BOERS ACTIVE.

British Lose 750 Men in a Sharp Engagement at Roodeval.

ALL COMMUNICATION IS CUT OFF

From Roberts and Troops Are Hurried Forward.

BOERS CLAIM A VICTORY.

Kruger Re-establishes the Boer Capital in a City of Tents—His Body Guard Captured.

London, June 12, via Skagway, June 18.—All is dark as regards the movements of the troops in South Africa. Since the 6th inst. all communication with Roberts' forces located north of Kroonstadt, has been cut off. The news came like a thunder clap, particularly since it has been learned that the closing of communication was attended with heavy losses.

A cable from Cape Town dated the 10th, tells of heavy fighting near Roodeval in which the Derbyshires lost a total of 700 men, 500 of whom were taken prisoners.

Kelly Kenny is hurrying all available troops northward, which indicates danger of another Boer raid.

Fifty thousand troops are within 50 miles of the marauding Boers north of Kroonstadt and are expected to make short work of them.

Boers Claim Victory.

London, June 12, via Skagway, June 18.—A Boer telegram claims a British defeat at Donkerfort, on the southern extremity of the Free State border. The Boers still cling to Laing's Neck. Buller, by the execution of a flank movement, has concentrated his forces on the Keip river. Buller wired on the 11th that he had anticipated a movement of the enemy, who to the number of 3000 had prepared to occupy an important defile.

New Boer Capital.

London, June 12, via Skagway, June 18.—The village of Machadorp has been officially declared to be the Transvaal capital. It is little more than a swollen city of tents.

Kruger's Body Guard Taken.

London, June 12, via Skagway, June 18.—Kruger's body guard of 1000 men has surrendered. The surrender occurred in the Ficksburg district.

Ashantee Expedition.

London, June 11, via Skagway, June 18.—The Ashantee relief expedition finds the rebel forces strongly fortified. The fight at Kebwai continued for a long time. The enemy was finally dislodged, but the British were compelled to retreat to Kwisa after a loss of 100 men.

Chinese Emperor a Prisoner.

London, June 12, via Skagway, June 18.—The Chinese emperor sought the aid of the powers to release him from the imperial palace, where he is virtually a prisoner of the empress dowager. He suggests a joint protectorate of the powers. Foreign troops have seized the railroads leading to Peking and are endeavoring to open communication with the capitol. Russia is purchasing large quantities of supplies and everything points to an early outbreak of hostilities.

Gold Commissioner's Court.

Mukey vs. Phillips was the title of a case set for hearing in the gold commissioner's court this morning, but as Mr. Phillips was not represented the case was continued till the 20th inst. The case involves the relocation of claim No. 115 below on Sulphur.

Judge Dugas Declares Senkler Innocent of All Charges.

WOODWORTH SEVERELY REBUKED.

No Further Charges to Be Heard by the Commission.

ONLY TWO WITNESSES HEARD.

The Long Drawn Out Investigation of the Senkler Case Is at Last Brought to a Close.

The investigation of the charges preferred against Gold Commissioner Senkler by D. S. McTavish is finished, at least so far as the commission appointed for the purpose is concerned. After a brief, though not uneventful session last evening, Judge Dugas declared the case closed.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the judge took his seat and the first of the two witnesses examined was called.

Dr. Simpson was sworn and asked to explain what his transactions or connection had been with the claim known as the "Potter claim," in which "Mr. Mahon pretends to have been interested."

The witness stated that it was during the month of January, to the best of his recollection, 1899, that he had been called by U. S. Consul McCook to treat his hands which had been frozen. While there in his professional capacity he had met Mr. Mahon, who called to ask Mr. McCook to intercede with Commissioner Fawcett in his behalf regarding the reopening of his (Mahon) case. Mr. McCook's hands being in such a bad condition, the consul had requested witness to see Commissioner Fawcett regarding the matter, which request he had complied with. As a result he had been told that the case had been disposed of; but, as witness was leaving Mr. Fawcett had said he might say to Mr. Senkler, who was then commissioner, that if he (Senkler) chose to reopen the case, it would not be regarded as a discourtesy by Mr. Fawcett. Later witness had been given a letter and asked to hand it to Mr. Senkler, which he did, and Mr. Senkler had told him that he would write Mahon.

Dr. Simpson said that the suggestion that Mahon give Consul McCook an interest in the property in question as remuneration for his services had been imparted to him, but that he had no recollection of having made any such suggestion. He (Dr. Simpson) had been given no interest in the property; had never asked; had done what he had in the case solely for Consul McCook.

Witness further stated that he had afterwards been asked by Mahon, who came to him crying, to once more ask Commissioner Senkler to again reopen the case. He had done so and Mr. Senkler had refused, saying the case had been finally disposed of.

In reply to a question as to whom he had acquired his interest in the claim from, witness stated that he had come into possession of his interest in the property through Mr. Hurdman, who had given him a letter to Mr. Burritt from whom he had received papers of title. He had redeemed a one-fourth interest to Hurdman.

