NEW $2 DOMINION NOTE

A new $2 Dominion of Canada note has just been placed in circulation by the Department of Finance. On the face or front of the bill is a new steel engraved portrait of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales and the date of issue is June 23, 1923—the last birthday of the Prince.

The new Prince of Wales issue will be gradually placed in circulation and will in time supplant the old Connaught $2 note which has been in circulation since 1914.

Mr. Fielding has submitted to His Royal Highness for his acceptance the first issue—No. 1—of the new note.

INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

A Burleigh Hodgins, a McGillivray township farmer, was injured near Melbourne Thursday at midnight when a motor truck crashed into his car in a fog. Hodgins was changing a tire on the roadside when the crash occurred. His car was almost completely demolished, and Hodgins suffered among other injuries a fracture of the jaw and a dislocated shoulder. He is now in the hospital at London and is expected to recover.

DISTRICT AND GENERAL

Alvinston tax rate will be 38 mills this year, an advance of 3 mills over 1922.

The gate receipts at Forest fair were $7.50. Rain interfered with the attendance.

W. H. Tweed, of Florence, has disposed of his grocery stock to Mr. McIntyre, of Wardsville.

The hydro department of London earned a surplus of $16,000 during the first eight months of 1923.

A herd of Greenock township cows staggered home after drinking whiskey, the product of a swamp still.

A Harrow township man gathered two bushels of mushrooms and sold them on the Windsor market for $26.80.

Mrs. Z. Peaul fell from the verandah of W. Frederick Beamish's house, at Bothwell, breaking a leg just below the knee.

Good reports from early potatoes in Harwich township are reported. On one farm 10 acres yielded about 120 bags to the acre.

During the past decade in Canada more than 4,000 persons have lost their lives and property to the value of $300,000,000 has been destroyed by fire.

In China, when a bank fails they behead the banker. Only one bank has failed in China in 400 years. They punish a profiteer by making him stand in front of his place of business, ringing a bell and holding a banner that advertises his crime.

The list of shareholders of the Home Bank at the time it closed its doors in August shows one notable change from the list of December 31 last, namely, a striking reduction in the number of shares owned by H. J. Daly, the president. In the former list he was shown to be the possessor of 2,164 shares, but when the bank suspended he held only 164 shares, a drop of 2,000.

While Canada has only about one-half of one per cent. of the world's population, she produces 90 per cent. of its cobalt, 88 per cent. of its asbestos, 85 per cent. of its nickel, 32 per cent. of its pulpwood, 20 per cent. of its lumber, 20 per cent. of its cured fish, 18 per cent. of its oats, 15 per cent. of its potatoes, 12 per cent. of its silver, 11 1/2 per cent. of its wheat, 11 per cent. of its barley, 4 per cent. of its gold, 4 per cent. of its copper.

Fire of unknown origin completely destroyed the barn of Wm. Darling, on the second concession of McGillivray township, Friday night. In addition to the barn, a pure bred Hereford bull was destroyed, as well as a cow and several calves. All the winter feed, straw and about 1,000 bushels of grain were destroyed. A newly-built silo filled with ensilage was also destroyed. The loss is estimated at $5,000, partly covered by insurance.

An order-in-council has been issued bringing into effect on October 1 the bill respecting the testing, inspection and sale of seeds, which was passed last session. This refers to the grading and specification of grades of seed placed on the market. Thus if seeds prove not up to specified quality, the purchaser can get redress. An important provision of the bill has to do with keeping grass and clover seed free from seeds of noxious weeds.

Wages of plasterers, who receive $104 and more a week, are causing ministers and members of other professions to take up the trowel in Evanston, Illinois, where work on a new hotel is in progress. Graduates of universities, holding several degrees, turn down offers of professorships to join the plasterers. Other graduates who stick to their chosen professions receive but $200 a month, while the plasterers receive between $400 and $500 monthly.

In the matter of endurance contests, an experimental test has shown some startling facts. In Chicago, an attempt was made to measure the distance of mother's daily hike. Pedometers were fastened to the more or less shapely ankles of 100 women for a number of days in succession. The experiment apparently proved that mother is "the greatest walker of them all," for from early morn till dewy eve she did an average of 14 miles every day.

Yellow and black automobile license plates—a vivid yellow background with black embossed lettering—will adorn Ontario's motor vehicles during the 1924 season. They will be made by a St. Thomas firm and will cost the Government 12 1/2 cents per pair. Aside from the change in color from black and white to yellow and black, there will be little alteration in the cut and design of the new license plates. The lettering will be approximately the same size as that of the present markers.

MELBOURNE FAIR BIG SUCCESS

Splendid Exhibits in All Classes, and Large Attendance

FLETCHER—PATTERSON

A pretty wedding took place on Wednesday, October 10, at 4 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Patterson, Walkers, when Catherine, their eldest daughter, was united in marriage to Milton John Fletcher, son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Fletcher, of Appin. Rev. Mr. Robertson, of Kilmartin, performed the ceremony, which took place under an arch of autumn leaves.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charming in her wedding dress of white georgette over satin with ostrich and silver trimmings and veil of Brussels net caught with sequin bandeau, and carried a shower of Ophelia roses. Miss Margaret Patterson, sister of the bride, who was bridesmaid, wore a smart dress of white crepe de chine and carried pink roses. Angus Fletcher, brother of the groom, was best man. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Douglas Fisher, of London.

Following the ceremony a reception was held. Later Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher left on a motor trip, the bride traveling in brown georgette dress with brown marvellous coat and picture hat. On their return they will reside in Appin.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was pearl earrings, to the pianist a bar pin and to the best man cuff links. The bride and groom were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts, including a substantial cheque from the bride's father.

Guests were present from Toronto, Detroit, Appin, Walkers, London and Chatham.

McKAY—McDONELL

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Peter and Paul's R. C. church, Detroit, on Saturday, October 6th, when Teresa Mary McDonnell was united in marriage to John McKay, Rev. Fr. John Foley, P. P., officiating. The bride was daintily attired in a beautiful white satin gown and wore a bridal veil of Brussels net and wreath of smilax and orange blossoms. After the ceremony a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of the groom's mother. The happy couple will reside in Detroit.

MELBOURNE MURDER TRIAL

The trial of Sydney Ernest Murrell and Henry Jack Williams, charged with the murder of Russell Campbell in an attempted hold-up of the Melbourne branch of the Home Bank on April 11, 1921, opened at the Middlesex County court house in London on Monday before Hon. Mr. Justice Wright, and is proceeding. The crown counsel is T. J. Rigney, K. C., of Kingston, assisted by J. C. Elliott, county crown attorney of Middlesex, and the defense counsel is J. M. Donahue, of London. Some forty witnesses are expected to be examined and a verdict will probably be reached today.

J. N. Currie, of Glencoe, is foreman of the trial jury. Other members of the jury are Norman Weir, farmer, Rochester; A. J. Palmer, superintendent, London; Robert Moir, farmer, London township; David B. Stewart, London; Clarence Lewis, farmer, London township; John H. Legg, farmer, London township; J. T. Beggs, merchant, London; W. J. Nutkins, contractor, London; James McPherson, farmer, London township; Hanson McClurg, farmer, London township; Dugald W. Gillies, Mosa.

