

RUSHING TROOPS TO GUARD MINES

Two Thousand Soldiers Will Try to Prevent Any Further Trouble in Michigan Copper Miner's Strike.

[Canadian Press.]
Lansing, Mich., July 25.—It was announced in the adjutant-general's office here today that practically every company in the Michigan National Guard was either on its way to the copper mine strike district or would be there as soon as cars are available, in response to the governor's orders late yesterday afternoon.

It was expected that more than 2,000 state militiamen would be in the strike zone before tomorrow night. Several companies are already reported there.

Considerable delay was caused in Detroit, and some of the other larger cities in the state in getting the troops away because of lack of transportation facilities.

All of the companies spent the night in their armories, however, and were ready today to board the trains just as soon as they were made up.

Brigadier-General Abby, head of the state militia, left last night for Calumet, where he will take charge of the situation.

LOOK FOR CLASHES.
[Canadian Press.]

Calumet, Mich., July 25.—Whether the coming of state troops to the copper country means an end to violence or fresh outbreaks was the chief subject of discussion in Calumet today. Many look for clashes about various shafts despite the policy of the Western Federation of Miners against the use of force by the men.

Troops will be distributed among the mines and kept within easy communication. Brigade headquarters will be in Calumet, troops placing tents about the armory and adjacent streets. Governor Ferris is being kept advised of developments, and is not expected here unless the situation takes a critical turn. Last night's mass meetings and parades developed no disturbances.

Want a Conference.
The Western Federation of Miners is holding out for a conference with the mine managers, but this, it is said, will not be granted. General Manager McNaughton, of the Calumet and Hecla, which also controls the Osceola, Tamarack, Apameck, Allouez, Lasalle, Isle Royal and Superior, has so far declined to be quoted as to the attitude of the companies.

It is believed while troops are here the mines will be reopened. It is said most of the non-union men are willing to go to work if the shafts are guarded.

In the strike area of 75 miles, 25,000 or more men are idle.

LITTLE CHAP HAS SCALP TORN OFF BY BIG WHEELS

Garfield Smith Suffers Terrible Injuries While Driving Team.

Jolted From Wagon, His Head and Shoulders Were Run Over.

Jolted from the front bolster of a wagon gear, Garfield Smith, 10 years old, of 389 Hamilton road, had his scalp almost torn from his head when the wagon he was driving passed over him on the Base Line road this morning. The lad was driving the team, his brother riding on the back of the wagon. A rut in the road caused the bolster to spring up and the young driver was thrown forward directly in front of the wagon. Both wheels passed over him.

Scalp Torn Off.
When Dr. Nelson George was called and had him removed to Victoria Hospital it was found that the scalp was half torn from the skull, that he was badly bruised about the shoulders but fortunately neither bones nor skull were broken. Unless infection reaches the brain from the terrible lacerations about the little fellow's head, Dr. George does not anticipate serious results from the accident, though the boy is in a precarious condition at the present time.

How Many More?

ALFRED WRIGHT, drowned in the Thames near East End sub-station, Thursday night.

A Chapter of Accidents.

Within twelve hours an unusual chapter of accidents occurred in London including:

- Fifteen persons injured when street car struck switching train at inter-switching crossing.
- Boy drowned in south branch of the Thames.
- Boy seriously injured by being run over by wagon.
- Boy broke both arms by falling from tree.
- Boy killed on railway near Dorchester.

FRED MINTYRE WAS KILLED BY G.T.R. EASTERN FLYER

Was Walking Down Tracks Into Dorchester and Stepped Out of Way of Freight Right in Front of Fast Express.

Fred McIntyre. A freight bound from Ingersoll to London came thundering along on the west bound tracks and McIntyre stepped out of its way directly in front of the express. He was hurled twenty-five feet, and horribly injured.

McIntyre, it is believed, was hurled against the freight, as his body was picked up between the tracks, horribly cut and bruised.

A Fine Student.
Dr. Doan, of Harrietsville, will hold an inquest this afternoon.

Young McIntyre was in London only a few days ago visiting his cousin, Mr. George Henry, photographer. He had just returned from Sandwich College where he had completed his first year with high honors. His brother Alphonse is a teacher in the college.

McIntyre was a pupil in St. Mary's School, East London, for some time after leaving the public school at Dorchester. He had won many prizes, and was regarded as an exceptionally clever lad with a bright future.

HUNGER STRIKE MAY BE FATAL TO MRS. PANKHURST

Leader of the Militants Can Be No Worse, Says Her Attendant.

Mrs. Margaret Mackworth Joins Backsliders and May Be Ostracized.

[Canadian Press.]
London, July 25.—The consulting physicians in attendance on Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who was yesterday released from Holloway jail, takes such a serious view of her condition that they ordered today the immediate resort to a transfusion of blood.

Mrs. Pankhurst's weakness and inattention from the effects of her "hunger and thirst strike" are so extreme that great apprehension is felt by the doctors as to the outcome.

"She could be no worse," was the statement made by one of the attendants today.

