A Child of Sorrow.

CHAPTER XXX.

In a flash Heroncourt saw the object of the man's proceedings; but he kept up the farce—or was it the first act of a tragedy?

"Go and bury the dog, and keep a civil tongue in your head," he said, angrily.

David Jones got a spade and began to dig a grave, but he took his time about it; and Heroncourt, still growling under his breath, went upstairs, got the box, and cautiously looking round to see that he was unobserved, joined the grave-digger. David Jones did not turn his head as Heroncourt approached, but said in a whisper:

"Drop it in when I say 'Now!'"

He got between Heroncourt and the hut, straightened himself and wiped his brow, and looked round for any possible watchers; then "Now!" came sharply from his closed lips.

Heroncourt took the box from under his coat and dropped it in the hole; then he turned angrily on David Jones and swore at him.

"Look alive!" he said. "Anyone would think you were conducting a first-class funeral. Fill in that hole and get about your business. You and I will have to part, my man, if there's any more feeling of this kind." But as he strode past the little man, he whispered, "Good! That was clever of you!"

A faint streak of colour came into the little man's face, and his eyes glistened with pleasure; but he continued to grumble audibly enough for anyone about the house to hear.

Heroncourt went into the parlour and threw himself back in a chair, and laughed silently. It certainly was a clever trick, and it was providential that the evil cur had turned up at that moment, for, as Jones had said, he had been worrying the sheep for days past. Heroncourt felt encouraged by the presence of such an ally, for, small as he was, he had evidently more brains than many a bigger man.

For the rest of the day, Heroncourt remained near the hut, apparently quite at his ease, and singing and whistling as he went to and fro; but that most trying of all emotions, suspense, was tearing at his heart. The coming trouble, if coming it were, would not have weighed upon him so much if the women had not been present; but when he thought of them, of the child-like Little Lucy, in the hands and at the mercy of such a man as Black Jake, his heart was racked with an unpleasant mixture of fear and rage; and, as often happens, the girl innocently sharpened the barb for him, for she, too, was singing and with a real and not assumed cheerfulness and gaiety.

The fact was, she adored her master with that almost dog-like love which asks no reward and does not dream of any return for its devotion; and hearing him so apparently blithe and jolly her spirit moved in unison, and out of sheer sympathy she sang in and about the house as he whistled outside.

All unconsciously, she piled up the agony for him as she hovered about him during dinner. She had a way of standing with her hand upon her hip, a picture of rustic grace, watching him with a faint, slow smile parting her girlish lips, as if it were a happiness to her to see him eat and to be able to wait upon him; and every now and then she would address a word or two to him, with a kind of shy boldness which, notwithstanding its seeming freedom never verged upon disrespect. The dinner was a good one, but, as may be supposed, Heroncourt was not capable of doing justice to it. It is only the man in the condemned cell, apparently, who can make a hearty meal on the eve of his execution; Heroncourt could not help thinking, as Lucy placed before him the dishes on which she had bestowed such care, that it was probably the last meal he and those who stood by him, would require, and the reflection destroyed any appetite which he might have had.

"You don't seem to care for anything to-night, Mr. Tudor," said Lucy, as, after futile attempts, he laid down his knife and fork and leant back. "And I took such a lot of trouble over that stew; for you generally like it! You scarcely touched the chops, and now I suppose you don't want any pudding? It's a new kind of pudding, too; one that my brother John used to be very fond of. He used to give me a bit of ribbon or something of that kind whenever I made it. Now, do you try and eat a bit when I bring it in; I'm sure you'll like it, if you will only taste it."

She brought it in and set it down and stood close by his elbow looking at him with smiling anxiety; and as Heroncourt smiled up at her, something seemed to grip his heart. The child was not a bit like Malda, but still she reminded him of her. Thank God that Malda was not out in these wilds, was not exposed to this poor girl's peril!

He forced himself to eat some of the pudding and nodded approvingly.

"It's first-rate, Lucy!" he said. "You're a cordon bleu—that means a blue ribbon of a cook—and, by George you shall have your blue ribbon!"

Her pretty face flushed crimson and her eyes rested on him with a dog-like gratitude and love; but she shrank back a little as he took a half sovereign from his pocket.

"Oh, no, no, I don't want that, sir!" she said. "It's quite enough for you to be pleased with it."

"Never mind; take it, Lucy," said

Heroncourt. "Just try and imagine that I am your brother John."

She laughed and shook her head as she reluctantly took the coin.

"Ah, no; you are very different to John," she said. "He's a good sort, and he's been a good brother to me; but he's not a gentleman like you. And I never want you to give me any money for anything I do. If you'll only say, 'Thank you, Lucy,' as you always do, and smile—"

The colour slowly waned in her face and her eyes grew moist; but she turned away with a laugh to hide the emotion which puzzled and troubled her own innocent breast.

Meanwhile, in the adjoining room, the men were talking and laughing loudly, as if no conspiracy were afoot; but Heroncourt was listening to them and fancying that he could detect an artificiality in their noise, when Gosford came into the parlour clutching David Jones by the collar. The little man looked at Heroncourt meaningly, and growled to Gosford, in an undertone:

"Speak up!"

Thus adjured, Gosford, who was about as bad an actor as could be imagined, said, loudly:

"I brought this man in to you, Mr. Tudor. He's always lurking about the place; and just now I found him trying to get into the larder."

As Gosford's voice rose, the men in the adjoining room ceased talking and were evidently listening.

"Found him in the larder, did you?" said Heroncourt, loudly and distinctly. "Seems to me that you are rather a troublesome customer, Jones; this is not the first time I had to complain of you. What have you got to say for yourself?"

"I was only sharpening my knife on the stone outside," said Jones.

"He was cutting away at the lard," Mr. Tudor," said Gosford.

Obediently a jerk of David Jones's head, Heroncourt said, angrily:

"Here! I'll go and see for myself. Bring him along, Gosford. If I find you've been up to any hanky-panky tricks, Jones, I'll discharge you to-morrow morning."

Gosford lugged the little man out and Heroncourt followed; and the voices of the men in the shed rose and mingled with the laughter over David Jones's discomfiture.

When the three men had got out side, David Jones whispered:

"Keep hold of me still; they may come out." Then he added, in a quick whisper: "They mean trying to get to-night. I overheard 'em. Black Jake and his mate will join them a midnight. When we get within hearing of the shed, give me a cuff over the head, and send me packing, and I'll come round and get into the house and hide away quiet."

He was dragged round to the little lean-to, which served as a larder, and Heroncourt made a pretence of examining, by the aid of Gosford's lantern, some marks on the door; then he said, angrily:

"You are right, Gosford. He's been tampering with the lock."

He dealt David Jones a cuff and a push. The little man stumbled and fell against the log wall.

"Now, take your discharge. I won't have such a man as you about the place. Off with you at once, and don't let me see eyes on you again. Watch him off the place, Gosford."

