The Victory of the Vanquished.

Granted the odds are against us; granted we enter the field.

When Fate has fought and conquered, broken our sword and shield.

What then? Shall we ask for quarter, or say that our work is done?

Say, rather, a greater glory is ours if the field is won!

'Tis war with the wrong of years,—with prejudice, pride and hate;

Against the world's address, and the frown of an evil fate.

But even if hope should fail us, still we may do our date:

At least there is left the courage born of the soul's despair.

A crown to the one who wins! and the worst is only a grave,

And somewhere—somewhere still, a reward awaits the brave.

A broken shield without, but a hero's heart within,

And held with a hand of steel, the broken sword may win.

Interesting Story.

A Brave Woman.

BY MRS. C. M. LIVINGSTON.

Concluded.

Dr. Carter took his wife's advice, partly because he felt disturbed and wished to be alone. Sleep was out of the question, though. He continued to torture himself by going over and reading the face of his visitor, stamped as it was with lines of care and grief, and then bringing before himself that other confined face. Yes, he had noticed the blonde curls on the broad white brow, and remarked at the time on the singular beauty of the young man. And that was Tom! Then his fancy pictured the old house where "Aunt Polly" had lived all these years with her boy. Tom! He sat there alone. She need never look for any more letters from Tom or listen for his coming footsteps. Tom was gone from earth, and the words, "You've killed him," rang in his ears again. She had said some other dreadful words, too, about his having to give account for others whom he had influenced for evil. Half unconsciously he went over his congregation as they appeared before him on Sabbath. There was many families among them who had suffered, because some of their members had fallen victims to an uncontrollable appetite. Was it true that he was at all responsible for their misery? Had he whose mission it was to comfort and guide in peace and purity, been engaged in making drunkards?

Over in that darkened corner of the church sat a sad faced young widow, her delicate profile outlined against the folds of her crepe veil, as she sat each Sabbath looking up at him with heavy eyes and tear-stained face. Her husband, a brilliant young man of high position, had just died of delirium tremens! And there was one of his clerics whose form was bent and locks whitened, got so much by age as to sorrow because his only son had become a sot. Just beyond him sat a family of young people whose father blew his brains out in a fit of intoxication. In the corner pew at the left were two old grandpaunts with three little children. Their beautiful daughter married a moderate drinker. He soon became a common drunkard, squandered his property, and finally lost his life in an affray at the club. His wife had soon died broken-hearted. And there on the other side sat a stern-faced man and a sad woman. Their one darling child, a lovely, gifted girl, was in an inebriate asylum, a victim to the wine-drinking habits of the fashionable circle in which she moved. All over the church it was the same. Almost every family carried secret sorrows from the same cause. They all passed in review before the pastor as he fell asleep.

Sleep brought no relief, however. It was filled with horrible phantasies. He dreamed that he had died and went swiftly through the air up to the heavenly city and stood at the gates. But none came to bid him welcome. He knocked and called, but there was no answer. Helpless and alone he waited. He saw the light of the city and heard sweet music. As he cried out in deep distress, the gate slowly opened and there appeared to him a glorious being who looked at him sadly, saying: "You cannot enter here. You led souls astray. There are your accusers—look!"

He looked through the door. Yes, they were there—the tall, grey-haired woman who had paid him the strange visit, the young widow, the old father, the orphan children, and a long line of other widows and orphans, weary fathers, and broken-hearted mothers.

"Oh, let me go back and undo it all," cried the wretched man. "I did not know what I was doing."

"Poor, blind one!" said the angel pityingly, "you cannot undo it; the silly souls who heard and believed your wicked words are in the land of despair, for it is written, 'Drunkards shall not inherit the kingdom of heaven.'"

And then the angel left him and he felt himself sinking down, down into the blackness of darkness, and then—he awoke with a groan, his pulses throbbing wildly.

