WHEAT is up to $1.10. Bread to THE flax crop of Lambton is being harvested in execllent condition.

Good headway is being made with the new brick platform at the G. T. R. depot. 1916 WILL GO DOWN in history as the record year for heat, flies and mosquitoes. Two RINKS of Watford Bowlers went to Wyoming on civic holiday to play a League game.

WATFORD had a slight score of one to the good at the day's bowling at Wyoming Wednesday.

A SOLDIER'S uniform was found near the town on Wednesday. The author-ities have been notified. THEY HAD OVER sixty deaths in one day in Chicago from the heat. What an awful toll of human life.

WORKMEN are engaged on the found-ation of J. W. McLaren's new residence, next to his mother's home.

"THOSE WHO KNOW the most concerning the war, fear the least," Lloyd George says. Pessimists, attention!

FREIGHT rates on coal have been raised ten per cent. Lucky is the man who already has in his winter's supply.

H. WATSON got word Wednesday that he had been accepted in the Engineer's and will go to the front very soon. SOME PERSONS have come to the conclusion that rain is the most delightful word in the English language-providing the article accompanies the name.

"SOCIETY WOMAN has routed her trip east, and will be accompanied by her husband and prize Boston terrier."—St. Louis Times. At least hubby was mentioned first.

Most people have been satisfied with the weather during the past week and few suggestions have been given Divine Providence regarding what is good for the country. THE CIVIC HOLLDAY was observed very quietly. A large number of the residents went away for the day to Detroit, Sarnia and other-lakeside places and several went to the Forest races. THERE ARE about 1200 tavern licenses in the province and already the Ontario License Board have received 1000 applicants for standard hotel licenses under the new prohibition law. THERE IS ONE thing a man hasn't learned that a woman has, and that is how to fold up a collapsible baby carriage. Did you ever notice a man wrest-ling with one? It really looks funny. A DESERTER from the 149th Batt. W. J. Knight, was sentenced to twelve months imprisonment in the Ontario provincial reformatory by Magistrate

DURING THE LATE unlamented hot wave the men suffered more than the women because of their conventionally foolish attire. But the women, as Rose Field remarks, had advantage, they could let down their hair and cry.

THE INFANT CHILD of Mr. and Mrs. B. Anderson has passed through a very severe illness during the past week, being so low at one time that the chance of recovery was very slight, but it is hoped that the danger mark is now passed.

CHURCH SERVICES were well attended Sunday evening. The cool, exhilerating temperature induced many people to turn out for religious service. The expression 'dull, religious light,' was fully exemplified in the churches, the electric light plant being out of commission.

THE REV. F. G. ROBINSON has in his garden an attractive display of the red sunflower, a new variety. The petals are of a golden brown with various tinted tips, while the stem is also of a dark color. Mr. Robinson will be pleased to show them to anyone interested in floral

A letter from the Department of Education states that a condition of the Legislative grant this year is the use of certain specified books in the various schools. The books deal with history, geography, hygiene and include the Golden Rule books.

CONSIDERABLE interest is being man CONSIDERABLE interest is being manifested in the apple crop. The apples are sufficiently advanced to enable one to form a fair opinion as to the yield and quality. The general report is that there will not be an average crop in quantity and that the quality is only fair.

MR. WM. LAMB received last week a letter of sympathy from the King on the loss of his son, Pte. Thomas Lamb. It Majesty and the Q (Signed) Asquitb.

BREAD advanced to 7c per loaf Thursay morning. All bread sent by mail ten one cent extra.

REV. T. M. MEAD formerly of Watford, who lately joined the colors as a private, has been promoted to Lance-Corporal.

IT is said the Taylor & Son cashed more cheques the past few days than both banks put together. The Grand Master cigar was the currency used. SOME OF THOSE who returned home from Sarnia, Wednesday using their excursion tickets on regular trains had to pay full fare while others bluffed it and did not pay any extra.

SIXTEEN officers from the London district will be selected for the draft of Can adian officers which has been asked for from England. The list has been made out by Col. Shannon.

More tall grain to hand this week R. N. Sutton, Kingscourt, sends in a sample of fall wheat that measures five feet ten inches and some oats that measure four feet ten inches. Everything grows tall at Kingscourt. Even the new flag pole Mr. Sutton has erected is over 50 feet high.

On Sunday next the Presbyterians and Congregationalists will hold union services in their respective churches. In the morning the service will be in the Congregational Church, in the evening in the Presbyterian. Rev. R. M. Steven-son will preach at both services. ARE you saving your waste paper newspapers etc., for the Red Cross? The first collection will be made by the members of the Kewpie Club early in September and much time will be saved if the papers are tied in bundles read for collection. Save your papers and help along a good cause. THE FOURTH ISSUE of "Khaki Life."

published at Camp Bordon, is to hand. It is full of interesting camp news and has a good advertising patronage. The boys in khaki seem to be having a good time judging from the reports of baseball and football games. The paper also contains some excellent illustrations.

A MAN WITH one eye, who otherwis physically fit, may now be enlisted, but only for service in Canada, not overseas A modification of the regulations pre-scribes that anyone who has lost the sight of one eye but whose vision in the remaining eye is normal, providing it is the shooting eye, may be accepted.

NEWSPAPER READERS should take advantage of the full measure of news they are receiving these days. It is possible that before long the price of newsprint will have advanced to such a figure that the press will be forced to reduce the number of pages and condense news reports in smaller space.

MR. JOHN WILEY had the misfortune to lose his purse containing $40 or over on Thursday afternoon of last week. He had it while in Coupland's harness shor and from there went the back way to Angus Mitchell's shop where 'he dis-covered his loss. He retraced his steps a covered his loss. He retraced his steps a few minutes latter but failed to find the

NEW LIST of county constables is new being arranged by Crown Attorney Wilson, and all but the names of those from Oil Springs and Moore Township have been received. As soon as the list is completed the constables will be notified, and the new members of the county police force will be sworn in.