The next witness called was Chas. Bifquin. The witness took the stand and was sworn, but before he could be questioned Mr. Wade asked for the sheriff's return of Mr. McTavish. Sheriff Eilbeck stated that Mr. McTavish could not be found and it was believed he had left the country.

Witness Bifquin then testified as to the manner in which he had staked, and after many delays and some expense had acquired title to a fraction laying between 16 and 17 Hunker. Nothing of any importance was brought to light by his evidence saving his denial that he had given any remuneration to either the gold commissioner or any one in his office.

When this witness had been dismissed, Judge Dugas said that he saw no reason for keeping the commission open longer. Mr. McTavish was gone, other witnesses, Smith and Laport could not be found.

Attorney Woodworth felt himself in a somewhat embarrassing position, owing to the non-appearance of his client and frankly admitted that there was no use in continuing the investigation further, as he said he had nothing under his hand which would in any way tend to throw discredit upon Mr. Senkler. Judge Dugas then proceeded to read Mr. McTavish, who, he said, had been guilty of agitating the whole country without any excuse whatever. That he had testified, under his signature, to things utterly false, that he had said that these charges against Mr. Senkler were, to his knowledge true, and that they had been proven untrue. Something Mr. Woodworth said in reply about Mr. McTavish having been mistaken, seemed to rile the judge who forthwith began pouring the vials of his mighty wrath upon the head of the attorney, whom he accused of making insinuations against others and thus creating unwarranted feeling.

"Why don't you make your charges to Ottawa in writing like a man?" demanded the judge.

"Oh, I don't need to be told to make my charges like a man," said the attorney, springing to his feet, "I have made no charges against anyone else, but when I do"—and the unfinished sentence was more eloquent than if it had been spoken.

Mr. Woodworth said that he felt it no more than justice to Mr. McTavish to say that it was possible that he had not left the country. "There is a person here who says he saw Mr. McTavish last evening," he said, then paused and looked towards Joe Clark. The witness was not called for.

Mr. Woodworth then asked if further charges were permissible, and was told that the commission was closed.

Will Bide Awee.

Mrs. Prather, a lady who is listed as a witness in the Soggs case which is to come up for hearing before the territorial court tomorrow, was quite indignant at not being permitted to start for Nome on the steamer Hannah last night, especially as she had purchased a ticket and her baggage was all checked and aboard. Her baggage was also found and taken off; but as it happened only half an hour previous to the time of the Hannah's departure, it is not known whether or not the lady was able to dispose of her ticket.

For a Volunteer Company.

The large number of gentlemen in Dawson who have been for some weeks past active in the work of organizing a volunteer militia company are about to reap the reward of their labor, as a recent telegram from the commissioner of the department of militia testifies. The telegram was received by Commissioner Ogilvie, whose secretary, Dr. J. N. E. Brown, has kindly supplied the Nugget with a copy reading: "Volunteer company will be organized if you have qualified officers."

No time will be lost in perfecting the organization of what will prove as fine a volunteer company as can be found anywhere on the soil of Britain.

Toronto Globe Scores the Would-Be Lt.-Gov.—Thinks the Latter Has Forfeited His Seat.

Skagway, June 18.—Robert Hall, assistant manager of the Klondike Corporation, Ltd., dropped dead at Bennett on Sunday. His death, resulted from heart disease to which he was subject.

Want to Incorporate.

Skagway, June 18.—Both Juneau and Skagway have applied for incorporation. Both cities are taking hurried legal steps in order to incorporate before July 1, and thus secure 50 per cent of the Federal taxes paid by each for school and other municipal purposes.

Guilty of Murder.

Skagway, June 18.—Jim Hansen, the Indian who confessed to assisting in the murder of Bert Horton and his wife at Haines Mission, was convicted today of murder in the first degree. Hansen at first pleaded guilty, but afterwards withdrew the plea and substituted a plea of not guilty. The jury considered the case for an hour and brought a verdict of guilty in the first degree.

Rapping Martin.

Ottawa, June 12, via Skagway, June 18.—The Toronto Globe deals editorially with the defeat of Joe Martin in a caustic manner. It says that the Martin government is now defeated and it will be found that the lieutenant governor made a very serious mistake in appointing him at the head of the ministry. He dismissed a ministry not charged with dishonesty or flagrant wrong doing of any kind. The dismissal was condemned by the legislature. He chose as his first minister a man who by almost unanimous vote of the legislature did not possess the confidence of that body. It is therefore obvious that he assumed grave personal responsibilities and assumed large risks

TUESDAY, JUNE 19, 1900.

WHAT JUST LAWS WOULD DO.

Gold dust approaching in value the sum of $2,000,000 was shipped out on the steamer Hannah yesterday. This would serve to indicate that after all there was a small amount of pay found in the Klondike last winter. As a matter of fact, the placer gold producing regions of the world which are richer or more extensive than those of the Klondike are extremely scarce. It is expensive ground to work, however, and it is that fact which the government lost sight of when the royalty and other equally obnoxious regulations were imposed on the country. With liberal and just laws the Yukon territory would soon become one of Canada's most flourishing districts.

