London Paper Says Boers Accepted British Terms

Botha, Steyn, De Wet, Delarey, Schalkburger and Several Other Leaders in Conference at Klerksdorp.

London, April 11 .- Frederick Rutherford Harris, former secretary of the British Chartered South Africa Company, was asked this morning at his residence, Llangibly Castle, Usk, Monmouthshire, if he had received a telegram announcing that the Boer leaders had accepted the British terms. Mr. Harris replied that the rumor was entirely without foundation.

A similar report of the alleged agreement was carried by the Central News and published by some of the many papers, which issued extra editions. It appears to have been originated in the town of Pontypool, adjacent to Llangibly Castle.

The dispatch appearing in the Financier and Bullionist is not confirmed from any other quarter. The editor of the code message received were vague, but he believes his general interpretation of the dispatch to be cor-

No communication, Mr. Brodrick further said, had been received from the Boer leaders, except regarding safe conducts for the participators in the conference. The colonial secretary, Mr. Cham-berlain, added the information that no limit had been fixed for the expiration of the safe conducts. These would be extended as long as the negotiations were in progress, after which the delegates would be allowed to return to their respective districts without hindrance.

KNISLEY AND DAY KILLED. Ottawa, April 11.-Official confirmation of the news that Corporal Knisley and Private Day have been killed has been received here. It came in the form of a cablegram from casualty department, reading: "Cape Town April 9.—Referring to my cable of April 6, General Kitchener now reports Corporal Wm. A. Kinsley and Private Robert Day, Second Canadian Mounted Rifles, killed April 2, between Boschbrilt and Klerksdorp." There is a certain amount of mystery about the death of Knisley and Day. The battle on Hart's River took place on March 31, whereas the two soldiers named are reported killed April 2, yet in the first dispatch it was stated that released men report Knisley and Day killed." A possible explanation is that these men fell wounded into the hands of the Boers, and died of their wounds on April 2.

MANY VOLUNTEERS. Halifax, N. S., April 11.—The following officers of the Third Royal Canadians have personally sent in their applications to Colonel White, and are seeking positions on the new contingent for South Africa: Capts. In addition a large number of non-commissioned have offered their services. There is the greatest enthusiasm manifested in the regiment. CARRUTHERS OUT OF IT. Kingston, Ont., April 11.-It is thought here that Lieut. Bruce Carruthers, reported captured by Boers, has been paroled, and that terminates his fighting.

COLONELS' DAY IN PARLIAMENT.

Important Announcement by Mr. Borden.

Militia Department Estimates Laid Before the House.

Will Increase the Militia to 100,000, Establish a Rifle Factory and Add to Regulars.

Ottawa, April 10 .- This was "Colonels'" day in the House, the military field day of the session. The discussion of Dr. Borden's few remaining estimates was interesting, and there was a gratifying absence of criticism of the administration of the militia department. Many of the proposed improvements in the matter of military conflicts between the rioters and the reform are on the lines of the suggestions made in the report of Major-General O'Grady-Haly, who sat in the speaker's gallery during the discus- pensive rifle ranges. He believed that in our times of prosperity this country should devote some of its revenue to the matter of defence. As to the report of the major-general, he agreed in the main with every suggestion it contained. might be practicable once in three years to give the men a longer period of drill than twelve days. He was in accord with the majorgeneral's proposal to form a body of reserves. At this moment, he said, the suggestion is being carried out, and it would involve very little more expenditure for the extra men, sufficient of whom would be raised to increase the present force of 35,000 up to 100,000, and this would be done by bringing them into the rifle clubs, for which provision was made last session. The force would thus consist of men who have experience in the art of rifle shooting. He is a Canadian, having been born in Woodstock, where his parents still reside. He grew up in his native town, and was married there while still a young man. He claims that Mr. W. H. Miller, a grocer of that city, is a relative. He moved to Mount Clemens from Woodstock about twelve years ago, and secured a position on the public school teaching staff as musical instructor. Later he moved to Chesterfield, and from there to New Haven, coming to Detroit about eight years ago. Miller, his wife, and their music lessons, capt. Baker went to take off his home and took Miller into custody. The officers asked him to take off his coat and vest, and with great rejuctance the music teacher removed the graments. AN EYE-WITNESS.

The murder took place between 10 and 11 o'clock last night in a vacant spot in Thirteenth street. Harry F. Jewell, who alighted from a street car shortly after 11 o'clock, a short distance away, was practically an eyewitness of the crime. Hearing a woman cry for help he looked across the vacant lot in the dim light and saw a man striking at something on the ground. Jewell ran to his home and aroused Charles Hawk, his brother-inlaw, and the two men rushed to where Jewell had seen the man standing. There they found the body of a young woman lying in a pool of blood. A mass of clotted blood surrounded her head, and a gash half an inch on her Windsor, Ont., April 10.—One of the forehead had penetrated her skull. A most shocking murders in Michigan knife wound had almost severed her lips; there was a terrible stag just back of the ear, and the woman's throat was cut nearly from ear to ear

In the sweat-box Miller claimed that last night he attended a meeting of the Wolverine Circle, an insurance organization on Baker street, and that he left about 11 o'clock. If true, this would be a sufficient alibi, for the murder took place at 11 o'clock, or a few minutes later.

In addition to the other ghastly wounds on her head, her neck had been broken. THE FATHER'S STORY.

THE FATHER'S STORY.

"Carrie has been one of the comforts of our old age," said the heart-broken father. "A few years ago her mother was taken ill, and since that time has not been able to do much about the house. Carrie has been the housekeeper. She was always quiet and domestic. She had no gentlemen friends that I know of. Miller began giving her lessons on the piano about five years ago. She was very fond of music, and in that way Miller began to visit the house. Carrie was a member of the Maccabees and of the Daughters of Rebekah, and was the organist of the two lodges. Miller also belonged to several secret societies, and in this way they formerly met often. Miller has not been around the house much for the last year." Jennet finally admitted that it was due to him that the visits of the music teacher were discontinued. He had forbidden the man the house. The frequency of his visits, and the terms of intimacy on which Carrie and Miller appeared to be had excited comment among their friends and neighbors. However, the paternal warning was not enough to keep Miller away.