A BACKSLIDER.
[Canadian Press.]

Newport, England, July 24.—Mrs. Margaret Mackworth, the militant suffragette daughter of the "coal king" David A. Thomas, today joined the ranks of the backsliders, and if precedent should be followed will be ostracized by the other militant women.

Mrs. Mackworth had been released from jail, where she was serving a month's imprisonment for setting fire to a mail box, and her license, which was granted here, owing to her weakness from a hunger strike, expired today. Rather than return to jail, however, she paid the fine of $50 which had been imposed on her as an alternative to imprisonment as well as the costs.

MOTORMAN SAYS HE SAW TRAIN 20 FEET AWAY

Did Not Have Chance to Prevent Accident Though He Set Brakes.

Jokes About Glass Knocking Cap Off Tooth on Cot in Hospital.

Lying on a cot in Victoria Hospital, the injured motorman, Mr. Frank Swadling gave The Advertiser his version of the accident.

"I didn't see the cars until I was within 20 feet of them, maybe nearer than that," he said. "There were seventeen cars in the train, and we hit the third from the end. I think I must have set the brakes, because they were screeched up tight after the accident, but before I had time to do so, the train came. I was dazed, but I was not unconscious, and I got out of the car myself."

Knocked Cap Off Tooth.
"My arm was broken, my face was cut by the flying glass. A big piece of glass struck me in the mouth and knocked the cap off one of my gold teeth. I think the dentist should replace it for me at half price," he added with a smile.

Swadling expressed the deepest concern for the passengers who were injured. "I don't care so much for myself," he said, "if only nobody else had got hurt."

Tried To Be Careful.
He joined the service of the street railway last September and this is the first serious accident he has had. "I've always tried to be as careful as possible," he remarked.

In the next bed lay Mr. Charles Nickles, one of the passengers who was injured. He suffers considerable pain from the injury to his back. His wife and little son are in constant attendance at his bedside. He was unable to talk, and his version of the accident could not be obtained.

MRS. CRUMMER IS A LUNATIC

Woman Who Poisoned Herself and Children Must Go to Asylum.

RECOVERY IS UNCERTAIN
[Special to The Advertiser.]
Millbank, July 25.—Mrs. Thomas Crummer, who poisoned herself and children on Wednesday, spent a very restless night and it is feared that the chances are against her recovery.

The woman now that she is more herself again keeps crying out: "I am so sorry, I am so sorry."

When asked why she poisoned herself and children she said something in her head told her to do it.

The funeral of the eldest boy, who died as a result of the dose of poison given him by his mother, was held on Thursday afternoon to Millbank Cemetery.

Coroner Glaister, of Wellesley, after investigating the case, was thoroughly convinced that Mrs. Crummer is insane, and if she recovers she will be placed in an asylum, probably for life.

Parke won the third set from Loughlin by 6 games to 4.

McLoughlin won the fourth set from Parke by 6 games to 1.

How Did He Ever Escape?

Manager C. B. King this morning permitted The Advertiser to photograph what remains of the car that struck a freight train at the inter-switching on Thursday night. Motorman Swadling was pinned in the vestibule, and how he escaped could not be explained. The photograph was made in the paint shop of the car barns. The car had to be cut considerably before it could be hauled in.

Crossing Unprotected Says Manager King

Declares There Were No Lights to Warn Motorman—Trainmen Supposed to Watch Cross-Over.

In a statement to The Advertiser this afternoon Manager King intimated that he believed the Grand Trunk to blame for the wreck of Thursday night.

"The facts seem to be that the train was crossing the street and that there were neither street lights or lights on the train to warn the motorman," said he.

"We have always operated that crossing with the understanding that when there was any traffic going over the switch it was to be protected by the trainmen. Whether they thought it was properly protected, I am not in a position to say."

"VAGABOND ARTISTS" WALK FROM K. C. TO MONTREAL

With Little Brown Pony To Carry Outfit, Illustrators Arrive in London on Last Leg of the Journey.

Walking as an exercise is a form of recreation, if it could be called that; of the type the family physician prescribes. It wasn't any family physician, however, who prescribed a walking tour for Kerr Forman and Waldo Wallis, two advertising designers of Kansas City.

Ten weeks ago the two young men left Kansas City on a summer pleasure tour, with Montreal, P. Q., as an objective point.

This morning the adventurers twain and their little two-wheeled cart pulled by a sturdy little brown pony, entered London. This afternoon they left again on the last "leg" of their journey to Montreal, a trip they expect to complete about Sept. 1.

No Roofs For Them.
The Kansas City men, who have christened themselves "The Vagabond Artists," have never eaten or slept under a roof since they pulled out of their home town. They carry their camping equipment and food in the little cart, as well as the feed for their horse. Selling picture postcards defrays their expenses along the trip, and they expect to sell their horse in Montreal, ship their cart back to Kansas City and return home by rail.

The khaki tramping outfits of Forman and Wallis bear evidence to their long tramp, but both are the pictures of health.

