

The Ontario Challenges Mr. Johnson to Come Out Publicly in Defence of the Work of the Open Bar, the Institution for Which He Stakes His Political Life.

TEMPERANCE CANDIDATE IN NORTH HASTINGS

The nomination of Rev. J. P. MacInnes B. A., by a convention of the temperance workers of North Hastings to contest that riding in the coming election will give to the electors of that constituency an opportunity to cast their ballots upon this great issue of Abolish the Bar. Mr. MacInnes is a fine platform speaker, a hard fighter, and a thorough believer in the cause he advocates. Temperance sentiment is strong in the municipalities throughout the north and we may expect these places to make a good showing on election day.

There is a number of places such as Marmora village and Marmora township where the temperance people have been deprived of the benefits of local option by the iniquitous Three-Fifths whiskey device. Marmora township last January carried local option by a majority of seventy-three, and yet had to be told by the Whitney government that it required three temperance votes to be as good as two liquor votes.

Such a gross injustice as this is not going to work to the advantage of the conservative nominee.

The last two or three elections in North Hastings have gone by acclamation. This will be the first time that many of the men of the younger generation have had a chance to use the franchise in a provincial contest. It is to be hoped that their first vote will go to banish from their constituency and their province this greatest evil.

MR. JOHNSON AND THE ONTARIO

Mr. J. W. Johnson would be well advised if he were to devote more time in his public addresses to answering the arguments advanced by The Ontario, and less to personal abuse of the editor. This sort of thing is beneath the dignity of any public man who makes a pretence to fairness and decency. His reference in his speech on the hustings to the business management of The Ontario was a gratuitous insult that fell flat, even among his own sympathizers. Such tactics deceive nobody, convince nobody and always carry with them their own condemnation. Abuse is the weapon of the weak man who has no other means of defence.

The Ontario has tried to be courteous and fair with Mr. Johnson in this campaign. We have attempted to show by just argument that he and his leader are on the wrong side of a great public question. If we are in the wrong on our side we are entirely willing to be put right. To this end we have offered Mr. Johnson the free use of our columns to define his position. We have asked him repeatedly and pointedly to tell us just where he stands upon this great issue of the administration and government of the liquor traffic.

And again we request and urge Mr. Johnson to show us that he and his leader do not stand for the indefinite continuance of the Open Bar, to point out to us some other route he favors leading towards prohibition besides this intolerably slow one of local option. If he and his leader do not stand for the indefinite continuance of the Open Bar, then will he come out and tell us what are the merits of the licensed barroom that it demands such consideration at the hands of the government.

If Mr. Johnson will calmly, and unequivocally clear up these two points he will do much towards removing the necessity for any further discussion.

There is no need for hot words, abuse, or loss of temper, over a little thing like this. Manifestations of petulance do not get us anywhere.

This is after all just a plain, simple, business proposition.

The people of Ontario have given to a few men in each community the exclusive right to sell liquor. The rest of us are prohibited from taking part. The license system is in itself a species of prohibition.

What the people have the right to give the people have the right to take away. If a majority of the people became convinced that the licensed sale of liquor by retail in barrooms is a bad thing, an economic loss, and a menace to the well-being of the community, they are perfectly within their rights in declining to continue the license of its sale. That is about all there is to it.

Mr. Johnson and his leader apparently take the ground that the license system is a good way to handle the traffic. If we are wrong in this conjecture we are willing to be corrected. If we are right, we will be very glad to hear Mr. Johnson's reasons why the institution of the Open Bar is a benefit to the community, and why it ought to be perpetuated.

RIGHT AND WRONG METHODS

The present election campaign is unfortunately drifting in many quarters into a bitter personal fight where the real issue is lost sight of and where we are blinded by our passions against any appeal to reason. This is above all an election with an issue at stake that should not be decided by the heat of passion, but by the calm judgment of the electorate after a full discussion, and with a frank, honest determination to do our duty after we have acquainted ourselves with all the facts.

We have heard for instance altogether too much questioning of the motives of temperance men. They have been held up to us as a lot of insincere nobodies, whose convictions were all on the surface, who would never vote as they talked. There are some insincere temperance men it is true, just as there are some insincere liberals and insincere conservatives. But temperance men are probably quite as much in earnest in behalf of their cause as are the members of any other class.

We would say to all temperance workers who have their cause at heart—keep cool, be patient and let the other fellow do all the calling of names. The object should be to convince the wavering by appeals to his better judgment, rather than to antagonise him by denunciation and abuse. This is a free country. We cannot compel men to think as we do. Persuasion is the only way. The temperance people have an excellent platform, but it is not wise to say to the conservative who has been making professions of temperance principles,—"This Rowell policy is right and if you don't support it you're a hypocrite." A hypocrite is a man who is knowingly insincere. It is not fair to say that all the temperance men who oppose Rowell are insincere in their professed belief that they are doing what is right. Deluded misled, they may be, but many of them are true to their honest convictions. To address such men as though they were temperance men in profession only, does them a wrong. To lay the situation correctly before the vote of this type should be the aim of all supporters of the Rowell policy. The object of all this election work should be to win support to the cause of Abolition of the Bar and not to gratify petty animosity, merely because the other man cannot or does not see as we do.

On the other hand, Rowell and all believers in his policy are generally represented to be a lot of smooth goodly-godies, scrambling after office, who hope to win power by an appeal to temperance sentiment, but who will surely betray the cause once they are elected. Such insinuations are to be expected, and do harm only to the people who make them.

BILINGUALISM

This attempt of the government party to becloud the issue of the Open Bar with Bilingualism is the last desperate resort of a party that is already beaten at the Open Bar of public opinion. Word has gone out to the faithful newspapers all over the province that something must be done to stem the tide of growing indignation on account of unsatisfactory attitude of the government party towards temperance. All the government organs are now receiving acres of boiler plate trying to make out on the eve of election that Rowell is hatching some terrible conspiracy to hand Canada over to France or to Rome. It matters little which as long as racial and religious prejudice can be aroused, and make people forget that main issue.

That this sickly device will deceive anybody, except those who are perpetrating it, is to be doubted. The people have been fooled too often that way before. The gag has been worked overtime until it is stale.

The bilingual schools are inefficient where does the fault lie? Is it with Rowell, or the Seven Sleepers of Queen's Park who have now been in office nine years? It took Whitney seven years to go even so far as to appoint a commissioner to investigate conditions. Sir James kept on repeating that there were no bilingual schools in Ontario, and finally convinced himself that what he said was true. Therefore he saw no need of applying remedies to evils that did not exist.

Since the report has been received and regulations adopted there has been no unanimity among the government forces as to the carrying out of the new regulations.

The fault does not appear to rest with the regulations so much as with their administration. The new regulations were passed with the unanimous consent of Mr. Rowell and his following. Both parties were agreed, but the carrying out and enforcement of the law is entirely the concern of the government. That the government has egregiously failed in its administration everyone at all acquainted with the facts knows full well. When Mr. Rowell attains to power we may look for him to see that the law is strictly carried out, and the French children will not be handicapped by their inability to learn English in the wretched schools now provided.

There is no equivocation about Mr. Rowell's attitude or bilingualism or upon any other question. He stated his opinion clearly and honestly in the campaign of 1911 in his Massey hall speech and has never since shifted one hairsbreadth from his original announcement of policy. Here is what he said:

"English is the language of this continent. It is the official language of this Province. Our French-Canadian citizens will agree with us that any child in this Province who does not acquire at school a good working knowledge of English is handicapped in the struggle for life, and has fewer avenues of advancement opened to him than he otherwise would have. It is the duty of the State, therefore, to see that in every school of the Province every child receives a thorough English education. But, on the other hand, we should not seek to prevent the children of our French-Canadian fellow-citizens retaining the use of their own mother tongue. What are we concerned about is that they should master English and not only that they should be ignorant of French. The problem in its working out is largely one of teachers and administration, and it is in this view that we have adopted the policy on which we stand."

"To provide through adequate training schools a sufficient supply of competent teachers, and thus insure under proper regulations that the pupils in every school in the Province receive a thorough English education."

On Saturday last Mr. Rowell said: "This is an English speaking Province and English it will remain."

SHOPS

It seems necessary to repeat that Mr. Rowell's policy includes the immediate abolition of club licenses in addition to those of the bar. The government press and government orators seek to convey the impression that Rowell is determined to retain the shop licenses, or in other words to take away the bar and keep the bottle. Even in regard to the shops Rowell offers far more than Whitney. With the present government it requires a three-fifths majority to do away with shops. Rowell will permit the people to do it on a straight majority. Nine-tenths of Ontario is already dry as far as shops are concerned. How long would it take local option on the straight majority plan to clean up the other tenth. We should remember that when a local option contest comes along where hotels are affected, the argument always is that the bar is needed to insure hotel accommodation, and that hotels could not live without the income from the bar. This may or may not be true, but it has done good service as an argument wherever local option has been voted upon. If a vote were to be taken upon the shop licenses alone, there would be no question of hotel accommodation. It would be the shop standing the test alone. In how many communities would it be retained by a popular majority vote? It is now absent from nine-tenths of the municipalities of the province, how long would it take to reach the other tenth?

How many of the proprietors are out fighting for Rowell?

From having the appearance of a government defeat it now begins to look as if it would be a government rout.

There was once a boy. He was fighting his father homewards past the saloons and bars. The father was drunk. The boy, being only a boy, was finally overpowered, and the father burst into a saloon. That boy stood on the street and wept and damned the saloons. I was the boy.

"We do not touch the heart of this temperance question until our own hearts are seared."—Alderman Maybee, (Conservative), at South Toronto.

Mr. Sinclair is being universally complimented on account of the magnificent address he delivered on nomination day. He was master of himself, his subject, and his audience at every moment. His facts were skillfully marshalled, and one by one he refuted with merciless logic or quick repartee the loose arguments of his opponent. Rev. W. G. Clarke, too, made an admirable and convincing address and was warmly congratulated by his opponents after the close of the meeting.

Are the hotel men convinced that Mr. Rowell is sincere? Watch proceedings the next few days if you have any doubts as to their opinions. Are you convinced Mr. Voter, that Rowell is sincere? Or are you trying to find excuses for your own insincerity in the cause of temperance? Be honest with yourself.

As Mr. Sinclair cleverly showed, that inebriate asylum proposed by Mr. Johnson is a proper part of the policy of a government that backs up an institution that manufactures candidates for asylums, jails, and penitentiaries. Relieve us of the Licensed bar and asylums, jails, and hospitals will pretty nearly close down for lack of orders.

The abuse of clergymen indulged in by speakers and newspapers supporting the government is one of the most regrettable features of this strenuous campaign. If the statements of the ministers in each case were correctly quoted we feel sure there would be small ground for complaint. But to misrepresent what they said in the hope of gaining political capital thereby, is the device of cowards.

Mr. Johnson in his address yesterday afternoon stated that he had been abused by the ministers of Belleville in their pulpits. Does he mean by this that he has been abused by all the ministers of Belleville, or only by some of them. It would facilitate matters if Mr. Johnson would tell us which particular ones have been guilty of this offence, and at the same time it would remove the stigma from those who might not be included in this general charge. This is a pretty serious charge to make in public, and in justice to all the clergy of this city acts and particulars should be given.

The hotelkeepers have many friends. The Open Bar has no defenders, journalistic or otherwise, in all Ontario, in the present campaign for its extermination. The Open Bar has no friend bold enough to lift up his voice in public commending its work, and advising its continuance as an institution. Its evils are too well known. Its advantages too few. It is opposed altogether to the modern spirit of sobriety and efficiency. It is medieval—a relic of barbarism. It has got to go. If the Whitney party is not defeated in this election it will be so shattered that it can never survive another contest as the silent defender of the Open Bar. The days of the licensed barroom in Ontario are numbered.

The Ontario welcomes Senator Corby to the ranks of the temperance reformers. Perhaps it is too much to expect just yet to have him take off his coat and work for the Abolish-the-Bar candidate in West Hastings, but if he will infuse some of his newly formed temperance principles into the present campaign in Belleville and see to it that this is a "dry" election, we will certainly be convinced of the genuineness of his conversion. We trust the honorable senator will go this far in proving his faith by his good works. Then perhaps by the time the next quadrennial election comes around he will have progressed so well that he will resign his seat among the Sleepers at Ottawa and himself contest West Hastings as the Abolish-the-Bar candidate.

Enthusiasm for the Abolish-the-Bar policy and the excellent candidate representing that policy in West Hastings is manifesting itself in various unmistakable ways over the constituency. The public meetings so far held show not merely the ordinary party enthusiasm but an earnestness that is altogether new to party controversies.

The reports that are coming from all quarters of the province remind one of the accounts handed down to us of the abolition of slavery movement in the United States. Men who never thought of changing party affiliations before are doing so now and expressing pride in the fact. No man can at present foresee what the final count will be, but party alliances are counting less than in any previous contest in this province.

It would be more to the point if those who are making such loud complaints about the ministers "talking politics" would apply themselves to answering some of the arguments that the ministers advance. The trouble is that the government supporters have no argument to justify their course, and they fall back upon the last resort of those who are beaten in debate—abuse, and calling the other fellow names. Abuse is not argument, but some people think it is, and they delude themselves with the thought that everybody else is of the same opinion. It takes more than mud to change the view-point of fair-minded men. Such tactics will not deceive any great proportion of the electorate. There was only praise from this same quarter when in 1905 a large number of these same clergyman were assisting Whitney into power.

Some esteemed contemporaries are objecting to ministers of the gospel taking part in the present campaign. A minister of the gospel, it seems should preach the gospel; he degrades both himself and his calling when he enters the political arena. A good many people are old enough to recall the campaign in 1905 which resulted in the defeat of the Ross Government. Several ministers took part in that campaign against the Liberal Candidates. There was no evidence then that the Conservative papers were shocked. They thought it was the proper thing for ministers of the gospel to come out and reveal their manhood when there was a great moral issue before the country.—Woodstock Sentinel Review.

A gentleman of education, occupying a position of influence in this city and a prohibitionist by profession has convinced himself that it would be wrong to vote for Rowell because the leader of the opposition is a member of the Ontario club in Toronto, an institution that is licensed to sell liquor to its members.

We find it difficult to believe in the sincerity of the temperance principles of any man who brings forward an excuse of that nature. If he were honest with himself and were to reveal the true reason for his attitude he would probably tell us that he was more concerned about the fare of his party than the promotion of temperance.

We might as well accuse Rowell of insincerity because he is a citizen of Toronto, a municipal corporation that grants one hundred and fifty hotel licenses. Rowell is an unwilling partner and shares with the rest of the community in the profits from those one hundred and fifty bars.

It is true that wines and other intoxicants are sold at the Ontario club as they are at fifty-one other licensed clubs in Ontario, but to insinuate that Rowell is responsible for this is about as fair as a lot of other quibbles that are doing service in this campaign.

The Rowell policy includes the immediate abolition of all club licenses, the Ontario club included. What more could any prohibitionist ask?

Let this gentleman ask himself, pointedly and squarely, as did Rev. A. R. Sanderson, would he have supported this policy had it emanated from Sir James Whitney. Can he then consistently reject it merely because it was introduced by a liberal?

THE OPEN BAR

A bar to Heaven, a door to Hell—Whoever named it, named it well—
A bar to manliness and wealth
A door to sin and broken health
A bar to honor, pride and fame,
A door to sin and grief and shame:
A bar to hope, a bar to prayer
A door to darkness and despair,
A bar to honored useful life,
A door to brawling, senseless strife;
A bar to all that's true and brave,
A door to every drunkard's grave.
A bar to joy that home imparts,
A door to tears and aching hearts.
A bar to Heaven, a door to Hell—Whoever named it, named it well!

GRADUATION EXERCISES AT THE TABERNACLE

At Holloway street church Sunday morning, the graduation of members of the primary department to the junior department took place before the congregation. The graduates are those who have committed to memory the Ten Commandments, Apostles' Creed, Twenty-Third Psalm, Beatitudes and Lord's Prayer. They were Harry Bell, Frank Elliott, Arthur Henry, Norman Wessels, Norman Boyd, Thomas Moore, Leslie Pappas, Elsie Johnson, Florence Brett, Vera Wheeler, Mabel Garrison, Lillie Parmenter, Dorothy Vandervoort, Katie Harris and Lucella Mastin.

Those officiating were Rev. A. R. Sanderson, pastor; Rev. A. Martin, and Mr. A. E. Bailey, superintendent. The graduating class repeated the scriptural passages and each member was presented with a copy of the Bible with name inscribed. The teachers of the class are Mrs. Chas. Walters and Miss Stocker.

The superintendent, Mr. Bailey, congratulated the class on the excellence with which they had repeated their memorized passages. He wondered how could a man go and vote a week from Monday to undo all the work of devoted and noble teachers. He himself had never got so strong a hold of the Christ as he had in the past week in trying to blot out that which has crushed so many homes.

"I'll do anything, I'll go anywhere to save the boys from damnation. Men, think of it! What would Jesus do if you ask this, all will be well!"

Rev. Mr. Sanderson addressed a few words to the school which occupied the center of the church. He referred to the value which these portions of Scripture would be to the children in after life and hoped the parents would devote more time in inculcating the great scriptural truths.

The school and choir sang a number of children's day hymns.

THIRD LINE THURLOW

Third Line Thurlow, June 22.—The welcome rain has improved the crops. Mrs. Egbert, (Belleville) of Ficton, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. Rutan the past week.

Mr. Thos. Bell and family of Belleville, were visitors at Mr. Wm. Prelops and sister, Laura, last Sunday.

Mrs. Har. Wallbridge was visiting her brother, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jose, Massawaga for a few days.

Mr. Stephen Eluke (and daughter) were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. Clapp on Sunday.

The recent frost did not seem to do any damage in this section.

As the election will soon take place we noticed a great deal of shaking hands and buttonholing in the city last Saturday.

Road work is in order now on this line. Mr. Sam Dean is walking boss.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Cooley took dinner at Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Ketchum's on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Rutan spent Sunday at Mr. A. Rutan's.

BABY'S HEALTH DURING HOT WEATHER

During the hot spell the health of baby must be carefully guarded. Diarrhoea, cholera infantum and dysentery carry off thousands of precious little lives every summer. Baby's Own Tablets are especially adapted to keep the little ones well during the summer. They regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach, and an occasional dose will prevent the dreaded summer complaints, or if they do come on suddenly the prompt use of the Tablets will set baby right again.

The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brookville, Ont.

Broke His Arm.

William, the eight-year-old son of Mrs. Bert Langfield, Church Street last evening, with an accident that will incapacitate his right arm for service for some time to come. He was mounted on another boy's back and fell off his perch in such a manner as to break on of the bones below attended to the injury.

Remains Brought to Belleville.

The remains of the late Miss Nancy O'Connell, of Madoc, whose remains were found on Sunday about four miles from her home from which she had wandered over a month ago, were brought to Belleville this morning accompanied by Rev. Father O'Regan and interred in St. James Cemetery. The unfortunate woman was about eighty years of age.