Then he went to the shed and opened the door and looked in and nodded. The laughter and the talk stopped dead at his appearance, all the faces were turned towards him, several of the men rose awkwardly to their feet.

"All right, men," said Heroncourt. "I've just been sacking that fellow David Jones; thought you'd hear the row and wonder what was up. You're going down the river to-morrow, Johnston, aren't you? Well, good-night. Here, some of you like to try 'bacca'?"

He tossed the large pouch on the table in an off-hand way, nodded again, and went out. He had only been in the room a minute or two, but his quick eyes had caught the gleam of a revolver stuck in some of the men's belts, and he felt, rather than saw, that there were rifles under the heap of coats which had been thrown down with apparent carelessness in the corner. He returned to the parlour and called loudly to Lucy for a glass of ale. As he took it from her, he whispered:

PAINS IN SIDE AND BACK

How Mrs. Kelly Suffered and How She was Cured.

Burlington, Wis.—"I was very irregular, and had pains in my side and back, but after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets and using two bottles of the Sanative Wash I am fully convinced that I am entirely cured of these troubles, and feel better all over. I know your remedies have done me worlds of good and I hope every suffering woman will give them a trial."—Mrs. ANNA KELLY, 710 Chestnut Street, Burlington, Wis.

The many convincing testimonials constantly published in the newspapers ought to be proof enough to women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the medicine they need.

This good old root and herb remedy has proved unequalled for these dreadful ills; it contains what is needed to restore woman's health and strength.

If there is any peculiarity in your case requiring special advice, write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for free advice.

"Close the shutters of your room to-night, Lucy."

She started, and the colour slowly left her face and her eyes flew towards the partition. Heroncourt's hand fell upon her arm and closed round it gently but reassuringly, and he smiled at her—the smile which a man turns upon a woman when he is asking her to nerve herself for an ordeal. Her lips shut tightly, her eyes dwelt on his with a strange look, then she nodded, and, without a tremor in her voice said:

"Won't you have another glass, sir?"

"No, thank you, Lucy," he replied. "Get off to bed now."

Five minutes after she had gone, Baxter entered the room, and, as if his entrance were a signal, Gosford and David Jones appeared from upstairs.

Heroncourt nodded towards the rack, and each man armed himself. There were six rifles; and they had their revolvers. Heroncourt placed Baxter at the foot of the stairs, signalled to the other two to go upstairs, and when they had done so, he closed the shutters and bolted them, extinguished the lamp and followed.

This upper storey consisted of three rooms opening on to a little lobby or landing. Heroncourt occupied the room facing west, the two women the room at the other end, and Baxter slept in the middle one, which was a mere slip. All the windows were shuttered, and to get at their prey the assailants would have to force their way up the rough narrow stairs.

"They've got their work cut out for them, sir," whispered David Jones, in his impassive voice. "There's three good rifles and three good men behind them, and there's ammunition to last—"

"For how long?" said Gosford, with a shake of the head.

"Long enough to enable us to sell our lives dearly," said Heroncourt. (To be Continued.)

A safe way to pack eggs in a hand grip is to first put them in a glass jar and pack tissue paper into the top to hold them firm.

To make jam or marmalade look clear without skimming it, add a piece of butter the size of an egg before removing the fruit from the fire.

"All right, men," said Heroncourt. "I've just been sacking that fellow David Jones; thought you'd hear the row and wonder what was up. You're going down the river to-morrow, Johnston, aren't you? Well, good-night. Here, some of you like to try 'bacca'?"

He tossed the large pouch on the table in an off-hand way, nodded again, and went out. HOSPITAL SHIP IN BAD SHAPE.
HALIFAX, To-Day.
According to salvagers experts there is still a chance to save the hospital ship which ran ashore near Chebucto Head on Wednesday morning. She was abandoned early this morning by the officers and crew after she had taken a list to starboard and with a crash that caused the great ship to tremble from stem to stern, the water-tight bulkhead separating No. 2 and 3 holds was forced in by pressure of the water that had entered the forward part of the ship.

SIB. USES STEAMER AS A BASE.
COPENHAGEN, To-Day.
The members of the crew of the Norwegian steamship Benguela, previously reported sunk by a German submarine, arrived at Bergen. They say their ship was captured on June 15th in mid-Atlantic by a big submarine, which used the Benguela as a base. The submarine was still in possession when the crew was transferred to another steamer on June 25th.

DOES NOT FAVOR SOCIALIST CONFERENCE.
LONDON, To-Day.
It was made quite clear by Andrew Bonar Law in the Commons to-day that no members of the Government would attend the proposed International Socialist Conference. While the Government had not decided upon its policy regarding granting passports to private individuals to attend, he said the step would not be taken without serious consideration and probably not at all.

HEAT WAVES AND ELECTRIC STORMS.
HALIFAX, To-Day.
Last night and until 2 this morning Halifax was again cut off from telegraphic communication with the States and upper provinces by an electrical storm between St. John and Montreal, which put the wires out of commission. The Eastern States and the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec have been sweltering under a heat wave for the past two weeks which the electric storm to-night may break.

Sunshine Entertainment at Vigornia

A GREAT SUCCESS.
The entertainment given at Vigornia, the beautiful residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. Browning, King's Bridge Road, last night offered an attraction never before equalled in the city. The fine grounds garbed in nature's beauty and gaily bedecked with bunting and myriad lights was a sight worth seeing. The affair opened in the afternoon and the first item on the programme was a dance of the seasons: Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter, which were represented by Misses Lois Reid, Cicely Rendell, Margaret Edens and Olga Rogers. It was followed by an old-time minuet by four couples. Next came "Narcissus and the Nymph," a dance by Mrs. Colville and Miss Flora Clift and composed by Mrs. Colville from a Mazourka by Durand. Miss Mary Harris, who appeared for the first time in public, rendered a pretty song. In the evening the programme opened with tableaux. The first was America, Miss Or representing the Statue of Liberty, with the American flag draped about her feet and holding aloft a torch. France was represented by Mrs. Colville. Miss F. Knight and Miss Mary Doyle; Belgium, Miss Beth Bartlett; Russia, Misses Joan Rendell and Sewell Woodward; Italy, Miss Windeler and Olga Rogers; Serbia, Miss Frances Gosling; Canada, Mrs. C. McK. Harvey, Miss Dorothy Harvey, Messrs. J. Clift and Leonard Reid; Britannia and India, Mrs. J. S. Munn, Mr. Herb. Summer Residence of Mr. Kelly Destroyed by Fire.