"We are having a splendid time," said Forman this afternoon. "We have met with all kinds of roads and all kinds of weather, have had a couple of bad thunderstorms, but everything is going smoothly."

The tramping duet, or trio, if the little brown pony is included, entered Canada last Saturday, but laid over at Chatham for a day and a half, putting out a family washing. Their unique outfit attracted considerable attention on the streets of the city this afternoon.

With his western tour and declared he had received considerable data as to roads and other civic improvements which he would present to the council at an early date. The date of election vote was something he was unable to determine.

FIFTEEN INJURED IN CRASH OF TROLLEY INTO FREIGHT SOME GO THROUGH WINDOWS

FRANCIS FLYNN, Pottersburg, bruised and shaken up.

Travelling at a speed of between eight and ten miles an hour, Dundas car No. 98 in charge of Motorman Frank Swadling and Conductor Hooper, and occupied by about twenty passengers, collided with a string of freight cars at the intersection of the inter-switching line and Dundas street, injuring fifteen, ten of them rather seriously, shortly after 11 o'clock Thursday night.

That a number of the passengers were not killed was wonderful, as the street car went right through the side of the freight car with which it collided. The vestibule of the street car was torn completely off, and the motorman, Swadling, was pinned in the wreckage, being liberated in an unconscious condition several moments after the impact by people who attracted by the crash, which could be heard for some distance, hurried to the scene.

TWO WOMEN RENDERED UNCONSCIOUS.
Two of the more seriously injured were women, both of them being thrown from their seats and rendered unconscious for a time.

Two of the injured, the motorman of the car, and Charles Nickles are in Victoria Hospital in a serious condition, while the rest are confined to their homes today.

PHYSICIANS HAS HOPES FOR RECOVERY.
Swadling is suffering from a broken arm and internal injuries, but will likely recover, according to his attending physician, Dr. J. S. Niven. Nickles is also in a serious condition, but will recover.

Nichol is the father of the two small boys who were drowned in the Thames at the Dundas street bridge about a month ago, and has been the principal figure in a series of misfortunes lately.

ONLY LIGHT TORCH.
Only two women were on the car at the time, and the rest of the passengers were scattered about the seats and standing on the rear platform. Just before the car arrived at the track, a Grand Trunk yard engine, in charge of Engineer Larenbee and Eli Calk, fore-were hurled through the windows and onto the side of the road.

Leo Dowling, who was sitting in the rear seat, was thrown to the front of the car, striking several other passengers as he was thrown over the seats. He was rendered unconscious when his head struck the front end of the car.

Miss Dixon, of Arkona, was sitting near the front of the car, and was thrown from her seat over the heads of others. She was also rendered unconscious for a short time.

E. Nutkins was standing on the rear platform smoking at the time of the collision. He was holding onto one of the brass window protectors on the back of the car when the collision occurred, and was thrown over the back of the car onto the road, where he alighted on his head. His trousers pocket was torn off, and he lost all his money on the road. He was also rendered unconscious for a short time, but was later able to walk to the home of his sister on Mary street, assisted by two men.

MOTORMAN CAUGHT IN CRUSHED VESTIBULE.
Swadling, the motorman, was jammed in the vestibule of the car when the impact took place, and it was some time before he was liberated. He was unconscious at the time, and was hurried to Victoria Hospital, where he was attended by Dr. Niven.

Shortly after the accident occurred Continued on Page Eleven.

Plainfield, N. J., July 25.—John P. Carden, 95 years old, one of the pioneer French-Canadians of Eastern Connecticut, who came to Baltic from St. Victor, Quebec, in 1855, died suddenly at his Baltic home yesterday.

"I'm going to start an anti-noise association," said the man who is always promoting something. "How will you go about it?" "Well, the first thing is to get the public interest. I have already engaged half a dozen speakers and a brass band."—Washington Star.

A NEW MENACE.
"The day of the Slav is at hand," is the title of an article in the London Daily Mail. Next we may expect a Slav scare to take the place of the German peril. Otherwise there would be depression in the armament industry.

Of the fifteen staple field products,
eleven showed a marked reduction.
While a great deal of the land of the county has reverted to pasture in the period under review, there was no increase in animals and animal products—quite the contrary. This is the story of one of the best counties in the Province. As our Forest contemporary says, Middlesex is "favorably located,
has no waste land, has splendid transportation facilities, and a good city market in its midst." While the rural population has declined by 8,000, the population of London increased by 12,000. Middlesex, it should be noted, is not singular in its agricultural record. Rural Ontario, as a whole, has declined in population and production in the past decade, though most of the cities and large towns have grown rapidly.

Our contemporary is disposed to lay the blame chiefly upon the fiscal system. Undoubtedly tariff taxation bears more heavily upon the farmers than upon any other class, but these burdens have lightened rather than increased in the past fifteen years. Allowance must be made for the exodus to the west, which set in strongly after 1897. The acuteness of the labor problem has been also a factor in rural depopulation.

