We will divide the city into small sections and a worker will be placed in charge of each. No one will have a larger territory than he or she can attend to in the time allotted, and there will be a reserve corps in case some may, at the last moment, be prevented from attending.

A YOUNG MAN KILLED BY SHUNTING ENGINE IN CAMPBELLTON YARD

Baptiste Dube of Kempt, Quebec, Crushed to Death Yesterday.

Campbellton, N. B., Nov. 12.—A very sad accident occurred in the L. C. R. yard here this afternoon as a result of which a young man named Baptiste Dube, a native of Kempt (Que.), was crushed to death beneath the wheels of a swiftly moving car that was being shunted down the yard. Young Dube was employed some time on a working train and it was customary that he should make a fire in the car to get the meals for the gang. He was on his way to the car which was standing on the siding near the coal shed. Another member of the crew, named Olette, was on top of the car trying to get the sliding door when Dube came along. The unfortunate man took hold of the bottom of the door to try and straighten it and while in this position Olette noticed the shunter making a flying shunt and the perilous position of Dube, and made a jump from the top of the car to catch his fellow workman and pull him out of the way. He just caught hold of Dube, when in some manner Dube stumbled backwards and the cars caught him. Two cars passed over the young man's chest, killing him instantly. Coroner Doherty was notified and an examination held, but the coroner decided that an inquest was unnecessary, as death was purely accidental.

"Its Only a Cold, A Trifling Cough."

Thousands have said this when they caught cold. Thousands have neglected to cure the cold. Thousands have filled consumptive graves through neglect. Never neglect a cough or cold. It can save but one result. It leaves the throat, lungs, or both, affected. Dr. Wood's Foreway Pine Syrup is the medicine you need. It strikes at the very foundation of all throat or lung complaints, relieving a cough, cold, bronchitis, asthma, croup, sore throat, and preventing pneumonia and consumption.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, Indigestion, and other ailments as symptoms only of a certain specific cause. It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop to the creation of his now famous Restorative. Dr. Shoop's Restorative, going direct to the source of the trouble, brings about a cure. It is a powerful purgative, but its action is so gentle and its effects so beneficial, that it is a most valuable remedy for all cases of indigestion, constipation, and all other ailments of the bowels and stomach. It is a most valuable remedy for all cases of indigestion, constipation, and all other ailments of the bowels and stomach.

Returned Traveller Tells of the Cannibal Habits of Natives of the Congo Free State.

London, Nov. 2.—An Italian naval surgeon, Dr. Baccari, who spent four years in the Congo Free State on a scientific mission, has just published a book about his expedition which contains some interesting details about the customs of the natives. Dr. Baccari says that the natives are cannibals simply because they like human flesh, and they eat their fellow-creatures with the same indifference as we do animal food. A native who had been brought up by Europeans and taught to abstain from human flesh, complained one day to the local magistrate that some natives had eaten the body of his father, who had died a few days before.

"To Them That Hath"

A SHORT SERMON TO FAT FOLK.

"To them that hath shall be given" is a sentence that applies to fat people very much. It is a comforting sentence, when one is a human being begins to fatten up, to what they have already in added more to what they want until finally a stage is reached where reduction must be made or decided disadvantage results. Then comes forward the age-old query, "Reduce—but how?" To the unfortunate nothing suggests itself but (to them) twin evils—less eating—more activity. They contemplate a more or less rigid diet and exercise. So it may be said safely that every man or woman in the land now undergoing the fatening-up process has his or her mental eye fixed dubiously on that not far distant day when he or she will have to do the "aches and soretholds of reduction."

A GREAT CONVENTION

The people of the Maritime Provinces may find a valuable hint in a movement now attracting attention in the New England states.

On November 23rd there will meet in Boston representatives of the executive and legislative authorities of the several New England states together with those of the federal government and experts in the various fields of development in which that section is interested.

The Bangor Commercial says that the aim of the convention is the solidification of the business and industrial interests of New England. We quote:

"A dozen speakers will be present at that meeting including Gifford Pinchot of the national forest service, and Hon. N. J. Bachelder, master of the national game, Patrons of Husbandry. They will discuss among other subjects, questions relating to forest protection; the promotion of manufacturing industries, the propagation of edible sea fish, and public highways. A strong body of representative men has been named to represent Maine at this convention, which embraces our senators and representatives in congress, with four delegates at large and two delegates from each congressional district—all men of prominence and identified with the best and highest interests of our state. Other New England states will have a similar delegation in point of numbers and character and the entire convention, made up of such men, will form a distinguished and representative body of influential men. The convention will mark the first instance, since the United States became a nation, that the governors of the six New England states will have met in consultation for the common interest. It will mark a new departure for these states along the lines of harmonious progress in every permanent business interest and measure for the good of the people."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

It is announced that President Roosevelt is writing an article on Socialism, which will soon be printed. Coming from one in so high and responsible a position and from a man so quick to observe and so capable of giving clear expression to his views, this article will be received with universal interest. A letter from Washington says:

"The President has been following the course of Socialism in the United States with profound interest for the past three years. With his remarkable astuteness in observing the trend of public thought he early discovered the importance of this political movement and set about to make himself a master of the subject. He has found time, in spite of his strenuous and absorbing duties in the White House, to read a great amount of literature on the subject. Those who have talked with the President about Socialism say that in his forthcoming article he will shoot holes in the doctrines advocated by Eugene V. Debs, and other leaders. It is said that the President will show that he is an individualist of the most pronounced type and that, while he does not scorn the movement or underestimate its significance he yields nothing to men who advocate Socialism in its most advanced form. As everybody knows President Roosevelt entertains very liberal ideas in government and by many is held to be partly responsible for the great inroads given to Socialism in recent years."

If it be true that Mr. Roosevelt is in any degree responsible for the growth of Socialism in the United States he probably regrets the fact, for it has run almost to the verge of anarchy. The most reckless and revolutionary statements are made in some of the Socialist periodicals, whose influence is even more pernicious than that of the plutocrats whom they assail.

Speaking again of President Roosevelt, he is a man whose active mind takes a remarkably wide range, and as a student he appears to have an unbounded capacity for mental work. Only the other day Sir Harry Hamilton Johnson, author and explorer, who called on President Roosevelt to talk with him about his African hunting trip, hoping to be able to give him some information of value, declared that he found the president more familiar with the subject of Africa than he was himself.

A president who can frame tariff and trust messages, discuss educational matters, give attention to athletics, make the flora and fauna of Africa, study Socialism, and give intelligent attention to a host of other matters of more or less importance, and who is still a comparatively young man, will not suffer eclipse the moment he retires from the White House. In any great national crisis a man of Roosevelt's courage and resource, and decision of character, would be of greater value than an army of clamorous statesmen of the common sort.

Lord Rosebery, in a recent speech, advised his countrymen to take a leaf out of Germany's book in respect to the employment of trained specialists in commercial firms. We quote:—"A great deal is heard of the encroachment of Germany in regard to trade, but when these complaints are enumerated it may be worth while to enquire whether the employment of these specialists has not something to do with the advantage that Germany has in commerce and whether it would not be worth while to utilize still more the services of such men. If the employers of Great Britain find they get on well without them, there is nothing more to say, but if they should take a page out of the German book, they will find that colleges turn out plenty of men who would gladly co-operate with them and who are looking for just such an opportunity."

Of the rapid improvement in business in the Eastern states the Bangor Commercial says:—"The business inactivity which marked the period previous to election has given way with a rush throughout New England. Announcements of resumption of operations have been made in all directions within the last week. Many industrial interests are affected, although the reports indicate that the textile concerns have acted more promptly and in greater numbers in ordering longer hours and more operatives. Other lines which already have arranged for increased operations are jewelry and rubber factories, thread, yarn, and knitting mills, machine and tool-making plants, and rail road repair shops."