The Rev. A. R. Sanderson and M. Sanderson leave on Friday on a two months' tour of Europe.

Mr. Stanley Newton of St. Louis, Mo., is in the city visiting his mother, Mrs. John Newton, Ann St.

Mrs. M. T. Pollock (nee Miss Eva Burrows) and her two children of Washington, D.C., are visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Burrows, Bridge street.

The Ontario was pleased to have a call yesterday from Mr. M. A. James, editor and publisher of the Bowmanville Statesman. Mr. James is one of the best known journalists in the province and has made The Statesman a leader in its class. He was in Belleville attending a meeting of the board of management of Albert College of which he is a member.

IMPOSING CEREMONIES AT THE ANNUAL CONVOCATION OF ALBERT COLLEGE

Brilliant Students Graduated—List of Awards and Names of Successful Young Men and Women—The Proceedings.

Having crowned her most brilliant students with graduation and awards of merit for their labors of another year, Albert College has passed one more milestone in her academic career as teacher and instructor of the youth of the land. There has been little rest during the past week. Recitals of unsurpassed excellence have followed one another in rapid succession. Those who have been privileged to attend the continuous round of artistic events at the college since Monday have formed some conception of the superiority of the various departments and gained insight into the realm of the arts.

As a grand finale to commencement week came a convocation which was held last evening in Massey Hall. There was the usual array of academic costumes and the prettiest fairy-like graduation dresses which the dressmakers could devise for such an occasion. Flowers were much in evidence and it was fitting that a beautiful bouquet should be presented to Miss E. Gardiner, the lady principal. About 8:30, the imposing procession of the staff, academic dignitaries, members of the senate and visitors moved up the aisle to the platform.

Rev. Dr. E. N. Baker, principal, took the chair and called on the Rev. A. S. Kerr, M.A., pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, to open convocation with prayer.

Two brilliant essays which were considered of equal merit in the English Competition were read. Both treated the one subject "The Question of a Canadian Navy" from much the same standpoint. The authors were Mr. Chas. Phillips and Mr. Norman Rawson.

The conferring of degrees was one of the most impressive features of convocation. Prof. R. J. F. Staples, Prof. Cameron and Prof. Roote read the names of graduates and of those successful in securing diplomas. It was at this juncture that the student element gave vent to many evidences of wit and humor in song and joke as their fellow students stepped up to the platform to receive their awards.

Prof. Cameron and Staples sang "Watchman, what of the Night," and Miss Tuttle recited an excellent little story full of Scottish humor, all connected with the Rev. Mr. MacDonnell's definition of a phenomenon.

A pleasant diversion was made when Mr. F. E. O'Flynn read a letter of greetings from the Board of Education, Belleville, which was then in session. Dr. Baker responded to the kindly sentiments expressed in the resolution, saying that the kindest feelings existed between the Board of Education and Albert College. The latter rejoices at the fine new school buildings erected in Belleville and bid the Board of Education Godspeed. The message of the Board was as follows:

Moved by Col. W. N. Ponton, seconded by Mr. F. S. Deacon "That the Board of Education of the City of Belleville extend cordial greetings to the principal and staff and students of Albert College on the occasion of their annual convocation, congratulate them on their success in the past, and wish them God-speed in their good work in the cause of education for the future. The Board desires especially to wish every success to the principal and trustees in their campaign for the substantial endowment of the College which in its past and present has been and is doing so much to add to the prestige and attractiveness of the City of Belleville as an educational and residential center."—Carried.

The prizes and medals were presented as follows:

Expression by Rev. E. C. Currie
Music by Rev. H. S. Osborne
Art—Mr. John Elliott
Household Science—Rev. A. Campbell
Commercial Science—Mr. C. F. Macfarlane
Scholarships—Rev. Dr. Baker
Collegiate Course Prizes—Mr. F. E. O'Flynn
Theology—Rev. A. L. Brown
Essay prizes—Rev. A. S. Kerr
Athletics—Mr. F. E. O'Flynn
Dr. Baker said he was finishing his freshman year as Principal. He had been obliged to be away at many times but the work had gone on. While the results of the year could perhaps be appreciated in the recitals those in character building can only be known to the teachers. This year had been successful and he thanked the staff and students for their help and good will.

One of his greatest joys had been the response to the call for endowment. The subscriptions have come in "like the flowers in May." This gave the principal a new view of human nature, as he saw men and women willing to make investments for God.

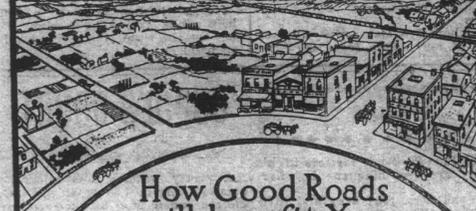

In addition to the principal and faculty on the rostrum were Rev. Amos Campbell; Rev. H. S. Osborne; Rev. A. S. Kerr; Rev. E. C. Currie; Rev. A. L. Brown; Mr. F. E. O'Flynn; Mr. John Elliott and Mr. Charles E. Macfarlane.

All preparations had been made for a Students' Re-Union upon the lawn the grounds being well lighted with electricity. However, the coolness of the weather caused the promoters to remain indoors, and some hours were spent in social enjoyment. The Art room continued to attract many visitors, who all expressed admiration at the excellent work done by the students during the year.

Mr. John Black, Mrs. Black, and daughters have returned from an excursion trip to Montreal.

Mrs. Willard Brewing of Christ Church, Toronto is visiting her parents at Emmanuel Rectory.

Mrs. R. C. Chown of Edmonton is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Elvins, North Front street, after a delightful trip through Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Detroit and other cities, will remain here about a month.

How Good Roads will benefit You.

THEY BENEFIT THE FARMER, because they increase the value of his farm; enable him to raise more profitable crops; his cost of hauling will be low; he can reach markets when prices are best; his children can get to school every day in the year, and he will have more social life and better conditions generally.

THEY BENEFIT THE CONSUMER, because they reduce the cost of living in proportion to what the farmer saves, and by bringing new industries to the community, enable a larger proportionate amount to be paid out in wages, and with increased population, more amusements and better stores.

Public roads are commercial feeders of the city, and every improvement of these roads means a greater prosperity through increased agricultural production and greater stimulus to all industries.

Economical Good Roads

Concrete roads are best, from the start and cheapest in the end. They are free from ruts, mud and dust. They give good footing to horses and easier traction to every class of vehicle, but most important is the fact that they require practically no expenditure for upkeep.

Complete information of concrete road construction is yours for the asking, without cost or obligation.

The RETURN of TARZAN

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Copyright, 1913, by W. G. Chapman

Presently the engineer hurried on deck in search of the captain. "That patch we put on the cylinder head's blown out, sir," he reported, "and she's makin' water fast for'ard on the port bow."

"An instant later a seaman rushed up from below. "My Gawd!" he cried. "Her whole bleedin' bottom's ripped out. She can't float twenty minutes."

"Shut up!" roared Tennington. "Ladies go below and get some of your things together. It may not be so bad as that, but we may have to take to the boats. It will be safer to be prepared. Go at once, please. And, Captain Jerold, send some competent man below, please, to ascertain the exact extent of the damage. In the meantime I might suggest that you have the boats provisioned."

The calm low voice of the owner did much to reassure the entire party, and a moment later all were occupied with the duties he had suggested. By the time the ladies had returned to the deck the rapid provisioning of the boats had been about completed, and a moment later the officer who had gone below had returned to report. But his opinion was scarcely needed to assure the huddled group of men and women that the end of the Lady Alice was at hand. "Well, sir?" said the captain as his officer hesitated.

"I dislike to frighten the ladies, sir," he said, "but the can't float a dozen minutes, in my opinion. There's a hole in her bottom that drives a half cow through, sir."

For five minutes the Lady Alice had been settling rapidly by the bow. Already her stern loomed high in air, and foothold on the deck was of the most precarious nature. She carried four boats, and these were all filled and lowered away in safety. As they pulled rapidly from the stricken little vessel Jane Porter turned to have one last look at her. Just then there came a loud crash and an ominous rumbling and pounding from the heart of the ship—her machinery had broken loose and was dashing its way toward the bow, tearing out partitions and bulkheads as it went. The stern rose rapidly high above them. For a moment she seemed to pause there, a vertical shaft protruding from the bosom of the ocean, and then swiftly she dove head foremost beneath the waves.

In one of the boats the brave Lord Tennington had wiped a tear from his eye. He had not seen a fortune in money go down forever into the sea, but a dear, beautiful friend whom he had loved.

At last the long night broke and a tropical sun smote down upon the rolling water. Jane Porter had dropped into a fitful slumber—the fierce light of the sun upon her upturned face awoke her. She looked about her. In the boat with her were three sailors, Clayton and M. Thurman. Then she looked for the other boats, but as far as the eye could reach there was nothing to break the fearful monotony of that waste of waters—they were alone in a small boat upon the broad Atlantic.

As Tarzan struck the water his first impulse was to swim clear of the ship and possible danger from her propellers. He knew whom to thank for his present predicament, and as he lay in the sea, just supporting himself by a gentle movement of his hands, his chief emotion was one of chagrin that he had been so easily bested by Rokoff.

He lay thus for some time, watching the receding and rapidly diminishing lights of the steamer without it ever once occurring to him to call for help. He never thought of help in his life, and so it is not strange that he did not think of it now. Always had he depended upon his own prowess and resourcefulness, nor had there ever been since the days of Kala any to answer an appeal for succor. When it did occur to him it was too late. There was, thought Tarzan, a possible one chance in a hundred thousand that he might be picked up and an even smaller chance that he would reach land, so he determined that to combine what slight chances there were he would swim slowly in the direction of the coast, the ship might have been closer in than he had known.

His strokes were long and easy—it would be many hours before those giant muscles would commence to feel fatigue. As he swam, guided toward the east by the stars, he noticed that he felt the weight of his shoes, and so he removed them. His trousers went next, and he would have removed his coat at the same time but for the precious papers in his pocket. To reassure himself that he still had them he slipped his hand in to feel, but to his consternation they were gone.

Now he knew that something more than revenge had prompted Rokoff to pitch him overboard. The ape-man swore softly and let his coat and shirt

TWO NERVOUS WOMEN

Made Well By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I had a severe case of nervous prostration, with palpitation of the heart, constipation, headaches, dizziness, noise in my ears, timid, nervous, restless feelings and sleeplessness."

"I read in the paper where a young woman had been cured of the same troubles by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before I had taken half a bottle I was able to sit up and in a short time I was able to do all my work. Your medicine has proved itself able to do all you say it will and I have recommended it in every household I have visited."

Another Bad Case. Ephrata, Pa.—"About a year ago I was down with nervous prostration. I was pale and weak and would have hysterical spells, sick headaches and a bad pain under my shoulder-blade. I was under the care of different doctors but did not improve. I was weak I could hardly stand long enough to do my dishes."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me well and happy and I have begun to gain in weight and my face looks healthy now."

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

The first faint evidence of dawn was painting the stars ahead of him when the dim outlines of a low lying black mass loomed up directly in his track. A few strong strokes brought him to its side—it was the bottom of a wave washed derelict. Tarzan clambered upon it—he would rest there until daylight at least. He curled up upon the slimy timbers and was soon asleep.

The heat of the sun awoke him early in the forenoon. His first conscious sensation was of thirst, which grew almost to the proportions of suffering with full returning consciousness, but a moment later it was forgotten in the joy of his almost simultaneous discovery of water. The first was a mass of wreckage floating beside the derelict, in the midst of which, bottom up, rose and fell an overturned lifeboat. The other was the faint, dim line of a far distant shore showing on the horizon in the east.

Tarzan dove into the water and swam around the wreck to the lifeboat. The cool ocean refreshed him almost as much as would a draft of water, so that it was with renewed vigor that he brought the smaller boat alongside the derelict and after many Herculean efforts succeeded in dragging it on to the slimy ship's bottom. The boat was quite sound and a moment later floated upright alongside the wreck. Then Tarzan selected several pieces of wreckage that might answer him as paddles and presently was making good headway toward the far off shore.

It was late in the afternoon by the time he came close enough to distinguish objects on land or to make out the contour of the shore line. Before him lay what appeared to be the entrance to a little, landlocked harbor. The wooded point to the north was strangely familiar. Could it be possible that fate had thrown him up at the very threshold of his own beloved jungle! But as the bow of his boat entered the mouth of the harbor the last shred of doubt was cleared away, for there before him upon the farther shore, under the shadows of his primeval forest, stood his own cabin—built before his birth by the hand of his long dead father, John Clayton, Lord Greystoke.

With long sweeps of his giant muscles Tarzan sent the little craft speeding toward the beach. His prow had scarcely touched when the ape-man leaped to shore—his heart beat fast in joy and exultation as each long familiar object came beneath his roving eyes—the cabin, the beach, the little brook, the dense jungle, the black, impenetrable forest. The myriad birds in their brilliant plumage; the gorgeous tropical blooms upon the festooned creepers falling in great loops from the giant trees.

Tarzan of the Apes had come into his own again, and that all the world might know it he threw back his young head and gave voice to a shout of triumph. For a moment silence reigned upon the jungle and then, shrill and weird, came an answering challenge. It was Sabor, the tiger, and the deep roar of Numa, the lion, and from a great distance faintly the fearsome answering below of a bull ape.

Tarzan went to the brook first and shook his throat. Then he approached the cabin. The door was still closed and latched as he and D'Arnot had left it. He raised the latch and entered. Nothing had been disturbed. There were the table, the bed and the little crib built by his father; the shelves and cupboards just as they had stood for over twenty-three years; just as he had left them nearly two years before.

His eyes satisfied, Tarzan's stomach began to call aloud for attention. The pangs of hunger suggested a search for food. There was nothing in the cabin, nor had he any weapons; but upon a wall hung one of his old grass spears. It had been many times broken and splintered, so that he had discarded it for a better one long before. Tarzan wished that he had a knife. Well, unless he was mistaken he should have that and a spear and bows and arrows before another man had set the rope would take care of that, and in the meantime it must be made to procure food for him. He called it carefully, and, throwing it about his shoulder, went out, closing the door behind him.

Close to the cabin the jungle commenced, and into it Tarzan of the Apes plunged, wary and noiseless, once more a savage beast hunting its food. For a time he kept to the ground, but finally, discovering no spur indicative of nearby meat, he took to the trees. With the first dizzy swing from tree to tree all the old joy of living awoke over him. Vain regrets and dull heart-ache were forgotten. Now was he living. Now indeed was the true happiness of perfect freedom his. Who would go back to the stinging, wicked cities of civilized man, when the mighty reaches of the great jungle offered peace and liberty? Not he.

While it was yet light Tarzan came to a drinking place by the side of a jungle river. There was a ford there, and for countless ages the beasts of the forest had come down to drink at this spot. Here of a night might always be found either Sabor or Numa crouching in the dense foliage of the surrounding jungle waiting an antelope.

Beneath Tarzan walked Numa, the lion, and when the ape-man detected a glint of silver in the grass he stopped. It came to him that seldom if ever did civilized man kill a fellow-glimpse of the beautiful green eyes following through the darkness. Numa did not roar now. Instead he moved stealthily, like the shadow of a great cat, but yet he took no step that did not reach the sensitive ears of the ape-man.

Tarzan wondered if he would stalk him to his cabin door. He hoped not, for that would mean a night's sleep curled in the crotch of a tree, and he much preferred the bed of grasses within his own abode. But he knew just the tree and the most comfortable crotch if necessity demanded that he sleep out. A hundred times in the past some great jungle cat had followed him home and competed him to seek shelter in this same tree and another mood or the rising sun had sent his enemy away.

But presently Numa gave up the chase and, with a series of blood-curdling moans and roars, turned angrily back in search of another and easier dinner.

A few moments later Tarzan was curled up in the mildewed remnants of what had once been a bed of grasses. Thus easily did M. Jean O. Tarzan slough the thin skin of his artificial civilization and sink happy and contented into the deep sleep of the wild beast that has fed to repletion. Yet a woman's "yes" would have bound him to that other life forever and made the thought of this savage existence repulsive.

Tarzan slept late into the following forenoon, for he had been very tired from the labor and exertion of the long night and day upon the ocean and the jungle hunt that had brought into play muscles that he had scarce used for nearly two years. When he awoke he ran to the brook first to drink. Then he took a plunge into the sea, swimming about for a quarter of an hour. Afterward he returned to his cabin and breakfasted on the flesh of Horta. This done, he buried the balance of the carcass in the soft earth outside the cabin for his evening meal. Once more he took his rope and vanished into the jungle. This time he hunted nobler quarry—man, although, had you asked him his own opinion, he could have named a dozen other denizens of the jungle which he considered far the superiors in nobility of the men he hunted. Today Tarzan was in quest of weapons. He wondered if the women and children had remained in Mbonga's village after the promised expedition from the French cruiser had massacred all the warriors in revenge for the supposed death. He hoped that he should find warriors there, for he knew not how long to a quest he should have to make were the village deserted.

The ape-man traveled swiftly through the forest and about noon came to the site of the village, but to his disappointment found that the jungle had overgrown the plantain fields and that the thatched huts had fallen in decay. There was no sign of man. He clambered about among the ruins for half an hour, hoping that he might discover some forgotten weapon, but his search was without fruit, and so he took up his quest once more, following up the stream, which flowed from a south-easterly direction. He knew that near fresh water he would be most likely to find another settlement.

As he traveled he hunted as he had hunted with his ape people in the past. As Kala, his ape foster mother, had taught him to hunt, turning over roots and logs and some poisonous vermin, Tarzan kept his eyes peeled for any signs of life. He was already sucking in his breath for the awful roar which would freeze his gray fur, the brief instant between the moment of the spring and the sinking of terrible fangs into splintering bones.

But as Numa cathered himself a leander rope flew through the air from the low branches of a nearby tree. A noise settled about Horta's neck. There was a frightened grunt, a squeal, and then Numa saw his quarry dragged backward up the trail, and as he sprang Horta, the bear, snored upward beyond his clutches into the tree above, and at mocking fash looked down and laughed into his own.

Then indeed did Numa roar. Angry, threatening, hungry, he paced back and forth beneath the taunting ape-man. Now he stopped and, rising on his hind legs against the stem of the tree that held his enemy, sharpened his huge claws upon the bark, tearing out great pieces that lay bare the white wood beneath.

And in the meantime Tarzan had dragged the struggling Horta to the flung beside him. Slung over his shoulder, he took the choking noise had no effect. The ape-man had no knife, but nature had equipped him with the means of tearing his food from the quivering flank of his prey, and gleaming teeth sank into the succulent flesh while the raging lion looked on from below as another enjoyed the dinner that he had thought already his.

It was quite dark by the time Tarzan had gorged himself. Ah, but it had been delicious! Never had he quite accustomed himself to the refined flesh that he had eaten, and he had served him, and in the bottom of his savage craving for the warm meat of the fresh killed and the rich, red blood.

