CHAPTER I
"MISS TOMBOY."

"Don't I?" assents Kitty, turning her bright eyes and white teeth upon him with a ready smile. "Extraordinary, isn't it? That Don—look, Mr. Ainsley, he knows I'm speaking of him—" pointing to the largest of the two colliers, who at the sound of his name puts his ears down and looks sheepish. "He is the plague of my life, and gets me into the most awful scrapes; he will come sniffing into the house after me, and yesterday he nearly threw papa down as he tumbled over him outside the library door; you know how papa dislikes dogs?"

James Ainsley nods, his eyes fixed on her face dwelling on every swiftly passing expression.

"Two Sundays ago," runs on Kitty, "the awful reprobate followed me to church, he did indeed, and sat outside the pew staring at poor old Mr. Sedgwick; as I don't take much interest in the eccentrics matting down the aisle, I didn't see him; but of course, everybody else did, and the person—I beg your pardon, that's one of Cousin Regy's words, and papa says that it is vulgar—Mr. Sedgwick, I mean, stopped short in 'dearly beloved brethren' and beckoned to old Brown, the clerk, who came creaking down the aisle with a face as long as a kite. I couldn't imagine what was the matter, and expected to see Mr. Sedgwick drop in the pulpit in a faint. Fancy my horror when old Brown stopped at our pew, and, stooping down, seized poor Don by the collar. Oh, dear! I did wish at that moment that all the dogs hated me, instead of loved me."

"They can't help it!" says James, blushing at his audacity.

"No, I suppose not," assents Kitty, with cheerful unconcern. "Well, of course, Don wouldn't move, but stood as if he were an iron dog, crowded by the feet, and I was obliged to get up and walk out of church with that wicked dog following me like a lamb; but you have heard all this,"

she breaks off suddenly, eying him with that look which always overcomes him. "Of course, Mrs. Ainsley told you. I remember seeing her face, as I went out with my head hanging as low as Don's; yes, I felt ashamed of myself, I did, indeed."

James Ainsley blushes and shifts his feet uneasily; she has, and she knows that, touched upon a sore point between them. She and James are old friends, but she and James' mother—well, mothers are generally apt to regard the girls chosen by their only sons with unfavorable eyes, and to find fault with them, even when there is little excuse for fault-finding; little wonder, then, that old Mrs. Ainsley, whose one idea was "my son James," should view that idol's infatuation for Kitty Trevelyan—"that tomboy!"—with more than a fond mother's jealousy and dislike. The Ainsleys are as old a family as the Trevelyan's; the Grange is an estate of some consideration even in a county celebrated for its large landowners, and "my James" might find a suitable wife among the highest in the land, et cetera, et cetera.

"My mother," says James, clearing his throat and patting Don with an affection of easy carelessness, "my mother did say something about it—"

"I've no doubt she did," breaks in Kitty, with a mischievous laugh; "I'll be bound she gave you a most true and particular, very particular account of it. She looked more shocked than I thought it possible until then for an old lady to look. It was shocking, mind, I'll admit that; but I don't see how I could help Don's sudden exhibition of religious tendencies."

She laughs that short, sweet, bold laugh—"that horrid laugh" of hers—and James laughs, too, but neither so boldly nor so clearly.

By this time they have reached the stables. They are not the elaborate equine palaces which one is accustomed to nowadays; Francis Trevelyan is a younger son, and a comparatively poor man; they are rough, almost farmlike, but, such as they are, they are in a state of perfect cleanliness and order, as sweet in their ways as Mr. Trevelyan's dressing room; there is no polished oak, nor new-fangled fittings, but it is an equine paradise notwithstanding, and Kitty is prond of it. Here she reigns queen. Alas! "queen of a drawing-room," "queen of a ballroom," is a pretty enough title for a lady, but who ever heard of a "queen of the stables?"

With a critical expression in the beautiful brown eyes, Kitty walks across the platted straw and lays her hand—it is as white, and soft, and shapely as a child's, but strong as well, as many a hard-mouthed, self-willed pony can testify—upon the new cob.

"There he is; not very pretty to look at; but a dear, honest fellow, and as gentle, in here, as a lamb," and she draws the soft, sleek head toward her lovingly already; Kitty can learn to love a horse or a dog in three days comfortably.

"He looks very sound," says James, dubiously approaching and giving the horse that cautious pat which horses seem to instinctively scorn and dislike; "but—doesn't he shy?"

"Why, of course he shies!" says Kitty, with her short laugh. "I never knew a horse worth anything that didn't. He shies at a puddle, or a piece of paper, or a clothes basket in the road; but then pieces of paper and clothes have no business in the road, and he knows it—don't you, Jack? The first time I took him out he few aside at a pick and spade one of the men had left in the road; but I told him that the roads must be mended, and that the men could not do it with their finger nails, and when we came back he only smiled at the spade—held, indeed! Oh, horses are so sensible—horses and dogs!"

Her lover looks at her with melancholy regret.

"I believe," he says, with a sigh, that you care more for them than you do for—anything else, Miss Trevelyan."

Kitty raises her head from its soft pillow on Jack's neck, and looks the speaker full in the face.

"Of course," she assents, as who should say, "who doubts it!"—"of course I do, they care for me; they pay me back tenfold for every word I say to them. What would become of me if I didn't?" and she holds both her little hands out with a comic gesture of dismay. "Who—oh, Kitty! if you had but stuck to Lindley Murray, you would say 'whom,' instead of 'who'—'who else have I got to care for,' then she remembers the Honorable Francis Trevelyan, now lying back in his cozy chair in the drawing-room, and with a sudden blush of contrition hurries on. "Of course there is papa, but—well, papa is so much older, and has so much to think of; and then, look how grateful they are; why, they pay you back tenfold for every kind word you speak to them."

"And do you think," breaks in honest James, his face flushing and showing evident signs of an approaching outbreak of perspiration, "do you think that they are the only things that are grateful for a kind word from you? Do you think that nobody cares for you but those horses and dogs? Oh, Miss Trevelyan—oh, Kitty, you know there is one else; you know—"

In his eagerness and astounding attack of courage, he reaches for her hand. Kitty's quick eye sees it approaching and she gives behind her. The dogs, evidently under the impression that the harmless James is about to fall upon and murderously attack their beloved mistress, set up sundry threatening noises and dance about preparatory to a general defense, and the unfortunate young man stops abruptly.

By when Kitty silences the dogs, he makes a manful effort to keep his courage up, and once more mounts the breach.

"Miss Trevelyan—Kitty! Do listen to me this once! I have tried to speak to you so—so often. I came up to-day determined to tell you all that I had to say. You will listen to me?"

Kitty stands confronting him speechless, not from the desire to give him a hearing, but with profound surprise and bewilderment.

CHAPTER II
A MARRIAGE PROPOSAL

JAMES mops his brow and returns the handkerchief to his pocket, where it half sticks out and is suspiciously eyed by the whole of the dogs.

"I came up, Miss Trevelyan, this afternoon determined to speak out plainly what I can't but think you know already. Kitty, we've known each other a long time—we've known each other that, for it calls up to Kitty's eyes the comical vision of a small, fat boy—James was always fat—choking in a blue-velvet tunic with cheese-plate pearl buttons, and it

Chronic Sufferers Find Relief

Chronic sufferers from Backache, Gravel, Stone in the Bladder or any other form of Kidney trouble are generally willing to try any remedy once. The excruciating pain caused by Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Inflammation of the Bladder or some other form of Kidney trouble, is so great, that persons afflicted are often driven to spending large sums of money in an endeavor to find relief at any cost.

This is proven by the testimony of hundreds of people who have written us letters stating "that having failed to find relief after years of trying, they turned to Gin Pills at a last resort—and a sample box of these pills soon convinced them that Gin Pills was the remedy they needed."

"This is all we ask you to do. Try a box of Gin Pills at our expense, and if they fail to bring you the relief they have brought to hundreds of others with similar Kidney derangements; it costs you nothing."

