

St. Helens.

ENTERTAINMENT.—The pupils of St. Helens school gave a very successful entertainment in the school-house, on Friday evening, Dec. 23rd.

HYMNAL.—Considerable excitement prevailed in our usually quiet village on Wednesday last, when a large company assembled to witness the marriage of Mr. Peter McDonald to Miss Martha Asquith, of St. Helens.

Belfast.

PRESENTATION.—At the close of the examination of the Belfast school which took place on Wednesday, the 21st Dec., the pupils presented Miss Maggie Radcliffe, the assistant teacher, with a handsome writing desk accompanied by the following address:

DEAR TEACHER.—As your term of service in this section has come to a close, we, on behalf of the pupils, for whom you have labored so earnestly to educate during the past year, cannot let this opportunity pass without expressing our appreciation of your services as a teacher.

MISS RADCLIFFE made a short but suitable reply, thanking the scholars for this mark of their appreciation of her work among them, and expressing the hope that they would attend to their studies, and respect and obey their next teacher, and that all should meet at last where parting is unknown.

Accident.

ACCIDENT.—A son of Mr. Jas. Lobb, of the 2d con. E. Wawanosh, met with a painful accident one day last week. He was engaged in cutting straw with a straw cutter and got his hand into the machine, cutting one of his fingers off and severely injuring another.

An entertainment consisting of music, readings and dialogues, was given in the Temperance hall, here, on Thursday, the 22nd Dec., by the pupils of Union S. S. No. 3, Colborne, which was largely attended. Addresses were also given by the Rev. Mr. Fritchard and Mr. John Young, of Kingston University.

The tea-meeting in the C. M. church on Friday the 23rd Dec., was a decided success, notwithstanding the unfavorable state of the roads. Tea was served in the Temperance hall, after which the company adjourned to the church, where addresses were delivered by the Rev. Mr. Cook, of Bayfield, Mr. Pritchard and Mr. Hillyard, of Auburn.

The Bright Side.

Look on the bright side. It is the right side. The times may be hard, but it will make them no easier to wear a gloomy and sad countenance. It is the sunshine and not the cloud that makes the flower. There is always that before and around us which should cheer and fill the heart with warmth.

S. E. BURWELL, of Fingall, Ont., writes:—Last autumn, I was suffering from a severe cold which settled on my lungs and produced a distressing cough, for which I gave trial to a number of Cough Medicines, but without any benefit.

There is no doubt that our Canadian climate is conducive to Lung affections, and for this reason Dr. Carson's Pulmonary Cough Drops should be in every house. For Colds, and all other Lung and Throat affections they have no equal. In large bottles at 50 cents. Geo. Rhygas, Agent for Goderich.

A Fitting Rebuke.

It remained for the cattle breeders of Michigan to illustrate the last degree of hoghishness to which the thirst for tariff protection can be carried. Heretofore the tariff has not stood in the way of the importation of blooded cattle; and, as a consequence, the scrub stock of Michigan has been greatly improved by the free intercourse they have enjoyed with the fine-bred English cattle of Canada.

The farmers of Michigan have in many instances gradually substituted for the mongrel cows and oxen of thirty years ago, beautiful beasts whose meat and milk have improved the table of every family in the state. A few wealthy stock farmers have imported fine herds of bulls and cows, and, having organized a Cattle Breeders' association, they have made up their minds that they have got a little way, and that it would be a mighty good thing for them if they could prevent others from going to the same ship to be supplied that they want so that all would have to go to them.

Resolved, That it is the sense of this association that the free importation of the thorough-bred stock from Canada is not further needed for the improvement of stock in the United States, and that the statute should be amended so that stock imported from Canada for breeding purposes should be stricken from the free list.

Some of the members wanted the resolution stiffened up so as not merely to put a tariff on imported thoroughbreds, but to exclude them altogether. The convention had not passed the resolution at last accounts, but probably will. There were about fifty persons present, and the signing of the resolution is simply that these fifty and the few others who represent, desire Congress to force the whole remainder of the population of Michigan to purchase exclusively from these fifty persons or go without.

It was all right for these shorthorn monopolists to go to Canada and get blooded stock for themselves, but once they were supplied further intercourse with Canada became a crime. The Shorthorn Cattle association should change its name. It should be called The Association of Shorttailed Hogs.

The teacher arose immediately after he called the school to order. There was a look of pain on his face, and he seemed to be feeling for an apple in his coat tail pockets, but he was not. He was feeling for something, but it was not an apple, and it was not in his pocket. He glanced around the school, and every face was either oblivious or mischievous except Walter Crane's. And Walter Crane's face, bent over his Latin grammar, had such a profoundly studious expression, it was so sublimely free from guile, it was so angelically innocent, the teacher called him to the big desk, and as Walter's wondering eyebrows arched themselves into silent but expressive interrogation points the teacher handled a long switch and said, "Yes, Walter, yes, it was very neatly done, and now if you will just stand out here for one minute I will show you just where that pin caught me." And he showed him, not once but many times, to the disgust of staid Walter Crane, and the infinite delight of all the school, and more especially big Sammy Johnson. Did Walter Crane really put the pin in the teacher's chair, children! Ah, no, indeed, and truly he didn't know a thing about it. It was big Sammy Johnson, who grinned and rubbed his hands every time Walter "hollered," who did it. Thus we see that sometimes in the study of physiology, the wisest teacher will, as Herodotus observes, "bite off more than he can chew."—Burdette.

Antiquity of Nursery Rhymes.

Many of these productions have a very curious history, if it could only be traced. Some of them probably owe their origin to names distinguished in our literature, as Oliver Goldsmith for instance, is believed in his earlier days to have written such compositions. Dr. E. F. Rimbault gives us the following particulars as to some well-known favorites:—"Sing a Song of Sixpence" is as old as the sixteenth century. "Three Blind Mice" is found in a music-book dated 1609. "The Frog and the Mouse" was licensed in 1850. "Three Children sliding on the Ice" dates from 1633. "London Bridge is Broken Down" is of unfathomed antiquity. "Girls and Boys come out to Play" is certainly as old as the reign of Charles II.; as is also "Lucy Locket Lost her Pocket," to the tune of which the American song of "Yankee Doodle" was written. "Pussy Cat, Pussy Cat, where have you been?" is of the age Queen Bess. "Little Jack Horner" is older than the seventeenth century. "The Old Woman Tossed in a Blanket" is of the reign of James II., to which monarch it is supposed to allude.

