GREATER PRIVILEGES FOR EVERY BRITON

Rt. Hon. Herbert, Tells of Projected Law by Which Every British Citizen Will be Able to Vote in Any Part of the Empire

The Right Hon. Herbert Lewis Samuel, Postmaster-General of Great Britain, addressed the Canadian Club this afternoon at 1.30 o'clock on "The Relation of Various Parts of the Empire."

There were an exceptionally large number of members present, and the lucid exposition given by the British Cabinet Minister, to his topic was followed with the greatest appreciation by all present.

The speaker said that Montreal was as near to London as to Vancouver, and in some ways communication was easier with England than with British Columbia. Therefore he felt in arriving here that he was getting nearer home.

His object in coming here was to investigate Canadian conditions, and to confer with Mr. Peltier on post office matters, to see in what ways the bonds of empire could be drawn closer together. The cable rates, especially the press rates, had been greatly reduced, thus facilitating the exchange of news between both ends of the Atlantic.

UNIFORM NATURALIZATION BILL TO BE INTRODUCED.

Referring to effort to get a uniform naturalization act, he was able to inform them that the next session would see such a law introduced in the British Parliament, after consultation with all the sections of the Empire. By it a Briton who could vote in one place in the Empire could vote in every other part.

In seeking co-operation with the different parts of the Empire, the speaker disclaimed any effort on the part of the government to bring back the era of Downing street interference. They only wanted to work together on these measures that would conduce to the greater unity of Empire.

"The greatest service that the Government can do the Empire is to carry out practical and effective progress at home in the Mother Country and secure peace in our international relations abroad."

EXPORTS NEARLY DOUBLE IN LAST TEN YEARS.

Speaking of the agitation to change the fiscal system of some years ago the ground that Great Britain was falling behind in foreign trade. But, in spite of that their trade had moved from 283,000,000 pounds in 1902, to 487,000,000 pounds last year. There was still a great deal of misery, poverty and undeserved misfortune in Great Britain, and their efforts as a nation were now being directed toward finding a cure. The population of British Isles had in past twenty years increased by 8,000,000, practically the population of Canada.

The British system of education, the speaker claimed, to be second to none in the world, and as an evidence of their progress towards curing wrong social conditions, he instanced old age pensions insurance against sickness, old age and unemployment, laws compensating workmen suffering from accidents, regulation of workshops and houses, town planning, elimination of slums, workmen's dwellings, etc.

BRITAIN'S GREATEST SERVICE TO THE EMPIRE.

The greatest service Great Britain would do the self-governing Colonies as well as herself, said Mr. Samuel, was to get on terms of peace and amity with all the nations of the world.

"There may be some that hold the doctrine that war may be good for its own sake, because it evokes heroic qualities and bring out all the energies of a nation. It can never be good for its own sake. Napoleon's remark to Lord John Russell at Elba, 'War is a grand game, a fine occupation.' No utterance more profoundly immoral ever came from the lips of a great man. We do not wreck ships that lighthouses may show their courage or burn houses that firemen may display their bravery. There can be no intellectual justification for war. It would be a good thing if war could disappear forever from the records of mankind."

"But remember that, though we may work for the establishment of permanent peace we cannot act as though it has already arrived, and as secured. There is that utterance of George Meredith, 'England cannot afford to invest her all in the millennium and be ruined if it delays to come.'"

"The works of a watch are the most important part," said the speaker, "but that is no reason why we should let it go unworked."

He told of the effort made by the present Imperial Government to reduce naval expenditure. When they took power in 1905 the expenditure approximated £35,000,000. They were pledged to economy and for two years they managed to keep expenses for a navy down to £27,000,000. No reduction came from other departments in the same direction. The German Empire, on the other hand, increased her expenditure at an alarming rate. Therefore, the expenditure went up again, reaching £35,000,000 in 1909, £40,000,000 in 1910, £42,000,000 in 1911, £44,000,000 in 1912, and £46,000,000 in 1912.

The increase forced upon us was £15,000,000 in these years, fifty per cent higher than it had been six years ago, when it was fourteen shillings a head per population, including man, woman and child. Now we have an expenditure of £46,000,000 on the navy for a population of 46,000,000 people. I state these facts and draw no conclusions. I say nothing as to Canadian policy. That is for you to decide. The Canadians have eight million people and a naval expenditure of $2,000,000 per annum, twenty-five cents per head of population. I do not presume to say one word as to how or what extent Canada should assist in the defence of the Empire, because it is a subject of acute party dispute here."

SIR THOMAS SHAUGHNESSY MOVES VOTE OF THANKS

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy in moving a vote of thanks to the speaker, hoped that other British Cabinet ministers would follow his example, and become acquainted at first hand with Canadian conditions and Canadian people. He thought some method should be evolved by which the poverty-stricken classes in Great Britain and the large vacant spaces in the Dominion should be brought into some vital connection. As to imperialism there was scarcely a speech in which the word was not used with a great roll to the "R." He agreed that social conditions of the various sections of the Empire should be improved if discontent leading to disloyalty should be prevented, but he thought their imperialism should be given some practical form. While they participated in the advantages of Empire they had there were responsibilities attached to those advantages which they should assume.

Confirm Tales of Balkan Horrors

(Canadian Press.)

Paris, Oct. 23.—Troops of all the warring Balkan states committed atrocities, according to the evidence gathered by the International Carnegie Commission in its searching inquiry just ended. The conclusions of the commission are to be published in book form, with illustrations and facsimiles of a number of the documents on which the report is based. In view of the commission's desire to present an absolutely impartial account of its investigations, the text will not be divided into sections written by individual members, but issued as a whole, for which all the members of the commission take responsibility.

One of the noteworthy tasks was the minute examination and verification by the commissioners of the famous packet of letters from Greek soldiers captured by the Bulgarians, containing horrible descriptions of how Greek soldiers "avenge themselves" on Bulgarians who feel into their hands. The commission believes it has established the authenticity of these letters. Other documents testify that the Greeks occasionally made use of the forbidden dum-dum bullet, and will show also the misdeeds of Bulgarians and other belligerents. The inquiry did not extend to the Roumanians.

The commission collected material from every available source. After having visited officials, the commission went to the scenes of alleged atrocities and interrogated at length every class of witnesses, from soldiers who took part in the battles to women and children who were spectators and victims of the horrors. Some of the most important evidence taken by the commissioners is said to have been from children.

BULGARIANS THE GREATEST OFFENDERS.

While it was found that the Bulgarians had committed the greatest faults, the soldiers of other nations took part in the war were also guilty of many heinous acts. The commissioners appear to be of the opinion that, had other belligerents been roused to such a pitch of fury as were the Bulgarians they would not have acted much better, judging from what happened on certain occasions and by letters captured from Greek soldiers.

In Bulgaria, where the opinion is that Bulgaria has been abominably treated by the foreign press, and other belligerents scarcely blamed for their misdeeds, the fullest inquiry was invited and every possible facility for investigation was permitted to the commission. The members were permitted to question civilians and soldiers at will, and among the soldiers an endeavor was made to learn the psychological basis of the savagery and hatred shown by the Bulgarians toward their former allies.

The Bulgarians in their campaign against the Turks, behaved in an exemplary manner. It would appear that the Bulgarians who had borne the brunt of the war against the Turks, were exhausted at its end and immediately they had been promised this. When they were permitted their allies had acted in bad faith and had betrayed them, the Bulgarian fury burst forth uncontrolled. Turkey also gave the commission every facility for inquiry. The government of Greece did also, although a certain amount of opposition was encountered in that country.

SERBIA BLOCKED INQUIRY

Serbia did its utmost to prevent an unimpeded investigation and no inquiries were permitted except in the presence of a Serbian military attaché. This attitude reduced the commission's work in Serbia practically to nothing, and produced a bad impression on the commission, which in other places where it was allowed freedom to investigate, learned that faults were committed by all the belligerents.

