Boatman Early This A. M.

Foul Play Suspected.

Mr. Gubb unfolded the paper and read the item under the headlines with the most intense interest. Foul play meant the possibility of an opportunity to put to use once more the precepts of the Course of Twelve Lessons, and with them fresh in his mind, Detective Gubb was eager to undertake the solution of any mystery that could be solved. The body of Henry Smitz, late of this place.

"Although too late to secure particulars, our reporter learned that Smitz had been missing for three days and his wife had been greatly worried. The company, by whom he was employed, admitted that Mr. Smitz had been missing for several days.

"The body was found sewed in a sack. Foul play is suspected."

"I should think to some extent foul play would be suspected," said Philo Gubb as he read the item. "If the editorial persons onto the Eagle had the advantages of a detective education, they would almost surely think foul play was in a case where a man was sewed into a bag and deposited into the Mississippi River until dead."

He propped the paper against the foot of the cot and picked up the twelve thin pamphlets that constitute the Rising Sun Correspondence School course. From these he selected two—"Mysterious Disappearances" and "Mystery Mysteries"—and, as a preliminary to solving the mystery of H. Smitz, read the two pamphlets carefully. He was still in his bed when someone knocked on his door. He wrapped his bathrobe carefully about him and opened the door. A young woman with tear-dimmed eyes stood in the doorway.

"Mr. P. Gubb," she asked, "I'm sorry to disturb you so early in the morning, but I couldn't sleep last night. I came on a matter of business, and I'm sure you'll help me."

"Paper-hanging or detecting?" asked P. Gubb.

"Both," said the young woman. "My name is Smitz—Emily Smitz. My husband—"

"I'm aware of the knowledge of your loss, ma'am," said the paper-hanger-detective gently.

"Lots of people know of it," said Mrs. Smitz. "I guess everybody knows of it—I told the police to try to find Henry, so it is no secret. And I want you to come up as soon as you get dressed, and paper my bedroom."

Mr. Gubb looked at the young woman as if he thought she had gone insane under the burden of her woe.

"And then I want you to help to find Henry," she said, "because I've heard you can do so well in the detecting line as anybody in town, or better."

Mr. Gubb suddenly realized that the poor creature did not yet know the full extent of her loss. He bared down upon her with pity in his bird-like eyes.

"I know you'll think it strange," the young woman went on, "that I should ask you to paper a bedroom, when my husband is no one knows where; but if he goes it is because I was a mean, stubborn thing. We never quarrelled in our lives, Mr. Gubb, until I picked up on our bed-parrots and birds-of-paradise and tropical flowers that were as big as umbrellas would look awfully good on our wall. So I said he hadn't anything but low Dutch taste, and he got mad. 'All right, have it your own one to the other doubtfully.

"All right, take me back to jail," said Mr. Gubb. "You look up the case, Mr. Gubb; that's all I came here for. Will you do it? Die into it, hey?" "I'm certainly glad to be glad to do so," said Mr. Gubb, "at the regular terms."

"I've got some money in the bank," said Mr. Wiggins proudly. "You come to jail after while and we can have a nice quiet talk. I want you to find that murderer."

"And for one, will be glad to have you work on the case," said O'Toole, "for you'll find nothing, but what will paper this Wiggins murdered Smitz. I tell you that now." And with that he led his prisoner away.

For a few minutes Mrs. Smitz sat silent, her hands clasped, staring at the door. Then she looked up into Mr. Gubb's eyes.

"You will work on this case, Mr. Gubb, won't you?" she begged. "I have a little money—I'll give it all to have you do your best. It is cruel—cruel Gubb, but perhaps that was probably because I don't speak that way as a general rule."

"I guess so," said Mr. Wiggins. "Anybody'd know a man don't mean all he says. Anybody but a fool policeman would. When I went and told Hen Smitz I'd murder him as sure as green apples grow on a tree, I was just fooling. Anybody'd ought to know that. Hen knew it. You can go ask Hen—no you can't! He's dead. But you could ask him, if he wasn't dead. But this fool policeman—"

"Mr. O'Toole?"

"Yes. They gave him this Hen Smitz case to look into, and the first thing he did was to arrest me for murder. I call it."

Policeman O'Toole opened the door a crack and peered in. Seeing Mr. Gubb well along in his dressing operations, he opened the door wider and assisted Mrs. Smitz to a chair. She was still limp and frightfully overcome by the recent knowledge of her husband's death—the particulars of which the policeman had just given her—but she was a brave little woman at heart and was trying to control her emotions.

"Through?" O'Toole asked Wiggins.

"If you are, come along back to jail."

"Now don't talk to me in that tone of voice," said Mr. Wiggins angrily. "No, I'm not through, but if you are going to talk that way I'll get through and get back to jail and be rid of you. You don't know how to treat a gentleman, like a gentleman, and never did."