A BLOODSTAINED HATCHET. A BLOODSTAINED HATCHET.

A bloodstained hatchet was found by the police in the drawer of a table in Miller's kitchen this evening. A towel was found in the kitchen also with what are supposed to be bloodstains on it. Though Miller declares that he did not leave the lodge until 11 o'clock, several persons who were there say he left between 10 and 10:20 o'clock. The murder was committed at 11:05 as near as the officers can learn. Miller is sleeping like a child in the Grand River police station. He simply insists that he knows nothing of the murder. The blade and handle of the hatchet had been washed, but there are yet stains on the claw-hammer end

DAIRY SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS

Results of Winter Term at Agricultural College.

Honor List in Farm and Factory Classes-Names of General Prcficiency Students.

During the winter terms of the dairy school at the college, 103 students have registered for the dairy courses and 96 for the course in domestic science in connection with the school, making a total of 199 registered, besides a large number who were present for a short time, or took some of the domestic science lectures, but did not register. The term closed on March 27, with an "at home" in the dairy building, given by the instructors to the students and their friends. The evening was most enjoyable. The class separated with a feeling that it was one of the most pleasant and profitable three months which they had ever spent. Quite a number have signified their intention of coming back for a second term. Students who have a limited education find the work which is crowded into three months rather heavy, and it is a question whether it would not be advisable to extend the course to two terms instead of one, as it present. This would allow more time for advanced work. It is proposed next year to divide the class in cheesemaking into experienced and non-experienced men at the beginning of the term. Those who are able to take up advanced work in cheese-making, dairy chemistry and dairy bacteriology, will find provision for such work, instead of having to take up elementary work along with the inable. The class separated with a feeland dairy bacteriology are take up elementary work along with the inexperienced men. If this arrangement proves satisfactory in the cheese room, the principle will be extended to other branches of the school; and if necessary, the term will be extended. A dairy school should meet the needs of a rapidly growing dairy industry, and be able to furnish the strong meat of advanced work to those who have passed the milk experience stage.

The following are the results of the examinations: Passed in all subjects and ranked according to standing in general proficiency:

THE CHILDREN, HEAVEN BLESS THEM!

Are They Frail, Restless and Nervous?

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Will Make Them Healthy, Vigorous, Bright and Happy.

As a rule, parents are to blame if their children are puny, weak, nervous and irritable. The little ones may be well clothed and fed, yet still be sadly neglected from a physical point of view. It should be remembered that the children inherit many of the troubles that parents suffer from. Thousands of little ones are subjects of nerve troubles, a condition inherited from father or mother. This nervous condition begets irritableness, bad temper, headache, indigestion and stomach derangements. Such children need the best and most intelligent care, or they will grow up in misery and disease.

Give the little ones Paine's Celery Compound for the next few weeks, and note well its fortifying effect on the nervous system: watch the growth in muscle and flesh. Thousands of thankful letters have been received from glad fathers and mothers who have had their dear ones perfectly restored to health and strength by Paine's Celery Compound. Mr. Robert D. Templeton, Winnipeg, Man., says: "I take great pleasure in recommending your Paine's Celery Compound for all children's troubles. Our little girl was very sick a short time ago, and we had to call in a doc-

Emigration from Ireland has decreased. Last year there were 39,870 Irish emigrants, a decrease of 7,237 as compared with 1900. Of the total 21, 527 were females, and over 80 per cent went to the United States.

D-o-c-t-o-r f-o-r T-e-n C-e-n-t-s. HUTCH.

A great many people run to a physician for every ailment they experience. This is not an unusual principle. The ignorance we all are in concerning our own anatomy is such that we feel the advice of one skilled in such matters should be sought. A very natural human weakness sometimes magnifles the trouble and produces anxiety when there is no cause. Look at it this way. The stomach is the primary organ of the body. A diseased stomach produces ills we in our ignorance sometimes fancy are local in character. A healthy stomach will soon relieve distress. HUTCH TABLETS will impart vigorous vitality to your stomach. A treatment of Hutch will permanently cure the disorders of the more remote organs of the body. That is why Hutch is called the doctor for 10 cents. Its work is not confined to one organ alone, but its beneficent, healthful influence is experienced throughout the entire system. Ten Hutch, ten cents; 100 for 50 cents. All druggists or by mail from The Woodward Chemical Company, Toronto and Buffalo, N. Y.

The Railway Commission.

another proof that it is keeping pace with the times, in the creation of a railway commission. The Minister of Railways expresses doubt that the new body will accomplish all that is hoped for, but the move is an admission that there are evils to be remedied. The commission will consist of three members, appointed for ten years and eligible for reappointment. The members can be dismissed only by the Governor-General, on the address of both the Senate and House of Commons. This gives the commission a more substantial tenure, and insures greater independence in connection with their office. Besides, there is virtual immunity from political partisanship. The report of Professor Maclean, who, last year, made a very thorough investigation of the grievances in connection with railway transportation, has pointed out the necessity for some tribunal to enforce equity in the matter of freight rates. The new Railway Railway Committee of the Privy Council, and its powers will extend to all matters with which the Railway Committee is now empowered to deal. It will have more extensive powers even, especially in the matter of freight rate power to determine the tolls. On the class of freight marked as "commodity," the commission will establish a maximum and minimum toll. The third class of traffic is between competitive points, in which case the commission may designate any places in Canada and permit between them lower rates for greater distances.

Authority is to be conferred on the commission to supervise all dealings and decide all disputes that may arise between the railway companies and their patrons. In matters of expropriation, right of way, company organization, and other matters in connection with railway construction and operation, similar authority will be conferred.