Agricultural conditions are changing
in the eastern provinces, under the influence of the west. We must expect a decline in grain-growing in favor of more intensive cultivation. This transformation cannot be effected in a day or a year, especially while labor is so scarce. With the soaring price of beef there is some compensation if much of the land withdrawn from field crops goes to grass. Happily, too, every year sees a larger area in these splendid Western Ontario counties devoted to fruits, vegetables and poultry raising.
The present is an intermediate stage, a period of transition. Farmers are the last class who should listen to the "let-well-enough-alone cry," which has been dinned into their ears by scheming politicians. Things will not be well if they are left alone in this time of changing conditions. The new agriculture in this Province will be more than ever bound up with the question of markets.

THE "BANISH-THE-BAR" POLICY.

Discussing the result of the North Grey election, a Liberal contemporary expresses strong dissatisfaction with the temperance plank in Mr. Rowell's platform, and objects to the party being committed to a proposition which,
if persisted in, will, it thinks, end only in disaster, from a political point of view.

An important element in the consideration of this matter is involved in the question, Why was it adopted in the first place? If it were simply as a matter of policy, with a view to securing a speedy victory, then its wisdom might be questioned. The street car platform politics—a platform to get on, rather than to stand on—is of very doubtful value. It sometimes has a temporary success, but it is very uncertain.

If, however, this further restriction
in the liquor traffic is advocated because it is believed to be right, that puts a different face on the matter.
Defeat, in such a case, is to be regretted, not so much because the party
would suffer as because the country would suffer. Success is a very desirable thing, but it is better to know you are right and fail, than to feel you are wrong and succeed. We all want success, and are pleased when we get it; but it is better for us, both as individuals and as a community, to deserve it, whether we get it or not.

The Liberal party claims to be a party of moral reform. Is this a moral reform? Is it in the best interests of humanity to close up the bars over which intoxicating liquors are sold?
That is, after all, the important question. If it is a reform plank, then it comes quite properly in the Liberal platform. Opposition to it should be based on principle, not on policy. The Liberal who believes in the principle,
while he will regret a temporary defeat, will not turn his back on the principle because it may not prove good policy.

A large section of the Liberal party has always favored prohibition. But the party was by no means a unit in its favor; it is not now. But it is, and has been, for a generation or two,
united in favoring the greatest possible restrictions. Sir George Ross, a lifelong abstainer and a friend of prohibition, carried the party with him as far as he could in a restrictive policy.
He would have gone further if he could. But the influence of education has been at work in the party, as it is in the country. Liberals are prepared for more advanced temperance legislation today, just as the country is more prepared for it. And when Mr. Rowell was chosen leader of the party it was because of a feeling that he would be ready to go further than his predecessor had been able to go.

Every Liberal must have realized that when the party made a forward movement it would lose something at the beginning. It might lose some Liberals who have a personal interest in the liquor trade or its numerous ramifications. And it would not expect much help from Conservative prohibitionists, whose partisanship would hold them loyal to their party irrespective of policy. But it certainly should not expect to lose any Liberal who honestly believed in restricting the sale of intoxicating liquors.

We might expect to meet with a North Grey occasionally at first. But North Grey is not the whole of Ontario. To reject a policy because it is not immediately successful is neither wise nor expedient; provided, of course, the policy is believed to be right. If the party is honest, it will stand by its guns, regardless of results.
That is not only the right thing to do,
but it will pay better—if we are to consider the matter of pay at all. What confidence could anybody have in the Liberal party if, after all we have said about liquor restrictions, we should turn our backs simply because our last advance movement did not appear to have as good and as prompt results as we could wish, or even because it might look dangerous? If we have made any enemies by going forward, we will not find them our friends by turning backward.

THE LORDS' LATEST.

The House of Lords has committed another sin against the day of reckoning by throwing out the bill to abolish plural voting.

The action of the upper chamber was expected. It would have been untrue to itself, as a bulwark of class privileges, if it had done otherwise.
The Government took good care to put the measure under the aegis of the parliament act, so that it will be passed over the heads of the peers two years hence.

The effect of the bill will be to cut off nearly half a million votes in the next general election. They are polled by well-to-do people who own property in more than one electoral division.
Probably nine-tenths of them regularly
vote for Unionist candidates.

The loss of the plural vote will handicap the Unionist party in the next general election, while the opo-sition of the party to this measure of democratic justice will be turned to good account by the Government in a campaign where the abolition of the hereditary chamber in favor of an elective one will be a leading issue.
British Liberals have to thank the stupid reactionism of the peers for their last two victories. Now they are being helped to a third one.

Local Chinese laundrymen at the hospital have gone on strike, thereby proving that they have become almost assimilated.

The British parliamentary party will see Canada from coast to coast in three days. But think how far they can see on the prairies.

The naval issue, says Claude Macdonell, M. P., is sleeping but not dead
it must be confessed that the Government shows an inclination to let sleeping dogs lie.

The Doukhobors have filed claims for $450,000 against the Government. Presumably this is a sign that this simple pastoral people are reaching a higher state of civilization.