Baron D'Estournelles de Constant, of the commission, says that the report will not dwell at great length on the distressing story of misdeeds in the Balkans, which, after all, do not prove so much against the belligerents as against war itself. The report will develop fully the economic aspects of the war, and have a good deal to say also upon the wonderful possibilities of development which lie before the Balkan peoples. The members of the commission were Baron D'Estournelles de Constant and Justin Godard, a member of the chamber of deputies for France, Prof. Wilhelm Paszowsky, of the University of Berlin, for Germany; Prof. Samuel Dutton, of Columbia University for the United States; H. N. Brailsford, for Great Britain; Herr Redlich, imperial councillor, for Austria, and M. Mitoukoff, the Liberal leader in the Duma, for Russia.

Grand Lodge A. F. & A. M. of Nova Scotia

The annual report of the proceedings of the most worshipful grand lodge A. F. & A. M. of Nova Scotia representing a vast amount of work on the part of the veteran secretary, Lieutenant Colonel Thomas Mowbray has been published, and is an interesting document, enabling any who peruse its contents to appreciate fully how useful is the Masonic activity—in how true and how broad a sense it is fraternal.

Beginning the year with a membership of 6,486, it was closed with a membership of 6,558, an increase of 72.

It is interesting to note that in the course of his reference to the Home for Aged Masons at Windsor (that is, aged Masons and their wives), Grand Master Christie, in his report, says: "I trust that some day we may be able to add to that designation, 'The Home for Aged Masons,' the orphan children of Masons. 'This Home,' says he, 'has proved all that its most ardent advocates hoped for—now in the province of Nova Scotia our beloved order has an establishment thoroughly equipped for the care and comfort of those who are under its roof."

"Such a home we have, and I am sure that I am voicing the sentiment of all brother masons in this jurisdiction when I say that we are proud of our home. . . . This home demonstrates the two cardinal virtues which our Order inculcates, namely, brotherly love and relief, and also emphasizes the fact that we believe in the brotherhood of man."

"View it from without! Stand on its spacious verandas and gaze at the beautiful landscape stretched out before you! Then enter the building, converse with inmates and with the matron and her efficient staff of assistants and after thoroughly inspecting the home, I am sure that you will come away with the words said to have been uttered by the Queen in Sheta, when she visited King Solomon and viewed the temple—'The hall has never been told.'"

The volume connects a large amount of foreign correspondence, giving much valuable information as regards the Order in various parts of the world, indicating how the golden chain of membership may be said to girdle the globe.

It also contains an excellent picture of William Medford Christie, K. C., grand master 1912-13.—Herald

"There should be systematic education and persistent efforts at pledge-signing."—Marion Lawrence, International General Secretary.

"A pledge is a visible sign of a purpose."—Z. E. Stevens, International Temperance Superintendent. Lesson—Romans 14:7-21. Golden Text, Romans 14: 21. Motto: "Be a Stepping Stone, not a Stumbling Block."—Romans 14: 13, Isaiah 57:14.

Make the lesson practical by discussing 20th century stumbling blocks. Bring every S. S. member face to face with present-day duty.—(1) "That no Man put a Stumbling-block in His Brother's Way." (2) "Take up the Stumbling-block out of the way of My People."

Let all our Sunday Schools observe the day by adopting the following:

1. Pledge-signing in all the departments.
2. Organize a W. R. A., or revitalize existing W. R. A.
3. Teach the International Temperance lesson.
4. A Union Temperance Rally in every community,—every S. S. uniting, the program to furnish Temperance instruction and inspiration, make it an opportunity for general pledge-signing, and the co-operation of the public schools and other bodies in sympathy with our aims. We unite to fight the enemy of our boys and girls, our homes and our country.

THE UNION MEN GET BIG SENTENCES.

U. M. W. of A. Officials in Nanaimo Will Spend Next Year in Jail For Rioting.

Vancouver, Oct. 23.—Judge Hewey today passed sentence on more than two score Manaimo rioters. The maximum sentences were two years. Many union officers will spend the next year in jail. Three men and two boys were sentenced to serve two years in the penitentiary; twenty-three were given imprisonment for one year and were fined $100 each, and eleven were sent to jail for three months and will have to pay a fine of $50 each. All sentences dating from the time of arrest.

Those sentenced to serve two years were:— J. J. Taylor, vice-president of the British Columbia Federation of Labor and vice-president of the Ladysmith local of the United Mine Workers of America; Samuel Guthrie, president of the Ladysmith union; Paul Deacon, a leader, and two boys, John Morgan, who was also given a jail term and William Simpson, Jr., son of a mine contractor.

Taylor and Guthrie pleaded guilty to having taken part in the disturbances, and gave as their excuse that they headed processions of the union miners which led to disturbing the peace.

A sentence of one year in jail and $100 was imposed upon John Allison, J. H. Armstrong, Carl Axelsson, E. F. Saugman, William Baul, Geo. Baul, George Baumgartner, Samuel Brightman, James Calley, Robert Gossar, Peter Galuska, H. H. Langdon, Duncan McKenzie, secretary of the Ladysmith union; Joseph Mairs, Jr., James Marshall, Charles Mortimer, Steve Merus, Steve Puyasich, George Potter, William Stackhouse, formerly a lieutenant in the United States army, and a prominent business man of Ladysmith; Martin Stoggar, James Wallace, Robert Walkshaw and Charles Yoyle.

In connection with those sentenced for participating in the riot George Pettigrow, international board member and organizer of the United Mine Workers of America, and Walter Nelson, a miner, was found guilty of intimidating John Weeks, a mine boss, and was sentenced to serve two months in jail.

CONFIDENCE IN MARITIME PROVINCES

By R. W. Elliott, Manager of the Nova Scotia Trust Company, in "The Busy East"

The past summer has witnessed a financial stringency in Canada such as has not been known for many years but it is a safe assertion to say that this has been felt in our own Maritime Provinces less than in any other portion of our Dominion. In no case has it been reported that commercial houses or institutions of good standing who have attended strictly to their legitimate functions of their business have suffered from the shortening of credit. The money stringency here has been more imaginary than real, and the holding back of funds for legitimate investment has been caused by the temporary wave of pessimism year after year that high prices will prevail, passed around originating from world wide causes, and individuals to refrain from making commitments that they would otherwise have done.

It is true that considerable money is tied up in Western lands and other speculations, but people are more and more learning that our own provinces down by the sea offer just as sound and safe inducement for the investment of capital as can be found anywhere; all that is wanted is a little more confidence; more faith that Nova Scotian brains, New Brunswick ability or Prince Edward Island integrity is of as high order as can be found in the world—and why should not they be! The splendid crop now being harvested in the west, and the admirably way in which the banks and railroads have prepared to cope with it, is causing a quick return of optimism over the whole country.

Advices all indicate that our own field crops are considerable above average. The apple crop of the Annapolis Valley, while below the yield of recent years is estimated at half a million barrels, but ten years ago such a crop was considered a bountiful harvest, and the probabilities this year are that high prices will prevail. Reports from the fishing fleets have been highly satisfactory and the output of coal and iron products is being kept up to a high standard.

Manufacturing industries on the whole appear to be doing well and companies recently organized are reporting good progress, and the business in hand shows that they are all well able to take their place in the industrial life of the country. It is now recognized as a certainty that the Maritime Provinces of Canada are gradually but surely coming into their own; and industrial development will continue to take place just to the extent that investors will live their confidence and support.

AMERICAN SOCIETY WOMAN FINED $1,750 FOR SMUGGLING.

New York, Oct. 23.—Mrs. Frank B. Wiborg, of Cincinnati, was fined $1,750 in the United States district court today for having failed to declare dutiable goods on her arrival here on the steamship Mauretania, with a petition asking for improvement in the condition of the County of the former president, and Frank A. Jail, both as regards the safe keeping of prisoners and for keeping prisoners ready to testify as character witnesses in her behalf.