On the edge of the river Mr. Gubb found Long Sam Fliggis, the mussel dredger, seated on an empty tar barrel with his own audience.

He changed his undertaker disguise for that of a blue woollen-shirted laboring man.

As Mr. Gubb walked toward the river, other citizens joined the group. When Mr. Gubb reached River street, and his false mustache fell off, the interest of the audience stopped short. Three faces behind him and stood upon the edge of the river, and one of them placed his wires in his nostrils. Then, when he moved forward again, they too moved forward.

On the edge of the river, Mr. Gubb found Long Sam Fliggis, the mussel dredger, seated on an empty tar barrel with his own audience ranged before him listening while he told, for the fourth time, the story of his find of the body of H. Smitz. As Philo Gubb approached, Long Sam ceased speaking, and his audience and Mr. Gubb's gallery respectfully looked and listened while Mr. Gubb questioned the mussel dredger.

"Suicide," said Long Sam scoffingly. "Why, he wasn't no more a suicide or war'n' nothin'! I've dredged up some suicides in my day, and some of 'em had stones tied to 'em, to make 'em sink. But this was different. He was a man, and he was sewed himself into a bag, and I give my word, he had sewed himself into that burlap bag unless some one done the sewing. Then the fellow that did it was an assistant-suicide, and I look at it is that an assistant-suicide I jest the same as a murderer."

"In certain kinds of burlap bags it is possibly probable a man could sew himself into it," said Mr. Gubb, and the crowd applauded gently but feelingly.

"You ain't seen the way he was sewed up," said Long Sam, "or you wouldn't talk like that."

"I haven't yet took a look," admitted Mr. Gubb, "but I aim so to do immediately after I find a clue onto which to work up my case. An A-I detective can't set forth to work until he has a clue, that being a rule of the game."

"What kind of a clue was you looking for?" asked Long Sam. "What's a clue, anyway?"

"A clue," said P. Gubb, "is almost anything connected with the late lamented, but generally something that nobody but a detective would think had anything to do with anything whatsoever. Not infrequently often it is a button."

"Well, I've got no button except that that is sewed onto me," said Long Sam, "but if this here sack-needle will do any good—"

He brought from his pocket the point of a heavy sack-needle and laid it on Philo Gubb's palm. Mr. Gubb looked at it carefully. In the eye of the needle still remained a few inches of twine.

"I cut that off'n the burlap he was sewed up in," volunteered Long Sam. "I thought I'd keep it as a sort of nice little souvenir. I'd like it back again when you don't need it for a clue no more."

"Certainly sure," agreed Mr. Gubb, and he examined the needle carefully. There are two kinds of sack-needle in general use. In both, the point of the needle is curved to facilitate pushing it into and out of the closely fitted somewhat flattened so that the thumb and finger may secure a firm grasp to pull the needle through; but in one style the eye is at the end of the shaft while in the other it is near the point.

This needle was like neither; the eye was midway of the shaft; the needle was pointed at each end and the twine was not the ordinary loosely-twisted hemp twine, but a hard smooth cotton cord, like carpet warp.

"Thank you," said Mr. Gubb, "and now I will go elsewhere to investigate to a further extent."

Sam Long and his audience joined Mr. Gubb's gallery and, with a dozen or so newcomers, they followed Mr. Gubb at a decent distance as he walked toward the plant of the Brownson Packing Company, which stood on the river bank some two blocks away.

It was here Henry Smitz had worked. Six or eight buildings of various sizes, the largest of which stood immediately on the river's edge, together with the "yards" or pens, all enclosed by a high board fence, constituted the packing company, and as Philo Gubb appeared at the gate the watchman there stood aside to let him enter.

"Good morning, Mr. Gubb," he said pleasantly. "I been sort of expecting you. Always right on the job when there's crime being done, ain't you?"

Mr. Gubb looked at the watchman in the main building, and I guess they tell you just what they told the police. They hate it, but what else can they say. It's the truth."

"What is the truth?" asked Mr. Gubb.

"That Wiggins was dead sure at Hen Smitz," said the watchman. "That Wiggins told Hen he'd do for him if he lost them their jobs like he said he would. That's the truth."

Mr. Gubb—his admiring followers were halted at the gate by the watchman—entered the large building and inquired his way to Mr. Wiggins' department. He found it on the side of the building toward the river and the room led into the refrigerating room of the company; on the other it opened upon a long but narrow dock that ran the width of the building.

