ANIMAL PSYCHOLOGY

Paris Creates an Institute for Studying the Faculties of Beasts.

Lovers of animals will be interested in knowing that an Institute of Animal Psychology has been created in Paris, writes a correspondent. The new institute is under the patronage of several eminent men of science, and the founders eminent men of science, and the founders propose to study by experience the physical faculties of several animals. The soul of the beast will be the especial object of attentien, and the observation of the experimentors will be carried out in a circus at Vincennes, specially erected, 20 yards long by 20 yards wide, and containing a track 13 yards in diameter. Four hundred seats will be reserved round the center for naturalists and others interested in animal psychology. Every beast—like every human being—it is contended, possesses a distinctive individuality, and after examination the animals will be ranked according to their psychical qualities. One of the experiments recently had the lion as its object. The members of the new institute were desirous of finding out whether the king of the forest was ingenious enough to open the lid of a box containing a titbit. After carefully examining the box the lion lifted the lid with his teeth and extracted the meat. In so doing the psytracted the meat. In so doing the psy chologists claim that the lion acted "reasonably." Another experiment was made with a monkey, who was given some nuts in a box with a mirror on the inside. Jocko ate the nuts and used the glass to make his toilet, and he has now become so coquettish over his new acquisition that he spends a great deal of his time every day in looking at his own reflection.

OVER $335,000,000 VOTED. London, Friday, Aug. 9.—At ten o'clock last night, in a crowded and excited session of the House of Com-mons, Mr. Balfour's new rule of voting estimates by wholesale closure came into operation. Lumped in "classes," more than £67,000,000 were by this scheme voted in a series of divisions before one o'clock this morning, the government majorities always exceeding one hundred.

The house was still in session at 5 The Irish members engaged in obstructive tactics with reference to various resolutions incidental to the final stages of the estimates, and Mr. Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, frequently moved the closure.

The house adjourned at a.m., after numerous divisions under the closure. The Irish members kept up a continual opposition, but without disorderly

FEARS FOR THE KING.

London, Aug. 9.-The remarkable series of postponements and alterations in King Edward's journey to his sister's funeral has aroused considerable conjecture in England. It is not due to the king's own wish that the present unprecedented proceedings are adopted, but only to the urgent insistence of the political section of Scotland Yard in Warning the detectives responsible for his majesty's safety. These detectives have now been increased to nearly These detectives the number who attended Queen Victoria. Their chiefs have been warned for some months to expect a revival of Anarchist activity during the coming winter, and organization against the emergency is now being effected. These new and more extended arrangements, especially with the continental police, have not been tested since King Edward's visit to his sister in February. It is the present desire to have time to secure the closest control of the route before the King starts. The changes in his programme aim at easing the great strain the detectives admit they feel regarding his

DUMONT'S BALLOON VOYAGE. Paris, Aug. 9.-M. Santos Dumont gave the following account of his trip: 'This time it is not the fault of the motor, which worked admirably. It was the balloon which caused the accident. I rounded the Eiffel with admirable speed, as I had a favorable wind, and was already returning over the Boid de Boulogne, when the wind freshened suddenly and struck me sideways. Like a ship in a storm the balloon pitched and rolled, now and then recovering its normal position. Another sudden veering of the wind caused the balloon to pitch downwards, and the topes connecting it with the frame caught in the propeller, which struck the balloon wires. They broke, I saw the danger, and my only thought was to descend as quickly as possible. This I was doing successfully, but I was driven by a contrary wind in the direction of Eiffel Tower. Again the breeze veered and threw me against a building. The balloon burst like a toy gas balloon, and the fragments completely covering me. rest you know. I am unhurt. I have not a scratch, and will soon recommence. The motor is uninjured. I have worked it for ten minutes. I will now send it to St. Cloud and get to work repairing the balloon. It is simply a matter of sewing the pieces together. The cause of the accident also worked badly." M. Deutsche, who was present at the start, shed tears when he saw the balloon falling. In an interview, after highly praising the courage and skill of M. Santos Dumont, he said: "I am afraid the experiments will not be conclusive, as his balloon will always be at the mercy of the wind,

PEOPLE ARE PAID TO SMOKE PIPES

Men Who Color Meerschaums Earn Good Living by Smoking.

Coloring meerschaum is a long and delicate process, and unless a man likes to do a difficult feat there is no reason why he should set himself to the task of putting a beautiful shade on his costly pipe. That is a business in itself, and an experienced smoker knows, or can learn, the location of establishments to which he can take his pipe and have it smoked until the desired color is obtained. Such an enterprise exists in the outskirts of London and makes a fine competence for its proprietor, an Austrian. It is a large house that used to be the country seat of an English gentleman. Hither come every day a score of young men who are the experienced employes of the house. They pass upstairs to the business room in the rear of the house, seat themselves in arm chairs and forth-with begin their day's work of smoking meerschaum pipes. Each one knows the art of smoking steadily, neither too fast nor too slow. The tobacco they use is a special blend of the proprietor's, for he knows it is only rarely that the right kind of tobacco is used for that purpose. The bowls of the pipes which these young men smoke are covered with wash leather, so that they cannot by any chance be harmed or improperly stained.