Mrs. Wiborg, who is a niece of General Sherman, pleaded guilty through her attorney and threw herself upon the mercy of the court. The attorney asked that a prison sentence be not imposed on the ground of his client's poor health.

ANNOUNCEMENT

TO THE PUBLIC—
We have decided that on the 1st of November, 1913, we will commence a STRICTLY CASH BUSINESS.
In many ways we regret to make this change, as custom has established the credit system and it has gone to such an extreme that in some instances it is thought to be almost impossible to do business without the furnishing of the extra capital for the convenience of our customers.
The keenness of competition to-day created through the high cost of living and increased expenses of business, and the fact that other large houses are adopting the cash system in order to enable them to retail goods at lower prices, forces us to this decision.
It may seem hard to some of our patrons to feel that the firm they have dealt with for years have taken this step, but we think that after a little consideration, even these friends will see the mutual benefit to be derived from a CASH SYSTEM.
Under the credit system you are not only supporting your own family, but assisting to support those who are not willing to be self supporting, in addition to helping pay the book-keeping and interest on money at present tied up in unpaid accounts, etc. While under the cash system we will be able to keep a larger and more modern assortment of goods in stock AT PRICES THAT WILL APPEAL TO YOU.
We trust that you may see your way clear to still continue your business with us, in any case do not withdraw your patronage without first giving us a few months trial. We will take all kinds of produce as cash, balancing each transaction as it occurs.
Again thanking you for the many favors you have shown us from time to time in the past, and assuring you that we will endeavor to fill all your orders under the new system to the very best of our ability. We are

Harvest of Death in Middleton
(Outlook.)
The grim reaper has been busy this week in Middleton. His Harvest of death began with the demise of Mrs. John L'ingard, which occurred at an early hour on Monday. S. Burpee Dodge and Manning McGregor both died early Monday evening.
Mrs. L'ingard had been a sufferer from diabetes for a year past, but the disease did not assume an acute form until a couple of weeks ago.
She is survived by a husband and three daughters, Mrs. Ellsworth Bezanon, of South Williamston; Mrs. W. A. Slauwhite, of Bridgetown and Miss Blanche of Middleton.
The funeral service on Tuesday was conducted by Rev. N. J. Ritcey and Rev. Jos. Gaetz.
Mrs. L'ingard was a woman of many excellent qualities who is mourned by a circle of relatives and friends.
MANNING MCGREGOR.
Everyone in Middleton feels bereaved in the death of Manning McGregor. For everyone loved the quiet and kindly old gentleman who spent the most of his ninety-one years in and near our town.
A quaint humor, a tireless industry, faithfulness to religious duties, a love for the Bible school and a sympathetic disposition were characteristics of the deceased.
The immediate surviving relatives are four daughters—Mrs. J. A. Gates, Middleton; Mrs. Norman Layton, Truro; Mrs. Burditt, Middleton and Mrs. Neely, Vancouver—two sons—John and Charles, Oakland, Cal., and two sisters, Mrs. Young of Wilmot and Mrs. Rumsey of Kingston Village.
The burial took place on Wednesday afternoon, Rev. S. S. Poole conducting the service.
S. BURPEE DODGE.
For several years S. Burpee Dodge has been in poor health, suffering from heart trouble and having occasional attacks of illness.
On Saturday last he had a bad spell, but attended to his duties about the farm. On Sunday and Monday he was able to be about the house but was not feeling right.
About 7.30 on Monday evening he complained of feeling very tired, so he laid down upon the side of the bed. He was so quiet that Mrs. Dodge thought he had fallen asleep so did not disturb him for a few minutes. When she attempted to awaken him she found that he had passed peacefully away as if in slumber.
The funeral was held on Thursday, being conducted by Pastor Poole and the body was laid to rest in Pine Grove Cemetery.
The immediate survivors are a widow, a son Aubrey, living in New Haven, Conn., who is at present ill of pleurisy, and a daughter Minnie, living in Lawrence, Mass., who missed the steamer for Yarmouth, but who arrived via St. John yesterday in time for the funeral.
For his strict integrity, his quiet good nature and his obliging disposition, Mr. Dodge was held in the highest esteem, and his memory will long be cherished.

Mr. Wm. Hayes is very ill at the time of writing.
There will be service in the Baptist church, Sunday, Nov. 2, 3 p.m.
Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Foster, Jr., on the birth of a son, Oct. 25.
Mr. Martell of Halifax, accompanied by Mr. George Snow of Hampton, was at this place of late testing eyes and fitting glasses.
The prolonged wet weather has hindered some of our farmers from harvesting late grain and digging their potatoes. We are indeed hoping for fine weather now.
Recent visitors at the Bay Side House—Mr. R. A. Martell, Halifax; Mr. George Snow, Hampton; Mr. Charles Reed, Wilmot; Mr. Gill, Optician, Truro.

THE SCOTTISH BEADLE

(By T. B. M'Corckindale.)

In Scotland, the very land where in all his varieties he reached full perfection, the beadle is now as extinct as the doo. But his memory is green and over his grave the genial Dean Ramsay and that humorous, kind-hearted and altogether delightful gossip of literature, Dr. John Brown, of "Rab and His Friends," have reared a monument more enduring than brass. As long as the witty dean and the discursive physician are read we may say of the beadle, "Non omnis morietur" (He shall not die.) To be sure, the Jeems of the latter writer was hardly a beadle in the full sense of the word, but only a doorkeeper. Still, he had all the instincts of the true genius, and did credit to the ecclesiastical order to which he belonged. His delightful biographer tells us he had a kindly yet uncouth humor, which no man aspiring to the honorable office of a beadle can well be without.

"Can I get it out?" asked an unfortunate man, staring ruefully at the half-crown (a coin worth about sixty cents) he had inadvertently thrown into the church plate, instead of the usual bawbee. "Can I no get it out?"

"Na na," said Jeems. "In once, in forever."

"A weel, a weel," granted the disappointed man, "I'll get credit for it in heaven." To which Jeems sardonically replied: "Na, na, ye'll jist get credit for the penny."

Jeems' sardonic humor is also seen in the delight with which he ripped up the bodices of "thae young hizzies" (those young girls), who on account of their bitter yerkin (tight lacing) were seized with syncope in the crowded church in which "Rab's" father preached. Who that has ever read it can forget that description of Jeems, with his huge terrific face, and his open gully (big knife) in his hand bending over the unconscious girl, and saying to "the young doctor": "Wull oo ripp'er up noo?" which, being interpreted, means: "Will we cut her stay lace noo?"

But it is in a country parish that we find the full-blown specimen, the beadle royal, as we might call him. He is a man of consequence in the parish, and his intimate and familiar intercourse with the minister gives him a reflected glory, which, unlike Moses, is not by any means careful to conceal. At the same time he is too pawky ("knowing") to make his dignity offensive to others. His duties are multifarious. He cleans the church, rings the bell for public worship, "takes up the books," and dies the graves in the churchyard. His remuneration as grave-digger is generally five shillings for each interment. Where the parish is a thinly-populated one, and a healthy one, he cannot rely greatly on this source of income.

"And, John," said a minister to a man he was about to engage as beadle, "you will have a fee of five shillings for each interment."

"Oo, ay, sir," murmured the candidate, with the suspicion that the parish was neither overcrowded nor unhealthy, "and will there be ony thing like steady wark at the grave-diggin'?"

"Steady wark!" exclaimed the astonished divine. "Mon, ye wud bury the hale parish in a fortnicht."

We knew a beadle, a cantankerous old character he was, who had been tally reserved a lair in the churchyard for his minister when he should need the last offices the beadle could pay him. Along with the minister he was looking over the churchyard for a lair in which to bury a parishioner who had died. "This will do, I think, Tosh," said the minister, pointing to a certain spot. To which his quadrator replied: "Na, it'll no; that's the place I'm reservin' for yoursel'!"