He wiped his bloody hands upon a bunch of leaves, slung the remains of his kill across his shoulder and swung off through the middle terrace of the forest toward his cabin, and at the same instant Jane Porter and William Cecil Clayton arose from a sumptuous dinner upon the Lady Alice, thousands of miles to the east in the Indian ocean.

Tarzan walked Numa, the lion, and when the ape-man detected a glint of silver in the grass he stopped. It came to him that seldom if ever did civilized man kill a fellow-glimpse of the beautiful green eyes following through the darkness. Numa did not roar now. Instead he moved stealthily, like the shadow of a great cat, but yet he took no step that did not reach the sensitive ears of the ape-man.

Tarzan wondered if he would stalk him to his cabin door. He hoped not, for that would mean a night's sleep curled in the crotch of a tree, and he much preferred the bed of grasses within his own abode. But he knew just the tree and the most comfortable crotch if necessity demanded that he sleep out. A hundred times in the past some great jungle cat had followed him home and competed him to seek shelter in this same tree and another mood or the rising sun had sent his enemy away.

But presently Numa gave up the chase and, with a series of blood-curdling moans and roars, turned angrily back in search of another and easier dinner.

A few moments later Tarzan was curled up in the mildewed remnants of what had once been a bed of grasses. Thus easily did M. Jean O. Tarzan slough the thin skin of his artificial civilization and sink happy and contented into the deep sleep of the wild beast that has fed to repletion. Yet a woman's "yes" would have bound him to that other life forever and made the thought of this savage existence repulsive.

He was already sucking in his breath for the awful roar which would freeze his gray fur, the brief instant between the moment of the spring and the sinking of terrible fangs into splintering bones.

But as Numa cathered himself a brutal anthropoid that Kala had taught him to be and that he had been for the first twenty years of his life. Occasionally he smiled as he recalled some friend who might even at the moment be sitting placid and immaculate within the precincts of his select Parisian club—just as Tarzan had sat upon a few stools before—and then he would stop, as though turned suddenly to stone as the gentle breeze carried to his nostrils the scent of some new prey or a formidable enemy.

"That night he slept far inland from his cabin, securely wedged into the crotch of a giant tree, swaying a hundred feet above the ground. He had eaten heartily again—this time from the flesh of Bara, the deer, who had fallen prey to his quick nose.

Early the next morning he resumed his journey, always following the course of the stream. For three days he continued his quest until he had come to a part of the jungle in which he never before had been. Occasionally upon higher ground the forest was much thinner, and in the far distance through the trees he could see ranges of mighty mountains, with wide plains in the foreground. Here in the open spaces were new game conditions—antelope and vast herds of zebra. Tarzan was entranced. He would make a long visit to this new world.

On the morning of the fourth day his nostrils were suddenly surprised by a faint, new scent. It was the scent of man, but yet a long way off. The ape-man thrilled with pleasure. Every sense was on the alert, as with crafty stealth he moved quickly through the trees, upward, in the direction of his prey. Presently he came upon it—a warrior treading softly through the jungle.

Tarzan followed close above his quarry, waiting for a clearer space in which to hurl his rope. As he stalked the unconscious man new thoughts presented themselves to the ape-man—thoughts born of the refining influence of civilization and of its cruelties. It came to him that seldom if ever did civilized man kill a fellow-glimpse of the beautiful green eyes following through the darkness. Numa did not roar now. Instead he moved stealthily, like the shadow of a great cat, but yet he took no step that did not reach the sensitive ears of the ape-man.

The longer he thought about it the more repugnant became the thought of taking human life needlessly, and thus it happened that while he was trying to decide just what to do he had come to a little clearing, at the far side of which lay a palisaded village of beehive huts.

As the warrior emerged from the forest Tarzan caught a fleeting glimpse of a tawny hide worming its way through the matted jungle grasses in his wake. It was Sabor, the tiger. He, too, was stalking the black man. With the instant that Tarzan realized the native's danger his attitude toward his erstwhile prey altered completely. Now he was a fellow man threatened by a common enemy.

Sabor was about to charge. There was little time in which to compare various methods or weigh the probable result of any. And then a number of things happened almost simultaneously. The tiger sprang from his ambush toward the retreating black; Tarzan cried out in warning, and the black turned just in time to see Sabor halted in mid flight by a slender strand of grass rope, the coose end of which had fallen cleanly about his neck.

The ape-man had acted so quickly that he had been unable to prepare himself to withstand the strain and shock of Sabor's great weight upon the rope, and so it was that though the rope stopped the beast before his mighty talons could fasten themselves in the flesh of the black, the strain overbalanced Tarzan, who came tumbling to the ground not six paces from the infuriated animal. Like lightning Sabor turned upon this new enemy and defenseless as he was, Tarzan of the Apes was nearer to death than instant than he ever before had been. It was the black who saved him. The warrior realized in an instant that he owed his life to this strange white man, and he also saw that only a miracle could save his preserver from those fierce yellow fangs that had been so near to his own flesh.

With the quickness of thought his spear arm flew back, and then shot forward with all the force of the sneaky muscles that rolled beneath the shimmering ebony hide. True to its mark the iron shod weapon flew, transfixing Sabor's sleek carcass from the right groin to beneath the left shoulder. With a hideous scream of rage and pain the brute turned again upon the black. A dozen paces he had gone when Tarzan's rope brought him to a stand once more. Then he wheeled again upon the ape-man, only to feel the painful prick of a barbed arrow as it sank half its length in his quivering flesh. Again he stopped, and by this time Tarzan had run twice around the stem of a great tree with his rope and made the end fast.

The black saw the trick and grinned, but Tarzan knew that Sabor must be quickly finished before those mighty teeth had found and parted the slender cord that held him. It was a matter of but an instant to reach the black's side and drag his long knife from its scabbard. Then he signed the warrior to continue to shoot arrows into the great beast while he attempted to close in upon him with the knife, so as one tantalized upon one side the other sneaked cautiously in upon the other. Sabor was furious. He raised his voice in a perfect frenzy of shrieks, growls and hideous moans, while he rear-ed upon his hind legs in futile attempt to reach first one and then the other of his tormentors.

But although the agile ape-man saw his chance and rushed in upon the

Check those Colds in the Head with FOSSAL BALM

As you know, "catching a cold" simply means allowing the germs of a cold to catch you. Usually these germs, which abound wherever people congregate, gain their first foothold in the mucous membrane lining the nasal passages. Here they multiply if unchecked, and quickly set up an inflammation. Then follows that smarting, burning, stuffed up, "headachy" feeling—that cold in the head that is so depressing and so likely to develop into something more serious.

Fossal Balm goes right to the spot, kills the germs and checks the cold. Fossal Balm is an antiseptic, healing ointment, put up in a collapsible tube with a long, nozzle-shaped opening. This little nozzle, inserted in the nostril, carries the Fossal Balm well up into the passage, where it quickly spreads over the inflamed membrane, destroys the germs that are causing the trouble, soothes the irritation, clears the passages, and gives grateful and lasting relief.

beast's left side behind the mighty shoulder. A giant arm encircled the white throat and a long blade sank once, true as a die, into the fierce heart. Then Tarzan arose and the black man and the white looked into each other's eyes across the body of their kill, and the black made the sign of peace and friendship, and Tarzan of the Apes answered it in kind.

The noise of their battle with Sabor had drawn an excited horde of savages from the nearby village, and a moment after the tiger's death the two men were surrounded by fifty, ebony warriors, gesticulating and jabbering—a thousand questions that drowned each ventured reply.

And then the women came and the children—eager, curious, and at sight of Tarzan more questioning than ever. The ape-man's new friend finally succeeded in making himself heard, and when he had done talking the men and women of the village vied with one another in doing honor to the strange creature who had saved their fellow and battled single handed with fierce Sabor.

At last they led him back to their village, where they brought him gifts of fowl and goats and cooked food. When he pointed to their weapons the warriors hastened to fetch spear, shield, arrows and a bow. His friend of the knife, which he had killed Sabor, there was nothing in all the village he could not have had for the asking.

Tarzan's first night with the savages was devoted to a wild orgy in his honor. There was feasting, for the hunters had brought in an antelope and a zebra as trophies of their skill, and gallons of the weak native beer were consumed. As the warriors danced in the frelight Tarzan was again impressed by the symmetry of their figures and the regularity of their features—the flat noses and thick lips of the typical West Coast savage were entirely missing. In repose the faces of the men were intelligent and dignified, those of the women oftentimes prepossessing.

CHAPTER XVII. From Ape to Savage. It was during this dance that the ape-man first noticed that some of the men and many of the women wore ornaments of gold, principally anklets and armlets of great weight, apparently beaten out of the solid metal. When he expressed a wish to examine one of these the owner removed it from her person and insisted through the medium of signs that Tarzan accept it as a gift. A close scrutiny of the anklet convinced the ape-man that the article was of virgin gold, and he was surprised, for it was the first time that he had ever seen golden ornaments among the savages of Africa, other than the trifling baubles those near the coast had purchased or stolen from Europeans. He tried to ask them from whence the metal came, but he could not make them understand.

Deceiving the savages' offer of a hut, Tarzan slept that night, as usual, in a tree-top. The following day he accompanied a party of warriors to the nearby plains on a great hunt, and so dexterous did they find this white man with their own crude weapons that another bond of respect and admiration was thereby wrought.

For weeks Tarzan lived with his savage friends, hunting buffalo, antelope and zebra for meat and elephant for ivory. Quickly he learned their simple speech, their savage customs and the ethics of their wild, primitive, tribal life. He found that they were not cannibals—that they looked with loathing and contempt upon men who ate men.

But, the warrior whom he had stalked to the village, told him many of the tribal legends—how many years before his people had come many long marches from the north, how once they had been a great and powerful tribe and how the slave raiders had wrought such havoc among them with their death dealing guns that they had been reduced to a mere remnant of their former numbers and power.

"They hunted us down as one hunts a fierce beast," said Busuli. "There was no mercy in them. When it was not slaves they sought it was ivory, but usually it was both. Our men were killed and our women driven away like sheep. We fought against them for many years, but our arrows and spears could not prevail against the sticks which spit fire and lead and death to many times the distance that our mightiest warrior could place an arrow. At last, when my father was a young man, the Arabs came again, but our warriors saw them from a long way off, and Chovoh, who was chief then, told his people to gather up their belongings and come away with him—that he would lead them far to the south until they found a spot to which the Arab raiders did not come.

"And they did as he bid, carrying all their belongings, including many tusks of ivory. For months they wandered, suffering untold hardships and privations, for much of the way was through dense jungle and across mighty mountains, but finally they were picked up by a party of Arab slave raiders, and they were sold as slaves. An even better location, none has ever been found."

"And the rats—have never found you here?" asked Tarzan.

"About a year ago a small party of Arabs and Manryems stumbled upon us, but we drove them off, killing many. For days we followed them, stalking them for the wild beasts they are, picking them off one by one until a handful remained, but these escaped us."

As Busuli talked he fingered a heavy gold armband that encircled the glossy side of his left arm. Tarzan's eyes had been upon the ornament, but his thoughts were elsewhere. Presently he recalled the question he had tried to ask when he first came to the tribe—the question he could not at that time make them understand. For weeks he had forgotten so trivial a thing as gold, for he had been, for the time, a truly primitive man, with no thought beyond today. But of a sudden the sight of gold awakened the sleeping civilization that was in him, and with it came the just for wealth. That lesson Tarzan had learned well in his brief experience of the ways of civilized man. He knew that gold meant power and pleasure. He pointed to the bauble.

"From whence came the yellow metal, Busuli," he asked.

"The black pointed toward the south-east.

"A moon's march away—maybe more," he replied.

"Have you been there?" asked Tarzan.

"No, but some of our people were there years ago, when my father was yet a young man. One of the parties that searched farther for a location for the tribe when first they settled here came upon a strange people who wore many ornaments of yellow metal. Their spears were tipped with it, as were their arrows, and they cooked in vessels made all of solid metal like my armband."

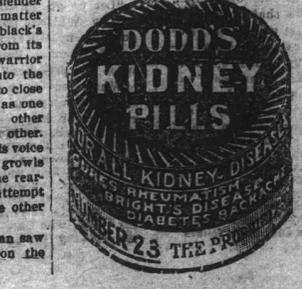

"They lived in a great village in huts that were built of stone, and surrounded by a great wall. They were very fierce, rushing out and filling upon our warriors before ever they learned that their errand was a peaceful one. Our men were few in number, but they held their own at the top of a little rocky hill, until the fierce people went back at sunset into their wicked city. Then our warriors came down from their hill, and after taking many ornaments of yellow metal from the bodies of those they had slain they marched back out of the valley, nor have any of us ever returned."

"They are wicked people, neither white like you or black like me, but covered with hair as is Bologni, the gorilla. Waziri, our chief, was there," replied Busuli. "He was a very young man then."

"So that night Tarzan asked Waziri about it, and Waziri, who was now an old man, said that it was a long march, but that the way was not difficult to follow. He remembered it well.

"For ten days we followed this river which runs beside our village. Up toward its source we traveled until on the tenth day we came to a little spring far up upon the side of a lofty mountain range. In this little spring our river is born. The next day we crossed over the top of the mountain, and upon the other side we came to a tiny rivulet, which we followed down into a great forest. For many days we traveled along the winding banks of the rivulet that had now become a river, until we came to a greater river, into which it emptied and which ran down the center of a mighty valley.

1905 AND 1914

One of the ablest deliverances upon this vexed question of the propriety of clergymen discussing a moral issue in the pulpit appeared yesterday in The Toronto Globe from the pen of Prof. J. C. Robertson, who helped in 1905 to return Sir James Whitney to power. Prof. Robertson wrote to this effect:—

Surely the Government candidates and newspapers that are objecting so strenuously to ministers of the Gospel taking a strong stand in favor of the speediest possible abolition of the bar have very short memories for it that they merely have convenient memories? They are continually reminding us of the time when the Ross Government was driven from power in 1905 by Mr. Whitney, as he then was. Have they forgotten how during that campaign Mr. Whitney, appealed to the clergymen of Ontario to assist him in arousing the people and how, immediately after the election, he publicly thanked them for their assistance? "As you will know," he said, "the clergy have done their duty. They deserve the thanks of all men."

It is worth recalling also what the editorial columns of The Mail and Empire more than once during that campaign had to say about the propriety of clergymen speaking out in a political contest. For instance: "The attitude to be taken depends upon the issue that is before the public. If we are faced with a question of tariff or railways, clerical intervention is out of the question. But when the issue is moral it is not at all improper for the clergy to pronounce against the evils that are afflicting the country and threatening its future. If a clergyman cannot declaim against public wrong-doing why have a pulpit at all?"

Surely this as sound doctrine in 1914 as in 1905, and as applicable. The issue of to-day has long been regarded by the Churches as a moral issue, and it easily comes within The Mail and Empire's definition. It is no new thing for the clergy of Ontario to denounce the bar room as an evil that afflicts the country and threatens its future. They have been declaiming against it for some years. Why should they keep silence now? The issue has not ceased to be a moral issue simply because it has become also a political issue.

There is one difference, however, between 1905 and 1914. Ministers of the Gospel who spoke out freely then did so on their own initiative and responsibility. But in this election they have in most denominations the express authority of their Conferences and Assemblies for speaking out boldly, and for declaring that all other issues fade into insignificance beside the question of temperance legislation. Indeed, after denouncing the barroom and calling for advanced legislation all these years, there is no other stand to take if they would avoid the imputation of inconsistency and insincerity.

To quote in reply to this anything the defenders of the Ross government may have said in 1905 is simply beside the question. For this is written by one of those thousands of liberals who responded in 1905 to Mr. Whitney's appeal to all independent and high-minded citizens to support him in a campaign for civic righteousness, regardless of our party affiliations, and who now rejoice to see thousands of conservatives responding today to a similar appeal.

What Mr. Whitney said to us in 1905 can be applied to such men in 1914. It is not a contest we were told, founded upon mere party issues, but a great uprising of the moral people of the country, determined, regardless who may win or lose, that our land shall be purged from what is an abomination and a defilement. Such men, we were also told, are not deserting their party, but setting it free to pursue its true ideals. The retention of the barroom is no more a part of true Conservatism than the retention of the "barnacles" of a decade ago was a part of true Liberalism. And no greater blessing can come to our political life than the growth of an independent vote, highly resolved to follow principle and not prejudice, and to obey conscience rather than the dictates of the party machine.

Some of the verdant "poetry" that is doing service in this Ontario campaign is worse, if possible, than the policy by which the whiskey forces are trying to hold onto power. Take this for example—

"It isn't ballots to Banish the Bar; It's ballots for Rowell to get into Power!" We can almost stand the Open Bar better than any more Parnassic flights like this.

There is much wild denunciation being indulged in by the Open Bar forces because a room in the Y.M.C.A. building was rented to the West Hastings temperance workers to hold a convention in. The awful news has gone abroad that there was politics in it, and that this was in reality a thinly disguised Grit rally. Having been present at the convention, we will assure the horrified ones that no political issue was discussed at this meeting, unless we place the abolition of the bar in that category. This latter question was ably dealt with by various speakers both conservative and liberal and a candidate to support this great moral issue was placed in the field. Is the Y.M.C.A. building desecrated by the holding of a temperance convention within one of its rooms? Is it not one of the primary objects of the Y.M.C.A. to promote the cause of temperance? But as the Y.M.C.A. was not officially associated with the meeting any further than to rent the room, it looks like a far-fetched reason to support a weak cause. Surely no reasonable man could take objection to anything that was done at Friday's convention. It is not reasons that some people want, but excuses.

THE OPEN BAR

Why! why! should this fair land of ours Be darkened with this blot Of liquor, and of barroom vile — Is it to be our lot? Nay! let us strive with all our power To put this evil down, We know that right will e'er prevail, And every effort crown.

Remove temptation from the weak By sweeping it aside, And save the boys of every home, Who are their parents' pride. What untold misery this hath wrought, What sorrow, hunger, strife, With little children poorly clad, God save the drunkard's wife.

There's One who knows the grief and shame, Of every broken heart, Caused by the bar room's traffic — dink, Come! let us do our part. The time is here for us to work — To strike the final blow, And, if we cast our vote aright, Will banish every woe.

Our h-meland is the dearest place, With nothing else to mar The comfort and the happiness — But just the open bar. Then let each man a giant be To battle 'gainst the wrong, With courage, strength and fearlessness To help this cause along.

Oh! pause and think, while still there's time To save YOUR precious boy From demon drink, which surely will Body and soul destroy, Let us be guided to the right, By prayer and earnest thought, And may the issue prove to be A blessing long for sought.

Written for The Ontario by "The Boy's Friend."

If the Rowell policy is intended to promote the business of the shops then the owners of the shop licenses should all be out with their coats of working for the Rowell candidates. How many of the proprietors of liquor stores are hustling to elect Rowell? Do not all speak at once.

Should temperance men refuse to accept ninetieths of what the most advanced can demand, or should they accept nothing?