It is now up to the Toronto News
to readjust its monopoly, and tell us how the House of Lords is saving the Empire by throwing out the anti-plural
voting bill.

Lamar, called the Wall Street wolf, must stand trial on a charge of fleeing the late Pierpont Morgan and other big operators. Too bad to let a wolf among the innocent sheep in that pasture.

A WARNING TO WHITNEY.

[Ottawa Citizen.]
There are some reforms for which there is only a spasmodic demand.
There are others that never lose their grip upon the public interest. They are quiet only that they might develop greater strength. Such a reform is that of taxation on land values only. It deals with fundamental principles only.
It appeals to the deepest sentiments of justice. It manifests its efficiency in creating new and better conditions. It will grow more strong with each new month until it has become triumphant.

Sir James is advised in a friendly way of the real power and ultimate triumph of the tide of taxation reform. Labor Day will reveal one of its big waves.
Back of the wave is an irresistible tide.

NO-SURRENDER OATES.

[Literary Digest.]
No poet now alive sings of courage more convincingly than Mr. Frank Taylor. He has a subject decidedly to his taste in the following lines (which we are taking from the London Spectator), and his treatment of it is admirable in its vigor and brevity. The proper names refer to actions in which the Sixth (Inniskilling) Dragoons were concerned:

"It was blowing a blizzard. Oates said: 'I am just going outside, and I may be some time.' He went out into the blizzard, and we have not seen him since."—The Diary of Captain Scott.

It was not in the fury and the foam,
The swift, earth-shaking tumult, and
the shout
Of close-knit squadrons, riding hard
and home,
That he went out.

For him no trumpets called with jubilant blast,
Only the ice-wind's everlasting
moan;
Alone into the solitude he passed,
Yet not alone.

For joyfully the long line of his peers,
Most joyfully those staunch old
hands and true,
Which rode at Balaklava in far years,
And Waterloo.

Warburg, and Paardeberg, and Dettin-
gen, Watched him go out into the death-
ly wild—

AN ANCIENT'S WOE.

[New York Sun.]
Methuselah was pessimistic.
"Age doesn't know any," he declared. "I now know eight hundred summer resorts where I don't want to go again."

SUPPLY OF TEACHERS.

[Montreal Examiner.]
It is quite clear that the Government of Ontario must adopt some means of increasing the supply of teachers if the schools are kept open. As a result of advertising in two Toronto daily newspapers the local board have not been able to secure a single teacher, where five were wanted.
There is a shortage of teachers in trustees that while the supply is becoming less the quality is also very poor on an average.

TRAPPED HER.

[Puck.]
"Ma, you said that I shouldn't eat that piece of cake in the pantry—that it would make me sick."
Mother—Yes, Bobbie, but you didn't Bobbie (convincingly)—But, ma, it hasn't made me sick.

A LADY OF QUALITY.

[Montreal Herald.]
Lady Saville has invited the jurors who recently awarded her a million or so from the estate of a deceased man-about-town to tea at her country house, thereby displaying a quality of taste quite consistent with her past performances. If Lady Saville be an exponent of high life in England, we do not wonder at the success of Lloyd Georgeism.

FAMILY RESEMBLANCE.

[Lippincott's Magazine.]
Pray, whom do you resemble most?
I asked the little girl.
"Your father or your mother?" And I stroked a wayward curl.
"We never have any of our own!"
In accents sweetly sweet,
"They say I've mother's features, but I have my father's feet."

FOOD FOR THOUGHT.

[Washington Herald.]
"Married only a few days and downcast?" How odd?
"You should have heard my wife's inaugural address stating what she proposes to do."

TRY HONK, HONKING A BIT AND SEE.

[Washington Star.]
"You say a pedestrian has rights the same as a motor car?" asked the querulous person.
"Certainly," replied the policeman.
"Well, maybe he has. But I can't help wondering what would happen to me if I went along the street making the same kind of noise, as some of these automobile horns."

THE GOOD OLD TIMES.

[Houston Post.]
"I see they have operated on a Philadelphia boy's head in order to make a better boy of him."
"That isn't where my dad used to operate on me to make a better boy of me."

THE SECRET.

[Washington Post.]
Statistics show that doctors live longer than members of most other professions. Why shouldn't they, when they marry all the best nurses, and refuse to take their own medicine?

MORE LIKE HIM.

[Atchison Globe.]
Short Jens always looks the most important when he is reading the market page. Still, the only thing he owns is a washtub, which his wife operates.

EASY TO GET A PERSPIRATION.

[Washington Star.]
"So you have a gymnasium in your new house?"
"Yes," replied Mr. Dustin Stax. "I spend an hour or two there every day.
I have swung up a hammock, and it's a nice cool place to take a nap in."

THE ROVER.