There are hundreds of square miles of territory which today would be ringing with the prospector's pick if the laws gave any encouragement for the prospector to get out and ascertain the character of our undeveloped country.

There would be new discoveries made and new districts constantly opened up which would mean constant increase in population and a continually growing market for Canadian manufactured goods. The Yukon territory is easily capable of supporting four times its present population, and all that is required to guarantee a comfortable livelihood to that many people is a set of laws adapted to the requirements of the country and based upon the rules of common sense and equity.

TOO LATE.

The movement of the fanatical Boxers in China against the Christian missionaries is assuming rather alarming proportions. In several instances missionaries and their families have been killed or forced to seek safety in flight, and no one is able to say where the next movement against them will break out. It appears that the boldness of the Boxers is largely due to the tacit support which they have received from the royal family. The hatred of the Chinese for foreigners is a matter of tradition. It required years of clever diplomatic work, not unaccompanied in the end by implied threats, before China opened her doors for the admission of the first representatives of western civilization. The influence of foreigners has grown to such an extent that probably a majority of the Chinese, including the reigning family, would heartily welcome the day when China would again close her doors to the admission of outsiders. It is too late for that, however. China has allowed the Christian nations to enter and she must guarantee her visitors safety against the depredations of villainous secret societies or take the consequences, which will be sure and condign.

There seems no doubt left that a general election will take place in Canada at no great period in the future. Recent copies of Liberal party papers refer to the coming election as though it were an assured fact, and the government papers certainly ought to know whereof they speak in such a matter. In all probability an election for members of the Yukon Council will occur simultaneously with the general election, and there is a possibility that the Yukon territory may be called upon to select a representative to go down to Ottawa next spring. Appearances indicate that there will be no dearth of men who will be willing to sacrifice themselves for the sake of the public weal to the extent of accepting an election if it is tendered them. It will soon be time for the grooming of steeds.

It has always been held in these columns that both political parties of Alaska would act first as Alaskans, and secondly in the interest of the great political party, to which they pay their allegiance. The republicans, in the platform adopted at Juneau, went on record as favoring a territorial form of government, and against the continuation in office of the present governor, his conduct as Alaska's representative being roundly denounced. The democrats were Alaskans in their anti-Brady sentiments, but did not think it political etiquette to denounce an official merely of the party to which they did not belong. In all other respects the platform of the democrats was on a plane, or even superior, to that of the republicans, in the desires expressed for the highest interests of this district.—Alaskan.

The defeat of "Joe" Martin in British Columbia removes from the scene of political action in that province an undesirable and disturbing factor who has probably given more trouble to the people of British Columbia than all their other politicians combined. Martin was never satisfied unless he was the center of some agitation, and in securing prominence for himself managed always to keep his friends and adherents in hot water. His retirement at this time is well deserved and will afford British Columbia an opportunity to enjoy a period of political peace and quiet to which the province has been a stranger since the entrance of Martin into the political arena.

Heavy Travel to Skagway.

One hundred and sixty more people poured into Skagway yesterday from the south. They came on the Dirigo arriving at 2 a. m., the Orizaba which got in at 6 a. m. and the Princess Louise which made port in the forenoon. Nearly all the passengers are bound for the interior.

All three vessels started from the south with all the freight and passengers they could accommodate. The Dirigo refused 40 passengers from Vancouver because of lack of accommodations.

The Dirigo brought 60 passengers and 100 tons of freight for Skagway. Her freight included a fine steam launch to be used as a tug and dispatch boat for the Lewis River Dredging company, which is putting in a fine gold dredging plant on Lewis river. The launch will be taken to Bennett by rail. The Dirigo sailed from Seattle May 24, and left Skagway for the Sound at 6 o'clock last evening.

The Orizaba had only 18 passengers and 50 tons of freight for this port. She sailed from Seattle May 26, and left Skagway for the Sound at 4 p. m. yesterday.

The Princess Louise started from Vancouver with 86 passengers, 40 of whom got off at Wrangell to go to an interior mining point. The ship also landed a lot of freight, horses and cattle.

The Orizaba came north under the command of Capt. Thomas, a veteran skipper of the Pacific Coast Company, to which the ship belongs. Capt. Thomas will have the captaincy of the Cottage City the remainder of the season. Capt. Wallace, master of the Cottage City for a long time and commander of the company's Alaskan fleet, will ascend to the charge of the elegant excursion steamship Queen, which will be here the 15th of this month on her first trip of the season with tourists. The Cottage City, which was in port this week, will lie up on the Sound several days this trip for repairs and overhauling, previous to embarking in the tourist business for the season. The Topeka and the City of Seattle will also engage in the tourist passenger business this year.

Mr. Harriman, first officer on the Cottage City, came north on the Orizaba yesterday as pilot.—Alaskan.

The Printer Paid Back.