Bismarck is said to have initiated a movement by which Germany, Russia, Austria, and Italy shall unite to oppose any increase of Anglo-French influence in Egypt.

City vs. Local Weeklies.

From the Owen Sound Times. Some of the city papers having reduced the price of their weekly editions, in common with other publishers of local journals, we are frequently asked by those who are not conversant with the circumstances why we do not also reduce our subscription price. The simple reason is that no publisher of a local weekly the size of the Times can publish it for less than $1.50 and make it pay. In offices like the Mail and Globe, where they publish daily papers, they use the same type for the weekly, and having no type setting (the most expensive item in connection with a paper) to pay for, they can put out their weeklies at the mere cost of the paper and press-work. Local papers, which have their type-setting to pay for cannot pretend to compete in price with the city weeklies; but they can do better, they can give the people the news respecting home affairs, which is far more interesting and important to them. The people of the country will make a great mistake if they weaken their local journals by taking city weeklies instead because they get them cheaper, while they do not give the news they want. Local papers are the champions and supporters of the interests of their respective sections, and as such have a claim to the support of the people, aside from their intrinsic value, which is always greater than the price asked. If the people allow their local papers to be weakened, where will be their interests when they come in conflict with those of the cities in railway and other matters? They will have shorn their own advocates of influence, and they may depend upon it that the city papers will go against them as they have done in the past. We don't intend to try and compete in price with the city weeklies, but we intend, as in the past, to give our readers a live local journal, sticking up for the interests of this section of country, for far more value to the people of the county than any city weekly, and we have no fear but we will be supported as we have always been.

The "World" on J. J. Hawkins.

J. J. Hawkins is to be the Tory political agent for Ontario at the next general election. We presume our Tory friends have been sufficiently prudent to have some one ready to take his place should John J. happen to turn Grit before the election comes off. But as the able summer-saultier has been three times and got twice as it is now nearly three years since he was a Grit last, it may be that the Tory leader thinks he has sown his political wild oats as it were. Then, Sir John is getting old and in the nature of things cannot remain long at the head of the party, and as John J. is well known to be of opinion—having repeatedly expressed himself that way—that in the fulness of time the mantle of leadership must fall on him as at once the representative Irish Catholic and the ablest man among Ontario Tories, he will probably conceive it to be his interest to remain faithful.—[Toronto World.]

Loss of Appetite in Children.

FROM CHARLES H. COLGAGE, Manufacturer of Flavoring Extracts, 21 Blackstone street, Boston. "Last spring my little daughter, aged five, became very much emaciated with loss of appetite, the great prostration of strength, so much so that we were obliged to take her out of school. This continued through the summer and caused us much anxiety. After trying various remedies without deriving any benefit, our family physician recommended the use of PERUVIAN SYRUP. After using it one week we saw a marked improvement in the child's condition, and in a month she was rapidly gaining in health and strength, her appetite being excellent. At this date she is perfectly well, with round, plump cheeks, and healthy color, and is again attending school regularly. I consider her restoration to health entirely due to the PERUVIAN SYRUP, and feel that I cannot too highly recommend it as a tonic. Druggists sell Peruvian Syrup.

"Must say it's the nicest thing I ever used for the teeth and breath," says everyone having tried "TEA-BERRY."

A reason, I suppose, for the representations from Fullarton, Hibbert, Logan, McKillop, Tuckersmith, Mitchell and Seaforth to use their best efforts towards carrying to completion a railway from Woodstock via St. Marys and Seaforth and thence to some port on Lake Huron was unanimously carried at a recent public meeting in Mitchell.

Hazyard's Pectoral Balsam.

Cures coughs, colds, asthma, croup whooping cough, sore throat, bronchitis and all lung complaints that lead to consumption. Price 25 cents.

A Prominent Actor's Relief.

Mr. Tony Pastor, of New York City, the great humorous actor, was signally benefited by the Great German Remedy, and felt constrained to testify to its efficacy for the benefit of others suffering in the same way.

Do Not be Deceived.

In these times of quack medicine advertisements everywhere, it is truly gratifying to find one remedy that is worthy of praise, and which really does as recommended. Electric Bitters we can vouch for as being a true and reliable remedy, and one that will do as recommended. They invariably cure stomach and Liver Complaints, Diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary difficulties. We know whereof we speak, and can readily say, give them a trial. Sold at fifty cents a bottle, by all druggists. (Adv.)

Farmers and Mechanics.

If you wish to avoid great danger and trouble, besides a no small bill of expense, at this season of the year, you should take prompt steps to keep disease from your household. The system should be cleansed, blood purified, stomach and bowels regulated, and prevent and cure diseases arising from Spring malaria. We know of nothing that will so perfectly and surely do this as Electric Bitters, and at the trifling cost of fifty cents a bottle.—[Exch.—Sold by all druggists.]

What to Study.

Pope, the poetical philosopher said, "The proper study of mankind is man," and yet, how little is the real science of man studied. If people understood and heeded the laws of health, and if when out of sorts would resort to a common sense like Burdock Blood Bitters, many of the "ills that flesh is heir to" might be effectually remedied. It invigorates and regulates all the secretions to a healthy action.

Canadian Winter Sports.

The man who expressed his indifference as to who made the laws of a nation so long as its songs were not neglected, or a somewhat similar sentiment, might have gone further and said: "Tell me the character of the sports of a nation and I will tell you what kind of people they will be."

The fine, bracing Canadian climate largely accounts for this; and it is, therefore, not a matter of surprise that the average Canadian youth should become interested in his national diversions.

In regard to lacrosse, sufficient is already known in New York, and in other large cities in the United States, to warrant the impression that it will ultimately become quite popular.

With reference to snow-shoeing it affords any amount of enjoyment to both sexes, and in Canada it is not considered infra dig for young ladies to join snow-shoeing clubs.

From the brains we go to the lungs—you know where they are—they are what the butchers call the lights; here they are; they are the great bellows that keep the fire of life going.

Tobogganing is also another popular amusement in Canada; but although exciting enough it is sometimes dangerous, and fatal accidents not infrequently occur.

supporting the one in front. However, to an experienced tobogganist, this is unnecessary, for it requires all his skill to hold on tightly to the railing at the sides, which serves as a support.

Then there are other sports which exclusively speaking do not come under the head of "national," as golf and curling, the details of which most of our readers are already familiar with.