Mrs. Dechen's writes: "I received your sample box of Gin Pills, and they have done me a lot of good. I can congratulate myself on getting them, and I will never be without them in my home."

This testimony from a woman who was skeptical about buying Gin Pills should convince you that a sample box is well worth writing for. Do it today.

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Keenly and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Any one who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It takes but a moment to prepare, and really there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth); then add plain granulated sugar-syrup to make 10 ounces. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Either way, this mixture saves about five-fifths of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy than any perfectly and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough, and croupal asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of quinine. It may also be used to break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough, and croupal asthma.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with this distinctive advertisement, and you will be guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded.

Socialists Take Charge.

New German Government

Hun Soldiers Leaving France and Belgium--Foch to Receive Metz and Strasburg--Peace Conference Meet at Versailles.

SOCIALISTS CONTROL NEW GOVERNMENT.
COPENHAGEN, Nov. 14. The German Government has been replaced by the following Cabinet: Premier and Interior and Foreign Affairs, Friedrich Erbert; Finance, Hugo Haase; Education, Philip Scheidemann; Transport and Communications, Wilhelm Dittman; Publicity, Propaganda and Literature, Herr Landsberg; War, Philipp Scheidemann; Justice, Richard Barth. The members of the members of the German Government confirms reports that the Cabinet would be composed entirely of Socialists. The Majority Socialists who supported the Imperial Government during the war are represented by Scheidemann and Landsberg, while the Independent Socialists are Dittman and Barth. Dittman, who sits in the Reichstag as a Deputy from Hamburg, was sentenced to imprisonment last February in connection with labor troubles in Berlin. He was released by the Imperial Government a few days before its downfall. Richard Barth was formerly editor of the Socialist Vorwaerts and is a member of the Spartacus or Bolshevik movement of the Independent Socialists.

HINDENBURG WILL STICK.
COPENHAGEN, Nov. 14. News from different points in Germany are that the revolutionists are demanding the abdication of the Kaiser and other rulers. A despatch from Berlin says the Kaiser has fled to Brunswick in the presence of military officials and is being taken into prison. Field Marshal Von Hindenburg has issued a statement that he will not accept of our Allies forced acceptance of the armistice conditions and that he is obliged to return to the Fatherland which is a very task. You will never be abandoned by your Field Marshal in the struggle.

THE FLU IN WINNIPEG.
WINNIPEG, Nov. 13. With steady persistence the Spanish influenza is continuing its ravages in Winnipeg, and the daily average of approximately three hundred cases was maintained to-day. During the day 295 new cases "among" civilians and 17 deaths were reported to the local health board. The death toll was the lightest for four days.

BAN LIFTED IN NEW BRUNSWICK.
ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 14. The ban prohibiting the holding of public meetings and providing for the closing of all churches, schools, theatres, etc., owing to the prevalence of Spanish influenza, was lifted last night.

GOVERNING ALSACE-LORRAINE.
PARIS, Nov. 14. (Havas).—The French Cabinet held an extraordinary meeting to-day, the Matin says, to consider important military administrative questions concerning Alsace-Lorraine. The Government intends to appoint two governors with headquarters at Metz and Strasburg as soon as the Allies occupy the two provinces.

PRINCE HENRY DISCOVERED.
COPENHAGEN, Nov. 14. Prince Henry of Prussia, has been discovered at the castle owned by Duke Frederick Ferdinand of Schleswig-Holstein, at Eckwörthe, according to despatches received here. He declares himself in accord with the new regime in Germany.

WILL GET AFTER FOOD HOGS.
LONDON, Nov. 14. In a discussion in the House of Commons yesterday "concerning the food question and control of the meat supply the American Meat Trust was criticised severely by some speakers. Major Waldorf Astor, Parliamentary Secretary to the Food Ministry, said that the Trust controlled more than 50 per cent. of the available and important meat supplies which constituted a serious menace. However, he added, the inter-Allied Food Council set up by the Food Controller and which would buy in the world's markets, was going to be stronger than the Trust. It would be able to dictate to the Trust if necessary and it would be able to fix reasonable prices for consumers.

U. S. AIRMEN AT COLOGNE.
LONDON, Nov. 15. American airmen landed at Cologne on Tuesday, according to the Copenhagen Politiken.

KILLED THEIR OFFICERS.
LONDON, Nov. 15. Over one hundred Germans, mostly officers, have been killed in disorders in Brussels, and a Soldiers' Council has been formed there, as well as at Antwerp, according to the Amsterdam Telegraph.

STRIKE ORDER REVOKED.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 15. The unconditional revocation of the Germans' strike order in Switzerland, by the Socialist Committee, was officially reported to the Swiss Minister to-day.

ARMISTICE COMMISSIONERS.
PARIS, Nov. 14. Rear-Admiral S. S. Robinson has been appointed American member of the naval commission to arrange the execution of the naval terms of the German armistice, and has gone to London to begin, while General Bullard, who is representing the United States in carrying out the terms of the Austrian armistice, says the work is proceeding satisfactorily. Munich to the new Federal government of Germany asking that complaint over the conditions of the armistice be sent to the Entente Powers. It is said that the terms agreed to by Germany in stopping hostilities are of such a nature as to prevent rapid re-establishment of order in Bavaria.

PEACE CONFERENCE AT VERSAILLES.
LONDON, Nov. 14. The decision of the Allied Governments is that the Peace Conference should be held in Versailles, which being the most convenient point, would emphasize great part in the war. It is expected that the first session of the conference will be held on Dec. 15.

GERMAN RED GUARD DISSOLVED.
LONDON, Nov. 15. The Berlin Soldiers' and Workers' Council has decided to dissolve the Red Guard, according to an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Copenhagen. The leader of the Berlin Red Guards has been dismissed for complicity in revolutionary plans.

JOIN REVOLUTIONISTS.
LONDON, Nov. 14. The greater part of Field Marshal Mackensen's forces in Roumania have joined the revolution, says a Budapest despatch.

GERMAN-BRITISH NAVAL MEN MEET.
LONDON, Nov. 15. The German cruiser Koenigsberg, carrying the German delegates who have been charged with the task of carrying out the naval terms of the armistice is understood to have been met by British warships this afternoon and to have been escorted to sea, where the German delegates will meet Admiral Beatty, commander of the British grand fleet.

GRAVE CRISIS IN HOLLAND.
THE HAGUE, via Kingston, Jamaica, Nov. 14. (Canadian Press).—The Dutch Government has issued a proclamation urgently appealing for the co-operation of the citizens in the present "grave crisis." This proclamation says a minority is threatening to seize power and declares the determination of the Government to maintain authority and order.

WANTS LABOR REPRESENTED.
LONDON, Nov. 15. The Labor Congress has unanimously adopted a resolution moved by Jas. Ramsey MacDonald, demanding that Labor be represented at the Peace Congress and that the International Labor Congress sit concurrently.

NOT DEAD YET.
AMSTERDAM, Nov. 15. The former Crown Prince of Germany arrived at Maastricht Tuesday from Spa. He remains under a guard with his suite, pending instructions from the Hague.

DEPARTERS.
AMSTERDAM, Nov. 14. Many trains crowded with German soldiers who left the front on their respective homelands, have arrived in Hants and other points in Westphalia, according to the Handelsblad.

A BAVARIAN WHINE.
BASEL, Nov. 14. Considering that the new Democratic Government of Bavaria is not responsible for the acts of the old regime in Germany, a manifesto has been sent from Pro Patria. A soldier of France lay on a hospital bed. His shattered arm had just been taken away. The doctor looks on down, with pity at the white young face. "I'm sorry my boy, you had to lose your arm," he said. "The eyes of the lad flashed: "No, no, doctor. I didn't lose it," he said; "I gave it to defend my country." His head sank back on his pillow, and he whispered, "My France," lying at Camp Travis, Texas, last Spring.