It is said that the late R. D. Blackmore, the novelist, was very impatient toward printers' errors. When some thing more than usually glaring was perpetrated, he used to pencil invective on the margins of his proofs. The foreman printer in one house got rather tired of reading various epithets directed at the want of intelligence among printers. Accordingly he instructed the compositors who corrected the matter to insert Blackmore's strong language as author's corrections. This was done, and the final revise was forwarded to the author. Blackmore, on receiving the proofs, saw with horror what had been done. At 8 o'clock next morning he was on the doorsteps of the printing office, waiting for the place to open. The foreman printer scratched his head, and pointed to a stack of books ready for the binder. "They must all be destroyed," said Blackmore. The printer intimated that it would be an expensive business; Blackmore paid. It was a long time before he learned that before the printing had begun the type had been corrected in accordance with his original idea, and that the spoil was afterwards shared among the men.

Skagway's Bid for Travel.

The people of Skagway are always anxious that persons traveling to and from Dawson and other points in the interior go by that place, as considerable of Skagway's business is largely made up of transient trade. In order to head off those who might otherwise be inclined to go out by St. Michael, a Skagway saloonkeeper has been persuaded to reduce the price of whisky to 12½ cents. A late issue of the Alaskan says:

"One of the popular saloons yesterday put down the price of whisky to 12½ cents a drink, and there were threats of a big cut rate war on whiskies in Skagway. Saloonkeepers were busily and excitedly discussing the threatened trouble when it was learned there was no occasion for fear of a permanent cut, and that Mr. Highley, who made the cut, did so that he might be able to dispose of his stock by July 1, as he is going out of business. The price of beer remained unchanged.

"Some of the saloon proprietors who had fears of the threatened cut began to retaliate, and were the fight precipitated whisky would probably have been as free as water in Skagway within a short time.

Yukon Council.

The following is the order of business adopted by the Yukon council and following the orders of the day at the next regular meeting, which will be held in the territorial court room Thursday night at 8 o'clock, will be taken up the business designated by the first four letters of the alphabet:

1. Approving minutes of previous meeting.
2. Presenting petitions.
3. Reading and receiving petitions.
4. Presenting reports of standing and select committees.
5. Questions by members.
6. Motions including motions for private bills.
7. Introduction of public bills.
8. Orders of the day.
 - (a) Consideration in committee of the whole of ordinance incorporating the Dawson Electric Light & Power Company.
 - (b) Consideration in committee of the whole of ordinance respecting second-hand dealers.
 - (c) Consideration in committee of the whole of ordinance respecting masters and servants.
 - (d) Second reading of ordinance respecting taxation (Dawson).

Free Advertisements.

The Ottawa Citizen has the courage to print a free puff for a typewriting institute, and to follow it with some pointed remarks as follows: "The foregoing was handed into the Citizen office on Saturday labelled 'news item.' Although it has a certain value as news, this is quite outweighed by the advertisement it gives to the parties named therein, and was handed in solely for that purpose. Newspapers are continually asked to publish such advertisements free of charge, and find it hard to refuse without offending. The rule generally laid down is to charge regular rates for an item from the publishing of which financial benefit accrues to the person or business named therein. It is only fair to its regular advertising patrons that this rule should be enforced. And also fair to its owners. It costs many thousands of dollars to publish a daily newspaper, and it costs several thousands more to pay dividends on the capital invested. A newspaper's advertising columns are its chief, almost its sole, source of revenue? Why should it give these away?"—Canadian Printer and Publisher.

SIMONS' SAPHO COMPANY

Made a Great Hit at the Palace Last Night.

Orpheum Opens Week With "Pasion's Slave" to Crowded House—Many New People in the Cast.

The Simons Sapho Company, which has been awaited so long and which arrived here last night from Skagway, where it played a several weeks' engagement at Clancy's, appeared for the first time in Dawson last night at the Palace Grand. By the time the curtain went up there was not a seat unoccupied in the house and one leg standing room was at a premium.

The play, "Sapho," made famous by Olga Nethersole, was presented in all its entirety, but, to be understood, must be seen. The heavy parts of the play are ably presented by Miss Lillian F. Peri as Sapho; Miss Mabel Cassidy, Sappino's mother; Horace Mann as Robert Nelson, the deserted husband, and John Cassidy as Muggins, the valet. The remainder of the cast, numbering fully 20 persons, is an able support to the artists. The work of Peri and Cassidy is well worth the price of admission, being of a high, refined and exceptional order.

The six Peri Sisters in their society cake walk is also one of the strong attractions of the olio.

Mr. Horace Mann, the coster singer, has a splendid voice which he knows well how to use and which elicits merited applause.

The O'Briens, who have been embraced by the new company, came in for their share of the glory last night, O'Brien and Jennings and John and Mabel Cassidy presenting one of Edlie's rapid growth comedies entitled "Old Friends."

Simon's "new chechako girls" present a stunning appearance on the stage, several of them being quite shapely. They are good singers and dancers and have the free and easy manners which never fails to captivate the man with the poke from the creeks.