[Grace Crowell in National Magazine.]
The wide road, the long road,
The road for the heart of the rover.
Follow it up and follow it down,
Under the world and over.
Light o' the firefly blink and dance,
Whose tents have the need o' candle?
All day o' the road, all night o' the grass,
A flick o' the unloosed sandal.
Blink o' the stars, dip o' the dew,
Wind o'er the eerie passes.
A journey o' sleep where dream-ways keep Trust with the bounding grasses.
Dawn o' the morning, flush o' the world,
Breathe o' the wayside clover.
Shake o' the sleep from eyes that keep Thrill on the world-wide rover.
And all in the day are they comrades,
They,
Who pass him by in his going.
Man o' the mountain, man o' the plain,
Man at the way field home,
For 'tis a wide road, a long road,
The road for the heart of the rover.
He follows it up and it leads away,
Under the world and over.

TROOPS GUARD
DESPERADOES
AT SING SING

Bedlam in Big Prison All Night
as Result of Moving Convicts.

Hundreds of Prisoners Hurl
All Kinds of Threats at Their Keepers.

[Canadian Press.]

Ossining, N. Y., July 25.—Sixty convicts, the dregs of the New York city criminal class, were taken one by one from their cells in Sing Sing Prison today and placed aboard a train for the state prison at Auburn.

Recent riots in Sing Sing caused the warden to take no chances. Each convict was heavily handcuffed and shackled, and then chained to his place in the railroad car, which had been brought inside the prison inclosure.

A hundred prison guards did this work, while in the state armory not far away a company of the naval militia waited for a call to protect the town in case the transfer of convicts resulted in a prison mutiny.

The crisis to which the stormy events of the past two days have been leading was expected at Sing Sing today because the second term men, who are being transferred to Auburn, have led the recent mutinies.
They were enraged because so many of them were to be sent up-state far from their friends and relatives in New York city.

There was little sleep in the prison last night. At intervals some of the prisoners would start to howl, and bang on their cell doors, the din would increase as it was taken up down the line of cells and continue until the angry convicts had worn themselves out.

It was scarcely daylight when the wary night shift of guards was relieved by the keepers who had charge of transferring the sixty second-term men to Auburn. When the first convicts were brought out to the car Sing Sing suddenly awoke. More than a thousand prisoners rushed to their cell windows and cursed and howled and yelled their threats at the keepers.

No Easy Task.

The task of the prison authorities was by no means over when they got the prisoners aboard the car. On the train to which this car was attached
they expected to find friends and relatives of the convicts, and threats had been made that attempts to release the second-term men might be looked for anywhere between Ossining and Auburn. For this reason there were almost as many guards on the train as there were manacled convicts. The town of Ossining last night and this morning was full of men breathing vengeance against the prison authorities.

"Summer Time Is Girl Time," Says
"Janie" as Her Hammock Beats
Time To Her Own Tom's Heart
A PICTURE AND A FABLE, ALL FROM THE PEN OF ALYS GODDARD.

"Summer time is girl time," says this Janie to herself as she sits on her frilliest frock and filmiest laces and bands her supple waist with her prettiest sash and rushes down the flower-lined walk to where the hammock swings. Here she has promised to meet Tom. At thought of him she blushes pink as the roses that bend to caress her cheek as she sinks into the hammock.

Tom, coming within the cool, quiet shade from the dusty and noise-laden streets, thinks that Janie is the sweetest thing the joyous summer day can hold—the prettiest picture that ever filled the eye of man. From the top of her bronze-crowned head to the very tip of her dainty slipped foot, Janie is the embodiment of HEART'S DESIRE!

"Summer time is love time, sweetheart," Tom whispers, as he looks down into the depths of her golden-flecked brown eyes, "and love time is our time—just yours and mine. This long, lazy summery afternoon was only made that I might murmur to you the story of my love. For summer time is girl time—boy time—love time—and I love you."

3. What is the meaning of Lena, Frank, Willie, and Leonard?
4. Am I too young to go out with a boy friend?
5. What do you think of my writing? Hoping to see this in print, I thank you.

1. They should come to within six inches of the floor.
2. Shades of brown should be most becoming to you.
3. Light, free, resolute; brave as a lion.
4. Yes, Annie, I think you are.
5. It is fairly neat. You might, however, pay more attention to your spelling.

KATHERINE LESLIE'S HOME CHAT

HIS "MOTHER'S COOKING"

I suppose it is a wonderful thing to a boy, to see a healthy active boy, visibly growing, eat breakfast or dinner or tea. His capacity for more, is a sight to make middle life miscall its day and generation and to dub it a thing of vanity and vexation of spirit. Bread may be sour, butter by no means up to the standard of the elderly epicure, steaks or chops may be tough, potatoes sodden, and pastry and cake heavy to the jaded appetite, but, with the gastric juices in full flow and power, what do these things matter to a hungry boy who has romped and played all day or worked all day in the fields? The boy is hungry, and did we not learn in our far off Latin class that hunger is the mother of the epicure? To be truly hungry after the manner of the boy is not given to oldsters. The meal that a boy with his ravenous appetite could digest in a couple of hours would assuredly lay a foundation, roll the skirts over and over toward the front, first the right side of the skirt, then from the left, so forming two rolls that lie parallel to each other. If the garment has to be folded crosswise to admit of its being packed in suitcase or trunk, place a wad of tissue paper or newspaper underneath the crease. Skirts so packed take very little room and show no traces of travelling.