The author of "Rab and his friends," in "A Lay Sermon on Health" from the text in Job ii. and 4th "All that a man hath will he give for his life," inculcates care of the.

Keep it clean, keep it warm, keep it dry, give it air, have a regular scrubbing of all your body every Saturday night, and if you can manage it, you should every morning wash not only your face, but your throat and breast with cold water, and rub yourself quite dry with a hard towel till you glow all over.

Then the inside of your head—you know what is inside your head—your brain, you know how useful it is to you; the cleverest pair of hands among you would be of little use without brains; they would be like a body without a soul, a watch with the mainspring broken.

From the brains we go to the lungs—you know where they are—they are what the butchers call the lights; here they are; they are the great bellows that keep the fire of life going.

It is the most wonderful little pump in the world. There is no steam-engine half so clever at its work, or so strong. There it is in every one of us, beat, beating,—all day and all night, year after year, never stopping, like a watch ticking, only it never needs to be wound up—God winds it up once for all.

We now come to the stomach. You all know I dare say, where it lies. It

THE LESSON TO LEARN.

The municipal elections are now over, and the fight has been won and lost all over the Province. Of outside places we are not in a position to speak definitely, but of the contest in the town of Goderich we can say that on one side politics stood out prominently. This was particularly noticeable after the result of the polls was declared, and when the victors began to boast of another Conservative victory.

Mr. Campbell, owing to pledges given before Mr. Williams was in the field, nor rue their course, not because Mr. Campbell is not a good man in some respects, but because they firmly believe Mr. Williams to be a better one in every instance.

Mr. F. W. Johnston and Mr. W. Campbell must be given all the credit of the victory, if victory it can be called. The latter made an indefatigable canvass, and after getting the pledged support of a number of prominent Reformers, in the highways, went forth into the by-ways and raised the political cry.

There was an incongruity last Sunday in the Episcopal Church sermons at Guelph—an eternal unfitness of things, so to speak. The rector was away from home spending the holidays, and the labor of sermonizing at each service devolved upon the curate.

The Jamaica press is said to be discussing the question of annexing that country to the United States.

SOME OF OUR "YOUNG MEN ABOUT TOWN"

put in Monday last in attending to the time-honored custom of making New Year's calls. Did you notice them at the start, and did you observe them at the finish. At early morn, buoyant with the vigor of youth, arrayed so as to do credit to their tailors, and light of step, they hastened to make the attack upon the smoking Mocha, the lead-cake, the candies, the walnuts and the other pleasures. Assault after assault was made, and at first success crowned every effort.

Hard on the N. P. While the organs were shouting themselves hoarse asserting that the tariff had not increased the cost of living, the Civil Service, with a painful appreciation of facts, approached Ministers with a petition for a bonus because the cost of living had increased enormously under the operation of the N. P. This was a staggerer for Sir John, and speaks more loudly than anything the Opposition press can say of the effects of this disastrous tariff.

The new Government land regulations differ from the previous ones in several respects. A new classification of the lands is adopted, which may be stated briefly as follows:—A, lands within 24 miles on either side of the C. P. R. or its branch lines; B, lands within 12 miles of projected lines other than the C. P. R.; C, lands south of the main line of the C. P. R. not included in A and B; D, lands other than those in A, B and C. The pre-emptions in Class B are within 12 miles of any projected line, instead of 24 miles, as heretofore.

Miss Lumber recently sued the trustees of S. S. No. 3, South Cayuga, for wrongfully refusing to allow her to complete the term for which she was engaged. Miss L. was engaged at a meeting the residence of one of the trustees, there being only two trustees present.

Mr. John Ferguson has taken possession of the shop and residence formerly occupied by Mr. Alex. D. G. Blacksmith.

At the annual meeting of Union school section No. 5 Hullett, Mr. Samuel Marshall was elected trustee in room of Mr. Wm. King. The trustees are now Messrs. J. Hakkirk, F. Stalker and S. Marshall.

DECLINE OF MAN.—Impotency of mind, limb or vital function, nervous weakness, sexual debility, and all disorders caused by indiscretions and abuse, are radically and promptly cured by the use of Mack's Magnetic Medicine, which is for sale by all responsible druggists. COMMUNICATIONS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions of our correspondents. Contributors to this department must confine themselves to public questions, and be brief.

Property Qualification.

To the Editor of the SIGNAL. SIR.—I see in last week's Star a letter against Capt. Dancy's candidature, but as that gentleman was elected at the head of the poll in his ward the springing of the issue at the eleventh hour seems to have been void of effect.

Secularism in Duncannon.

The Municipal Elections caused little excitement in this place, but the loss was more than compensated for by the terrible confusion made on Wednesday, 28th ult., over the election of a trustee for this section.

James Laut, of Toronto was on Tuesday charged with an infraction of the law by holding a drawer for a $500 piano. Mr. Laut had only received the summons late on Monday night, the case was adjourned till Thursday.

On Wednesday last, William Tandy, political editor of the Kingston daily Whig, died from congestion of the lungs, at the age of 41 years.

It is now rumored that Walter Muirhead, who is alleged to have been concerned in the Hamilton Asylum robbery, is insane.

Four vacancies in the Senate have been filled. In Nova Scotia, Mr. Thos. McKay, ex-M. P., succeeds Hon. Mr. McLelan, who is now President of the Council.

Mr. John Ferguson has taken possession of the shop and residence formerly occupied by Mr. Alex. D. G. Blacksmith.

At the annual meeting of Union school section No. 5 Hullett, Mr. Samuel Marshall was elected trustee in room of Mr. Wm. King.

Tuckersmith.

A Good School.—The pupils of School Section No. 6, Tuckersmith, were carefully examined on Friday last by their teacher, Miss Bradford, and others, and acquitted themselves in such a way by their intelligent and ready answers as to convince those present that they are in charge of a lady thoroughly competent to mould and develop the young minds committed to her care.

GUITEAU'S TRIAL.

The Assassin's New Year in Jail—Favored with a Host of Visitors—Further Testimony by Dr. Gray—the Case Drugging Slowly Along.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.