Along the outer edge of the dock were tied two barges, and into these barges some of Wiggins' crew were sent sheep, neatly sewed into burlap. The large room was the packing and shipping room, and the work of Wiggins' crew was that of sewing of burlap around the refrigerated sheep carcasses in burlap for shipment. Bales of burlap stood against one wall, and the posts that supported the floor above. The continuity of the refrigerating room gave the room a peculiar atmosphere.

Mr. Gubb glanced sharply around. Here was the burlap, here were needles, here was twine. Under was twine. Under was the river into which Hen Smitz had been thrown. As his eye returned he noticed one of the men carefully sweeping the dock with a broom—sweeping fragments of twine around his under and pocket-stuck in improvised needle-holders made by boring gimlet holes in the wall, and then walked to the dock and picked up one of the pieces of glass.

"Clues," he remarked, and gave his attention to the work of questioning the men.

Although manifestly reluctant, they frankly admitted that Wiggins had more than once threatened Hen Smitz. Mr. Gubb learned that Hen Smitz had been the foreman for the entire building—a sort of autocrat with, as Wiggins' crew informed him, an easy job. He had only to see that the crews in the building turned out more work this year than they did last year. "Efficiency" had been his motto, they said, and they hated "Efficiency."

Mr. Gubb's gallery fell in behind him as he walked away from the packing house and toward the undertaking establishment of Mr. Howorthy Bartman, on the main street. Here, joining the curious group already assembled, the gallery was forced to wait while Mr. Gubb watched the undertaking crew, on the main street. Here, joining the curious group already assembled, the gallery was forced to wait while Mr. Gubb watched the undertaking crew, on the main street. Here, joining the curious group already assembled, the gallery was forced to wait while Mr. Gubb watched the undertaking crew, on the main street.

It would have been utterly impossible for Hen Smitz to have sewed himself into the casing, not only because it bounded his ankles tight to his sides, but because the burlap was lapped over and sewed from the outside. This, once and for all, ended the suicide theory. The question was: Who was the murderer?

As Philo Gubb turned away from the bier, Undertaker Bartman entered the morgue.

"The crowd outside is getting impatient, Mr. Gubb," he said in his soft, undertakerly voice. "It is getting on toward their lunch hour, and they want to crowd into my front office to find out what you've learned. I don't want to hurry you, but if you would go out and tell them Wiggins is the murderer they'll go away. Of course there's no doubt about Wiggins being the murderer, since he has admitted he asked the stock-keeper for the electric bulb."

"What bulb?" asked Philo Gubb.

"The electric light bulb we found sewed inside this burlap when we sliced it open," said Bartman. "Matter of fact, we found it in Hen's hand, and he took it for a clue and I guess it fixes the murder on Wiggins beyond all doubt. The stock-keeper says Wiggins got it from him."

"Not a word," said Bartman. "His lawyer told him not to open his mouth, and he won't. Listen to that crowd out there!"

"I will attend to that crowd presently," said P. Gubb sternly. "What I should wish to know now is why Mr. Wiggins went and sewed an electric light bulb in with the corpse for."

ORIENTAL EFFECTS ARE SEEN BRIGHTENING WINTER GOWNS

The chemise robe still in favor—Velvet is a good choice for house dress in these days of fuel conservation—Very long coats worn by French women.

The latest frocks from Paris excel in simplicity. Not only are the lines perfectly simple, but there is an almost complete absence of trimming, while the beauty of the fabrics themselves is emphasized.

Particularly is this true of those delightfully soft dresses of silver tone, duvety nature. They are so simple made as a school girl's frock, the colors of the material being unrelieved by any other tone or trimming except the narrowest of string ribbon belts, vivid in a harmonizing tone, tied straight around the waist and left to hang straight down with long loops and ends.

The chemise robe seems to retain favor. The waistline appears on such dresses at any point the wearer prefers, now and again not being seen at all. The medieval effect is brought out in a Calot model of blue black velvet hung from the shoulders. The waist line is introduced somewhere along the hips by a bright tracery of peacock blue heavy silken threads. This by the way, is one of the new notes to be observed in many Parisian creations. Where trimming such as beadings or embroidery has been employed it has been done with a sort of barbaric splendor. Curious combinations of silk and jet and fuzzy things, such as Angora, thickly beaded and powdered with little bright colored dots of silken thread, are new and effective, if used sparingly and placed judiciously.

The frock illustrated is planned on straight chemise lines lightly held to the figure by a crush girde ornamented by an iridescent buckle. The fabric is a fine cloth of burgundy color with sand broadcloth panel inserted in apron effect from the square cut neck line. The sand color is repeated in the soft crust color which is held down by buttons of a peculiarly beautiful design. Rows of buttons to match of a smaller size outline the panel and are seen on the sleeves. The accompanying smart hat is of stiffly pleated silk on burgundy with sand feather.