About 2 o'clock this morning the magnificent country residence of Mr. W. A. O'D. Kelly, situated on the Koumount Road, was totally destroyed by fire with practically all its contents. In the house at the time of the fire were Mr. Kelly and four children, Mrs. Jas. Foley and child, sister-in-law of Mr. Kelly, who was visiting there. At the usual hour the family retired for the night and were fast asleep when Mr. Kelly was awakened by the presence of smoke which was causing him to breathe heavily. Jumping out of bed he shouted to the other occupants of the house to dress themselves and get out of doors as the house was on fire. After slipping on his outer clothing he assisted Mrs. Foley and the children out into the open and hurrying back into the house endeavoured to locate the fire, but to no avail, as at each attempt to enter the building he had to retreat half choked with smoke. Seeing that there was no hope of saving his home, he endeavoured to save what belongings he could, and succeeded in saving some articles of clothing and a little furniture that was within reach. By this time a number of people living in that vicinity had gathered at the scene but could do nothing to save the bungalow, as the flames, aided by the high wind, had quickly demolished the sides and roof of the building, leaving nothing but a pile of charred timbers. How the fire originated is unknown. A gentleman who was motoring citywards observed the flames some distance away, and rushing at top speed to the scene offered his services to Mr. Kelly. Taking Mrs. Foley and child and Mr. Kelly's four children, he motored back to the city. The bungalow was considered one of the prettiest summer residences near the city and is a great loss to the owner. We understand Mr. Kelly was given an offer of $10,000 some time ago for the building and grounds but refused to sell.

Norwegian Band Gives Band Concert

At Bannerman Park this evening. The handsomeness of the Kristianiafjord, who are staying at the Peapack Inn, instituted, discoursed some lively airs in the main hall there this morning, much to the delight of a crowd of people. A striking feature of the band is the harmonious effect from the drums and cymbals, which are played by one man. Those competent to judge say that the band is one of no mean ability.

LAST NIGHT'S GAME.

Their Excellencies Sir Walter and Lady Davidson, accompanied by Capt. Riley, M.C., were present in the bleachers at last night's baseball game, and saw the Red Lions give the Wanderers the worst drubbing of their career when they defeated the erstwhile champions 12 runs to 1. Though the score was very much one-sided, the clash was fast and lively, and the activities of the victors on the base-paths elicited much applause from the fans. The game started 15 minutes late through two of the Wanderer players not being on hand in time, and Mgr. Hartnett should make a strenuous effort to prevent a recurrence, as apart from wearing out the patience of the spectators, the evenings are now getting short and a prolonged encounter might very easily result in the game having to be called through darkness—to the dissatisfaction of both players and fans. The high wind which prevailed prevented slugging, so that nothing more than singles were batted. Britt pitched five innings for the Wanderers, but the 12 runs scored by the Lions during his tenure of office were not due to his inability but to the fumbling and wild throwing of his infield. Brown replaced him in the sixth and prevented further scoring. Several brilliant double plays were made, two by the Wanderers and one by the Lions. Ellis pitched his farewell game, and an excellent one it was. His departure threatens to stop the onward rush of the Hiltz crew for the penultimate and it is generally conceded that had he been discovered earlier in the season their present standing in the table of percentages would have been much improved. Cooney, who has fully recovered from his injuries, will probably do slab duty for them for the balance of the race.

Patriotic Football.

The St. Andrew's and B. I. S. will try conclusions this evening and a fine exhibition is expected. The receipts for the football matches to date, in aid of the Patriotic Fund, are far ahead of the amount from the baseball games.

Frenzied Finance.

The House of Assembly has amended, drastically amended, the Business Profits Tax. The fact itself is refreshing evidence of the force of public opinion, for not a single member raised a dissenting voice against the original measure. This reflection apart, the changes are interesting. It is only fair to admit that some of them are an improvement; it is equally fair to say that the rest more than sweep the improvement away. The starting point of the tax is extended on to $3,000 and the obvious step of taxing only the excess above that amount is taken. This is all to the good, not that it is to be particularly recommended but because it considerably limits the pernicious propensities of the whole Act. A further improvement, altogether to the good, is the reduction of the tax itself from twenty-five to twenty per cent. There the credit side must stop. On the debit side we have a tax of one-half per cent. on the deposits in every bank except the Government Savings Bank—a most unfair discrimination and altogether the most stupid tax imaginable to apply to a country like ours, which the banks are doing such splendid work to develop (they will naturally retaliate and the whole country suffer)—and the elimination of the six per cent. on the capital, which those who defended the original Bill rightly emphasised, since it was its one saving virtue. It now disappears and its disappearance enormously outweighs the benefits imported by the other changes. A firm like, say, Bowring Brothers was allowed by the first Act anything from $60,000 up before it was taxed; it is now permitted the princely abatement of $3,000! What the means will be clear from a simple instance. A firm with a million dollars capital and making the very conservative profit of ten per cent would, under the original Act, pay a tax of $10,000, under the new Act, $19,500 or all but double. But possibly that is the sort of "amendment" the Government wished.

Concerning the effect of these specific details we will say no more: the debate in the Council will elicit able and fuller criticism than we can pretend to give. But we will offer a few general observations which may direct the minds of some of our readers towards the general tendencies and probable effects, if it becomes law, of this important Act. We will give the Government credit for appreciating the financial state of the country, the imperative need of increasing the revenue, and the undeniable and undoubted fact that a period of unforeseen (though we think largely superficial) prosperity has been experienced which should be used to supply the needed funds. But, realising all this, they have gone about the task in the wrong way, approached it from the wrong end, used wrong methods. If undue profits were made, why were not the undue profits taxed and those alone, leaving untouched the profits vitally essential to the commercial life of the Colony? In other words, a true Excess Profits Tax, as in Britain and America. Call the proposed bill what you like, it is essentially an Income Tax, and an Income Tax as lopsided, unusual and preposterous as could be imagined. If it must be imposed, why did our legislators, usually the first to consult precedents in matters of difficulty, not consult them in this case, not study the system in England and the States, homes of the Income Tax, or even in Canada, for which at other times they have such a fondness as to borrow Acts from it wholesale? The present production is clearly original, local and unparalleled—there is nothing else like it on the face of the earth. A sensible, moderate, graded tax, including all who ought to be included, would have offended no-one. Why should the man making $3,000 pay nothing? True, he ought not to be taxed heavily, but he can surely afford something. Again, a most scandalous omission, why is the professional man completely exempt? His occupation may be uncertain, but it is no more so than that of the business man, while his earnings are rarely put back, like the business man's, into productive channels but used selfishly or accumulated in bank accounts.

The truth is, as we have before pointed out, Newfoundland is the last country to which such a tax is applicable. It works well in England, for there is there a large floating capital, usually devoted to huge investments abroad, out of which it can be paid, leaving the fixed capital, the true source of wealth, virtually unaffected. It is unsuited to countries lacking such a capital. But we have further disadvantages absent from countries like us in that respect. Canada, wanting this same capital, has wisely avoided an income tax until the stress of war has compelled it; but Canada has mines, stable industries, a magnificent agriculture and other resources yielding certain returns which we lack entirely. Our national business is a huge speculation. Who can estimate in advance the fruits of our fisheries? The profits of a good year must be placed in reserve to meet the losses of a bad one. If the Government will offer to indemnify the commercial community against loss, the latter will accept with equanimity a large tax on its gains. But they will not do this.