SCHOOL INSPECTOR HONORED

Sixty years' faithful devotion to the interests of education was most fittingly recognized Friday evening when the public school teachers of West Middlesex at their annual convention in Stratford tendered to Mr. H. D. Johnston a banquet as a recognition of their appreciation of his thirty-four years' service as inspector.

Practically every teacher in the inspectorate was present, as well as several former teachers who had been associated with the guest of honor in the past.

BIG SPUDS

The biggest potatoes we have seen this season are from the farm of David Currie in Mosa. Two of them when dug tipped the scales at four pounds. They are Rural New Yorkers and may be seen at The Transcript office.

SAUNDERS—YOUNG

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the bride's home in Glencoe on Wednesday afternoon, October 10th, when Sarah Lucinda Young, daughter of Mrs. J. D. Young, was united in marriage to Cecil Thomas Saunders, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Saunders, of Corunna, Rev. D. G. Paton officiating. Miss Nettie Saunders acted as bridesmaid and H. B. Wellington as groomsmen. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas will make their home in Detroit.

KLEMM—PRINCE

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the rectory, Delaware, on October 6th, when Isabel Elizabeth, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Prince, of Hyde Park, became the bride of Frank L. Klemm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Klemm, of North Ekfrid. Rev. H. Croley officiated. The bride was lovely in a suit of navy tricotine, richly embroidered, with hat of navy panne velvet and grey trimmings. Her corsage bouquet was of Sweetheart roses and she wore a fitch choker, the gift of the groom. Miss Alice Prince, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, while the groom was supported by his twin brother, Edward L. Klemm. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold bangle with amethyst setting, and to the best man a tiepin set with pearls. The happy couple left by motor for London, where a dainty wedding dinner was served at the Royal Cafe, leaving later for Sarnia, Windsor, Detroit and Howard City, Mich. On their return they will reside on the groom's farm at North Ekfrid.

Losing Population from the Timber Zones.

By Robson Black, Manager Canadian Forestry Association.

At the present time every voice is raised and every ambition strained to win new population. New population costs. Immigration is expensive. While every conservationist wants to see new settlers brought to Canada, his sense of proportion makes him ask why we cannot spend at least a couple of extra dollars to block the emigration of Canadian families driven out of the forest areas by the plague of human-set forest fires. District after district has been abandoned, whole counties have decreased in population, railway lines have lost the bulk of local traffic, towns have been boarded up, and for the sole reason that a forest resource which should have been perpetual has been swept off the ledger of Canadian assets by the recklessness of Canadian citizens.

Whose fault is it that the forests of Canada run down hill? We as citizens own 85 per cent. of the forest lands of the Dominion and are directly and personally responsible for what is done with the only crop that can grow on these our lands. Every civilized country on earth looks to the state with its self-perpetuating life, its providential relationship to its people, to look after the forest properties which, unlike wheat or potatoes, require as much as a century to mature. The state is the obvious and only efficient custodian of the rights of future generations in a very slow growing but utterly essential national resource.

Before an intelligent and helpful interest on the part of the public can bring about a measure of complete forest protection we will have to jettison two or three fetishes, all of which are predominantly false and yet fix themselves upon succeeding generations. One of these fetishes is that the forest resources have been "given away" or otherwise alienated. They never were and are not to-day. All but fifteen per cent. of the timbered acres of Ontario are under the control of the Ontario Government as concerns measures of conservation. The right to cut timber is leased on ten million acres and the remainder of eighty million acres is still held by the Crown. What is the meaning of a lease to an operating company? That 42,000 workmen in Ontario shall be allowed to draw a regular week's pay, and that 36 million dollars shall be allowed to circulate as wages each year and that 122 millions received for forest products in Ontario shall be enjoyed by every business interest and every workman in the province. The so-called timber baron cuts down logs worth five dollars. Out of that he hands over $4.50 as wages and for materials and the remaining fifty cents he splits between interest on his investment and taxes to the Ontario Government, aggregating $4,000,000 a year. Strangely enough we visualize the motor car industry as the "life blood" of Ontario and Walkerville and a dozen other towns, and the "meal tickets" of thousands of workmen, and at the next instant discuss the lumber business as the sinecure of a quartet of "barons" into whose purse pour untold millions wrung from a wretched peasantry driven to build two-car garages with high price boards. More men have left the lumber industry in the last ten years than have entered it, and most who remain were not financial gainers for their experience.

You ask what is to be done to give Canada a permanent forest, and the immediate and only comprehensive answer is keep out the fires. We citizens burn ten times the trees that the lumbermen have cut, and since the earliest days of Canadian history have put a torch to 600,000 square miles, as against about 100,000 square miles utilized by all the lumbermen from coast to coast.

Please let us lay off the cry for tree planting to produce timber until we look into a much more inviting proposition. An acre of human-made forest, a plantation of spruce is a lovely sight. How few of us know that there is in Canada a plantation of just 50 million densely packed acres of young forests set out by Nature without human contrivance or expense. They lie in patches from coast to coast. That 50 million acres is richer than all the gold mines for its gold grows and repeats into endless generations. All that plantation asks is that fire be kept out. If that is done that young growth will be able, under careful management, to meet all Canada's needs for the future and provide a great surplus for export.

This is interesting. A Croatian girl while tending her sheep and her geese will generally be found knitting. Before her "teens" she begins upon her trousseau, and when she marries she must have enough stockings to last her and her husband all their lives. In addition she must have ready a complete outfit for herself and for her bridegroom as well. When ever a young man in that country gives a young girl an apple, and she presents him with a handkerchief, these simple tokens signify an engagement which rarely is broken.

Surnames and Their Origin

SMALL
Variations—Little, Pettit, Lepetit.
Racial Origin—English and French.
Source—A characteristic.

Here is a family name, with variations, which "means just what it says." If you bear this name you may be sure that the particular ancestor of yours who first bore it was a small man—unless, perhaps, he was prominent for his great size. At any rate, he was not of medium build.

Some people find it difficult to conceive how such a surname as this can develop into a hereditary family name. They grant that it was natural to speak of a John who was little, as "John Little," or "Little John." But they don't understand by what law or rule all his descendants have borne it, for in the first place the name was merely descriptive of the individual.

Well, to begin with, not more than a very small percentage of the persons to whom the name was descriptively applied passed it on to their children. Family names do not develop suddenly. They took form gradually, over a period of three centuries or more. In one family the name might have become hereditary in the twelfth century, in another in the fourteenth. Then, too, it is not uncommon for the children of small parents to be small. So a man's son might be called Little, not so much because his father bore the name, as because he, too, actually was undersize.

As the strongest evidence that the names "Little" and "Small" developed from this descriptive source, we have the corresponding names of Pettit and Lepetit in French. Lepetit leaves no doubt, being a combination of "le" and "petit"—"the small."