The orchestra is a remarkably good one, but would not be otherwise when led by that able director, Prof. Max Adler.

Under the new regime the proprietors at the Grand are Simons, Holden and Meadows, with F. E. Simons, general manager; John Cassidy, stage manager; Horace Mann, assistant stage manager, and Prof. Max Adler musical director. The Sapho company is destined to play full houses and big money during its stay in the Klondike metropolis.

Patrons of the Orpheum were told at the door last evening that if they were not satisfied with the performance of "Pasion's Slave" their money would be refunded, and it is small wonder that no one called for the return of his admission, as the rendering of the piece by the Orpheum cast would, with little exception, have done credit to a repertoire company. Mr. Wm. Malan in his portrayal of Manuel Defoe, and Mr. Layne as Ferdinand Shepley did some exceedingly clever work both in the prison scene and at the close of the last act. The "business" of Malan in the prison scene was especially deserving of more approval than was accorded it by the audience.

Blossom and Miss Lovel as Mamie Brisco and Clothilde were exceedingly well up in both business and art. Miss Lovel's assumption of dialect and facial expression to match the part was excellent.

The work done by Fred Breen, Harry O'Brien and Miss Wolcott can be better appreciated by being seen than by description.

Mr. Lawrence as General Brisco played a very tame part—one with few possibilities—in a manner very creditable to himself and gratifying to the audience.

The Orpheum was well filled notwithstanding the counter attraction at the Palace Grand, and the management may well be proud of this week's bill.

Tricks of a Mind Reader.

"Speaking of telegraphy," said a gentleman who takes an interest in occult studies, "reminds me of an incident which created a great stir some years ago, but is now about forgotten. A New York lawyer, who claimed to be able to project thought, had a committee of skeptics select a playing card at random and then wired a friend in San Francisco, asking him to think of a card and telegraph back what one came into his mind. The card selected was the five of spades and the reply was correct. All the parties were well known, and the experiment caused an immense sensation. The newspapers discussed it by the column, and it was exploited as a positive demonstration of thought transference, but as a matter of fact the whole thing was merely a clever trick. I had it afterward explained to me by one of the people on the inside. It had been prearranged with the San Francisco man that the cue to the right card was to be the wording of the message. The denomination was indicated by the number of words in the second sentence. If, for instance, it was an ace, the sentence would be only one word, 'Answer immediately,' and so on.

"As it happened to be a five the message ran, 'Telegraph reply quickly as possible.' The suit of the card was revealed by the signature. Signing the name in full meant hearts, the first only meant clubs, the last name meant spades, and the initials meant diamonds. The system was beautifully simple, and the message seemed on its face perfectly innocent. It was carefully examined to find a hidden word, but baffled the investigators. As far as I know, the truth about the affair has never been printed."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Frank Had a Roommate.

When J. Frank, a Dawson trader, was preparing to retire at the Occidental Wednesday morning he found a man under his bed. The would-be robber lost no time in coming out after he was discovered, and with him came a big revolver. A scuffle ensued and the robber fled without trying his gun. Mr. Frank yelled "murder," "thief," and other hair-raising exclamations. The hotel porter tried to intercept the robber but his gun cleared a right-of-way to the street. Mr. Miller was aroused and grabbing a revolver started in pursuit.

By the time the weapon was ready for action the pursued was opposite Alfen Bros.' store. Mr. Miller fired three shots and one of the bullets, buried in a box standing in front of Alfen Bros.' store, shows that the revolver was pointed in the right direction.

The bad man escaped although a detailed search was made for him. He could be identified by several parties who witnessed his flight. —Skagway News.

The Queen's Attire.

Queen Victoria is so unconventional in her attire and apparently cares so little for elegance of raiment as far as her own dress is concerned that it will doubtless surprise many people to learn that she has for the past 20 years at least been one of the best customers of a certain fashionable dressmaker in Bruton street, says a London correspondent. Much of the apparent tawdriness of her majesty's appearance is due to the fact that she persists in keeping to the style and fashion of 30 years ago. But what is lacking in style is made up in richness of material, and she is fond of the finest brocades and most costly laces and embroideries, though she cannot bear velvet and dislikes the touch thereof extremely.

Danube Will Be Saved.

Regarding the steamer Danube, which was wrecked a few weeks ago while en route from Victoria to Skagway, a late issue of the Victoria Times says:

"The steamer Danube still clings to the rock off Hospital Point, which she struck just after leaving for the north on Wednesday night. The vessel is lying in just about the same position that she assumed soon after striking, with a big list to the port side. By her side are the tug Sadie, the freighter Maude and a big scow, which is receiving her freight. A large stream flows over her side from the pumps, which have been kept continuously going to keep her hold clear of water. Those working about the ship deny that there are five feet of water in her hold, but be this as it may there is some small portion of her cargo damaged. Some of the freight has been landed, while more is to be brought ashore. About 400 tons of the cargo has already been landed and there is yet from 200 to 300 tons to be unloaded. When this is out the ship will no doubt be floated. An effort, however, will be made towards this end, and the assistance of several other vessels will, if necessary, be secured in the attempt. When the ship is afloat it will be necessary to dock her for repairs. Her trip will doubtless be cancelled and her freight sent north by another steamer. Arrangements for this, however, have not been completed. The accident to the steamer comes now as particularly unfortunate, inasmuch as travel with the north is just beginning. R. P. Rither & Co. hold, it is said, considerable of the insurance on the Danube's cargo."