He tried to calm himself and sleep again, but sleep had vanished. His brain never felt clearer and for the next two hours all his mental powers were awake and alert, as though they had been suddenly summoned to the court where Dr. George Carter was being tried by himself. Memory with great fidelity brought before him all he had ever said or written on the liquor question. Conscience, unparalysed and stern, asked, "Have you all these years been true to your inmost convictions, or are you a temporizing coward? You know that one of your chief supporters in your church is a brewer, another a wine merchant, and that many are moderate drinkers. Did not this weigh with you in taking the position you have? And may there not be a deeper reason, that none but God and you know, something that you never indulged in until recently? Do you not take a small quantity of wine yourself each day, 'just to top up?' That judgment took the stand and sneered and scoffed at weak logic and flimsy sophistries, bringing him to bay at every turn. She pointed her fingers and laughed until he grew hot with shame. Then she changed her mien. She set the truth before his cleared vision, and pleaded with him to be brave enough to follow the convictions of an awakened conscience.

And then Christ, the Lord, spoke to him, face to face, as it were. He came not with the thunder of Sinai but drew near in love, saying in tender tones: "Son, why hast thou leagued with Satan to persecute me these many years? The strong man's heart was melted now. Like that other misguided servant whom the Lord met and asked the same question, he said in deep humility, "Lord what wilt thou have me to do?"

He needed not to arise and go into any city to be shown the way. Laying there in the darkness it was revealed to him, swiftly, as by a vision. There was no hesitation or shrinking after that. He arose and dressed himself, then went into his study and shut and locked the door. There he knelt before God, confessed his guilt and consecrated himself for service in his new work. After that he seated himself at his desk and wrote out in bold characters a solemn renunciation of his former views on the liquor traffic, ending with: "I will never taste another drop of anything intoxicating. I will try to induce all over whom I have influence to take the same pledge and I will do all in my power to prevent the manufacture and sale of ardent spirits. So help me God."

This done he wrote a letter to his publisher bidding him not to get out another addition of his tract on "Tyranry and Total Abstinence." And then another to Tom's Aunt Polly. The truly noble nature of the man—or rather the Christian—so humble that he was willing to accept rebuke from the lowliest, shone out in his letter. It was remorseful, tender, and reverent expressing gratitude that she had been brave enough to come to him with the truth, and sorrow that his influence had ought to do with the grief that shadowed her life. The next day before him was to write notes to nine young men inviting them to meet at his house the next evening, "to confer upon a matter of importance to themselves and him." While his brain was thus clear and his heart uplifted, what better time to write something on this subject which had taken complete possession of him, for his Sabbath morning sermon. His sermon was already prepared, but to preach it now was out of the question. So he wrote hour after hour like one inspired, feeling in his rapt mood neither fatigue nor drowsiness. The dawn was breaking when he finished, and, casting himself on the lounge, he slept peacefully until awakened by the breakfast bell.

"I don't know what you will say to what I have to tell you," Dr. Carter said to his wife two hours afterwards. "It is none of my creating. If I had been told last week that I should entertain my present views upon a certain question I could not have believed it. I have passed through a strange experience, my dear."

He then told her the story, keeping nothing back, adding at the close: "Mary, you know, of course, that the declaration of my changed views will render me unpopular with some of our church people. I may be asked to resign in consequence. I may not receive a call to another church immediately. Are you prepared to face the possible results of such a step—to relinquish this elegant house and generous salary for a plain home with less money, for conscience sake? As for me, I must go forward whether my wife bids God-speed or not. 'Woe is me if I preach not this gospel.'"

Mrs. Carter had not been rated as a brave woman heretofore, and she had been educated in a family who held radical views upon nothing, therefore her husband was surprised when she rose to this occasion. She came over to him where he sat and said with kindling eyes: "George, I'm almost afraid that I should be sure you were right on any question, whatever your opinions were. I never thought I was made of the stuff that martyrs are made of, and yet I am ready to follow where you should dare to come out in this way and act up to your convictions. I think I know how to admire a hero, even if he is my own husband."

She put both arms around his neck and laid her cheek to his as she said softly, "We're reformers now, aren't we?" And her husband thanked God and took courage.