The new bill marks another epoch in the history of railway transportation development in Canada.

Paying for Street Improvements. If London adopts the "local improvement plan," she should make some Star.

The Star speaks with a knowledge of the workings of the local improvement system in Toronto. Within certain limits the plan has its advantages. Without it we don't think London would have had its present expanse of as- years-say about 150 million pounds. phalt and macadam pavements, but to apply the frontage tax to all street im-. provements, as the City Council of Lonroadways, represented by the street intaxation. It would tend to equalize a larger share, say 50 per cent, of the inducement to property-owners to improve the streets. Take the case of asphalt pavement running parallel a block or two apart. Drivers naturally choose the better one and it gets all the wear and tear, rather to the advantage of the unimproved street. If the owners on the latter realized that they were helping to pay half the cost of the superior pavement, they would be inclined to follow the example of their enterprising neighbors.

Another plan, adopted in some cities. is that when any pavement has been laid on a permanent foundation and British people do not proceed to impaid for under the local improvement system, the municipality thereafter relieves the property owners from any further charge for resurfacing or maintenance. This is another inducement Toronto has adopted this method, which will result in the gradual abolition of the frontage tax.

The resolution passed by the City Council seems designed to give that body more money to spend. When the bylaw comes up, the question should be reconsidered.

June 26 is to be a public holiday. It may be inconvenient to some people to have three holidays-May 24, June 26 and July 1-so close together, but as it's over 60 years since the last Coronation Day, there can be no complaint on that score.

Sir William has the right philosophy of life. A railway magnate and a financier, steeped in commercialism, still he believes in providing a retreat for his mind, to use a phrase of old Dr. Johnson's. Other men of affairs have had their hobbies, too. Gladstone was a The Laurier Government has given great student of Greek; Salisbury finds time for chemical experiments; A. J. He is completely on the shelf.

Perhaps Sir William Van Horne is a better railway man because of his love for art. To say nothing of the refining influences, a hobby of that kind brings a new set of faculties into play and promotes an all-round development of the intellectual powers.

Does the Burden of British Taxpayers Grow?

The British people are awaiting the delivery of the imperial budget speech, in order to learn just how large the additional burden in taxation, arising from the war in South Africa, is to be. Meanwhile, the ability of the taxpayers Commission will supplant the present to stand added imposts is a live question. There is no better statistical authority in the Empire than Sir R. Giffen, and his views are of great interest. He discussed the subject of taxation at a recent meeting of the Royal regulation. The revenue increased in much the same way, being a little behind in the latter period. The figures were 70 million pounds in each of the years 1861 and 1871, 82 million pounds in 1881, 89.5 million pounds in 1891, and 130.4 million pounds in 1901, and finally 142.5 million pounds estimated for the current year. There has been a striking increase in the last decadethat from 1891. The surface explanation is that the increase is due to the war in South Africa. Nearly 70 million pounds is credited to war expenditure in South Africa and in China in 1901, although only a small part of this improvements in it .- Toronto was required for the Chinese operations. But Sir R. Griffin holds that in a general retrospect it is unwise to lay too great stress on such explanations, and he asserts that prudent men must accept the warning now given, and not fix upon a much less figure than that which has lasted for nearly three

The diminutions amount to 71 million a gravel road and a macadam or pounds, and the additions to 62.6 million pounds, making a net reduction of 8.4 million pounds. Sir R. Giffin believes that the real reduction is even greater, but the fact is placed beyond question that the large revenue now raised is not due in any way to new taxation, as compared with 1861 and even 1871, but is exclusively an automatic growth, due to the increased productiveness of the former scale of tax-

Curiosity About Other Places Departs Under Neapolitan Fascinations.

A London lady, who has been touring in Europe, contributes the following interesting description of Naples and the picturesqueness of Neapolitan

We have been in Naples just one week, and I am so content with life in this beautiful city, that if I had my way, I am certain the trip would end here. Curiosity about other places has all departed, and I know even in Rome my heart will hunger for Naples. The charm of Neapolitan life reached me even before stepping on her shores, for as the steamer anchored in the bay and waited for the tender to come for the passengers, a number of tiny boats came close to our side, nearly all of them laden with flowers, their owners holding them up for our admiration, with many importunities to buy, which very few could resist, and I for one did not want to resist when for a few pennies such a great handful of sweetness could be obtained, but I found there was an abundant use for pennies, no matter how well one was supplied, for from one boat came the merry strains of mandolin, banjo and guitar, and in yet another, a young Italian girl, in the bright, warm colors of her country, was dancing with tambourine in hand, her sweet, fresh voice raised in one of the favorite Neapolitan songs; and from all the boats came the plaintive cry for macaroni, accompanied by the beseeching, coaxing look which these Italian beggars can so well assume, and which it is so hard to steel the heart against. Poverty there is in this most beautiful city in the world, great poverty and go where you will in Naples, it is everywhere; but it is picturesque, happy poverty, altogether unlike the squalid misery one sees on the streets of London. Men, women and children seem content to idly pass the day, and perhaps the nights also, on the streets, some of them curled up fast asleep on doorsteps and the pavement, oblivious alike to the merry clatter of their neighbors or the glance of the passer-

THE CABBIES OF NAPLES. We have driven all about Naples. Every morning at 9 our cabby comes for us, and we are his willing victims all day. When I say victims, you must know that it is almost impossible to walk here. For one thing, carriages are so cheap, only 25 cents for the first hour, and after that 20 cents, and for the moment we left our hotel we had our choice of a dozen or more carri-

They followed us around the corner, and for some little distance, only forsaking us for easier game, but one fellow, more persistent than the rest, kept close to us, stopping the carriage before us at every crossing, so that at last, partly from amusement, and partly because the wind was strong, and made walking more or less difficult, we gave in, and let him take us where he would. It is the quaint, narrow streets of ancient Naples that attract me most, the high buildings, of which every one has a flat roof, with a garden on it, and every window a balcony, and as we drive along I catch a glimpse from under an archway of a courtyard, still showing in its marble loors and stairway traces of a former glory, at one time the haunts of the nobility, now surrounded by tene-

COLONELS' DAY IN PARLIAMENT.