It was on Sunday when he took up the books that the beadle was most impressive, and most deeply conscious of the dignity of his office. To take up the books—the pulpit Bible and Psalm book—to enter the pulpit and read to the minister, to steeek him in when he had ushered him into the pulpit—what ordinary mortal was able for these things?

Once we knew of a beadle who absolutely refused to steeek in the minister. For a generation or more the beadle had occupied that honorable position in the same parish. He had watched the boys of the house grow up until one was at length licensed to wag his head in the pulpit. By great dint of effort he was persuaded to preach for his father, the parish minister. "But, Pat," said the old ecclesiastical functionary, "you maun shave that beard, or I'll na steeek you in." Pat refused to part with his beard, and the beadle refused to steeek him in, saying he "wudna' steeek in that hairy wratch."

It is said that a beadle once exercised his right as critic upon one who was suffering from the juvenile disease of swelled head. The youth, fresh from college, was eloquent over his own qualifications as an extempore speaker. Extempore preaching being the exception rather than the rule in Scotland, the beadle began to be jealous for the character of his own minister. But he bided his time. On Sunday morning the young minister having got through what are unworthily called the "preleminaries," he addressed himself to the sermon. By way of advertising his independence of a manuscript he ostentatiously closed the Bible. But alas! in his case, too, pride went before destruction, and an haughty look before a fall. He lost the thread of his discourse, which any speaker might do, and what was more, he could not find it again, while a practiced speaker would have done. Rushing from the pulpit to the vestry, he met the beadle, who received him with a glittering eye. "Ma lad," he said, if ye had gaen up as ye've come doon, ye'd hae come doon as ye gaed up." Then which nothing could have been more true or more severe.

Another illustration to bring out the "pawkiness" of the beadle, and the quiet way in which a true Scot can deal with a difficult situation will find this paper. A young minister newly come to his parish, but unfamiliar with country life, and ignorant of what work a man, even though a beadle, could do, detailed his duties to one whom he wished to fill the double office of minister's man and beadle, a very common arrangement: "And John, you'll take in the coals and split the wood, and milk the cows, and keep the walks clean, and put in the crop in the glebe and garden."

"An' what kind o' land is yer glebe sir? Is't clay or loam?"

"I'm told it is very fine loam, John—very fine loam."

"I'm blide (glad) to hear it, sir, for gin it had been clay I'm feared I might hae been expectet to mak' bricks in my spare time." History does not tell the results of the negotiations.

But, as we said at the beginning, the kindly, couthy, pawky beadle, with his little touch of pomposity, has passed away. While your true beadle is born, not made, he needs an environment in which to grow. It may be that they are still born, but even Scotland no longer affords an atmosphere in which they can reach maturity. We preach at the invitation of a city brother in a Glasgow church. As we hunt about for the vestry, door an immaculate being in full evening dress, and clean-shaven as to his face—no "hairy wratch" is he—descends upon us. "This way, sir, this way." We follow humbly, and are at length ushered into the vestry. The sublime mortal stirs the fire, takes our overcoat, hangs our cassock on a chair near the fire, to take off the chill or damp of the morning air. He then offers to let us see the church and pulpit, carefully points out to us unexpected pitfalls on the way, such as steps in dark corners, and brings us back to the vestry, where he offers to help us to robe. We murmur we will manage ourselves. "All right, sir. The organist will be here immediately." Spick and span, and looking far more solemn than it is possible for any human being to be, he returned on the stroke of the hour to the pulpit. We know what we are following—not a fine, venerable beadle but a Glasgow waiter! The day's duties done, he dexteriously folds our gown and cassock, helps us with our overcoat with a nimbleness born of daily habit, brushes our hat and clothes, and turns us out as immaculate as himself. So that we feel if men got their due, we would slip one of the current coins of the realm into that ready palm.

We miss more than we can tell the kindly greeting, and the kindly, though perhaps more uncouth, attentions of the auld bethral who has gone over to the majority, and whose like we shall never see again.

VOLTRINO IS A DANGEROUS DERELICT

Abandoned Liner is Floating in the Path of Navigation.

Washington, Oct. 22.—Revenue Cutter headquarters was notified today that European liners had reported that the hulk of the burned steamer Volturino was inviting another disaster by floating as a derelict in the path of navigation.

The warning in a telegram from Charles S. Hurd, of New York City, who urged immediate action looking to the destruction of the derelict.

Assistant Secretary Newton replied that the Volturino was abandoned at a place considerably eastward of the limits of the operations of the revenue cutter service.

"The service," Mr. Newton added, "does not undertake the destruction of derelicts eastward of the line drawn from Sable Island to the Bermuda Islands. It does not appear that any obligation rests upon this service to destroy a foreign derelict in mid ocean."

The steamer Volturino was still afloat and afloat on October 14, five days after flames broke out in her forward compartments, according to officers of the steamer St. Louis, which arrived at New York, Saturday. The St. Louis passed five miles north of what was left of the Volturino late Tuesday afternoon. The burning vessel had drifted about forty miles from the spot where she first caught fire.

LLOYD GEORGE OUTLINES LAND BILL

Its Object is to Free Land From Landlordism, and Get People Back on it.

Swindon, Eng., Oct. 22.—Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George this afternoon dotted the i's and crossed the t's of the speech in which he inaugurated the Government's land campaign at Bedford on Oct. 11. He then said that it was his object to free British land from landlordism, and get the people back on it.

The two purposes the Liberal Government had set itself, he said today, were to attract and to retain the rural population on the land, and to devise means to develop both the quantity and the quality of the total agricultural products of the British Isles. Everything, he asserted, would be subordinated to the attainment of these two objects.

As the first step, said the Chancellor, it was proposed to establish a ministry of lands with control and supervision of all questions dealing with the users of land both in town and country, and the functions of the present board of agriculture would be transferred to the new ministry.

The Government, he said, intended to take the land out of chancery. Hereafter if a landlord found that "some silly settlement" hampered his scheme for improving his land he could apply to the ministry of lands which would enable him to override the barrier.

The new ministry, he continued, would operate through commissioners who would act in a judicial capacity and have the same power to reduce rents on small farms, as the Scottish courts now possess.

Large farmers also would have the right to appeal to the commissioners for a reduction of rent if the action of the state caused a rise in the wages of the farm laborer.

J. W. Copeland, of Dayton, Ohio, purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for his boy who had a cold, and before the bottle was all used the boy's cold was gone. Is that not better than to pay a five dollar doctor's bill? For sale by all dealers.

ENTIRE SYSTEM OF C. P. R. MAY BE ELECTRIFIED.

Milwaukee, Oct. 21.—The entire system of the Canadian Pacific Railway may be electrified. This was the declaration yesterday of Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the road, as he started for Winnipeg to inspect sites there for new terminals. The work now being started in the Rocky Mountains toward the location of electric instead of steam locomotives over several divisions is merely an experiment, he declared, preliminary to the installation of electricity throughout the system if the experiment proves successful. The Rocky Mountains Division, where experiment work is being done, presents every problem of handling traffic known to railroading, and if electricity succeeds there, its universal adoption on the entire system is certain. Freight and passenger trains alike are to be handled by electricity.

PROPRIETORS AND PUBLISHERS.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1913.

During the month of October the Jews throughout the world celebrate their New Year's Day and also their Annual Day of Atonement. The latter is to them a special time of reconciliation, for according to the Talmud, "without reconciliation with your fellowmen, there can be no reconciliation with God." In many places men and women among them may be seen, at the banks of some river confessing their sins and casting them, as it were, into the waters of oblivion.

These events frequently serve to bring to view the charge that Christian children have been crucified by the Jews at this season. And it seems, the papers have lately more than the usual amount of discussion upon this subject, probably because of the report of a ritual murder of a Russian boy by a Jew, who has since been found innocent.