Tips For New Travellers

A Steamer Box.
For a friend who was given a trip to Europe by her father, I decided to get up a steamer box. She was to be on the water six days, so I asked eleven of the girls with whom we were both upon intimate terms to send me a little present for her. I asked them to send gifts small both in size and price. I wrapped each gift in tissue paper and tied it with baby ribbon. On the outside of each package I wrote the day upon which it was to be opened, and these packages were then packed in the smallest box that I could squeeze them into. I gave my friend instructions that she was to open only two of the packages a day. Among the contents of the box were: a diary, an ink pencil, a package of envelope paper, a wash cloth in a rubber-lined case, a powder bag, an embroidered jabot, and small boxes of candy and nuts.

Summer Trip Shoe Bag.
Make a cretonne shoe bag the size of the back of your trunk, and tack it with four thumb tacks in the top tray. It is easily adjusted to the back of the trunk when your destination is reached, and will not interfere with raising the lid. The most serviceable and durable dressing gown for the traveller is made of some dark, inconspicuous, not transparent material. Crepe de chine is ideal for summer wear. A dressing gown of this material in a dark color can be worn comfortably for months. It does not show soil easily, and when it is soiled it can be easily washed and will look as well after a trip to the laundry as before. A dark gown, besides the fact that it will not show soil so quickly as a light one, can be comfortably worn on the way to the bath on shipboard and in the corridors of hotel or pension.

Edward R. Hardy, jun., is only five years old, but he can speak English, French, Italian and German! He is a student—the youngest ever enrolled—in the New York University. When he grows up, he is to be the rector of the great Trinity Church of New York!

How's that for a program for a little 5-year-old boy? But just now Edward is a whole lot more interested in boy fun than in anything else. He loves his brightly-painted drum, and his gun is a regular companion of his.

A Kindly Desire.
It does the heart good to read in an American newspaper of the home for convalescent girls, opened this summer just out of New York city, through the generosity of a young girl, Miss Nettie Gerston. This young woman, who is favored with a considerable amount of worldly wealth, possesses what is better still, sympathy, and the desire to devote a portion of her money, at least, towards helping some of the less fortunate girls of her home city.

She realized how dreary must be the outlook of a girl just released from hospital, with most of her little savings gone, and the doctor's injunction about change of air, nourishing food, rest and recreation, still ringing in her ears. Miss Gerston could not help all the girls in New York who were thus situated, but she determined to make life brighter for a few, anyway, so the little convalescent home was built where any girl, preferably between the ages of 16 and 26, may stay for 25 cents a day. This small fee includes three meals, lodging, and delightful resting facilities out in the open. Plenty of magazines and books are provided, and a sewing machine, with inexpensive make shirtings for themselves during their stay. Perhaps best of all, the ocean is near at hand, and the girls may get the full benefits of salt air and bathing. Nine girls can be accommodated at once in the little home, and the attractive, though simple, sleeping-rooms are seldom vacant.

Don't Neglect Little Things.
When you read something of this sort, doesn't it make you wonder how much of money to spend on making people happy? Perhaps there is not one of us who has not said to herself, "Oh, if I only had as much money as So-and-so, how much good I'd do!" And in the desire to do the great good to the great number, we forget to perform the little helpful deeds which are really within our grasp. How about the call on the invalid friend that you have been putting off all summer? One week you told yourself that it was too hot; the next, too wet; perhaps another time you were busy preserving, and so the summer months are half-gone and still the call is delayed. Yet how much cheer you could have brought to the poor sick one just by chatting to him or her for half an hour, and leaving some little token of fruit, jelly or flowers behind you!

And letter-writing—how many of us have been heard to say that "we just hate letter-writing"? Perhaps if we realized how anxiously our epistles were awaited by the good people in some distant rural locality, or in the wilds of the Canadian west, or possibly in the heart of a crowded city; perhaps if we knew how the letters were pored over, read and re-read, how the news was commented on, and the little jokes and incidents appreciated—perhaps then we should be more faithful in the matter of answering letters. They are but another little means whereby we may bring brightness into the lives of others, without having to be rich and great to do so.

How to Arrange Your Furniture

A well-known furniture dealer says that if women would have furniture appear at its best advantage, it should never be set with all lines the same way. Not that things should go "every which way," as the children say, but the monotony must be broken.

For instance, suppose there is a day-bed, or a couch, of some sort in the living-room. It will look much better if backed up against a table or possibly against a corner than just set straight across the end of a sofa or at one side against the wall. It should be arranged in some way to look comfortable, somewhere near a window or where the light may be near a table that any person sitting or lying on the couch can see to read if he or she desires.

Study Your Rooms.
An intelligent study of the rooms of those who can afford to let their taste run to the best examples will show that tables, couches, etc., are nearly always near the centre of the room instead of standing primly against the walls. Such an arrangement makes the room look 100 per cent. better than any other, simply because they show a reason for owning these pieces of furniture.