We would issue a word of warning to all those who are working to secure the election of temperance candidates. Everywhere we hear that temperance conservatives are coming over to favor the Rowell policy. But though this may be true, it is bad tactics to advertise the fact. If you know of cases of this kind keep the information strictly to yourself. Do not whisper it to your nearest friend. To those who abandon the sacred precincts of Toryism a heavy lash is applied. It is worse than high treason. There is disgrace here and damnation hereafter. Men of sensitive temperament hesitate to face the volleys of abuse and the certain knowledge that they must go through life forever as marked men, if they approach and view public questions with an open mind, and as free citizens. There is no such penalty imposed for leaving the Liberal party, as the very name would suggest. But at the present time to give away the names of those who intend to come over to support the Rowell policy, is to make them the special objects of attack or persuasion by the well-disciplined and abundantly equipped anti-temperance forces.

What opinion have the mechanics and labor men of Belleville and Trenton upon the policy of the Whitney party in bringing out a conservative candidate in East Hamilton in opposition to Allan Studholme, the only representative that labor has had in the provincial house? In the view of the government party one labor man in the legislature is one too many. Exactly the same tactics were tried in the 1911 election, but so strong was the resentment against the government's course that Mr. Studholme defeated the conservative aspirant by 679 votes. The constituency has since been gerrymandered and the government now hopes to wrest the seat from the labor man. In this aim we believe they will fail for Allan Studholme is extremely popular with all parties, a man of excellent ability, moderate in his views, and of sound judgment. He is a representative of which any constituency or any party might well be proud.

For those faithful temperance friends of the conservative party who are looking about for excuses to betray the cause of temperance, excuses will not be hard to find. Here are a few that are affording much balm to badly bent consciences in West Hastings. — "It's only a Grit dodge." "They held the Temperance convention in the Y.M.C.A. building." "The Methodist and Presbyterian churches are getting to be priest-ridden." "Rowell would abolish the bar and bring in the bottle." "They're bringing politics into the pulpit." "This thing should never have been put into politics." "Let us go on working under local option." "The Whitney government is the best temperance government Ontario has ever had." "I'd vote for Rowell if I thought he'd carry out what he preaches."

When you see a man who has professed to have strong temperance inclinations shifting about to find reasons for his present championship of the bar, you may as well put him down at once as a party man first, and a temperance man a few hundred miles farther down the route. Do not stop to argue matters with him, you are only wasting time. All these contentions, excuses, will speedily resume their explained time and again, but they do not right up the next minute as fresh as ever. Save your ammunition for men who are honestly in doubt, and who are not looking for excuses, but for light and leading.

HELP YOUR CANDIDATE

Temperance workers, and workers for the Rowell policy in Hastings and Prince Edward counties should do all in their power to bring out the vote on election day. Lakeview and indifferent voters often cause the defeat of a good cause by staying at home. Go to the polling booth early and register your vote. Then if you have a carriage or an auto of your own turn out and assist in bringing voters to the polls. Don't wait to be asked to assist. This battle for Temperance is your battle as well as the candidates. It is a battle for home and for principle.

Mr. Rowell has been tendered free use of more autos in Toronto for election day than he can find places for. We would like to see just such a manifestation of enthusiasm in the constituencies along the Bay of Quinte.

HAROLD

Harold—Farmers in this vicinity are working in their hay. Quite a number from here took in the circus at Belleville. Mrs. C. B. McGuire and family of Stirling took tea at Jas. Bailey's on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George Blehau of this place and Mrs. Archer accompanied by Mr. B. Belshaw and lady of Stirling motored to Haycock and spent last Sunday.

IN MEMORIAM

Charles Edward Collins, who died May 26th, 1848, aged 18 years, 11 months. Dedicated to his parents.

Farewell, farewell, dear Charlie A long and last farewell God, in His mercies called you From us with Him to dwell. But the parting, Oh dear Charlie Fills our hearts with pain, For that dear voice we loved so well We will never hear again.

We miss you Oh dear Charlie We miss you everywhere; We miss you from your daily task; We miss the vacant chair, God's love is left severely His Holy Will be done, But we mourn for you, dear Charlie, Since you left your earthly home.

We laid you in your resting place In the little churchyard near, Where we can wander to your grave In silence breathe a prayer, And when our journey's ended, And our task of life is done We hope one day to meet you In our Eternal Home.

THE WRONG MAN

The Intelligence in its report of the (Whitney) meeting at Rednersville says that Mr. G. W. Anderson of Rednersville was chairman. As Mr. Anderson was not at the meeting in question, he certainly did not occupy the chair. Neither is Mr. Anderson supporting the Whitney policy in this campaign.

ON THE VERGE OF A BREAK-DOWN

Wrecked Strength And Shattered Nerves Completely Restored By "Fruit-a-tives", The Famous Medicine Made From Fruit.

Mrs. W. N. KELLY.

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., Aug. 28th, 1913

"I can highly recommend 'Fruit-a-tives' as they did me an awful lot of good and I cannot speak too highly about them. About four years ago, I commenced taking 'Fruit-a-tives' for a general break-down and they did me a world of good. We bought a good many dollars' worth but it was money well spent because they did all that you claim for them. Their action is so pleasant, compared with other laxatives, that I found ONLY pleasure, as well as health, in taking them. They seemed to me to be particularly suited to women, on account of their mild and gentle action, and I trust that some other women may start taking 'Fruit-a-tives' after reading my letter, and if they do, I am satisfied the results will be the same as in my own case." Mrs. W. N. KELLY

A blood purifier, a general tonic, a builder of health and strength, "Fruit-a-tives" is one of the great discoveries of the century in curative medicine. One of the valuable properties of "Fruit-a-tives" is its marvellous cleansing power. When these tablets are taken, they act on the three great eliminating organs of the body—the bowels, kidneys and skin. "Fruit-a-tives" keeps the system free of waste matter, prevents the formation of an excess of uric acid, and insures the blood being pure and clean. "Fruit-a-tives" sweetens the stomach, increases the flow of the digestive juices, makes digestion complete and enables the system to absorb and assimilate an abundance of nourishment from the food eaten.

"Fruit-a-tives" builds up, invigorates, strengthens the whole system. As a general tonic, there is nothing else quite so good. And these tablets are so mild in action, so pleasant to take, that they are particularly suited to women.

50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

AN APPRECIATION

The Territorial Headquarters Staff, on behalf of The Salvation Army in Canada, desire to express, through the Press, their deep and sincere appreciation for the numerous messages of sympathy and condolence received from comrades, friends, churches, societies, and others. Since the event of the sinking of the SS. Empress of Ireland, such messages have been conveyed by cable, telegram, and letter from all parts of the world, and especially the Dominion of Canada.

It is our desire to let it be known that, particularly the assurances of prayer, have strengthened our hearts, have encouraged our confidence, and have stimulated our faith, and, furthermore, as the realization of the extent of our loss through this appalling catastrophe becomes keener day by day, the kind words of cheer and counsel will help us in our endeavors to carry on the great work of The Salvation Army in extending the Kingdom of God upon earth.

Write today. Address: Mrs. M. Summers, Box 87, Windsor, Ont.

The Legend of Aconite.

Aconite is classed by homeopathic authorities as the patriarch of drugs as far as literature is concerned. It comes down to the lower regions and is carried there though the wreck of the "silver age mythology." It is told how Hercules went down to the lower regions and carried the three headed hound Cerberus to the upper world. That ferocious beast was raging at this treatment, and the iron that fell to the ground was the origin of aconite, for it grew up from the froth as from seeds. It was on a bleak, wind swept hill or mountain, and it is in such regions that the plant grows to-day. This hill, in Pontica, was known of old as "Acontos."

MANIFESTO

Ontario Elections, and Temperance Reform

To the Methodist People in Ontario:

THE Ontario group of the Department of Temperance and Moral Reform of the Methodist Church, realizing the importance of the present provincial political campaign to the great temperance reform, and through it to every phase of social service, would urge upon you the following considerations:

1. The Methodist Church and Temperance.

The attitude of the Methodist Church towards the liquor traffic has always been resolute opposition. We have never compromised with the traffic in strong drink. We have ever been determinedly aggressive in the unceasing struggle to destroy this enemy of the health, happiness, homes and hopes of the people. Our readiness to participate in this great reform is demonstrated in our resolutions in General and Annual Conferences and every Church court, and our hearty co-operation in every community with those who labor for the cleansing of our statutes of courts, and our hearty co-operation in every community with every legal sanction of a traffic which knows no law, and which exacts any penalty, not any age, nor sex, and is the principal cause of crime, the occasion of much poverty, suffering and sorrow, and the greatest factor in much of the degradation of humanity and destruction of our race.

2. The Issue is Upon Us.

The present attitude of industry, commerce and society is largely favorable towards total abstinence. This attitude demands advanced legislation to effectually curtail the operations and remedy the evils of the liquor traffic. We believe to produce this attitude, it is our unquestioned responsibility to stand unflinchingly upon our well-known principles, and put forth every possible effort to secure the nomination of candidates known to favor and support prohibition, and to use our votes as a solemn trust to elect such candidates.

3. The Opportunity is Upon Us.

We are in the midst of a Provincial election. The first place in the campaign has been given to the cause of temperance. Other issues are important, but the dominant note is: (1) The abolition of the bar, including therein the abolition of all hotel and club licenses, and therewith the treating system; (2) The enactment of such other restrictions upon the residue of the traffic as will limit its operations and remedy its evils; (3) The removal of the three-fifths clause from the local option laws of the province, and the use of that law for the removal of all shop licenses which may exist in any municipality. It is our conviction, in view of our persistent purpose to secure the prohibition of all legislation favoring the traffic in strong drink, that it is our duty as citizens and as Christians to do our utmost to secure the nomination and election of members of the Legislature from every constituency, who will vote the liquor traffic fairly represented in regard to those issues which are of such supreme importance.

4. The Responsibility is Upon Us

With great earnestness, we urge all our people to stand loyally by these principles, preferring them to political partisanship, and in every possible way to use their influence to elect as members of the Legislature those candidates who, regardless of party affiliations, will undertake, if elected, to introduce and support such legislation. This is the more important, because we are to a large extent responsible for this movement to abolish the bar. In 1912, subsequent to the referendum, we united with others in urging upon the government of that day the enactment of a law for "The abolition of the public bar, the treating system, and the prohibition of the sale of liquor to minors, and the prohibition of such other restrictions on the liquor traffic as shall most effectually curtail its operations and remedy its evils." Our Church Courts, our pulpits, press and platform have many times endorsed this declaration. We must support this policy to consistently meet our responsibility.

5. Let Us Act Strongly and Unitedly, Now!

Believing there is no other issue of such importance before the people in this election, and in view of the increasing anxiety of the leaders in commerce, industry, and society to destroy this greatest menace to the prosperity, happiness and comfort of the people, to united and strong-hearted effort in every possible way to secure the election of such representatives as will secure for us the most advanced temperance legislation that may be within the jurisdiction of the Legislature.

Let us fight as independently and earnestly for our principles, as the liquor interests will fight for their licenses, and the next Legislature will surely "Abolish the Bar-Room."

Signed on behalf of the Ontario Group of the Department of Temperance and Moral Reform.

A. CARMAN, Chairman.

T. ALBERT MOORE, Secretary.

Toronto, 11th June, 1914.

ENTHUSIASM INCREASING AT MEETINGS

Splendid Rally for Mr. Sinclair at Gilbert's School House Last Night.

The public meeting held last night at Gilbert's school house in the interest of Mr. H. E. Sinclair, Abolish the bar candidate in West Hastings was a fine tribute to the popularity of the candidate and the growing enthusiasm for the cause he represents. Mr. Herbert Finkle a well-known local conservative, but a thoroughly earnest temperance man occupied the chair. The school house was well filled, many ladies being present. The speakers were Mr. A. Bailey, a well known conservative of Belleville, Rev. E. E. Howard, of Bayside and Mr. Sinclair. At the close of the meeting a number of leading conservatives present came forward and tendered their services to do what they could to assist in the promotion of the movement.

CADET FUNERAL FOR THE LATE F. E. CATON

The funeral of the late Frankie E. Caton was held yesterday afternoon. The Rev. H. S. Osborne conducted service at the residence of his mother, South Front street. There was a large number of floral tributes. Many of the school children were in attendance including the cadet corps of Queen Mary school of which deceased little lad was a member. The cadets escorted the remains to the foot of Murray's Hill. Four cadets were bearers, Masters Virgil James, Wilbert Howes, Hiram Bulter and Roy Naylor. The interment was made in Belleville cemetery, where the Rev. Mr. Osborne of Bridge Street Methodist Church conducted the last sad rites.

Saturday's Market.

The market this morning while fairly large was not long drawn out. By eleven o'clock things had been pretty well cleaned up by the marketing ladies. Prices showed few changes today. Eggs 21 to 22 cents a dozen, butter 24 to 25 cents a lb., Fowls 65 to 70 cents each. Strawberries were considerably lower in price, namely 10 cents per box. The offerings were quickly brought up. Hides and wool prices were washed clean 20 to 27 cents per pound; unbleached flannel 15 to 16 cents per yard; butchers' hides 12; farmers' hides 10 to 12 per pound; desks 75 to 85c. Potatoes sell at $1.50 per bag.

It is wise to prevent disorder. Many causes lead to disorders of the stomach and few are free from them. At the first manifestation that the stomach and liver are not performing their functions, a course of Beecham's Vegetable Pills should be tried, and it will be found that the digestive organs will speedily resume healthy action. Laxatives and cathartics are so blinding in their effects that no other preparation could be so effective as they.

NARROW ESCAPE OF JAS. DEMPSEY

(Special to The Ontario)

We are in receipt of the following report from our Ameliasburg correspondent:—

Mr. James Dempsey had a very narrow escape on Saturday last while on his way to Trenton. The horse he was driving, fell into an open bridge on the County road and the sudden stop threw Mr. Dempsey over the dash-board and he went into the open part also. He owes his escape to some people who were near at the time. He and Emma escaped with a few bruises but the harness and rig were badly damaged.

MEETING AT POINT ANNE WELL ATTENDED

Mr. Holgate has been holding a series of public meetings this week, all of which have been well attended and everywhere he has been receiving hearty assurances of support not only from his own party but from many prominent and influential conservatives.

Last night a public meeting was held in the school house at Point Anne at which there was a good attendance of the local electors. Rev. Mr. Neal occupied the chair and spoke briefly. The speaker of the evening was Rev. W. G. Clarke, pastor of the Tabernacle church, of Belleville, who delivered a masterly address, lasting over an hour, upon the outstanding issue of this campaign. Mr. Clarke showed up the falsity of the double map that is doing service for the open bar party in this campaign, and the bogus nature of the claims of the Whitney administration to pose as a temperance party.

MAPLE VIEW

Maple View, June 20—Some of the farmers have started haying and according to the looks of most of the fields it will only be a short job this year.

POLITICS IN THE PULPIT

There are some people who we believe are honestly not very clear as to the propriety of a clergyman discussing a question in the pulpit that has become an issue between two political parties and about which there are some differences of opinion in every congregation.

No one seriously questions the right of a minister to discuss the subject of temperance in the abstract in the pulpit or anywhere else. All are agreed upon this.

All the churches have clearly seen that preaching temperance in the abstract on Sunday with concrete bars undoing their work the other six days of the week was about as foolish and ineffectual as texts of scripture addressed to a wolf intent upon the capture of a lamb.

The clergy of all denominations have discovered that the greatest enemy of their work, as of society in general, was the organized and licensed liquor traffic. Moral suasion and the educational method have been tried from the time of Solomon down, but the same tale of ruin and desolation is repeated today as was the case when the great Hebrew seer uttered his solemn warning about the wine and the adder's sting.

Moral suasion grievously failed, and the churches as the result of centuries of chastened experience have now pretty unanimously reached the conclusion that the only way to arrest the spread of the evil is total prohibition.

Years ago pressure was applied to the then Liberal government of Ontario, and the Local Option law was passed. This partial measure of prohibition was not accepted by the churches as a finality but as the best thing obtainable at the time. It marked progress.

Then in 1902 a union convention of the churches asked for the abolition of the bar and drinking in clubs. No party was willing to assume the responsibility for such a revolutionary measure until Mr. Rowell became the leader of the Liberal party in Ontario. He took the churches at their word, and "Abolish the Bar" became one of the planks of the Liberal platform.

Now the question arises, are the ministers and laymen who urged upon Mr. Rowell and his predecessors the adoption of his course, to sit back and do nothing? Are they to leave Rowell to fight alone the battle of the churches, and are they to forsake him in the midst of the contest that they have been instrumental in thrusting upon him?

"Abolish the Bar" is not a political but a moral issue. Or, rather, it is political only that it must be in politics sufficiently to pass the legislature.

It is "in politics" only because Sir James Whitney has three times refused to take it out of politics by passing a measure in agreement with the liberal leader giving the temperance people what they desired.

It therefore again comes back to the question of whether the churches shall strive with all their power to secure what they have unitedly been demanding for more than a decade. We do not honestly see how they can refuse without proclaiming themselves sanctified shams, animated neither by sincerity nor consistency.

If a clergyman were to advocate the election of Rowell because of his attitude toward Tax Reform it would be a different matter, for Tax Reform, however important generally speaking, is no especial concern of the churches. "But "Abolish the Bar" is the business of every church and minister who supported such a movement.

We hold it is not only proper but their express duty to advocate this cause both in the pulpit and outside. This course means sincerity and consistency. This is not politics but good faith.

We hear that the church is becoming "pries-ridden." This is not the case. There are no threats of eternal torment. There are merely appeals to the reason and to reasonable men to be fair, to be honest with themselves, and faithful to the cause they have espoused.

In adopting this course, as many have already done, they will unclose the flood-gates of vituperation and abuse. It will require men of courage and faith and strong moral fibre to do their full duty and stand the test, but they can reflect upon these words,—

"The great and good Of every age and clime, Too often mocked, misunderstood, And murdered in their time; And spite, of ignorance and hate, Known and exalted, soon or late."

MUGWUMPS

A "Mugwump" was originally a high chief among the Algonquin Indians. It was first applied to in a political way in the United States when in 1884 a large number of republicans left their party, declared their independence, and were christened "mugwumps."

Hence it comes to mean an independent in politics, and is generally used as a term of reproach. The name has now been applied to Mr. R. J. Graham, a leading conservative of this city, a gentleman of pronounced opinions on the temperance question, who was too firm an adherent to his life-long principles to follow the lead of his party in a defence of the Open Bar.

In his address at the city hall last night he plainly demonstrated that there were others who had been in the camp of the "mugwumps" from time to time.

When he had been a temperance candidate in West Hastings some years ago, the very journal that now called him a "mugwump" had supported W. H. Biggar, the Grit candidate in opposition.

There were two illustrious senators from West Hastings, men with a long and almost unbroken conservative record behind them, men to whom anything savouring of independence was traitorous, treasonable, and altogether wicked. These two eminent men he found less than two weeks ago voting against an exceedingly important government measure to recoup depositors in Farmer's banks.

