RESULT OF THE MAY EXAMINA-TIONS IN ARTS AND LAW.

A Girl Takes Two Scholarships-No Medal in Classics-Heavy Plucking in Second

Tear. The results of the May examinations in law and arts were made known last night? The feature of the year is that Miss Lizzie Balmer takes two sch olarships (modern languages and general proficiency) and first-class honors in mental and moral science without attending lectures in any of the depart-Her standing is remarkable. ments. The Misses Browns (daughters of the late Senator George Brown) stand well in the third year. Of girls, five presented themselves in the third year, one in the second, five in the first. The rejected men were : 1 in the fourth year, 3 in the third year, 1 in the fourth vear, 3 in the third year, 25 in the second, 7 in the first. Failure to get honors in mental and moral science in the second year was the "insurmountable" for the majority of the unfortunate 25. No medals were awarded in classics, and some, of the scholarships were not given because the candidates did not come up to the standard. The Blake scholarship goes to a double scholarship man.

Simply Not the Truth. No one seriously believes that the confeder-ation will long hold together. The people of the various provinces are no nearer now, after seventeen years' experience of the present plan, than they were before.—Telegram. Every now and then a crock of this insipid whey is presented to the readers of our evening and front-changing contempor ary. It is not true. The dominion is un dergoing trials; she has not by any means the best possible system of government but nevertheless she is on the right track. and we are developing a free system of our own. The provinces are being more and more linked together. If we are not making such apparent progress toward union in things political, we have made appreciable headway on the social side. The general assembly of the presbyterian church now assembled in this city is one instance that we cite. All our great religious and social organizations are being cemented together from the Atlantic to the Pacific. A national sentiment is springing up. There is hope for Canada, and the confederation will hold together though a new pact will be made before many years. The Telegram ought to have more respect for the people who have made it what it is in a commercial sense.

The "Dark Horse" Folly.

The "dark horse" business at nominat ing conventions has been for years a fertile theme for American jokers, and many "smart" things have been said regarding it. But the sober truth of the matter is that, instead of it being a good thing to laugh at, it is in reality a disgrace to the American. That the ablest men of either party should be rejected, and some nincompoop dragged forth from his obscurity to fill the highest office in the gift of the people, is something to make the judicious grieve rather than laugh, we should say. And he is neither a very enlightened, nor

The republican national convention of 1880 met in Chicago on Wednesday, June 2. It was not till the following Monday that balloting was begun. Twenty-eight ballots were taken on that day and eight on the next. The two leading names before the conven tion were those of Grant and Blaine Grant's vote was 304 on the first ballot; it touched its minimum-302-on the twentyfifth, reached its maximum-313-on the thirty-fitth, and closed with the famous 306 on the last ballot. Whatever may be the case with the others, her possession of Canada constitutes her most serious danger. Would its loss affect her for good or evil ? It would be an unqualified bene-fit, as was in fact the loss of the States. At a certain stage of its existence a colony is a benefit. England has many such. At a certain stage it is an injury. BY GEORGE H. CANDLER.

Did you ever see a wreck? No, I don't mean a ship-wreck, but a wreck of what ence was a man. If you never have seen such a deplorable spectacle, I invite all in search of the carious" to come and inspect me.

My story is sad, very sad. It is affecting-almost to tears. One short year ago I was considered to be an eligible young man, a nice young man; I was sought after by enterprising me's to grace sought after by enterprising ma's to grace their "hops" with my presence; lovely letter-box system and free delivery. daughters hankered arter' me, (at least I Five persons were receatly fined at Bost think so), and blushed with pleasure at my caygeon for spearing fish during the close approach, (at least I thought so). I was aways so very stylish, so particular about Asher Black, of Amherst, N. S., com-my gloves, ties, etc., that I was considered mitted suicide yesterday by hanging him-to be—a—in fact—a—well, I have been self in his barn.

(at least I think so) called a "dude." About that time I met Mary Anne Smithers. I, Adolphus Fuzzletop, met Mary Anne Smithers—and, I smiled upon I am weeping. I met Mary Anne as old Palgers, at a dance, and with M. A. I went through the mazy circle. Mary Anne was slender—very slender— in fact, scandalously slender, if she hadn't been se slender all my misery would have name werted: but, as she was slender— why—my misery was not averted. As I encircled the slim waist of M. A. with my culiar feeling I had ever experienced; it was an indexet the total cost of Fast Humon. The orangemen of Fast Humon.

Judge West (the blind orator of Ohio) made a telling speech following this nomination. At 1.30 a.m. Walter J. Townsend of New York presented the name of Chester I will state all I know of it. I was awak, ened by a noise in my friend's room, which was next to mine. I listened, and all was still. Then I heard what must have been my poor friend's last dying cry, but which I thought was only the involuntary moan of disturbed sleep; still, a vague but irresistible feeling of alarm impelled me to the room. By a light that was dimly burning, I discovered my friend in the con-dition you have heard described.' Here his voice faltered. 'I have no recollection of what followed. When I came to myself the room was full of people, but I saw no one; I saw only him who lay in that bed. "'You have here a plain, unvarnished At 1.30 a.m. Waiter J. Townsend of New York presented the name of Chester A. Arthur. W. H. Bingham of Pennsyl-vania seconded the nomination. At 1.45 a vote to adjourn was taken and lost, which showed, it was claimed, Blaine's strength to be 371 against the field. He expressed no doubt of the prisoner's guilt, and lamented the abuse of talents, the corruption of a mind once inno-cent, and earnestly recommended the un-fortunate youth to confess his guilt, rather than rashly persist in protestations of innocence which could no longer save his divine mercy. "The prisoner then arose, and never did I see a more expressive and commanding countenance. It was no longer the despon-dency of fear and the gloom of hopeless-ness; but the triumphant, yet calm and modest look of one about to receive the crown of martyrdom.