That is really the essence of the matter. Those who attempt to justify this tax look only at effects and not at causes; they regard only profits and do not consider losses. What does that mean? Those who imagine that only the wealthy merchant will be hurt and gloat over the prospect, as many fools are only too ready to do, fall into the most serious errors. A merchant wants to know beforehand what his chances are. He will now add to his expenses a clear quarter of his possible profits. Take the seal-fishery. To the already enormous risks involved in that industry, those who prosecute it must add this tax. It curtails considerably the net returns, with the result that few will be found bold enough to take the risk. If the tax becomes law, we have no hesitation in saying that the next dozen ships will go to the ice next spring. How will this affect the country? How will the fishermen take the extinction of such an industry? A million or more dollars possibly thrown away because the risks, instead of being minimised, are made too great to justify the venture! It is even worse with the cod-fishery. What merchant will now supply a fisherman, knowing that the debt may be charged to him in the city his night by the whaler Hawk. He will leave for his home with the remnants of his crew as soon as arrangements are completed.

The Truth About Corns

You have read much fiction about corns. Were that not so there would be no corns. All people would use Blue-jay.

Here is the truth, as stated by a chemist who spent 25 years on this corn problem. And as proved already on almost a billion corns: "This invention—Blue-jay—makes corn troubles needless. It stops the pain instantly, and stops it forever. In 48 hours the whole corn disappears, save in rare cases which take a little longer."

That is the truth, and millions of people know it. Every month it is being proved on nearly two million corns. So long as you doubt it you'll suffer. The day that you prove it you see your last corn-ache. It costs so little—is so easy and quick and painless—that you owe yourself this proof. Try Blue-jay tonight.

Aicar-General Beats the Archbishop

In Weight but not in Number.

The Archiepiscopal party returned from the Codroy by special train yesterday and proceeded to Humbermouth. While on the West Coast they proved themselves to be not only "fishers of men" but "fishers of fish" as well. From the Codroy rivers they secured thirteen salmon. The heaviest was taken by Mr. McDermott and weighed 24 lbs., beating the Archbishop's heaviest by eight lbs. Archbishop Roche landed six fish from 16 lbs. down, and Bishop Power secured four splendid salmon, one weighing 14 lbs., and the others were close to it. Their car will be attached to to-day's express for St. John's.—Western Star, Aug. 1.

Trapmen Without a Quil.

Ethie's Report From Straits—Captain Lewis Loses Man.

The s.s. Ethie reached Curling at 5 a.m. yesterday from the Straits, and after a short delay proceeded to Humbermouth. Capt. Goobie reports the ship called at all regular ports of call to Battle Hr. and had variable winds and thick weather going up. Trap fishing is over in the Straits, hook-and-line men and trawlers are doing well with cod. From Battle Hr. to Cape Charles and vicinity, the codfishery has been very poor, some traps have not caught a quintal of cod this summer. Capt. John Lewis of the schr. Metamora, had one of his men drowned while swimming in Black Bay Brook. The unfortunate man was Knowing, 24 years of age, and belonged to Salmonier. The remains were brought along by the Ethie.—Western Star, Aug. 1.

To Develop Steel Mountains.

By late advice we learn that the vast iron ore areas about seven miles to the south of St. George's, and commonly known as the Steel Mountains, are about to be developed. The ore contains considerable titanium acid, which cannot be smelted by the ordinary blast furnace method. An electric smelting process, however, has recently been discovered by which the ores can now be successfully smelted. The ore is said to run from 80 to 90 p.c. magnetite, from which the best carbon tool steel is made. The situation of the areas is ideal for mining and shipping operations, there being a gradual slope to the seashore. For shipping purposes a railway will be laid to Turf Point, near the entrance of St. George's harbor where shipping piers will be erected. C. M. Bishop, holder of the claim hopes to have development well under way in a very short time.—Western Star, August 1st.

Moose at Serpentine.

It appears the moose are beginning to spread over various parts of the country. Evidences of the presence of three were recently seen on the banks of the Serpentine River, between Bay of Islands and Port au Fort Bay. J. R. Whitaker of the Grand Lake Bungalow, arrived at Curling on Tuesday evening from a four weeks' trip on the Serpentine River. He travelled up the Serpentine Valley seven miles and informs the Western Star that he saw the tracks of a family of three moose, consisting of a bull, a cow, and a calf. He also saw cuttings, and some of these, too, were quite fresh. So far as we know this is the first time that signs of moose have been discovered west of Curling. Last year a moose was seen on the banks of the Lower Humber.—Western Star, Aug. 1.

With the Rod.

R. McIsaac caught one 4 lb. fish on Harry's River.
Sir Wm. Reid landed a 22 lb. salmon at Hard Scramble on Thursday.
Dr. Fisher landed a 20 lb. salmon at Little Rapids on the Lower Humber on Thursday.
His Grace Archbishop Roche caught six salmon on the Codroy, largest weighing 16 lbs.
On Wednesday Dr. Holliday, fishing on Lower Humber, landed two salmon 16 lbs. each.
Mr. Stovey, fishing on Harry's River, has secured four fish to date, weighing from four to five lbs.
His Lordship Bishop Power landed four salmon from the Codroy Rivers, the largest weighing 14 lbs.
Mgr. McDermott caught three salmon from Grand and Little Rivers, one of them tipped the scales at 24 lbs.
Sir Wm. Reid and party landed 300 lbs. of salmon from the Humber last week for six rods, the smallest weighed 16 lbs.
Salmon fishing at Big Rapids, on the Lower Humber, continues good. On Wednesday twenty fish were landed. Thirty-six salmon have been taken at lower pools of Harry's River. The fish have now gone up the river. A. E. Silver caught 16 salmon on Harry's River, of these 3 weighed 10 lbs. each, two 7 lbs., ten 4 lbs., and one 3 lbs.

C. C. Martyn has landed three salmon to date from Harry's River, one weighing 11 1/2 lbs. and the others 4 lbs. each.
W. G. Jones fishing on Harry's River secured five fish, weighing as follows, respectively, 20 lbs., 19 1/2 lbs., 15 lbs., 9 1/2 lbs., 4 lbs.

Mr. Faunce secured four salmon while fishing the lower pools of Harry's River; they weighed as follows: 12, 4, 3 1/2 and 3 lbs. respectively.
Dr. Chamberlain caught an 18 pound salmon on the Lower Humber on Thursday. And Mrs. Chamberlain also caught one about the same size.

C. W. Himman caught three salmon on Harry's River weighing 13, 10 and 3 lbs., respectively. He then went to Fox Island River where he secured five more fish. At Fox Island he found salmon very plentiful, but the fish would not rise well due to the lowness of the water. Mr. Himman returned home on Friday.