The thousands of men engaged in construction work on the G. T. P. in this province are receiving a large amount of money, in the aggregate, and the construction camps afford a good market for large quantities of provisions, and clothing. At a time when the lumber industry is depressed it is a good thing for the province that this work is going on.

The course pursued by the Hon. Mr. Broder in connection with the marine department will put an end to the abuses which have been exposed since the enquiry was begun. The minister has abolished the patronage list and will punish those officials who are found guilty of wrong-doing.

A jury in Calgary has declared that the Eye-Opener is a "debasing, corrupting and immoral" sheet. And yet some who would resent the suggestion that they are not eminently pious persons have eagerly passed the Eye-Opener around among their friends.

A remarkable condition of affairs exists at Caraque, where it seems forty persons died of diphtheria before the provincial board of health heard about it. If this report is true it reflects great discredit upon somebody in Caraque.

The theory that in order to keep foreign laborers good-natured and retain their services they should be well supplied with beer, even in Scott Act countries, has been punctured by several knife thrusts.

The bankers says that the average politician is not capable of coping with clever criminals. This of course does not apply to New Brunswick, but to Ontario and Quebec.

The political situation in the county of Northumberland grows interesting. Next Tuesday's Conservative convention at New castle will be awaited with interest.

LAND OF HEART'S DESIRE

Where is the land of the heart's desire? The land where the suns cease to mourn? Does it rest in the west where the suns expire?

Or east where the suns are born? Is it hidden deep where gold rivers flow? Is it high aloft where the aloof winds blow? Or is it between, where the laurels grow— This land of the heart's desire?

Where is the land of the heart's desire? The land of a hope fulfilled? Go on one forth to the north where the hills are higher? Is it south where the fields are tilled? Is it west where the stretch of two shining arms? Are its peaks of achievements above alarms? Or are valleys of oblivion the chiefest charm? Of the land of the heart's desire?

Where is the land of the heart's desire? Of what use that the sage should say? Soberly that the eyes are the soul's aspire, Yet a lifetime meeting of earth and sky? A little beyond where the marsh lights die, Where the desert's mirage waters lie Is the land of the heart's desire?—Channing Pollock.

IN THE BARBER SHOP. Customer—Quick shave, please. Barber—Close, sir? Customer—See here; what business is it of yours whether I'm a barber? Will you one thing, young man—I don't tip, if that's what you want to know.

OH, VERY WELL. Mrs. Kalkler—Is Mrs. Amos a well-informed woman? Mrs. Bocker—Yes, indeed; her cook has lived with all the other families in the neighborhood.

SHE KNEW THE PLACE. The elderly matron with the bundles, who was journeying to a point in Wisconsin and occupied a seat near the middle of the car, had fallen asleep. On the seat in front of her sat a little boy, who, when the train opened the door of the car and called out the name of the station the train was approaching, "Where are we, Bobby, where are we?" "I don't know, mamma," answered the little boy. "Didn't the brakeman say something just now?" "No; he just struck his head inside the door and sneezed."

"He sneezed with these things, Bobby," she exclaimed, hurriedly. "This is Oshkosh; it's where we get off."—Youss's Companion.

THE INGLENOOK PHILOSOPHER of Kennebecasis Bay.

The election of Oct. 26 recalls the first election of which my memory preserves any trace, that of William Henry Harrison to the presidency of the United States in 1830, by 240 electoral votes to 60 cast for Martin Van Buren. Harrison was the Whig and Van Buren the Democratic candidate for the office. Harrison had been an officer in the regular army, with a commission from President Washington and his headquarters were on the ground now occupied by the city of Cincinnati. Here he was on the very verge of civilization; all the territory west and southwest of him to the Pacific was in the possession of savages and wild beasts. —E. Rose to the head of the army in the Territory, became governor of the Northwest Territory, which included the states of Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin, and at the end of his term he retired to private life, and being a poor man, notwithstanding his long term in public life, he bought a tract of wild land at North Bend, Ohio, where he built a log cabin and settled down farming. There was no graft, no "take off" in those days, and a thief was treated as a thief, no matter whether he was a legislator or a street scavenger. The log cabin was an important factor, therefore, in the campaign of 1838-39. It was seen in every city and village as the crest of the Whig procession, in this case being mounted on wheels, a structure about twelve feet square, with a bear skin on the chair of some other wild animal nailed on the door and all sorts of implements of frontier life scattered about inside. I saw many of them. Every one had a barrel of hard cider in one corner and a half dozen gourds hanging on the wall, from which the thirsty might drink. Every one was welcome, the Democrat (a loofcoo he was derisively called) as well as the Whigs, who were termed federalists by their opponents. My two elder brothers and myself erected a log cabin, about six by twelve feet square, near our house, and a very creditable cabin it was. We were proud of it. We nailed a coon skin on the door, hung an old musket just above it, and had a jug of hard cider and a gourd made for the entertainment of the weary and thirsty passer-by, and many called and refreshed themselves. One day some students from the college in the village espied our cabin from the hills a half mile distant, where they were hunting squirrels, and saluted it with cheers. We answered with a volley from our old musket. After awhile they came down, sampled our cider and patted us on our heads and told us that some day they hoped to see us as honored as General Harrison.

Exactly one month after his inauguration (April 4, 1840) President Harrison died of pneumonia, and was succeeded by John Tyler, the only traitor to his country that ever sat in the presidential chair except James Buchanan, who, like Tyler, got there by accident. I called on Buchanan once, not to pay my respects, but to see how a man of his stamp looked. I was introduced as "from New England." The president of the great United States said, "I see few people from New England and would prefer to see fewer," thus proving himself a boor as well as an imbecile and an ass.

My brothers went hence many years ago; if those students are alive they are 100 years old; of the millions who voted for President Harrison the few that live are more than a hundred years old. Yet the world moves on, and I doubt if one of the multitude is missed by any living soul.

A PRESENTATION TO ARTHUR McHUGH

Every Day Club Recognize His Assistance as Starter at Their Sports.

For the past two seasons Arthur McHugh has acted as starter in the races at the Every Day Club sports. As a result, the most complete satisfaction was expressed by competitors. The club members felt that they were greatly indebted to Mr. McHugh, and at a meeting last week it was decided to present a fine merschaum pipe to him.

Mr. McHugh was induced to attend last evening's entertainment at the club, and between the acts the president paid a tribute to that gentleman's untiring kindness and made the presentation. An audience heartily applauded.

DALHOUSIE 27, ST. F. X. 0

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 12 (Special).—The above is the score in a football match played on the Wanderers' grounds. The game was very interesting despite the big score rolled up by the local players and at the start it looked as if the champions of Halifax had met their match.

But with Dalhousie's first score the visitors seemed to lose heart and Dalhousie started out to make a record score. The first half ended twice to nothing in favor of Dalhousie, and in the second half they scored fifteen more points and St. Francis made a try. St. Francis Xavier's tackling and defense work was excellent but they were poor in combination work.

The St. Stephen's team showed a return to their old form by defeating the Brock & Paterson team at basket ball last night, by the decisive score of 29 to 11. The game was played in St. Stephen's rooms and was fast and exciting throughout.

The teams were: St. Stephen's, Centre, K. Wilson, M. Latham, Forwards, F. Mahoney, W. A. Henderson, A. Smith, Defense, D. Paterson, A. Ellis, Backs, H. Wetton.

The Bachelor Girls of Esmouth street church repeated their entertainment, Breezy Point, before a large gathering in Portland Methodist church last evening. The various numbers on the programme were much enjoyed, numerous encores being accorded the performers.

JOHN EVERSON WINS HIS SUIT

Man Injured at Loch Lomond Gets Verdict Against Insurance Company.