An idea for a separate jacket to be worn with georgette crepe waists is given in the model to the left. Very long coats with one-piece frocks are distinctly featured among the French things. They are so long that they seem to be redingotes and it of the same service as a heavy outer coat. For the most part they appear in three-piece combinations, skirt and tunic and coat, and are generally made up of two fabrics and two harmonious colors. There are various ways of effecting the combination. A practical method is to have a skirt showing a vein of velours under a tunic of satin, which in its turn is glimpsed beneath the coat of velours.

All separate coats and most of the suit coats have deep soft collars of the fabric or fur, folded about the throat and fastened high. Oftenest the fastening is done with buttons and buttonholes but some makers have seized the opportunity to display jewelled ornaments, Oriental looking pins, buckles encrusted with colored stones and so on. Where a touch of color is needed to lighten a sombre tone these fastenings are appropriate.

Almost the only kind of evening dress for which there has been any demand of late is the dinner gown, which in its present phase is a sort of glorified negligee, the kind of dress into which a woman likes to change after a busy day. As it is to be worn in the dining-room instead of in the boudoir, it is made of hand-some and substantial materials, but its general lines are those of the rest gown. Since houses are not overheated in these days of coal conservation, velvet is a good choice for the home evening gown. A French adaptation of the dinner gown is a narrow chemise-like frock falling from the shoulders in unbroken lines. There are no fastenings, as the frock is slipped over the head and the arms pass through the very loose kimono-like sleeves. The material used is dark blue cashmere velvet embroidered around the neck with a lighter shade of blue in very heavy silk thread. The same sort of embroidery is used to outline

Priced From $225.00

Could you have been with the writer on our Fur Coat floor on Tuesday afternoon, you would agree that St. John women are most assuredly appreciative of the beauty, style and extraordinary quality of our Hudson Seal Coats.

It is remarkable how much preference is given to the shorter models. Those trimmed with Squirrel, Opossum, Beaver and Skunk are decided favorites.

WEEKLY CHAT

My Dear Boys and Girls:—Do you ever stop and think what a lot there is to be done to prepare for winter? In the home there are double windows, bakings of houses, especially country ones, to keep out the cold, putting away the summer clothes and bringing out the warmer ones, placing the food, such as vegetables, eggs and fruits, where they will keep the best, and heaps of other plans must be made. Then on the farm work must be protected from rusting, the food for the animals must be stored and placed, the barns well mended and patched to keep out the rain and frost and the animals must be gathered and protected, so it will always be in good condition for burning. There must be room found in the barns and sheds for the animals who have lived out of doors all summer and autumn, such as the sheep, cows, pigs, calves and poultry. Of course the faithful horse claims his indoor apartment all seasons. Then the sheds and sleighs must be taken down from their racks and gone over, for one can never tell how soon they will be needed. Indeed, I remember when I was little a kind farmer used to take his own little ones to school and he would call for children all along the way, so that his nice big sleds full of robes, would be filled with very happy kiddies, warm and cozy, being driven to the school-house and it was such a place where everyone, old and young, seemed to have a Christmas tree. King Square is just filled with trees for some days before the 25th.

ANSWERS TO LETTERS

BEATRIX STERRITT, Grey's Mills, Kings County.—Thanks so much for your kiddies' items. I hope the kiddies will laugh over the answers as much as I did. You are a very pretty writer and I thoroughly enjoyed your letter, and I would not need to puzzle over so many words that they write me. BLANCHÉ KEITH, Havelock.—We are glad to have you join us and I am sorry you did not send the date of your birthday along with your name. EVELYN McCRAY, Oromocto.—Glad your friend gave you our interesting page to read. You are a very good writer, and if all little girls and boys could write as you do, I would not need to puzzle over so many words that they write me. DOROTHY GLASIER, Fredericton.—Sorry you did not join us in time to be in the birthday list of last week's page. However, we hope you will be a happy one for you. Show me how you can improve your writing. Dorothy, for I am a great admirer of neat and well written letters from the new as well as from the old members. MARJORIE ATKINSON.—It was a pleasure to read your letter and I would like to show it to all the kiddies as an example of good writing, both in penmanship, punctuation and composition. The idea of you thinking Marjorie that we don't have Christmas trees in the city, St. John is a place where everyone, old and young, seemed to have a Christmas tree. King Square is just filled with trees for some days before the 25th. MABEL CARSON.—All the members I am sure join me in wishing you welcome to our happy throng. LILIAN McCASKILL, Riley Brook.—You must have missed the Children's Page in the paper on Nov. 2nd, for that was the first time the full program appeared. Hope you will try and improve your writing to your school. KENNETH McWHIA, St. Stephen.—We are delighted to have you join us and hope you will get continued pleasure from our page. DOROTHY KING, Charlotte St.—I regretted very much that your beautiful drawing of Maud and Si was so late reaching me. HOW AN AFRICAN MEDAL WAS LOST AND FOUND AFTER MANY YEARS