Hon. W. C. Boyle and J. E. White, of Cleveland, Ohio, spent four weeks on Serpentine River accompanied by J. R. Whitaker. They secured 23 salmon and about 40 sea trout. The heaviest salmon weighed 25 lbs. Three others weighed 21, 19 and 17 lbs., respectively and the remainder about 9 lbs. each. The heaviest trout weighed 7 1/2 lbs. They found both salmon and trout very plentiful in the pools, but the water was very warm and the river low.—Western Star, Aug. 1.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Munn and family arrived from St. John's by motor car last night.

Dr. Paterson was in town yesterday. The doctor accompanied by Rev. F. S. Coffin took a run down to Carboneau in the forenoon and spent a few hours with Mr. John Duff and family there.

A small load of hard coal is being discharged at the public wharf for Mr. E. Simmons.

Fish is still scarce and trappers are taking up their twine and giving up the voyage so far as this bay is concerned.

The Rev. Mr. Kennedy, of Bell Island, is expected to exchange pulpits with Rev. F. S. Coffin, of St. Andrew's for Sunday, the 12th inst.

The work on the new building for Strapp's pharmacy is being pushed along at a good rate. The new building gives promise of being a handsome one and an ornament to our town. The work is being done by Messrs. R. Walsh and H. Flynn.

Squid were numerous in the harbor yesterday and in fact every day for the past week or two.

Mr. William Flynn, of Heart's Ease, T.B., is in town to-day completing arrangements for the purchase of the property on Water Street owned by the late Mrs. Frost. Mr. Flynn expects to move here with his family in October. We take this opportunity of welcoming Mr. Flynn and family and wish them a pleasant and profitable residence here.

Despite the cloudy appearance of last evening and the prospects of rain several ardent Watermanians left by carriage in the evening for the haunts of the flimy tribe on New Harbour barges and other places. The night turned out fine and to-day (Wednesday) is an ideal one for trouters, etc.

A new industry is spoken of for Harbour Grace. We hope all interested will help it along. New industries and new life is all that is required to make Harbour Grace boom.

CORRESPONDENT.

AT THE CRESCENT.

A more than interesting week-end show is on at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day, the Kalem Company presents a great mystery drama in two reels: "The Sign of the Broken Shackles," featuring Alice Hollister and Harry Millarde. A thrilling western cow boy drama: "A Corner in Water," with the celebrated Tom Mix. A film of Wallace A. Carlsson's clever cartoon, the "Animated Nooz Pictorial"; and the great pair of acrobats, Burns and Stull as Pokes and Jabs in "Here and There" an awfully good vim comedy. Madame Timmons sings the beautiful Scotch ballad: "Bonnie Sweet Bessie." Professor McCarthy plays a new program of clasy music for this great variety show.

Corn bread that is baked in a deep dish and served with a spoon is delicious. Make the same as usual corn bread, but do not make the batter so stiff. This same mixture with fruit added makes a very good dessert.

STROLLERS.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

There is a certain class of women that I think should be called the strollers. I have always been vaguely conscious of them, but the other day I became more definitely and resentfully cognizant of their existence. I was in town for the afternoon with my forty seven errands to do. My favorite shoe department was having a sale and I was held up ten minutes while the woman on my right tried on fifty-seven varieties of pump and the woman on my left tried to get the shoe clerk to produce something which was both a pump and oxford and therefore wouldn't require her to undergo the painful process of making up her mind between them. And while I waited, I became conscious of the strollers. Nothing to Do Till No One Knows When. I mean, as you doubtless suspect, the women whose almost daily program it is, to dress themselves up, stroll through the shops (not for any definite purpose, just to look round) perhaps buy some little thing that takes their eye, eat a sundae or drink a cup of tea and go home. There was a bargain counter at the head of the department and many of them paused in their strolling to pick up a shoe or two, look it over and lay it down, so I had a good chance to study them. Women With An Hour And A Half To Dress In. They were well dressed, of course, and well groomed with the superlative grooming of a woman who can spare an hour or more to put her clothes on. I suppose the pressure of my forty-seven specimens carried a little King Charles spaniel as beautifully groomed (and as unintelligent looking) as herself. They all looked extremely well fed and pampered and most of them had the air of being excellently corseted, with excellent reason. A disconcerted mouth and a restless roving eye were the most common facial features. And wouldn't She Have Been Surprised. Of course you've seen these women. Don't they exasperate you? Or perhaps you are too sane to let yourself be exasperated by other people's follies and fatalities. 'Seven errands made me impatient for I wanted to walk up to one of them and say, 'Why don't you find something to do? You ought to be ashamed of yourself that now, of all times, you can afford to be a stroller.' Maybe some of them will see my indictment here. But I doubt it. For I have a feeling that my reader friends are far from that type. And I'm not at all sorry.

THE COMPLEXION. The complexion is an ornamental attachment to the feminine frontispiece. Sometimes this attachment is put on by nature and an outdoor life, but if necessary an excellent substitute can be obtained at any first class drugstore. There are several varieties of hand-sewed complexions, ranging from the gentle Cleopatra pallor to the ardent crimson effect peculiar to the Indian squaw. Some of the best complexions produced in any country are now to be seen on the American stage, and consist of four layers of cheek-bone paint and one application of eyebrow paste. When viewed at close range, this combination produces an effect similar to gazing on a futurist picture of a storm at sea.

The beauty doctor can tell at a glance whether the old complexion can be fixed up and made to run a few more thousand miles. If the complexion is carefully handled in youth and is not marred here and there by an overheated curling iron, it will last for a long time and make it unnecessary to wear a dotted veil. A neat, pink complexion is a greater mark of distinction to a fastidious woman than a platinum wrist-watch with a crippled mainspring. This is why so many women refuse to spend money on wrist-watches, but stock up heavily on vanishing creams, Kaiser Still in Control.

Chicago Tribune: It has been the hope of Americans of late that political ferment or economic conditions or both in Germany were sufficiently grave to force the German Government to take a plain step toward peace. The first speech of the new Chancellor disappoints this hope. There is to be found in it, in the most optimistic view, what may be vaguely called a grit toward peace terms, but little more. There is a staid temperance, of course, but that would be plainly dictated by common sense. However far short of the revolutionary mood the German people may be, they are in no state now to enjoy or approve the self-glorifying rattling of the Imperial sabel. The Chancellor is making no blundering admission when he declares that "the burning question is how much longer the war is to last." The Chancellor informs us then, in effect, that while disclaiming the ambition of the world conquest preached by extremists, Germany as yet is in no necessity to sue for peace terms. What the Government is ready to do, however, is to indicate a receptive attitude towards negotiations, with a perhaps dim yet significant outline of Germany's minimum. For example, there is the statement that "a condition of peace is the inviolability of Germany's territory." This means Alsace and possibly the colonies, although as to the latter there is a suggestion of bargaining in the statement that "we must, by means of understanding and in a spirit of give and take, guarantee the conditions of the existence of the German Empire upon the continent and overseas." "I am not willing," he concludes, "to permit the conduct of affairs to be taken from my hands." In other words, there is to be no real check upon the supreme power of the Emperor, as represented by his appointed agent, the chancellor, to control singly and alone the Imperial policies. To America this means that the autocratic militarist control of German international policy is to continue. This is a direct challenge to Mr. Wilson's appeal for a democratic amelioration of the German system. The new Chancellor represents that system and proposes to defend it, whether peace is at stake or not. In view of this declaration we could not take very seriously the "peace vote" of the Reichstag even though it were in terms considerably more concrete than it is. On the whole, although the desire for an end of war is clear enough in both utterances, and what may be considered a distinct drift toward peace is manifest, we are given very little grounds for the hope that in the absence of some critical event not yet discernible the world may be spared more months of slaughter and destruction. These utterances may be a brave covering for a very different reality, but we shall be foolish if we put any faith in that theory. The Chancellor tells us that American participation in the war may be accepted by the German people "without serious concern." It is our duty to make it a serious concern in the shortest possible time. That we shall do.