It is understood the defense in the Guiteau case will shortly introduce a new feature. Forty or fifty so-called cranks have been arrested here since Guiteau shot the president, most of whom have been sent to the insane asylum on physicians' certificates. It is said the physicians in each case will be subpoenaed for the purpose of comparing those cases with that of Guiteau. Among the physicians are those upon whose certificates Biggins was committed to the asylum. Biggins' fiancée Grant appeared to him by means of a key hole in the door and persecuted him. Biggins afterwards sued Grant for a hundred thousand dollars damages. He was finally released and is now engaged in business here.

The court-room this morning was very cold.

Guiteau said, "I had a very happy New Year's yesterday. I had lots of visitors. They all expressed the opinion that I should be acquitted."

Dr. Gray took the stand, and Scoville resumed the examination. The witness had not, in giving the opinion on direct examination, that the prisoner was sane, taken into account the evidence of the prisoner himself; but taking that element into account his opinion would still be the same, the prisoner is sane and was sane on July 21.

A hypothetical question was propounded by Scoville, involving the killing of a woman by her husband without apparent motive. Witness was asked if that act would be an indication of insanity.

Answer—It would be a very extraordinary act. I should want to make an examination to see if it was from passion, or whether the man was drunk or had disease of the brain.

Guiteau—You would have to find disease of the brain before you could call him insane? That shows just how much you experts know about it.

Witness was asked if he was familiar with the case of Lieut. Sanborn, killed by Dr. Wright at Norfolk, and replied, "Yes, sir. I was sent by the President to make an examination and give an opinion in the case."

How much did you get for it," shouted Guiteau.

Witness was cross-questioned as to how or by what physical examination insanity and disease of the brain could be detected, and was asked if he ever had a patient in his asylum who recovered.

Answer—I have.

Question—Have you seen persons who recovered in three months?

Answer—I have.

Scoville—Were they discharged?

Answer—Yes, sir.

Scoville—If you experts were to examine such a patient immediately upon discharge could you tell by any physical indications that he had been insane only three months previous?

Witness (hesitatingly)—Not without a history of the case.

Scoville—I thought so.

Guiteau—Your idea, doctor, that a man cannot be insane unless his brain is diseased is rather frivolous. You don't agree with the Saviour. You ought to study up spirituality.

Witness did not believe in emotional insanity or moral insanity. Kleptomania and pyromania were simply conventional terms, invented to cover certain crimes. Insanity is never transmitted any more than cancer. Susceptibility to insanity is undoubtedly transmitted from parents to children, but insanity does not necessarily follow except from profound physical disturbance.

The district attorney announced the conclusion of the evidence on the part of the government.

Dr. Bowker, called by Scoville, said Mrs. Dummire told him at Leadville she entertained grave doubts as to the mental condition of Guiteau at the time of her divorce.

The prisoner undertook to read a letter, as he claimed from an old friend of Garfield's in Ohio, showing that public opinion is making in his favor.

Judge Cox ordered him to be silent.

Guiteau—"It shows that the state of public opinion outside of the court room."

Cox—"Be silent. Public opinion has nothing to do with case."

Guiteau—"When I speak I speak to fifty million, not to this little crowd."

Marshal Henry (moving toward dock)—"Keep quiet, sir."

Guiteau—"I'm through, sir."

The marshal whispered to a bailiff, and the prisoner soon started another hurra. The bailiff put a hand on his shoulder and tried to quiet him.

Guiteau—"Get away from me or I will slap you in the mouth." With this outburst he subsided.

It was agreed that Scoville shall tomorrow give reason for wishing to introduce new witnesses for the defence.

The court then adjourned.

That Kentucky Outrage.

ASHLAND, Ky., Jan. 3.—Wm. Neal, Ellis Craft and George Ellis (all whites) have been arrested for the murder of Gibbons' children. George Ellis confessed and says Craft and Neal awakened him on the night of the murder and urged him to go with them to Gibbons' house. He went reluctantly. They entered the window and Neal and Craft outraged the two girls. Emma Thomas recognized Neal and said she would tell her mother. The boy Robert was about to give the alarm when Craft struck him on the head with an axe, killing him. Craft told Fanny her time to die had come, and amid piteous cries of the child for mercy struck her on the head and killed her instantly. Neal then killed Emma Thomas the same way Craft and Neal at first denied Ellis' story, but Neal confessed this afternoon, and both he and Ellis waived examination. Craft will have a hearing on Thursday. Ellis and Neal are married. Craft is single. They were all present when Gibbons' residence was burned, and one of them drove the hearse at the funeral. Another was a pall-bearer. Crowds have been gathered all day, and lynching is anticipated.

That Lass o' Lowrie's.

A STORY OF THE LANCASHIRE COAL MINES
By FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT.

Derrick started and turned toward him with a sudden movement.
"Grace!" he said.
"I asked if you were sure of that," answered Grace, colouring. "I am not."

CHAPTER XXXV. THE EXPLOSION IN THE MINE.

The next morning Derrick went down to the mine as usual. There were several things he wished to do in these last two days. He had heard that the managers had entered into negotiations with a new engineer, and he wished the man to find no half-done work. The day was bright and frosty, and the sharp, bracing air seemed to clear his brain. He felt more hopeful, and less inclined to view matters darkly.

He remembered afterward that, as he stepped into the cage, he turned to look at the unpicturesque little town, brightened by the winter's sun, and that, as he went down, he glanced up at the sky and marked how intense appeared the bit of blue, which was framed in by the mouth of the shaft.

Even in the few hours that had elapsed since the meeting, the rumor of what he had said and done had been bruted about. Some collier had heard it and had told it to his comrades, and so it had gone from one to the other. It had been talked over at the evening and morning meal in divers cottages, and many an anxious woman had been into praise of the man who had "had a thowt for th' men."

In the first gallery he entered he found a deputation of men awaiting him,—a group of burly miners with picks and shovels over their shoulders,—and the head of this deputation, a spokesman burlier and generally gruffer than the rest stopped him.

"Mester," he said, "we chaps 'ud loike to ha' a word wi' you."
"All right," was Derrick's reply, "I am ready to listen."

The rest crowded nearer as if anxious to participate as much as possible, and give their spokesman the support of their presence.

"It is na mich as we ha' gotten to say," said the man, "but we're fair to say it. Are na we, mates?"