During these days when we read about, as well as see, so many medals on the soldier lads, I am reminded of an experience which a medal belonging to a South African Veteran had, a few years ago. It was in the city of St. John. The medal was held dearly by its owner, and one spring it was packed away with a number of other souvenirs and winter garments in a large packing case, the latter being stored in a nice bright airy basement. Well, when it was time in the autumn to unpack the box a number of things were missing and among them the box of souvenirs, including the valued medal. No clue was found, and no explanation was forthcoming concerning that which was lost and it was about forgotten until one day several years later a big policeman arrived at the veteran's house holding the medal in his hand, all he could tell was where he had obtained it, but after many links had been connected the story was complete and this is how it ran. Giving it a kick or two he finally picked it up and being an owner of such a medal himself he readily recognized the precious souvenir. Taking it home with him he kindly polished and cleaned it until he could read the inscription and

TALKS TO BOYS.

Should the Lad Starting Out in Business Change His Jobs Frequently? A look of disappointment spread over the face of Joseph Marvin as he came home from work one evening and found his son William there already. He knew that it could only be one thing; William had left his position again. "Quit work again, William?" he said, trying to be casual. "Yes," replied the boy. "I chucked my job at noon. I'm not going to work for a salaried driver like Nelson any longer." "How many jobs have you had in the six months since you left high school, William?" asked the father. "This is the fourth," said the boy uncomfortably. "And in every case you threw up the position, didn't you?" his father asked. "I guess so," replied the boy sulkily. "That's better than having been discharged four times. But I must say I'm beginning to feel pretty anxious about you, my boy. It doesn't speak very well for your success to have you able to stay no longer than an average of six weeks in a position."

Dolly Dear's Bedroom

When Dolly Dear opens her blue eyes in the morning she must make herself look neat and pretty for the day. She will sit in this pretty low chair before her little dressing table and comb her long hair, and if she is a grown-up lady doll, powder her dainty face. Think how pleased your own dear dolly will be to have such pretty furniture in her own bedroom.

When you are ready to make the furniture, paste these patterns on heavy paper or thin cardboard. When the paste is dry, color the patterns with your crayons or water color paints. You must make them to match the bed you made last week. They would be very pretty colored ivory (that is a deep cream) with the tiny flowers and candle shades, light blue or pink.

WHEN ENEMIES ARE RECONCILED

By William T. Ellis.

Almost weekly the strange opportunity and pertinacity of these lessons to our times is remarked. It is a striking providence but puts into the hands of twenty million Sunday School members in the United States and Canada these Bible teachings, which apply so closely to the peculiar conditions of our own day. There is a reason in this new era of democracy, when the convulsive minds of the people are the decisive forces in all public events, it is essential that there be clear and available principles and illustrations drawn from the inspired word of God, which our people as a whole accept as their supreme law.

Presenting the prospect of world-wide peace and reorganization, we have the old story of the reconciliation of the two sons of Isaac, who had been in deadly enmity. One had grossly and foully wronged the other, Jacob had sown bitterness in Esau's heart, and had reaped it in his own. By guile he had wronged his brother, and by guile he had in turn been wronged by another. Men usually perish by the same sort of sword they take up. After years of exile Jacob cried peace to Esau, offering indemnities or propitiatory gifts, and his brother magnanimously answered him. We shall find a word for the world in the old tale.

Business and Matrimony.

Himself the world's most famous business man, and the progenitor of the most eminent business race, Jacob's story is a mixture of trickery, failure and success. He had fled from Beersheba, the border of Palestine, to Haran, in upper Mesopotamia, where dwelt his Uncle Laban. There he had fallen in love with his cousin Rachel, and had made a deal with her father that he should receive her in marriage, he, in return, giving seven years of unpaid service to his mother's brother. The proposed nuptials were celebrated by a carouse, and Jacob woke up in the morning to find himself the husband of Rachel's older-sister, Leah, the sorceress.

There was a rude poetic justice in this substitution. It was so characteristic of Jacob that he was being paid back in his own coin. Labor was kin to Jacob on the maternal side; they were two of a kind. Jacob was burdened with a wife he did not want, his beloved's unmarriageable elder sister, and obliged to give seven years of servitude for Rachel. Here we find the first noble quality in Jacob. He really loved Rachel, with sincere and disinterested and unselfish affection. It was in truth the divine passion. Romance cherishes the passage in Jacob's record which declares "And Jacob served seven years for Rachel; and they seemed unto him but a few days, for the love he had to her." Consistently, this the most noble woman whom he had first met as a beautiful maiden by the well-side, shines through Jacob's life. His devotion to Joseph and Benjamin was because they were the children of the bride of his heart. No man can be wholly bad, or entirely alien from the God whose other name is love, who is capable of such beautiful and constant affection.