There was almost an audible murmur of surprise in the church the next Sabbath morning when the pastor, contrary to his usual custom, stepped aside from the desk and began to speak to his people without notes. Ears were fairly strained to catch every syllable and make sure they heard aright, as he proceeded to state in clear, strong terms the decision to which he had come, something of the inspiration which filled him on that memorable night took possession of him. They had always thought their pastor an eloquent man, but never had they heard anything from him like these impassioned words flowing like a torrent that would not be stayed. Burning truths, keen arguments, and strong logic held them spell-bound. The effect was electrical. Even those who differed from him could but admire. Many who were halting between duty and inclination were that day convinced. Others who were treading on the brink of a precipice were snatched away and saved by this unlooked-for avowal. Never had there been a temperance address of equal power in that city.

Good men and women, who had deplored their pastor's former views on this subject, who had come almost to the point of asking letters of dismission from their beloved church, sang hallelujah in their souls at this astounding change in their pastor. They wept and smiled by turns, and had their education not been of the most conservative type, might have shouted and cried "Amen!"

Dr. Carter was not asked to resign. 'Tis true, the rich brewer and the wine merchant left the church, and several others who "hated fanatics" went out to more congenial quarters; but their places were more than filled by men of influence and property who naturally belonged to the church and would have been there long before but for the pastor's position on the rum question. And so this church has been sited. The members are of one heart and one mind now in working, praying, and waiting for the glad day when the land shall be free from the overshadowing curse.—Interior.

Didn't Want Much.

"I like to ask you some questions?" he said to the sergeant at the central station last evening.

"Go ahead."

"Has dere some newspaper in New York called—called—"

"Called what?"

"Vhell, I haf forgotten der name. Let me see? I gif it oop. I can't remember."

"Well?"

"Vhell, vhas dere some reporter named—named—?"

"Named what?"

"It vhas gone out of my head. I doan't remember him if I vhas to die."

"What did you want to get at?"

"Vhy, dot man writes up my place for ten dollar, and I pay him half in advance."

"But you can't remember either his name or that of the paper?"

"No."

"Well, what do you expect us to do?"

"I like you not to tell anybody I vhas sooch a fool ash dot. Dot vhas all. Good-day."

Who's Afraid?

Once in a while a man will make a name and reputation for himself by the merest accident. One hot day last summer a wandering photographer was strolling along the beach at a prominent eastern seaside resort. He was on the lookout for attractive bits of scenery and pretty groups. Suddenly he came upon three children paddling in the water. In an instant the camera was on the tripod and the muzzle was pointed at the youngsters. The smallest of the trio began to cry and the faces of the others betrayed contempt. The trap was sprung and the plate developed. It was the photographer's reputation. Before the photograph was placed on sale it was purchased by a representative of the North-western road and a fine steel engraving was made of it for the railroad's calendars. It was entitled "Who's afraid?" and it has been reproduced upon a plain ground, suitable for framing. It is really a beautiful thing.—Chicago Herald.

If you have a discharge from the nose, offensive or otherwise, partial loss of the sense of smell, taste or hearing, eyes watering or weak, feel dull or debilitated, pain or pressure in the head, take cold easily, you may rest assured that you have the Catarrh. Thousands of cases annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, terminate in Consumption and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive, less understood or more unsuccessfully treated by physicians. The manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy have, for many years, offered a standing reward of $500 for a case of Nasal Catarrh, no matter how bad or of how long standing, which they cannot cure. Remedy sold by druggists, at 50 cents.

The Rice Lilly.

A lovely flower, called the rice lilly, grows thickly in parts of southwestern Georgia. It is extremely sensitive to the light. The blossoms fold up at night, but open in the morning. At night, while the lovely white blossoms are closely enfolded in their purple covering and the flowers are asleep, if a lamp is placed near them they will gradually open and turn toward it. If a strong light is placed on one side of the case containing them, the half of the bouquet that faces the lamp will be unfolded, while the other half that is in the shadow will remain tightly closed.—Detroit Free Press.

Liver Disorders

Soon cause the blood to become contaminated and require prompt treatment. The most marked symptoms are loss of appetite, headache, pains in the back or side, nausea, and relaxation of the bowels. Ayer's Pills assist nature to expel the superabundant bile and thus restore the purity of the blood. Being purely vegetable and sugar-coated, they are pleasant to take, mild in operation, and without ill effects.