[Continued from page 1.] would be taken on as a recruit in the active militia until he had been tried with the rifle to see if there was a reasonable probability of his becoming a practical soldier." This would bring in a grand class of men and exclude the useless men who, he was sorry to say, were really a considerable percentage of the militia attending annual camps.

ANOTHER ARSENAL. The major-general proposed another arsenal. Undoubtedly the day is near should have at least one more arsenal, situated in a central part of Can But as to the present, he would say that in the course of a year the output of ammunition from the present arsenal at Quebec would be increased from two millions to six or seven million rounds a year, working on the 8-hour basis, and eighteen or twenty million cartridges could turned out by the arsenal working full time. What we really needed now, more than additional arsenals, were two or three additional magazines, so that as fast as this ammunition was turned out at Quebec it could be moved west.

MORE ARMS. As to arms, continued the minister, the government hoped in a short time to have in operation in Canada a factory capable of turning out from 12,-000 to 15,000 rifles yearly, working 8 hours per day, and more than double that number when working full time. There was some discussion about providing cadets with military equipment, and the minister intimated that in his bill of next year the matter would be arranged by making the ca-

Mr. Ingram called attention to the recommendation of the major-general concerning the canteens. O'Grady-Haly favors the selling of beer in the camp canteens, and holds that it would be much better than having the soldiers go to the nearest town and get drunk on whisky.

The minister said the general officer had simply expressed his own opinion, and he (the minister) did not agree with it. The present system was adopted before he became minister of militia and he didn't propose to change and if he were well he could get along was clothed with the responsibility of office he would hesitate about making a change. If a soldier needed beer for his health there was a way to get it, and if he were well hec ould get along without it. The ladles were taking a great interest in this canteen question and in the soldiers, and the minister did not think it wise to make them enemies of the militia force. All the militia estimates passed, and the house adjourned at 11:30. Chancellor Lewis, of Ottawa, who was taken suddenly ill at Kingston, is

THE "DROP-OFF" HEART

Doctors didn't give Mrs. James long to live-but Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart foiled them and cured her.

For fifteen years Mrs. John A. James, of Wiarton, Ont, was a great sufferer from Heart Disease. For days at a time she was confined to bed, and it seemed as though every breath might be her last. Her physicians said that she might "drop off" any minute. With woman's tenacity in suffering, and believing that "while there's life there's hope," she started using Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart. Three bottles cured her. This remedy relieves in thirty minutes. 75

Government Has No News From Cecil Rhodes' Remains Laid in Boer Leaders

And No Armistice Will Be Granted During Their Absence From Their Commands.

London, April 11 .- The war secretary, Mr. Brodrick, informed the House of Commons today that the government had received no communication from the Boer leaders regarding the terms of peace, and said that no armistice would be granted during the absence of the boer leaders from their com-

Mr. Brodrick was asked if Lord Kitchener had been authorized to offer any terms of peace besides unconditional surrender. He replied:

"I am not in a position to make any statement, nor am I able to add anything to my statement of yesterday

MUCH PARLEYING EXPECTED From government sources the Associated Press ascertains that the peace negotiations are not expected to come to a conclusion so quickly as this morning's premature reports indicated. The belief that there will be considerable parleying also exists in circles intimate with the Boer leaders on the continent, who maintain that no peace can be arrived at unless the British grant some form of amnesty to the Cape rebels.

Some of those who are in close touch with South Africa believe that ten days may elapse before a definite conclusion is reached. In the meanwhile the presence of such representative Boers at Klerksdorp and other factors, creates AN ALL-AROUND HOPEFUL FEEL-

ING. This was reflected on the stock exchange today in the advances of consols and Kaffirs. Up to 11:30 a.m. the government had received no official news bearing out the statements that peace had been arranged.

TAKING BASS THROUGH ICE.

Fishermen Who Angle in Bitter Cold Weather.

ish Caught in Good Size on the Upp Reaches of the Mississippi.

Men who live near the big streams of the west are having the last of the ice fishing before the spring break-up. On some of these streams, notably the upper Mississippi, winter fishing is practically continuous from the close of navigation until it begins again.

The waters of that river from the upper part of Illinois to far above St. Paul are stocked with several varieties of desirable fish, notably the black bass, green or Oswego bass, pickerel, croppies and muskallonge appear to stick to the lakes.

There is no better black bass water n the country than certain reaches of the upper Mississippi, and the fish are caught in numbers and of good size near the many wing dams which the government has built in that stream. In the winter when the river is frozen over solid the food supply of the fish is, of course, much restricted, and they are consequently hungry. They bite readily at almost any form of fresh meat, and the bass are rabid for salt pork. The fishing is almost wholly with hand lines and not many amateur fishermen indulge in it. It is followed mostly by the market fishermen and they make it pay, though the exposure to the north winds which blow down the two-mile-wide canon is terrific. They cannot build themselves huts to protect themselves, as they are preaking the law in this pursuit and depend for immunity upon moving from one side of the river to the other. A Wisconsin fisherman taken scale-handed will always swear that he has done his fishing on the Iowa side or Minnesota side, and vice versa. They are not often caught, however, as the low temperatures keep the wardens at home. Not many men will ride or drive ten miles when the thermometer shows 30 below zero on the chance of arresting some fellow with bass in

More fish are taken at night than in the daytime, because then they are more easily obtained. If a hole be cut in the ice and a small fire built near it, fish of all kinds will swim to it, attracted either by curiosity or an instinct that food awaits them.