Of course it was a polygamous household, after the general fashion of the time. In addition to his two wives, Jacob had two concubines, and these four were the mothers of his twelve sons and one daughter. Even of the narrative we have glimpses of the heart-burnings and jealousies which exist under the system of plural marriages.

After serving fourteen years for his two wives, Jacob made a profit-sharing arrangement with his uncle, fether-in-law, whereby he toiled six years more. In this bargain, Jacob unscrupulously got the advantage of his senior partner. He was the sort of business man who would sell shoddy for wool, and whose devices have been followed by not a few men since. At the end of the period, Laban had most of the experience and Jacob most of the business.

Between Two Enemies.

When things get too hot for Jacob in Haran he started off, secretly, with his wives and children and possessions for Canaan. It was fight from the uncle whom he had wronged, toward the brother whom he had defrauded. There is no smooth and open road anywhere in front of the dishonest man. Nobody should envy the wrongdoer. He has paid too high for his ill-gotten gains. There occurs to me the instance of a present-day Jacob, a professedly pious business man, who is ambitious to stand high in his city as a public man. But his private practices in business follow him everywhere, and have already laid him low, so far as civic preferment is concerned. I have heard him called "a crook" in so many circles and by so many men whose favor he covets, that if he knew all he would straightway enter upon a course of restitution, even though it led to poverty. The Jacob kind of business simply does not pay. There's a way that seemeth right unto men, but the end thereof are the ways of death.

Hampered by his household and his flocks, Jacob was soon overtaken by Laban in the mountain East of the Jordan. In a dream, on the seventh night Laban was warned of God to let his son-in-law alone. Esau's mutual reconciliations, they made a treaty of peace by setting up a boundary stone, beyond which neither would pass in pursuit of the other. They called it "Mizpah," meaning "Jehovah watch between me and thee, when we are absent one from another." "Mizpah" is now a watchword of the Christian Endeavor societies, and they close their services with it, most of the members being quite unaware that, far from being a tender and fraternal benediction between friends, it bears quite the opposite meaning. Neither Laban nor Jacob trusted the other, and by this stone each called upon Jehovah to keep an eye upon the other.

With Laban disposed of, Jacob had now to look forward to Esau, whose wrath he rightly feared. Pity the flight of a timorous man! The procedure followed by Jacob represents the diplomacy of the East. He sent propitiatory messengers to Esau, and got back the word that his brother was on the way with four hundred men! Horror upon horrors! Was ever a child of Abraham in such fear?

Resourceful, as usual, Jacob divided his family and goods into two parts that one at least might escape. Then he betook himself to prayer. It was a noble prayer, registering the advance that this man of the troubled career had made in religious experience. I pleaded the promises, and confessed his own unworthiness, and told the Lord just what deliverance Jacob sought, and adjoined the unselfish and spacious reasons therefore.

Then to faith, Jacob added works. He sent forward in nine separate and successive installments a royal gift of live stock to his brother. The bearers of each portion were carefully coached as to what they should say to Esau, until the brother's wrath should be appeased by presents and good will. Following this measure, Jacob sent his company of a hundred men, which he himself remained behind in agony of soul.

Then came the night of nights, the climax of this crowded career. It was a tragic time. Peril of death swailed on the morrow. Jacob knew that he had merited the worst that his brother could do to him. To appease Esau's wrath he had offered up his pride and his goods. Even of his family's safety he despaired. Now, alone in the darkness by the stream, he faced the crisis of his life. His entire previous scale of values had been discarded. His own pride was humbled. Jacob was a chastened, a frightened man, eager for peace with his fellow man and with God.

Then befell the strange experience of the night of wrestling, which is a vivid picture of the seasons of soul-struggle that all know who have greatly lived. It was Jacob's Gethsemane, the garden where he learned to say "Not my will, but Thine!" for it was when he ceased to struggle that he prevailed with God.

In golden youth, when seems the earth
A summer land for singing birds;
When souls are glad and hearts are light
And not a shadow lurks in sight
We do not know it, but there lies
Somewhere, veiled under evening skies,
A garden all must sometime see—
Somewhere lies our Gethsemane.

With joyous steps we go our way,
Tends a halo to our days,
Light across all like clouds afar;
We laugh, and say how strong we are,
We hurry on, and hurrying, go
Close to the borderland of woe,
That waits for you and waits for me—
Forever waits our Gethsemane.

Down shadowy lanes, across strange streama,
Bridged over by our broken dreams,
Behind the misty cap of years,
Close to the great salt-fount of tears,
The garden lies; strive as you may,
You cannot miss it in your way.
All paths that have been, or shall be,
Pass somewhere through Gethsemane.