Incidentally they did their best to prevent a large number of their old supporters and friends in West Hastings and North Hastings who had been depositors in the Belleville branch, from reaping the benefit of the beneficent government measure. But for reasons, undefined, and unfathomable, as well as undefended, they broke from their party, they betrayed their chivalrous and high-minded leader in the hour of need, and went over with the noble thirteen conservative senators to the camp of the mugwumps.

Mr. Graham might have added another name to his list—that of Mr. J. W. Johnson. The writer recalls that when a student at Stirling high school in 1890 he listened to two remarkable addresses upon the subject of Unrestricted Reciprocity and the speakers were Mr. Roger C. Clute and Mr. J. W. Johnson. Electors who recall the memorable campaign of 1981 know where Mr. Johnson stood at that time, how he broke with his old leader and did his best to promote Hon. Wilfrid Laurier to the premiership.

The Ontario has no fault to find with Mr. Johnson because he has at times been true to his own convictions, regardless of his party alliances. In fact this sturdy independence of mind that Mr. Johnson has at times shown has been to one of his qualities that we have much admired.

Independence, or mugwumpism, or whatever we like to call it, as long as motives are worthy, is not always and altogether a discreditable thing. It is less so, we should say, than the lamb-like stupidity of men who whoop for their party at all times and upon all occasions.

Calling R. J. Graham names does not alter the fact that through a long public and business career he has remained true to the temperance principles that he espoused as a young man. No one can truthfully say that upon the present occasion his attitude is not consistent or his motives unworthy. Upon the temperance question Robert J. Graham is no mugwump.

LOCAL OPTION

There are many opponents of the R. J.'s policy who profess to believe that Ontario is making fine progress towards total prohibition by the present means, that is to say by local option and the Canada Temperance act.

Rev. W. G. Clarke in his convincing address at the city hall on Thursday night, clearly demonstrated that further progress by means of local option was practically barred. It was almost hopeless in the remaining municipalities of the province, about three hundred in number, to secure the passage of local option, because the liquor business was so strongly entrenched.

Last January the temperance people tried to abolish 131 bars. They succeeded in only 36 cases. There are still 1,300 bars remaining in the province. Therefore, as Mr. Clarke calculated, it would take just fifty years at that rate of progress to make the map of Ontario all white by the local option method of bleaching.

This love for local option is an entirely new thing with many of its present admirers. What steps have any of the advocates of local option, who are just now making themselves heard, ever taken to bring about a local option contest in Belleville? How many of them did any work on the Citizens' committee that was formed here three years ago to ascertain the sentiment of the city about the submission of a local option bylaw?

Local option has unquestionably rendered excellent service in its way of putting the bar out of business. But local option has pretty well reached the limit of its achievement, unless the three-fifths barrier is removed. If that were done there would be another advance, but an impassable wall would again be reached in a few years' time. There are some communities so wedded to their idols that they would never pass local option in a hundred years, even by a straight majority.

Every resident of local option districts knows the difficulties that arise in the "dry" areas, because some town or village in the center of the district stubbornly continues to remain "wet."

"Abolish the bar" would clean up all these boozarums at once. Thirteen hundred licenses would be swept out of existence in one day. Nine-tenths of the province would pass under prohibition as far as it was in the power of the province to grant it. The remaining part could be made dry by local option applied to the shop licenses with straight majority.

Temperance men, do you want these booze centers to remain, making local option ineffective or will you wipe the slate at once?

Bang the booze by banishing the bar.

What has the Bar Room done to help YOU?

Mark your ballots—Sinclair, Holgate, and Parliament.

Don't vote for a party that is ashamed of its own platform.

Has the booze business made YOU or any of YOUR friends rich?

It's something new for Mr. Johnson to be afraid to express his sentiments.

Whitney's method of bar abolition will require fifty years and then some to work out. Rowell's method will do it in a day. Take your choice.

The three-fifths clause keeps open the Brantford and Peterborough bars. Whitney is responsible for their being open today.

Finding that they are being beaten in the Province in the bar business, the Whitneyites are now swinging round to the bilingual school question, declaring that Rowell is in league with the Catholics. What next?

People who may imagine that Whitney has given us the best temperance government the Province ever had should enquire why all the liquor men are voting for him.

President Hawkins wanted no temperance sentiment expressed at the North Hastings Open Bar convention held at Marmora last Thursday. Glad that one Whitneyite is honest enough to make no pretence about it.

The conservative convention at London that nominated Hon. Adam Beck was held in the Y. M. C. A. building. Wonder if the liberals of London are raving about the desecration of a sacred edifice and threatening to cancel subscriptions.

Under Mr. Rowell there will be no increase of shop licenses. In nine-tenths of Ontario today there is not a single shop license. Where there are any they can be wiped out by local option with a straight majority and no three-fifths handicap.

A commercial traveller yesterday offering to take bets on even money in a public place in this city that Rowell would have a majority and there were no takers. Another traveller told Candidate Sinclair that the Abolish the Bar movement was "on rollers." Travellers know more of the trend of public sentiment than any other class. Every day certainly makes it look more like Rowell.

Monday is nomination day. In 1911 there were twenty-two supporters of Sir James Whitney elected by acclamation. Rowell was defeated before he entered the fight. In 1914 you will be able to count all the conservatives who will be elected by acclamation on the fingers of your one hand, and perhaps have two or three fingers to spare.

Rowell held eighteen seats in the legislature just dissolved. The new house after redistribution will consist of one hundred and eleven seats. In a number of Mr. Rowell's late constituencies the government has made many shifts in an endeavor to make it more difficult for Mr. Rowell to hold his following. It would need a great many more shifts to hold back this abolish-the-bar movement.

Reports from all parts of Prince Edward indicate that Nelson Parliament will head th poll by a good majority. The Licensed Bar party has been foolish enough to trade horses while crossing a stream. Robert Norman, the old representative, is naturally very sore, and is working against Dempsey in Picton. The Whitneyites need all their time: even where they are united.

On Monday last the Canadian Pacific Railway Company paid in wages over the whole system $6,000,000. This is the monthly record in round numbers, 120,000 cheques being drawn every month. It seems only the day before yesterday when 50,000 cheques were deemed to represent a tremendous monthly wage list. The number of employees grows all the time, in spite of careful appointment and economic working. These cheques go all over the Dominion.

The Baptist Canadian said editorially last week:

"We are free to confess that we like the policy, not merely because it is the product of Mr. Rowell and his followers, but because we believe it to be what is sorely needed in our province, and because we have the conviction that it is practicable. With such a policy before them the electors of this province surely cannot but go to the polls on June 29 in a serious frame of mind, without political bias ruling them, and with the determination to cast their votes in favor of a policy that is aimed at the obliteration of the retail sale of liquor."

The Christian Science Monitor, of Boston, states that at the annual business meeting of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, reports of the growth of Christian Science throughout the world and the report of the clerk as to the increase in church membership showed that during the past year Christian Science has had the greatest growth in its history. Many new organizations have been formed during the year in the United States, in Alaska and in foreign countries, including England, Scotland, Switzerland, Australia, New Zealand, China and South Africa. In Ottawa, Ont., a handsome new church building has been erected by the Christian Science people.

Rev. T. Albert Moore said in public meeting in Montreal the other day:

I say to you what I shall do on June 29th, although I have cast my vote for the other side in elections past. There is only one way to act to-day, and I shall cast my vote for that party which will banish the liquor business from the Province of Ontario. That is what I am going to do. And when I asked those fifty men what they were going to do, I was surprised to find that all but one of them intended to vote for temperance. More than four-fifths of them had changed their vote in order to banish the bar. It is not a question of party. It is a question of principle. It is not a question of standing by the old machine. It is a question of standing by the manhood and womanhood of the Province, and caring for the boys and girls of making a cleaner province for the citizens of the next generation to grow up in."

A good deal more depends on the outcome of this campaign than the fate of the bar-room. The vote on June twenty-ninth will not only determine whether the bars are to go or to stay; it will afford a basis of judgement for the general public of how much weight is to be attached to the professions and declarations of Christian men and women who have taken advanced ground on the temperance question. For the man or woman who is satisfied with something short of the policy agreed upon by the church bodies and the organized temperance forces there is still freedom of choice between the temperance policies of the two political parties; but for those who have been demanding the abolition of the bar as the least of the requirements of a temperance policy it seems to be an issue of personal good faith from which there is no possibility of honorable escape—Woodstock Sentinel Review.

The cartoon in colors, "Is that you, Daddy?" showing a little chap encountering his father, drunk, at the door of the bar-room, which will be displayed in poster form all over the Province next week, is from the pencil of Arthur Henning, the well-known artist, and comes to the cause of temperance reform as "an unsolicited cartoon conceived and executed by a lifelong Conservative."—Globe.

It's always handy to have a variety of arguments for use in the personal canvass. For instance, if you are talking to a man who is opposed to the abolition of the bar you can say: "That man Rowell is terribly in earnest and if he is returned to power he will close every bar in the Province." But if you are talking to a man who is in favor of abolishing the bar you can put it this way: "That man Rowell is not in earnest; he is simply trying to make political capital. He has no intention of closing the bars." There is likely to be trouble, of course, when these arguments are made to confront each other; but you can be some place else by that time.

Lesson XIII.—Second Quarter, For June 28, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Heb. iv, 14 to v, 10. Quarterly Review—Golden Text, Luke xix, 10.—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Lesson I.—Christ's Table Talk, Luke ix, 7-24. Golden Text, Luke xiv, 11. "Every one that exalteth himself shall be humbled, and he that humbly himself shall be exalted"—a threefold message in the house of one of the chief Pharisees who had invited Him to eat bread on the Sabbath day; a message on humility for the guests, on recompense at the resurrection for the host and man's indifference to God's provision and invitation for one of the guests who spoke of the kingdom.

Lesson II.—The Journey to Emmaus, Luke xxiv, 13-35. Golden Text, Rom. viii, 34. "It is Christ Jesus that died—yea, rather, that was raised from the dead." Here we see the reality of Christ's resurrection body having the nail wounds in hands and feet, a tangible body of flesh and bones, that could be handled, that could walk and eat and also pass through unopened doors and vanish at pleasure.

Lesson III.—The Cost of Discipleship, Luke xiv, 25-35. Golden Text, Matt. xvi, 25. "Whosoever would save his life shall lose it, and whosoever shall lose his life for my sake shall find it." The difference between being a Christian and a disciple is very marked, the cost of our salvation falling wholly on Christ, but the cost of discipleship on the believer, salvation being a gift, but reward in proportion to service.

Lesson IV.—The Lost Sheep and the Lost Coin, Luke xv, 1-10. Golden Text, Luke xv, 10. "There is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth"—a threefold parable concerning the love of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit. This lesson concerns the Son and the Spirit. The sinner's helplessness and proneness to stray is seen in the sheep, and his deadness in the piece of money.

Lesson V.—The Lost Son, Luke xv, 11-24. Golden Text, Luke xv, 18. "I will arise and go to my father and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven and in thy sight." That was not all he intended to say (verses 18, 19), but it was nearly all that he did say (verse 21). The father's welcome cut it short. The whole parable teaches us what God thinks of lost ones and how unwilling He is that any should perish.

Lesson VI.—The Unjust Steward, Luke xvi, 1-13. Golden Text, Luke xvi, 10. "He that is faithful in a very little is faithful also in much, and he that is unrighteous in a very little is unrighteous also in much." We are stewards of all that with which the Lord has entrusted us, whether it be the gospel or talents or time or money, and we are using it either for ourselves or for Him, for time or eternity.

Lesson VII.—The Rich Man and Lazarus, Luke xvi, 19-31. Golden Text, Prov. xxi, 13. "Whoso stoppeth his ears at the cry of the poor, he shall also cry, but shall not be heard." This is a story of the rich poor and the poor rich. The rich man lived only for himself and had no use for God or His word and no belief in a future till he found himself in torment.

Lesson VIII.—Unprofitable Servants, Luke xvii, 1-10. Golden Text, 1 Cor. i, 31. "He that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord." If we do only what seems to be our duty, what we think we ought to do, we are unprofitable, but when the love of Christ constrains us and we are so occupied with Him and His kingdom and glory as to be above being offended with people or even with Himself, whatever He may do, we shall better glorify Him.

Lesson IX.—The Grateful Samaritan, Luke xvii, 11-19. Golden Text, Luke xvii, 18. "Were there none found that returned to give glory to God save this stranger?" We wrote on the Holy Spirit lesson in 1 Cor. ii, as well as on the leper lesson, and saw that all unbelievers as well as Israel are spiritually lepers and unclean, but when the Holy Spirit, who alone can convince of sin, shines in us by His word, then come cleansing and real gratitude.

Lesson X.—The Coming of the Kingdom, Luke xvii, 20-37. Golden Text, Luke xvii, 21. "Lo, the kingdom of God is within you"—more correctly, as in the margin, "among you." The kingdom which was at hand did not come as He said in Luke xix, 11, 12. The kingdom is postponed and will not come till He shall return in glory with His church, now being gathered.

Lesson XI.—The Friend of Sinners, Luke xvii, 9-14; xix, 1-10. Golden Text, Mark ii, 17. "I came not to call the righteous, but sinners." There is no Saviour nor salvation for such as think that they are good enough, or for such as the publican in the temple or Zaccheus, for poor or rich, there is abundant mercy and a welcome from Him who came to seek and to save the lost.

Lesson XII.—The Great Refusal, Mark x, 17-31. Golden Text, Luke xxi, 33. "Ye cannot serve God and mammon." The great contrast is between the empty helpless little children who came to His arms and were blessed and the rich young ruler, full of his riches and his own righteousness, who went away empty because he was not willing to be emptied.

JUNE WEDDINGS.

LEE-POST At the residence of Mr. George R. Post, West Huntingdon, a very quiet wedding took place, June 17th, when their third daughter, Mary E. was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to W. H. Lee of Belleville. Miss Maggie Post, sister of the bride played the wedding march and the bride who was given away by her father looked charming in a gown of cream satin trimmed with shadow lace and pearls. She also wore the rulle veil, which was caught up with snail and roses. She carried a shower bouquet of carnations, roses and lily of the valley. After the ceremony which was performed by Rev. A. E. Tonkin of West Huntingdon, the bride and groom received the congratulations of their friends and then all returned to the dining room where a sumptuous dinner was served. The young couple left on the G.T.R. for London, St. Thomas, Bothwell, and other western points. The bride travelled in a navy blue suit with hat to match. The presents were both numerous and beautiful, the groom's gift to the bride was a gold watch and chain and to the organist a bracelet. On their return the young couple will reside in this city.

NIX-VANDERVOORT

On Wednesday, June 17th by Rev. W. G. Clarke, at the Tabernacle parsonage, Charles Carman Nix of Rawdon and Lela Vandervoort of Wellington were united in marriage.

BRIGHT LITTLE BOY DEAD

At an early hour this morning, Frankie Edward Caton, aged twelve years and eleven months, died at the family residence, 65 Front street. Deceased was the only son of Mrs. Ed. Caton. Besides his mother, a family of six sisters survive. He was a bright boy, an attendant of Queen Alexandra school in Miss Fleming's class and an attendant of Dundas St. Mission Sunday school. He was taken ill at the beginning of last month. The sympathy of the public is extended to the family in the loss of their loved one.

BIBLE SOCIETY ELECTED OFFICERS

Foxboro—The annual meeting of the Bible Society was held on Wednesday evening of last week. There was to have been an illustrated lecture but for some unknown reason the lecturer failed to appear, much to the disappointment of the audience. However, the regular business meeting was conducted and the officers for the ensuing year elected as follows—Pres.—Mr. John A. Holgate. Sec.—Mr. George McCullough. To be compensated for the one dis-appointment we have had two consecutive evenings of illustrated lectures. This week both addresses were given by Mr. Humphrey a student from Toronto University and were in the interests of the Forward Movement in the E. L. societies. The address on Monday night was by the Rev. Mr. Thomas Crosby. The other subject was "The conditions under which the people live in the slums and foreign quarters of our large cities." Both lectures were entertaining and instructive. The topic of all absorbing interest is, of course, the approaching election. Mr. John A. Holgate, than whom none is more worthy, will, we hope, carry the "Spanish Bar" banner to victory on June 29. One thing is certain if the pro-cess-dily Christian voters of Hastings county put principle before party in this contest the election of Mr. Holgate and Mr. Sinclair is assured. We think it would be well if the men would learn to sing a new version of an old hymn viz. "Help us Lord on polling day, to vote according as we pray." Here is an incident that came under our notice the other day. A gentleman refused to vote for the banishment of the bar on the ground that his boy was in no danger from the open bar and never would be arrested. He was too thoroughly instructed and grounded in temperance principles ever to yield to any temptation of that sort. This seems a very selfish view to take. Because your own boy is safe in all the greater reason why you should try to save some other man's boy who has not the knowledge or moral strength of your boy.

RECITING BANK CLERK IS BACK IN MONUREAL

Montreal, June 16—Looking tired and careworn, Vasil Delmege, the clerk of the Merchants Bank of Canada, who was arrested in Trenton, Ont., on Sunday night, on a charge of having stepped off the train that arrived at Bonaventure station at six o'clock tonight in charge of Deputy High Constable Cyr. Delmege was taken in a cab to police headquarters, where he was locked up to appear tomorrow morning in the arraignment court.

AMELIASBURG

Ameliasburg, 4th Con.—Mr. and Mrs. Hermann and son Allan were visitors at Mr. Chas. Sager's on Sunday. Miss Mina Mitchellson of Belleville has been visiting her sister, Mrs. E. Wannamaker. Mr. and Mrs. John Humphrey of Concession were guests of the former's sister, Mrs. Chas. Carnrite, on Sunday. We are pleased to report Mrs. A. Blackly and Mrs. W. Masters are both improving after their recent illnesses. Mrs. Thomas Wood, delegate for the Ameliasburg Ladies' Auxiliary at the recent convention held at Trenton, has returned and reports an interesting program. Mr. and Mrs. R. Dolan visited at Pleasant Bay recently. Our street surely is deserted today. The presents have been taken in the Ringling circus. Mrs. D. Whitney was in Belleville on Saturday. Mr. Chas. Sager has improved the appearance of his buildings by a fresh coat of paint. Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Carnrite and family were guests at Mr. Albert Lent's in Robin's Mills Sunday. Mr. Claude Wannamaker made a business trip to Belleville last week. The parliamentary candidates made you a call yet? We have been favored today. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Giles of Center were visitors at Mr. N. Gibson's recently.

BASKET PICNIC

Warmer weather and rain is needed to help the growing crops. Mr. W. Eggleston spent a couple of days visiting friends near Stirling. The Misses May and Frances Allord and Edith Courney returned to their homes in Tweed on Monday. The police know to whom it belongs. Mrs. Robert Chesborough, R.M.D., No. 2, Trenton, brought a Ford inner tube to the police station, which she found near Bay-side. The police know to whom it belongs. Mrs. A. R. Walker and Mrs. W. B. Deacon of this city and Mrs. Geo. Henley of Ottawa, left on Monday for Mrs. John B. where their mother, Mrs. Jacob Hicks is seriously ill.