THE regular meeting of the Watford Women's Inst. was held at the home of Mrs. T. Gavigan on Wednesday evening, Aug. 9th. After singing the "Maple Leaf" and the business disposed of, Mrs. T. Gavigan gave a reading and was much appreciated. A dainty lunch was then served by the hostess. Meeting closed by singing "God Save the King." Next meeting at the home of Mrs. I. Brown.

A SCHOOL with a Reputation .- During the month of July the Management of the Central Business College of Stratford received applications for over 100 office assistants they could not supply. The Central does splendid work. It is one of Canada's best. Those interested in Busi-ness Education should write the College for its free catalogue.

THE NATIONAL campaign for thrift carried on by the Government is receiv-ing the fullest endorsation of all the great financial institutions. The Sterling Bank has for several years been an exfremely strong advocate for the advantages of saving. Just at the present time they have had a handsome card lithographed which gives a pungent reason for saving. This is being hung in schools, halls, factories, wherever it will do the utmost good. The cards are supdo the utmost good. The cards are supplied free from the head office of the Sterling Bank in Toronto.

CAPT. (DR.) HENDERSON has returned CAPT. (DR.) HENDERSON has returned home to Sarnia after serving nearly two years with the British forces in Gallipoli. He received a warm welcome home, Mayor Doherty delivering an address of welcome. At Victoria Park, where the addresses were given, about 7,000 people gathered and heard with interest the story of Capt. Henderson, who praised the conduct of the gallant Canadians at the front. Referring to the present allied offensive, he told of seeing immense quantities of ammunition in reserve and the largely increased number of guns pounding away at the German line. Rain or shine, she insists upon looking well dressed, knowing that her appear ance is no small part of her success. The time has passed when the efficient worker was content to wear any sort of clothes. She dresses herself for the office just as immaculately as for a drawing room.

An essential to a neat, attractive appearance on a rainy day is some sort of waterproof coat. This need not be a hideous affair of rubber, drab in color, shapeless as to fit. Really smart waterproof coats are to be found in these enlightened times, one seen recently being in pewter gray waterproof tweed, designed to withstand the wickedest weather. It was lined with a lovely wedgwood blue shade of silk. The coat buttoned at the top with two large tweed covered buttons, or if could be worn open. It had two capacious pockets at the sides, and the garb was completed by a jaunty and sensible little hat in blue straw, with a gray ribbon and untarnishable steel buckle, and a pair of high waterproof boots.

The whole was a judicious mixture of the picturesque and the practical and proved that we can wear the most perfectly weather resisting garments and still look quite charming on a wet day. The idea that "any old clothes" will do for bad days is quite exploded nowadays.

Bulbous Plants.

Many amateur gardeners when their bulbous plants are through blooming are in great haste to let the bulbs dry out and pull them up. This is a mis-take. As soon as crocuses, hyacinths, tulips and narcissuses are through flowering remove blooms and begin a systematic preparation for next season's flowers. It must be known that just after a bulb has finished flowering is the time when it stores up nourishment for the next season, and if the flowers are not to degenerate in a few years the bulbs should be given attention. Give doses of liquid manure once a week for at least a month after the flowering is done and do not neglect to water the dry stocks. In this way one can materially help them to store up food. Rich soil is not necessary for very young plants, as they derive most of their sustenance from the air and moisture. The soil should, however, be

WORK FOR BLIND MEN

BRITAIN PREPARES TO COPE WITH GRAVE PROBLEM.

Training of Sightless Veterans of the War is Now Going on at St. Dunstan's Home, Where Men Are Being Taught Various Trades Within the Scope of a Blind Man -Stenography Proving a Big Success.

HAT shall we do with our blinded soldiers after the war? To merely give them a pension to supply their needs will not suffice; it is necessary that they be taught some occupation, not primarily because they will thus become self-supporting, but because they will be far happier and more contented if they have occupation to take their minds off their great affliction. In England a noble work is going forward at St. Dunstan's Home with the object of training the blind soldiers to earn a living. It is under the direction of Arthur Pearson, the famous publisher, himself a blind man. Mr. Pearson became blind from overwork, just as Joseph Pulitzer, founder of the New York World, became blind. But he did not become helpless or hopeless. To an interviewer not long ago he said that he doubted if he had ever experienced the joy when he had his sight that he has felt on occasions since when he has overcome some obstacle. With his great energy and organizing ability Mr. Pearson makes an admirable director of the St. Dur. an admirable director of the St. Dunstan's Home.

The object of the home, as mentioned, is to give the blinded soldiers trades. Several are taught, and it is astonishing the number of trades in which the lack of sight is no insuperable obstacle to efficiency. Type-writing, for instance, is a blind man's job, and Mr. Pearson says that the typewriter was originally invented to provide the blind with a means of writing. One of the typewriting in-structors at St. Dunstan's can take dictation in Braille shorthand as fast as one wishes to speak, and then will transcribe it on the typewriter more accurately and swiftly than many first-class stenographers with normal eyes. It used to be said that it required three years to teach a blind man a trade, but Mr. Pearson says that most of them can be trained in a very few months well enough to become self-sustaining.

Another occupation particularly well adapted to the blind is that of masseurs. Even masseurs with good eyesight depend upon their sense of touch instead of their eyes; and Mr. Pearson remarks that in Japan it used to be illegal for any but the blind to follow this occupation. Mas-seurs are now in demand at all the War Office hospitals, and as a result of the war we may expect a greatly-increased demand for the services of men trained in this business. pentering is another trade that the blind can learn, and, of course, while highly skilled carpenters cannot be made out of the blind, they can become very fair rough carpen-ters who can make certain articles of patterns that can be repeated. Shoe repairing is also a blind man's trade, and several first-class cobblers have been turned out of the institution. When the cobbler is trained he is helped to a shop, and in the window a card announces that the proprietor is a soldier blinded in the war. He does not have to wait long for trade.