Written With His Own Blood.

A writer in Cornhill Magazine tells a good story illustrating the important part played sometimes by bank notes in the ordinary affairs of life. About 60 years ago the cashier of a Liverpool merchant had received in tender for a business payment a Bank of England note, which he held up to the scrutiny of the light in order to make sure of its genuineness.

He observed some partially indistinct words traced in red on the front of the note beside the lettering and on the margin. Curiosity tempted him to try deciphering them. They were so faintly written and so nearly obliterated that he found great difficulty in doing so, but finally he was able to combine them into this sentence:

"If this note should fall into the hands of John Dean, of Longhill, near Carlisle, he will learn hereby that his brother is languishing a prisoner in Algiers."

Mr. Dean was shown the note, and he lost no time in asking the government of the day to make intercession for his brother's freedom. It appeared then that during 11 years, while his friends and family had believed him to be dead, the latter had been a slave to the dey of Algiers. With a piece of wood he had traced in his own blood on the bank note the message which was eventually to secure his release.

The government exerted itself to the utmost in the matter, and he was set free on the payment of a ransom to the dey.

O'Brien a Tough One.

The following is from the Skagway Alaskan of June 6th:

"W. M. Keefe, who came in from Dawson on the train that arrived here Sunday morning, says that O'Brien, the alleged murderer of Clayton, worked for him on an Eldorado creek claim in the Klondike before he worked on the police wood pile. Mr. Keefe had read in the Daily Alaskan that the body of Clayton was being taken to Dawson, and he had jumped to the conclusion that it was for the purpose of confronting the prisoner with it. As a matter of fact O'Brien is held on other charges, and the charge of murder cannot be preferred against him until the body of the murdered man is actually produced. It is for this reason that the remains of Clayton were taken to Dawson instead of being sent direct to his relatives in Skagway.

"But Mr. Keefe thought it was for the purpose of confronting the prisoner with the body of his alleged victim. So he said: 'I don't think this will work on O'Brien, for he is as bold a man as I ever saw. I understand that he has killed three men before, two in Colorado and one in Wyoming. So you could not get him to betray himself by any chance in confronting him with the body. He is very close mouthed and has perfect control of himself.

"But it might work with some men. Down in Texas I was after a murderer with whom this idea worked first-class. I managed to locate where he had buried his man, but had no evidence at that time of the fact, so I went to see him and said, 'Let's take a little stroll.'"

"We did, and all the time I was edging away from the direction I wanted to go. But after an hour or two I said, 'Let's go down this way,' and I got him somehow to the point where the grave was. I sat down on a log, but he didn't sit down, but wanted to get away. Then I told him he didn't dare sit down because he had killed and buried a man just by that stump. He gave up right away and confessed.

"But that wouldn't work with O'Brien. I know him well."

Levine Ready for Summer Trade.

There is one concern in the city today which is doing a business entirely out of proportion to its size, and a visit to the place will bear out the assertion. This is due wholly to the untiring efforts of Mr. A. L. Levine, who has successfully met all competition. By the introduction of new goods, imported in immense quantities especially for the Star Clothing House, he has made that place a veritable emporium of all that's desirable in the clothing line. The latest summer hats, in cloth and straw, and Tooke's shirts, is the last addition to his stock. These goods are very swell and will without doubt be eagerly sought for by Dawson's nobby dressers. The Star Clothing House is bound to lead and will always be found replete with the latest in clothing, hats, shoes and gents' furnishing goods.

Shindler has bicycle sundries; wood rims, inner tubes, ball bearings, spokes, bells, cyclometers, toe taps, graphite, etc. Wheels to rent by the hour.

WOES OF A FORSAKEN WIFE.

Mrs. Claude Staton's Futile Attempts to Reclaim Her Husband

Who, With Miss Frankie Evans, Quietly Departs in a Small Boat Down the River Last Night.

There is in Dawson today probably the most irate woman that has ever trod the sidewalks of the Klondike metropolis. She is Mrs. Staton, who says she is the lawful wife of Claude Staton, the well-known variety showman who for some months past has been treasurer of and a stockholder in the Orpheum Show Co.

Claude stood at the door of the Orpheum theater and took tickets last night, but if all reports are true the job will be open to a new man tonight.

It is said that between 2 and 3 o'clock this morning, and while the tweedledee of the tweedledee was hushed in repose that the festive Claude and Miss Frankie Evans, a dance hall acrobat, quietly left in a small boat for the Gretna Green of the Yukon which is supposed to be just over the line. Claude's motive was not so much to get across the line as to get away from Dawson—anywhere, so it was away from Dawson.