The highly accomplished among these young fellows can get away with four ounces of tobacco a day. are paid well, and they have their regular holidays. Some of them have been with their employers for five years. But it isn't a business in which one may stay a lifetime, for though they appear to be able to smoke for years, night and day, without hurting them, when they get to be old men their occupation has made them too The proprietor nervous to be useful. himself smokes not at all except when he is teaching an apprentice how to go about it. The new hand receives a cheap pipe, and after being told to go ahead is left to himself to show what he can do. There are prize competitions, and these 30 newly arrived young men, who are on an upper floor, when they become proficient are graduated to take their seats with the notables on the second floor back.
This kind of work, as a rule, takes all the time and attention of the men, but some of them are so perfect that they can devote themselves to designing shapes and figures for new pipes, special attention being given to the possibility of producing quaint effects in the coloring. The best meerschaums, it is said, comer from Turkey, and the designs are worked out and cut upon the meerschaum in Vienna. Probably the class who are the best buyers of these colored-to-order meerschaums are collegians, who want to show fine pipes, but who have neither the patience nor the skill to produce effect themselves.-New Press.

THE BELLS OF SHANDON.

With deep affection And recollection I often think of The Shandon Bells, Whose sounds so wild would In days of childhood Fling around my cradle Their magic spells. On this I ponder, Where'er I wander, And thus grow fonder. Sweet Cork, of thee; With thy Bells of Shandon That sound so grand on The pleasant waters Of the River Lee.

I've heard bells chiming Full many a clime in, Tolling sublime in Cathedral shrine, While at a glib rate
Brass tongues would vibrate;
But all their music
Spoke naught like thine;
For memory, dwelling
On each proud swelling
Of thy beirry, knelling
Its bold notes free,
Made the Bells of Shandor
Sound for more grand on While at a glib rate Sound far more grand on The pleasant waters Of the River Lee.

Great Oil Pipe Line.

The Russian council of ministers, after years of consideration, have at last decided upon the construction of a great central pipe line from Baku to Batum, a conclusion of vast import to the development of the petroleum trade. It will be about 550 miles long, and the pipes will be laid parallel with the railway. For ten years at least it has been evident that the old-fashioned system of transportation of the oil by rail in tank-cars was wholly unable to meet the demands of the trade, and was preventing the industry from assuming anything like its possible proportions, but although the subject was discussed over and over again by one minister after another nothing definite was accomplished. Even now there will be considerable delay, as the authorities have decided that the pipes and all the necessary hydraulic machinery must be manufactured in Russia. The most sanguine estimate is that everything will be ready by the end of 1903, but it will probably be a year or two longer before the oil is running. With the railway and the pipe-line in full operation, the export of Russian petroleum will be increased indefinitely.

Were Dr. Koch to Make Personal Test of His Theory.

The Stratford Beacon says:

"The London Advertiser would like to see a sufficient number of thoroughly healthy people allow themselves to be experimented upon in the interests of science and humanity to clear up the problem raised by Prof. Koch as to whether it is possible to inoculate human beings with bovine tuberculosis. Dr. Koch himself did not expect such a sacrifice. He contends that he has proved by experiment that human tuwas not transmissible to cattle, but said that to prove by experiment that animal tuberculosis was not communicable to man was out of the question. The Advertiser is asking something that both the laws of God and man prohibit. Vivisection is bad enough without extending it to man."

In reply to our esteemed contemporary, we may say, in the first place, The Advertiser's idea was good-humoredly suggestive rather than serious; but an idea, at the same time, not intrinsically absurd. It does not appear to us there is any clear analogy between vivisection and a voluntary risk assumed by some man or men in the interest of humanity. In the case of vivisection, man uses his power to inflict pain on subject animals which have no alternative of escape; whereas, if a man allowed himself to be experimented upon in order to help in ridding the world of tuberculosis, the act would be one of voluntary self-sacrifice. Large risks are constantly being taken by physicians and scientists, in the interest of individuals; thousands of people risk their lives in wars, just and unjust; we do not see why it should be thought incredible there should be men in the sufficiently altruistic to take large risks for the good of mankind in the way under discussion.