Poultry farming is being taught to several men at St. Dunstan's, and with this trade is enough carpentering to enable the victim to make his own coops and runs. A sergeant who left the institution not long ago is left the institution not long ago is able to distinguish among the various breeds of poultry by his sense of touch, and he can also truss and dress fowls quite well enough to make an attractive display on the poulterer's stand. He mixes the food perfectly, selecting it from the different bags by his sense of touch. It is said that since blind men move more deliberately than those who more deliberately than those who have all their senses, they are less likely to frighten the fowls, and likely to frighten the fowls, and this is an advantage not to be lightly disregarded. Others are being trained as telephone operators for small exchanges. The indicators are made to scale and the blind learn very quickly to distinguish their distributions of the state of the st identity by the sound each makes as

And further take notice that the list of lands for sale as aforesaid is now being published in the Ontario Gazette in the issues thereof bearing date 8th, 15th, 22nd and 29th days of July, 1916.

And further take notice that in detaint work in muddy waters than others, for heing accustomed to working in for, being accustomed to working in the dark, they would find nothing abnormal in their task. Darkness handicaps a sighted man, but light and darkness are the same to the blind. Contrary to general belief, great delicacy of touch does not follow almost automatically upon blindness. It has to be laboriously acquired-in trans to be faintings acres. Moreover, though the blindness may be equal, some blind men have a far better sense of direction than others. Mr. Pearson mentioned the case of a blinded Canadian officer. He can rise from a chair, turn round several times, and t<sup>x</sup>en throw a cigarette into a fireplace without error nine times out of ten. Some of the blind have a very keen sense of when they approach an object with which they might coilide. Others, again, blunder like a sighted man in a dark room. Edward Marshall, who visited the St. Dunstan's home, was struck by the fact that there was no despair to be seen on the faces of the blinded heroes. On the contrary, most of them were smiling. They do not them were smiling. They do not grudge the terrible price they have paid for their citizenship, and are looking forward cheerfully and confidently to many happy, useful years

Peace Has Its Heroes.

The London Gazette announces that His Majesty the King has been pleased to award the Edward Medal of the Second Class to Mr. John Roderick McDonald and Mr. Leo Patrick Powell of Alberta.

The official account of the action for which the award has been made is as under: On June 26, 1915, while the Bow River, Calgary, Alberta, was in flood a hundred-foot steel span was washed loose from a bridge in course of construction. A man named Garden was upon this span, and was precipitated into the span, and was precipitated into the water, which was icy cold. He managed to get hold of a baulk of timber, to which he clung. McDonald and Powell put off to the rescue in a small boat, which was used in connection with the building of the bridge. No other boats were available, as the river is too dangerous for boating, even when not in flood. They had to cross a dangerous rapid and also to avoid collision with logs. and also to avoid collision with logs which were coming down the river in large numbers and timber from the broken bridge. Had they been capsized they would almost certainly capsized they would almost certainly have been drowned, as they wore heavy hip rubber boots. They reached Garden, though he had been washed nearly a quarter of a mile down the river. He was at that time nearly unconscious owing to the coldness of the water. It was too dangerous to take him aboard the boat, and they therefore tied a rope round him and secured it to the boat. All him and secured it to the boat. All three-were carried about a mile and a quarter down the river, when Mc-Donald and Powell managed to steer the boat to an island. There can be no doubt that McDonald and Powell incurred very great danger, in per-forming-this brave rescue.

Mysteries of the Night. In Ceylon the devil bird is a constant source of alarm. No one knows what species of bird it is, but throughout the whole night its cries are horrible and blood-curdling. The natives regard the cry of this mysterious bird as a sure presage of In the desert of Gobi, which divides the mountainous snow-clad plateau of Tibet from the milder re-gions of Asia, travelers assert that at night they have heard sounds high up in the sky, as of the clashing of arms and sounds of martial music. If travelers fall to the rear, or get separated from the caravan, they hear themselves called by name. If they go after the voice they get lost in the desert. Sometimes they hear the tramping of horses, and, taking it for their caravans, are drawn away, and wandering from the right course are hopelessly lost. The people be-lieve that these sounds are produced by the spirits that haunt the desert.

The Irish banshee may be traced to the owls, as the description of the cry is so similar to that of the owl, which completes the identification. Most of the weird sounds that are heard in the air at night seem to have superstitious terrors, and are often magnified and altered by those who hear them.

Trinidad's Petroleum.

Petroleum production in Trinidad for 1915 forms the subject of a re-cent report issued by the Governcent report issued by the Government. Ten companies were engaged in the business. The work done during the year was satisfactory, 65 new wells having been drilled, with an aggregate depth of 57,969 feet. Oil was struck in 38 of the new wells. The total number of wells drilled up to 31st March was 239, and of these 112 are on Crown lands. The amount of oil produced during the twelve months was 14. during the twelve months was 14,-230,871 imperial gallons more than in 1913-14. Refining has not been carried on up to the present on any large scale, but several small refiner ies are in operation which produce petrol for the local market and for exportation to the neighboring col-

Still Fit!

Brandishing his arm vigorously, and bringing it down with a thump on the table in front of the recruiting officer at Gisborne, Australia, an eager recruit demanded that he should be sent to the front. "Ay, ay, should be sent to the front. "Ay, ay, but what's your age, man?" inquired the recruiting officer. "Sixty—nine" was the response, backed up by the declaration that he was good still for plenty of hard work. He said that he was physically fit, and that surely he could go as cook. He had, he said, a grown-up family of ten, and he asked why he should not be allowed to do something for his king and country. The grey-haired old volunteer was warmly commend-ed for his excellent spirit, but was informed that the age-limit was forty five years. The old man, who was persistent, said that he had lived in every clime, and had seen service as a lad of fourteen in the American Civil War, evidence of which he displayed by a missing finger—the re-sult of a bullet wound. It was not until his name and address had been duly entered, and he was assured that when the call came for grey-beards, he would not be forgotten, that he left the recruiting depot. Two other offers from elderly men, one of seventy-five and another of sixty-two, have also been received recently at Gisborne.