It is astonishing how such accusations persist. They were frequently made during the Middle Ages. Indeed no charges were too dark or horrible to be circulated and believed against this persecuted people. When a king wanted money to prosecute his wars, or reward his lieges, or satisfy his love of luxury, it was an easy thing to forge a charge against unoffending Jews, and then in the name of Christianity, and by cruelest methods, compel them to pour their money into the depleted treasury. Such methods were adopted on many occasions. A familiar instance is recorded as taking place in England during the reign of the third Henry. It was reported that a Christian boy, eight years of age, called Hugh of Lincoln, had been crucified. The story was that the child had gone to play in a Jewish house, and was put to death as mentioned. The body was buried secretly, but the earth refused to cover the dead, and the body was thrown into a well. The Jew, under promise of forgiveness, made it is said, a confession of the deed. But when the King heard of it he ordered the execution of the man. He was dragged to the gallows, tied by the feet to the tail of a horse, and "his body and soul delivered to the demons of the air." Ninety-nine Jews charged with being his accomplices, were cast into dungeons. Further, all the Jews of England were declared by the King's inquest to be sharers in the guilt, and at the appeal of the mother, eighteen other Jews who were known to be rich, were hung on new gallows, and their wealth confiscated. And twenty more were held in the Tower of London, to await the same fate. Finally, the boy was canonized and made a saint, and wrought many miracles which increased the revenue of the church.

Such was the story, and it was verified by Chancer in the following stanzas, which represent the mother seeking in the Jews' quarter to find her boy.

"My bonny Sir Hew, my pretty Sir Hew, I pray thee to me speak. "O lady, rin to the deep draw-well, "Gin ye your son would seek. "Lady Helen ran to the deep draw-well, "And knelt upon her knee; "My bonny Sir Hew, so ye be here, "I pray thee speak to me.

DEATHS— At Lawrentestown, Oct. 25, Judson Daniels, aged 23 years. At Clarence, Abigail, wife of Capt. Robt. Stone, aged 78 years.

Three new sleeping cars have recently been added to the rolling stock of the I. R. C. from the Pullman Company, of the latest and most improved type. They bear the names of Shelburne, Rossignol and Caledonia.

They belong to an age of extreme and blind credulity. They do not bear the light of modern investigation, and ought not to be revived today, except to be indignantly repudiated.

Events lately transpiring in the State of New York have brought "Tammany" prominently to view and originated in many minds the question as to what is exactly meant by Tammany. It is a Society incorporated by the Legislature of New York in 1805, under the name of Tammany or the Columbian Order. Tammany being the name of an Indian Chief, who was regarded by many as a sage. To harmonize with the name, the place of meeting was called a "Wigwam," its chief officer a "sachem," and other Indian terminology employed in its proceedings. The Society, however, existed before incorporation, being established in 1789, "for the purpose of affording relief to the indigent and distressed members of said association, their widows and orphans, and others who may be found proper objects of their charity. But, Tammany has also had a political significance, being regarded as a branch of the great Democratic party. It has enrolled in its membership many men of good reputation in all the professions, and has advocated much useful legislation. But, as has happened with other societies, civil and religious, it has contained men who have been successful in manipulating its great opportunities for the advancement of their own selfish schemes. By combining their efforts and pandering to the worst elements of democracy, they have secured their votes and controlled appointments to office in the city and State, and made themselves in many instances millionaires.

This was notably the condition under the infamous Tweed regime, and in the view of great numbers of the citizens of the United States, this is the condition at the present time.

HYMENEAL

CHUTE-WILKINSON

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. John Wilkinson, Bridgetown, on Wednesday last, when their only daughter, Emma Selina, was united in marriage to Mr. Murray Potter Chute of Bridgetown. Promptly at eleven o'clock, to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March (Mrs. A. R. Bishop at the organ, accompanied by Mr. Ralph Brittain, violin,) Miss Wilkinson, leaning upon the arm of her father, entered the parlor where Rev. B. J. Porter conducted the marriage ceremony. The contracting parties were unattended. In a white silk dress with the conventional bridal veil and orange blossoms, the bride was most becomingly attired. The halls and parlors of the home were made bright with the season's flora, while over the gate leading into the house an arch of spruce and hemlock, decorated with bunting had been erected. Following the marriage ceremony a sumptuous wedding lunch was served, after which the happy couple started upon their wedding tour. Driving by team to Clementsport, the day following they took the west bound D.A.R. for Digby, St. John and other points of interest. The high esteem in which both bride and groom are held was shown by the many valuable gifts received. Among these gifts was that of the bride's father—two shares in the Raynor, Harlow, Clark Black Fox Company. Providence Methodist Church, of which the bride is a valuable member, presented her with a handsome quarter oak writing desk and chair, while her Sunday School Class assembled at the home the evening previous to the wedding and made their loved teacher a wedding "shower" of useful gifts. A host of friends join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Chute a long and happy wedded life.

Golden Wedding

(Annapolis Spectator.) A very interesting event took place on Friday evening last, the 16th inst. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Spurr in Round Hill, when their parents Mr. and Mrs. James Spurr commemorated their golden wedding, fifty years ago these two with mutual ledges and trusting hearts interlocked heart and hand together. Two hearts and two lives became united in the long-ago-no-longer twain but one. It was a source of pleasure and happiness to see this couple hale, hearty and happy, celebrating an event which is granted to very few.

Besides relatives and friends from Perotte Moschelle and Round Hill, there were present of their children: Howard of Vancouver, Mrs. Wilson of Newton, Mass., Thomas of Moschelle, Halifax, and John who remains at home. The remaining members of the family were unfortunately prevented from joining in the celebration. Congratulations were the order of the evening. Presents were brought forth, among which was a purse of gold. It was a happy party that was assembled, everyone entering into the spirit of the occasion, and thoroughly enjoying the conversation and the games. A very dainty collation was served during the course of the evening.

May the hallowed memories of Mr. and Mrs. Spurr's long happy and useful life, and this day, October 16th, hover around them as a spell from heaven which earth can never break and earth can never sever, until their intermingled lives go down like the setting sun in its golden bed and rise in a better land to set no more.

"Still may you live for those who love you For those who know you true, For the heaven that smiles above you, For the good that you can do, For the cause that needs assistance, For the wrongs that need resistance, For the future if the distance, For the crown you keep in view."

THE EGYPTIAN EGG OVEN.

A few days ago the cable news was published all over this continent that from the ruins of ancient Egypt there had been dug up an incubator for hatching eggs that had lain buried in the sand for many centuries. Surprise was expressed that this essentially modern industry of hatching eggs by artificial means should now be shown to have been practised on a large scale in such far off times. As a matter of fact, it is only the method, and not the art, which is new. While the western races have laboriously evolved their own machines for this purpose, the art of artificial hatching had been practised for upwards of 5,000 years in Egypt, China and other Asiatic countries. In fact, the industry is an enormous one. It is estimated that at the present time in Lower Egypt there are several hundreds of these hatching establishments and that in many cases they have a capacity for 4,000 eggs at one time. A few years ago the American Consul-General in Egypt estimated that upwards of 90,000,000 chickens were hatched annually in the egg ovens of that country. The incubators we use are mere toys compared to those of the Egyptians.

They use "ovens" for the purpose.