Wilson Saves Deserter.
Washington Nov. 1.—Private Clarence A. Sperry, 343d Field Artillery, sentenced to death by court-martial because he twice deserted to join his paralyzed wife and three children, has been set free by order of President Wilson.

The President set the sentence aside because the offense was due to the soldier's "grievous prostration for his family," and directed that a copy of his indorsement be handed to Private Sperry, "as a stimulus to him to remember the fidelity and diligence which is required of soldiers called to defend their country."

Sperry disappeared while in transportation at Camp Travis, Texas, last Spring.

NAVAL TERMS CARRIED OUT.
PARIS, Nov. 15. The naval terms of the German and Austrian armistices are being carried out rapidly.

A Kidney Remedy
Kidney troubles are frequently caused by badly digested food which overtaxes these organs to eliminate the irritant acids formed. Help your stomach to properly digest the food by taking 15 to 30 drops of Extract of Roots, sold as Mother Selgel's Curative Syrup, and your kidney disorder will promptly disappear. Get the genuine.

Scores of Persons
Right in this community who know from experience what L. is medicine will do, will tell you of the wonderful tonic properties of O'MARA'S HYPOPHOSPHITES. If you feel weak and run down after a serious illness, it will bring back strength and vigour, put roses in your cheeks and restore your old-time vitality and spring to your step. Big Bottle—One Dollar. PETER O'MARA, The Druggist, 46-48 WATER ST. WEST.

The most suitable veil for the new leather toque is plain and of a dull color, but has a narrow headed hem.

A Stitch in Time

THERE is a homely old proverb which tells us that "a stitch in time saves nine."

If the man who said it first had been thinking of health, he would probably have said that a stitch in time saves nine hundred and ninety-nine, so important is it to repair those first tissues that become impaired by ill-health.

This is no new doctrine. It is as old as man. Unfortunately (to paraphrase another proverb), we too frequently put off until to-morrow what we ought to do to-day.

Failing to repair the first tissues that need repair, allowing the malady to continue unchecked, other tissues become impaired, for all parts of the body are sympathetic.

The trouble spreads. And—then comes the rent. Nervous disorders may show themselves in various ways, such as sleeplessness, headaches, neuritic pains, nervous prostration and exhaustion, while later developments take the form of paralysis, locomotor ataxia, or some form of helplessness.

Strangely enough—all these symptoms are preventable, if that stitch had been taken in time. It is here that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food becomes important. We do not say that it is the only means of preventing the rent, but we do say that many years of experience have proved its value as a repairer of wasted nerve tissues that have become weakened by overwork, anxiety, or other causes.

When we say that the value of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has been proved we are speaking by the book. We might, at considerable length, tell you why Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will make that stitch if taken in time and prevent the rent, but we have always proceeded upon the idea that people are more interested in knowing what has been done in cases similar to their own.

Mrs. W. T. Abbott, 536 Paterson street, Peterboro', Ont., writes: "My system was in a run-down condition, and I was troubled with nervousness and sleeplessness. For some time also I had been bothered with neuralgia, and although I tried many remedies, it was without success. Upon the advice of a friend I commenced using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and soon found that my neuralgia was cured, and I have not been troubled in this way since. I also find that now I can eat and sleep well, and I give full credit for this great benefit to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I might also mention that I lost considerable weight, but after using the Nerve Food I gained back the flesh I had lost."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is sold by all Druggists and Dealers in St. John's and the Outports. Wholesale quotations from GERALD S. DOYLE, Sole Agent, Water Street, St. John's.

Victory Messages

Dept. of Colonial Secretary, 15th November, 1918.

Sir—I enclose herewith copies of correspondence between His Excellency the Administrator, the Governor General of Canada, and other persons, the publication of which will be of interest to the General Public. I have the honour to be, etc.

W. W. HALFYARD,
Colonial Secretary,
Editor Evening Telegram.

From Channel.
To His Excellency the Administrator of Government of Newfoundland.
Channel sends congratulations on the glorious news received this morning.

ROBT. T. SQUAREY,
Stipendiary Magistrate.
To Stipendiary Magistrate, Channel.
Thanks. Armistice came into effect to-day. To-morrow will be proclaimed as a general holiday throughout Newfoundland.

ADMINISTRATOR.

From Whitbourne.
To His Excellency the Administrator.
I very humbly and heartily extend to Your Excellency as the Representative of our Gracious Sovereign my felicitations on the termination of the war which has brought so great glory to the armies of our Empire and we may believe is the prelude to the establishment of a lasting peace throughout the world.

R. BOND.
To Sir Robert Road, Whitbourne.
Thanks for your wire. It is indeed a glorious triumph for our arms.

ADMINISTRATOR.

From Placentia.
To His Excellency the Administrator.
Thank God for Peace with victory for Allied arms.

W. J. WALSH.

W. J. Walsh Esq., Placentia.
I have wired you His Majesty's message to his Overseas Dominions and can only add heartfelt thanks that our arms have won such a glorious victory.

ADMINISTRATOR.

Telegram from Governor General of Canada.
(Recd. 13 November, 1918.)

The Government and people of Canada send greetings to those of the sister Dominion of Newfoundland and rejoice with them upon the victorious issue of the great conflict to which we have devoted our united energies during the past four years and on the triumph of those principles of liberty and justice upon which our Empire stands. The Canadian people will ever remember the splendid valour shown by your sons on the field of battle in defence of all we hold dear and they trust that with the advent of peace Newfoundland may enter upon a new era of progress and prosperity.

DEVONSHIRE.

Telegram to Governor General, Canada (Recd. November 16th, 1918.)

Ministers join with me in cordially thanking you in the name of the People of Newfoundland for your gracious message of congratulations and rejoice with the Government and People of Canada upon the achievement, now assured, of the objects for which the war was entered upon by the Empire and in the attainment of which the Canadian troops had so glorious a part. Fighting side by side in the battlefield our peoples throughout the terrible and protracted struggle have been welded together through services and suffering in common and we confidently hope that mutual good-will and consideration, fostered by our respective Governments, will further strengthen the tie which so closely unites the sister Dominions.

THE Sunlight enterprise and organization for production, manufacture, and distribution were made complete before the war. But during the war the difficulties and costs of transport have been multiplied. Therefore, Lever Brothers have purchased a fleet of steamships to convey raw materials direct from their plantations to Port Sunlight.

The Housewife is given the full benefit of this enterprise, and thus, in spite of the difficulties caused in England by the war, Sunlight Soap remains the best soap throughout the world, and gives the fullest value for the housewife's money.

Tidal Wave At Channel.
According to a message received in the city yesterday from Channel, an easterly hurricane with a maximum velocity of 97 miles an hour, blew over the West Coast on Thursday at a p.m., doing great damage. Also, a tidal wave at Channel, swept the waterfront, destroying wharves, stores, stages and boats. In the telegraph office at Port aux Basques, one of the chimneys was badly damaged. The telegraph lines suffered but little, one or two poles only being broken.

Courteously, but persistently, we repeat: "Give us your money, and we will give you a better return than you can get anywhere else." We have made investments for our customers, and are now paying annual cash profits of 48 per cent., and we repeat: "Give us your money, and we will give you a better return than you can get anywhere else." We have made investments for our customers, and are now paying annual cash profits of 48 per cent., and we repeat: "Give us your money, and we will give you a better return than you can get anywhere else."
Possibly you cannot get such big earnings on your money, but when all the other investments are added together, the result means a lot. That's why we ask you to share in our profits. We can pick any five out of our arguments, and we can prove it. But we know we can PROVE it. 15 PER CENT. ON YOUR MONEY.

Germany's Downfall.