We do not quite follow our contemporary in its opinion that Dr. Koch, for example, were he to decide to test on himself his theory respecting bovine tuberculosis, would be doing something that both the laws of God and man prohibit. What law of man would in such case be contravened? As for the laws of Christ, we submit that one of the highest of those laws-to which, we admit, few mortals completely attainis the law of self-sacrifice.

State of the Streets.

The streets lately have been in an undesirable condition. Some of them on recent days have been so dusty that every time the gusty wind swept in and out, the eyes and ears of pedestrians were made particularly uncomfortable. One or two of the principal blocks have been ornamented with dust heaps and littered with paper and refuse. Some of the blocks have been overwatered. and others not watered at all. What is the matter? There is no need for recriminations, and no justice in scolding back at those who call attention to civic shortcomings. The average opinion is apt to have considerable truth at its back, and it is the average opinion in London that the summer care of our streets might be vastly improved.

Improved Ocean Service.

The construction of the great new steamship Celtic, of the White Star Line, which has recently made her first trip across the Atlantic, marks a decided advance in the shipbuilding industry. The Celtic is the largest ship afloat, having a gross tonnage of 20,904. The tonnage of the Great Eastern was 18.918; of the Oceanic 17,274; and of the Deutschland, 16,500. The average speed of the first transatlantic voyage of the Celtic was a little less than fifteen knots an hour; when in her best trim she is expected to do about sixteen and a half knots an hour, or about six and one-half knots an hour less than the flyer Deutschland. Ninety-two men are required in her engine rooms and stoke-holes. Between sixty and seventy seamen and nineteen officers are employed. The passenger accommodation of the Celtic is greater than that of the largest hotel in the world; no less than 179 stewards being employed for the purpose of looking after passengers. Great strides have been made within the past few years both in the matter of increasing the size and speed of steamships. In fact, such progress has been made in this particular direction that at many ports it is with the greatest difficulty that a landing can be effected, owing to the fact that dredging has not kept pace with ship construction.

It is to be hoped that the improvement in ocean service will be followed by such a reduction in rates as will enable those of even very ordinary means to spend some time in Europe, which after all, is the trip of trips.

The Old Boys Reunion.

The reunion of the Old Boys for 1901

is over. The first year of the new century has witnessed their happy gathering. The world is changing, and whoever could have read the thoughts of the old volunteer firemen, the most unique part of the celebration, would probably have read a serious chapter. Their minds would have gone back to other days and other times, when the names of "The Rising Sun," "The Hook and Ladder," "The Rescue," "The Defiance," "The Phoenix," were familiar names; to times when trusts and combines were unknown, and when the ways of life were simpler. The old firemen formed a gray fringe to the Old Boys, and they could look backward to "years of toil," to "peaceful victories won." We believe, too, they have the right tal day. The many who came home to see the old spot seemed pleased with its home-like appearance, and with the fact that each year adds a fresh brightness to our London; that each summer finds it better than its predecessor. They were pleased, too, to know that in the thoughts and minds of the people of London and of all Canada, there is a buoyant hope for the future; a belief that the years to come will develop and disclose the vastness of Canada's possessions and the greatness of its future; that the people of Canada are contented with the present, and more than hopeful for the future. It must have done them good to feel that Canada is steadily gaining strength, and that its people are as steadily realizing it, and that great as Canada as a country itself is, its glory will be in its people-its people, when they have worked out their best destiny; when the sound, solid strong northern nation, composed almost entirely of English, Irish, Scotch, German and French descendants, will have become one without any distinction of descent-Canadian. Then Canada will be a country to be envied and its people known from end to end of the world. Time was when it was a proud boast to say, "I am a Roman citizen." The time will be when Canadians will as eargerly say, 'I am a Canadian."

Free Summer Baths Wanted.

Our contemporary the Free Press, referring to the number of drownings, thinks every boy and girl should be

But will our contemporary state where our London boys and girls have any adequate opportunity of learning to swim without expense?

In the civilized days that are coming, every city or town of any pretensions will have free swimming baths, with competent instruction without money and without price so far as the individual is concerned. There is no reason why the expense of having letters delivered should be at the common cost, that does not equally apply to free swimming baths. It is a form of sensible socialism to which there could be no obvious ob-

We have often wondered that some of our capable and aspiring men of affairs do not concentrate on some one project-one at a time-and labor at that one thing day and night till it becomes an accomplished fact. A man of ability might thus achieve good for the community and legitimate prestige for himself.

Pro-Boerism In England.