AROUND THE CITY

Auto Ran Into Tree. A Ford car met a Waterloo last evening on the east side of Foster Ave just north of Victoria Ave. A lady was driving, an attempt to make a gangway crossing with the result that the car going too fast struck a tree north of the crossing. When the collision came a gentleman sitting at the right, lurched forward and with his shoulders smashed the glass in the windshield. The front of the car prevented serious damage to the engine.

Abusive Language.

Michael Luckas appeared in police court this morning to answer a charge of having used abusive language to citizens. He apologized and pleaded guilty and was fined $1.00 and costs.

Auto Robbed of Contents.

A citizen's automobile was robbed of all its contents on the circus grounds last night. The missing articles are: A light brown body coat, gent's rain coat, lady's red sweater, rain coat and bag, rug, total value of $33.

People Missing Things.

A lady reports that a simplex heating iron was stolen from the rear of her premises on the east hill. Mr. Wm. H. Doran reported that a clubbag had been taken from one of Asmetine's backs. The police at once recovered the bag. Mr. Claude Hampton reported that his bicycle had been stolen or removed on Tuesday night or Wednesday morning. The wheel was recovered.

Kept Fine Patrol.

The police kept an admirable patrol of Front Street and the main streets leading therefrom yesterday and fortunately there were no accidents although the crowds were dense and motor vehicles numerous.

Notes

Miss Templeton found a watch on Front Street. This was left at the police station. An official found a lady's handbag on the circus grounds and handed it to the police.

The Old Story.

Two policemen answered a call last evening to the corner of Geddes and College streets where a man was said to be lying on a vacant lot meaning as if he had been beaten. The officers found that it was a case of drunk, and as the man was able to go home, he was allowed to walk.

Jewish Boy Missing.

Toronto sent a message by telephone yesterday stating that a young Jew aged thirteen years, and named I. Sobel, wearing a gray sweater had left the Queen City with Ringling's circus. The Belleville police were asked to aid in the search. The local officers investigated but did not find the boy.

Auto Turned Turtle.

A party of visitors in town last evening in endeavoring to turn around on Front Street, ran their car over the walk south of the Sloan Company's and struck the fence with but little damage to the automobile.

For a Broke Leg.

One of the horses of Ringling Bros circus broke its leg yesterday near the G. T. R. crossing not far from the circus grounds. The animal had to be destroyed and drawn away. The horse was a fine valuable specimen of heavy draught type.

Card of Thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Robbins desired to express their most heartfelt gratitude for the kindness and sympathy shown by their friends in their recent bereavement.

DIED.

CATON—In Belleville on Thursday, June 18th, 1914, Frankie Edward Caton, aged 12 years, 11 months.

Second Concession Sidney

Second Con. Sidney, June 17—Children's day at Centenary church was observed last Sunday. An interesting and instructive sermon was delivered by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Howard. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with flowers.

Miss Kathleen Vandervoort spent last Sunday under the parental roof. Mr. and Mrs. R. Rollins of Sine had their way with Mr. and Mrs. Sine on their way from Belleville on Wednesday.

Mr. M. W. Sine spent last Friday and Saturday on a business trip to Stirling and Sine. A meeting in the interests of Mr. Sinclair will be held in the school house on Friday evening. Everybody had a holiday on Wednesday and went to the circus. It takes Ringling Brothers to draw the crowd.

Warmer weather and rain is needed to help the growing crops. Mr. W. Eggleston spent a couple of days visiting friends near Stirling. The Misses May and Frances Allord and Edith Courney returned to their homes in Tweed on Monday. The police know to whom it belongs. Mrs. Robert Chesborough, R.M.D., No. 2, Trenton, brought a Ford inner tube to the police station, which she found near Bay-side. The police know to whom it belongs. Mrs. A. R. Walker and Mrs. W. B. Deacon of this city and Mrs. Geo. Henley of Ottawa, left on Monday for Mrs. John B. where their mother, Mrs. Jacob Hicks is seriously ill.

MELVILLE

Melville—The heavy shower of Sunday has done much good to the crops in this section, particularly the hay which was much in need of it. ART EXHIBIT AT ALBERT COLLEGE

The art exhibit took place at Albert College Thursday afternoon and was most successful. Hundreds of citizens viewed the beautiful work. The official examiner, Professor Sherwood, left the following report: "By a careful examination of the work in the Department of Fine Arts at Albert College, I am pleased to see a steady advancement on the part of the pupils, in Water Colors as well as China painting. The constant effort to attain to a natural appreciation of the best that exists around us, is after all, the chief object in the pursuit of all the Fine Arts. The application in designing of the various parts of plants and flowers to a practical construction of a mechanical device, is itself an evidence of Fine Art Culture. The age is one of utility, and demands as a result an interpretation of the finest thought of a cultured mind in all the inventions and constructions of modern life. It must be apparent to all that a study of Fine Arts is as necessary to a successful electrician as to a successful painter or an architect. The plan adopted at Albert College has always been in line with the most advanced ideas in the Fine Arts. All that it was in the past is today, and is to be congratulated upon its successful close to a well spent year of work, since you last visit, in June 1913. One feature of the exhibition that is particularly pleasant to notice is the fact that all the pictures are 'new', and new designs and new designs and drawings are a characteristic of the well covered walls of the Art Gallery. Miss Strong has been most successful in the present year's exhibition by giving her pupils so practical a course of training. The best results thus attained are of necessity, a credit to the college." Signed—W. A. Sherwood, A.R.C.A.

Those exhibiting are—Water colors—Gertrude King, Eva Mitchell, Bessie Bent, Cora Charters, Ethel Perry, Mrs. Roote, Olla Earle, Irene MacLennan, Grace Snider, Gertrude King, Nellie Couler, Cora Charters, Jennie Hughson, China—Cora Charters, Clara Reed, Mrs. Roote, Gertrude King, Olla Earle, Florence McCurdy, Jennie Hughson, Irene MacLennan, Grace Snider, Drawing and Designing—Jennie Hughson, Gertrude King, and Ethel Berry.

The guests also visited the Household Science rooms, where afternoon was held under the supervision of Miss Spargo, the capable teacher in that department. Teachers and students received their friends upon the lawn, and the many young girls in their pretty white dresses furnished the prettiest of all scenes.

PERFECT HEALTH DUE TO THE BLOOD No Girl or Woman Need be Constantly Ailing and Unhappy. Nature intended every girl and every woman to be happy, attractive, active and healthy. Yet too many of them find their lives saddened by suffering—nearly always because their blood is in the chains of disease. They suffer from depressing weariness and periodical headaches. Dark lines form under their eyes, their heart palpitates violently after the slightest exertion, and they are often attacked with fainting spells. These are only a few of the miseries of bloodlessness. Nothing can rescue girls and women from the inevitable decline that follows anaemia except a generous supply of new, rich, red blood, and nothing has ever proved so successful in creating red, good blood as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Thousands and thousands of girls and women owe their good health and charming complexion to the use of this medicine. Here is one example of its power to cure: Mrs. Rose Rall, Toronto, Ont., says "For a long time I suffered with anaemia, nervousness and general debility. In fact I was beginning to feel a positive wreck. I tried several medicines and emulsions. For a time I would feel better for taking them and then the effect would wear off, leaving me worse than before. The continued drain on my health altered my appearance, my friends telling me I had a haggard and worn appearance. This naturally did not help to improve me, as you know no woman likes to be told she looks 'worn out.' Finally Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were suggested and my husband got me a supply. I used them and found the result good—not only good, but the benefit lasting, and I am now enjoying perfect health, have a good color and have regained my natural buoyancy. I trust my letter of gratitude may be of some aid in helping others who are suffering as I was. New health, new strength, new vitality, follow the fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You can get them from your medicine dealer or by mail for 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Mr. J. A. Goodsell and family are summering at Massasauga. Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Wickware, of Madoc were in the city yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Moorman are staying at their summer home, Massasauga Park. Mr. Wm. H. Doran and Miss Elizabeth Ford were quietly married on Wednesday morning at St. Michael's Church by Rev. Father Kileen.

STRONG ARRANGEMENT OF THE WORK OF THE OPEN BAR

Rev. A. S. Kerr, Pastor of St. Andrew's Church, Gave Reasons Last Night Why He Was Opposed to the Licensed Bar—Some Unanswerable Arguments.

Rev. A. S. Kerr, the scholarly and earnest young pastor of St. Andrew's Church, preached a remarkably impressive and convincing sermon to his congregation last night, giving reasons why he was opposed to the Open Bar. There was a large audience present, and the speaker's argument was followed with deep attention. Previous to the sermon a mixed quartet sang with fine expression "Where is my Wandering Boy Tonight?" Mrs. A. P. Allen taking the solo part.

Mr. Kerr chose for his text: I Cor. 15-25, "For He must reign still. He has put all enemies under his feet." It is an undeniable fact, began Mr. Kerr, that the liquor traffic is one of the greatest enemies of Christ. The traffic drew its deadliest work with the open bar. We are told that there are more than five thousand deaths in Canada every year through the excessive use of alcohol. This tremendous loss must be recuperated from the youth and young men of the land. The young men who supply food for the traffic must come from our homes.

There is unanimity of opinion that the traffic is a gigantic evil. We believe that the men are sincere in their efforts to cope with the problem. What temperance seek in the most effective of solution that may be had. We believe that solution will be ultimately found.

A MATTER OF DUTY

Taking up this subject with him a matter of conscience. He would be shirking his duty if he did not at this time speak his mind. The General Assembly had urged their ministers to do their part to assist in putting away this traffic.

WHY ARE WE OPPOSED TO THE BAR?

"Why are we opposed to the open bar?" next asked the speaker very earnestly. "We take it that there is man or woman here who would defend its work. The more thoroughly informed we are of its work, the more indignant we become."

We are opposed to the Open Bar because it fosters the drink habit. It is the training school for drunkards. The vast majority take their first glimpse at the open bar. Is not that enough to condemn it?

IT DOESN'T PAY

The drink habit doesn't pay. Can you imagine a father saying to his son, "Learn to drink. It's a good thing."

It is bad from whatever standpoint you view it. It is well to have our minds refreshed at this time.

WHERE WE LOSE

The drink habit creates the greatest try, going out as far as ten miles distant.

You will want to know something about the individual companies and officers. No. 5 Co., which consists of Mohawk Indians came into camp 48 strong. This company did the best shooting done by any company on the ranges here. Capt. Wilson, who has been attached to the 9th brigade C.F.A., to observe the effectiveness of artillery fire, is very human. He is lonely to hear the music of a baby's cry, and sometimes walks in his sleep singing sweet lullabies, which goes to show that soldiers do not always forget home.

Capt. Bleeker has an excellent lot of men from Marmora and as a consequence feels that at least his town is entitled to a drill shed. Capt. McLean is proud of his 8th brigade company and is ably seconded in the management of them by Lieut. McConnell and Nugent, the boy from Coe Hill. Capt. Feldwell is one of the busy officers. His correspondence is so important that he has been seen addressing letters after sunrise in the morning. He is an excellent officer however, and is supported by Lieut. D. D. Wilson. Lieut. Wilson finds camp life easier than his arduous duties on parliament hill. Capt. Bolton of the 15th Regt. who has been attached and has command of Madoe Co. is delighted with the 4th. Madoe keeps up its reputation for producing orphans.

As the boys call him, he is now qualified to go to Ireland. Capt. Blagrove, our new chaplain, has already made a hit not only with the officers but with all ranks. His patriotic talks to the parliament are a sensation throughout the brigade. Capt. Bywater of Trenton is acting brigade major for the 9th brigade. Lieut. James has three men in Trenton Co. who have been in active service. Capt. Bywater has his Sidney company well in hand. They are a fine lot of men and have great respect for their commander. Capt. Walt besides having charge of his 8th brigade company is popular with the officers as a first class "meat" manager. Lieut. Col. Ketcheson is an able officer, popular with the men and staff. He knows his business and has his regiment well in hand. We were flattered by having for dinner yesterday such distinguished officers as Commandant Col. John Blythe and Brigadier Col. Kent and others.

THE MOTHER OF CRIME

It cannot be controverted that the liquor traffic is the mother of crime. Lord Alverstone, Lord Chief Justice of England, said that ninety per cent of the crime of his country could be traced to the excessive use of alcohol. In Canada seventy-five per cent of all arrests were due to drunkenness.

If you solve the problem of the liquor traffic, you solve at the same time the problem of crime and vice.

THE CAUSE OF INEFFICIENCY

Men in all departments of life realize the importance of efficiency. That is what capital wants today. It has come to this that ninety per cent of the railroads of the United States discriminate against those who use liquor. The same rule holds with eighty per cent of the manufacturers. The great Marshall Field stores in Chicago call for total abstinence in their employees. John Mitchell tells us that liquor is labor's worst enemy.

DEATH OF W. C. REID

W. Carlwright Reid, died at his home, fifth concession of Thurlow, on Sunday morning. He was a son of the late Caleb Reid, having been born in Thurlow 54 years ago and had lived there all his life. In religion he was a Methodist. Reid was a member of the Canadian Order of Foresters. In early life he was a farmer, but later he had been engaged as mail carrier in Thurlow. He leaves two brothers, Wilson Reid of Corbyville and Albert Reid of Mississauga, in addition to his widow and two daughters, Mrs. John Patterson, Thurlow, and Miss Wanda Reid, at home.

SUDDEN DEATH OF W. O. JONES

Sudden was the death of William Owen Jones, Grand Trunk fireman, this morning.

Mr. Jones, who boarded at Mr. Pearce's, corner of Bridge St., and MacDonald Ave., got up early to catch a train for Bowmanville but was a little late. He ran across the fields and came out on Bleeker Ave. Having been an athlete in his early days, this exertion evidently was too much for his heart and he was taken faint when about two hundred yards south of Pine Street.

Mr. Fountain, G.T.R. telegrapher was going home and found a man filled with food on the west sidewalk. On the walk he discovered a man lying whom he did not know. The man was moaning. All at once he stopped and he had evidently expired. The man was about 25 years of age.

The police were telephoned and Sgt. Harman went to the scene. He learned that the man's name was W. O. Jones. In his pockets were a watch some money and a very small note left to his wife in the Old Country. The body was warm but life was extinct.

The remains were taken to Tickell and Sons' morgue.

Jones came out from Birkenhead, Cheshire, England, in September last. He was thirty-two years of age, was about six feet in height, and weighed about two hundred pounds.

He leaves a wife and two children at Birkenhead.

His letter to his wife related how he had lent twenty dollars to a fellow G.T.R. employee who had borrowed it saying he had not got his cheque. It turned out that the cheque had been garnished and Jones was out the money, through kindness of heart. The letter contained money for his wife who was soon to come to Canada.

Jones was well liked here. He was at one time in the Argentine Republic before coming to Canada. It is thought he was a member of the Masonic Fraternity in Argentina.

He was at one time an athlete. This perhaps accounts for the heart weakness which proved fatal.

Coroner Yeomans was called in the case and determined the case as one of heart failure.

NOTES FROM FORTY-NINTH AT PETAWAWA

The 49th regiment arrived at Petawawa on Tuesday at 3.30 a.m. They were due on Monday at 10 p.m. but were delayed on the journey through no fault of theirs. It was bitterly cold and the gray dawn hardly woke many of the men who were huddled in all shapes and wanted sleep more than anything else. Soon the sun came, but little did it relieve the chill of the north wind. We detrained at 4.30 a.m. and forming into line followed the officer in charge to the ground set apart for us. They were a tired weary looking lot of men that helped themselves to breakfast around the camp stoves that morning. There was something in the air however, that made one feel good. The situation was a novel one. The brightness of the sun and the keenness of the air were bracing, and the scene inspiring. It is not easy for one who has not been to Petawawa to realize what an extensive place it is and what a beautiful spot. There is a range of country twenty miles square adapted not only for camping and drilling, but also for long marches, tactical operations, scouting skirmishing, in short a country which, in point of view of topography, offers every advantage for the best training for active service in a country like our own. The scene around is a magnificent one. The ground, just here is high and from any of the hills around a landscape view of the west spreads out on all sides. To the west we look across a level country covered with shrubbery to the distant hills on the hazy sky-line. To the east across the beautiful Lake Couchiching, dotted with islands and surrounded by rugged hills, to the far Laurentian Mountains, that stand eternal sentinels along the framework of our country. All about the eye rests upon white-capped mountains, interspersed with larger mountains, laid out in long lines as far as one can see. Here and there a broken country interrupts this river of white, and out beyond again other points of white project through the foliage, telling of uniformed men of a country developing military efficiency and of greater national strength. If one set out to travel from east to end of the campment he would cover no less than ten miles of country.

The 49th has some reason to be proud and to feel encouraged. The men have shown themselves apt to learn the drill, resisting quietly its significance, and when drawn up make a very presentable showing. Lt. Col. Ketcheson has been highly complimented by the staff officers who say there is no better regiment on the grounds. This excellence is really due to the O.C. and the various officers and non-coms of the battalion. These officers know their duty and are scrupulous in the execution of it. Quarter Master Nugent is considered one of the very best and the men are well looked after as regards the two very essential things in camp, blankets and food. It is said he can get anything he wants. Adjutant Sills is a most efficient officer who knows the rules and regulations and is conscientious and persistent in his enforcement of them. Major Alger is assisting in his efforts for the sanitary well-being and general welfare of the camp. He keeps his fatigue squad busy and nothing escapes his eye. He reports the health of the men good, and points out that the sandy ground, which is in a dry time trying, has advantages far outweighing the inconvenience of the dust arising from it. Major Ketcheson is a good soldier and highly esteemed by the men. He is always ready to pour oil on the troubled waters. Major Wallbridge is musketry instructor for the regiment. Sgt. Woodcock of the R.C.R. Halifax is right with the men as instructor. Threatening fires have broken out in the vicinity, owing to the barling of shells, and detachment from Marmora and Baneroff's companies have shown themselves good fire fighters. It is raining and cold today (the 19th) and as a consequence the program has been cancelled. Next week the brigade leave camp and trek for three days and two nights, practising tactical operations through the coun-

Watford Man Found Relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. Robt. Taylor, Sr., After Suffering for Two Years, Tells of the Benefits He got from Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Watford, Ont., June 22nd—Special Mr. Robert Taylor, Sr., a very estimable man living here is telling his friends that the pain in his back, from which he suffered for some time, has disappeared, and that he gives all the credit to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"My trouble started with a cold," Mr. Taylor states, "and though I was treated by a doctor I got no permanent relief. I had cramps in my muscles and stiffness in my joints. My sleep was broken and unrefreshing and I perspired freely with the least exertion. I had attacks of rheumatism and sciatica, and though I tried many medicines I found no relief till I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. I must say they were a great benefit to me!"