BABY'S OWN TABLETS

AN EXCELLENT REMEDY

When the baby is ill—when he is constipated, has indigestion; colds; colic or simple fever or any of the other many minor ills of little ones—the mother will find Baby's Own Tablets an excellent remedy. They regulate the stomach and bowels, thus banishing the cause of most of the ills of childhood. Concerning them Mrs. E. D. Dugway, Thunder River, Que., says:—"My baby was a great sufferer from colic and cried continually. I began giving him Baby's Own Tablets and the relief was wonderful. I now always keep a supply of the Tablets in the house." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The soul refuses all limits. It affirms in man always an optimism, never a pessimism.—Emerson.

WALDO.
Racial Origin—Gothic, or ancient French.
Source—A given name.

Here is a family name which does not sound English, a name borne by Ralph Waldo Emerson, and though it has been settled in England as a family name for many centuries, it is not an English name.

It is traceable to no given names among either the Anglo-Saxons of the Norman French, nor to any other likely source in the language of those peoples. On the other hand, it is traceable genealogically, through the settling in England of a family bearing that name, to a certain merchant of Lyons named Peter Waldo, who in the twelfth century attracted considerable attention for his denial of the church's doctrine of transubstantiation and his translation of the gospels into French, or rather the Provençal language.

With this clue it is not difficult to trace his family name (and this was just the period when family names were beginning to come into existence) to a given name among the Goths. Comparatively little is known of the language of this Teutonic race which dominated all southern Europe after the fall of the Roman Empire, for both the language and the customs of the Goths gave way rapidly before the superior civilization which they conquered and settled themselves into. Their nomenclature, however, persisted, exerting a powerful influence on that of modern France and Italy.

The given name in question apparently was derived from the Gothic word "Waldan," and signified "one who rules." Names ending in "o" were as typical of the Goths and the Franks as those ending in "a" were of the Anglo-Saxons.

THE INTRUDER

By Rene Bizet

Translated by William L. McPherson

I was eighteen years old. For the first time I was free. My parents had allowed me to make a trip alone through the country. For a whole month I could realize my dream of rambling over the Breton roads, my sack on my back, without worrying about the length of the march, sleeping under the stars and eating my bread on the bank of a stream.

Sometimes I was tired and conditions of travel afoot were not favorable. Thus one oppressive July Sunday I regretted that I had not stopped at Sarzeau when it grew dark and the sky clouded over. I had still three good leagues to go to the next village. The southwest wind blew in squalls across the country, forcing me to stop to catch my breath. I was not discouraged until the rain began to fall in torrents, blinding me and almost strangling me. The lightning illuminated the horizon. The thunder and the ocean mingled their tumult so completely that I feared any minute should reach the edge of a cliff and tumble into the waves below. I had given up hope of finding shelter.

Suddenly I saw on my right a dark mass in the shadows. It must be a house on the side of the road. Who would be cruel enough to refuse hospitality to a drenched wayfarer? I felt for the door. I discovered it and rapped on it. There was no answer. A lightning flash revealed a low, thatched cottage. I rapped again. Not a sound in reply. Then out of irritation, not under my ragged cloak, a knock of a Prince Charming to awaken her with a kiss.

And for Minard's and take no other.

opened. I entered with a sigh of relief. Finally I had a refuge. But where was I? What was going to happen? I drew my lamp from my pocket and walked ahead. There was a long passageway—then to the left a furnished room. I called aloud to awaken the occupants. No voice responded. The house was empty. Since I was the sole possessor for the night and there was little chance that the owners would return in such weather, I decided to install myself as comfortably as possible and go to sleep. I found copper candlesticks on a mantel-piece. I lighted the candles. In the room were chairs, a table and a peasant clothes closet. But all the furniture seemed to have been chosen by a city person with rustic taste rather than by country people.

"It is a lucky chance which brought me here," I said to myself. "At dawn I shall get out, for after that I might not find a welcome."

The tempest raged outside. I was so tired that I closed my eyes as soon as I sat down on the bench which I intended to make my couch, and I thought I was dreaming when I heard these words:

"What are you doing in my house?" I gave a start. No, it was not a dream. Two steps away was a woman who, a candle in her hand, was examining me curiously.

"You came to rob me?"

She spoke so audaciously and had the air of being so little frightened by my presence that I did not know what to answer and contented myself with looking at her closely. She was a young woman and very good-looking, as far as I could judge, for the water was streaming from her clothes. Her locks, escaping from under her hat, were matted against her cheeks. But she spoke of a John who was little, as "John Little," or "Little John." But they don't understand by what law or rule all his descendants have borne it, for in the first place the name was merely descriptive of the individual.

"Well," she continued, "are you afraid?" As she said this she drew a revolver from her pocket. I jumped up.

"But, madam, I am not for you. It is for me. So I am going to give you a piece of advice. If you want to keep out of trouble and avoid being accused of a crime, go away. I intend to kill myself. And if they know that you spent the night here?"

I was sure that she was not joking. She expressed herself calmly, without bravado and toyed with the weapon in her hand as she might have toyed with a pendant to her necklace.

"You want to kill yourself?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"For reasons which don't interest you."

"Nevertheless, what justifies you in killing yourself?"

"No—no moralizing. If you please. There is something so ridiculous in our dialogue at this hour and in this place, that I almost feel like leaving you here and killing myself outside on the road."

"But it is raining too hard. You want to shoot yourself, but you are afraid of the rain!"

"It is true. And now, go. I beg you, leave me here alone. You don't know me. What difference does it make to you if I kill myself? At my age, when one is tired of life, it is better to die than to suffer in love."

The man whom I loved has just deserted me, in spite of my tears. I am indifferent to everything. I can neither smile nor weep. I ask your pardon for sending you away. But it must be so. Continue your journey. Think of me until the dawn. And swear to me that you will never tell any one what you have seen."

She put the weapon and the candle on the table. She pushed me out and slammed the door violently behind me.

I know that I ought to have resisted, that I ought to have defended her against her folly. But I had neither the time nor the strength to do so. We had talked but a few minutes, and the scene which I had passed through was so strange and so unexpected that out on the road I hardly knew if it had not been all a dream. I walked ahead abstractedly in the rain and mud. I paid no attention to the howling of the wind. I tried to keep on my feet and to plunge through the darkness. I remembered nothing.

Stumbling against a stone and almost falling over it restored me to my senses. My memory came back. There was a thatched house and a young woman. There was the revolver—and death. There was the drama which I was allowing to be played through. I turned about and ran toward the house. I shouted aloud my remorse, as if men could hear me. I hurried myself fast the door. The flames of the candles threw fitful shadows on the wall. I listened. All was silence. I saw her stretched on the bench on which I had lain. I had arrived too late.

I drew nearer and heard the sound of regular breathing. I saw her beautiful hair in a golden network about her closed eyes. Her hands lay on her breast like flowers. The revolver was still on the table. Weary, exhausted, no doubt, she had been overcome by sleep before death appeared.

I put the weapon in my pocket. I blew out the candles. I went out again into the storm, this time joyously, leaving my Sleeping Beauty. I was not under my ragged cloak, a knock of a Prince Charming to awaken her with a kiss.

And for Minard's and take no other.

RHEUMATIC SUFFERERS

May Obtain Relief by Enriching the Blood Supply.