Those who wonder why there is so much in England of what the Conservatives call "pro-Boerism," may find a little enlightenment in Lord Rosebery's recent important speech. He takes the position accepted by the majority of Britishers throughout the world, that the war is on our side just because the Boers were the first to unsheath the sword, and because they marched into our territories and committed wanton aggression against the British Empire. But before he can get to that statement, there are things standing in the way that he must "pass by." He says: "I pass by altogether the negotiations precedent to the war. Although I should have much to say of them if they were practical questions. I pass by the Jameson raid, although I should fully acknowledge the responsibility of the Jameson raid for what has followed. I pass by-it was not mentioned at the National Reform Union, although the raid was mentioned-the not less serious fact of the hushing up by the South African committee-to which two of the speakers at the National Reform Union were prominent parties. I pass by that, although on my honor and conscience I believe nothing has had a more disastrous effect on the nations of the civilized world than the action of the South African committee in hushing up the proper subject which it was set to investigate. I pass by all that, etc." There are, however, a great many Englishmen who find it difficult "to pass by all that." They may admit that when you are attacked you have no alternative but to fight, but they feel that their conscience would be much clearer about the fighting if they could say that the Conservative Government had, during the six or seven years previous to the war handled the South African affairs in the spirit of honesty and fairness which the world has a right to expect from a Christian nation. A man may admit that the Boers have been guilty of mean conspiracy and mad folly, and yet he may with sorrow confess that the record of his own government is not clean. If such a man is to be called a pro-Boer, there are many of them among intelligent, high-minded

The Noise Nuisance.

About the first sensation that greets a person upon his arrival in a city is the multifarious noises-of the trolley car, the lumbering of dray wagons, the patter of hoofs on pavements, and the various noises from mechanical operations throughout the city. The extension of pavements has to a certain extent mitigated the evils connected with the street traffic and the noise of the factory and the mill is confined to particular localities. The trolley car is ubiquitous, however, the whole city is affected by its roar, and more especially those whose homes are located on streets through which the cars pass. To persons in a state of sound health the noise is not so offensive, though wearing on the nerves for all that. They do not hear it unless their attention is diverted to it. Through being accustomed to it they are in a state of semi-consciousness regarding it. But to persons in ill-health, or to those of a nervous temperament, the noise becomes unbearable. Conversation has to be stopped until the car passes, if people happen to be sitting out on their lawns in the evening. Here is an opportunity for some inventive genius to exercise his powers Anyone who could invent some way of reducing this evil would doubtless meet his reward, not only in dollars, but in the good will of the public. To quote the words of an exchange, "A successful expenditure for the reduction of noise would be a profitable investment for the company, as well as a great public convenience, for it would largely overcome one of the greatest public objections to the trolley system and would materially abate the nuisance that constitutes one of the main elements in claims for damages to real estate."

German Protection.

[Baltimore Sun.] The German consumers are justified in protesting against the tariff policy of their government. They would be warranted in resorting to any legitimate measure to overthrow a government which thus oppresses them. American protectionists, however, are not justified in uttering a word of censure of Germany. The Teuton has simply stolen their thunder.

Experimentation.

[Woodstock Express.] The London Advertiser calls for volunteers to test Dr. Koch's theory that bovine tuberculosis is not transmittible to human beings. Why not? Apparently there are lots of people in the world who are willing to risk their lives for one cause or another. Why not for the cause of humanity? If a man is willing to stand up to be shot at for the sake of getting a shot at another man, why should he not be willing to have a colony of bacilli shot into him instead of a bullet? Of course, he would not have the opportunity of shooting back, unless, indeed, some international arrangement could be made whereby people who must risk their lives for the sake of taking lives should be allowed to jab bacilli instead of bayonets into each other. The difficulty of proving or disproving Dr. Koch's theory is in getting human subjects to experiment upon. Bacilli from human beings may be tested on cattle readily enough, but is it transmittible from cattle to human beings? Perhaps from the ranks of the scientists themselves there will be volunteers. Or, why not give criminals, whose lives have already been forfeited, the opportunity of volunteering and thus atoning to society for their crimes? If the subjects should die under the experiments there would be no loss, for the lives were forfeited anyway; whether they lived or died they might be the means of blessing society with saving knowledge.

$8,000,000 FOR THE MONTH OF SEPTEMBER

Enormous Dividends of the Standard Oil Co.-$40,000,000 Handed Out to Stockholders This Year.

New York, Aug. 9 .- Stockholders of the Standard Oil Company will receive next month a dividend of $8 a share for the third quarter of year. Int the payment of this dividend $8,000,000 will be distributed by the big oil trust to its stockholders. Checks for this amount will be sent out on Sept. 16.