The case of John Everson against the General Accident Life and Fire Assurance Company of Perth, Scotland, in which the plaintiff was suing for the payment of an accident policy for the loss of his hand at his triplicate works near Loch Lomond last November, was decided at Lowell (Mass.) on Wednesday in favor of the plaintiff. After one hour and ten minutes deliberation, the jury returned a verdict for Mr. McHugh, and at a meeting last week it was decided to present a fine merschaum pipe to him.

Considerable interest is taken in the case in St. John, not only from the fact that the scene was laid in St. John county and had unusual features, but that Dr. Murray MacLaren and Dr. W. A. Christie were called by the defence to give evidence. Dr. MacLaren returned home yesterday.

Mr. Everson, who is a partner in the firm of E. W. Everson & Co., general contractors, said in his evidence that he fell asleep in front of the furnace at the triplicate works and woke up to find smoke coming from the flume. He lifted the door, which opened from the bottom and there was some water. The door fell on his head, and caught his hand, and he remembered nothing more until he was out of the building, which caught fire and was destroyed.

He made his way into St. John and was treated in the hospital. His right hand was amputated on Nov. 20.

Mr. Everson had three accident policies with the company for $10,000 each, the first of which was taken out Oct. 8, 1907.

The company disputed the claim on the ground of alleged fraud.

Dr. MacLaren, who was called in his consultation before the operation, in his evidence expressed the opinion that the injury could not have happened in the manner described. He did not consider the door falling would account for a line of demarcation which was visible.

The company further contended that Franklin J. Moore, who took the insurance application, had no authority. A separate question as to whether Mr. Moore was the United States manager for the defendant company was put to the jury, and they returned a verdict of "Yes."

In addition to Mr. Everson's three policies, there were two which were taken out by his brother.

The officers of the District Officers Lodge, visited Eileen Lodge No. 7, last evening in their hall, German street. Speeches were made by E. S. Hennigar, 75 Doz. Men's Golf Caps, on Hand.

Ottawa, Nov. 12 (Special).—Ex-Speaker Danforth is to be leader of the senate. He will be made a member of the government without portfolio.

FAIRY TALES OF THE NORTH LAND

entertaining Lecture Last Night in Natural History Society's Folk Lore Course.

The popularity of the Folk Lore course of the Natural History Society, was proven yesterday by the large number present to listen to the third lecture given by Mrs. H. J. Roberts, who took as her subject the "Folk Lore of Norway and Sweden." Before the president introduced the speaker, Miss Murray rendered two typical folk lore pieces of Norway—"Autumn Leaves" and "The March of the Dwarfs," by Grieg, a Norwegian composer.

Mrs. Roberts opened her address by describing the sturdy characteristics of the Norwegians, their love of exploration, their ability to colonize, etc. Well might the English look upon them as their progenitors.

The fictions were not a literary product, but their records were not kept in books, but in their memories, and it was from the singers their names and legendary history were learned. There were two collections of folk lore literature called the Eddas, which contained many myths that contradicted the national character of both Germans and Norwegians, but the sagas had their roots in Norse civilization and were national property.

According to the Eddas, there was one heaven above or earth beneath, but only a bottomless deep and a world of mist in which sprang a continent.

Of all the tales of the Gods, perhaps that of Balder, the God, the son of Odin, has furnished more material for the English poet and story-teller than any other. He was another figure of that radiant type to which belonged all bright and genial heroes, righters of wrongs, gentle and strong to spirit, weak and kind to heart.

But of all the Gods, Thor, the lord of the Farmer was the one dear to him. Always connected with earth, he was the adversary of giants and all oppressors of man. He had three precious possessions, first, the hammer, second, the belt of strength and third, his iron glove.

The Eddas belonged to another class of legends mentioned in the Eddas. They were inferior to the Gods, but still possessed much power. The Eddas of light were of great interest and brilliancy. They usually appeared as beautiful children dressed in transparent materials. They were kindly disposed toward human beings and ever ready to help those who were in need of their services to help them.