"After many years' experience with Ayer's Pills as a remedy for the large number of ailments caused by derangements of the liver, peculiar to malarial localities, simple justice prompts me to express to you my high appreciation of the merits of this medicine for the class of disorders I have named."—S. L. Loughridge, Bryan, Texas.

"I had tried almost everything for chronic liver complaint, but received no relief until I used Ayer's Pills. I find them invaluable."—W. E. Watson, 77 East Illinois st., Chicago, Ill.

CATARRH, CATARRH DEAFNESS, HAY FEVER.

A NEW HOME TREATMENT.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and catarrhial tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact, and the result is that a simple remedy has been formulated whereby catarrh, catarrh deafness and hay fever are permanently cured in from one to three simple applications made at home by the patient once in two weeks. N. B.—For catarrh discharges peculiar to females (whites) this remedy is a specific. A pamphlet explaining this new treatment is sent on receipt of ten cents by A. H. Dixon & Son, 303 West King St., Toronto, Canada.—Scientific American.

Sufferers from catarrh troubles should carefully read the above.

Our Queen.

To-day our gracious sovereign Queen Victoria enters upon the 70th year of her age, and to-day will the hearts of her loyal subjects in all quarters of the globe beat in unison while they offer up their thanks to Almighty God for the preservation of her life through all these years.

God save our gracious Queen, Long live our noble Queen— God save the Queen. Send her victorious, Happy and glorious, Long to reign over us— God save the Queen.

The Exhibition.

The Executive Exhibition committee held their adjourned meeting in the Court House, Kentville, Tuesday, 21st—the School Commissioners meeting at the same place and time.

The prize list was completed, rules and regulations adopted, and a printing and advertising committee appointed. The prize list is a liberal one, as large an amount being appropriated to many classes as was appropriated to those classes at the Provincial Exhibition in '85.

New Roads.

In another column appears a communication referring to building lots in the village. The writer seems to be somewhat concerned in consequence of a proposed new road in the central and business portion of the town and can see no other use of a road than to provide building lots for future purchasers.

The effort of our correspondent to court favour with the Municipal Councilors shows entire ignorance of county matters, as any one of the present constituted board of Councilors would tell him if he should ask them that the committee on roads and bridges have no more to do with the consideration of petitions for new roads than has the committee on assessment and appeals to do with the auditing of the accounts of the sheriff.

"Book of Wonders."

(L. L. DAVISON.)

No. 4.

The next article we come to is "Content," an article characteristic of the author, who was always cheerful and contented. This is what he says of content:—

CONTENT.

"My crown is in my heart, not on my head; Not decked with diamonds nor Indian stones; Nor to be seen: my crown is called content; A crown it is that seldom kings enjoy."

"This world's a wilderness of woe," is what I heard an old man say the other day. That's just like some people. They wouldn't be satisfied with anything. That same man always wants rainy weather when it's dry, and vice versa. Look at the great Northwest; look at the Bermudas, "where everlasting spring abides"; and look at our own little village, and they say, "This world's a wilderness of woe."

Content is a funny thing some ways. It doesn't make much difference how poor one's clothes are; how much flour costs; or how much one owes so long as he has a little of it. Content and happiness go hand in hand along the great highway of life, and if you meet one you meet both.

But there are two different kinds of content. There is a kind we like to see, and there's a kind we don't. You very often see a man walking about the streets, in his shirt sleeves, his hands in his pockets, and whistling "All for money," refusing work and with not a cent to pay his many debts. He acts as though he didn't have very much sorrow, but that kind of content doesn't count for much except to the possessor.

Again there's the other kind. There's the man who flourishes amid adversity and smiles at misfortune. There's the man who "counts not his lot obscure," even though he can get but 75 cents a day for hard labor, but goes home happy. We like to see that kind.

Now, a friendly word of advice in conclusion. You know "work never kills people," but grumbling and fretting does. Therefore don't complain even when you do lose your vote; even when the weather doesn't suit you; and when you can't have things exactly as you would like to. But be content with life and it will stay with you longer and you'll enjoy it more.