Two men at an ice hole will sometimes take out 100 pounds of game fish between sunset and sunrise. Often discarding handline fishing as too slow. they will use gigs, as they are locally called, or two-pronged fish spears, Westmoreland avenue, was found dead striking and lifting bass after bass weighing from 2 to 4 pounds. At each stroke the fish dart far backward under the ice, but return in a minute or so. Of course bass or pickerel so taken show the marks of spears, but that does not seem to affect the market price for them. . If a man who loves fishing for the fun there is in it will go to an ice hole in daylight weaponed with a light rod, a reel, a single hook and a small piece of chicken meat or salt pork, he will have an experience worth remembering. The fish will strike savagely and are apt to be of good size. The hole will not be more than yard across, and there will not be much room for play. Fighting the fish to a standstill and bringing it in near nough for the dipnet will mean work and skill, more especially as the heavy gloves interfere with the fingers and the footing is insecure.

Immense Attendance of Soldiers, Civilians and Natives-Services in Old St. Paul's, London.

London, April 10.-An impressive memorial service for Cecil Rhodes was held in St. Paul's Cathedral this afternoon. King Edward was represented by Gen. Godfrey Clerk, his majesty's groom-in-waiting, and Sir Wynn-Carrington represented the Prince of Wales. Joseph Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, the Duke of Abercorn, chairman of the British Chartered South African Company; Earl Gray, director of the British Chartered South Africa Company; Lord Knuts-ford, a former secretary of state for the colonies; Lord Roberts, the Duke of Fife, Lord Tweedmouth, William St. John Brodrick, the secretary of state for war; Herbert K. Asquith, formerly home secretary; Lord James, at one time attorney-general; A. J. Balfour, the government leader in the House of Commons; Chas. T. Ritchie, the home secretary; Lord Halisbury, the lord high chancellor, and other members of the cabinet and of the nobility; Lady Sarah Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Stead, General Booth, of the Salvation Army: the vice-chancellor of Oxford and the dean of Oriel College, representing the university and the lord mayor, the sheriffs of London, the corporation of London, and all the colonial agents-general, besides United States Ambassador Choate and J. Pierpont Morgan, paid their last tribute to the dead.

IN HIS RESTING-PLACE. Buluwayo, Matabeleland, April 10 .-Today, amid an immense throng of soldiers, civilians and natives, the body of Cecil Rhodes was committed to its rock tomb in the Matoppo Hills. The coffin was shrouded in a Union Jack, and the wreath sent by Queen Alexandria was laid upon it as it was lowered into the grave. The funeral party started from Fuller's Hotel early this morning. The procession was five miles long, as it wound through the hills and gorges. Every sort of conveyance was made use of. were on foot, others were on horseback or on bicycles, while still others were in wagons and carriages.

When the procession was a mile from the grave everybody dismounted and concluded the journey on foot. Twelve oxen hauled the coffin to the almost inaccessible summit of the kopje, where the Chiefs Shombli, Faku and Umgula and 2,000 natives had assembled to witness the Christian burial rights, which they afterwards supplemented in their own fashion, by shade of the great dead chief. Thou-The interment was extremely impressive. The Dead March echoed through the hills and the natives stood like statues. Tears were in the eyes of many of the on-lookers. Bishop of Mashonaland, who conducted the burial service, said: consecrate this place forever. Here he

When the coffin was lowered into tomb chiselled in the solid rock, all those present sang "Old Hundredth" and "Now the Laborer's Task is O'er." The remainder of the funeral service was chanted, and the band played the "Dead March in Saul." The tomb was covered with wreaths. At the close of the ceremony, those present slowly inspected the spot where Mr. Rhodes is buried, and threw flowers upon his grave. Dr. James, Col. Francis Rhodes and all of the other mourners left Buluwayo tonight on a special train.

ELECTRIC CURRENTS FOR PAIN DESTRUCTION

Newly-Discovered Method By Which Teeth May Be Treated.

All who have been compelled to call in a dentist know more or less from ex-perience how painful it is either to suffer the extraction of a tooth or to have the gums lanced. To spare their clients this suffering, dentists have for many years past resorted to painless dentistry. To attain this end they either send their patients to sleep by chloroform, ether, protoxide of azote, or else use applications of the control of the contr tions of cocaine, which act only on the

But as these means are at time dangerous to life, and nearly always cause very trying sensations, they are generally re-served for serious cases. For this reason persons who have decayed teeth prefer to persons who have decayed teeth prefer to keep them rather than endure the pain of extraction or run the risks involved in treatment by anaesthetics.

To remedy this state of things, Dr. Regneir, head of the laboratory of electro-therapy of La Charite Hospital, and Dr. Henry Didsbury dentist to the hospital control of the control of th tro-therapy of La Charite Hospital, and Dr. Henry Didsbury, dentist to the hospitals, have undertaken, at the Pereire Foundation, researches, the results of which they have just communicated to the Academy of Sciences. They have discovered a new method of treatment, absolutely harmless, and applicable either absolutely harmless, and applicable either to lancing or extraction, by which, without any medicines, a tooth may be renout any medicines, a tooth may be rendered insensible to pain.

This method consists in the application of electricity to produce insensibility; more precisely speaking, they have employed electric currents of great frequency, furnished by the apparatus of Professor Arsonval.

The most remarkable feature about this new method is that, although the current new method is that, although the current which passes through the mouth of the patient is very powerful, it produces no sensation: the patient experiences neisensation; the patient experiences her shock, trepidation nor any unpleasant feeling whatever. After the passage of the current there remains no hurtful impression, nor even an uneasy feeling. Nevertheless, the insensibility is absolutely complete.

Besides the advantages above enumerated the method has another which is ated, the method has another, which is that those who submit to it need no special preparation. There is no necessity for fasting previously or for auscul-tation.—New York Herald.