A recent visitor to one of these ovens says that it consisted of four hatching chambers, each of these chambers about four by four yards, being capable of holding up to 6,000 eggs at a time, and accommodating each season about 180,000 eggs. Even this was a small oven, the majority consisting of from ten to twenty hatching chambers, each four by four yards. The temperature is regulated by manipulating the fire (often the fire is allowed to go out for a few hours) twice each day and by regulating the ventilation. The fuel usually used is wheat or bean straw, chopped and mixed with a certain amount of animal manure. The upper chamber is consequently full of choking smoke, and there is always a lot of smog in the hatching chamber. The mud-brick walls are made very thick, and doubtless retain the heat well and prevent sudden changes of temperature. Every time the eggs are turned care is taken to remove those which have been immediately under the fire, and place them in the centre of the chamber. This is said to be a most important point. The success attending the industry and the colossal manner in which it is conducted, suggests that the poultry farmers of Canada, even though they may learn all that Macdonald College or the Experimental Farm at Ottawa can teach them about poultry, are but on the threshold of the subject.—Daily Telegraph.

DANGEROUS KIND-HEARTEDNESS

In Austria it behooves one to be careful when rescuing people from death. Not long ago a Viennese tradesman, while taking an evening stroll, found a man hanging from a tree. He promptly cut the rope, and by taking strenuous measures brought the would-be suicide back to consciousness. His act of benevolence was rewarded with a summons for interfering the rescue so carelessly as to raise severe bruises on the body when it fell to the ground. The court decided that the defendant was liable under article 335 of the Austrian code which enacts that any person injuring another through want of due care must pay a fine and damages.—The Argonaut.

When you have a bad cold you want the best medicine obtainable so as to cure it with as little delay as possible. Here is a druggist's opinion: "I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for fifteen years," says Enos Lollar of Saratoga, Ind., "and consider it the best on the market." For sale by all dealers. Minard's Liniment cures Burns, etc.

Bear River

S. S. Bear River sailed from St. John on Monday. Misses Olive and Irene Purdy went to Halifax on Wednesday to spend the winter. Mrs. Hibbert and child of Port Williams, are guests at Mrs. Flora A. Purdy's. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nichols returned from their Boston trip on Saturday. Mrs. Ella Purdy leaves for Fall River on Wednesday, where she will spend the winter with her brother, Mr. Vorhese Harris. Mrs. Eliza Vidito passed away at her sister's, Mrs. Wm. Fadden, on Sunday morning, aged seventy-three, after an illness of two weeks. The funeral took place on Tuesday. Rev. A. Daniel, pastor of the Methodist church, of which deceased was a member, conducted the service.

WEDDING AT VICTORY

A quiet and impressive ceremony was solemnized at the home of Mr. Jubal Kaulbach, Victory, on Wednesday evening, Oct. 22nd, when his daughter, Miss Annie, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Maurice Benson of Bear River. Rev. A. Daniel was the officiating clergyman. Mrs. Daniel presided at the organ. Promptly at seven o'clock the contracting parties entered the room, standing through the service under an arch of evergreen and autumn leaves. None but the immediate friends of the families were present. The bride looked charming in a gown of cream silk, her going away dress being dark blue serge with hat to match. Immediately after lunch the happy couple, showered with confetti and rice, were conveyed by automobile to their home in Bear River. The presents were numerous and valuable. A box of sterling tea spoons was presented by the church of whose choir the groom is a popular member. A host of friends extend good wishes to the happy pair.

Some Phases of London Life Described by a Canadian

(Montreal Daily Telegraph)

London, Sept., 1913.—The visitor has a strange experience as he approaches London for the first time. Looking over the map in his guide book he feels as if in some former existence this was all familiar ground to him. He surely has ruffled it in East Cheap with Prince Hal and Falstaff, he has visited Baker street with Sherlock Holmes, he has walked down Fleet street with Dr. Johnson; the Marble Arch and Rotten Row are familiar to him, he has often taken "tea on the terrace" with friends in political romances. He is certain that he could find his way to Quilp's wharf without assistance and that he has more than once pulled up the sluggish Thames in the grim boat of Gaffer Hexam. London is sometimes called "the capital of the world," but it is a special sense the capital of the English speaking world, the Home City of all British peoples. London in history and romance has become part of the warp and woof of the mental being.

IMPOSSIBLE TO DESCRIBE

To describe London is, of course, impossible. It is bewildering, wonderful, stupendous, like every great city it is a study in contrasts, poverty and wealth, good and evil, light and darkness struggle there; and react the one upon the other. A large proportion of Londoners live out of town. Communication is both cheap and rapid and people in medium circumstances can enjoy the bracing and yet balmy air of suburbs like Harrow and Wealdstone without hindrance to their work. In America we sometimes excuse our bad roads with the plea that many of them have been laid within the last few years. But these new suburbs of London were fields yesterday, and yet the roads, macadamized and tarred, are almost as smooth and as clean as a dinner table. Semi-detached houses, each with a fine strip of garden can be obtained in these suburbs at a very moderate rental. And these advantages nowadays are being placed within the reach of almost everyone. The Hampstead garden suburb lets sell contained cottages at a rental of less than seven dollars monthly. They are neat and beautiful themselves and amid beautiful surroundings. Indeed nothing is more certain than that in America can still learn many things by sitting at the feet of our Mother Country. There are, of course still miles upon miles of mean streets in London. In the East and the South-East for instance, they stretch before the eye like an endless dingy and sordid sea. But even here there is much to minister to hopefulness. The churches of all denominations are laboring very faithfully and the settlements and their various developments are instinct with life. A visit to the Browning Settlement in Walworth, for instance, shows a band of workers drawn from many grades of society united in numberless enterprises of mutual helpfulness. Mr. Herbert Stead superintends the work. In his zeal and warm humanity he reminds one a good deal of his illustrious father. All good things—from the regulation of the traffic of London to the promotion of the world's peace—receive the interest and cooperation of this settlement.

MANY PLACES OF GREAT INTEREST

A visit to "Central Hall, Westminster," may not be amiss. This splendid Methodist Cathedral stands not far from the Abbey. The crowds attending show that church going is not altogether out of fashion in the old lands, and, upon the Sunday night on which we drop in a sermon full of insight and spiritual power by the Rev. George Jackson, of Toronto, heartens us Canadians with the knowledge that we also have our prophets. Among the most amazing things in London is, of course, its traffic, vehicular and pedestrian, and more amazing still is the manner in which it is handled by the sturdy and ever courteous "bobby." The Canadian visitor should, of course, call at the High Commissioner's office in Victoria street. Here he can refresh himself with some news in the (Montreal) Daily Telegraph, and if he registers, he will probably "get his name in the paper," along with those of other Canadian notables. And, of course, there are all the wonderful things in London which no visitor can afford to miss. There is the Tower, the Royal Exchange, the Temple, the Abbey, the Houses of Parliament, the priceless treasures of the art galleries and museums, the palaces, parks, statues and memorials.

PATRIOTISM STRONG IN THE GREAT CITY.

Curiously enough the prevailing impression which one carries away so often a few days he leaves the rush and roar of London behind him is neither that produced by its poverty or its tremendous vitality. It is a deep sense of the splendid tale of duty and work well done, of self-sacrifice, patriotism which the history of the great city embodies and which is still its very life. On Gordon's monument in St. Paul's it is recorded how "Gave his ways and in every place he showed his strength to the weak, his substance to the poor, his sympathy to the suffering, and his heart to God." It not always so fully and consistently, yet one feels that this sense of dedication is really the keynote of London and so of the Empire. The courage of her soldiers and sailors, the generosity and enterprise of her merchants, the devotion of her statesmen and philanthropists, the vision of her artists and men of letters all vibrate to the same great theme. One even finds it in those grim old Norman and Plantagenet Kings whose shades still seem to haunt the Tower, the Abbey and the Hall. Take them all in all they "played the game," loyally and well, and the glory of England today is not in its wealth nor in the strength of its forces on earth, air, or water, but in the fact that all over the world through good or evil report, the same brave "game" is still being played.—J. W. R.

$12,000,000 SETTLEMENT AND $2,000,000 PRESENT.