All those who journey, soon or late
Must pass within that garden's gate,
Must kneel alone in darkness there,
And battle with some fierce despair,
God pity those who cannot pray,
Not mine, but Thine, "who only pray."
"Let this cup pass," and cannot see
The purpose in Gethsemane. Ella
Wheeler Wilcox.

The Reconciliation.

When men have won with God, he makes it easy for them to win with other men. Jacob had spent a night of reconciliation with Jehovah, the turning point in his career, wherein his nature was changed. So he was ready on the morrow to meet Esau. Penitence was matched by magnanimity, and they close their services with it, most of the members being quite unaware that, far from being a tender and fraternal benediction between friends, it bears quite the opposite meaning. Neither Laban nor Jacob trusted the other, and by this stone each called upon Jehovah to keep an eye upon the other.

With Laban disposed of, Jacob had now to look forward to Esau, whose wrath he rightly feared. Pity the flight of a timorous man! The procedure followed by Jacob represents the diplomacy of the East. SEVEN SENTENCE SERMONS.

What time I am afraid, I will put my trust in thee.—Psa. 56:3.

A Christian is the highest style of man.

I have this day, thy light, thy sun, thy heat, thy chosen—no more, but if I would, this day I could make great as none before.

The true way to be humble is not to stoop up like you are, but to stand at your real height against some higher nature that will show you what the real smallness of your greatest greatness is.

If you wish your neighbors to see what God is like let them see what He can make you like.

God bless the generous that, And fills the fitting word His speeds, And Truth, at His requiring, taught, He quickens into deeds.

Our greatest glory consists, not in never falling, but in rising every time we fall.

Jump from Bed in Morning and Drink Hot Water
Tells why everyone should drink hot water each morning before breakfast.

Why is man and woman, half the time, feeling nervous, despondent, worried; some days headachy, dull and unstrung; some days really incapacitated by illness?

If we all would practice inside-bathing, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of thousands of half-sick, anemic-looking souls with puffy, muddy complexions we should see crowds of happy, healthy, rosy-cheeked people everywhere. The reason is that the human system does not rid itself each day of all the waste which it accumulates under our present mode of living. For every ounce of food and drink taken into the system nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out, else it ferments and forms ptomaine-like poisons which are absorbed into the blood.

Men and women whether sick or well, are advised to drink each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, so a harmless means of washing out of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the indigestible material, waste, sour bile and toxins.

Millions of people who had their turn at constipation, bitter attacks, acid stomach, nervous days and sleepless nights have become real cranks about the morning inside-bath. A quart of limestone phosphate will ferret out the poisons of the system, but not cost much at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate to anyone, its cleansing, sweetening and truth-telling effect upon the system.

TWENTY YEARS AGO THIS MONTH NORTH ATLANTIC COAST WAS SWEEPED BY A VIOLENT STORM

Steamer Portland from Portland for Boston Was Lost With Many Passengers—Other Vessels Foundered and Property Damage All Along the Coast Was Very Great.

Twenty years ago this month one of the most destructive storms that ever swept over the North Atlantic struck the New England and Canadian coasts, wreaking havoc on land and on sea, sending numerous vessels, large and small, to their destruction and costing upwards of three hundred lives. That region from Long Island Sound to the island of Monhegan, a break and barren rock in the ocean of the Maine coast, sustained the brunt of the tempest, the greatest fury of which raged over eastern Massachusetts. The velocity of the howling gale was so great as to be felt at the Highland Light station, Cape Cod, registered more than one hundred miles an hour.

Another steamer which was lost during that fearful night was the steamer Pentagoet, bound from New York for Bangor. The Pentagoet before going on the Bangor-New York route ran to St. John for a time. She was a freight boat and carried a crew of about forty. She was never heard of after passing Highland Light and none of her wreckage or bodies of her crew was ever found.

In addition to these steamers a dozen large schooners, three and four masted, were lost, most of them near the Cape Cod coast. In most instances their entire crews perished. So far as the steamer Ohio, loaded deeply for Hull, England, was cast high and dry on an island in Boston harbor. No one on board was lost and the steamer was not damaged. She was afterwards floated, when part of the island had been dredged away.

The United States weather bureau forecasted what was thought to be one of the usual November gales, but many mariners had no idea that it would develop into a furious war of elements in which few ships could live. In Boston a moderate northeasterly gale set in about nine o'clock Saturday evening. By midnight it had increased to sixty miles an hour, accompanied by a thick snowfall. So fast came the snow and so rapidly did it pile up that many suburbanites remained in town. The suburbs remained in town. The suburbs remained in town. The suburbs remained in town.