His sudden dislike to longer remaining in Dawson began yesterday morning about seven minutes after the arrival of the steamer Yukoner, which carried to the city the original Mrs. Staton, who was not in a strawberry and cream mood, she having heard on the outside rumors to the effect that the nest which was hers by right of marriage was being warmed by another.

Hearing of his wife's arrival and of her dire threats against him and of the winsome Frankie, Claude kept himself as scarce as possible yesterday. It seemed to be the intent of his wife to head him off if he attempted to leave on the Hannah last night, she being said to have announced her intention to shoot him full of punctures if he attempted to board the steamer with his enamored. But as he did not board the steamer, the outraged wife decided he would keep until another day, and her vigil was, therefore, relaxed. But her reckonings were at fault, for when this morning crossed the threshold of time Mrs. Staton learned to her surprise, chagrin and a very explosive brand of wrath and indignation that her husband and Frankie had "faded" during the night.

Mrs. Staton will probably follow down the river on the next steamer.

Free Library Concert.

A free concert will be given at the free public library on Third avenue, tomorrow evening. The program will be made up of good vocal and instrumental music, recitations and readings.

Although the entertainment will be free, any contributions received will be gratefully received and applied to the maintenance of the library.

Hannah Leaves.

The steamer Hannah sailed last night promptly at the time advertised. She carried all the passengers her register allowed and left many disappointed people who clamored for passage on her. Yesterday tickets which originally sold for $70 were transferred to others for $140 by people who were induced to await the sailing of the next boat.

An immense throng of people witnessed her departure, vociferously cheering their outgoing friends. The Yukon Field Force band played inspiring music and their uniforms gave the touch of color necessary to make the scene complete.

Paul Bordman came within an ace of missing the boat and had to climb aboard from a canoe as the Hannah had cast off her line, while Bordman was deep in meditation, probably rehearsing a farewell spiel which he was about to deliver to the crowd. This is the only time he ever lost an opportunity of that nature and it will probably rankle within his breast for many a day.

It is not known what boats will follow the Hannah of the A. C. Co.'s fleet as the Susie, Sarah, Louise and possibly the Bella may arrive the first from below.

The Susie and Sarah are boats built after the same patterns as the Hannah and cost to construct something like $30,000 each.

The John Cudany is expected from St. Michael about July 1st. She is in the service of the N. A. T. & T. Co.

The steamers Sybil and Victorian were reported to have left Lebarge this morning, but were not seen passing Hootalinqua. Passengers on those boats have been transferred from the Cansdian which has been acting as a transfer from Whitehorse to the foot of Lebarge.

The water is rising gradually, but slowly in the upper river. The temperature is now about 48 degrees at all points above with a storm threatening.

FELL DEAD.

in staking everything on an appeal to the people. "It may be contended," concludes the Globe editorial, "that the stake was so large as to include his own political life and that the people in pronouncing against Martin, have pronounced also against the lieutenant governor." It is generally believed that McInnis will be succeeded by Bostick.

Trouble at Skagway.

Skagway, June 1.—The steamer Princess Louise, which arrived yesterday and sailed last evening, was prevented by the authorities from carrying passengers from Skagway southward, because she had not been inspected by the American inspectors. She is under the British flag, and made the present trip north in divergence from her customary run wholly in British water between Victoria and Vancouver. Twelve tickets had been sold to persons wishing to go on her but they were not permitted to leave.

District Court.

In the case of the Queen vs. Sepovitch, accused of hay stealing, several witnesses were examined this morning, but when the case was closed at 1 o'clock nothing new had been brought to light.

Counsel will address the jury during the afternoon session, and the case will then be left with it.

The Soggs attempted murder case will be taken up tomorrow morning.

They Got Left.

At the Regina there are two very disconsolate guests. Their dissatisfaction is in no way due to the treatment accorded them at the hotel, but is wholly due to the fact that although they were booked for passage on the Hannah, the big boat sailed without them.

A New Arrival.

J. A. Acklin, the Klondike gardener, became the happy father of a nine-pound son this afternoon. The mother and her apparent are both doing well, and the father is on the high road to recovery.

POLICE COURT NEWS.

Capt. Scarth filled the magistrate's chair in Police court this morning, the first case up being that of T. H. Hopgood who had poured deeply of belligerent hooch, the effects of which caused him to defy the world in general and swear by all that is good and holy that he could lick all comers. In court this morning Hopgood did not look like a man who would tackle a whole precinct single-handedly far from it. He was the embodiment of meekness, and plead guilty in all humility. A fine of $10 and costs was imposed, which amount was paid by a friend of the erstwhile scrapping man.

Duncan McPherson was brought over from the jail and confronted with the charge of cutting loose a wood-laden raft which had been moored to the river bank opposite the Dominion saloon. The evidence against him was very conclusive, but pending additional information, the case was continued until this afternoon.