Mr. Taylor's troubles came from his kidneys. The diseased kidneys failed to strain the uric acid out of the blood, and the results were as he has stated. Dodd's Kidney Pills put the kidneys in working order. The uric acid was strained out of the blood, and the troubles went with it."

To the Electors of West Hastings:

Gentlemen,—

I am a candidate for election to the Legislature of Ontario to represent West Hastings, having been unanimously chosen by the convention of the Conservative Party of the Riding.

With confidence I make the appeal that you will signify your indorsement of the clean, honest and efficient administration of Sir James B. Whitney by your votes and the exercise of your influence; and, at the same time, express your approval of my course as your representative during the last two Parliaments. By diligent attention to my Parliamentary duties I have accomplished much for the Riding and for the County and not a little for the Province in the matter of increasing its revenue.

There is no doubt that the Whitney government will be sustained by a large majority, and I feel equally assured that in the ranks of its supporters in Parliament you will place the member for West Hastings.

Yours faithfully,

J. W. JOHNSON.

ZION

Zion, June 15—Crops are looking well in this part of the country.

Rev. Mr. Ward has returned after attending the conference at Napanee. Mrs. Willett Ketcheson and Mrs. Wilmen Sills spent part of last week in Trenton attending the branch meeting of the W.M.S.

Last Tuesday evening Messrs. Co. Denyes and Humphrey of Victoria College, gave an excellent lecture in the church. The subject was "Mr. Crosby and his work among the Indians." It was much appreciated by all who attended.

Our League meeting on Tuesday night will be under the leadership of the literary and social vice president. A spelling match will be one of the interesting features. We hope for a good attendance. The following Tuesday evening is citizenship night.

Sunday, June 21st will be banner day for our organized Bible classes at Sunday school. We hope every member will be present and each, bringing a new member if possible.

Some from here attended the raising of Mr. Jas. G. Phillips' barn on Tuesday last.

Mrs. H. K. Denyes has returned home after spending a couple of weeks visiting relatives at Smithfield.

Miss Nellie Cavertley is visiting her brother, Mr. Percy Cavertley, at Mrs. Walter Townsend's in visiting at Neirose.

LIQUOR TRAFFIC MOST MONUMENTAL WORK OF ARCH FIEND, THE DEVIL HIMSELF

So Stated Rev. Chas. G. Smith at the Baptist Church Last Night in Sermon Strongly Denouncing Strong Drink-Associates of Barroom.

From the dawn of creation onwards, the liquor traffic in all its forms is the most monumental work of the archfiend, the devil himself. So stated the Rev. Chas. G. Smith, B.A., B.D., at Victoria Avenue Baptist church last evening to a large congregation.

His sermon was based on the words "For this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that He might destroy the works of the Devil." John, the beloved apostle knew Jesus intimately. If he did not know the purpose of Christ, no one ever did. To John in his old age Christ was the conqueror, the gladiator over sin. Jesus' heart was as tender as a child's but He tore down in order to save. He is a militant Christ. This is the conception of Him we need today.

The works of the devil are legion. They are everything that is opposed to humanity and God. But while sin is hydra-headed, it has its tap roots, the greatest being the liquor traffic. The barroom, the brothel, and the gambling den, they all go together. They cannot be separated. Strong drink is the greatest foe of the human race, gripping mankind, poisoning mind and body, and bringing to the grave. Strong drink is an infinitely greater form of sin than slavery. Drink enslaves body, intellect and soul. It not only injures man's self, but posterity unborn. The man who drinks has his will weakened, his conscience blurred. He becomes a moral leper. Harriet Beecher Stowe said "I could not do it. It is so terrible and so awful" when asked if she could write a book dealing in all its horrors with the drink traffic.

Strong drink is responsible. It is calculated for 75% of crime, murder, lust, robbery, ruined characters and homes. Where are the mighty empires of yesterday? They are passed away owing to the ravages of the social evil emphasized by strong drink.

The world was never stricken to learn that 1000 souls had perished in the Empress of Ireland wreck. But in North America, 150,000 men, women and children, die yearly as direct or indirect results of the liquor traffic, equal to the loss of one hundred and fifty Empresses.

Could this vast army of 150,000 blighted souls pass before us, they would freeze the blood in our veins and make us say about liquor as Lincoln said of slavery—"My God, if I ever get a chance to hit it, I'll hit it hard."

Wherever the saloon has decreased crime has decreased. Maine under prohibition is one of the healthiest states in the union. In the prosperous city of York, Maine, in one of the jails, there is not one criminal, and a turkey apologized to some visitors for keeping his chickens in the jail-yard.

Economically strong drink is the work of the devil. They say that without drink there would be no aggregate but no hard times, of course there would be years of lean.

In Canada we spend more for drink than the budget. That is, it costs more to keep up the saloons in Canada than the administration. We spend 25 times as much in liquor as the rents of the country; 2 times as much as for bread, 5 times as much as for milk, meat, and groceries and five times as much as for clothing, comforts, luxuries, arts, music, literature, etc.

On an average for every dollar earned in the work 25 cents goes over the bar for liquor. Poor men cannot stand that.

Without strong drink, money would flow into proper channels, and men would have healthy bodies and happy souls.

Governments have used the people and hoodwinked them. We must make governments understand that they are our servants not our masters. If they don't do our bidding, turn them out.

It is estimated that for every 100 of revenue the government gets from liquor, it costs $10 for administration of justice, upkeep of police, jails, refuges, shelters, prisons, asylums, and penitentiaries.

It is not penny wise and pound foolish to let about 100,000,000 people. Without drink Canada would take her place among the nations.

We are citizens of earth, but also of heaven, and we must try to make earth better. What would Jesus do? He laid down His life. We are to enter His crusade. Canada is God's Benjamin, the last and best of all nations. Fifty years from tonight we shall have 100,000,000 people. Now is the time to set things right.

The barroom comes to us as a relic of barbarism. Why are some being sent from the old country and Europe to defeat prohibition? Because Canada is a good customer.

But we are a young clean nation and we must say to the new arrivals in Ontario "You must leave behind your antiquated customs."

In Ontario today "Gods Eternal spirit is moving mightily calling men to imitate Christ. In this peculiar circumstance, now is the time. Up and above all men and their disciples of this crisis. All the glory is not to be given to parties or men but to God. There is one danger, we may be tempted to leave God out of all these movements. Do not trust in men but look at them only as God's servants."

Another danger is that we may oppose God's will. One man may say "I don't like the machinery or details of this movement," but the conviction should be "If it is the will of God, I dare not oppose!"

In this crisis all should go and pray. Pondering over the text, they would be known as Christians. "We will be unselfish, having precious no bed of roses, but cold nights and sufferings, but "you'll be fighting to set Italy free."

STIRLING

Stirling, June 12.—The regular district meeting of the north Hastings Women's Institute was held Thursday afternoon, June 11th, in the agricultural building in Stirling. Delegates were present from Madoc, Maruora, Springbrook, Menie, Bancroft, L'Amble and Maynooth. The meeting was opened by the singing of the usual ode, after which reports were given by the various delegates present. It gave some idea of the splendid work that is being done by the Women's Institute, we give a partial report from the local society for the past year. In December, a bazaar was held and $350 was realized. Letter on in the winter some very excellent papers were given. Also three debates by the honorary members of the society. One open meeting for the members and their families which was very much enjoyed. Easter Monday evening a concert was given in the opera house, put on by local talent, when $65.00 was again realized. The Institute have bought and placed in the opera house two grass chairs and table also one large floor rug. Ten dollars was donated to the Children's shelter at Belleville and twenty-five dollars to the local Public Library board and other small donations in Stirling and vicinity. A splendid program then followed. A piano duet by Mrs. Mather and Mrs. J. C. McGee; a violin solo by Mrs. Percy Watts; a duet was sung by Mrs. (Dr.) Ainger and Miss Kathleen Moore and a recitation given by Miss Pollock. The program for the coming year were then elected as follows:

President—Miss Emily Parker.
1st Vice Pres.—Mrs. C. Bleeker.
Sec. Treas.—Mrs. (Dr) Harrison George.
Auditors—Mrs. (Powers), and Mrs. George.

The next district meeting is to be held in Bancroft, the second Thursday in June, 1915.

There was a discussion on the work of the Institute would take during the year and it was decided that outside of anything that was done in their own towns and villages the balance would go to the Children's Shelter at Belleville.

At the close of the meeting a very dainty lunch was served during which time the piano was played by Mrs. Earl Luery and Miss Ella Brown.

On Monday, June the 15th, Miss Greer of Hamilton will address the local society on "Ever Day House Keeping." It is needless to say that Stirling has a real live Institute.

CONSERVATIVES BREAK FROM THEIR PARTY AND ADDRESS BIG MASS MEETING AT CITY HALL

Candidate Sinclair Given a Rousing Reception—No Mistake About the Declarations of Conservative Speakers and the Intention of Voters in Large Audience.

Traffic Has No Public Defence Whitney Method Would Require Fifty Years to Abolish the Bar, Declared Rev. W. G. Clarke.

From Friday's Daily
Enthusiasm reigned supreme at the Temperance "Abolish the Bar" mass meeting in the city hall last evening. The building was crowded to the doors. The clergy of the city were nearly all present and the sympathy of the ladies in the fight was manifested by their presence.

Promptly at eight o'clock, Mr. R. J. Graham took the chair by virtue of his office of president of the Citizens' Temperance League, which had been in existence some years. The great issue he said, had come at this time.

He first introduced Rev. Dr. MacTavish, Field Secretary of the Dominion Alliance.

Dr. MacTavish said we had entered upon a new era in politics. Ladies and ministers appear in the audience and on the platform. Personalities are rarely indulged in.

Some deplore the entrance of temperance into politics. But it is in politics and here it will be settled. The honor men at Winnipeg said, "Our trade, our politics, if you want to get the bars banished, you must send proper men to parliament. He never made a truer statement.

If we solve the temperance problem right the question of prison reform will be easily solved. Seventy-five per cent of crime is caused by strong drink. Our neglected children will decrease in number if we solve the temperance question. Child labor will be solved because very few children would need to be employed if parents had not liquor to drink.

Mr. J. W. Johnson gives himself credit for the Conservative newspaper trying to bring the banks to their knees. If temperance were in force, then there would be more money in the banks to be taxed.

straight to the poll and vote to banish the bar.
I believe a brighter day is dawning. The woes of Tyre and Sidon are insignificant with the cries and wails of the children. We will vote out the bar and afterwards vote out the shop. To the children we say lift up your heads. In the name of the mother who cradled her first born in Bethlehem, we say to the mothers, "There is a better day dawning. Let our prayer be "God speed the right."

REV. F. S. DOWLING
Rev. F. S. Dowling, a Presbyterian pastor of Deseronto, was warmly greeted. He said, Temperance clarifies the atmosphere and conditions. It was an added pleasure to be present to repay Mr. Sinclair for his missionary endeavor at Deseronto. If he is as successful in removing those against missions, he will be a member of the Legislature by the vote of June 29th.

Mr. Dowling said he was a Conservative and proud of it. But his satisfaction with the Tory temperance policy when examined did not please him so much.

Prior to 1904, twenty-five municipalities had taken advantage of local option. In 1914, nine more were added. In January, 1905, nineteen more were added. Then the Whitney government came in. In the first session nothing was done and fifty-six places under local option act went dry in January 1906. No thanks to the Whitney Government. In the second session, the Conservative Government passed the three-fifths clause and told liquor men who had gone down under local option that all they needed was a mere majority to recover license. Is that fair?

Conservative is ready to take credit for temperance legislation. There were 109 without licenses then. Now there are 538 without licenses. But there are 408 licenses in force in Ontario because Whitney saw fit to place a three-fifths handicap. These municipalities would have been dry without the Whitney administration and in addition 408 other licenses which would be dry under the simple majority. The three-fifths handicap has only helped temperance in twenty-seven licenses and liquor men to the extent of 408. The present policy of the Conservative Government is such as will perpetuate the traffic.

Sir James Whitney says he is after permanency. But is it settled permanently? Every three years the liquor men may crop up their heads. Rowley says he will blot out the 1900 bars in May, 1915 and they will never be replaced. This leaves a doubt which party is after permanency.

"Not an electric shock but an election shock is what is required for Sir James Whitney. This we in mercy propose to give him on the 29th of June."

The clean people of the province should get the favor if anyone does, but the liquor interests got it. To three-fifths clause is a sort of barotic and the temperance forces become so satisfied by their sense of security that they go to sleep.

precedent for changing politics in Sir Mackenzie Bowell and Hon. Senator Corby.
There are enough men in Hastings to defeat any liquor candidate. Rev. W. G. Clarke, former president of the Belleville Ministerial Association explained that he was convinced of his duty on this occasion, and that the association took the attitude that this is a moral issue. He gave a number of reasons why the bar should go. Because the bar has never done any good thing. Abolition is successful wherever tried, the liquor business decreases wages because bar room causes three-quarters of the crime, etc. There is enough involved in the present issue to enlist the sympathy of the public. These are days of judgment. We must decide. Choice is before the people. On one side is continuance of present legislation perpetuation of licenses and on the other the abolition of the 1,300 bars.

Mr. Clarke showed the audience how misleading was the double map sent out by the Whitney people. In it of the municipalities represented as white and berries, there are 400 bars in operation. "By the grace of God and with the suffrage of the electorate we will make it all white."
Mr. Clarke referred to the urgings of the temperance people for recognition in the matter of prohibition. Prior to 1905, the Alliance was working for prohibition, but then changed its policy and voted for the local option. In one year 56 municipalities went under local option. Then the government put in the 3-5 clause. In 1907 the government gave a pledge to remove the clause. Now 1914 is here. It was the Whitney administration is come to an end.

Of the 109 places which carried local option under a majority 105 are still under local option. The temperance people do not need the protection of Parliament. They can retain local option. The simple majority is permanent.

The liquor territory is now strong. Last year the three-fifths allowed closing of only 26 licenses, while 128 of 131 carried majorities. Practically progress under local option is blocked. At the rate of 26 yearly, which even cannot be maintained, it would take 50 years to clear out 1,300 bars. But we can do it in the next two weeks. (Applause)

When will Belleville carry local option with the three-fifths clause? Never. The government won't remove the handicap. Cobourg, Peterborough and Lindsay, each with 128 carried by majorities local option but lost under the three-fifths.

The Whitney policy is unworkable. The temperance candidate is pledged to vote in parliament to "banish the bar" (Applause).
The Rev. A. R. Sanderson was to have spoken but as the hour was late, his address was not delivered.

The meeting closed with "God Save the King," and cheers for Mr. D. V. Sinclair, the candidate.

Senator Corby and Sir Mackenzie Bowell defeated the conservative government Farmers' Bank Bill. "If I am a turncoat, then they also are in the same class." "Why am I opposing Mr. Johnson?" one of his dearest friends and of the closest associations, with whom he had stood shoulder to shoulder? It is not for anything the speaker had against Mr. Johnson. He is a worthy man. But we can't afford to do what we would wish to do and sacrifice our principles. Never in his career had he sacrificed his principles for party. The temperance executive had been anxious to have Mr. Johnson come out on the temperance platform. Mr. Johnson had said the words, "all legislation" were drastic. The delegates asked if he liked the words "Abolish the Bar." That did he say? He left no peg of hope. He said he could not support the Rowell policy of "banish the bar." The question was submit or consider the nomination of a temperance candidate.

Mr. Johnson's big vote for women's suffrage was killed by the conservative leader, not by the opposition. Why killed? The ladies if allowed to vote would have supported the Banish the Bar Policy of Mr. Johnson.

The conservative members are practically tied hand and foot to their leader.
Some one has said this is a political dodge. 9,000 conservative young men present a petition for the abolition and it is thrown aside by the government.

Mr. Graham then turned to the employers' standpoint. Experienced men have surplus money and often get drunk. Honest men under them are out of work while they are drunk by reason of this drink traffic. What does it mean to business to have bars nearby?
To leave the conservative party is hard on this occasion. The price at first seemed too great. But then he decided at once and for all. He was proud to be here.

Mr. Johnson has to come before the people as the representative of the party in sympathy with the liquor traffic. The speaker did not seek to be the representative of the temperance people. He had a thousand times rather that Mr. J. W. Johnson had been able to pledge himself in favor of the Rowell policy.

Perhaps in West Hastings we have the strongest liquor men in Ontario. The liquor men are behind Mr. Johnson to a man.
"I do hate the liquor business because of its products."
The Ontario bar challenged Mr. Johnson to be present. Mr. Johnson dare not stand on the platform and defend in anyway the liquor traffic. Every year it is becoming harder to carry moral legislation in view of the large immigration. Let us do it now.

Mr. Sinclair then spoke to the laboring men. The whole interest of the Ontario is represented in the present parliament by one man. This is Mr. Allan Stuchinks, representing all labor men of Ontario. The Conservative government puts up a Conservative to beat him in Hamilton, so that there will be no labor questions coming up.

Mr. Sinclair said all men had a right to be present. Mr. Johnson dare not stand on the platform and defend in anyway the liquor traffic. Every year it is becoming harder to carry moral legislation in view of the large immigration. Let us do it now.

PREMIER ENDORSED BERRY Lumber Company's Manager Says He Met Fleming, Berry and Teed in a Hotel and Conservative Leader Told Him That What Berry Said Was All Right—One Firm Paid In $20,000.

ST. JOHN, N.B. June 19.—When the royal commission inquiry into the Dugal charges against Premier Fleming and the Hon. H. F. McLeod adjourned for luncheon yesterday had been disclosed up to date payment of $60,187.50 into what is called a savings fund, by holders of crown land lumber areas in New Brunswick.

W. H. Berry had been the one to brooch the matter to those who festined up to yesterday, but in the morning E. B. Teed, a commercial traveler, was brought into the evidence as having approached F. E. Sayre for a contribution.

Arthur Hilyard, manager of the Fallouise Lumber Co., of which he said the International Pulp & Paper Co. are real owners, said they leased 423 1-2 miles. He said Berry asked for a contribution to a campaign fund, but the president, Mr. Stern, refused to pay. He did not contribute, but his license, manager of the Miramichi Lumber Co., a subsidiary of the International Pulp & Paper Co., said the company's president would not and did not pay the $15 a mile asked for. He said Berry wanted him to be treasurer of the fund. He said he and Berry went to Premier Fleming's room in a Fredericton hotel. Fleming and Teed were there. Fleming went out, but first said: "Anything Dr. Berry tells you at this man is all right." The Berry introduced him to Teed and said: "This is the man you are to give the money to." Witness said he received eight parcels from lumbermen. He gave them to Mr. Teed.

F. O. Beatty told of the biggest payment yet. He said in his evidence that $20,000 had been paid by Station, Cutler & Co. for themselves and other affiliated companies.

Before adjournment Mr. Carvell said Berry had been communicating by telephone, and there was a reasonable hope that he may come to give evidence.

