SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 6, 1930.

English Investments in America.

It is now about a year or two ago since the English syndicate began to appear in the papers to the effect that Englishmen with money were either making or were about to make large investments in various kinds of business in the United States.

By-and-by these rumors, at first vague and indefinite, began to assume more precise shape, and later on they seemed mostly to rest on breweries as the kind of productive property in America that most took the English investors' fancy.

Next, a number of actual sales of American breweries to English companies were reported; and it became evident that the alleged movement was no fiction got up by the papers but a real fact of the day.

In all these cases of the sale of breweries to English companies, or in that of them—there were two things to be observed. First, that the properties selected for purchase by English investors were live, paying properties, which might fairly be expected to pay from the word "go."

And, next, that the price paid for them was no liberal that we could scarcely imagine the salesmen sitting down to cry over grief at having thrown their prospects away. The total value of American breweries sold to English investors during 1928 and 1929 is estimated to have been about $100,000,000.

But it rather seemed to put the case ahead on when the latest rumor came out, to the effect that an English syndicate was forming with a capital of ten millions sterling for the purpose of controlling the dry goods trade of the United States. The rumors of the New York World on the alleged bid of news are interesting enough to quote.

A cook-and-bull story to the effect that an English syndicate was forming with a capital of $100,000,000 for the purpose of controlling the dry goods trade of the United States has been published in a newspaper in this city and published in double-column type. The enterprise is following in the footsteps of the New York World on the alleged bid of news are interesting enough to quote.

The chairman stated that he had been informed by the architect that possession of the ground was twice the population of the United Kingdom, to say nothing of infinitely greater natural resources, and that, moreover, the average Yankee was a more successful man than the average Englishman.

The proprietors of Parmentier's Pills are continuing to receive letters from all over the world, which explain their value to the people of all nations. The relief experienced after taking them is being reported from all over the world.

We would suggest that one investment in the States is undoubtedly the larger profits, salaries and wages which are customary on this side of the Atlantic. Profits are larger on this side the water than in England. In the Old Country many a gigantic business has been built up out of profits which to enterprising Americans would appear contemptible.

British companies coming over to the States would expect to be able to reduce wages to the European standard, though it is said that even now the process is going on much faster than people generally imagine. But we fancy that English administrators of business in America would make a big error to make a reduction of wages.

There is something else to be considered, and that is the number and emoluments of managers, superintendents and all such like. Take an American manufacturing establishment, turning out goods to the value of two hundred thousand pounds per annum and compare with it an American establishment of the same kind turning out a million dollars' worth per annum.

Anyone who knows both sides of the matter knows that the American concern keeps up a number more of stylish men, and at more stylish salaries than the English one. Now, it may be that the English investors are expected to do with smaller profits, and thus to vanquish competition and build up a business for their own particular sakes.

Finally, too, they may have in view some reduction of both salaries and wages, as one of the "modern improvements" to be introduced. If so, these desirable investments will not be deemed desirable acquisition to the States, by the multitudes of people who live there by wages, and by salaries.

But, something else remains. Was it not Canting who once wrote a play, one of the characters in which says to another, says he—"A sudden thought strikes me, let us wear an eternal friendship." Now take this sudden thought of ours for what it is worth. May not the present eagerness of English capitalists to find investments in America have something to do with a growing fear that European investments are likely to suffer soon from the great war that is coming? Better think this over as you dismiss it as wildly improbable.

Whelan's Dictionary (No. 1) One born in America the West Indies or the Tropics, of any color. One born within or near the Tropics, of any color. The term "colored" is employed in the English Bible to designate the people of the African continent during the time of the slave trade. The word "colored" is also used to designate a free person of color in some parts of the United States, though usually understood to mean a person of African descent.

Head editorial: In four or five generations there will be more completely lost in the huge English-speaking world than the people of Louisiana, whose color serves to some extent to differentiate them.

The editor of The Mail is evidently possessed of this "unfounded idea." If he lived in Louisiana and had written the above sentence yesterday morning his friends by this time would have been already busy with the preparations for his funeral. Some aristocratic circles would have shot him before 12 o'clock.

The opening of Victoria street. A meeting of parties interested in the project was held yesterday. Ald. David Walker was asked if he would withdraw his opposition if the property north of Wilson-avenue, as suggested by Mr. Macpherson, be exempted from any share in the cost of the improvement. As Mr. Walker did not give a direct answer it was surmised by some that his opposition to the extension was for other reasons than the cost to the property holders. Note that the cost is to be put on the property north of Wilson-avenue, that the number of classes to be assessed is to be increased to five, and that a more equitable distribution of the burden will thus be made. There is no reason why the preliminary estimates should not be hastened forward along the street opened in a few months at most.

This decision to exempt the north end of the street will remove most of the names who signed the Walker petition in opposition to the project. The action is of course one that parties interested in other quarters and who have no direct interest in this scheme have a right to further inquire into what only concerns those who are willing to pay for it. As a matter of fact the city as large will be the chief beneficiary.