Drought in Ceylon.

The drought which is being experienced all over Ceylon at present is the most serious for many years, writes a Colombo correspondent. In fact, it is stated that in some up-country districts, records going back thirty years fail to reveal such a prolonged period of absolutely rainless weather. The effects of the drought are aggravated by the fact that it has been accompanied by a searching northeast wind which withers up everything. Those tea districts in everything. Those tea districts in which Torthix flourishes are suffering very badly indeed, as this disease is greatly encouraged by dry weather. What is still worse, experience has amply shown that these rainless spells are invariably followed by violent epidemics of malaria which will hit the labor force badly.

Point Edward is experiencing difficulty in collecting the Poll Tax. The revised statutes of Ontario provide that this tax may be collected in such manner as the council directs. The amended act of last session provides that this tax may be collected as other taxes. This, however is absurd, as men living in boarding houses could not be compelled in that way to pay a dollar. The revised statute above referred to authorizes the collection by summary conviction. Two of the defaulters at Point Edward were brought before Magistrate Robert Fleck and were compelled to pay the $5 and costs. Mr. Fleck declined to impose a fine, saving he thought the $5 and costs sufficient. The parties paid, and it is expected that the other delinquents will be compelled to do likewise. to do likewise.

Going One Better

Crop stories quite frequently rival fish stories in their tendency to exceed the speed limit in crossing the boundary line of veracity, the biguess of pumpkins and the immensity of cabbages, apples or potatoes equaling any big fish ever described.

Now the capacity of soils for reining potatoes equaling any big fish ever described.

Now the capacity of soils, for raising things and "starting something" to grow, claims attention. Here is a story of tertile land told by Dr. Nathan C. Schaeffer, as a joke on himself.

The richness of the soil was being discussed with a woman farmer from the Dakobis. Dr. Schaeffer glorified the crop possibilities of his Lancaster county by saying: "Why, in our county the soil is so rich that if you stick a nail into the ground, the next morning it has grown into a crowbar."

Whereupon the other replied: Yes, I know, but in our country we use a tack for that purpose."

The Deadly Soothing Syrup

Sherbrooke, Que., August 14. — A peculiar accident which resulted in the death of two children at LaPatrie, occurred there yesterday. On Thursday afternoon Mrs. Verret sent her voung boy to a store for a bottle of soothing syrup. On his way back home he met one of his playmates. The two lads decided to investigate the contents of the bottle, drinking about three-quarters of it. The boys hid the misdeed by stating that the cork had blown off while they were shaking the bottle and part of the contents lost. Some three hours later the two children, while at play, laid down alongside the fence to rest. They were found by Mr. Verret, who after trying vainly to awaken them, called in a doctor. The children remained in a comatose condition and died during the evening.

"'Res," continued Brown, "she was a rickety old thing. I offered her to my mate, but he wouldn't have her. I've had my eye on another for some time." And then the scandalized lady fled.

No Wonder

There were two Browns in the village, both fishermen. One lost his wife and the other his boat at about the same time. The vicar's wife called, as she susposed, upon the widower, but really called upon the Brown whose boat had gone down. "I am sorry to hear of your great loss," she said.

"Oh, it sin't much matter," was the philosophical reply; "she wasn't up to much."

"Indeed!" said the surprised lady.

School Fairs

The Rural School Fair movement in Ontario was inaugurated in 1912. Its growth and development has been most rapid ever since. With a modest beginning in 1912 with 25 Rural School Fairs in 12 Counties it has now extendid in 1916 all over the Province, totalling 268 Fairs, including 2596 schools. There is an ever growing interest in the work and before long it will be extended to every school in the province.

At each School Fair is to be found exhibits of grains, roots vegetables, which must be produced from seed supplied and grown under the direction of the District Representative; also poultry produced from eggs supplied by the Department of Agriculture; insect and weed collections; exhibits in manual training, fancy work, cooking and sewing exhibits and essays. The children are also encouraged to exhibit calves and colts. An interesting feature and one of great value to those taking part is the public speaking contest where many a child will receive his first inititiation of facing an audience and hearing the sound of his or her own voice for the first time. Who knows but this is only a beginning where the orators of the days to come will receive their training. Hitherto, the great bulk of the work in education and agricultural work has been done with the adult farmer. The Rural School Fair is the children's move-It reaches out to interest the child in things agricultural. It is under the direction of the District Representative but has the generous support of the parents, ratepayers, trustees and all other officials engaged in educational work together with the generous support of all the citizens of the County.

Ecarlate

A Man's Dream Materialized.

By CLARISSA MACKIE

When Dacre married his friends said of him that any woman who allied her-self to him would not be able to hold clubman, a man who was always welcome behind the scenes at the theaters and was very often found there, especially when the chorus and ballet girls were pretty. Some declared that the girl he married was one of a thousand; just the woman, in fact, to hold such a man as Dacre. One who was familiar with his makeup replied that if she did hold him she would have to do it in gauze and tights.

Dacre before the wedding made all sorts of promises to his fiancee. He would eschew theaters—that is, he would never go behind the scenes. He would cut all his old friends who were "fast." In short, he would make a model husband, devoted to his alone. That he loved her she did not doubt. What she feared was that some one would steal him away from her

To every one's surprise. Dacre kept his promises. For a year he never went to the theater except with his wife. Then when the baby came and she had a new being to look after he was left occasionally alone of an evening. One night to pass the time he sought amusement in what for him was a dangerous place. The queen of the ballet captured him, and from that time forward he was devoted to a succession of dancers. At last the pre-dictions of those who knew him best had come true. His wife's life was changed from happiness to misery.