On the next page is "Green." This article was written in the spring of '87, and as a humorous production it exceeds a wonder it is that he never submitted it for publication. How many articles there may be that were really meritorious that have perished on account of modesty or self-depreciation on the part of the author.

In the case of those sections situated partly in Cornwallis it will be necessary for the trustees to furnish the Inspector of Schools a certified copy of the amount of assessable property, (1.) in the whole section, (2.) of that part of it in Cornwallis.

Johnson's Decorators' Pure White lead; warranted equal to any lead in the market at WALTER BROWN'S School Commissioners' Meeting.

The Commissioners of Schools held their annual meeting in the Court House, Kentville, on Tuesday, 21st, inst.

Eleven Commissioners were in attendance and they elected William Eaton, Esq., chairman for the incoming year.

After the reading of minutes, inspector's report, and some routine matters were attended to the following business was transacted:

Resolved.—1. That Sand Hill and Woodville sections be notified to repair school houses or they will be liable to lose the County school grant.

2. That Canaan, Alton and Australia must repair their school houses and put them in good condition or the grants will be withheld from these sections.

3. That the school house in Davison St., section No. 68, be condemned as unfit for use.

4. That Gasperian section, No. 70, be notified to provide a suitable room for Primary Department of their school under penalty of forfeiture of grant.

The following petitions were then presented and considered:

1. From T. H. Grace, praying to be set from Somerset into Berwick section.

As Mr. Grace had not posted notice of his intention to apply to the Board for this change in the sections affected, five days previous to the Commissioners' meeting, the petition was referred back for compliance with the law in this respect.

2. From Ernest Griffin, Joseph Cleveland and Freeman Larkins asking to be transferred from White Rock to Greenwich section. Granted.

3. From James and Albert Elderkin to be set from Wolfville into Greenwich. By vote of the Board this matter was referred to the Inspector to report more fully at the next meeting.

The chairman requested W. E. Roscoe, Esq., to make a statement concerning the school land funds of Cornwallis. He reported that about $2,700 would soon be at the disposal of the Board for the schools in Cornwallis and moved the following resolution which was seconded by L. DeV. Chipman, Esq., and passed unanimously.

Resolved, That twenty-five dollars be paid from the accumulated school land funds to each section in Cornwallis and such part of 25 dollars to each section partly in Cornwallis as shall be proportioned to the amount of assessable property of Cornwallis in each section as compared with the whole assessable property in the section and that the balance of the fund be reserved—to be used in purchasing books, maps and other educational appliances for use in the schools of Cornwallis and to be distributed among the schools there as the Board shall subsequently order, and that orders on the Municipal Treasurer be issued accordingly.

It is probable that this money will be ready for payment in June next, and it will be necessary for the trustees of each section entitled to receive it to have an order on the Treasurer of the County signed by the chairman and clerk of the Board of School Commissioners before they can draw it.

In the case of those sections situated partly in Cornwallis it will be necessary for the trustees to furnish the Inspector of Schools a certified copy of the amount of assessable property, (1.) in the whole section, (2.) of that part of it in Cornwallis.

Resolved, That twenty-five dollars be paid from the accumulated school land funds to each section in Cornwallis and such part of 25 dollars to each section partly in Cornwallis as shall be proportioned to the amount of assessable property of Cornwallis in each section as compared with the whole assessable property in the section and that the balance of the fund be reserved—to be used in purchasing books, maps and other educational appliances for use in the schools of Cornwallis and to be distributed among the schools there as the Board shall subsequently order, and that orders on the Municipal Treasurer be issued accordingly.

S. C. SNELL, TEACHER OF BUSINESS, MONEY BRINGER, WINDSOR, N. S.

This concerns but few people in town, everybody else may skip it. I have got to make my school known to these few. I taught the System of Rapid Writing in the St. John Business College in '85 and '86, since in Nova Scotia. I have a Pen Art School and Business College in Windsor. The rooms are large, pleasant and well lighted. It is the sort of school that it can by its pupils instead of getting the utmost out of them. The sort that puts money in the pocket of everybody that has anything to do with it. It makes a fortune to do business right—well—faithful. Those who join before June 1st pay but $15.00 for unlimited instruction, Penmanship, Book-keeping, etc.