Household Notes.

Patent leather and kid boots will take on a brighter polish if they are first wiped over with a sponge dipped in milk. Let dry and apply blacking. Scorch can be taken out by wetting and rubbing soap on the scorched places, then covering with thin cold starch and spreading in the sunshine. When a shoe splashes dampen a sponge in very hot water and hold it over the part that hurts. The leather will expand and give relief. One of the very best laxatives is bran, and in every household where there are children bran bread should frequently be on the table. Tarnished silver can be brightened if placed for a short time in boiling water in which a fair-sized lump of washing soda has been dissolved. When only half a lemon is used, the remaining half can be kept in a fresh condition by placing on a plate, cut side downward, and covering with a tumbler. If the curtains do not draw easily this can be remedied by rubbing the pole from end to end with paraffin; you will then find the rings slip along quite easily. A spot on silk which does not come out with ordinary washing in gasoline will sometimes come out if the silk is soaked an hour in the gasoline and then washed. The Gas Range! The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife; shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive. Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove fill her with gloom. A Gas range is so much easier to operate, so efficient for all kinds of cooking, and so much cleaner, that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. Urges Selective Conscription.

Stirring Words From Rev. T. B. Darby, Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Mr. Editor.—Your issue of yesterday's date reached me to-day, I am pleased to see the action of the Recruiting Committee re Selective Conscription. Let the politicians and the Government take warning. One of the great evils of our present system is that volunteer troops, in addition to their physical fitness, are certain to contain men of courage, men imbued with the spirit of self-sacrifice, altruism and idealism in greater proportion than the population at large. This system drains the country much more heavily of its best stock, because this naturally steps forward first in the service of its country. No Government which looks to the future, can afford to accept this great sacrifice entirely.

This stock naturally furnishes the leaders of the country. Many of them will return and vote to the politicians who for present gain of a few votes from cowardly or ignoble slackers, fail to do their duty by the Regiment and the Empire at this juncture.

As a matter of fact the Government should commandeer all the resources of the Colony both in men and money for our supreme business now is to help win this war. If we fail to do our duty here, and the Empire and her Allies march to victory without us, we shall not only be branded as disloyal cowards by our fellow subjects, but worse, we shall have betrayed the men who on land and sea have died for us.

You have now, Mr. Editor, not only the Methodist Conference, but the Recruiting Committee behind you in your brave fight for fair play for our brave boys in France. Some of use regret that this is not the year for the meeting of the Anglican Synod for we feel sure if it had met you would have had the backing of that influential body. The writer made the statement in the Conference in reply to a suggestion as to the loyalty of the Conference that there was not a Methodist Parsonage in the country where there was a boy of military age who was not in khaki or wearing a Rejection Badge. I learn since that that is true of Anglican Parsonages as well.

Should the Legislature close without this proof that they can lead the people it will be a sorry comment on the speeches delivered on July first by the Prime Minister and Leader of the Opposition.

Yours for Conscription; T. B. DARBY, Carbonear.

Bill Levying a Tax on Business Profits

PASSED LOWER HOUSE IN AMENDED FORM.

With an entire absence of criticism and with typical ingenuity, the so-called National Government passed in the House of Assembly yesterday afternoon under an assumed title the Business Profits Tax.

A Bill amending the Saw Mills Act of 1915 was introduced and went through all stages. The Minister of Justice explained the measure, pointing out that the object of it was to remove a doubt regarding pit props. Under the old Act, after timber had been cut 18 months and not removed, right of property ceased; but, according to the amending Bill, right of property is given to the owners of pit props cut since Oct. 1st, 1915. What necessitated this change was the fact that a considerable quantity of pit props were cut last year but owing to lack of tonnage could not be exported.

The House then went into Committee on the Bill "An Act to Levy a Tax on Business Profits," although it read on the official order paper, "An Act further to amend the Revenue Act." The Bill was submitted in amended form. In the original Bill there was an interest of 6 per cent. allowed on capital, but this is stricken out altogether in the new measure, which provides a tax of 20 per cent. on all businesses instead of 25 per cent. on all net profits over three thousand dollars instead of two thousand, which was the amount stated originally. A tax of one-half of one per cent. is to be imposed on all deposits held in all Banks on December 31st, the Newfoundland Government Savings Bank being immune. The Bill passed Committee stage in remarkably quick time. The Minister of Justice had charge of the Bill, but explanations of some of its clauses were made by another Minister. The Bill was read a third time. The measure was then sent to the Upper House where it will be aired this afternoon.

The Premier then moved the adjournment of the House, intimating that His Excellency the Governor would be pleased to prorogue the Legislature at 3 p.m. to-morrow (Saturday) if the Legislative Council had finished all its business. MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES GAR-GET IN COWS.

Save Eggs by Using Royal Baking Powder

In recipes for cakes, muffins and other baked flour foods calling for the use of eggs,—fewer eggs may be used with excellent results and often left out altogether by using a small additional quantity of Royal Baking Powder, about a teaspoon, in place of each egg omitted.

The following tested recipe is a practical example:

EGGLESS MUFFINS

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons shortening
DIRECTIONS—Mix and sift dry ingredients, add milk and melted shortening, and beat until smooth. Bake in greased muffin tins in hot oven 20 to 25 minutes.

The old method called for 2 eggs

You must use Royal Baking Powder to obtain the best results.

The Profit Tax.

Mr. Grievé Writes on the New Profits Bill.

St. John's, Nfld., August 2nd, 17.

Editor Evening Telegram. Sir,—It is rumored that the "PROFITS BILL" is to be amended, and instead of an allowance being granted to Capital of in one suggestion 6% and in another 10% before levying the tax, that a profit of $3,000 is to be deducted before estimating the profit to be assessed.

This won't go far when there are several partners in a firm who with their families live out of their share of profits.