Wires were prostrated in every direction, the poles having gone down like clap net before the blast. The city was virtually cut off from all points. The absence of wire communication prevented the city from learning of the numerous marine disasters which had occurred at various points along the Massachusetts coast until Tuesday afternoon. Then it was learned that the Portland and many other vessels had probably been lost. Even then the intelligence was meagre and unsatisfactory, the government, commercial and the Associated Press wires being still badly crippled.

The writer was one of those who went on a tow boat to Provincetown Tuesday night, news having been received indirectly that a dozen bodies of the wreckage of the steamer Portland had been washed ashore along the bleak Cape Cod beach for twenty miles. Another storm developed during the trip and it was nine days before the tug was able to get out of Provincetown. Numerous wrecks were passed on the rough trip to Cape Cod and in Provincetown harbor itself several large schooners lay stranded, the men having been cut from the rigging. Happily all were saved alive except one, who froze to death in the main rigging. Wreckage of several large coal carry-

THOUSANDS WERE KILLED BY EXPLOSION OF TWO MUNITION TRAINS AT STATION IN BELGIUM

Children Started a Bonfire Which Spread to the Tracks—Many of the Victims Were German Military Thieves Who Were Plundering Everything in Sight.

London, Nov. 22.—An explosion of munition trains at the station of Hamont in Belgium this morning caused casualties estimated to be between 1,500 and 2,000. One hundred and fifty dead already have been counted according to a Central News despatch from Amsterdam. The injured are taken to Huddel, Holland. It is reported that the cause of the disaster was a bonfire built by children which spread to two German munition trains nearby. The destruction in the vicinity, the despatch adds, was enormous. Assistance is being sent to the stricken region from all directions. Dutch military aid has been sent across the border.

The trains were standing at the station of Hamont when the explosion occurred, and the entire region was soon a sea of fire. Neighboring houses collapsed, burying their occupants. Three German ambulance trains caught fire and one was destroyed, eighteen of the occupants being burned to death. Most of the victims were German soldiers, who had been plundering the trains. A few Dutch soldiers also were killed. Hamont is in Southeastern Belgium directly east of Antwerp and is a custom station on the Dutch-Belgium border. The main railway line from Antwerp to Dusseldorf runs through the town.

ing schooners was found off Cape Cod, the craft having gone down with all on board.

The Loss of the Portland.

The theory of those who saw the thirty bodies and wreckage from the upper portion of the steamer Portland, which drifted ashore on Cape Cod from High Head to Monomoy, is that the Portland went to the bottom sometime between nine and ten o'clock Sunday morning, the day after she left Boston. The steamer was last seen about 10 o'clock Saturday night off Gloucester by the Boston fishing schooner Maud S., which ran to her home port before the gale. The captain of the schooner remarked at the time that the captain of the Portland was taking a desperate chance in the teeth of the rapidly increasing gale. It is supposed that the steamer became unmanageable except possibly when running before the wind and that during the night the Portland was headed for Provincetown harbor across the bay, but was unable to make that port and foundered about fifteen miles northeast of Highland Light. The fact that no wreckage came ashore from the Portland inside Cape Cod indicates that she went down well to seaward. The watches on the bodies were stopped at various times between nine and ten o'clock, further indicating that the disaster occurred Sunday morning. Between those hours Saturday night the gale was not sufficient to sink the steamer. Life savers on Cape Cod heard a distress whistle of a steamer early Sunday morning. The captain was held to blame for leaving Boston in the face of a warning from the weather bureau. The manager of the line was not on friendly terms with the captain. He testified that he instructed Capt. Ingraham to remain in port. Why he left will remain a mystery, but it is said that he had an urgent reason for being in Portland on Sunday. Among those who perished on the steamer was the president of the Maine senate and members of prominent Portland families. Several former St. John residents also went down on the ill-fated ship.

THE BOLSHEVIKI!

Must We Fight Another War To Save the World From Its Menace?

A shudder runs through the Western nations as they watch the millions of Central Europe plunge from autocracy toward anarchy, and publicists begin to ask if we must fight again—against the new foe.

"Must we save the world from anarchy" is on every lip and the fact that such questions as these are being asked everywhere is proof enough that "the war does not end when the enemy surrenders" according to The New Republic. On the other hand, we find the Hartford Courant convinced that the scientific socialism of Germany can never develop the disorder that was bound to accompany the Bolshevism inherited from the old Russian nihilism. And the Boston Globe reminds us that "whereas Russia was predominately illiterate, in Germany illiteracy is less than one per cent."

The leading article in THE LITERARY DIGEST this week deals with the greatest menace that threatens the conclusion of world peace—the Bolsheviki. Others news features in this particularly interesting number of "The Digest" are:
