Bar and his colonists

Bar and his colonists

Mr. Sifton Denies that the Government was Financially Interested in the Matter.

Ottawa, July 10.—(Special.)—The woe of the Barr colony was ventilated in the Commons today. The subject was brought up by E. F. Clarke, who read a speech delivered in the Northwest legislature by the mismanagement of the whole affair was commented upon and a demand on the government made for a thorough investigation.

Mr. Sifton's Defence. Mr. Sifton's defence was that he had not previously had his attention called to Mr. Barr's speech. As to Mr. Barr, all the department had to do was to set apart a certain block of land for the colony, that the department had no doubt of Mr. Barr's abilities to handle the project, had seen to it that the colony upon their arrival in Canada would be well looked after.

Government Should Move. Mr. Bell of Pictou said that there had been a mistake in the government to see that hereafter men like Mr. Barr were not given official recognition by the government.

Mr. Borden showed that on the basis of two thousand immigrants, Mr. Barr would receive a bonus of $12,000, as he was getting 25c per head from the government, in addition to the seven acres of land granted to him.

Mr. Gourlay contended that the people of England regarded Rev. Mr. Barr as the agent of the government. English clergymen had been foremost in promoting settlement and civilization, and it must have been that evil association with the government of Canada that dragged Mr. Barr from the high level of an English clergyman to all sorts of events, the association had been a bad thing for the government, or a bad thing for the colony.

They had also been provided with farming instructors. The immigration officials in England had more difficulty in meeting their demands against the treatment of immigrants made by members of the opposition than in meeting the complaints of Mr. Barr. Mr. Sifton declared that no body of people had been treated with such consideration and care by the Department of the Interior. People were sent out to put up tents for them with stoves and temporary stopovers, and he pointed to every twenty miles of their journey on the prairie.

Mr. Borden submitted that it was the duty of the government to telegraph to Mr. Preston and find out if it were true that he had stated that the government was to pay Mr. Barr seven shillings per head for the settlers. A statement that was entirely at variance with the statement of the Minister. Why, he asked, had the Department of Interior allowed that statement to go uncorrected?

"White Star" Victim of Fire

Is Burned to Water's Edge

For a time it was thought that the second engineer, Hugh McWilliams, had not been awakened and had perished in the flames. He had, however, escaped by jumping over the bow to the dock. Hardly ten minutes had elapsed when the warning cry of Mrs. Boyd rang forth till the White Star was a seething mass of flames.

It was pointed out by a superstitious seaman that the White Star had moved out in the bay on Friday and had had thirteen people on board. Dead Man Tells His Story. In the midst of the confusion the second engineer, Hugh McWilliams, was still on board. He had, however, every look and cranny of the boat by this time, so that there could be no hope for the rescue of the supposed victim. He had, however, been seen by the crew and people went hither and thither among the crowd in the hope that he might be found.

At length a reporter, who wished to prepare his obituary, went over to see his brother, who is chief engineer of the Garden City, which was at the foot of Yonge-street, and was confronted with the supposed victim of the fire. A moment later, the old engineer, who had imagined him burned to death, came up and there was a pathetic scene, the old man weeping tears of joy as he recognized his young mate.

Why He Disappeared. The story was soon told. McWilliams had been awakened by cries from the women on the wharf, and donning a very scanty attire, had opened the window to peer out. Immediately a cone of flame shot into his room, and he hurriedly jumped out the window to the pier. He was, however, so blinded by the scene as soon as possible, and he hastened over to his brother's cabin on the Garden City. Hence his mysterious absence.

Incendiaries Suspected. The chief engineer of the fire has been started by incendiaries, and states that about an hour before the fire he heard the top of his voice cry out, "Fire, fire, fire." He was also heard by those about him. Another Boat Fires. The last steamer burned was the freighter Myles, which was badly burned at the foot of Sherburne-street last winter. The Cuba and Persian have also suffered from fire while at the city. This morning's blaze is another demonstration of the value a fire tug would be to the present equipment. Fighting flames along the waterfront, where the risk is constantly increasing.

DROWNED IN JORDAN BAY BEFORE COMRADES' EYES

Vaughan Johnston Sinks in 7 Feet of Water—Body Found in 30 Minutes.

Jordan Harbor, July 10.—A young man named Vaughan Johnston, 27, of 221 Agara Falls, Ont., was drowned in the bay at this place this evening, about 8 p.m., directly in front of Jordan Harbor, P.O. He, in company with two other young men, named William and Robert West, went in bathing. All three were unable to swim. It is supposed he took a cramp, as, after sinking once or twice, he never rose. The water was not over 7 feet deep. Owing to the excellent location of the place where the bank was lost. A number of parties were quickly at work, wading and grappling, but it was half an hour before the body was recovered. Dr. Addi was at once summoned and worked over the body for nearly one hour, but life was extinct. Johnston was here in the employ of William Fretz.

POPE STILL LIVES.

4.50 a.m.—Since awakening the Pontiff has been restless, and a dose of chloral was administered.

2.10 a.m.—The Pope just awakened refreshed from sleep, which lasted over two hours.

9 p.m.—The following bulletin has just been issued: "During the day his Holiness had hours of rest, without suffering. His pulse maintains its frequency and force. This morning, after operation, his pulsation was 92, his respiration 28, and his temperature 36 centigrade. The kidneys continue functionally deficient. His general state is stationary."

Rome, July 11.—(12.10 a.m.)—A general feeling of tranquillity marked the day in Rome yesterday, due to the widespread belief that, tho the Pope's days are numbered, his hour has not yet come. The sublime self-confidence of the pontiff permeates the people, especially the simple folk, who go to their day's work, postponing signs of sorrow and mourning until from the sick bed they hear that the unusual struggle is nearing its end.

FARM LABOR PLENTIFUL IN WESTERN COUNTIES

Special Train Loan of Colored Help Easily Secured in Kent and Essex.

Chatham, July 10.—(Special.)—Farm labor is not scarce in Kent and Essex counties. The colored people supply a first-class quality of field help in this section of the province. Surprise is expressed among the people of the western villages that the farmers further east do not make a practical effort to secure men from this source.

Convict Breaks Way Thru Three-Foot Wall to Liberty

Convict Breaks Way Thru Three-Foot Wall to Liberty

A daring escape was made from Central Prison yesterday afternoon. Under the guns of two guards, Charles MacKenzie, a young Toronto burglar, dug thru a section of the wall and got away. He had probably been at liberty but a few minutes when the hunt commenced. He has not been caught and the police officials who capture him are not sanguine of his early capture.

Quackenbush had been confined there since April 20. Tho he is 21 years old, he is regarded by police authorities as an all round crook. He is hard to hold behind steel bars. He bears the distinction of having made three escapes from Toronto officials, all under circumstances requiring equal daring and ingenuity. He got out of the county jail, made a successful break for liberty from the city police and now has managed to elude the vigilance of the Central guards.

The convict was one of the best prisoners in the place. The warden says this is characteristic of the habitual criminal. They make excellent prisoners. He was employed as a repairer of binder twine machines as a repairer. In this capacity he had access to the inmates of the Central and knew that men have been shot and killed while attempting to escape.

One of the new clauses will be as follows: "The directors of the company shall have power to enter into an agreement, or agreements, with the government of Canada, or with the commissioners authorized to enter into such agreements on behalf of the government of Canada, respecting the construction and operation of a line of railway or any portion thereof to be the property of the government, between the City of Montreal, N.B., and the City of Winnipeg."

WILLIAM BAXTER FALLS OUT OF WINDOW, DROPPING TWO STORES.

Chatham, July 10.—Wm. Baxter, an old Chatham boy, but son of New York City, met a shocking death here today. He came here a week ago to spend his vacation at the home of his brother-in-law, P. S. Coate, when he was seized with typhoid and removed to the public general hospital. Today he asked his nurse for a glass of water, and in her momentary absence left his bed and got out of the window, two stories up, and fell to the ground. His skull was fractured and he died in a few hours.

DIED LIKE HIS MOTHER

Chatham, July 10.—The death of a young man here today was a sad one. He died like his mother, who died of typhoid fever. He was a young man of 25 years of age, and was a student at the Chatham Normal School. He was seized with typhoid fever while on vacation at the home of his brother-in-law, P. S. Coate, when he was seized with typhoid and removed to the public general hospital. Today he asked his nurse for a glass of water, and in her momentary absence left his bed and got out of the window, two stories up, and fell to the ground. His skull was fractured and he died in a few hours.

MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT AND ITS IMPROVEMENT

C. R. Woodruff of Philadelphia and Prof. Smith Offer Valuable Ideas.

"Municipal Government and Citizenship" was the extremely happy subject chosen by the Toronto branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association for discussion at their annual meeting dinner, which was held last night at the National Club. Clinton Rogers Woodruff of Philadelphia, secretary of the National Municipal Association, and Prof. Goldwin Smith of Toronto were the guests of the association, and gave addresses, pregnant with wholesome advice on the means that may be adopted towards securing a more efficient and honest administration of municipal affairs.