ST. JOHN, N.B. June 19.—Everybody is enjoying the nice cool weather. The night between nine and ten o'clock, Sergt. Naphit and Constable Corrigan, discovered a party of four, two men and two women wandering in the old Dundas Street burying ground.

As a result Mrs. Bertha Gunyon of Deseronto and Mrs. Lena Bernette came before the magistrate this morning. Mrs. Gunyon was charged with being a vagrant, wandering abroad, and not giving a good account of herself. She pleaded not guilty. Lena Bernette was also charged with vagrancy and not giving a good account of herself. She too pleaded not guilty.

The police secured the names of the two young men who were found walking about with them.

The women were this morning remanded until tomorrow.

The defence will be conducted by Mr. Carnew.

DEAD IN ADAM, ALIVE IN CHRIST

Our First Parents Were Created Perfect.

PASTOR RUSSELL ON THE SEA

All God's Work Is Perfect.—Adam Alone Tried For Life or Death.—Adam's Family Born in a Dying Condition.—Difference Between Permitting Sin and Causing Sin.—Human Depravity a Test to the Angels.—The Purpose of Israel's Law Covenant.—The Purpose of Jesus' Death.—The Church Alive in Christ.—In Training For the Work of the Next Age.

On the Atlantic, he meward bound, June 21.—After "unsuccessful" launching his famous Creation Drama in the Princess Theatre in London last Sunday—the first of a series of exhibitions that will extend throughout the principal cities of the United Kingdom and the Continent—Pastor Russell is on the Atlantic homeward bound. While abroad the Pastor also lectured in many cities, and was the principal speaker at a General Convention of the Bible Students Association held in the British Metropolis. Today the Pastor's text was, "Even when we were dead in sins, God hath quickened us together with Christ."—Ephesians 2:5.

The Pastor began with a review of the trial of Adam in Eden. He proved conclusively that our first parents were created perfect, in the image and likeness of their Creator. Adam disobeyed God, and thus brought upon himself and all of his posterity the sentence of death. "Dying, thou shalt die." "So death passed upon all men"; for all men are members of the race of Adam. All are under the curse of death, which came upon the race as the result of sin.

The speaker also showed that we were not condemned personally, for we were not on trial personally. For Adam alone was tried, and when he failed he was sentenced to death. God's great Law declares that "all unrighteousness is sin"; that "the wages of sin is death"; and that "the soul that sins shall die." Adam's children were born in sin—born after his fall from perfection. Therefore it naturally follows that they partake of imperfection; and if the perfect man did not keep God's perfect Law, how could imperfect man keep it?

Having demonstrated that all mankind are under the curse of death by reason of Father Adam's disobedience, the Pastor next discussed the proposition which the Bible sets before the race. That proposition is not a question of Heaven or Hell, but one of life or death eternal. To those who are in harmony with God, who delight to do His will, He is pleased to give life everlasting. But to those who are not in harmony with Him He has decreed to give death eternal—whatever it is in His Divine wisdom.

For instance, God's provision for the angels was that since they were perfect, they should, if they maintained their perfection, live everlastingly. From God's standpoint, "to live everlastingly" is to be what He would have His intelligent creatures live at all—in life happily, to enjoy life, to live in pleasure. "All the holy angels are happy, perfect and blessed; for true joy is to be in the place of God." So then, the speaker continued, we see why the Scriptures teach that mankind are under the sentence of death. "In kind the world is in a dying condition—not that there are no people who are active, not that all have gone down into the tomb, but that those who have entered the grave have merely prepared the way for themselves. Hence all are going, because of the one sentence upon all.

The Pastor next showed that, according to God's righteous Law, mankind are now under a dying condition. The Bible declares that God's intentions, imperfect beings continually make trouble for themselves and others. In the present imperfect condition of the race, humanity would make trouble wherever they might be. This is contrary to the Divine will; God purposes to have a Universe in which everybody shall be happy, everybody good, everybody perfect.

With some the question might arise, "Why did God make us imperfect?" The speaker, after propounding the question, then answered it: "The Bible declares that God's work is perfect" (Deuteronomy 32:4). Humanity in their present condition are not God's work. God made Father Adam perfect. After Adam had become a sinner and had brought the curse of death upon himself, he propagated a race by the law of nature. Therefore all of his posterity were born in sin, and for six thousand years have been falling, sinking lower in degradation. This is the Scriptural explanation of human imperfection; this is why the very best of the race cannot do perfectly.

The Pastor then declared that God does not expect humanity to do perfectly now, in their present fallen condition. The Creator gave the Law to Israel for the very purpose of showing them, and incidentally proving to all men, that "by the deeds of the Law no flesh can be justified in His sight." God has decreed that none shall have everlasting life, for none but the perfect can keep His righteous Law. He has proved conclusively that no fallen human being can keep that Law.

Therefore, none is angry with God for not doing something for us. The story of what our gracious Creator has done is the "old, old story, of Jesus and His love, and the Heavenly Father's love, also."

In the past we have failed to realize that God is Love, even though we read, "God so loved the world that He gave His Only Begotten Son, the one whom He loved, in order that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." The proper thought is not that which is frequently given to children, and frequently held by elder persons, that He was about to send the entire race to eternal torment, when Jesus stepped in and saved us from so terrible a fate. This view makes our Heavenly Father appear cruel, unloving and unjust. It is not that He knew that we were imperfect and therefore could not do perfectly. He held us accountable for what we could not do. All Bible students are getting rid of this wrong conception of the Almighty Jehovah.

The right thought is that from the very foundation of the world God had a loving purpose in respect to mankind. He knew that the race would sin, but He also knew how in His great Wisdom He could overcome the experience of these six thousand years of sin and death, so that good would ultimately result. If God had not permitted sin, men would not have known how wrong it is and what evil conditions it promotes. Adam probably had no idea what would be the result of his disobedience. He did not know that it would bring sorrow and mental and moral depravity into the world. He could not foresee the insane asylums, the prisons, etc. Not even the angels would have known the effect of the Law of God, which permitted it to enter the Universe.

The Pastor then showed the wide difference between permitting sin and causing sin. He declared that for God to permit sin, He does not do evil; He tempts no man. He was not responsible for the entrance of sin into the world. God permitted Satan to have his own way and become a ruler of this evil world. He permitted him to pursue his downward course, in order to let the angels see the result of sin. Therefore He did not hinder Satan from misrepresenting the Divine character.

When Mother Eve came under temptation, God did not interfere. He let her alone. She knew His command; she had her full testing; she ate, and thus she brought sin and death into the world, with their tremendous influences for evil. Then He also permitted the angels to be tempted to sin in connection with the Fall. The Bible, he maintains, contains the order of things and let mankind and angels try again under somewhat different conditions.

Next the Pastor declared that this reign of Sin and Death has illustrated certain principles. It has demonstrated that righteousness is, and has shown the necessity for obedience to God. It has also proved that there can be no happiness aside from perfect harmony with the Creator. "But men and angels have learned that whoever sins will suffer."

The Pastor next traced the history of Israel, and showed the purpose of the Covenant made at Sinai, with Moses as mediator. Two thousand years after man's fall, God made a Covenant with Abraham that some day He would bless the world through Abraham's posterity. Still the angels had room to doubt; for Abraham was old and as yet had no child. Years passed by, and Isaac was born. "I have the world now blessed," said Jacob. "In due time God declared that the blessing would come through Jacob. When he died, God indicated that Jacob's posterity would be heirs of the Promise. But instead of blessing the world, they became a nation of slaves. At length God raised up Moses, who led the nation through the wilderness to Mount Sinai, where they entered into covenant relationship with God. The terms of their covenant were twofold: they would obey the Law, they would be great, and all the world would come under their sway.

But it was only a little while before they found that they were slaves, for they could not keep His commandments. Then God arranged for them an annual Day of Atonement, on which sacrifices were offered to cover their sins for one year. So they tried year after year to live without sin so that they would not die, but they were not able to do so. They were worthy to be the people of God. Yet they died, generation after generation. At last they realized that the fault was with themselves; they had entered into a contract which they could not keep. They had agreed to keep the Law of God, and were not able to do so.

That was the very lesson which God desired them to learn. The Pastor declared, and not only Israel, but all humanity, that in dealing with Israel he was dealing typically, so that His people of the Gospel Age would get the lesson by seeing wherein Israel failed, and by realizing that had we been in their place, we would have failed. By and by, through the Prophet, God promised to give Israel another Covenant, at some future day. This New Covenant will be more favorable to them. The difference between the Old Law Covenant and the New Law Covenant will not be in regard to God's Law, for His Law is perfect. The Scriptures declare that the difference will be in regard to the Mediator. Although Moses was faithful in all his house, yet he was a mediator, and therefore imperfect. He could not give the people life; for he had no real life-rights to give any more than had any one else. As a typical mediator he offered typical sacrifices, which could not really take away sin. But the Mediator of the New Covenant will be empowered to lift the curse of death and to restore, not only Israel, but all mankind, to the image and likeness of God, from which they fell.

The Pastor next discussed the work of the Gospel Age. About two thousand years after the Covenant made with Abraham, the Logos was made flesh, in order to become the Seed of Abraham and bless all the families of the earth. Throughout the Gospel Age a most important work has been carried out. The New Law Covenant cannot be inaugurated until there is a Mediator of that Covenant. This Mediator, the speaker showed, is to be Christ "the Head, and the Church His Body."

In a typical ceremony, Moses could not institute the Law Covenant until first he had sacrificed bulls and goats. In the antitype, the great antitypical Moses must first offer the "better sacrifice." Jesus first offered Himself; now He must sacrifice the Church. This work requires all of the Gospel Age. At Jordan, when He offered Himself in consecration, He killed the antitypical bullock; and later, He was led like a lamb to the slaughter. At Pentecost our Lord began to deal with the antitypical goat class—the Church. When the offering of the members of the Church which is Christ's Body is ended, then the Body of the antitypical Moses will be complete. As St. Peter declares, "For Moses truly said unto the fathers, A Prophet shall arise among you, like unto me; Him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever He shall say unto you."

The time for the New Covenant, the Pastor believes, is near at hand. When the antitypical Moses brings in the curse of death according to the Scriptures, it will take Him exactly one thousand years to accomplish this work, to overcome sin, to dissolve the hard hearts of humanity, and to give instead the warm, tender, gentle, sympathetic heart that was lost in Eden six thousand years ago.

The Church, the Pastor declared, were dead in trespasses and sins, the rest of the world. But God has quickened them—made them alive—through the imputation of the work of Christ, in advance of Jesus Christ; and all those who are now in the world, who wish now to select a special class from amongst mankind. But not everybody has been invited to be of this class. Millions in heathen lands; all over the civilized world, there are all over the world, there are men, who have heard with their ears, but not with their minds. They do not comprehend that a Saviour, that God has provided, they are sinners, and that He is now inviting some to come into covenant relationship with Him. Prejudice, superstition, false teaching and false theories prevent many from receiving the Truth.

The Pastor holds that all of the creeds of Christendom contain false doctrines. The Bible, he maintains, says that the Devil put these erroneous doctrines into the creeds. Should any one ask why it is that the Devil could have part in the making of our creeds the Pastor replies that the adversary misled our forefathers through his wiles; for he is deceitful. Whenever they thought to do something very zealously for God, Satan would lead them past the right mark, into something very much to God's discredit and to their own disadvantage. Looking over the pages of history, the speaker said that the Devil has been working hard with all who have ever tried to get out of darkness into light. Therefore it behooves the people of God to watch carefully. The only safe course is to try to walk of the mind, in full confidence in His Power, trusting only in His Word. If anything seem to lead off into the contrary, their own thing, guessing for ourselves, the only safe way to do would be to say, "I have the Word of God; I will stand by what is written."

In conclusion, the Pastor reminded his hearers that the Bible urges God's people to walk circumspectly; that is, to look well to their own feet, so that they will not be in jeopardy, for to be so would mean lack of faith in God. "The people of God are not hoping to come off conquerors and to win the great prize by any strength or power of their own. They will be very careful to avoid transgression. If coming days should bring severe trials, then coming days will also bring increased joy; for the Apostle says, 'Our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory.'"

Now, Will You Be Good?
Mrs. Pankhurst was talking to a reporter not long ago about the comparative deceitfulness of men and women. "Women," said the reporter, "are the more deceitful." "No," said Mrs. Pankhurst, "men are the worst. Look at the way they deceive their wives." The reporter asked, "Do you claim," the reporter asked, "that men should never deceive their wives?" Mrs. Pankhurst smiled and tossed her head. "Oh, no!" she said. "How could the average man ever get a wife if he didn't deceive her?"

A Mean Man.
Tommy—Pop, a man is a bachelor until he gets married, isn't he?
Tommy's Pop—Yes, my son.
Tommy—And what does he call himself afterward?
Tommy's Pop—I'd hate to tell you, my son.
Time and Tide.
What is the difference between time and tide? Time levels every thing; tide finds only its own level.

LIBERAL CONVENTION ENDORSED THE TEMPERANCE CANDIDATE

West Hastings Liberals Held Annual Meeting and Elected Officers, but Placed No Candidate in the Field—Afterwards Were Briefly Addressed by Mr. Sinclair.

From Friday's Daily
The Liberals of West Hastings met yesterday afternoon in the Liberal Club rooms, West Robertson block, Front street, Belleville and without one dissenting voice unanimously endorsed the temperance candidate, Mr. David V. Sinclair. The following resolution was moved by Mr. Marsh of Trenton, seconded by Mr. J. W. Butterfield, of Belleville—

"That the temperance electors of the West Riding of Hastings, consisting of both political parties having nominated D. V. Sinclair, Esq., as their candidate in support of temperance legislation in this province, we the Liberals of West Hastings in convention assembled resolve that we do not introduce a third candidate in this contest and as 'Banish the Bar' is one of the principal questions at issue in this election and therefore we endorse the nominee of the said temperance electors and pledge ourselves to use our best endeavor to place D. V. Sinclair, Esq., at the head of the polls on the 29th inst."

Representatives from all parts of the riding had gathered at the Club at two o'clock and shortly after Mr. Malcolm Wright, secretary, called the meeting to order. He expressed his regret that the illness of Mr. Henry Pringle prevented his attendance to take the chair as president of the riding association. At Mr. Wright's suggestion, a chairman for the meeting was appointed in Dr. J. D. Simmons.

The chairman expressed his inability to fill Mr. Pringle's position with efficiency. In Mr. Pringle all had the greatest confidence. A nominating committee was appointed to bring in a list of officers. Those composing the committee were Messrs. Marsh, Vanderwater, Herity, Windsor and O'Flynn. They reported as follows—Hon. Pres.—Henry Pringle. Pres.—F. E. O'Flynn. Vice President—Dr. J. F. Farley. Secretary—Dr. J. U. Simmons, Frankford. Belleville—Dr. E. O. Platt. Treasurer—John Carter. Auditor—Executive Committee—Belleville—J. O. Herity, W. S. Smith, J. M. Wilson. Trenton—Mr. Marsh, O. E. Forth, A. J. Pringle. Windsor—W. E. Vanderwater, W. Windsor, Newton Bird. Auditors—J. Templeton, Geo. A. Ketcheson.

The report of the committee was received and adopted. Mr. F. E. O'Flynn introduced the following resolution, which was carried unanimously— "That we the members of the riding of West Hastings met together in Liberal convention wish hereby to express our approval of the splendid fight maintained by Newton W. Rowell, Esq., for the great principles which he represents. We appreciate his magnificent battle against the liquor traffic, the betterment of the conditions of labor and the toilers for tax reform by which the burdens may be better distributed. His efforts for furthering education for the solution of some of the great problems before the country. We wish him every success and feel that the public are recognizing his worth."

The springing of the election before the country is evidence that the government felt that it would be to their disadvantage to wait until a general election. But the tide is rising proper time. But the tide is rising and soon new elections will be upon us and now our hope that the party that has for so many years prospered and managed the affairs of this province may soon be given the chance of affairs of this province under the leadership of Mr. Rowell and to this leadership we pledge him our earnest support."

Mr. F. E. O'Flynn said he had known Mr. Rowell as a consistent square man for thirty years. He is one of the best samples of Canadians. Those who support him support a man who merits the public's confidence. Mr. O'Flynn said liberalism was progressive. He considered it was fortunate in having a man of Mr. Sinclair's stamp brought out by the temperance people. The issue is present and such has been the aim of Liberalism always. It was at this juncture that the resolution re Mr. Sinclair's candidature was introduced. Dr. Simmons said no child ever walked before creeping. Canada has had the Canada Temperance Act. There are today 14 temperance candidates in the field. It is better at this juncture to unite with the temperance convention. The resolution would obviate the nomination of a third candidate. The resolution was carried unanimously.

Mr. Sinclair entered the room at this moment and was given a warm reception. Mr. Sinclair said he esteemed it an honor that it should be possible to vote unanimously to endorse the temperance candidate. He had been nominated by the temperance people last week and by reason of his temperance advocacy for many years he accepted the nomination. The nomination is not large. I STAND FIRST AND FOREMOST FOR THE ABOLITION OF THE BAR. THIS I BELIEVE IS THE ISSUE.

The temperance people have the utmost confidence in Mr. N. W. Rowell. The time has come when the temperance people will stand to "banish the bar."

This is an important issue. The question is to elect a supporter of the temperance issue. United against the temperance candidate are the conservative convention, a distillery, brewery, and the extensive bar area in Belleville and Trenton. The greatest churches stand behind the men who stand for the abolition of the bar. Mr. Sinclair read resolutions of the church councils. The forces against temperance are great, but he knew how much encouragement he had received.

"Banish the Bar" is the popular appeal in this country. Have you seen any man get on the platform speaking in favor of liquor? Only two men in Ontario speak in favor of the bar and they are, one employed in the liquor interest and another is connected with a liquor newspaper. "The man who stands opposed to me is ashamed to say he favors the liquor interests," said Mr. Sinclair. Mr. Johnson voted against every resolution presented by Mr. Rowell towards temperance.

Last week in Ottawa Sir Mackenzie Bowell and Hon. Senator Corby broke with their party and the Borden government by voting in the Senate against the Farmers' Bank Bill. Why should not some honest conservative farmers also change politics for their boys' sake? Liberalism stands for the masses. Today Mr. Stuchbalm of Hamilton is the only labor nominee. The labor man has not come to his own yet in Canada. Mr. Whitney has proposed that a conservative shall oppose and drive out Mr. Stuchbalm, the only representative of labor, which cause deserves better treatment. Temperance has right on its side and if all work together right will prevail on June 29th.

Mr. Sinclair was greeted with loud applause as he left the convention. Remarks were made by Messrs. J. M. Farley, R. B. Morden, William Thompson, Dr. J. M. Wilson, Dr. E. O. Platt, Dr. Marsh and others. Dr. Simmons who has had 30 years' associations with Mr. Henry Pringle moved that a letter of sympathy be sent to Mr. Pringle expressing regret at his illness and the hope that he would soon return to health. Such was unanimously carried. After certain routine business had been transacted, the convention closed.