A. Screaton & Co. C. T. CONDON'S FIRST

AND LAST ASCENSION. Balloon Accident Made a Wreck of a Steady-

Nerved Athlete.

When Charles T. Condon played the role of aeronaut for a wager, three years ago, his experience cost him his reason. Today Condon is a tramp-one of the variety known as "stew-bums." He came into Denver the other morning on a freight train; left the same afternoon or evening on a brake beam, | She is 26 inches high and weighs 27 to where, no one knows. Condon was pounds. Her insurance, therefore, is at once highly respected and was one of the leading young men of Oakland, Cal., where he was in the commission business. He was an athlete, a club member, and a general good fellow. One Sunday, in a spirit of banter, he volunteered to make a balloon ascension in the stead of a man disabled, who was to have afforded entertainment for crowds at a public resort. Some of his comrades took him up, offering to wager that he would not dare go up on a trapeze, swinging beneath the great hot-air bag. Condon placed his money, announced to the park manager that he was an aeronaut of experience and was willing to satisfy the cravings of crowd by making the ascent. He small size. quickly changed Sunday clothes for a suit of tights and was greeted with plaudits as he appeared ready to undertake a perilous feat he had not dreamed of an hour before.

When his friends saw that Condon was in earnest, they begged him to and dances with great vivacity. She the sacrifice of fifteen oxen to the desist, but this the spirit of bravado says that she has every intention of would not allow. Before the park mansands of white people congregated around the wind-swept hill. The grave was encircled by six boulders.

A number of boys and men had held the balloon captive by the guy ropes in readiness for its flight. All but one Clawed Maid, Escaped From Cage and "I let go as the balloon was released. On one of the ropes, either holding on or thought, here he lived and died for the being caught in a tangle, was a lad utterly powerless to help himself and afraid to drop. Up went the balloon, the people shouting from below, beckened fran-tically to Condon to bring the big bag household pets—like the to earth, fearful for the life of the dangling lad. All unconscious of the boy's presence, Condon continued evolutions on the trapeze, believing the tumult below to be applause for his The balloon had ascended over a thousand feet befor Condon caught a glimpse of the lad, clinging for life to the frail rope and utterly without support other than his own strength. Then realizing that the cutting loose of the parachute would mean death to the lad, he schemed to get him on the trapeze beside him. The boy was swinging from a rope on the other side of the balloon as the wind swayed it and Condon found it impossible to reach him. The only hope was to make the lad hold on until the hot air bag became sufficiently cooled to descend. Condon cried to the lad; begged him to hold tight;; cursed, pleaded, threatened, knowing it useless. At an elevation of nearly 2,000 feet the youngster's strength gave way and he dropped. The fall was witnessed by the thousands in the park. The little body fell on the doorstep of a house less than a mile from the park. On the doorstep was an invalid up unconscious as a result of his must be sold positively without re-

When he recovered, weeks later, he was not right mentally. His business went to ruin, and he took to drink. He disappeared within a year and friends failed to find him. It was learned he tried to enlist for the Cuban war, but he was refused. What he has done in the meantime, or how he has lived is best explained by his appearance as he

Stoop-shouldered, unkempt, with beard covering his face, he shambled to the Union Hotel. The porter put him out, and he sought a resting place in a nearby saloon, where he promptly went to sleep in a chair.

"Where have I been?" he queried with the unmistakeable leer of a mind bum. I went up in a balloon once and it was my finish. I'd go up again if there were no kids hanging to it, and I could drop out. "Tell you about it? No, that's dead; so's the kid. Awful thing it was. My first time up, and my last till I go up myself." Then Condon, the wreck of the former man grew silent.

"Do your friends in Oakland know you are?" was asked. "Friends? I haven't any since I

She is literally worth her weight in gold. She was insured in Boston. It is strange but true that the most searching examinations that three of Boston's leading examining physicians could give Chiquita failed to find even the slightest imperfection in her physical condition. Her heart beat was strong and regular and registered 72, which is normal. Her respiration was also normal, and all the other organs were in perfect condition. Her measured 19 inches and her waist 16 inches She is physically a perfect wo man, her only peculiarity being her Chiquita, though only a miniature of has never been sick, and has never required medical treatment. She is in unusually spirits this year, and sings living to be 80 or even more.

MELBA'S WILD CATS RAISED CAIN IN HOTEL

Came. Mme. Melba recently tried to emulate Mme. Bernhardt in having savage Sarah's" panther. So she bought at Marseilles from a sailor a pair of caged wildcats. The experiment has been abandoned and the only result was a large bill presented by the Rit:

Hotel management for damage done by the escaped carnivora. The wildcats had been smuggled into her apartment a week ago and been fed by Melba's chambermaidmuch to the girl's distress. Yesterday while the cage door was ajar to intro duce food one of the beasts clawed terribly the hand of the servant, who fled shricking, leaving the wildcats in possession of the rooms. The brutes were on the rampage for two hours, climbing curtains, upsetting bottles and crockery and tearing valuable tapestries to shreds. Finally some attendants at the Zoological Gardens were telephoned for. They captured one wildcat in a net and killed the other .- New York Her-

A Physicians Testimony For Labatt's Stout.

ALEXANDRIA, DEC., 20th. 1901. Speaking from personal experience I can state that your Stout is excellent in building up the system-I was very much run down and was advised to use Labatt's Porter-this I have done for some time and I largely attribute to its effects my steady improvement in strength and weight. I deem it but justice to you, and it certainly is a pleasure to me, to add my testimony to its sterling qualities, and I gladly recommend your Stout as an excellent tonic and food in cases where such is required. The reactionary movement in general market is based on apprehension of a possible corner in L. & N., and recollections of what happened last May induced many traders to get out of their stocks and take the short side. The crop report meets expectation. The market will continue to be dominated by the operations in Louisville and Southern Railway, and we advise taking profits in both these stocks. Keep out of Copper, but buy Steel preferred.