T. T. Morell was up on a charge preferred by Henry Bruck to the effect that on last Friday Morell did steal from a sluice box on claim No. 1 above discovery on Gold Bottom a nugget to the value of a fraction over one dollar.

With all the earnestness of a man who had been robbed of everything he possessed between the azure dome and the bowels of the earth, Bruck told how he had heard Morell and another man at a distance of 300 feet plan to rob him of the precious nugget which lay in the sluice box a foot and a half below the upper riffle. Mr. Bruck could not see the nugget of the value of one dollar from a distance of 300 feet, but he could see suspicious looking movements. Being a connoisseur on nuggets, he could also tell a Gold Bottom product from any and all others. A legal luminary appeared for Morell and, notwithstanding the serious demeanor of the prosecution, the defense appeared to look upon the whole matter in a light and airy manner. After hearing the evidence for the prosecution, the case was dismissed as a false alarm.

Leopold McCallum, the young man who became wildly insane Sunday a week ago, was in court today, but upon the statement of Dr. Thompson that he is improving was remanded for further treatment.

A. L. Smith is down from 24 Bonanza and is registered at the Regina.

F. Joslyn and wife are back from Seattle and are stopping at the Regina.

H. W. Bracken, after two weeks of severe sickness at the Good Samaritan hospital, is able to be out.

S. S. Rice from Gold Bottom, and David C. Young of Lindow creek, are registered at the Flannery.

John M. Patton, formerly of Skagway and later a mining magnate of Atlin, is a late arrival in Dawson.

James Fitzgerald of Skagway, known from Helena westward as "Popcorn Jimmy," is a late arrival in the city.

Frank W. Clark, formerly with the N. A. T. & T. Co., and recently with the Royal Grocery store, has assumed his old position.

A. M. Kilgore has returned to Dawson from a hurried trip to Skagway. He brought in a scow load of vegetables, principally potatoes.

Capt. C. P. Miner and wife are among those who will be missed from Dawson who were passengers on the Hannah for Nome.

Ed. Hammersley, Mrs. G. A. Goff, John Hobson and Moses Adams are the most recently admitted patients at the Good Samaritan hospital.

The Aquila did not sail last evening, and owing to some small alterations in her machinery will probably not get away before tomorrow evening.

Munis Shaw and family, "Conchita" being of the latter, are passengers this evening on the steamer Yukoner for Whitehorse, their objective point being Skagway.

Alex Reardon and Pat Sullivan are considering the advisability of issuing a challenge to hill climbers. Sunday they went from town to Capt. Jack's flag in 45 minutes.

A. L. Smith, an experienced newspaper man from San Francisco, having been for a long time on the Examiner force, has been added to the reportorial staff of the Nugget.

Louis Todal, who has been receiving treatment at the Good Samaritan hospital for an injured knee, was discharged yesterday, and left for Seattle on the Ora last evening.

Geo. M. Woodruff, one of the most progressive business men of Skagway, is in the city, having arrived yesterday morning with a cargo of candy which he is now disposing of to the Dawson merchants.

W. F. Thompson, who has engaged in newspaper enterprise at various points in the state of Washington, arrived in the city recently and has accepted a position as advertising solicitor for the Sun.

Mrs. Stephenson, wife of the bookkeeper for the Yukon Iron works, has arrived and another vine and fig tree have been established in Dawson. Mrs. Roberts, wife of the foreman of the same big industry, is on one of the steamers up the river and is daily expected by her liege lord.

Captain Roediger.

Capt. Richard Roediger, who owns an interest in the Dawson News, arrived with his wife yesterday morning from Tacoma, Wash., where Capt. Roediger was for many years one of the proprietors and business manager of the Daily News. Later he was in the U. S. customs service for four years. He has already assumed charge of the Dawson News, the former manager, H. G. Steele, leaving for Nome on the steamer Hannah. Mrs. Roediger will remain in Dawson but a short time when she will return to their home and children in Tacoma.

Dr. Grant's Visit.

Rev. Dr. R. S. Grant, of Almont, Ontario, arrived on the Yukoner on a visit to the scene of his former good work. Dr. Grant came here first in the spring of '98 when he founded the First Presbyterian church of Dawson and organized the congregation. He also founded the Good Samaritan hospital, and both institutions exist and flourish today as monuments to his worth as a progressive Christian man. Dr. Grant brought with him a silver communion service, a present from his Ontario congregation to the congregation at this place. He was gladly welcomed by his many Dawson friends. He will remain for several weeks, returning to his outside home before the close of navigation.

Major Wood Arrives.

Major Z. T. Wood, of the N. W. M. P., who will succeed Major A. B. Perry as commander in the Yukon district, arrived yesterday morning on the Yukoner from Tagish, where he has been stationed for something more than a year. He was accompanied by his wife and little son; also by eight policemen who will be added to the barracks force of this place.

In addition to being commander of police Major Wood will also be police magistrate and ex-officio member of the Yukon council.

Superintendent Primrose, who, since the departure of Major Perry has been in command here, will leave shortly for Whitehorse to which place the detail is being removed from Tagish.