In the days of our fathers and grandfathers, rheumatism was thought to be the unavoidable penalty of middle life and old age. Almost every elderly person had rheumatism, as well as many young people. It was thought that rheumatism was the mere effect of exposure to cold and damp, and it was treated with liniments and hot applications, which sometimes gave temporary relief, but did not remove the trouble. In these days there were many cures. Now, medical science understands that rheumatism is a disease of the blood, and that with good rich red blood any man or woman of any age can defy rheumatism. There are many elderly people who have never felt a twinge of rheumatism, and many who have conquered it by simply keeping their blood rich and pure. The blood enriching qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is becoming every year more widely known, and the more general use of these pills has robbed rheumatism of its terrors. At the first sign of poor blood, which is shown by loss of appetite, dull skin and dim eyes, protect yourself against further ravages of disease by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They have helped thousands—if you give them a fair trial they will not disappoint you. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Timely Thoughts.

Genius does nothing without reason. Music may be termed the universal language of mankind. Music has, like society, its laws of propriety and etiquette. What is genius else than a priestly power revealing God to the human soul. Music is never stationary, successive forms and styles are only like so many resting places on the road to the ideal. A sympathetic recognition is assured to everyone who concentrates his art to the divine service of a conviction of a consciousness.

God and Religion.

I wish it were possible to speak of God without the implication of dealing with religion. By this I mean that I am anxious to keep religion out of this subject of the conquest of fear. The minute you touch on religion, as commonly understood, you reach the sectarian. The minute you reach the sectarian you start enemies. The minute you start enemies you get mental discords. The minute you get mental discords no stand against fear is possible.—Basil King, in "The Conquest of Fear."

Good All Year Egg Production.

S. W. Knife.

Now is the time to get your birds into winter quarters. They should be fully matured by this time, and start off in the race for high egg production for the year, should have a certain amount of surplus flesh and fat. There is no particular secret in getting late Fall and Winter eggs. The essential factors are good stock, well matured (not meagre), as they cost more to keep and pay less dividends. Hens should be confined from early in October throughout the winter in a well ventilated, dry, frequently cleaned and disinfected house, free from draughts. For each bird allow 3 1/2 to 4 sq. ft. floor space. Provide straw litter about 6 inches deep for them to exercise in. Feed grain in the litter night and morning, and above all, feed at regular times, not 7 a.m. today and noon tomorrow.

Laying mash should be available to the hens at all times. They never eat too much of it. Feed greens, mangles, cabbage, etc., daily, if possible. Remove any sick birds at once. Keep drinking vessels clean. Gather your eggs often and market them before they get old. And you will soon have the pleasure in seeing your profits come in.

A cheap comfort in summer is a shower bath. If you can do no better, even the sprinkler head of a watering pot attached to the bottom of a ten-gallon keg will serve.

To get the most out of the coming year, we must put the most into it.—James Freeman Clarke.

Debt.

Someone has said that if all the tears that have been shed on account of debt could be gathered into one place they would form a Niagara Falls.

Who could ever estimate the heartaches, the sufferings, the premature deaths caused by debt? Debt is the killer of ambition, the blighter of hopes and prospects, the murderer of love, the cause of unhappy homes, the monster that makes life, intended to be beautiful and full of promise, a hell upon earth for millions of men and women and for countless little children.

The Russian Press.

The Russian people complain that readable and interesting newspapers in their language have ceased to exist. All they have is an "elaborate machinery for spoiling paper." An observer in Russia writes that under the present government the newspapers are merely the mouthpieces of a small despotic group; the really able journalists have given up their profession, and the daily run of printed matter is little more than a lot of colorless propaganda. Before the revolution the Moscow Russkoye Slovo had a circulation of more than 1,200,000; to-day the combined circulation of all the soviet press is no more than that.

Winnipeg, Man.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me good in every way. I was very weak and run-down and had certain troubles that women of my age are likely to have. I did not like to go to the doctor so I took the Vegetable Compound and am still taking it right along. I recommend it to my friends and to any one I know who is not feeling well."—Mrs. Thompson, 303 Lizzie St., Winnipeg, Man.

When women who are between the ages of forty-five and fifty-five are beset with such annoying symptoms as nervousness, irritability, melancholia and heat flashes, which produce headaches, dizziness, or a sense of suffocation, they should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is especially adapted to help women through this crisis. It is prepared from roots and herbs and contains no harmful drugs or narcotics. This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from roots and herbs, has for forty years proved its value in such cases. Too Slow.

Jimson had barely taken off his coat when his mother-in-law, pale of face, rushed up to him and grabbed his arm.

"Oh, Arthur," she gasped, "that great, heavy grandfather clock in the hall just crashed down on the spot where I was standing only a minute ago!"

Jimson did not seem to be greatly agitated at the news, and only murmured:

"H'm! I always said that clock was slow!"

INTERESTING TO TAXPAYERS

Claims That Sections of Proposed Blue Water Highway Are Expensive and Not Necessary

To the Editor of The Transcript:

Southwestern Ontario has now three improved Provincial Highways paralleling our railways. The Detroit-Chatham and Sarnia-Grand Bend sections of the proposed Blue Water Highway parallel these present highways, do not serve Ontario, are not necessary and if gone on with will be a needless waste of Ontario's money. The counties through which these sections of the proposed Blue Water Highway pass receive all the benefit, and these roads should be taken care of by the counties.

At present all highways and railways parallel east and west. ALL TRAFFIC IS NOT EAST AND WEST. There is a crying need for cross-country connections, there being no cross-country highway between Detroit and London. The Chatham-Sarnia section of the proposed Blue Water Highway and the section from Grand Bend north are necessary cross-country roads. There is also a crying need for a central highway midway between Sarnia and London and midway between Chatham and London. With this service all Southwestern Ontario would be served.

The taking over of this additional mileage as Provincial Highway does not call for any immediate great expenditure of money. All that is necessary is to improve the links between the present improved gravel roads.

By designating as Provincial Highway the roads that link and serve Ontario best, the money spent now on making these roads good gravel roads will give Ontario the needed service and will reduce the cost of future construction.

A study of the map of Ontario will prove that there is no call for two Provincial Highways between Sarnia and Grand Bend, and that the proposed Blue Water Highway only serves a small section in northern Lambton.

All tourist traffic and Sarnia's needs are taken care of by taking over as Provincial Highway approximately twelve miles between Sarnia and Grand Bend, and the present Provincial Highway running north through Arkona. This twelve miles, the direct surveyed road, four miles of which is not opened up, passes through a section of country that the present drainage canal has made valuable and will in a few years be one of Ontario's most improved farming sections.

Surely it is better to have a linking highway through an improved farming country than to have a road that is not a linking road passing through a wilderness as is the case if the Pinery Road, part of the proposed Blue Water Highway, is designated Provincial Highway.

The Pinery Road forming part of the proposed Blue Water Highway is not a linking road, but is being straightened and graded by Lambton County. I wish to state that the straightening and grading of this Pinery Road is a heinous crime. American tourists are expressing their disappointment and surprise that this straightening is being permitted.