Market opened strong, but profit-taking appeared in some of the issues, which caused a slight reaction. St. Paul, Land N., S. R. common, U. P., Sugar and Copper were the principal active stocks. We advise purchase of all the standard stocks on reactions, and we are very bullish on the general market.

CHAPTER XyII.

Laura Pomeroy had never looked more beautiful in her life than when she went down to trick Max Remington into making a proposal of marriage to her.

She had a very dainty white lace dress, which she had worn only once, in a bridal scene, at some amateur theatricals before coming to America, and, though she did not like white as well as bright colors, she decided to waive her preference and wear it, because she felt sure that Max knew that Agnes' costume was to be white, and then she hoped to be better able to carry out the deception she intended to practice upon him.

The robe was made with the silken corsage-lining cut very low and sleeveless, while the lace came up close about her throat and fell loose to her wrists, and thus the beautiful pattern of the material was plainly outlined upon her perfect neck and arms.

The skirt was full and flowing, over an underdress of silk, its only garniture being a broad sash of heavy watered ribher midnight hair was rolled back from her broad, low forehead, a la Pompadour, and knotted at the back of her well-shaped head. She wore a pair of solitaire diamonds in her ears, and one blazing stone at her throat—they were not genuine but so well counterfeited. not genuine, but so well counterfeited that only an expert could detect the sham, and the effect was therefore just

-while Max's lovely pink roses lay quivering on her breast. She was indeed brilliantly, dazzling She was indeed brilliantly, dazzling beautiful. How fair a creature from her Master's hand if her soul were only the counterpart of her person!

She sped down the wide staircase, meeting no one on her way, glided through the long drawing-room and out of the low French window, at its farther end, upon the balcony.

She drew the draperies together as she passed out, so that she might be con-

She had thrown a light zephyr hood over her head, more to conceal her dark hair than for protection against the keen October air, she had left nothing undone to carse out the deception, having even sprinkled herself with a few drops of heliotrope—the perfume which Agnes invariably used.

With bated breath and gleaming eyes she sat there, listening for the first fall of the footsteps of the man whom she loved with all the strength of her impassioned nature.

The elegant marble clock on the drawing-room mantel was just on the stroke of eight when Max Remington, in full evening dress, and looking just what he was—a handsome, noble gentleman was—a handsome, noble gentleman—stepped lightly over the threshold, passed swiftly down the apartment, swept aside the draperies that hung over the window leading out upon the balcony, and, with a heart-throb of joy, saw a still, white figure sitting there, leaning against the low railing. quick, eager movement, Max bent down and gathered that white-robed form within his arms, drawing the halfled head upon his breast and the perfumed hair with his tremulous lips.

"My own darling; you are mine! for, by the act of coming here, you have given yourself to me!" he breathed, with a tenderness that thrilled Laura through and through, even though she knew that those soft words were not intended for her, and she yielded herself unresistingly to the ecstasy of the moment, resting ner, and she yielded herself unresistingly to the ecstasy of the moment, restling upon his bosom, her heart beating in unison with his, her pulses leaping to the rhythm of his voice.

Max did not dream what a terrible mistake he was making nor of what a crafty plot he was the victim.

The two girls were about the same size he was making, nor of what a possible.

The was the victim two girls were about the same size that the same size that the better, the better, the change for the better the change for the better. and stature: he knew that Agnes intended to wear white that evening, and Laura turned. "I do not believe she can be quite ready to come down, for I saw her about an hour ago, and she had just awakened from a nap."

"I am sorry I did not go to her and ask if I could help her about dressing," said Mrs. Remington, regretfully.

"She can call upon Annie if she needs assistance." Laura suggested; "or I will run up myself," she added, considerately.

Max smiled quietly. He imagined that he could explain Agnes' tardiness; she was trying to calm her throbbing pulses and school herself to composure, before coming down to meet him in the presence of others. I thought I heard him come down."
"I must go, darling; my mother wants me," he said softly in Laura's ear, as he gently released her, but in so doing the roses on her breast became unfastened and dropped over the balcony railing to the ground.
"Oh, my flowers!" Laura murmured, peering down into the darkness after The latter club won by a score of 35 points to 21. Both teams, however, not over by any means. are to be complimented on the sportsmanlike manner in which they conducted the game.

As is usual in basketball games, a fierce rush started the game, the Blues "Oh, my flowers!" Laura murmured, peering down into the darkness after them, and drawing her soft hood more closely about her face, for the east was beginning to brighten with the rising moon, and she was not ready yet to have Max discover his mistake.

"Have you lost them, dear?" he asked. "Never mind; I can easily get them for you. But first give me the seal to our betrothal; then I must go."

He took her face tenderly between his two hands, and, bending, pressed his lips to hers in a fond and reverent kiss.

Then he vaulted lightly over the low railing of the balcony to search for her scoring one goal in about half a minute. Then both teams settled down into a hard, earnest battle, each scoring with much regularity, and at the close of the first half the count stood 14 to 8 in favor of the Blues. In the second half the Bible Class team brac-ed up, and until ten minutes before the finish gave the Blues a very warm run. When the first minute of the ten arrived, however, the Blues pulled up again and tallied strongly, winning the game. The Blues did very creditable com-bination work. The other team made 9 points from fouls made by the Blues. Those who conducted the game were: Referee, F. H. Holman; time-keepers, Friend and C. McCallum; scorer, R. Friend and W. H. Wilson.

A great many women are subject to spells of dizziness, spots before the eyes, and a ringing noise in the head. These symptoms are commonly associated with liver "trouble" as the result of a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and the allied organs of digestion and nutrition. It cures through the stomach diseases seemingly remote from that organ, but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and digestive and nutritive system. Hence, cures of heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, and other organs are constantly effected by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Dis-

A ST. MARYS OPINION.