As Empires of old for crimes against God and man were brought down, so has the German Empire, which was given so many talents and failed to use them properly, been brought from its high estate, and instead of being the mighty and powerful nation to which the ambition of its ruler and people aspired, its greatness has vanished and its might has been taken away. Submissive and beaten by the countries it despised, Germany now is a suppliant at their feet. Its one time Emperor William Hohenzollern is a fugitive, but he cannot long expect to escape the just penalty of his numerous crimes. He will yet be hailed before the tribunal of civilization to hear the sentence which shall be imposed upon him. Of him and such as him has Isaiah written—"How art thou fallen, O Lucifer! how art thou which didst weaken the nations cut down to the ground; for thou saidst in thy heart, 'I will exalt my throne above the stars of God; I will sit also upon the mount of the congregation: I will ascend above the heights of the clouds: I will be like the most high.'"

The punishment for the self-exaltation of the late Kaiser has, in the first instance, been visited upon him. He is now an outcast and a wanderer and his country is no longer a monarchy. The navy at Kiel is in a state of revolt and the last reports from Germany state that the revolution is spreading throughout the country, the Government being in the hands of a Socialist-Bolshevik element. The Chancellor is a Socialist and outwardly at least, the assumption is that an early settlement of the peace conditions are desired. But the Reichstag never had any actual constitutional power. Created by the Kaiser it was his instrument alone, and with his fall, it follows him.

Notwithstanding this it is very evident that the Allied Governments will find some way to deal with the German people, and they have the power to deal or treat with them as they please and also the power to enforce their decrees, no matter what form they may take. Having beaten back the forces of autocracy, the Allies will discover some means to reach the forces of democracy, no matter what confusion at present reigns in Germany. They have repeatedly affirmed their intention to negotiate only with the German people, and out of the welter and confusion existing, they will find some way of carrying out their plans. Germany must have representatives and these representatives will have to be acceptable to the Peace Commissioners. Their appointment therefore rests on their acceptability being confirmed by the people. The peace negotiations will, possibly, be delayed until such time as the voice of the German people is heard. Germany is in a state of chaos, and law and order are not. The German mob is notorious for its extreme lawlessness, and having been systematically trained in brutality for two generations, with a vicious hereditary record behind it, it is not likely to be an easy matter to tame when once aroused. With the

Into the Breach.

Our esteemed contemporary the Advocate, wound a wet towel around its head, on Thursday night and the result of its lucubration is found in yesterday's issue. The people know full well the numerical strength of Dr. Lloyd's following (?) in the House of Assembly, and they know also how much Newfoundland will benefit by being represented by Dr. Lloyd, whose "sixteen months" education in statesmanship has made him "fully acquainted with every phase of Imperial policy and its effect upon our local conditions." Also, to again quote our e.c. we have one "who is fitted by nature and study to deal with the great problems that will come up, in an intelligent manner." The Advocate is really too rich in jest at the expense of the good doctor. "Fitted by nature,"—it is to laugh. Notwithstanding the "sixteen months" education, we are still of the opinion that the Premier by accident, is absolutely without the qualifications and ignorant of the first principles of statesmanship.

Whatever ridicule attaches to our Imperial Envoy, is blameable to the Advocate, whose boast of a sixteen months' education in statesmanship and diplomacy for a Privy Councillor will be received with considerable amusement, not only in Newfoundland, but on the other side as well. The man "fitted by nature" for the job, will be apt to cut a poor figure, when the Advocate's praise gets abroad. And there you are.

Versailles.

The city in which the peace terms will be considered by the various representatives, is the capital of the department Seine-et-Oise and is but eleven miles by rail S.W. from Paris. It is a city more of pleasure than industry, is the See of a Bishop, contains a public library of 50,000 volumes, many palaces, public fountains, spacious squares and elm planted avenues, and has a population of 45,000. Its greatest sight is the famous palace of Louis XIV. said to have cost £40,000,000, which is surrounded by imposing, but stiff and artificial grounds. In 1783 the peace between England and the United States, following the separation of the colonies, was signed at Versailles, taking its name from the city. Down to the French Revolution, Versailles was a court residence, and it was here that Marie Antoinette faced the mob, thrashing for her blood in 1793. From September, 1870, till the conclusion of peace in 1871, after the Franco-Prussian war, Versailles was the German headquarters in France, and it was from the palace that William I. was proclaimed Emperor of Germany. The capitulation of Paris was signed here. After the peace of Versailles was the seat of Government till 1879, and was the headquarters of the French Army during the commune. There will be a poetic justice in the submission of Germany being made where, 47 years ago Bismarck humiliated France.

The Suez Canal.

There were great festivities in Egypt on November 16, 1869, when the celebrations connected with the opening of De Lesseps' great work, the Suez Canal, began with a benediction of the Canal by Sheikh Agapada of Cairo. The prodigious Ismail was then Khedive, and he seized the opportunity to make a display of that lavishness which eventually caused his deposition and brought about English intervention in Egypt. The Empress Eugenie was there, representing Napoleon III.; all the great European Courts sent Royalities, and humbler visitors flocked from all parts of the world. Ismail played host to all, and all along the Canal's extent anybody could have what hospitality he required for the asking. An opera house costing £60,000 was built at Cairo, and a palace equally expensive rose, like Aladdin's, at Ismailia. Estimates vary as to the total bill, the lowest being two millions, the highest twice that figure. Anyway, it all went on the fellah's back, destined soon to prove not broad enough for the burdens heaped thereon. But Ismail had still many years to run, and before he reached his father's end England, which originally opposed the Suez scheme, was to become the predominant partner in it, for in 1875 Ismail's 175,602 shares were about to be placed on the market, when Disraeli's Government was acquainted with the fact by the well-known journalist, Frederick Greenwood, and bought them privately for £2,575,832. Their direct value to-day is some ten times greater, and indirectly the purchase contributed much to our subsequent action in the land of the Pharaohs, which events of this war have since made a British Protectorate, severed in name as well as in fact from the suzerainty of the Ottoman Sultan.

Governor Arrives.

At 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, His Excellency the Governor landed from H.M.S. Bayano and was received at the King's Wharf with the honor due his exalted office, state dignitaries, military and naval officers being present. His Excellency who has been abroad for a month, returns at a very opportune time.

Thanksgiving Service.

United Thanksgiving Service, Governor Street Church, 4 p.m., November 17. Rev. Dr. Levi Curtis presiding. Order of worship:
 (1) Introduction. Dr. Curtis.
 (2) Hymn 38—"God the Lord is King."
 (3) Scripture, Psalm 98.
 (4) Prayer—Thanksgiving—Rev. E. W. Forbes.
 (5) Hymn 441—"O God of Love, O King of Peace."
 (6) Prayer—For the Peace Council—Rev. D. B. Hemmeon.
 (7) Hymn 392, "When wilt Thou Save the People."
 (8) Prayer—For the Peoples—Rev. W. B. Bugden.
 (9) Hymn 31—"My heart and voice I raise."
 (10) Prayer—For the Church—Rev. Dr. Bond.
 (11) Doxology.
 (12) Benediction.

Trains Delayed.

As a result of the heavy rain storm and a high tide, a big washout has occurred just west of Cape Ray, and as a result there will be no express until Monday. The Reid Nfld. Co. have set a big gang of men to work, and under Roadmaster Cobb repairs will be made as quickly as possible. Two westbound express trains are held up at Little River and two east-bound trains are held at Port aux Basques. No express, consequently, will leave here to-day.

Educational Co-Operation.

Now that the schools are opening on Monday and there is a greater need than ever for trained workers owing to keen competition and consequent increase in business, therefore it is all the more necessary that young people should take advantage of their opportunity to prepare themselves by day or by night for the coming commercial conflict.

Head of industrial enterprises and leading firms in the country could increase the enrolment of Night Schools five hundred per cent, if they would grant some fixed increase of salary for their employees according to regular attendance at these evening classes. One thing is certain, four years of experience in Night School work have shown that the co-operation of leaders in business and industrial lines of work is absolutely necessary to insure its success, and a well organized and well conducted Night School should produce this spirit of sympathy, spontaneously and effectively, as Commercial Night School work is so necessary for increased efficiency now that Peace has been declared.