Baltimore, Oct. 16.—Despite the efforts of the family to keep it quiet, it leaked out yesterday, the information coming from a reliable source, that Henry C. Frick had settled up on his son $12,000,000 as a wedding present, while the bride, who was Miss Francis S. Dixon, of this city, received a cheque for $2,000,000 as a present from her new father-in-law. The bridegroom received his settlement some time before the ceremony. For some days prior to the ceremony at Old St. Paul's Church yesterday it had been rumored that the elder Mr. Frick was to give the bride a handsome cash present, the figure being placed at $1,000,000. This, it now appears, was only half the truth.

So Other Sufferers Will Take "Fruit-a-tives" And Be Cured

Gratitude—heartfelt gratitude—prompted this letter. Madame Langlois was so thankful to "Fruit-a-tives" for restoring her to health and strength, that she gladly allowed her letter to be published.

ST. ROMUALD, QUE., SEPT. 23rd, 1912. "I have pleasure in stating that I have been cured of severe Dyspepsia and Chronic Constipation by using "Fruit-a-tives." I was a terrible sufferer from severe Constipation for many years, and I tried every remedy I heard of, and also was treated by physicians without any permanent benefits. Then I tried "Fruit-a-tives," and this fruit medicine has completely cured both the Constipation and Indigestion. I cannot praise "Fruit-a-tives" enough!"

POLES AND CROSS-TIES. Quantities Purchased in Canada in 1912. In 1912, there were 608,556 poles purchased by Canadian railways, and telegraph, telephone and light and power companies, according to a recent bulletin of the Forestry Service, Ottawa. This represents an outlay of $1,113,524, making the average cost per pole $1.83. The total number of poles purchased and the average price per pole increased somewhat from corresponding figures for 1911.

Cedar made up 86 per cent of the total number of poles cut, the western cedar being increasingly used for this purpose. Balsam, fire, tamarack and spruce made up the balance of the output, the greater part of the poles being 20 and 25 feet in length. In 1912, there were purchased 12,275 cross-ties representing a value of $1,113,524. This represents the large increase of 48.1 per cent over the number of ties purchased in 1911, due probably to the extensive railway construction now going on.

Jack pine ties made up 36.5 per cent of the total with an average value of $9.44. Cedar is second on the list with an average cost at point of purchase of forty-five cents, followed by Douglas fir, averaging 30 cents per tie. In all twenty-one different species of wood were used.

Ties treated with preservatives made up 8.5 per cent of the number purchased. These were chiefly hardwoods, it being found more economical to treat the heavier, stronger woods, than those which are liable to fail from mechanical wear before they have time to decay. Some of the eastern railways are now using hardwood ties exclusively. Dept. of the Interior, Ottawa, Canada.

THE OLD CRIMINAL AND THE YOUNG.

A noted preacher once said to me: "Oh, give up this prison business. It's too hard on you, too wearing and depressing." And I replied: "Not all the preachers in the land could teach me spiritually what these convicts are teaching me, or give me such faith in the ultimate destiny of the human soul." Perhaps my experience has been exceptional, but it was the older criminals, the men who had sowed their wild oats and come to their senses, who most deepened my faith in human nature. I am glad to quote in this connection the words of an experienced warden of a large Eastern penitentiary who says: "I have yet to find a case where I believe that crime has been taught by older criminals to younger ones. I believe, on the contrary, that the usual advice of the old criminal to the boys is: 'See what crime has brought me to, and when you get out of here behave yourselves.'"

My whole study of "old-timers" verifies this statement; moreover, I am inclined to believe that in very many instances the criminal impulses exhaust themselves shortly after the period of adolescence, when the fever of antagonism to all restraint has run its course, so to say; and I believe the time is coming when this branch of the subject will be scientifically studied.

It is greatly to be regretted that the juvenile court, now so efficient in rescuing the young offender from the criminal ranks, had not begun its work before the present severe discrimination, before the second or third offence had blotted hope from the future of so many of the younger men in our penitentiaries; for the indeterminate sentence under the board of pardons has done little to mitigate the fate of those whose criminal records show previous convictions. From "The Man Behind the Bars," by Winnifred Louise Taylor, in the November Scribner.

TRAVELLING INCOGNITO. An American travelling in Europe engaged a courier. Arriving at an inn in Austria, the man asked his servant to enter his name in accordance with the police regulations of that country. Some time after the man asked the servant if he had complied with his orders.

"Yes, sir," was the reply. "How did you write my name?" asked the master.

"Well, sir, I can't pronounce it," answered the servant, "but I copied it from your portmanteau, sir." "Why, my name isn't there. Bring me the book." The register was brought, and instead of the plain American name of two syllables, the following entry was revealed: "Monsieur Warranted Solid Leather." Minard's Liniment relieves Neuralgia.

AUCTION ROOM FRAUDS.

How People are Fleeced by Them Daily in London.

(London Express) Two "country cousins" came out of a London "auction room" a few days ago the poorer by £2 10s., and the richer by a "real gold" watch, with a worthless guarantee, a "guinea" safety razor, and some valuable experience. As they went away two decoys whose bids had inflated the prices of the various articles walked into the street, and presently walked back into the auction room to bid again.

That is an example of a swindle that is being worked successfully all over London. A reporter who played the part of an unsophisticated bidder in three of these auction rooms yesterday gained a good idea of the methods by which unwary passers-by are fleeced.

Practically all the auctioneers use the same methods. As soon as two or three likely victims have joined the decoys round the rostrum they are tempted by the offer of tie-pins, brooches, and penknives, if only they will trust the auctioneer with a penny. The tie-pins or other articles of "Christmas cracker" jewellery are hazled over, with the pennies and their confidence thus gained, the bidders fall ready victims to the next offer.

"If you will trust me you will not lose by it," the glib-tongued auctioneer assures them. "I want six gentlemen who will trust me with a shilling each. They will not regret it—this is our way of advertising. We give things away every Thursday." One or two of the decoys receive their shillings back with a package containing jewellery or some trumpery trifles; the victims receive similar packages, but not their shillings back; and then, in nine cases out of ten the auctioneer declares that "the sale is now closed." If any of the bidders object they are hustled into the "private office" until the crowd has dispersed.

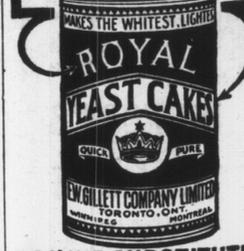

One man who protested yesterday was met with a torrent of foul abuse from the auctioneer, and told that if he did not clear out he would be prosecuted for trespass.

Women as well as men act as decoys. "It's a real Gillette," a woman whispered when the reporter asked to look at the "guinea" safety razor which could be secured for a bid of half a crown. This was at an auction room in the West End, which employs one of the cleverest decoys at the game.

Of three men who rose to the bait of real gold repeater watches, with a written guarantee, one bid too freely to be anything but a decoy. The second had apparently come in for fun, and had been tempted by the auctioneer's patter and promises. Both paid over gold for their watches, with a pair of opera glasses thrown in.

The third man one pitted. He looked like one from the country. He wanted one of the watches, but, as he explained when the auctioneer urged him to increase his bid, "I haven't enough money with me." "Would he pay a deposit?" asked the auctioneer, and the victim handed over all he had. He was certainly wise enough to demand a receipt, which after some delay, was given to him. He went away studying the receipt carefully. "Silly mug," remarked one of the onlookers; "that's the sort of flat these places live on." That was the end of the auction for the time being.

MACARONI CREOLE. Two cupsful of macaroni, four tomatoes, two tablespoonfuls chopped onion, four teaspoonfuls of butter, half cupful of grated cheese, one pound of beefsteak (round or rump) Cook the macaroni in boiling water till tender. Peel the tomatoes and let them simmer with the chopped onion. Cook the chopped steak in the frying pan for ten minutes, then add to the tomato, with the macaroni, grated cheese, salt and butter.

PACKING MEDICINE BOTTLES.