Prof. Goldwin Smith, deploring the stagnation in the system of municipal government and voicing the need for more scientific administration of local affairs, rather than the present political system. Dr. Smith said no city on the continent had the same attractions or advantages as Toronto, and no one was more interested in the city than himself. He had taken pronounced views on many subjects, and supposed that he was wrong on some of them, but he did not think he was wrong in his view of the view of Toronto. He needed a more efficient system of government. The difficulty was, he said, that while the city had grown in size and responsibility, the form of government had not grown. There were great possibilities springing up every day to be met, but there was no improvement in civic government.

The elective system was bad. It was impossible to get the best men to run, because when good men did present themselves they were often defeated. The city was in need of a scientific administration. That was the modern idea. An elected body, he claimed, was not a responsible body, and he would have men who were fitted for the work they were chosen to perform. The speaker expressed the opinion that the business men should make one grand effort in the direction of an improvement along these lines.

Municipal Advances of Decade. Mr. Woodruff spoke on municipal advances during the past decade. Ten years ago, he said, the one of those interested in the solution of the municipal problem was one of hopelessness. The first national conference presided at the first national conference for good city government in Philadelphia in January, 1884, said indeed, redeemed. However, by the merits of the artist. There was a general feeling that the problem was so great and so extended, and that the settlement regarding municipal matters was indifferent and sluggish that there was little upon which to found reasonable hope. True, New York and Chicago had made advances.

BRUCE OLD BOYS AND GIRLS

Groups of Former Acquaintances Get Together and Discuss Familiar Scenes. REMINISCENCE OF THE MAJOR

Who Tells of the Troubles of a Circus in Paisley Years Ago. Paisley, July 10.—The special train, with its several hundred passengers on pleasure bent, had not left the city many miles behind before those who had the same object in view began to gravitate to some particular section of the long train, where they could renew old acquaintances and go over the old stories of their school-boy days at Clonlog, Walkerton, Paisley or rural sections, which, for the time being at least, was to them the one bright spot on earth.

As the larger number were bound for Southampton and intermediate points that section of the train had the greater number of such family groups, but where the other section felt short in numbers it made up in enthusiasm, and the peas of laughter that repeatedly rang out from it told plainly that, whenever one might have been left at home, the story-teller at least were out in full force.

Col. Wear, the president of the association, was here, and every where looking after the comfort of his large family, for children the old girls and boys truly were again for one hour, and it failed the colonel's energies to the utmost to keep them well in hand.

Among the many reminiscences was one told by a well-known member of a rural party, a resident of Toronto, and a member of the Paisley Public School staff, 30 years ago. Anyone who has ever visited Paisley will have noted that the Sauguenay river divides the village into two almost equal sections. Not in this division were geographical. Whatever may be the social and commercial conditions today, the fact that the river divides the village into two almost equal sections, was the condition of affairs when, in 1873, the major was at Paisley, he was then, as he is now, an ardent supporter of athletic sports, and the only young man of a vigorous physical constitution organized, with the major as president, a "baseball club."

In 1873 Paisley was not so thickly settled as it is to-day, and there were "commons" galore on both sides of the river. Early in the year the advance agent of the major's great show, came to the village to begin to negotiate for a site, and each section of the town divided the honor of the privilege of giving the site to the honor of the town. The major, who was then a young man, was in the habit of driving the snow off the baseball ground, and incidentally back to the south side of the river. That was all very well for the president of a baseball club, but what about his other self—the teacher? Would it be wise for the teacher to take either side in the struggle? Not much, he thought, but as he was long to dress as the teacher, when the president arrived on the scene the teacher of the club was well on his way. He demanded of the first gang of men he approached to be shown the way, and he was accompanied to the extent of being introduced to a diminutive specimen of humanity, who was directing the work of a half-dozen men. If possible more dignified-looking than himself. The president, assuming a languid mien, remained silent, and the teacher, who was then a young man, was in the habit of driving the snow off the baseball ground, and incidentally back to the south side of the river. He demanded of the first gang of men he approached to be shown the way, and he was accompanied to the extent of being introduced to a diminutive specimen of humanity, who was directing the work of a half-dozen men. If possible more dignified-looking than himself. The president, assuming a languid mien, remained silent, and the teacher, who was then a young man, was in the habit of driving the snow off the baseball ground, and incidentally back to the south side of the river. That was all very well for the president of a baseball club, but what about his other self—the teacher? Would it be wise for the teacher to take either side in the struggle? Not much, he thought, but as he was long to dress as the teacher, when the president arrived on the scene the teacher of the club was well on his way. The Galicians were of the Greek or Roman Catholic Church, and the Presbyterian efforts were confined to educational and philanthropic work.