The land through which the Pinery Road passes and all the land between the Pinery Road and Lake Huron, approximately twenty square miles, is waste land and should be taken over by the Government as a forest and game preserve, and the Pinery Road should remain a winding park drive gravelled wide enough for two cars to pass.

All who have ever travelled the winding Pinery Road will agree with me that the present straightening and grading has destroyed and if gone on with will destroy forever one of Ontario's most beautiful drives and one of Grand Bend's principal attractions, an asset surely worth consideration. Straightening and taking over the Pinery Road as Provincial Highway means an improved road through a wilderness where no human being will ever live and a haunt for bandits.

Unless the Government takes over this waste land, grub out the scrub and replant with pine, in a few years there will be no Pinery and Ontario instead of having a valuable Pinery will have a desolate waste of scrub oak and drifting sand. A large section of this waste country has already grown up with scrub oak and approximately a square mile of this pine was burned out this spring.

The present Provincial Highway running north through Arkona is not only Ontario's best linking road to the north country but forms part of Ontario's only logical linking road between Grand Bend and the Talbot Highway, the cheapest, best and only road that serves all Southern Ontario.

Sixty and eighty per cent. roads should be located to serve the best interests of Ontario and should not be detoured to serve any local or foreign interests.

A careful study of the situation will prove every statement contained in this article. I challenge the Blue Water Highway advocates to prove that the unnecessary sections of the proposed Blue Water Highway referred to in this article are necessary Provincial Highway connections, or roads that serve the best interests of Ontario.

I have written this letter in the interests of the people of Ontario, hoping to stir up enthusiasm in a cause that means the best service for showing all next week at the least money and the saving of many thousands of dollars. There will be no reply; Blue Water Highway advocates dare not reply. A reply will start a controversy which will educate the people of Ontario to the fact that the Blue Water Highway advocates are trying to put one over the people of Ontario.

HOW PRICES AFFECT FARMER

J. B. Reynolds, principal of the Ontario Agricultural College, in an address to the members of the Kiwanis Club at London declared that there is serious danger of an interruption of the interdependence of town and country, due to the changing conditions that invite an incursion of European peasants. He said that money values do not accurately reflect how higher prices have affected the farmer. The real test, he said, is to ascertain what he can get for his own products. He showed that a mowder that could be got with 700 pounds of beef in 1914 now costs 1,500 pounds of beef; the cost of a seed drill has advanced from 166 bushels of oats to 415 bushels, and a manure spreader from 430 pounds of butter to 840 pounds.

Externally or Internally, it is Good. —When applied externally by brisk rubbing, Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil opens the pores and penetrates the tissue, touching the seat of the trouble and immediately affording relief. Administered internally, it will still the irritation in the throat which induces coughing and will relieve affections of the bronchial tubes and respiratory organs. Try it and be convinced.

Chantry Farm Shorthorns For Sale

Mr. de Gex, of Kerwood, wishes to draw attention to his advertisement appearing in this issue. On account of unsatisfactory help he has reluctantly decided to dispose of all his Shorthorn cattle, either whole or in part. In Scotch families there are four excellent specimens of "Butterflies," "Roan Ladies" three, and "Coronations" four, all close up to the imported dam. The present sire is a fashionably bred Wimpie, and his ten calves on hand show for themselves. This herd was started in 1896, has never been pampered, never had a reactor to tuberculosis test, and unlike a good many breeders has never had occasion to cull surplus bulls to the butchers. The cattle are all in thrifty condition and are priced worth the money.

MULCH STRAWBERRIES

It Will Assure Larger Yields of Bigger Berries.

Use Marsh Hay or Clean Straw—Apply in Fall When Ground Is Frozen—Renovating Old Patches—Winter Conditions for Bees—Why Plant Trees?

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The practice of applying a coating of straw, strawy manure, or marsh hay over the strawberry bed after permanent frost has set in and the ground is solid, has proved of great value. This mulch prevents alternate freezing and thawing in the spring, and heaving of the plants, both of which cause at times heavy loss. It also protects the plants if the snowfall is light, and is even more valuable when pulled between the rows in the early spring. This conserves moisture and more especially keeps the fruit clean. Driving rains splash the fruit with dirt, particularly on sandy land, which will much lessen the value of the crate or shipment into which these berries are put. A box of dirty berries will ruin the appearance of a whole crate.

Marsh Hay or Clean Straw Best Mulch.

Marsh hay or clean, medium length, straw are the best materials to use. Open manure is not good because of the large number of weed seeds it contains. No material which will pack over the plants is to be recommended. As two to three inches is sufficient mulch, and a heavy coating may cause heating in the spring before removal, it is not advisable to use more. About two tons per acre is required.

When it is desired to hold the plants back in the spring to prevent blossom killing by late frosts, the mulch is best applied on top of the first heavy snow fall. It should be removed in all cases before the plants start growth, as after that time much damage may be done by smothering. After harvest the mulch is removed, burned, or, if suitable, can be stacked in a protected place for use another year.

Renovating an Old Patch.

In renovating an old patch it is not advisable to burn the mulch and mowed leaves on the patch. These should be raked off and burned outside the patch, to avoid injury to the crowns of the plants.

No crop should be grown between the rows in a strawberry bed for cover crop or protective purposes. This provides too much competition for the plants in moisture and food at a time when the grower wants the soil to be as fertile as possible for the following year's fruiting.—D. A. Kimball, O. A. C., Guelph.

Winter Conditions for Bees.

To winter bees successfully the colonies must have:

A sufficient supply of proper food; A good, fertile queen; Plenty of good workers; Sufficient protection from cold and wind.

While the winter food, either honey or sugar, should have been in the hives by October 1, it may still be given to the bees. Protection is afforded either by packing properly or insulating the hives outdoors, or by transferring them to a good cellar where at least five conditions can be maintained: darkness, freedom from disturbance, a temperature of from 44 to 48 degrees Fahrenheit, proper ventilation and freedom from moisture.

A dark place is best, as bees usually fly to windows, doors or lamps, and do not return to their hives. Freedom from disturbance includes not only absence of noise but absence of jarring and vibration. An even reasonable temperature must be maintained in order that the bees may not break their winter cluster. Proper ventilation is required in order to prevent accumulation of moisture and to aid in maintaining the needed temperature as well as adequate supplies of air. Dryness is required or the bee-bread combs will mold, some of the honey will ferment and the bees will be uneasy.

Why Plant Trees?

Trees add value to property. Trees cool the air in summer and radiate warmth in winter.

Trees help keep the air pure for man and the lower animals.

Trees provide homes for thousands of birds that help man in his fight against injurious insects.

Trees provide homes for many animals that are useful to men for food and clothing.

Trees help man in his fight for better sanitation.

Trees supply a large part of all the fuel in the world.

Trees give us wood, and wood provides us with building material, furniture, implements, utensils, tools, and other useful things in great variety.

Trees provide one of the most striking and permanent forms of beauty.

Trees improve the climate and conserve soil and water.

Trees provide a great variety of miscellaneous, useful products.—The Maritime Farmer.

Where the walls join the floor of the stable, be certain that the cement is rounded; not like a "quarter-round" but like a "core." It will help to keep the barn clean. Do not neglect this precaution because it may be slightly inconvenient for the person doing the cement work; remember the inconvenience it will be daily not to have the rounded corner.