Take a case of a man who values his services at 1% of his capital which let us suppose is $250,000 and therefore yields $2,500. He gets then $2,400 plus $3,000 and if his profit amounts to 5% on his capital he will hand over $2,400 to satisfy the tax.

The Banks allow 3% on deposits and charge about 7% upon advances. Government guarantees 5% on the H.R. Grace dock, upon the Woolen Mills, &c. It further protects tobacco, oleomargarine, biscuits, cordage, and other local industries.

What principle will be observed in taxing these and when do they earn a profit? Will it be fair to allow them to pay 10% dividend and to create large reserves clear of taxation, and differentiate against, say, a Conception Bay merchant who risks his all in supplying for Labrador or the dry goods merchant of Water Street who, if he gives him credit, shares to some extent the risk?

If Mr. Coaker has guaranteed the investors in the F.P.U. 10% for their money, is he to be allowed to deduct 10% from his profits before accounting to Government for this new tax?

I am asking for information, I demand fair play. I plead for careful sifting of the measure before it has the force of legislative enactment. We read that "joy cometh in the morning"; so it does, but it will be a very modified joy that will greet the fishermen of Newfoundland when they plead in vain next Spring for those facilities which when judiciously extended are proper and necessary towards developing and prosecuting the fisheries.

This bill may be a blessing in disguise. Some of us do not see it, and being Christians we cannot fold our hands and exclaim Kismet.

The mother who is bereaved through the war may not at once be reconciled to her loss. Time and faith may effect this.

Give us time to discuss and digest this proposed measure, prove to us that it is not class legislation, show us that our fears are only vain dreams and that the nominal success of the measure is not to be neutralized by substantial and permanent loss to the whole Colony, and thereby carry the Country with you in favour of the Bill.

In Canada, Australia, New Zealand and elsewhere the cry is "Why should my boy fight for the Empire and yours loaf at home?" The Board of Trade's sentiments, as I understand them, are, conscript wealth or affluence if you will, but be impartial and honest and let every grade of prosperity bear its share of the imperial burden.

I am, Sir, Your obedient servant, W. B. GRIEVÉ.

P.S.—Why are the Banks, the Reid Mtd. Company and many wealthy people exempted from this ill-considered scheme of taxation and why is it left to those actively engaged in the fisheries to pay the whole bill?

MAJOR-GENERAL MAURICE ON THE WAR.

LONDON, Aug. 2. "Looking from the broadest extent at the events of the past fortnight," said Major-General Maurice, Chief Director of military operations at the war office, in his weekly interview to-day, "it will necessarily mean the prolongation of the war. We cannot longer count on any great material assistance from Russia. This means a greater burden on the other Entente Allies and the United States. It means she must come into the field as soon as possible and with the greatest possible force. This week's battle in Flanders was entirely successful. General Sir Douglas Haig fixed a definite line of objectives. Speaking generally he attained it successfully. On the southern third of the front attacked he gained his objective easily. On the northern third the enemy's resistance broke down so completely that General Haig felt justified in permitting his troops to go well beyond their objectives. In the centre third we fell a little short of the objective owing to enemy resistance. General Maurice said the British Commander's next move was to determine another objective and then after the customary process of preparation to proceed similarly to achieve it. In cases of this kind, he said, the objective line depends mainly upon the range of the artillery. The attack must be patient and methodical. In this way we can gain ground and inflict heavy losses on the enemy without heavy losses to ourselves. That is the system we used at Arras and Messines, and they are now being used in Flanders. In this week's battle we co-operated with the French. There were about six times as many British troops as French soldiers. Of the British, four-fifths were purely English, one-fifth Australians and New Zealanders, Welsh and Scotch. No Irish or Canadian troops participated.

LOST TERRITORY REGAINED.
LONDON, Aug. 2. The British forces to-day launched a counter-attack against the German positions in Flanders. Sir Douglas Haig reports that the British troops completely re-established the former line in the neighborhood of the Roulers-Ypres railway, some territory which the Germans yesterday had regained.

SITUATION UNCHANGED.

British Front in France and Belgium (by Associated Press), Aug. 1.—"The situation is virtually unchanged." This sums up the day's news from the wide zone along which the British and French yesterday hurled Prince Rupprecht's forces back to the supporting defences at a depth varying between one and three miles. Artillery activities continued with great intensity, the British pouring a steady stream of high explosive shells into the positions which the Germans now hold, but there was comparatively little infantry fighting. The Allies to-day were busy consolidating the positions they captured yesterday. Heavy German counter attacks had been looked for, but outside of a few local attempts to regain positions, these did not materialize. This was perhaps due partly to the heavy rain which continued without cessation since last night, filling shell holes with water and turning the ground into a deep mud, over which it is difficult to fight. The German guns, however, many of which had been withdrawn to positions further back before the rain began, have been carrying on a steady bombardment, especially against the territory captured by the Allies on the northern side of the Ypres salient, but their firing has been more or less erratic because of the storm which blocked the work of the observation officers. As usual the Germans are employing great quantities of gas shells, due to the complete preparation made for yesterday's assault. The British casualties have not been excessive, but the condition of the battlefield and statements by prisoners indicate that the German losses were exceedingly heavy. The British Medical Corps has again evinced the most complete organization. At eight o'clock last night all the British wounded had been collected and brought back to the emergency stations. More than 4,000 prisoners with some 60 officers were taken by the British in the Ypres salient alone. Prussians, Bavarians and Saxons all have given of their number to swell the total captured, and no more deserted appearing men have been seen in the prison stations since the beginning of the war. Particularly noticeable was the scarcity of veteran non-commissioned officers and the large number of youths from the 1918 class which are nothing more than raw recruits. One veteran of many battles freely expressed his contempt of these youngsters, who he said lacked the stamina to stand up under the hardships of war, and could not be depended upon in a tight place, such as they found themselves facing yesterday. Most of the prisoners were a miserable, sick-looking lot, many of them suffering from internal complaints caused by exposure, and the majority from hunger. Few of them have any hope of Germany winning the war, and one officer ventured the opinion that the time of the Fatherland's downfall was near. He based his opinions largely on the scarcity of men, and certainly the boyish faces now in prison camps appear to be indicative of a lack of human material.

HEAVY FIGHTING.

LONDON, Aug. 2. Telegraphing from the British headquarters in France and Belgium, the correspondent of Reuter's says: Despite the weather there has been much hard fighting during the past 24 hours. The Germans were manifestly perturbed by our gaining so much ground along the Pilken ridge and they have launched several desperate counter attacks. Although these were repeatedly checked by our artillery, yet in places they reached a stage of hand to hand fighting of a ferocious character. The Germans are throwing in their best troops to relieve the situation. Their losses must be colossal, as our preponderance of gun power enables our artillery to maintain a steady barrage upon the rear of the new German lines, so that relief must be brought through this before they come to organize for an attack. The enemy artillery has been concentrating heavily upon certain sections.

CONGRATULATES EACH OTHER.