Then came the peerless Ecarlate. Shortly before her coming Mrs. Dacre had exacted a promise from her husband that he would abstain from an acquaintance with any more women of the stage. He kept his promise, but every night that Ecarlate danced he was in his accustomed seat in the theater. He had been captivated by the poetry of motion and could not look upon the dancer except with a mad temptation to break his word to the woman he really loved.

One night when Dacre was at the theater just before the dancer came on the stage the lights were lowered and the orchestra softly played a dream waltz. Then came a change.

The violins suddenly swept into a legato movement, and as if treading lightly on the delicate measure a small scarlet clad form swayed on to the darkened stage and fluttered there un til the cold circle of the spot light searched and found her.

It held her there, a quivering creature of tantalizing mystery, a baffling airy thing of midnight hair, glorious eyes and unknown features, for Ecarlate was always masked. Above the black velvet mask show-ed a white forehead, with the soft black hair banded with jewels. Belov it there were rose red lips, curved in tender smiles, and a dimpled white chin. Through the slits in the mask the eyes worked disaster.

The mystery of her unknown features only added to her charm in the eyes of men, especially Jack Dacre. Dacre leaned with his elbows on the railing of the box, and quite oblivious to significant glances he watched the dancer. He stared at her until his heart ached with longing that the mask might be lifted so that he could feast his eyes on the loveliness which he had never yet seen. His eyes never left her while she Occasionally she flashed a melting glance toward the box where he always sat when she danced, and then her head was turned aside so that he might see that she wore his nightly offering, a scarlet cactus flower tucked in the duskiness of her wonderful hair.

"My scarlet beauty!" he muttered restlessly as she swayed in the dizzy mazes of her famous butterfly dance. Scarlet she was from the flower in her hair to the tips of her tiny satin slippers. With snowy arms she lifted the scarlet chiffon wings of her filmy skirts, her head fell back, and she melted into the rhythm of one of her character dances When it was over she withdrew, her arms loaded with flowers, her eyes smiling at Dacre's frowning face.

With her departure Jack Dacre went away. For him the performance had ended with the vanishing of Ecarlate. For an hour he sat on the lounge of his club, drinking a little, thinking all his club, drinking a little, thinking all the time of the strange woman whom he madly lyved, although her face was unknown to him. Even her home was an impenetrable mystery. She came and went like a bright meteor flashing. across the midnight sky. Her man agers were dumb on the subject. It whispered that she was of royal

It was nearly midnight when Dacre let himself into his own house and gave his hat and overcoat to a sleepy servant.

"Is Mrs. Dacre out this evening?" he asked, with a foot on the stair.

"Mrs. Dacre returned an hour ago. believe she is in her boudoir, sir.' Dacre went on up the stairs and turned into his own room. For a moment he hesitated; then he crossed to the door of his wife's dressing room and laid his hand on the glass knob. Would it respond to his pressure? His hand gripped the knob. It turned, and he entered his wife's apart-

Eve Dacre sat in her boudoir under the glow of pink shaded lamps. She wore a negligee of rose colored silk, and her dark, piquant face seemed to reflect the tender glow.

She looked up as he entered, and a cold little smile curved her lips and drifted away.

"Ah, you are home!" she said. "Did you enjoy the play?" "I went to the Venus," he said frig-idly. Now Mrs. Dacre laughed softly. "The Venus, of course! I, too, was there."

"You?" he stammered.

"Yes. It was all rather stupid, was it not? Always excepting Ecarlate?" He was silent. His mouth was white, and his gray eyes looked cold and impenetrable.

Eve arose and crossed to the phonograph. She slipped in a record, set it in motion and returned to lean over the back of her chair, looking at her husband with grave, dark eyes, while the tender strains of Ecarlate's dance rose and fell

"What are you doing that for?" he demanded fiercely.
"Jack," she said in a voice suddenly weary, "let us be frank with each oth-You want your freedom. Am I right?"

"You are dead wrong!" he retorted doggedly.
"But Ecarlate?" Her voice dropped to a whisper. "We will not talk of her."

"And those that came before Ecarmusic made a background for her passionate words. "I have overlooked, I have forgiven, and now it is Ecarlate. You love her. You dare not deny it!" Again he was silent. He looked at her, noting, with a shock of surprise, that there were silver threads in Eve's dark hair and lines about her mouth and eyes-lines that he had graven there. Eve was only twenty-five, and he was killing her youth.

Suddenly she drew a long breath. What is it about these women that attracts you? What charm do they ossess that is not mine?" Still he did not answer.

She swayed a little and turned away. "Ecarlate is here! I am sending her "Ecarlate here? You are mad!" he exclaimed. But the gentle closing of the door sent him quivering to a chair. The music played steadily on-that eternal butterfly dance. He began to hate it. What was Ecarlate doing here—in his house? It was like a jealous woman to take revenge, but he had believed Eve above such trickery.

The repetition of her name, the familiar music, and again the old enchantment fell upon him. He watched the door for her appearance. What would she look like? Beautiful, of course! He forgot that Eve would accompany the dancer.

He jumped up when the door slowly, opened to admit Ecarlate's scarlet elad form. She was alone.
The door closed and left her leaning against the white paneled surface, panting a little, as if afraid. Dacre laughed triumphantly. Ecar-late afraid of him, her adorer!

He made one step toward her, but in that instant she left the door and swayed like a butterfly in the mazes of her dance. Delicately she poised before him, and then, before his out-stretched hand could touch her, she had melted away beyond his reach. Her tiny scarlet shoes seemed to barely touch the floor; she floated; her chiffon wings beat the air; the jeweled band above her forehead blazed with myriad lights; the cactus flower flamed lke a burning heart.