Prospero Sails.

The s.s. Prospero, which latterly has been on the New York-Halifax-St. John's route, sails to-morrow at daylight on the northern coastal service, taking a full complement and the following first class passengers: Mrs. Scoville, Robert Earle, Jno. Gilbert, Frank Parsons, H. Pearey, Miss Mabel School, Mrs. R. G. Ash, Miss McLean, James Connolly, Geo. Iterson, Miss G. Bartlett, Mrs. Delaney, E. O'Neill, P. Burke, H. Roberts, R. W. Towner, A. Saunders, Mrs. Maidment, R. Bowring, M. O'Neil and child, Mrs. Chaplin, James Howard, Miss Elsie, Tolmie, Mrs. Tobin, Patrick Riggs, Mrs. J. Miller, Noel Miller, D. Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Harold King, Mrs. J. King, Mrs. Hood, Miss J. Keen, and 50 in steerage. All passengers are to be aboard by midnight.

Girls! Draw A Moist Cloth Through Hair Double the Beauty.

Try this! Hair gets thick, glossy, wavy and beautiful, at once. Immediate!—Yes! Certain!—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scrappy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—growing but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair, and lots of it, surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents.

The Doctor's Last Visit.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"Well, that little germ has just cost me twenty-four dollars in doctors' bills. I asked my neighbor, who has recently completed a bout with the flu. 'Your doctor sends his bills pretty promptly, doesn't he?' I asked. He had only concluded his visits a few days before. 'He didn't send any bill,' she said. 'I asked him what the charge was, and paid it when he made his last visit. I always do that if I can. I think it's only fair, don't you? I manage to pay my other bills as soon as they are due, and I don't see why I should not do the same for my doctor's bill, instead of waiting two or three months for him to submit it and two or three more to pay it. I know it is a bad custom, but I think it is a bad custom.'" never inquire whether or not he is going to be paid and when, rests on the feeling that the transaction may be a question of life and death, and it would be terrible if poor people who could not produce the money at once should have to die. But is it fair for those of us who could pay up at once, if only we class the doctors' bills as urgent, to take advantage of that ruling? I cannot think it is. Physicians with thousands outstanding in bills are often in sore need of a little ready money. It is a grateful and generous thing for those who can afford it, to draw a check for the doctor on the day of his last visit.

Chop Suey Joint Wrecked.

Sydney, N.S., Nov. 11.—A Chinese restaurant at Whitney Pier was wrecked by a general fight between the owners and diners on Sunday night. During the fight chairs, tables and chinaware were used as missiles, and one of the Chinamen is alleged to have fired three shots from a revolver. A man by the name of Devereux is alleged to have started the trouble by assaulting one of the Chinese waiters. Two plate glass windows were broken and the interior of the restaurant is considerably damaged.

"Some of that money I won't see for a year or two, and some I'll never see. When they want a doctor they want him on the minute, but when it's a question of paying him they don't see any need to hurry." Give Him A Happy Surprise If You Can. I suppose the belief that a doctor should be always ready to serve and

HIS PARENTS' CONSOLATION. Against the dangers that we dread—Against the word that he lies dead—If it should come—we have the peace—Of knowing that he has a friend—All selfish pleasures and was glad—To give the flag the best he had.

Against the absence, long and grim, We keep the manly soul of him;—Balanced against the hurt and ache—That longing for our boy must make, This consolation we may know: That he was unafraid to go.

Great though our grief shall be if he Shall never more come home from sea, More keenly we'd have felt the pain If he had chosen to remain. This golden thought shall soothe our woe: In such a need he wished to go.

If it must be that he shall fall, His spoken words we can recall, When time has faded our bitter tears, His voice shall speak throughout the years. And we shall hear him whispering low: "Far worse than death, were not to go."

Clean bacon fat may be used in combination with butter to make white sauces.

With all our work and saving let us remember to eat unburied and cheerful meals.

A good device for outdoor stoves is a copper penny with a very long handle.

When cooking honey keep an asbestos mat under the saucepan, otherwise it may burn.

In the absence of a straw to take liquid through a tube of macaroni may be used instead.

The ribs of chard can be canned just as spinach is—it is excellent stewed in the winter.

To prevent discoloration in hard boiled eggs plunge them immediately in cold water when done.

Milady's Boudoir

THE HAIR IN COLD WEATHER.

Women with hair that curls naturally are inclined to wet it slightly with water when arranging the coiffure.

This does more harm than good in winter, for it increased the stiffness of the hair and causes it to appear dry and lustreless.

The hair may be made tractable in cold weather by brushing and then applying a mixture that contains oil. This will neutralize the dryness, make the hair pliable, and has tonic properties as well.

Always massage the scalp when using a tonic of this sort and the hair will show signs of improvement in a few weeks.

One of the best oils to use in cold weather is castor oil, and if faithfully applied it will increase the growth and beauty of the hair.

An excellent tonic is made of castor oil, six ounces, pure mologne, sixteen ounces.

You will not find this mixture greasy and its agreeable odor is contained in solution that increases its value as a hair tonic.

Use the castor oil tonic every other day unless the hair is extremely dry. In that case once a day is not too often.

It is natural to try to hasten results by frequent application of the tonic, but this will only make the hair heavy with grease and altogether unmanageable.

The most effective way to apply this tonic is to separate the hair in small strands and rub the tonic well into the scalp with the tips of the fingers or a small brush.

The Long Road Back to Mons.

(From the Boston Transcript.) Standing on the Bay-Avenue road yesterday, the British troops were within fourteen miles of Mons, in Belgium. No doubt they are nearer today; their advance is rapid.

If there are among these British soldiers any who stood on the same ground on the four fateful days that followed the German attack at Mons on the 23rd day of August, 1914, they must view every foot of the long unscathed line with emotion.

It was this battle of Mons, lasting through four terrible days, that broke definitely the resistance of the British and French to the German advance through Belgium, opened the whole of the north of France to the German invasion and for a time threatened to end the war with one vast, relentless Teutonic rush.

In the fighting between Mons and Le Cateau the British army, under Sir John French, was almost annihilated, and, according to Sir John's report, it would have been quite annihilated but for the heroic services and the sagacity of General Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien.

It was precisely as Sir John said in his report—only two days after it had been concentrated along the Condé-Mons Canal by all the British army was called upon to withstand an attack by five German army corps, which attained an amazing momentum in that solid march across Belgium—and the newly dumped little British army could not do it.

On a larger, a grander, a more memorable scale, the whole British army, at Mons and Ypres, in 1914, laid down its life as the Light Brigade had laid its life at Balaklava. All this, we say, must come sharply to the mind of any British officer or soldier who took part in that bloody retreat from Mons in 1914.

And now, on the same ground, sees the opposite movement in progress—the hurrying back of a beaten army over the long, straight canal, the crowding in hot haste over the ancient ramparts and the modern coal pockets of Mons, the rain of his own withering shell-fire driving the enemy in shrinking flight; the British army corps, now the most numerous, the restless pressure and the constant flanking now that of the British army, the despair of defeat now the portion of the German army. Another victory at Mons impends—and how long England's road has been to it! The road leads through the souls of the British people, as well as over the long way from London and Bombay and Ottawa and Melbourne, through Gallipoli, Salonika, Bagdad and Jerusalem to the devoted spot. It is the road of a great nation's supreme endeavour. Along it lie the bodies of a million British soldiers—dead to blast the way back to this point. It is the road of the greatest offering of blood, and treasure that a nation ever made—a road of sorrows innumerable and untellable, but also of the joy of sacrifice and heroism and eventual triumph. Is it not to be also the world's road to safety, to security, to lasting peace? If it is not, then the long and terrible way has been traversed in vain.

THE FIRST PLOW.