Uncle Ab says: A community that doesn't pull together will get as much work done as a balky team.

POLICING THE HIGHWAYS

Before another year is out the policing and control of Ontario highways, both as to traffic regulations and criminal law infractions, will in all probability be under the jurisdiction of the provincial police force, which will be reinforced for the purpose by a squad of at least a score of motor cycle police officers.

The scheme contemplates the policing of the main highways from Montreal to Windsor with about a score or more of motor cycle men, whose duty it would be to enforce all laws.

The main routes would be tapped by an up-to-date police signal system similar to that in use by the Toronto force and would enable headquarters to communicate at a few moments' notice with officers at any given point on a main Ontario highway. The scheme has been perused and approved by at least one American law-enforcement expert.

Not only could the roadways be so followed a bank robbery or crime similar to those recently experienced in Toronto, but only by such police methods, it is stated, can the provincial police hope to cope with the motorist run-runners. The Cornwall raid, one of the most successful in the history of the department, it is now known was made with the assistance of two motor cycle police officers sent down from Toronto especially for the purpose.

The proposed new squad also would have the

BATHS AND BATHING.

Bathing serves a two-fold purpose: It cleanses the body and opens the pores so that the skin may throw off impurities and absorb oxygen. Many diseases would be prevented if the skin of the whole body were thoroughly cleansed with due regularity.

Both general and local baths are of value for various disorders. Probably the customary weekly soap-and-water bath is all that is absolutely essential for cleanliness, provided the other eliminating organs do their part toward purifying the body. Otherwise more frequent baths are required to insure cleanliness.

A daily morning bath is very healthful and invigorating. It may be taken in a bath tub—just a plunge—followed by rapid friction with Turkish towel, or it may be taken from a wash-basin with sponge, wash-rag or just the hand. The latter is especially good as the warmth of the hand, dipped in cold or cool water, prevents chilling of the body. No one should take a really cold water bath if reaction is slow. The cool, or body-temperature bath is usually better. A cold bath is a strong stimulant to the entire circulatory system, provided one can recuperate quickly, and have a feeling of warmth immediately after. Salt added to the water will insure against taking cold. When the feet are warm the circulation is more easily maintained. So if you stand with your feet immersed in hot water while taking the hand or sponge bath, or while using a hand spray in the bath tub, reaction will be easier and quicker. A cold bath should always be followed by friction, and one necessary caution is, a bath should not be taken immediately before or within two hours after a meal.

Hot water has a wonderful influence upon the elimination of wastes and impurities through the skin. In cases of kidney disease, where these organs fail to perform their work, frequent hot baths are of great help in making the skin do, or help to do, the work of the kidneys.

Those who have heart disease of any kind and those with seriously depleted vitality should be very careful about using the hot bath—not one feels it too hot. And then, if one feels a sense of overheating while in the water, it is best to get out of it immediately. Of course, a bath of some kind is necessary for a bath of this kind, and a hot bath should be followed by a quick sponging with cold or cool water. But do not cool off too quickly, and be careful not to become chilled after a bath of this kind. The hot bath takes fatigue out of the muscles and helps to promote sleep. For these purposes it should always be taken at bedtime. Locally applied, the hot bath is excellent for sprains and hurts, where the skin is not broken, and when used in time will prevent bruises and swellings. It also relieves local inflammations.

The hot foot-bath is sometimes effectively used to relieve nervous headache and head colds. Its effectiveness is augmented by the addition of salt or mustard. An alternate hot and cold foot-bath is a fine general tonic, and may be used as often as desired. Have two basins of water, one cold and the other hot, and kept hot. Begin by holding the feet in the hot water two or three minutes, then in the cold water a minute or less. Repeat three or four times in each, ending with the cold bath. Taken at bedtime it will warm the feet for the night, as it draws the blood to them and sets it freely circulating.

WASH-DAY ASSISTANTS.

Don't throw away the hose supporters or of discarded corsets. Save them, and after removing the elastic sew the metal parts to a strip of coarse muslin a yard long and four inches wide. On wash days small pieces such as handkerchiefs and napkins can be fastened in the supporters while in the house instead of having to pin the pieces to the line in the hot sun, or worse yet, on a winter day with a zero temperature.

It takes only a moment to pin the strip of muslin to the line and take it down after the pieces are dry, thus speeding the job. —C. C. A.

A COMBINATION BAG AND FAN.

A bag that will serve as a fan can easily be made of the following materials: one-third of a yard of silk or satin; a bunch of forget-me-nots; three and a half dozen bugle beads; five-eighths of a yard of feather banding; cardboard, buckram and a skein of embroidery silk.

Cut two disks of cardboard, each seven and a half inches in diameter, and clip a segment from each for the opening of the bag at the top. Reinforce the disks with buckram cut to match. Fit the silk and the lining (of the same or of a contrasting shade) to the sections. Sew the two silk sections together except at the top, which should be left open so that you can slip the cardboard stiffening in and insert the handles. Without bending the cardboard manipulate it gently until it slips into the pockets. Sew the two fabric-covered sections together with embroidery silk in a buttonhole stitch.

Cut a strip of cardboard for a handle one and a half by thirteen inches in size and stitch buckram to it. Cover the handle with the fabric and stitch it on the machine; then press it with a hot iron. Make another handle in the same way. Attach the handles to the bag, one on each side. Cut from buckram a disk of three and a half inches or a heart-shaped piece. Cover it with the fabric and then cover the fabric with forget-me-nots, carefully stitched on. Outline the section with bugle beads. Sew the forget-me-not piece to the bag, which is then ready for service, both as a receptacle and, by reversing it, as a fan. You can add a feather banding round the edge, or the beads may be dispensed with and tiny homemade rosebuds used instead of forget-me-nots.

As Helen and Tu Hee talked, Irma studied surreptitiously the slim form in its simple mourning gown of pure white. Never before had a stranger affected her like this girl. Her heart went out to her in great waves of maternal sympathy. Was it the lovely fragility and youth of her that had aroused her compassion? Her heart ached strangely as she noted the deep shadows under the blue eyes, eyes that appeared almost too large for the small, pale face.

The dainty, arched eyebrows showed in startling relief against the blue-veined brow, the whiteness and clearness of which caused Irma to wonder. If the thought wasn't ridiculous, she would have said the girl's face had been stained and the dye was wearing off.

But it wasn't only Irma who was surprised. Helen was taken aback, amazed at Tu Hee's appearance. Whatever the cause, the girl looked less like a Chinese than ever before. Perhaps the lack of rouge and the natural sweet curves of the unpainted lips helped in the startling change. Truly the girl before them, in spite of the ravages of illness and sorrow, was more amazingly beautiful than she had even thought.

And then Helen's eyes dropped to the soft hand clasping her own and received a setback to her musings. The barbaric gold nail-shell gleamed up at her mackling.

"It is so good of you to have come, dear," replied Helen, "but my scruples evaporated in my interest and longing to see you."

"And the continued praises I heard sung on your behalf made me your friend without seeing you," added Irma, with a smile.