"Ay, we are, lad," in chorus.
"It's about summat as we've heard. There wur a chap as towld some on us last neet, as yo'd gotten th' sack fro' th' managers—or lastways as yo'd turned th' tables on 'em an' g'ien them th' sack yo'rsen. An' we've heard as it begun wi' yo'rsen standin' up fur us chaps—axin fur things as wur wanted i' th' pit to save us fro' rummin' more risk than we need. An' we heard as yo' spoke up bold, an' argied fur us an' stood to what yo' thowt wur th' reet thing, an' we set our minds on tellin' yo' as we'd heard it an' talked it over, an' we'd loike to say a word o' thanks i' common fur th' pluck yo' showed. Is na that it, mates?"

"Ay, that it is, lad," responded the chorus.
Suddenly one of the group stepped out and threw down his pick.

"An' I'm don't, mates," he said, "if here is na a chap as 'ud loike to shake hands wi' him."

It was a signal for the rest to follow his example. They crowded about their shakings, thrusting grimy paws into his hand, grasping it almost enthusiastically.

"Good luck to yo', lad," said one.
"We'n mean smooth sort o' chaps, but we'n stand by what's fair an' plucky. We shall ha' a good word fur thee when th' lass made thy flittin'."

"I'm glad of that, lads," responded Derrick, heartily, by no means unmoved by the rough-and-ready spirit of the scene. "Only wish I had better luck, that's all."

A few hours later the whole of the little town was shaken to its very foundations, by something like an earthquake accompanied by an ominous, booming sound which brought people flocking out of their houses, with white faces. Some of them had heard it before—all knew what it meant. From the colliers' cottages poured forth women, shrieking and wailing—women who bore children in their arms and had older ones dragging at their skirts, and who made their desperate way to the pit with one accord. From houses and workshops there rushed men, who, coming out in twos and threes joined each other, and forming a breathless crowd, ran through the streets scarcely daring to speak a word—and all ran toward the pit.

There were some at its mouth in five minutes; in ten minutes there were hundreds, and in half an hour the clamour rose to the cry of woe.

"My Mester's down!"
"An' mine!"
"An' mine!"
"Four lads o' mine's down!"
"Three o' mine!"
"My little ones their th' youngest—nabud ten year old, poor little chap—an' my big boy as wur a workin' man—"

"Ay, wenches, God ha' mercy on us an'—God ha' mercy!" And then more shrieks and wails in which the terror-stricken children joined.

It was a fearful sight. How many lay dead and dying in the noisome darkness below, God only knew! How many lay mangled and crushed, waiting for their death, Heaven only could tell!

In five minutes after the explosion occurred, a slight figure in clerical garb made its way through the crowd with an air of excited determination.

"Th' parson's feart," was the general comment.
"My men," he said, raising his voice so that all could hear, "can any of you tell me who last saw Fergus Derrick?"

There was a little pause, and then came a reply from a collier who stood near.
"I coom up out o' th' pit an' hour ago," he said. "I wur th' last as coom up, an' it wur on'y a chance as brovt me. Derrick wur wi' his men i' th' now part o' th' mine. I seed him as I passed through."

Grace's face became a shade or so paler, but he made no more inquiries.

His friend either lay dead below, or was waiting for his doom at that very moment. He stepped a little farther forward.

"Unfortunately for myself at present," he said, "I have no practical knowledge of the nature of these accidents. Will some of you tell me how long it will be before we can make our first effort to rescue the men who are below?"

Did he mean to volunteer—this young whippersnapper of a parson? And if he did, could he know what he was doing? "I ask you," he said, "because I wish to offer myself as a volunteer at once; I think I am stronger than you imagine, and at least my heart will be in the work. I have a friend below—myself, his voice altering its tone and losing its firmness—a friend who is worthy the sacrifice of ten such lives as mine if such a sacrifice could save him."

One or two of the older and more experienced spoke up. Under an hour it would be impossible to make the attempt—it might even be a longer time, but in an hour they might, at least, make their first effort.

If such was the case, the parson said, the intervening period must be turned to the best account. In that time much could be thought of and done which assist themselves and benefit the sufferers. He called upon the strongest and most experienced, and almost without their recognizing the prominence of his position, led them on in the work. He even rallied the weeping women, and gave them something to do. One was sent for this necessary article and another for that. A couple of boys were despatched to the next village for extra medical assistance, so that there need be no lack of attention when it was required. He took off his broadcloth and worked with the rest of them until all the necessary preparations were made and it was considered possible to descend into the mine.

When all was ready, he went to the mouth of the shaft and took his place quietly.

It was a hazardous task they had before them. Death would stare them in the face all through its performance. There was choking after-damp below, deadly noxious vapours, to breathe which was to die; there was the chance of crushing masses fallen from the shaken galleries—and yet these men left their companions one by one and ranged themselves, without saying a word, at the curate's side.

"My friends," said Grace, barring his head, and raising a feminine hand. "My friends, we will say a short prayer."

It was only a few words. Then the curate spoke again.

"Ready!" he said.
But just at that moment there stepped out from the anguished crowd a girl, whose face was set and deathly, though there was no fear upon it.

"I ax yo'," she said, "to let me go wi' yo' and do what I can. Lasses, some on yo' speak a word for Joan Lowrie!"

There was a breathless start. The women even stopped their outcry to look at her as she stood apart from them,—a desperate appeal in the very quiet of her gesture as she turned to look about her for some one to speak.

"Lasses," she said again, "Some on yo' speak a word for Joan Lowrie!"

There rose a murmur among them then, and then, and the next instant this murmur was a cry.

"Ay," they answered, "we can ax speak for yo'. Let her go, lads! She's wur two o' th' best on yo'. Nowt fears her. Ay, she mun go, if she will, mun Joan Lowrie! Go, Joan, lass, and we'n not forget thee!"

But the men demurred. The finer instinct in some of them shrank from giving a woman a place in such a perilous undertaking—the coarser element in others rebelled against it.

"We'n ha' no wenches," these said surlily.

Grace stepped forward. He went to Joan Lowrie and touched her gently on the shoulder.

"We cannot think of it," he said. "It bless you!—but it cannot be. I could not think of allowing it myself, if the rest would."

"Parson," said Joan coolly, but not roughly, "tha'd ha' hard work to help thysen, if so be as th' lads wur willin'."

"But," he protested, "it may be death. I could not bear the thought of it. You are a woman. We cannot let you risk your life."

She turned to the volunteers.
"Lads," she cried passionately, "yo' munnot turn me back. I—sin I mun tell yo'—and she faced them like a queen,—there's a mon down ther as I'd gi' my heart's blood to save."

They did not know whom she meant, but they demurred no longer.