Old Tubal Cain was badly bored by all the wrangles of his day; he made a plowshare of a sword, and thought that war was done away. "Geo. whiz," he said, "when people see how much a plowshare beats a sword, they'll get a forge and try to make a plow and board. The tools of war I laugh to scorn, no worthy triumph have they won; a man can't cultivate his corn with any sort of patent gun. War makes them gris; no husbandman can shear his sheep with catapult or cul-verin." Also for good old Tubal Cain, and all the lessons that he taught! His bright example was in vain, for ever since we've scrapped and fought. The steel that should have made a spade, if we had followed up his plan, was used to form a flashing blade with which to carve our fellowman. The metal that would form a plow became a sword of weight and size, to slice a fellow from his brow clear down to where his wishbone lies. I wonder where we're wiser now since war has bled the nations white? Shall we proceed to make a plow, and say to sword and guns, "Good night!" Or will we rest for years or ten, and then get hungry for a scrap, and say, "Give me the sword again—we want to disarrange the map?"

Press Opinion.

GUILTY MUST SUFFER. (Woodstock Sentinel-Review.) There are so many people in Germany whose hands are red with blood and who will show a natural anxiety to shift the responsibility to the shoulders of others, the ends of justice will not be served if they are allowed to escape on such a plea.

THE SAME MAN. (New York Sun.) One of the German commissioners sent to Marshal Foch to get armistice terms is the former Foreign Minister Paul Von Hintz, who represented the German Admiral Diederichs when that functionary attempted to bully Admiral Dewey in Manila Bay twenty years ago. On that occasion Von Hintz was told that if Germany wanted war with the United States the empire would be accommodated. Now the war has been provoked and Von Hintz is in at the end of it, an end that must have recalled to him the calm confidence of Dewey in days when German might regarded itself as invincible.

The Great
Red Cross.

The Red Cross lived—
And from its magic birth—
There sprang a force that circled the whole earth.
A million minds and hearts
Leapt to its service, counting other arts
Easy to leave for Iova
Of man who, for his visions from above,
Gave of his all to fight.
That good may come, and with it freedom's light.

The Red Cross thought—
With thought intensely deep
Of all the benefits grim War would keep
From many a needy home:
Of death that lurked 'neath the broad sweeps of foam.
And of the burning shell
That of God's earth turned to a raging hell:
Thought of the needless pain
Caused by the German's lustful fight for gain.

The Red Cross wrought—
Wrought with consummate skill
Until both land and sea their needs did fill.
Wives, sweethearts, fathers old,
Mothers whose love can burn while sins grow cold,
Men from a thousand lands
Who fought and worked and prayed at needs' demands—
All felt the fashioning
Of noble things from spiritual divining.

The Red Cross dreamed—
And lo! dreams crept to life:
It seemed that Peace had 'prisoned'
feathered strife,
And reared an star rare,
Budded with sacrifices, gaunt want,
bleak care,
Which bare Earth's offering
In life and blood and limb to Mercy's king,
And as the incense rose
To heaven's pure air, War's Gates were made to close.

The Freshwater Recorder.

A new star has arisen in the literary firmament, the Freshwater Recorder, having made its appearance in September. The Recorder is the official church journal of Freshwater, B. D.
Y. Circuit, its Manager and Editor being Rev. H. Royle, pastor in charge, whom we now thank for copies of September, October and November issues. The first two numbers contained eight pages of very interesting matter, and embodied what success the managing editor, increased the November number to twelve pages, which we hope, ere long to see advanced to a sixteen page edition.
The motto adopted by the editor, "Ich dien," "I serve", being subjected to a mild criticism, because of its German origin, has been changed to "Your Servant."

We heartily congratulate the energetic pastor of Freshwater on his new venture, and predict for the Recorder a long and successful career.
That it will receive the financial support of the Freshwater congregation goes without saying and its obvious purpose, to serve the church, will command the assistance and co-operation of members outside its birth place.

"Move On"

"Returned Soldiers" complain of what they term the super-officiousness of the police constable stationed on the Water Street corner near Ade-

The lot of the police officer is a hard one. If he does not do his duty, he

The "Holy War."

With the surrender of Turkey, the more of the final scenes in the great world tragedy, and the hand of destiny writes the final negation to the most appalling diabolical scheme of all the frightful German plans for plunging the world into blood and slaughter. That scheme, if carried out as Germany planned it, says the Montreal Herald, would have involved slaughter on a scale compared to which the slaughter in the war so far would have been the merest prelude. Few people know that at the Kaiser's investigation the highest dignitaries in the Mohammedan faith issued, for the first time in history, a general call for a holy war by the Mohammedans against Christendom—a call which, had it been effective, would have spread the horrors and devastation of war far beyond their present confines, and have lit a flame that would have utterly destroyed civilization as we know it.

Evidence exists that Germany, anticipating a world war, had for years been making plans to ensure a storm in the East of Moslem fury and fanaticism, hurled with all its traditional cruelty. Germany's long cultivation of the Turks for that unholy alliance now dissolved by disaster to enemy arms, was exposed last summer by James L. Barton, of Boston, in an elaborate article published in July. Speaking of the first Armenian massacres he says that within two years after these massacres ceased, and while the hand of Turkey's great assassin was still dripping with the blood of innocent men, women and children, the Kaiser of Germany made him an elaborate official visit, and was received in royal magnificence by the Sultan of Turkey. The Kaiser went also to Jerusalem, and there with great ostentation he entered the Holy City. At the grave of Saladin, the Moslem hero of the Crusades, he made his famous speech, in which he declared that Germany was the natural and only protector of Mohammedanism, indicating in language which could not be misunderstood that the religious of the Germans and the religion of the Mohammedans constituted nothing mutually antagonistic, and that they were gradually approaching each other in form and in belief. . . . After the Kaiser's return to Berlin the German Embassy at Constantinople began systematically to lay plans for increasing and strengthening German influence within the Turkish empire. . . . During all this period German propaganda of the country and German writers repeatedly referred to Turkey and its Mohammedan relation to Germany, putting emphasis upon the importance of Turkey and Germany in case of a general European war.

Turkey entered the war in October, 1914. Very soon thereafter there is reported to have appeared in the official Mohammedan paper at Constantinople an extended statement, never denied, that the Kaiser, when he visited the Sultan and Jerusalem in 1918, proceeded also to Mecca with his entire suite, and that they all embraced Mohammedanism, performed the necessary rites and became Hadjis. As evidence that the Germans were Mohammedans "fighting against the attack of Christendom," pictures of the ruins of churches and cathedrals destroyed by the German troops in France and Belgium were distributed in Turkey. Very soon thereafter the Shiek-ul-Islam, who might be named the High Priest of Mohammedanism for the world, issued a summons for a holy war.

Italy and Britain.

(By Capt. R. F. W. Rees.)
Julius Caesar, our common sire, was a mighty man and wise, And he called the sea his crazy ships on many an enterprise. Wherever he set his standards up, he swore by the endless Powers: "That which is Rome's remains as Rome's, and which is ours is ours."

Julius Caesar, our common sire, was a hard, hard man to beat. For he had the knack of a bold attack wherever he set his feet. Celt and Briton and wood-stained Scot, he harried them one by one, Then schooled them well in the Roman way to show how the job was done.

The years went by and we grew apace as we merged from the outer dark. And Julius Caesar our common sire, was only a history mark. Grew we ever in good repute, and grew we ever in might, Till our sea set out with the Roman's to war for the ancient night.

Fought we never as Caesar fought in the grand old days of old. Four our guns gave range to his catapults as long as a thousand fold. And the death we dealt was a hissing death when our shells flew true on the bay. And we sheathed our sword for a mightier thing, for ours was the modern way.

Julius Caesar, our common sire was an excellent man for you. But he fought in his own good way of war, and we think that his way was wrong. We have scrapped the shield as we scrapped the horn and our guns are long and breeched. But we still hold fast to the self same faith that our father Caesar preached.

Julius Caesar, our common sire, by him do we make our vow. That we take no pace from the furrowed way when our hands are once to the plough.