People who read and reflect after reading upon the many published testimonials regarding Carter's Little Liver Pills are bound to be struck by the numerous instances of cures effected by this medicine. It is not a question of whether it is a cure, but of how it is cured. The facts are that it is a cure, and that it is a cure.

The Dodge Wood Split Pulley Co., Toronto:

Dear Sirs.—In reply to yours of the 9th inst., would say that we have now in use a considerable number of your Split Pulleys, and perhaps the best index of our opinion of them lies in the fact that since we got the first three on trial we have purchased no iron pulleys. TENTH YEAR.

THE GOSPEL OF DYNAMITE

MR. DAVITT ARMS HIS ENEMY WITH WEAPONS.

Combination a Game That Two Can Play At—A Bustle Reported Between Mr. Davitt and Count von Waldreue. Foreign Sends Two Vessels to Dublin.

New York, July 7.—Mr. Smalley in London cable to the Sunday Tribune says that the Irish news is not of a kind to please Irish men in America. Agitation is almost unmanageable. Mr. Smith Barry's tenants, who came to London to invite him to abandon his fellow landlords, have come back with plain answer and a fess in their ear. Landlords have learned from the tenants' secret combination, which has become less popular game with the tenants now it is seen that two can play at it. O'Brien's new crusade to bagfight him instantly into collision with the authorities and it seems likely to be brief in consequence. The confirmation of Mr. O'Brien's sentence to three months' imprisonment draws tears and shivers from the Daily News, which informs its readers this morning that there has long been no justice in Ireland, and that now there is absolute no law. Perhaps not; but there is peace the House of Commons.

Mr. Davitt's combination and cross-examination have revived some interest in the Parnell Commission. He proves on whole to be a damaging witness for cause of Home R. In his frankness, his easy and sincere, his readiness to avow from opinion, his assertion of his preference for complete separation between England and Ireland, his defence of Manchester murderers—these and many other things have been so many weapons in the hands of his enemies which they have not been slow to use. They have started the English public and dismayed the English Liberals most of all, who know well political use will hereafter be made of the materials. When Mr. Davitt insists on the use of dynamite and the preaching of a dramatic crusade are commended as a Christian character, his more moderate comrades, who hold no such opinions, escape with difficulty from the grasp of the holding them. The result, on the whole, of Mr. Davitt's testimony is to increase general respect for him—and to show it to be a dangerous weapon in the hands of whose sole chance of success is in convincing the English public of its moderation.

A Gladstone Victory.

London, July 6.—An election was held yesterday in the Westminster division of the House of Commons. The result was a victory for Mr. Gladstone. The Liberal candidate, Mr. Gladstone, was elected, receiving 233 votes against 273 for Mr. Wemyss, the Conservative.

Mr. Gladstone at Cardiff.

London, July 6.—The freedom of Cardiff was presented to Mr. Gladstone to-day. Mr. Gladstone's speech referred to the American Constitution as a marvel of political wisdom, skilfully pointing out the benefits of devolution in contrast with the evils of great centralization, of which France and Italy were examples. Mr. Gladstone's speech of the afternoon met with a warm reception, and Mr. Gladstone's speech of the afternoon met with a warm reception, and Mr. Gladstone's speech of the afternoon met with a warm reception.

A Row in the Spanish Chamber.

Madrid, July 6.—Yesterday in the Chamber of Deputies the Minister of the Army, Minister of Foreign Affairs, was defended the Government against an attack upon by Senator M. rios, when the members of Opposition raised such a tumult that speaker was compelled to suspend the sitting. The President's order for order was unheeded by members, and the uproar was so great that the police were summoned, and they great difficulty they had to restore order, when the debate was resumed.

Discord in High Quarters.

London, July 6.—A few days ago The Cologne Gazette started its readers giving a graphic account of how an English officer who was a member of the jubilee banquet of the King of Württemberg at the barracks in Stuttgart, refused to drink the health of the German Army which was proposed by the German officer present. The Gazette completed the account of the alleged incident, and it got upon being reproved by the Germans, their discomfiture, the Russians rose from their seats and left the room. In the report of the "Russian outrage" fired the German press, many of whose editors were anxious to declare immediately a war against the country of the offender. A day after the report was published, however, Gen. Alvensleben, who was present at the banquet, in order to quell the excitement caused by the account of the incident, a correction to the press denying the report. The Cologne Gazette thereupon declared that although its information came from unimpeachable sources, nevertheless it was incorrect. The Hamburg Nachrichten, edited by the German Foreign Office, leads an attack on the Cologne Gazette which is accused of being a Boasophile. The Gazette retorts by saying that as honorable paper it must insist upon truth of the affair. The quarrel between these two papers, each of which is closely connected with the Government, promises to develop into high quarters a leads trail to the report of a rupture between Bismarck and Count von Waldreue.