Suddenly the music ceased, and the dancer was once more leaning against the white door of Eve's dressing room. Through her black mask her eyes gleamed strangely.

Dacre clinched his hands. Ecarlate, standing there with outstretched scarlet winged arms, appeared like a scarlet angel barring him from his wife's He stared at her smiling lips, at the alluring sparkle of her eyes peering oddly at him through the mask, at her black hair with its dazzling band of brilliants. Suddenly he remembered that his wife's hair was black, but it was threaded with silver. He had placed the silver threads there. He laid his hand on Ecarlate's arm. His voice was hodrse with resolve. "Allow me to pass," he said.

She laughed, a merry, trickling, mocking laugh that ended suddenly in a sob of pain. His hand had closed on her tender flesh. "Will you let me pass?" he asked through clinched teeth.

"You love me!" she whispered tensely.

He was silent. "Say you love me!" she repeated. He lifted his hand and deliberately, tore aside the mask. For several minutes he stared at Ecarlate's face. How many times bad he yearned to tear away the mask and feast his eyes on her unknown loveli-

It was a face such as he had never imagined in his wildest dreams of her. Suddenly she covered it with little leweled hands.

Then he spoke. "I love you?" he cried vehemently. "I have always loved you! It was be cause you were behind the mask that I loved you, and you alone!"

She melted into his arms, and he held her there. Ecarlate no longer barred the door to his wife's room. She was in his arms. His wife was in his arms. His wife was Ecarlate. Ecarlate was his wife.

The local authorities and return. The local authorities and the people generally are co-operating in the matter.

In New South Wales, for instance, recently a working committee meeting commenced clearing an area of several hundred acres. It is intended to cut this land into "farmlets" a few acres each, and to make the blocks, ready for settlement, available for the soldiers as they return from the war. The idea of small local bodies working in this way is likely to become popular throughout Australia.

In addition to having fertile land made ready for them, the men will have the advantage of the practical advice and assistance of the settlers. who, by their patriotic actions, have helped to make the way clear for a return from the battlefield to the position of productive settlers.

In South Australia a scheme has been adopted for settling returned veterans on the land. Training camps are to be created for the benefit of the inexperienced, and special assistance given to men to set themselves up as farmers. Reclaimed irrigation areas will be devoted to this purpose to begin with.

A similar scheme has been placed before the Government of Western Australia. Plans have been prepared by the Commissioner for the Wheat Belt, the Commissioner for the South-West, and the Fruit Industries Commission.

NEW STRENGTH FOR LAME BACK!

Dear Mr. Editor — I suffered form lame back and a constant tired, worn-out feeling. At times I was unable to stand erect and scarcely able to get around. It would usually come on at first with crick in small of my back. I took one box of Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets and my back commenced to get better soon after take them. I did not Letter Tells of Long-looked-for Prescription. Pierce's Anuric Tablets and my back commenced to get better soon after starting to take them. I did not have to walk doubled over as I did before using the "Anuric." It is the best remedy I have ever taken for what it is intended to relieve.

I hope those who are in need of such a remedy will give the "Anuris Tablets" a trial.

HINDU ETIQUETTE.

Curiosities of Behavior in the Eastern Empire. You can never tell what is manners and what isn't in India. When a woman wants to be very polite to a man she turns her back on him; it flatters any Hindu man to have a pretty woman plainly and ostentiously turn her quette. Whatever hap-pens, a Hindu wife there is a queen system of etiquette. What ever happens, a Hindu wife must never men-tion her husband by name. When she goes to call on her neighbor, lightly chatting the afternoom through, comparing notes on the latest nose-rings and the best way to stain the fingers with the fashionable henna, she must never let the conversation swing around so that she will have to mention her husband. If she should go so far as to forget herself and mention her lord and master, to her shocked companion, her hostess would soon yawn and explain that she had to go and put the bread in. However, she can talk about her children all she vants to; there is nothing in the Hirdu etiquette book against that. She can tell what a funny thing Jamj'il said the other night at the supper table, how much he helps around the house and delihe helps around the house and delicately hint how much brighter he is than the other children in the neigh-borhood, but she must never under any circumstances mention his ther.

Even stricter social rules govern the men. One Hindu man must never ask another Hindu man how his wife is getting along. That would brand the man as not having the slightest idea what drawing-room usage was All the men at the club would shun him; no one would dare to ask bim to come over to the table and have a grape juice for fear right before everybody he might ask how his wife was.

When a Hindu goes to call it is not good manners to leave until the host gets up and tells him to go Leslie's.

New Hotel Regulations

The Ontario License Board has issued regulations regarding the new temperance hotels. The new regulations say that in addition to being a suitable place for public accommodation each standard hotel shall be a well-appointed eating house. Application for license for a hotel on. If a sailor wears two square should be made to the board metres (2.4 square yards) of flannel through the license inspector not later than August 15th, for the license beginning Sept. 16th. 1916, and hereafter not later than March 15th, for the license year commencing May License fee $1. Every hotel must keep a supply of pure, cold drinking water, conveniently placed for the use of guests. Every guest room shall have a bolt on the inner side of every door. Fire escape signs must be prominently displayed, and ropes must be placed at the windows of every bedroom. Liquor must not be sold, served or kept upon the premises. No disorderly conduct, gambling or drunkenness may be permitted upon the premises.

A stripped person, owing to greater loss of body heat, cannot swim in cold water as long as one with clothes, the downward drag of which is a negligible quantity, is the conclusion of experiments by Professor J. Joly of Dublin and Professor Dix and serge the maximum downward force in sea water is the weight of ounces-with all the air expelled from the materials. Only under one condition does stripping appear to be justified—if a short and rapid swim will place the swimmer in safety.

THE WORD "LOVE."