With Julius Caesar our common sire, we swear by the endless Powers, "That which is Rome's remains as Rome's, and that which is ours is ours."

"This," says Mr. Barton, "is the first time in history that a general call for a holy war had been issued, and the world for a brief period stood agog at the possibility of what might occur, and what many sincerely believed would occur, as the result of this call. Had the Mohammedans met the expectations of the Kaiser and the Caliph and responded as they ought to have responded according to the tenets of their faith, the 230,000,000 Mohammedans would have risen as one man and precipitated upon the world the most horrible riot of destruction and massacre that the world has ever recorded. The 47,000,000 of Mohammedans in India would have put to the sword every European and every Christian. Egypt could have eliminated within twenty-four hours every vestige of English rule; and the same would be true of all the North African provinces and of the Straits Settlements."

It is one of the outstanding and astounding facts of history that there was no favorable response in the Mohammedan world to this endeavor of Germany to drown civilization in the blood of Mohammedan fury. That such a blow was not struck was not due to any change of mind or of heart on the part of the Kaiser, but because the Mohammedan proved himself more humane in the face of the final test than the so-called Christian ruler of Germany—Sydney Record.

The Torturers.

In addition to von Hansch, the German general who is stated in Germany to have been relieved of his command of the 10th German Army Corps area, where his brutal treatment of our prisoners was notorious, the name of another Hun bully is revealed by two repatriated British officers, who state: "Major von Goertz is another Hun of the same type as von Hansch. He was in charge of the prisoners-of-war camp at Magdeburg, where he consistently made British officers live a burden to them, and apparently encouraged the theft of their food supplies. Von Goertz is a Hun bully of the worst type."

"Another is Lieut. Mort, of Villingen prison camp. He is described by most of the officers there as one of the worst Germans they have ever met."

"Bad as the treatment of the officers has been, it has been far exceeded by the treatment by Hun gaolers of British privates. People who talk about German Junker chiefs and Hohenzollern being solely responsible for Hun brutalities should know that the cruelties have been inflicted for the most part by German non-commissioned officers and soldiers, who have shown in many cases unrelieved joy at the suffering of their victims."

"The awful treatment of British prisoners is not to be laid at the door of the Prussian aristocrat alone. The Hun working men are the most spiteful gaolers, and must not escape blame because of their lower rank."—Daily Mail.

GRANDSON AS KAISER.
It is interesting to recall that the Kaiser's grandson—Prince Wilhelm—had now twelve years of age, and that the thought of his sudden succession to the throne—first emerged in the summer of 1917—was not far from the mind of the Emperor in the spring of 1918. In the months before the war, the Kaiser's grandson was a popular figure in Berlin, and was often seen in the company of the Emperor and Empress. He was a well-developed young man, and was much admired for his military bearing. He was often seen in the company of the Emperor and Empress, and was much admired for his military bearing.

GERMANY'S DESERTED COLONIAL OFFICE.

Whatever the true opinion entertained in German Government circles may be as to the future of the colonies captured from them in more than one continent, it is not without significant interest to hear that, according to information reaching an authoritative quarter here by way of Bern, the Colonial Ministry in Berlin has now been closed, and the staff, consisting at the end of two minor clerks, relegated to a room on the top floor of the Foreign Office in Wilhelmstrasse. Practically all the records of the department have been deposited in an empty building in Taubenstrasse near by, and there is additional interest in the fact that no successor has so far been appointed to Dr. Solf, now Foreign Secretary. It is little wonder, in these circumstances, that Dr. Dernburg, a predecessor of Dr. Solf at the German Colonial Office, has been publicly speaking this week in tones concerning the future of Germany very different from those he was accustomed to employ in more flourishing days.

INNISKILLING DRAGONS.

General Allenby is an old Inniskilling Dragoon. So is General Remington. A contemporary of theirs in their sulbaltara days is Lieutenant Colonel J. Watkins Yardley, who was a smooth-faced youth, earning the nickname of "Curate" which still sticks to him. He retired as a captain, doing a lot of gentlemen riding at the Biberby Club meeting and elsewhere. He joined up again for the South African War, in which he was shot in the thigh, greatly shortening one leg; but a course of big game shooting lengthened it again, and he has since ridden in steeple-chases. He went to France in 1914. "With the Inniskilling Dragoons in South Africa" is his work. A very popular brother officer of theirs was Major "Pickles" Cross, a son of the former head of the Subo firm whose strawberry jam used to be so fragrant in the good old days. He was one of the handsomest men that ever put on uniform. When the Inniskillings were

VOLUNTEERS AND THE NEW CLOCK.

Being now a recognized part of the Army, the Volunteer force have adopted the new 24 hours' clock and abolished a.m. and p.m. While the Regular soldier is falling into the change fairly easily and the Volunteer finds the two systems, one as a civilian and the other on duty, somewhat confusing. It is awkward for the Volunteer who is dismissed at 10.00 to look up his train for home and to recall that it is 4 p.m. Again, the business man has to think twice to discover whether he can keep a commercial appointment at 5 p.m. and be on parade at 17.30 which is half an hour later.

HOW THE WOMEN WILL VOTE.

The question how the six million women voters are likely to vote at the general election is now exercising the minds of all women's societies. When the Franchise Bill passed there were indications that the leading women in many of the chief organizations hoped to join forces to work for the immediate removal of women's economic, legislative, and professional disabilities, and some of the societies have remained true to that ideal. But there will be a stronger effort to rally the mass of new voters to existing parties. In all directions women are showing an eagerness to understand the questions on which they will now have a voice and women citizens' associations for which the National Union of Women Workers and the National Union of Women's Suffrage Societies are almost equally responsible, have been formed in all parts of the country to study and discuss every question of importance. These are non-party associations, formed locally by women's societies representing many shades of political opinion and their objects have been rapid and spontaneous that a central organization has now opened an office at Westminster under the name of the National Women Citizens' Association. It is non-party, but there is nothing to prevent any branch working along any lines it may choose. Similar educative work has for long been carried on by local branches of the National Union of Women's Suffrage Societies which are always strictly non-party.

Napoleon and Wilhelm.

(Montreal Daily Star.)

In the despair of post-Waterloo days the great Napoleon wrote to the future King George IV: "Your Royal Highness—A victim to the factions which distract my country and to the enmity of the Great Powers in Europe I have terminated my political career and I come like Themistocles, to throw myself upon the hospitality of the British people. I put myself under the protection of their laws which I claim from your Royal Highness as the most powerful, the most constant and the most generous of my enemies." It is Wilhelm's turn now, but the pen that wrote the royal signature to the Treaty of Brest-Litovsk can never form so dignified an appeal.

Tells of Life in Arctic.

After spending five and a half years in the American Arctic archipelago at the head of an expedition sent out by the Canadian government to explore the islands and seas north of Alaska, Vilhjalmur Stefansson has returned to New York. He will start at once upon a lecture tour of the country for the benefit of the Red Cross.

Mr. Stefansson described the results accomplished by his expedition, including the discovery of five new islands within four hundred miles of the North Pole. It was also discovered that King Christian Island, hitherto supposed to exist, was a myth. "We cleared up about one-quarter of an unexplored region embracing some one million square miles 400 miles from the Pole," said Mr. Stefansson. "It has always been regarded as the most inaccessible part of the Northern Hemisphere. We traveled on an average of more than two thousand miles a year for five years, and never missed a meal and never lost a dog from hunger."

Mr. Stefansson stated that the survey of the ocean proved more difficult than the discovery of the new islands. In the journeys undertaken in the first two years of the expedition the ocean was found to be very deep, raising the presumption that there was no land northwest of American Alaska. After leaving shore a sounding wire four-fifths of a mile long failed to touch bottom, but in the northwest above the newly discovered islands a platform discovered to exist about 250 fathoms under water furnished an indication that there might be land there.