They did not know whom she meant, but they demurred no longer.

"Tak' th' place, wench," said the oldest of them. "If th' man, th' man."

She took her seat in the cage by Grace, and when she took it she half turned her face away. But when those above began to lower them, and they found themselves swinging downward into what might be to them a pit of death, she spoke to him.

"There's a prayer I'd loike yo' to pray," she said. "Pray that if we mun dee, we may na dee until we ha' done our work."

It was a dreadful work indeed that the rescuers had to do in those black galleries. And Joan was the bravest, quickest, most persistent of all. Paul Grace, following in her wake, found himself obeying her, slightest word or gesture. He worked constantly at her side, for he at least, had guessed the truth. He knew that they were both engaged in the same quest. When at last they had worked their way—lifting, helping, comforting—to the end of the passage where the collier had said he last saw the master, then, for one moment, she paused, and her companion, with a thrill of pity, touched her to attract her attention.

"Let me go first," he said.
"Nay," she answered, "we'n go together."

The gallery was a long and low one, and had been terribly shaken. In some places the props had been torn away, in others they were borne down by the loosened blocks of coal. The dim light of the "Davy" Joan held up showed such a wreck that Grace spoke to her again.

"You must let me go first," he said, with gentle firmness. "If one of these blocks should fall—"

Joan interrupted him—
"If one on 'em should fall I'm th' one as it had better fall on. There is na mony feak as 'ud miss Joan Lowrie. Yo' ha' work o' yere own to do."

She stepped into the gallery before he could protest, and he could only follow her. She went before, holding the Davy high, so that its light might be thrown as far forward as possible. Now and then she was forced to stoop to make her way round a bending prop; sometimes there was a fallen mass to be surmounted, but she was at the front still when they reached the other end without finding the object of their search.

"It's he in there," she said. "Let us try th' next passage," and she turned into it.

It was she who first came upon what they were looking for; but they did not find it in the next passage, or the next, or even the next. It was farther away from the scene of the explosion than they had dared to hope. As they entered a narrow side gallery, Grace heard her utter a low sound, and the next minute she was down upon her knees.

"There's a mon here," she said. "It's him as we're lookin' fur."

She held the dim little lantern close to the face—a still face with closed eyes and blood upon it. Grace knelt down too, his heart aching with dread.

"Is he—?" he began, but could not finish.

Joan Lowrie laid her hand upon the apparently motionless breast and waited almost a minute, and then she lifted her own face, white as the wounded man's—white and solemn, and wet with a sudden rain of tears.

"He is na dead," she said. We ha' saved him."

She sat down upon the floor of the gallery and lifting his head laid it upon her bosom, holding it close as a mother might hold the head of her child.

"Mester," she said, "gi' me th' brandy flask, and tak' thowt they Davy an' go, fur some o' th' men to help us get him to th' leet o' day. I'm gone weak at last. I canna do no more. I'll go wi' him to th' top."

When the cage ascended to the mouth again with its last load of sufferers, Joan Lowrie came with it, blinded and dazzled by the golden winter sunlight as it fell upon her haggard, beautiful face. She was holding the head of what seemed to be a dead man upon her knee. A great shout of welcome rose up from the bystanders.

She helped them to lay her charge upon a pile of coats and blankets prepared for him, and then she turned to the doctor who had hurried to the spot to see what could be done.

"He is na dead," she said. "Lay yore hand on his heart. It beats yet. Mester, only a little, but it beats."

"No," said the doctor, "he is not dead—yet," with a breath's pause between the two last words. "If some of you will help me to put him on a stretcher, he may be carried home, and I will go with him. There is just a chance for him, poor fellow, and he must have immediate attention. Where does he live?"

"He must go with me," said Grace. "He is my friend."

So they took him up, and Joan Lowrie stood a little apart and watched them carry him away,—watched the bearers until they were out of sight, and then turned again and joined the women in their work among the sufferers.

covered her face with her hands weeping wildly.

"Don't do that," he said gently. "Come with me. It is you he needs."

He led the way into the house and up the stairs, Joan following him. When they entered the room they went to the bedside.

The injured man lay motionless. "Is there loife i' him yet?" asked Joan. "He looks as if heer might na be."

"There is life in him," Grace answered, "and he has been a strong man; so I think we may feel some hope."

(TO BE CONTINUED)

"Brace up!" We like that along phrase. We like it because there is lots of soul in it. You never knew a mean, stingy, snivelled souled man to walk up to an afflicted neighbor, slap him on the shoulder, and tell him to brace up. It is the big-hearted, open handed, whole-souled fellow who comes along when you are cast down and squares off in front of you and tells you, "that won't do, old fellow—brace up." It is he that tells you a good story and makes you laugh in spite of yourself, that lifts the curtain that darkens your soul, and tell you to look out and see the light. It is he that reminds you that there never was a brilliant sunset without clouds. He may not tell you so in just such words, but he will make you brace up and see the silver lining for yourself.

covered her face with her hands weeping wildly.

"Don't do that," he said gently. "Come with me. It is you he needs."

He led the way into the house and up the stairs, Joan following him. When they entered the room they went to the bedside.

The injured man lay motionless. "Is there loife i' him yet?" asked Joan. "He looks as if heer might na be."

"There is life in him," Grace answered, "and he has been a strong man; so I think we may feel some hope."

"Brace up!" We like that along phrase. We like it because there is lots of soul in it. You never knew a mean, stingy, snivelled souled man to walk up to an afflicted neighbor, slap him on the shoulder, and tell him to brace up. It is the big-hearted, open handed, whole-souled fellow who comes along when you are cast down and squares off in front of you and tells you, "that won't do, old fellow—brace up." It is he that tells you a good story and makes you laugh in spite of yourself, that lifts the curtain that darkens your soul, and tell you to look out and see the light. It is he that reminds you that there never was a brilliant sunset without clouds. He may not tell you so in just such words, but he will make you brace up and see the silver lining for yourself.

Another Year.
Another year is dawning:
Dear Master, let it be
In working or in waiting,
Another year with Thee,
Another year of leaning
Upon Thy loving breast,
Of ever deepening trustfulness,
Of quiet, happy rest.

Fun and Fancy.

Two views of the matter: "Yes" said Pendleton, smilingly, "what I am I can truly say my wife made me." "Not very complimentary to Mrs. Pendleton," replied Blunt in a stage whisper.

A Talk About House Work.