There were many tales relating to persons changing their shape to that of some animal while making a journey. Especially for women this was a means of safety.

The chief characteristic of the fairies seems to be to gain possession of fair human children. As the new born babe was most helpless of all beings, the fairies of the people considered them fair game, but they were loath to take a journey. Especially for women this was a means of safety.

In closing, the speaker quoted a few proverbs and wise sayings of the Norse. "An unwise man thinks all who smile on him to be his friends, but he will find when he comes to the thing that he has few spokesmen."

One may know but not another, all know if three know." She also gave a few rules of Norse life such as: "The duty of hospitality, folly of pride and wise sayings of the Norse." An duty of cheerfulness and bravery, over satisfaction with one's lot, and the duty of duty of cheerfulness and bravery, over satisfaction with one's lot, and the duty of duty of cheerfulness and bravery, over satisfaction with one's lot.

VERY SUCCESSFUL TURKEY SUPPER

A turkey supper given in the vestry of Carleton Methodist church last evening under the auspices of the Young Men's Bible class was a decided success.

The tables were decorated with the class colors—mauve and green—and chrysanthemums. The attendance was large—about 300 sitting down to the supper.

The young men of the class—Firth Britain, president; William Doherty, Jr., George Clarke, James Griffiths, Harold Glynn, Roy Baskin, Roy Bronman, Leonard Jenkins, John Myles, and Clarence Myles—served as waiters under the direction of W. G. Haslam. Miss Beatley, the teacher, poured coffee.

ANNUAL MEETING OF ST. MARY'S BAND

The fifth annual meeting of St. Mary's Band was held last night. The reports showed that this musical organization is in a flourishing condition. They have received much encouragement during the year, having had twenty-six engagements. They will hold their anniversary on December 3. There are now thirty-one members in the band, and they have a neat cash balance.

A BITTER ATTACK ON SALVATION ARMY

Canadian Delegate to Labor Congress Scores Salvation Army's Immigration Scheme

Denver, Colo., Nov. 12.—At the close of today's session of the 28th annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, President Samuel Gompers in thanking the speakers of the day, said that he had heard since coming to Denver that it was intended by the present session of congress to pass a bill amending the Sherman Anti-Trust law in a way detrimental to the labor movement. He said that such an attempt would be made he would fight it in the halls of congress.

The secretary at Mr. Gompers' request, read a letter from W. J. Ryan in which he thanked Mr. Gompers and the other members of the federation for the support given him during the recent presidential campaign.

P. M. Draper, fraternal delegate from the Dominion of Canada, said that he noticed the United States had the same problems to solve as Canada. He was bitter against the Salvation Army, saying that it had been acting as an agent for the capitalist class in securing the emigration of a large number of mechanics from England who came to Canada in times of strikes and thus harmed the union men of the Dominion.

"There is no division between us of Canada and you of the United States as trade unionists," he said in conclusion.

DEFERRED ELECTIONS

Two Conservatives and One Liberal Elected in British Columbia and Prince Albert—Protest in Ontario.

Winnipeg, Nov. 12.—Kootenay and Yale-Cariboo (B. C.), election returns indicate a victory for A. S. Gooden and Martin Durrell, both Conservatives. Gooden's majority is estimated at 350 up and Durrell's at 275.

Ruttan, Liberal, is elected in Prince Albert with 198 majority and twenty-five votes to bear from Toronto, Nov. 12.—Papers are being got ready by the Ontario Reform Association to protest eight Conservative seats in this province as a result of the dominion election, and before the date of entering the protests arrives, Dec. 5, more will come. What the seats are the association refuses to divulge, except that Centre Toronto is one.

E. Mitchell, of Barbados, a merchant, engaged in the export of molasses, arrived here yesterday and is at the Royal. The sugar crop, he said, was finished for the year and had fallen short of expectations. Business would be rather flat until the new crop came in about February or March. The island, he added, was free from yellow fever and small pox and the conditions as regards health were very good.