"Please don't say too kind things. I'm not quite myself yet and I might say something a little broad laugh—well, I might make a silly of myself."

"You're a marvelous girl, Tu Hee," Tu Hee's lips trembled.

"I'm afraid not very," Mrs. Claymore knew I'm a very miserable one. The gods have indeed forsaken me, and now, O Mrs. Claymore—a wild sob broke from the distracted girl—"they think I killed him!"

Irma made a motion forward, but Helen already had her arms around Tu Hee. "Hush, dear," she soothed as she pillowed the girl's head on her shoulder.

Poor Tu Hee, a woman's sympathy had been denied her so long that the friendship of these two foreigners was heavenly balm to her.

"It's so nice to have you here," Tu Hee dried her eyes as she spoke. "I feel better already."

It was true; the hunted look in the blue eyes had almost vanished.

"I want to tell you and your friend all about it," continued Tu Hee. "Can't that wait, dear?"

Tu Hee shook her head. "Don't think I'm afraid to meet my fate, I'm not, and I feel it rushing on me very fast. Detectives and spies are posted all around me. Everyone in my household but you and I, they left her standing in the door of her apartment, heavy doubts assailed her, and she could see no ray of light piercing the dark clouds that surrounded the accident."

As the two women followed the servant down the long corridor they came face to face with Lun. The old nurse's hands were clutching at each other nervously, and her eyes shifted from the look Helen bent on her, while the sight of Irma plunged her into the wildest confusion.

"I'll wager she knows more than she has told about this affair," inwardly commented Helen; "and I would have staked my life on that old woman's fidelity. They're a queer race, these people."

To Helen's eager questions before they parted in the palace courtyard, Irma answered vaguely and absently.

"You are surely not disappointed in her, Mrs. Culver?" exclaimed Helen, disturbed and hurt at what she took for the older woman's disinterestedness. "Somehow I was counting on you to champion our cause."

Irma turned puzzled, surprised eyes on the questioner. "Disappointed? Why, my dear, I was amazed, overwhelmed at the child's loveliness. It has dazed me a bit, that is all. Please come up to the temple to-morrow, Helen, and we will talk it over."

him. There he sat in a big chair, his back to the door, his arms resting on a small table, and the ruby clasped tightly between his fingers. "I don't know how I did it. I realized something terrible had happened. He had a light grey overcoat on, and it was torn and blood-stained under the shoulder. The shock must have numbed even my feeling of horror, for I deliberately walked over to him. A dagger, one of my uncle's, lay on the floor—it was covered with blood. I don't know yet how I could have done it, but I picked it up, and then the door opened and a servant looked in. That is all I remember, but they say I did it!"

All this time Irma Culver had sat a silent listener, her slim body bent slightly forward, her eyes fixed intently on Tu Hee's face. Several times, when emotion had threatened to overcome the narrator, she had started up as if to comfort her but had restrained the impulse immediately.

Following Tu Hee's story, absolute silence reigned in the room for several minutes.

Not for a moment did either Irma or Helen doubt the truth of Tu Hee's statement. If the girl had had no genuine love for the man she was to kill, she would not have been so difficult to entertain a friendly liking for him.

Her whole manner proclaimed it. But would strangers be so credulous in face of the black evidence? wondered Irma. Already she was incriminated by her own story, and the servant had put on the black tragic finish. Irma didn't know much about Chinese law, but she had vivid recollections of the country's horrible punishments, and she shuddered at the thought of this gentle, cultured girl facing a wild, reckless, unreasoning monster.

Over the light lunch that Tu Hee had served in her sitting-room, Helen tried to divert the girl's mind from the gruesome subject that submerged them all. She did succeed in bringing fleeting smiles to Tu Hee's face. Once she had the temerity to mention David's name, and the quick light in the Chinese girl's eyes did not escape her.

But time was short, and Helen felt they were wasting precious moments in loitering over tea when the girl's rich, for the oppression of the poor, and one champion of the workers warned them against being induced to live on such "cattle food."

In Scotland the potato met with an even more unfriendly reception. Sermons were preached against it, in which it was declared that, as the potato was not mentioned in the Bible, it must be unfit for Christians to eat. It was even described by one divine as being the forbidden fruit which had caused the fall of Adam. Other enemies of the potato accused it of causing leprosy and fever.

The Boy Columbus.

With wild blue eyes he sought the ocean's rim.
One day at Genoa and gazed afar.
Filled with the dream that beckoned past the bar,
The call of sea and sky possessing him;
Cathay and Asia loomed full clear, not dim.
To his far vision plain and true as are
The shining wonders of some new-found star;
New ways for old, he sang, youth's ancient hymn.

This youthful light flamed ever in his mind;
Fearless, the boy in him put his ship's prow
Out into trackless seas beyond his ken;
Though aged and in chains, yet none could bind
The deathless spirit that had proved his row.
The boy who gave a new free world to men.

Meeting on the window pane, blowing o'er the hill;

Fusty little snow squall on your feery wings!

Fusty little snow squall, sifting us with white,
Bobbing on the doorstep, oh, you're very light.
Powdering the brown earth with your frisky flower—
Creature of a fall wind over in an hour!

Fusty little snow squall, drifting down in flecks,
Peppering our overcoats, powdering our necks,
Blowing round the corners, sifting Fusty little snow squall, bless you—au revoir!

IRRIGATION PROBLEM IN WESTERN CANADA

CO-OPERATIVE PROJECT OF FARMERS.

Financed by Provincial Government, the Initial Fruits Are Evident.

The inundation of the Lethbridge Northern Irrigation district in Southern Alberta in the month of June marked a distinct and important step in the progress of irrigation affairs in that area, signaling as it did the successful completion of the first farmers' co-operative project, financed by district bonds fully guaranteed by the Provincial Government. It was the first concrete testimony of a faith in irrigation previously evidenced in a general clamoring demand on the part of Southern Alberta farmers who had become convinced of the benefits of irrigation in that area, without being able to share in its benefits.

Had it rested with Western farmers there would probably be no irrigation in Western Canada to-day, for not only did they for some years think it unnecessary to irrigate, but were actively opposed to it. The Canadian Pacific Railway undertook the construction of the largest private irrigation project on the continent, and as a result of the increased yields and undoubted benefits accruing, the general insistence for other similar projects resulted, terminating in the formation of farmers' co-operative districts.

The arrival of the first co-operative project at a point where irrigation farming is possible, is the virtual guarantee of the equally successful issue of the many other co-operative projects organized about the same time and at present under way. The Lethbridge Northern was, in many ways, a test project, and upon its successful financing and completion depended fruition of others.

Ready Market for Bonds.

In the more general appreciation of the benefits and greater profits of irrigation farming in Western Canada, the virtual crop assurance, together with the Provincial Government's guarantee of the bonds, no difficulty has hitherto been experienced in disposing of such bonds of co-operative irrigated districts. In fact such securities are coming to be regarded very highly. This was recently illustrated in the financing of the United Irrigation district in Southern Alberta when the high-water mark in the disposal of bonds was reached and the $100,000 issue was disposed of at a price of 103. The sale was transacted by the Alberta Provincial Treasury for the board of trustees of the district.