Directors of the company, at meeting this week, ordered this dividend. Already the company has distributed $32,000,000 in dividends this year, so that the third quarter's profits in which the stockholders will share will swell the total to $40,000,-In March last a dividend of $20 a share, of $20,000,000, was paid, and in June one of $12 a share, or a total of $12,000,000 was distributed. Last year the Standard Oil Company paid out $48,000,000 in quarterly installments of $20,000,000 in March, $10,000, 000 in June, $8,000,000 in September and $10,000,000 in December. Traders said yesterday that it was more than likely that the dividend disbursements this year would exceed those of last year, which has been the banner year of dividend declarations of the Standard Oil Company. Between the years 1891 and 1895 the company paid dividenrs of 12 per cent a year, in 1896 they amounted to 31 per cent, in 1897 33 per cent, in 1898 30 per cent, and in 1899 33 per cent. THE ROYAL TITLE!

Changes Proposed by the Different Colonies.

Suggestion of the Canadian Government Practically That Which Will Be Adopted-Approved by All.

London, Aug. 9.-A parliamentary paper has been issued, giving the correspondence between the colonial office and the governments of the different colonies relating to the proposed alteration in the royal title. In January last Mr. Chamberlain cabled to the governors-general of Canada and Australia, pointing out that King Edward's ac cession offered an opportunity of conidering the titles, and that the separate and greatly increased importance of the colonies should be recognized if possible. He ventured to suggest "King of Great Britain and Ireland and of Greater Britain Beyond the Seas," and

"It is possible that some of the self-governing colonies might desire more special recognition, as King of Can-ada, King of Australla, but this would give rise to very great difficulties. Other self-governing colonies, viz., New Zealand, Newfoundland, the Cape of Good Hope, and Natal, could hardly be excluded. It would be also desirable to refer to the crown colonies, all of which would be covered by the expression which I propose. The reply of the Canadian Government stated that they recognized the desirability of making his majesty's titles convey, not only to his own subjects, but to foreign powers as well, ome idea of the world-wide character of the empire over a nich he rules. I ney suggested for consideration the expediency of retaining the title of King of Great Britain and Ireland and Emperor of India, and adding the words "King of Canada, Australasia, South Africa, and All the British Dominions Beyond the Seas," but if the mention of greater colonies be deemed unfair to the re-mainder of smaller colonies, or otherwise objectionable, the addition to the title might be "King of All the British Dominions Beyond the Seas." The re-petition of the word "King" in the title would perhaps be open to criticism, in which case the word "Sovereign" might be used. The King's titles would then be "King of Great Britain and Ireland, Emperor of India, and Sovereign of All the British Dominions Beyond the

The Australian choice was to add "Sovereign Lord of the British Realms

Beyond the Seas.' Mr. Chamberlain then laid these suggestions before other colonial govern-ments, and from Natal, Cape Colony, New Zealand and Newfoundland, received approval of the addition to the title of the worlds "King of All the British Dominions Beyond the Seas." Lord Rosebery, in discussing the bill in the House of Lords, suggested that the addition should be "King of All Britains Within and Beyond the Britains Seas," which, he said, would do away with any idea of colonies or dependen-

DEPORTED IN A DYING CONDITION

Sad Fate of a Young Italian Woman Who Recently Landed in New York.

New York, Aug. 9.-Antonio Partoria, a young Italian woman, who landed in this country from Italy recently, was deported yesterday on an order from Washington, knowing the earnest protest of the ship's doctor, who insisted that the woman was too weak to stand the voyage.

The case is peculiar and pathetic When the girl reached New York she was lighthearted and happy. She had friends here and went to live with them, filled with ideas of good fortune and wealth in store in the new Homesickness attacked her, and soon, a victim of excitement and melancholy, deserted by her friends, she became an inmate of Believue Hospital. The order for deportation followed. When the unfortunat woman was taken to the dock vesterday she was a mental wreck and only a shadow of her former self. The official insisted on putting her on the ship. The doctor said she would undoubtely die on the voyage.

SUICIDE OF A DOCTOR.

Toronto, Aug. 9 .- Dr. Overton F. Mc-Donald, a well-known physician, shot himself through the heart yesterday. For some time past Dr. McDonald has been acting strangely, having apparently a religious mania. A little over a week ago he took a dose of poison, but the fact was discovered in time. Yesterday Dr. McDonald dressed him-self with the usual care, intending to go out with his wife and baby. The nurse noticed him walking aimlessly around the room, and finally he came out of the room, kissed his wife, and a moment later the report of a gun was heard, and McDonald was found lying on the floor dead, with the shot gun, which he had killed himself with. Dr McDonald was maried only a couple of years ago to Miss Adelaide Sullivan, a well-known society girl. Mrs. Mc-Donald is a niece of Judge Moss.

CANADA'S APPLE TRADE.