PARIS, Aug. 2. Sir Douglas Haig and General Petain, Commanders of the British and French armies, yesterday exchanged telegrams of congratulation at the Franco-British success in Flanders. The former paid a tribute to the effort of the French troops under General Antoine. He sketched the irresistible dash wherewith the French not only gained the object set for them, but surpassed these objectives, thereby covering and assisting the Allied flank and inflicting heavy losses on the enemy while sustaining only really very light losses. General Petain replied with thanks to the felicitations of the British Commander. Speaking for the French, he declared the success of the attack illustrates anew the glory of the British flag and wins the countries. He congratulated the British troops in the name of all the French armies.

DUMA COMMITTEE ISSUES APPEAL.

PEL. PETROGRAD, Aug. 2. The Provisional Committee of the Duma has issued a public appeal to the people, in which it says, "The rift of the army, overwhelmed by a fit of cowardice, is in flight. What has occurred in the army is merely an echo of what is happening all over Russia. This state of affairs is due to the usurpation of the right and power of the Government by an organization of irresponsible parties and to the setting up of double authority at the centre, while there is no authority at all on the spot."

PETROGRAD TO HAVE NEW COMMANDER.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 2. Vassilkovski, a Cossack officer, has been appointed to command the troops in Petrograd in place of General Polovtsov, who recently resigned as military governor, and who has been given a commission at the front.

M. SOFOULIS ELECTED.

ATHENS, Aug. 2. M. Sofoulis, Deputy of the Greek Chamber from Samos, and a Government candidate for the position, to-day was elected President of the Chamber by a vote of 180 to 40. King Alexander will take the oath in the Chamber of Deputies on Friday.

MORGAN BUYS LARGELY.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. P. Morgan and Co. head of a syndicate, recently purchased $100,000,000 of Dominion of Canada two year five per cent notes. It was announced to-day the notes had been successfully floated.

GERMANS ADVANCING.

BERLIN, Aug. 2. The Austro-German troops have made further advances in Bukovina, and are now standing before Kimpolung, says to-day's headquarters statement. North of Czernowitz and south of the Dniester they are approaching the Russian frontier. The Russian Carpathian forces are now in retreat between the Pruth and Killmen mountains, the statement reports.

FIGHTERS, NOT POLITICIANS.

LONDON, Aug. 2. According to a Petrograd despatch to the Post, the Russian army commanders had a conference at headquarters recently and virtually sent an ultimatum to Premier Kerensky that unless the army was kept outside politics and treated merely as a fighting force, they would resign as being unable to carry on the war victoriously. The correspondent believes that the ultimatum may be accepted.

MORE SUB. VICTIMS.

LONDON, Aug. 2. It was reported at the United States Consulate here to-day that forty-five members of the crew of the American steamer Montana, which was sunk by a German submarine on July 31st, lost their lives.

GERMANS COUNTER ATTACK.

LONDON, Aug. 2. Heavy counter attacks by the Germans in the region northeast of Ypres between the Ypres-Roulers railway and St. Julien, were repulsed by the British forces to-day, according to an official communication issued to-night. The Germans sustained additional heavy casualties in their fighting.

WANT OUTSIDE POWERS.

LONDON, Aug. 2. Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told the Commons to-day that while he did not contemplate issuing it during recess, it would be necessary before adjournment to pass a bill giving the Government power to issue a loan, if it were considered advisable. Such also was re-

ANOTHER RESIGNATION.

PARIS, Aug. 2. Rear Admiral Lachy, Minister of Marine in the French Cabinet, to-day tendered his resignation to Premier Ribot.

Your Boys and Girls.

These are a few things that every mother should know: Babies should never be held sitting up straight until they sit up of their own accord and can hold their heads erect. Children should never be "taught" to walk. They will walk quickly enough of their own accord without teaching when their leg bones are strong enough. To try to make them walk before then is almost certain to cause them to become bowlegged. Noise and excitement are very bad for babies. Babies cannot be out of doors too much during the fine weather. They may safely sleep out of doors in the day time if warmly wrapped up and sheltered from sun and wind. Fresh air tranquilizes a baby's nerves better than anything else. The weaning from the breast should be done very gradually. To change suddenly from breast milk to bottle feeding may be productive of much mischief. Healthy babies begin to cut their first teeth between the sixth and seventh month. Then occasionally they begin earlier than this. That very late teething is usually an evidence of "rickets." That a doctor should be consulted when a baby has no sign of teeth at 10 months old. Talking very much to infants, and inducing them to "take notice" continually is very bad for the proper development of their brains.

Everyday Etiquette.

"I live in a very small town and pass my friends so often during the day and evening, is it necessary to say 'How do you do' every time?" questioned Alice.
"It is not necessary to exchange greetings every time. To smile or give a glance of recognition is sufficient," replied her cousin.
An attractive decoration for a small boy's romper suit is an elephant, etc., cut out of the material the suit is trimmed with and sewed up to the blouse pocket.
Warm towels are a great comfort in the bathroom, and may be secured by having a towel rack made of pipe connected with the heating system.

In Milady's Boudoir.

THE USE AND ABUSE OF POWDER.

Face powder can be abused if not used discreetly, just as perfume, lip rouge or any article of Milady's toilet. Few people will deny that it is a necessity to the well groomed woman but of course there are many badly groomed women who employ innocent powder to cover a multitude of pimples. The way in which a woman uses powder differs as much as the woman themselves. I hear one declares that only a well worn chamois can be used, another says this is too drying and that a soft bit of flannel is better. The third turns up her nose at the mention of flannel and couches for some soft prepared cloth which is on the market for the purpose. Another says that these are not sanitary and proudly asserts that a fresh bit of absorbent cotton is the only right thing that any woman with any sense can possibly use. One says a dry towel, another a piece of white silk stocking, and still another thinks a bit of Turkish toweling correct, and so the battle of the powder rag continues to be waged. The secret of using face powder without bad effect depends on whether the face is, or is not, thoroughly cleansed before retiring. A good pure cream should be applied and wiped off with a clean soft towel. This will leave the pores clean and free for several hours and at the same time improve the color and texture of the skin. The wise woman will choose her powder as carefully as her physician. She will select the tinge best suited to her complexion, apply it carefully, never neglect to brush it out of her eyebrows and lashes, and always look the better for using it.

Public Notice Regarding Coal.

I am instructed by the Tonnage Committee of the Executive Council to place before the General Public the soft coal situation at the present time and to ask all who are able to do so to co-operate with them in securing sufficient stocks. Coaling steamers are now available, but will not be available later on. Therefore, it is necessary to stock within the period that they are available sufficient coal to carry St. John's over the Winter till the opening of navigation next year.

The Coal Merchants have not sufficient storage capacity to enable this to be done, and the Tonnage Committee appeal to the public to assist in the matter by laying in their Winter supplies as soon as possible.
Otherwise there will be a shortage of stocks next Winter. By order of the Tonnage Committee,