The Lethbridge Northern and the United Irrigation districts, which are both being brought under water this year, will add, through co-operative enterprise, a substantial acreage to the irrigated lands of Southern Alberta. The former comprises some 220,000 acres of land, of which 105,000 acres are irrigable. The latter, lying in the foothill country west of Cardston, has 24,000 irrigable acres. Altogether the two projects will give an additional 129,000 acres of irrigable land, or the equivalent of six townships.

The benefits of irrigation in Southern Alberta are so extensive as to be difficult of briefly recounting. Accurately kept records by the Dominion Experimental Farm Lethbridge, over a period of ten years, have proved the vastly increased production of ordinary crops. Wheat production has increased by 77 per cent; oats 54 per cent; barley 81 per cent; field peas 51 per cent; and potatoes 105 per cent. The production of fruits and vegetables, impossible elsewhere, has been successfully accomplished. According to the Provincial Minister of Agriculture, Alberta, in the near future, will be able to raise on its irrigated lands all the corn, peas, and other vegetables for canning now being imported into the province, whilst there are great possibilities in beet growing and the establishment of a sugar industry in the area.

Revenue $26.00 per Acre.

From statistics recently compiled it is estimated that irrigated lands in Southern Alberta will account for $26 per acre in revenue this year, which is a gratifying sum in the consideration that the average acre seeded to wheat in Canada last year returned $14.87 to its tiller.

The best of all evidences of the success of Western Canadian irrigation is, however, the manner in which new co-operative irrigation projects, organized and carried out entirely by the farmers concerned, are springing into being each year. It was the obvious benefits which they could see but not share in which occasioned the first clamoring and forced the hand of the Provincial Government. The first concrete fruits of the movement have just been evidenced. Many other projects are in the process of consideration, and it is not difficult to foresee the time when further acreage of Southern Alberta land capable of irrigation will be brought under the ditch.

PEACE OF WORLD ASSURED IF U.S. PLAYS PART, SAYS LLOYD GEORGE

A despatch from Hamilton says:—Vibrant with Cynric fire, and his heart full of the purpose of peace on earth, Right Hon. Mr. Lloyd George, in an interview with the pressmen while en route to Niagara Falls, rather frankly reminded the United States of its European obligations.

Lloyd George said he did not like to impose his views on the United States regarding its foreign relationships, but since he had been asked to give these he would state them as frankly as possible.

In a word, he held, there could be no peace—no enduring peace—until the United States joins the League of Nations. He felt that the United States ought to become a signatory to the League, and believed that it would do so in the near future.

Prefacing his answers by pointing out that by the Treaty of Versailles the United States had the same obligation as any of the other allies in the fixing of reparations, Lloyd George emphasized that when the United States failed to ratify this treaty the whole fabric of reparations was necessarily altered.

The plan of Mr. Hughes, American Secretary of State, he said, was simply a restoration of the body that had been on reparations before the United States disapproved of the Treaty of Versailles.

This treaty, he added, brought the United States into adjudication on European affairs. It made the United States the only disinterested party. Therefore its presence was vital.

CANADA'S WHEAT CROP 446,570,000 BUSHELS

Official Estimate Gives Ontario an Increase Over Last Year's Crop.

A despatch from Ottawa says:—In its second estimate of Canada's field crops, issued on Friday, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics shows a slight change in the total wheat yield for the Prairie Provinces as compared with that issued a few weeks ago. The total, as estimated in Friday's bulletin, is 446,570,000 bushels, as compared with 446,775,000 in the previous estimate. There is a variation in the three Provinces, however. Manitoba shows a decrease of over 2,000,000 bushels, Saskatchewan a decrease of over 6,000,000 bushels, and Alberta an increase of nearly 8,000,000 bushels.

Ontario's crop yields, according to this latest estimate, are as follows, with those of last year, respectively: Wheat, 18,714,000 bushels and 19,839,000; oats, 99,408,000 and 116,034,000; barley, 13,348,000 and 13,972,000; rye, 2,344,000 and 2,500,000; peas, 2,055,000 and 2,077,000; buckwheat, 4,951,000 and 4,246,000; mixed grains, 22,713,000 and 21,270,000; corn, 15,051,000 and 12,306,000. Wheat, rye and corn showed a considerable increase in yield per acre, while decreases were shown in the other grains.

Ontario's total grain yield this year was 173,669,000 bushels, as compared with 156,227,000 bushels last year.

The total yield of the West by provinces follows:

	1923	1922
Man.	36,431,000	60,051,000
Sask.	252,622,000	250,167,000
Alta.	157,467,000	64,976,000

NORTH SEA FAMINE MAY HELP CANADA

Atlantic Fishing Grounds Not Much Farther from England Than White Sea.

A despatch from London says:—There has been such an extraordinary famine of fish, particularly whitefish and haddock, in the North Sea in the past week that many fishermen have temporarily abandoned fishing for potato harvesting. Prices have risen enormously.

Although this extreme scarcity is probably due to temporary causes it has been recognized here for some time that the North Sea is almost fished out. British trawlers have been forced to go further afield, a circumstance which has led recently to trouble between the trawlers and Russian gunboats in the White Sea.

It is predicted that in a few years these conditions may foster a profitable trade in Canadian fresh fish brought to the English market in chilled space. Canada's Atlantic fishing grounds are not much farther from England than the White Sea.

such a judicial body as the committee that convened to fix reparations. The United States would thus have been the most valuable member of that body.

"It would have been the biggest achievement in the history of the human race if the United States had allied itself with the other English-speaking nations in the League of Nations," he declared, ardently.

"Britain and the United States, of course, are already in agreement to impose peace on the world, but there can never be peace until the United States joins the League of Nations. It will have to come. It ought to come. The moment you get it there will be peace. The little nations of Europe are frightened to death. Let Britain and the United States be determined to have peace—and there shall be peace. These two great nations in themselves could impose peace. They would be quite enough. Not a gun would have to be fired; no nation would dare to stand up against this combination—the combination of Great Britain and the United States insisting on a rational peace."

Lloyd George was asked at this point, if such a combination did exist and war was threatened, would Great Britain and the United States have to enforce any form of economic pressure to ensure peace. He replied that they would not. It would not be necessary. For this reason he ardently hoped that the United States would soon become a signatory to the League of Nations.

Imperial Conference in Session in London Endorses Action of World Organization.

A despatch from London says:—The Imperial Conference met on Thursday in the morning and afternoon. The Marquis of Curzon, Foreign Secretary, opened the session with a statement of the political developments as a result of the Janina murders which brought on the recent Italo-Grecian crisis.

Lord Robert Cecil followed with an address on the League of Nations, dwelling in detail on the developments arising from the dispute between Italy and Greece. There was some criticism expressed in the subsequent discussion, it is understood, but the general tenor of the proceedings was an indication of the strongest desire on the part of each of the Governments represented at the Imperial Conference to give the fullest support to the League.

The Canadian viewpoint expressed was that as regards European affairs, the League was the best agency for whatever mediation might be necessary. Sir Lomer Gouin warmly thanked Lord Robert Cecil for his assistance at the Geneva assembly in regard to the League of Nations.