In the Orient It Means to Like or Is Used to Express Good Will. The word "love" has been more highly specialized in the west than in the In its proper English use it means only that ardent, amorous feeling which cannot be created by will and design. In the west the word "love" has been relieved of the function of expressing the less ardent desires, such as the terms "to like," "to have good will toward" and "to be well disposed toward" simply.

Not so in the east. The word "like," meaning "to be favorably inclined toward," is not found either in the Bible or in the Arabic tongue. In the English version of the Bible it is used in two places, but the translation is incorrect. In the twenty-fifth chapter of Deuteronomy and the seventh verse, "If the man like not to take his brother's wife," should be rendered "If the man 'consent' not," and in the fourth chapter of Amos, the fifth verse, "For this liketh you, O ye children of Israel," is in the original, "For this ye loved,' O ye children of Israel." In any standard concordance of the Bible the Hebrew verb aheb-to loveprecedes these quotations.

So to us orientals the only word which can express any cordial inclination of approval is "love." One loves his wife and children and loves grapes and figs and meat, if he likes these things. An employer says to an employee, "If you love' to work for me according to this agreement you can."

It is nothing uncommon for one to say to a casual acquaintance whom he likes, "I must say, sahib (friend), that I love you!" I know of no equivalent in the Arabic for the phrase, "I am interested in you." "Love" and "hate" are the usual terms by which to express approval and disapproval, as well as real love and hatred.

From all this it may be seen that when the Great Oriental Teacher said to his countrymen, who considered all other clans than their own as their enemies, "Love your enemies," he did not mean that they should be enamored of them, but that they should have good will toward them. We cannot love by will and design, but we certainly can will to be well disposed even toward those who, we believe, have ill will toward us.—Abraham Mitrie Rihbony in Atlantic Monthly.

SAINTS OF ILLS AND TRADES.

Holy Friendships Consoled Pious Pec-

ple In the Middle Ages. The trustful and childlike plety of the middle ages believed that the citizens of heaven were interested in every phase of men's lives, and there was not a single trade, profession or occupation that did not boast a special patron, while certain diseases were thought to be cured and certain visitations warded off through the intercession and agency of particular saints.

Thus St. Andrew was the patron of fishermen, St. Isidore of husbandmen. St. Christopher of porters, St. Mark of awyers, SS, Cosmas and Damian doctors, St. Joseph of carpenters, St. Crispin of shoemakers, St. Vitus of actors, St. Gregory of singers, St. Dismas (supposed name of the good thief) of criminals condemned to death. St. Apollonia was believed to cure toothache. St. Blaise sore throat, SS. Clare and Lucy sore eyes, while St. Benedict preserved his clients from poison and St. Hubert from the bite of mad dogs.

"Men," says Montalembert, "lived in a tender and intimate familiarity with those forefathers whom God had evidently called to himself and whose sanctity the church has proclaimed. From the king and the pontiff to the poorest workman each had a special protector in heaven, and in the battles, dangers and sorrows of life these hely friendships exercised a most consoling and strengthening influence." - Irish

That Old, Old Table. It is impossible to know who was the author of the multiplication table, but it is known to have been in existence in the days of the builders of the ruined cities of Mesopotamia, whose records are now being patiently decinhered by archaeologists. Tablets are found which tell us of their system of education, banking, accounting, business correspondence, etc., and among others are multiplication tables. So the multiplication table is probably not less than 6,000 years old.—Christian Herald.

THROW AWAY YOUR RUBBISH.

The Wiedom of Cleaning Out Accumulations of Gowns and Mustiness.
In some houses the first thing that greets one is a faint musty odor arising from carpets which have grown old, but which, though probably swept frequently, have never been sent to the cleaner's and, being down for years, have accumulated deposits of dust un-derneath them. In old houses, too, the flooring will have shrunk and provided receptacles for insects under the carpets. Constant traffic and the soil of the street brought in on dirty boots also get into both carpet and flooring.

It is cheaper to do away with rub-bish of all kinds than to suffer the results in ill health. Bedrooms are often used as receptacles for stores of old clothes, old trunks and other things, the occupants forgetting that these things are but so much cubic capacity cut off from the air space of the room and that they harbor germs and cause infection.

If household furnishings are worn out and there is difficulty in renewing them, better eliminate them than retain them to the detriment of health. The bare room is a healthy room. If rooms require repapering have them distempered instead. Paperhangers are at a discount just now, and the cleanly distemper which many women who are handy can manage by themselves is healthier and cleaner than a cheap and soiled paper.

When Jackson Dined. When Colonel David Crockett was a member of congress and was at his home in Tennessee some one asked him about the dinner hour in Washing ton. He said the common people ate dinner at 12, the next above them at 1, the merchants at 2, the representatives at 3, the senators at 4, members of the cabinet at 5 and the vice president at 6. "But when does the president dine?"

"What! Old Hickory?" said Crockett, anxious to fix a time that would suit his idea of Jackson's greatness, "Well, he doesn't eat till next day!"

The Smallest Capital. From the tourist point of view Cotinje is probably the least interesting as well as the smallest of European capitals. The principal building is the ancient monastery, in front of which is the old palace, now the home of the bishop and still known as "The Billiards," because until recently it boast ed the first and only billiard table in the kingdom. The new palace is a modest chocolate colored villa, and by, far the most imposing buildings in the city are the Russian and Austrian consulates .- London Globe.

The Best Liver Pill.—The action of the The Best Liver Pill.—The action of the liver is easily disarranged. A sudden chill, undue exposure to the elemenis, over-indulgence in some favorite food, excess in drinking, are a few of the causes. They are the leading liver pills and the latter of the property of the cause and they have no superiors among such preparations.

How to Retick Feathers. Get your new ticking ready for the beds, have it all sewed up, but have about ten inches open at one end. Now take your old tick from which you wish to change the feathers and rip it open about ten inches at the end. Then take your new ticking and sew it on to the old ticking, having the two openings together. Now you can shake the feathers from the old tick into the new without losing one of them. Before closing up your new tick turn your old tick inside out and pick all the down out of it and put into the new ticking. Now you can close up your new tick.