Girls whose parents can afford to keep servants get the impression sometimes that it is quite out of the question to engage in any kind of household work, some even leaving the care of their own room to the charge of hired help. Such girls seem to us the embodiment of laziness. There is no reason why every girl should not understand the running of the household machinery so that if at any time mother was sick and unable to oversee the usual arrangements, her daughter might be able to take her place, managing satisfactorily. It is a false notion that to become a housekeeper is to become also a domestic drudge, and if any of the girls who read this have made up their minds to that effect, let them abandon it instantly, and by experience prove it a libel. When there are two sisters in a family a good plan is to divide the work, each one being responsible for that portion that is entrusted to her care. Let each understand clearly what is expected of her, not doing it hap-hazardly, but promptly and regularly each week; or the work could be alternated, if this arrangement would be more agreeable.

One reason we would give in favour of household work for girls is, that it gives a chance to learn the many details connected with woman's work that cannot be learned in any other way than by experience, and without which knowledge no woman can govern a house well. We don't want to convey the impression that the girl should shoulder the entire responsibility of her home, but simply to show her how much better it is to be able to know how to do it, should it ever become necessary. House work is not demeaning; on the contrary, we consider it elevating. A girl can be just as much a lady in a sweeping-cap, with broom in hand, as in breakfast-cap, reclining languidly with book in hand. The truest, noblest and best woman we know has been trained from her girlhood to look, practically, to the ways of the household, and yet she is a lady in every respect, an ornament to the most cultivated society. When you have homes of your own, girls, and are obliged to get along with little or no help, you will be thankful for the training you have imposed upon yourself in youth, or if it falls to your lot to have servants in abundance you will still be glad that you can rule and direct them, and should they leave you without any warning, as they are sometimes disposed to do, you will be "mistress of the situation," able to take hold successfully until such time as relief may come.

A great many people are troubled with cold feet, which is invariably caused by a sluggish circulation of the blood. The Mystic Mistletoe.

The mistletoe, apart from its use at Christmas, has always been an object of interest to naturalists. This Herrick speaks of it as—
"The mystic mistletoe,
Which has no root, and cannot grow
Or prosper by that same tree
It clings about."
Indeed, few plants have been honored with a more varied folk-lore than the mistletoe; and according to one tradition the cross was made of it. Prior to this time it is reported to have been a fine forest tree, but was condemned henceforth to lead a parasitical existence. As is well known, too, this plant was held in the greatest veneration by the Druids, who gathered it at the commencement of the year with every mark of pomp. At what time, however, mistletoe came to be recognized by us as a Christmas evergreen is uncertain. There are Christmas carols in praise of holly and ivy of even earlier date than the fifteenth century, but allusion to mistletoe can scarcely be found for two centuries later, or before the time of Herrick. Brand considers that it was never put in churches amongst evergreens but by mistake and ignorance; for, says he, "it was the heathenish or profane plant, as having been of such distinction in the Pagan rights of Druidism, and it had its place therefore assigned to it in kitchens, where it was hung, in great state."

Various superstitions are still attached to this plant, which are not confined to our own country. Thus, formerly in Worcestershire, farmers were in the habit of taking a bough of mistletoe and giving it to the cow that first calved after New-Year's Day, as this act was supposed to avert ill-luck from the dairy. In Holstein the mistletoe is the "marientaken" or "branch of spectres," and is supposed to confer upon its possessor the power of seeing ghosts. No allusion to the popular custom of kissing under the mistletoe is met with earlier than the middle of the seventeenth century. Cypress has been occasionally used for church decorations, but its general relations render it somewhat out of place at a festive season like that of Christmas. Rosemary, too, has been in request at this time, whereas the laurel, which Spenser describes as the "Meed of mighty conquerors and poets sage," is a popular decoration. The bay also is gathered, but many object to its presence in churches at Christmas, it being a funeral flower, and considered an emblem of the Resurrection. Thus Sir Thomas Browne says that when seemingly dead it will revive from the root, its dry leaves resuming their wonted vitality again. At Christmas tide this plant is frequently in demand at family gatherings, being used for love divinations, its leaves when crushed in the hollow of the hand being supposed to tell the truth of the lover by a crackling sound.—Gardener's Chronicle.

RAILWAY CONSOLIDATION.

The Great Western, Credit Valley, Ontario and Quebec, and Toronto, Grey and Bruce to Amalgamate.
From Toronto Globe.
Mr. E. B. Osler, who has been in England for the past two months, representing the bondholders of the Credit Valley, has returned to the city. He was interviewed yesterday evening, regarding the reported sale of the Credit Valley to the Great Western.
"I have not followed the reports in the Toronto papers, regarding the matter," said Mr. Osler, "but I will give you an idea of the scheme. In the first place the Credit Valley has not been sold to the Great Western, but arrangements have been made between the directors and bondholders of the Great Western, Credit Valley, Ontario and Quebec, and the Toronto, Grey and Bruce Railways by which the four roads will be consolidated.
"How was the consolidation effected?"
"While I was in England representing the bondholders of the Credit Valley, a number of meetings were held by the English directors of the other roads, and as it was apparent that the scheme was a good one, and almost necessary, in view of the strong competition anticipated, it was finally decided on."

Newspaper Laws.

We call the special attention of postmasters and subscribers to the following synopsis of the newspaper laws:
1. A postmaster is required to give notice by letter (returning a paper does not answer the law) when a subscriber does not take his paper out of the office, and state the reasons for its not being taken. Any neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publishers for payment.
2. If any person orders his paper discontinued, he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount, whether it be taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until the payment is made.
3. Any person who takes a paper from the post-office, whether directed to his name or another, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the pay.
4. If a subscriber orders his paper to be stopped at a certain time, and the publisher continues to send, the subscriber is bound to pay for it if he takes it out of the post-office. This proceeds upon the ground that a man must pay for what he uses.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take a newspaper and periodicals from the post-office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.
No article ever attained such unbounded popularity in so short a time as Burdock Blood Bitters, and that too during the existence of countless numbers of widely advertised bitters and blood purifiers. It is evident that this medicine begins its work at once, and leaves no desirable effect unattained.

PRESENTATION.—On Monday evening the grangers of Farmer's Wreath Grange and their friends marched from the Hall with well-filled baskets to the residence of Mr. John Cuthbertson, who purposes leaving in the spring for Dakota. After the usual greetings on similar occasions, they presented Mr. Cuthbertson with a handsome silver watch, and an address expressive of their esteem for him as a neighbor, and of the useful work done by him in connection with the grange. Mr. C. made a very appropriate reply, after which the baskets were opened and a very sociable evening was spent.