The largest staff of scientists that ever went on an Arctic expedition accompanied Mr. Stefansson. It included men from Canada, Scotland, New Zealand, Australia, France, Denmark and the United States. Mr. Stefansson said the biological results alone would fill eleven volumes, and that it would be five or six years before the scientific data gathered on the expedition would be ready for publication.

The only fatalities occurring during the expedition were the deaths of thirteen men at the very start of the expedition when the Karluk, the largest of the six ships, went down, with the loss of a large part of the supplies and nearly all of the scientific apparatus. This made necessary a radical departure from the traditional methods of Arctic exploration.

"We virtually upset all the old traditions," said Mr. Stefansson. "Heretofore most explorers have taken as much food as they could carry, gone as far as they could on half of their supply, and then turned around and raced for their bare supplies. On the other hand I depended on foraging, killing animals for food as we went along."

Mr. Stefansson said that contrary to popular impression the Arctic regions are not barren of life and that there is no place on earth where it is easier for a man to support himself if he knows how.

"The abundance of game everywhere," he said. "On floating ice in the lanes of open water there are seals and polar bears. On the land there are musk oxen and reindeer or caribou. Every polar island that I have seen is covered with grass and vegetation upon which fat herds of reindeer and musk oxen feed."

He added that shrimps were plentiful in the polar seas but that the men of the expedition ate raw meat by preference. He said that he cured several men of scurvy by putting them on a diet of fresh raw meat.

The voyage was used by Mr. Stefansson to be made to go farther north than Martin Point, Alaska, about 1,000 miles from the North Pole. The first journey of 700 miles was made from this point in 1914, proceeding in a northeasterly direction over the frozen sea, then in a southeasterly direction to the northwest corner of Banks Island. The second journey, made in a northwesterly direction from Banks Island, brought Mr. Stefansson to the southwest corner of St. Patrick Island, the mapping of which was completed in 1915.

Music a Real Necessity in Time of War

Music has justified itself as a factor of real service in this hour of trial. Not only to the man at the front, do there come times of loneliness and discouragement. Those who remain at home have their share of the world's burden. They need the inspiration, the encouragement, the soul-satisfying comfort of music in the home.

The NEW EDISON "The Phonograph with a Soul"

RE-CREATES the human voice and the music of human-played instruments with such fidelity that the actual voices and instruments cannot be distinguished from the New Edison's RE-CREATION of them. But you will never fully believe what any dealer tells you when they make conflicting statements.

The wise way to choose your phonograph is to let all claims pass in one ear and out the other, then have the several makes of phonographs and talking machines in which you are interested sent to your home on trial, where you may make direct comparisons among them in the quiet of your own home and decide which one you would like to keep—which one you think you would enjoy hearing just as much five years from now as you do to-day.

We will gladly send a New Edison to your home for purposes of comparison or to be heard alone, without the slightest obligation on your part.

The Kaiser's Dream.

Chicago Post: He wakes, maunders, draws his cloak closer. Earth hates him. Earth curses him. Earth, with his multitudinous lips, calls down upon his head the vengeance of a just God. He beholds a world reeling under the shock of great-guns, hurled from the flames of burning homes and churches, deluged with blood. Before him floats a ghastly panorama of babies' bones mounded by eels on the bottom of the sea; horrid crustaceans fastened upon the white dead breasts of women; innocence defiled; millions of husbands, sons and fathers turned to carrion; prisoners of war starved, tortured and crucified; and, as in a glass, he sees himself, the world's byword for perfidy, cruelty and lust.

At a Queer Wedding Somewhere in Egypt.

The Sheik of the neighbouring village was very friendly with us, and when he came to the camp with an invitation to the festivities at his brother's wedding the captain and I accepted with alacrity.

As we halted our camels before the house on the appointed evening, our host, in white robes and turban, came forth and welcomed us with quiet dignity and charming courtesy. The captain, who knew some Arabic, responded suitably, while I repeated all I knew, "Si-soda" (Good-day).

Two boys led away the camels while the sheik conducted us by a narrow path to the house. On our left, beneath a rude framework covered with palm leaves, two oxen chewed contentedly. To the right was a large room, bare and dimly lighted. Round the walls squatted a score or more of old men, all robed and turbaned in white. Suddenly one began a long chant or recitative, and when he had finished, the rest applauded gravely, "Aya, Aya."

"They are praising the bride and groom and asking blessings, I think," whispered the captain. "It is in a sort of blank verse." Presently another took up the chant and so it continued.

We next passed through an enclosure containing the weirdest wedding party I have ever seen. Boys played games and banded jests, while young men smoked, drank coffee, and chattered volubly. In a corner a cow fed stolidly, a goat was having the time of its life, and fowls flattered about picking up crumbs. Members of the household moved from guest to guest with coffee and sweet biscuits.

Beyond, we came to a small green field set aside for the more important guests, and here we met the bridegroom. On a carpet in the centre dancing girls moved to and fro in a strange, swaying, sinuous dance. Their dresses, hung with coins and spangles, tinkled as they danced, and in their hands they held little clappers with which they beat time. An Arab played on a double flute a sort of whole-toned rhythm which rose and fell continuously, while another held under his arm a round copper vessel and beat on it with fingers and palms.

The guests sat around clapping vigorously and swaying from side to side. Occasionally one would jump up and join in the dance, to the great delight of his comrades. All vied in their efforts to entertain us; those who could speak a little English came and talked to us while their friends looked enviously on, and those who could not speak with us, piled us with coffee and biscuits and smiles.

At a late hour we came away, and the dancing and chanting were still going on. The curious thing was that we did not see the bride or any women, except the dancing girls. As the captain said with a grunt, "They were in another room having a beam on their own and a good job too!"

"I think I prefer our own way," said I, and thought of home.—A. A. K. in Daily Mail.

BOOK TALK

The Devil's Cradle—Mrs. A. Sidgwick, $1.60. Here is a story that tells the truth. It reveals the German life and character with an astonishing intimacy of detail.

Foe Farrell—"Quiller"-Couch, $1.50. A rousing story of adventure. The plot is an unusual one; it assumes dramatic and powerful proportions.

Greatheart—Ethel Dell, $1.60. An absorbing story which takes an elemental grip on the reader to an amazing degree.

Joan and Peter—H. G. Wells, $2.00. In the study of the characters, Joan and Peter, the author has done some of his finest, most revealing and brilliant work.

The Man in Grey—Baroness Orczy, $1.50. Strange and mysterious creature, that elusive personality known to the historians of the Napoleonic era.

Our Admirable Betty—J. Farnol, $1.60. It is a romance pure and simple, bristling with stirring episodes, with a delightful company of characters.

The Soul of Susan Yellam—H. A. Vachell, $1.60. War novels cannot as a rule be termed delightful, but there is no other word for this one.

Sylvia Scarlett—C. Mackenzie, $1.75. A book full of movement, color and life.

That Which Hath Wings—Dehan, $1.60. A colorful novel of love and war, of wrath and humor, skilfully accomplished. A sequel to the "Dop Doctor."

The Watcher by the Threshold—John Buchan, $1.50. These tales of strange happenings on the dark and forbidding moors of Scotland have a true flavor of legend.

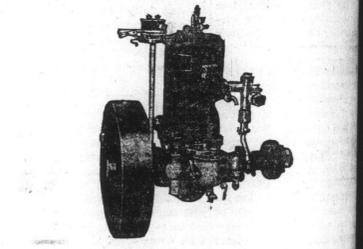

Tony Heron—C. Kenneth Burrow, 1.50. The story of a temperamental antagonism which leads to tragedy, but tragedy not without hope.

The Zeppelin's Passenger—E. P. Oppenheim, $1.60. Mystery and suspense, thrills and heart-throbs are intermingled.

Gentlemen at Arms—Centurion, $1.60. They are real stories, and give in bold, unforgettable outlines, vivid pictures of the men who are saving civilization.

"First and Second Books of Artemas", 75c. each. Concerning men, and the things that men did do, at the time when there was war. "Amazing, witty and profoundly wise."