Exports Now Reach 1,000,000 Barrels a Year-Business Suffers From Bad Packing, Toronto, Aug. 9.—The National apple shippers at their meeting yesterday, decided to hold their next meeting at Rochester, although Boston and Niagara competed. Prof. J. W. Robertson, in an address upon apple growing in Canada, said that the export had now reached a million barrels a year. The business had million barrels a year. The business had, however, suffered very severely from the fault of packing. He would like to see a similar development in the apple-packa similar development in the apple-packing business as had been witnessed of late in the pork-packing business, and which had resulted in an enormous increase of trade. Inferior goods, he pointed out, always slaughtered the trade. He drew attention to the improvement in steam acommodation, there now being 25 vessels supplied with mechanical refrigerators. With the railroads, however, the best arrangement that could be made was best arrangement that could be made was to have the cars used for apples white-washed and the doors left three inches open in summer.

CENSUS RETURNS

Will Show Canada's Population to Be 5.400.000 Souls.

Or an Increase of About 600,000 Over the Figures of 1891, Which Were 508.000 Over Those of 1881—Evidence That the Figures for 1891 Were Cooked.

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—The census returns will show the population of Canada to be in round figures, 5,400,000. This will be an increase of about 600,000 over the figures of 1891, which were 508,000 over those of 1881. The returns of 1881 gave an increase of 635,000 over the figures for 1871

So far no official returns are obtained, but when they are given out it will be seen that the above is

APPROXIMATELY CORRECT.

It is needless to deny that the increase s disappointing. Everyone predicted a larger growth in the population. There were evidences on all sides during the past few years, at any rate, that the country was going ahead faster than the increase in the population shows. It is hinted in official circles that the explanation of this is that the returns for 1891, and especially in the Province of Ontario, were stuffed. Considerable information has been obtained to establish this. For instance, it is said that in that province 54 of the con-stituencies, which include part of the city of Toronto, show a decrease of about 18,000 in the population, yet the families are increased by about 13,000. This, it is said, is proof that the figures of 1891 were cooked. In one district ther is a decrease in the population, while the families and the dwellings show a considerable increase.

Questions Answered.

LONDON TOWNSHIP .- A is not by law obliged to keep his dog at home. B connot lawfully shoot it unless the dog is doing damage which otherwise could not be stopped, e.g., killing sheep. The owner of a dog is not responsible for damage done, except for killing sheep or lambs. DOG TAX.-What caused a tax to be to pay a tax on one dog? Ans.—The dog tax was made law for the protection of sheep. Farmers are required to pay the tax on one dog. The township council may pass a bylaw on the petition of 25 ratepayers that the dog tax shall not be levied in the township.

TENANT.—A person rents a house, agreeing in writing to remain one year at least; but continues as tenant for about three years. Can the tenant leave by giving a month's notice, he having paid his rent monthly? Or must he pay that fraction of a year, making up the whole of a rental year, should ne conclude to leave before the alleged rental year is up? Ans.—Upon the facts stated the tenant became a monthly tenant after the expiration of the first year, and he can, therefore, leave on giving a month's notice before the end of the next current month of his tenancy after such notice.

Passenger Train Sinks.

Chicago, Aug. 9 .- Advices received at Galveston, Texas, from Sabine, says the correspondent of the Record-Herald, states that the south-bound Southern Pacific passenger train from Beaument to Sabine Pass, fell through the bridge over Keith Lake Bayou, seven miles north of that place, yesterday. The entire train was precipitated into the bayou, almost sinking out of sight. Thirty passengers were aboard, and had it not been for the tug Earnest being anchored near by with a fishing party aboard, they would have perished in the water. The members of the fishing party and the crew of the tug hastened to the rescue, and succeeded in getting all the passengers out.

VIRTUE OF SUN BATHS

Dr. Finsen, inLondon, Talks of His Recent Experiments.

Prof Niels R. Finsen, the inventor of the lupus cure by rays of light, has just returned to Copenhagen, says the London Daily Mail. Our Copenhagen correspondent has just had a long chat with the professor, who told him all about his plans. He is a shy and rather weakly young man, full of enthusiasm for his great work.

"I hope that I and my assistants will succeed in making far greater use of the rays of the sun and the electric light. From practical experience we go to scientific experiments, which in their turn are put to practical use. "The sun was my first teacher. I was weak as a child, sometimes sick unto death, but I always kept careful watch on myself and noted the unmistakable healing influence of sunlight upon the whole of my organism. I tried to find the explanation of this fact in scientific works, but failed. Then I thought either I or the scientific works lacked experience or sunface to the scientific works lacked experience. tific works lacked something, and thus I was gradually led to the study of the chemical influence of rays of light. "After six years' study I succeeded in the winter of 1895-6 in curing in four months an eight-year-old case of

Possible Drawbacks to Their Value in

Identification. [From Knowledge]

The constancy of human finger prints has chiefly been discussed in connection with the identification of crimin-Assuming that the evidence of finger prints is to be admissible in criminal proceedings, it will be not only necessary to prove that in the case of the same man the finger prints remain unaltered, but that no two persons have identical finger prints.

Where is the evidence of this?
There are probably 1,500,000,000 men and women on the earth. Can we suppose that no two of these have identi-cal finger prints? Nor indeed is this all. We may be comparing the finger prints of a living man with those of one who has been dead for years past; and the doctrine of hereditary might lead us to expect to find similar prints in the case of parents and children, and of different children of the same It is, at all events, certain that if this finger print system were once introduced into our courts of justice there would be any amount of wrangling as to whether they were identical or only similar-experts contradicting each other and inv the whole subject in confusion. Moreover, professional criminals would probably soon find some mode of altering their finger prints. No doubt if the person who committed a crime—a murder, for example—has left the imprint of his fingers on anything it may prove an important clue; but the same thing may be said of the imprint of his boots or shoes. clue is one thing and a proof is another thing. Let us point out another difficulty. In a country where there are a large number of criminals whose finger prints are collected, the number of these will soon be very large. How long would it take to examine this collection in order to find out whether of them correspond accurately with the finger prints of the man who is now accused? The task would, I think, be a hopeless one. That finger prints may be important in the detection of crime whenever the criminal has left the print of his fingers behind him I do not dispute, but without much stronger evidence than we now possess that no persons have undistinguishable finger prints such evidence ought never to be permitted to outweigh what appeared to be a tolerably satisfactory alibi. STEAMERS ARRIVED. Calabria.... TODAY-50 GIRLS, branches housework. Mrs. Lockhart, 42 Park avenue, corner Queen's avenue.

"People seem to like it," said her brother, glancing over his catalogue, when an exclamation came from Hugh, who was in front with Mrs. Clement—an exclamation, partly pain, partly surprise, which was succeeded by an involuntary movement towards Douglas. The others came and stood before the picture.

It was, in truth, a marvelous painting, in conception, in design, in execution—all was perfect; and so minutely had the smallest particulars been attended to, that it was life-like in its reality. The two lovers stood in the quaint old room—he, with his head bent tenderly over her, her lovely face raised to his, while through the window-pain, distinctly visible, were the head and shoulders of the woman "out in the cold;" and at the anguish and woe on that lovely face Lady Donaldson, the only one of the six who did not know the face, shivered, and drew nearer to her husband.

No one spoke for a moment. With the same involuntary movement which had actuated Hugh, Kathleen turned to her brother, murmuring some tender words,

"Oh, Hugh!" said Kathleen, bursting "Oh, Hugh!" said Kathleen, bursting into tears as the two men hastened off, "it will kill him if he is disappointed!" Almost the same thought was in Sir Kenneth's mind as they hurried down the steps and hailed a hansom. It seemed such a faint hope to him. If Andree lived, surely she would not have kept her husband so long in ignorance of her existence.

In a moment the painter entered, and bowed, recognizing in one glance two of the party of English visitors they had seen at Rome.

As Douglas met the kindly, frank blue eyes, he felt that this man was leal and true, honest and faithful. But his own calmness was deserting him. The question was of such moment that he hardly dared face the answer. Twice he attempted to speak, and failed.

Mr. Fenwick glanced in some surprise from one to the other.

Sir Kenneth, perceiving his friend's inability, took the initiative.

The Editorial Shield.

Scarcely a day passes that the edit-ers of the daily papers are not visited by the friends of people who have been before the police magistrate with the request that the names of the of-fenders be left out of the paper. The good-nature of the city editors has been taxed to the limit, and some of them are considering whether their duty to the public is not sometimes overlooked in their anxiety to protect innocent persons from suffering. There are always such excellent reasons given why a prisoner's name should be omitted from the report that an editor would be convicted of hardness of heart by any jury if he should ness of heart by any jury if he should refuse the request. A woman has been caught shop-lifting. She is, of course, an eminently respectable person. She has a grown-up family of boys and girls, who would suffer untold agonies at the publication of their mother's shame. The husband is a steady, hard-working man. Besides, the woman is a kieptomaniac. She only took a pound of tea or a She only took a pound of tea or a tack hammer, or a stove lifter. The nature of the articles she purloins proves that she is not a common thief -and so on, Then the editor has visions of two nice girls employed in some factory or store, whose peace of mind is seriously disturbed by their mother's act, and would be entirely ruined if the facts were recorded in the paper and envious or mean-spirited companions read it. So the case is not reported, and one good item is

A young man is detected appropriating the funds of his employer. He is the son of a widow. Since his infancy he has not had the direction of a father, and his character is somewhat lacking in strength in consequence. His mother's happiness and his own future depend upon the editor, who must choose between shielding the boy and getting in a good news item. And almost invariably the boy is shielded.