Kitchener's Threat.

An amusing story which does not seem to have got into print yet is being told about Lord Kitchener. It concerns a famous poster, issued some time ago, with an appeal in his handwriting for more men and yet

More men.

He had, of course, to write the original appeal from which the facsimile on the poster was made, and he did so, and it went to the department concerned with such things. His writing was found to be too small for poster-size reproduction, as the start poster-size reproduction, so the shee was sent back to him with a cautious explanation in this sense, and the request would he rewrite it. He did, but again it was too small, and he wrote it a third time, and with that third draft sent that grimly humorous message:

"Don't ask me to write this again, for rather than do it we'll have conscription!"

The fields in the Alvinston Field Crop Competition were judged and scored by and are proving very successful. This new adventure will no doubt establish new adventure will no doubt establish our flax industry on a new basis, for labor for pulling flax at the proper season has always been a draw-back to the industry.

UNDERDRAINAGE

The depth of drains and the distance apart are points which require to be carefully considered. The roots of ordinary crops penetrate three to four feet into the ground, and if not given an opportunity to do so before drought sets in, they are unable to make the depth afterwards. If tile are placed three feet deep in the ground the water table over the tile is lowered to the depth of three feet but it is found that in clay soil 25 feet from the tile the water table is only two feet below the surface and in loam soil it rises one foot in thirty-three. It is therefore apparent that drains should be deep enough to permit the greatest root development. A safe rule to work on is for clay tile placed three feet deep, drains should not be more than 50 to 66 feet apart, and in loam soil 66 to 100 feet apart. First hand knowledge of the texture of the soil and subsoil together with the experience of the farmer in studying general conditions will help to decide in each individual

Size of Drains: - Drains should be designed to relieve the land of surplus water during times of maximum rainfall or seasons of continued pre cipitation which overcharges the soil beyondits capacity. In providing for drainage adequate for agricultural lands under these varying conditions we consider that the volume of water which must be removed by drains regulated or limited by the reservoir capacity of the soil, the evaporation of water from the surface and by growing plants, also the length of time which the soil may remain saturated without injuring it or the plants growing on it. Definite rules and formulaes are used for this purpose but sufficient tables for an accurate guide are always compiled in each treatise on Drainage, Bulletin No. 175 of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Determining grade of tile:-The east grade allowable is measured largely by the accuracy with which the construction work will be done. Tile drains will operate successfully and be permanent in clay or other firm soils if accurately laid on a grade of ½ an inch in 100 feet, but better to have at least one inch in 100 feet. If the soil is soft, full of fine silt or sand which will enter the drains, especially drains of smaller size, a greater velocity of flow will be required to free them from silt which enters. A careful arrangement of grades of drains is of great value and is one of the advantages to be derived from a survey.

Mr. David Hayter, of Alvinston, Imitations Brooke Township, Winner of the $100.00 prize in the Flax Competition

Flax Competition

In order to improve flax growing in the Alvinston district and in Lambton County in general, Mr. T. A. G. Gordon, Manager of the Lambton Flax Company, generously donated Two Hundred dollars ($200.00) to be given as prizes in a Field Crop Competition to improve flax growing in the Alvinston district, the fields to be judged by a Representative of the Department of Agriculture.

Mr. F. K. Jackson, Director of the Flax Experimental Station, England, was present during the second judging of the fields. Mr. Jackson spoke very encouragingly of the prospects of flax growing in Lambton County. He considered conditions very similiar to the very best flax growing districts in Great Britain. He considered this season's crop compared very favorably with the best flax areas he had looked over this season. The quality of the fibre was the very best but he advised flax being pulled a little earlier, but owing to weather conditions and the labor problem this year, both in Great Britain and Canada, the very best that could be expected was bening done. very best that could be expected was betery best that could be expected was being done.

The late, wet, backward spring was no doubt somewhat discouraging to the flax growers of the County. Suitable weather for planting was very irregular, consequently some very late flax was sown.

The idea was to plant the flax in such a way that the fields for pulling would come in succession but the intense heat of the past month hastened the time for pulling. This again made greater demands upon our labor supply but on the whole the flax crop was harvested in very fair condition. Mechanical pullers are now being tested out in this County and are proving very successful. This

Children Often Seem to Pine Away And Ordinary Medicine Does Not Help Them

The health of children between the ages of twelve and eighteen years, particularly in the case of girls, is a source of serious worry to nearly every mother. The growth and development takes so much of their strength that in many cases they actually seem to be going into a decline. The appetite is fickle, brightness gives way to depression, there are headaches, fits of dizziness, palpitation of the heart at the least exertion, and sometimes fainting. The blood has become thin and watery and the sufferer must have something that will bring the blood back to its normal condition. At this stage no other medicine can equal Dr. Williams Pink Pills, Their whole mission is to make new, rich blood which reaches every part of the body, bringing back health, strength and energy. Miss Helena Taylor, West Toronto, says:—"Two years ago I was so bably run down with anaemia that some of my friends did not believe I would get better. I could not believe I would get better. I could not go upstairs without stopping to rest, suffered from headaches, loss of appetite, and for two months of time was confined to the house. I was under the care of a doctor, but the medicine I took did not help me in the least. A friend advised help me in the least. A friend advised my mother to give me Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and although I did not expect they would help me after the doctor's medicine had failed, I thought they might be worth trying. After taking two boxes there was such a marked change for the better that people asked me if I had changed doctors, and I readily told them the medicine that was helping me. I continued taking the pills unily told them the medicine that was helping me. I continued taking the pills untill I had used eight boxes, when my health was tully restored, and I have since enjoyed the best of health. I hope my experience may be the means of convincing some sickly person that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can restore them to health."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