SOCIAL.—On Friday evening last, the members of Dewdrop Lodge, No. 396, U. T. A., held a neck-tie social in the Orange Hall. At an early hour the hall was filled when the neck-ties were given out; and then the comparing of neck-ties and the pairing of partners began. When this had been done, and all had got comfortably seated again, the refreshments were passed around to which ample justice was done by those present, when order was once more restored, Mr. R. D. Cameron was called to the chair. After a few introductory remarks by the chairman, a lengthy programme consisting of music, readings and recitations was commenced. The entertainment was brought to a close by singing "God Save the Queen."

The following is the list of officers elected for the ensuing quarter of Pure Retreat Division, No. 368, Sons of Temperance.—Wm. Robertson, W. P.; Mrs. C. Robertson, W. A.; R. S. Heddie, R. S.; Ida Walters, A. R. S.; Rich. Moore, Chap.; Geo. Stewart, Con.; M. B. Gedhill, A. Con.; Mrs. Flanigan, I. S.; E. Flanigan, O. S.; A. Heddie, P. W. P.

ELECTION.—The election of trustees of school section No. 2 took place on Wednesday, the 28th Dec. Mr. A. Heddie was appointed returning officer. It was moved, seconded and carried, that Thos. Gedhill act as people's auditor. Mr. Wm. Vanstone acted as trustees' auditor. The report read by Thos. Gedhill auditor was adopted as read. Mr. Wm. Vanstone and John Snider were candidates for election. Mr. Wm. Vanstone was elected by a small majority over the retiring trustee, Mr. John Snider.

Colborne. PEAGOGUE.—Mr. R. E. Brown, late of the Nile will take charge of No. 5 S. S. this year. The trustees are Messrs. John Linklater, A. H. Naftel, and D. Hetherington.

TIN WEDDING.—On Monday last a large number of friends and relatives met at Morrisdale farm to celebrate the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morris. Among the company was the venerable John Morris, a merry and sprightly old man of sixties. The gathering was a joyous one.

The pupils of S. S. No. 1, have again organized their Literary Society. This society is composed of the pupils of the school who spend an hour (from three to four o'clock) every Friday afternoon in carrying out their programme of which a week's notice has been given.

Mr. Wm. McKay left here on Monday to attend the Normal School in Ottawa. We are pleased to state that Miss Ada Burritt's services have been secured as one of the teachers in the Duncannon school for the ensuing year.

Christmas day (Monday) was spent very quietly in the village, a shooting match for turkeys being the principal event; but as the shades of night drew on, some troublesome juveniles began to wax wrathful, and clustered about in a fierce embrace. However, beyond a slight loosening of grey whisker and a collar button, not much damage was done.

ELECTION.—A lively time was indulged in here on the 28th ult., by the ratepayers of this section, over the election of one of their trustees. A large number were present, and the election was again nominated to his old seat in the council of three. Mr. Joseph Malough was also nominated and a tight contest ensued, which resulted in favor of Mr. Anderson by one vote. But a slight hitch in the transaction in the shape of a vote being changed, led the opposing party to think the proceedings illegal, so a new election will probably be the result; at any rate there is "music in the air."

CONRAD. HYMENAL.—A very sociable gathering took place here on the evening of the 29th inst., at the residence of the bride's father to witness the nuptials between Mr. John S. Miller, of Lucknow, and Miss Emma J. McCaig, of this place. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Lettich, our esteemed pastor, who kept the company in good humor, with his cheerful countenance and pleasant conversation, while waiting for the lucky man to arrive on the scene. In the early part of the evening some of the young gallants were making speculations as to the possibility of the groom's getting here, on account of the bad roads.

DEAR TEACHER.—The human heart is hardly susceptible of more pleasant emotions than those excited in the act of bestowing upon their worthy objects the various tokens of esteem and love we often bestow them. This is none the less true socially than individually, an evidence of which we to-day feel in the pleasure with which we unite in bestowing upon you a small tribute of our appreciation for the manner in which you have so efficiently discharged your duties as teacher of this school. We wish to make special mention of your punctuality, industry and untiring perseverance—traits for which you have been so conspicuously distinguished. We, as members of this school thought it opportune to present you with some tangible expression of the fact that we indeed appreciate the character of your labors. We wish to express our acceptance of this small token of our respect, not for its nominal value, but for the good that it may prompt in the hearts of the natives also with our sincere wishes for which we need not utter a single word.

faithful discharge of the duties of this school be likewise extended to every cause of right and virtue it becomes your opportunity to support. In conclusion we venture to express the hope that although you leave us for the present it will only be for a season and that we shall have the pleasure of again welcoming you to Poverty Section.

Clinton. The friends of the Rev. Mr. Stewart, will regret to learn that he is still laid up by an attack of quincy.

A HEMLOCK.—On Thursday a man gave an exhibition of strength on the market ground, that was truly remarkable. To a coal oil barrel containing nearly 50 gallons of water was attached a small strip of leather, by catching which in his teeth, he raised the barrel a couple feet from his platform; and while holding it in this position two of the heaviest men in town—Messrs. Spooner and Sheppard—straddled the barrel, and the entire weight of over 900 lbs. was thus held by him for a minute or two. After doing this he took a heavy chair in his teeth, and carried it backwards over his head to the boards in which he was standing, and brought it back again in the same circle, a very difficult thing to do. He was rewarded for his performance by a contribution of over $12.—[New Era.]

DEAR TEACHER.—The human heart is hardly susceptible of more pleasant emotions than those excited in the act of bestowing upon their worthy objects the various tokens of esteem and love we often bestow them. This is none the less true socially than individually, an evidence of which we to-day feel in the pleasure with which we unite in bestowing upon you a small tribute of our appreciation for the manner in which you have so efficiently discharged your duties as teacher of this school. We wish to make special mention of your punctuality, industry and untiring perseverance—traits for which you have been so conspicuously distinguished. We, as members of this school thought it opportune to present you with some tangible expression of the fact that we indeed appreciate the character of your labors. We wish to express our acceptance of this small token of our respect, not for its nominal value, but for the good that it may prompt in the hearts of the natives also with our sincere wishes for which we need not utter a single word.