Occasionally-at rare intervals-a gambling-house is raided, and a num-ber of nice young men are lined up before the magistrate the next day. If the keeper is in the Gambiers' Trust, a professional visits the newspaper offices, and makes a strong plea for mercy. The parents of the young men take the paper and it would cause inexpressible grief to learn through that medium that their boys had been gambling—and, worse still, that they had been caught at it. Then their employers would see it, and they would lose their positions. One of them is engaged to be married to the daughter of a leading churchman. If it came to his ears there would be trouble for true lovers. (In such cases there is trouble ahead for one of the lovers anyway.) This three-fold plea is more than the editor can stand. The angry parents, the harsh employer and the maiden melting in tears overcomes the man with blue pencil, and there is another item

A silly girl decides to elope with a minister already married. Her parents are in the forefront of society. She does not understand the enormity of her offense. Why tell the world all the story of her intention, how it was folled by an angry father? The B.A., assembled as his guests at the man has been sent out of the country. Baltimore Hotel last evening, and a The girl will come to her senses, and ultimately take her place in society. Why publish her youthful indiscretion? let it go. And another wad of copy drops on the floor for the broom of the janitor.

These are only a few sample cases which occurred the other day. Today there were others, and tomorrow will bring its grist of sadness to the sanctums. The editors will go on shielding those who do not deserve to be shielded, for the sake of those who do not deserve to suffer, and will find their reward in the development of a kindly spirit; while the readers who do not see behind the scenes-and who have not the faintest idea how many wrong-doer - imagine he is a man without a heart, and, like a celebrated individual of wide acquaintance, may devour.

Edward Piper Tries to Save His Companion From Drowning and Loses His Life.

A sad accident occurred at Port Stanlev yesterday, by which Edward Piper, of Tempo, whose father is a well-known farmer there, lost his life, while trying ed no conclusion, and unless there is to save that of his friend, Miss Mer- an alteration of plans will be resumed cer, of Westminster, with whom he at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. was out rowing on the lake. The young man was drowned in full view of several promenaders, the accident occurring off the east pier.

The rough condition of the water made boating rather risky, but as Piper | Catholic total abstillence convention was known to be an expert rower, no coming a mediator in the strike and fears were entertained by either that that he has no intention of doing so. trouble would occur, and had it not been for an effort he made to regain his lost hat, which was blown away by a sudden gust of wind, when passing from between the piers, the fatality perhaps never would have happened to bring sorrow to the loving parents, who, with their son, were enjoying the day at the Port. As Fiper reached out, the sudden motion caused the boat to lurch, the wind swung it around, and being caught in the trough of the heavy sea-the water is always rougher near the end of the piers-the boat upset, with the occupants struggling some distance away. Piper was an athletic fellow, about 26 years old, full of courage and a splendid swimmer. He set about to rescue his companion, who had twice gone down. Bishop Ireland Will Not Interfere in Steel Strike.

The Men Assume a Confident Tone-"We Have Them Licked to a Standstill," Says a Leader.

Pittsburg, Aug. 8 .- The contending sides in the steel strike are centering their energies for a show of strength on the day that the general strike order becomes effective. The United States Steel Corporation is reopening mills closed by the first strike call to show its independence of unionism and gathering strength wherever it may to lighten the effect of the general strike order, and the Amalgamated Association bends its energies to the extension of its membership, and to obtain the support and co-operation of the American Federation of Labor. The general strike order becomes effective on Saturday night, and the claims put forth on either side as to the results that will accrue from it are widely at variance. Officials of the steel companies admit that thousands of men will obey the order of President Shaffer, of the Amalgamated Association, and go out, but they positively deny that the tie-up will be general.

"LICKED TO A STANDSTILL." "We have these people licked to a standstill already," was the way that Vice-President-Elect Gibson, of Pittsburg, voiced the feeling of the Amalga-mated people. With both sides arm-ing for the conflict and a general strike but 48 hours away, many or-dinary well-informed persons hold the belief that there will yet be a settle ment of the strike.

CONFERRING WITH GOMPERS. President Shaffer devoted today to a conference with President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor who came here for a personal study of the situation before committing himself or his immense organization in any manner. The conference reach-TALK OF A MEDIATOR.

· FEELING IN ENGLAND.

"Considerable interest is being taken in England in the steel strike." the Tribune's London correspondent. "The general view is that the struggle will not be of long duration, the resources of the men not being sufficient to enable them to carry on a conflict for a lengthened period.

"So long as the strike lasts, however, it is believed that the situation must be a very grave one for America. THE LEADERS ARE SILENT.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 9.—The steel strike situation underwent but little change over night. President Shaffer and his brother officials of the Amalgamated Association, are still engaged in the effort to secure the co-operation of the American Federation of Labor.