GRAND DIVISION.—The Grand Division Sons of Temperance, of Nova Scotia, held its quarterly session at Lawrence-town on the 7th and 8th inst. The reports were very cheering, showing an increase of 711 members during the last three months. The finances are in a splendid condition. Three hundred and eight divisions are working in a province, having a membership of 16,700, besides about two thousand children pledged to Bands of Hope. Thirty-six delegates, representing 17 divisions, located in Annapolis, Cumberland, Digby, Halifax, Kings, Lunenburg, Queens and Yarmouth counties were present.

Grand Pre.

Grass on the dyke never promised a more luxuriant yield than at the present. Grass, trees, everything, are a fortnight in advance of any season in memory. Spring began in April and moved smoothly along without one cold spell. Farmers began to plough in April and the sowing is completed and planting well under way. Early potatoes, corn and garden stuffs are up and growing rapidly under the gentle influence of the late warm showers. Our farmers never had the promise of more satisfactory crops than now.—Albert Mitchell has charge of Capt. Gorston's farm and is covering the hillside with apple trees. Thomas Kennedy is foreman at St. Enallie.—The examination at Acadia Villa will take place on Queens Birthday, and the students intend presenting an address and a valuable testimonial to the Principal as a mark of esteem and respect from the school and the "old boys" who were once Acadia Villians, the latter having come to the aid of the class of '89.—Measles have made a clean sweep of this place, many have been very ill, but no deaths to date. Several are suffering from a severe attack of bronchitis, but we have cause to be extremely thankful for good health in general and recovery from severe sickness by a number.—Com.

Death of Mr Knowles.

The death of C. W. Knowles, of Windsor, occurred at his late residence there on Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock. It will be remembered that Mr Knowles recently returned from California where he had been sojourning during the winter for the benefit of his health. Since his arrival home he grew gradually weaker and on Wednesday passed away, a victim of consumption. Mr Knowles was until recently the owner and editor of the Windsor Tribune. He married a Miss Lockhart, of Falmouth, and leaves a family of five boys, the oldest of whom is 16 years. The deceased was a man of sterling worth and was possessed of splendid business qualities. Through his success in accumulating considerable wealth. Mr Knowles was a comparatively young man, being only in his fortieth year. To the sorrowing wife and family we beg to extend our sincere and heartfelt sympathy. In the death of Mr Knowles we feel we have lost a warm personal friend. Requiescat in pace.

Fancy Paper Blinds at the Wolfville Book Store.

Special Announcement.

We have made arrangements with Dr. B. J. Kendall Co., publishers of "A Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases" which will enable all our subscribers to obtain a copy of that valuable work free by sending their address (enclosing a two-cent stamp for mailing same) to Dr. B. J. KENDALL CO., ENOSBURGH FALLS, VT. This book is now recognized as standard authority upon all diseases of the horse, and its phenomenal sale attests, over four million copies having been sold in the past ten years, a sale never before reached by any publication in the same period of time. We feel confident that our patrons will appreciate the work, and be glad to avail themselves of this opportunity of obtaining a valuable book.

It is necessary that you mention this paper in sending for the "Treatise." This offer will remain open for only a short time.

Dr. Geo. A. Fickles, a very eminent doctor of Mahone Bay, N. S., says: "I knew a man on this Bay who has been sick for a long time. All the medicine we tried or could think of did not reach his case. He tried Canadian Bitters and other Patent Medicine, all failed and he was gradually growing worse. At last he tried a bottle of Dr. Norton's Dook Blood Purifier. Imagine my surprise that in less than a week he was much improved in health, and by the time he had finished the second bottle he was a well man. I now have great call at my Drug Store for Dook Blood Purifier, which in the case mentioned proved itself far superior to any Bitters or Blood Purifier that I have ever known."

For sale by all Druggists and Dealers. J. B. NORTON, Proprietor, Bridgetown, N. S.