When packing a trunk the problem is often what to do with the various bottles, not of medicine alone, but of toilet articles. I have solved the question in a most satisfactory way. I put the bottles in a large tin coffee can with tight cover and pack between the bottles with fine clean saw dust which can be had from any grocer, tie on the cover and wrap the whole in paper. In case one bottle should break, the saw-dust absorbs the liquid and there is no danger of soiling clothing. If a coffee can is not at hand, a small tin pail with cover is just as good. Keep the saw-dust when you unpack and the tin is ready for instant use next time.

HOW TO PREPARE ROAST PORK.

It used to be considered rather plebeian taste to fond of pork and in spite of Charles Lamb's "Dissertation on Roast Pig," one was considered as wanting in the finer sensibilities if one spoke too fondly of this dish. Ham and bacon, of course, were always tolerated, if not loved, but pork in any other form was tabooed in many excellent households.

Then came the high cost of living and the scarcity of pork and other meats and at the same time roast pork rose many degrees in the estimation of those who have tasted "roast pig," as it should be roasted, need no Charles Lamb to convince them of its goodness.

And apple sauce is the proper garnish for pork, just as roast lamb needs mint sauce to bring out its full flavor. It would be interesting to know how and why certain sauces and garnishes came to be served with certain meats and fish. In the case of apple sauce and pork, the custom may perhaps be ascribed to our English ancestors who hunted the wild boar and always put a bright red apple between his teeth when he was brought to the table. One housekeeper declares that to preserve to any roast meat its full deliciousness and flavor it should be prepared in the fireless cooker. A piece of pork or lamb roasted in this way she says, is as tender as chicken. The meat almost falls apart and still is not dry, as frequently happens when roasted in the oven, but sweet and juicy. The cooker, however, does not brown the meat, but this can easily be remedied by putting the roast for a few minutes in the hot oven.

RECIPE FOR COOKING.

Marion Harland's recipe for roast pork, this housekeeper declares, is excellent, except that she herself substitutes the cooker for the oven, Miss Harland's directions are: Score the skin of a pork roast until the knife touches the meat under it. Rub into these lines or squares a mixture of fine crumbs seasoned with onion juice, a little grated lemon and pepper and salt to taste. Work in well until the stuffing stands out of the cracks. Put into your roaster with a cupful of hot water under it and after covering bring quickly to the point at which the water begins to steam. Slacken the heat then and cook twenty-five minutes to the pound, basting often with its own gravy. Pour off the gravy twenty minutes before taking the meat up and set in a bowl of ice to send all the fat to the top. Greasy pork gravy is an offence to the educated palate. Thicken with browned flour. A better plan is not to attempt gravy, but to send around sauce alone with the roast.

Joker's Corner

She was a forewoman in a large millinery establishment, and earned four pounds a week. He was something good in the jam trade, and his weekly wage was £9 10s. They met, they talked, they loved, they married, and now they were spending a fortnight's honeymoon at Hastings. "Charles," she cried enthusiastically, as they walked along the Esplanade, now that we are married, there's only one thing I regret—that I have to give up my fine position." "That's all right, my sweetest," he replied in soothing tones; "don't you worry about that, you needn't give up your position; I'll give up mine."

DADDY MEANT WELL.

Little Eva May was only a baby girl, but she objected when bedtime came round, as children do. Finally, father offered to lie on the bed till she fell asleep, and carried her off, greatly to mother's delight. The minutes passed—ten, fifteen, twenty, and at the end of half an hour mother began to wonder what had happened to father. She continued with her sewing, but, in a few moments, the silence was broken by the pit-pat of naked feet. Nearer came the steps, and an instant later Eva May stood in the doorway, finger raised for silence. "Hush, hush, mummy," she said, "I've got daddy off to sleep at last!"

I say 'rightly hab,' brederen, because we don't want no tainted money in dis box. 'Squire Jones' told me dat he done miss some chickens dis week. Now if any ob our brederen hab fallen by de wayside in connection wif dese chickens let him stay his hand from de box. "Now, Deacon Smiff, please pass de box while I watch de signs an' see if dere's any one in dis congregation dat needs me ter wrestle in prayer for him."

DIDN'T COUNT.

Two Irishmen arranged to fight a duel with pistols. One of them was distinctly stout, and when he saw his adversary facing him he raised an objection. "Bedad," he said, "I'm twice as big a target as he is, so I ought to stand twice as far away from him as he is from me." "Be aisy now," replied his second, "I'll soon put that right." Taking a piece of chalk from his pocket he drew two lines down the stout man's coat, leaving a space between them. "Now," he said, turning to the other man, "fire away, ye spalpeen, and remember that any hits outside that chalk line don't count."

SCOTTISH HUMOR.

Lord Kingsburgh, the Lord Justice Clerk of Scotland, is famed for his fund of good stories. He was in great form at the gathering of the Clan Donald Society, Edinburgh, recently. He had several anecdotes to tell of the bagpipes. At a certain party a lady accosted a piper who had been giving selections, and remarked that it would be an improvement if the instrument were without the things that made the buzzing noise. "Is it the drones that you would be meaning?" asked the piper. "Yes," said the lady; "these things that stick over your shoulder." "If it was not for the drones," replied the piper, "she would be no better than a common piano." Very smart was the reply of the piper who was playing early one morning at Balmoral. Lord John Russell, who was Minister in Attendance on the Queen, remarked to the piper, in a patronizing way, that he was rather fond of the pipes, and would not mind having a piper playing in the morning at his place in England. He inquired if he could get him a piper.

The Highlander looked down on his Lordship, who was a very small man, and asked: "What kind of a piper would you be wanting?" "Oh," said Lord John, "just a piper like yourself." "Ay," replied the piper, "you might easy get a Lord like your Lordship, but you couldna easy get a piper like me."

Why Do Women Suffer

When They Could Be Well?

It is so easy to be well and strong and able to enjoy life, that it is surprising how many women drag themselves through the day suffering tortures from lame back due to kidney trouble. Mrs. Wilcox found the way to cure herself and gladly writes about it so that others may be induced to use the same remedy.

"During the last winter, I was bothered very much with a Weak Back. I was advised by a friend to try GIN PILLS and I did. The first box I found helped me very much and I found when I had taken the second, I was completely cured." Mrs. F. WILCOX. "GIN PILLS do not do all that we say they will—let us know, and we will cheerfully refund your money. Send for a free sample and see for yourself that they will do you good. Then buy the regular boxes at your dealers—50c. for $2.50. National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited Toronto.

USEFUL HINTS.

Just before baking, dip the buns or rolls into milk. The crust will bake a beautiful brown and be nice and crisp. It is claimed that if the window glass has been spattered with paint, the latter can be entirely removed by melting soda in very hot water and washing the glass with it. Worked into the castors of bedsteads, heavy tables and chairs, a little blacklead works wonders, saving the creaking noise and the articles can be moved with ease. Paste an envelope on the inside of the cover of the cook book. This is handy for keeping loose recipes, until such time as one is able to test them. If good, they can be pasted into a proper book, if not they can be discarded. When boiling cabbage or greens of any kind, it is well to know that dropping a piece of butter about the size of a walnut into the saucepan will prevent all that unpleasant smell which is so often caused by the water boiling over, and it enables one to go on with ones work without the least worry, as you will find there won't be a particle of water boiled over.

She was the widow of Samuel T. Saunders, who predeceased her twenty one years ago. Although she has been in feeble health for the last three or four years, yet she came suddenly and unexpectedly. During her years of activity she was a mother to everybody and no one was ever turned from her door cold or hungry, and never was happier than when attending to her household duties and waiting upon her family. She leaves to mourn their loss, three stalwart sons, Melburn and Rufus of Hyde Park, Mass. and Wallace, who resides on the old homestead, where he has lovingly and tenderly cared for his mother during her declining years, also Mrs. Herbert Daniels of Belmont, N.