St. Marys Argus: For some time past the G. T. R. has steadily pursued the policy of laying off the older hands along the line, so as to get younger men who can do more efficient service. As an outcome of this Mr. H. Babensee was laid off on Saturday night. He has been section boss on the London branch for 30 years, and has never been found fault with. No reasons were assigned for this step, unless probably as indicated above. Mr. Babensee has been a good servant to the railway, and is still capable of work. There is talk of asking the G. T. R. to retain him in some capacity.

Letter From Late Trooper Huston Describes Performance Crossing the Equator.

Mr. R. T. Dickie, of 395 Oxford street, has received a letter from Trooper George Huston, who was killed in the Hart's River battle. It was dated Newcastle, Natal, March 3, and for at least two years. Mrs. Sage's padescribes the voyage from Halifax to per gave a concise history of their Cape Town as being very pleasant women's work from 1813, when first Cape Town as being very pleasant, excepting the first four days out, when the weather was exceedingly rough and the boys experienced some trouble in finding an appetite. He describes the visit paid the vessel by King Neptune as a very funny affair. The old fellow came on deck astride a mule just as the vessel crossed the equator, and made a speech to which the major of the rifles responded in suitable terms: Then every man on board-officers and allwho had not crossed the line before, were escorted by policemen to the front, where lather was applied to his face with a whitewash brush, and he was shaved with a razor about a foot

Then he was thrown into a big tank of salt water. The transport with the Rifles on board anchored at Cape Town on Feb. 13, and proceeded from there to Dunbar, where the sick were taken on shore. One of the latter was a trooper who fell on the deck and broke his leg. Only eight horses were lost on the trip. Since arriving at Newcastle, Canadians had been drilling steadily, and could scarcely get any leisure time. About 150 of the men were sent one day a distance of 20 miles to hold the trenches at Botha's Pass, but the Boers got through about 30 miles away, and no fighting took place. On another morning the Rifles were ordered to leave camp about 4 o'clock, to be at another point at 6

China and India, of their schools, colleges, hospitals, and the great extension their twentieth century fund allowed them to make. More of their work will be heard of at the convention which is to be held here about the middle of April.

Mrs. McNee told of the work of the Baptists in India, Bolivia, Quebec, New Ontario, and the Indian reserves. Mrs. Weld's Bible reading was of Mary's and Martha's service of listening and serving.

Tea and sociability occupied the time between the medings. At 8 o'clock Mrs. Johnson again took the chair. After singing, Mr. Baker led in prayer, and Mrs. Baker, of Harding Hall, spoke of the "Daysman Between Us and God."

Rev. W. Hartley, of St. Thomas, gave an address on "Woman's Place in Christianity and Her Debt to It." Where Christ reigned woman was uplifted to be the equal of man; and her successful work for the down-trodden women of heathen countries was the discharge of her indebtedness. The singing, which was led by the Talbot Street Church choir, was an interesting feature of the evening meeting. Mrs. Arthur Brown's pleasing solos, both afternoon and evening, were fully appreciated. In memory of their royal mistress 600 servants of the late Queen Victoria's household have endowed a bed in they will undoubtedly experience a prosperous summer and be steadily employed. The prudent man who contemplates erecting a modern house nowadays, engages the services of a competent architect, who is intrusted with every detail, such as the preparation of plans and supervision over the class of material used by the successful tenderer. But many citizens of moderate means place themselves in the hands of a builder, who submits an estimate on plans of his own preparation, and, should the figures be satisfactory to the owner, work is be satisfactory to the owner, work is proceeded with independent of an architect. Others purchase stock designs from people who make a specialty of that particular line of business, and let a builder go ahead, feeling content to take chances on the work being done correctly rather than stand the slight expense rather than stand the slight expense hiring a local architect. BUILDING IN PROSPECT.

The possible erection of the armory on Dundas street this summer is looked for-ward to by local contractors and London mechanics with a great deal of pleasure, for it will be profitable to the latter, at least, while it is expected that the for-mer will hand in to the department of public works figures low enough to in-sure the contracts being left in their hands, besides enabling them to show a cash balance when the work is com-pleted. "From now on," he said, "the streets will be quite lively in the early morning, apart from the traffic created by those going to work. The practice is constantly growing. Even now there the babies get their fresh air. Weak are any number of people in Londonboth men and women-taking systematic exercise before breakfast. down. The doctor was asked how he could tell those who walk for the good of their health. "Quite easily. They take big, determined strides and deep breaths, and nold their shoulders back. Sometimes, when in the outskirts, where no one can see them, they run awhile and then slow up and rest before beginning again. They generally travel in pairs, for you perhaps know how lonely it feels to be prowling around by yourself. Still, many of them exercise alone. During the day they delight to tell their friends how far they traveled that morning, and the fat man lets you know, with a smile on his face, how nany pounds he has reduced his weight since he started on the exercise tack.

To one not enamored of the idea, the enthusiast becomes a positive nuisance." BENEFITS FAT AND THIN.

The reporter hazarded the opinion that the fresh air would be of benefit o stout people and thin ones alike. "Yes, especially those applying themselves to books all day, and very often far into the night. Such work takes the vim out of anyone. Numbers of those attending the Normal School, especially the women, and many others who work all day in close rooms, can be seen these fine mornings hustling along as if their lives depended upon it. They feel good and very sensibly want to continue doing so. PARK IS POPULAR. "Victoria Park is a beautiful place, and very popular with all classes. Any their way to work. Some people take their Bibles, Prayer Books or a love story, and sit and read for an hour before lots of people have left their beds, and later on you will see even a weary tramp with a good eye for a pleasant spot, resting on one of the benches, and forgetting there was ever such a thing as work. THE great lung healer is found in that excellent medicine sold as Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It soothes and diminishes the sensibility of the membrane of the throat and air passages, and is a sovereign remedy for all coughs, colds, hoarseness, pain or soreness in the chest, bronchitis, etc. It has cured many when supposed to be far advanced in consumption.