Every room should have a centre of some kind. Usually a fireplace is in such a position. Take this as a centre about which to group chairs, etc., and stillness vanishes. The piano, a pretty table with an electrolux or lamp, a big easy chair, a tea table, with its perfect equipment, all these things, if placed handsomely give a homelike air that is very attractive and charming.

Sofa cushions may be placed at different angles, pictures hung and bright little rugs laid on another side of the room, vases and other bric-a-brac may be moved to other places in the room, and the housewife may so vary the monotony of her room that it seems to gain life to those who are obliged to occupy it.

There may be and often is something that jars of which the most conscientious home mistress is totally unaware until by mere chance she moves the article that produced it. A room may be overcrowded, a grave fault easily remedied, and here the process of elimination does a world of good. Change the looks as you do the air of your rooms and add to their beauty.

Chaput then walked Polan, filling the bases. Robertson hit a vicious line drive right into Myers' hands at the short stop.

New Achievement in Annals of Professional Sport if Deal Between Ottawa and Montreal Clubs Is Put Through—"Skene" Ronan for Pitcher Carlo.

[Canadian Press.]
Montreal, July 25. — If a deal which is under way today goes through, a new achievement will have been attained in the annals of professional sport. The deal under way is no less than a proposition to trade a professional hockey player for a professional baseball player.

League, came to Montreal, seeking baseball talent to reinforce the champions of last year. He approached Lychenbren, but the only player who could be offered was a young Canadian whose name he started for the local team, failed to quite come up to International League class.

The Ottawa baseball club has some

Ronan, thrack Ottawa wing man, and Tony Carlo, a pitcher secured by the Royals from the Fedders, the two players involved in the prospective deal.

Sam Lychenhein, managing director of the Canadian Club in the International League, controls also the fortunes of the Wanderer hockey team. Yesterday a representative of the Canadian Baseball Association was talking to do with the hockey club, and then talking over the prospects of the baseball team. "I'll come home," he said. "I'll give you Carlo for Ronan." Offered President Lychenhein, and the Ottawa club would be the deal. "It could be arranged the deal would be made. It is under way today, and it will be completed soon," he said. "I am not unlikely to go through. Ronan will be able to be sailors to come to Montreal."

Struck Out Hilliard Three Times With the Bases Full—White Gets Big Reception in Liftlock City.

Peterboro, July 24. — Bill Stoeffert had one of the luckiest days of his picking career today, when, after starting bad in several innings, in which the Petes put a man on two and three bags, he held the homesters scoreless. Rowan, Manager White got the first run for Berlin, when Strobel brought him in from third, and the big boosters' day crowd gave the former White Cap a big reception. Sterling twirled a clever game for the Petes.

CHAMBERS' AYLMER RINK BEAT LONDON THISTLES IN FINALS FOR LABATT TROPHY BY 27 TO 19

Visiting Rink Outbowled Langford's Men in Final Stretch and Overcame London's Lead—Haisley, of Toronto Queen Citys, Captured the Tecumseh Trophy, Beating Smiley, of Paris, in Finals.

The Labatt trophy will repose in the village of Aylmer until the next W. O. B. A. tournament happens along. Skip Albert Chambers and his formidable rink captured the big mug yesterday afternoon by defeating Skip A. A. Langford in the finals. The score was 27 to 19. It was the second time in two years that Langford had been up in the finals, and while he and his rink are to be sympathized with, a great deal of credit and praise must go to the plucky Aylmer four, who fought their way all through the Labatt to finally emerge triumphant with the coveted honors. Had the Langford rink won, the trophy would have decorated the new Thistle Club rooms for all time to come, and a new Labatt mug would have taken its place next season.

Haisley Won Tecumseh.
The Tecumseh trophy will also spend the next eleven or twelve months outside of London. H. A. Haisley's Toronto Queen City four, the same rink, with the exception of R. B. Rice, who is at present with the Canadian bowlers in Ireland, that won the Labatt last year, defeated Jimmy Smiley, of Paris, in the finals and captured the trophy. It was a close game all the way through Haisley winning it on his last end by one of his own bowls. The Toronto rink played a good steady game throughout and deserved to win. The rink is composed of a nice lot of bowlers, and it will be welcomed back next year. Skip Haisley says that maybe next year they will get the McNeen, and then they will have won them all.

Big Crowd Sees Labatt Finals.
The finals in the Labatt were watched by a large crowd, a large number of the fair sex being present. The game was an interesting one and filled with exciting moments. Langford was leading for some time, and his men were bowling a nice game, but a couple of six ends caused their defeat. Chambers scored three on the first end, but Langford got 8 on the next three. Then Chambers scored a six-end and led until the tenth end. Here Langford took the lead by scoring four. The Thistles were in the lead until the sixteenth end, when the visitors got six. This marked the beginning of the end for Langford. He scored one on the next end, but after that faded, and the Aylmer people ran up a lead that could not be overcome.

Chambers' Great Shot.
Chambers was largely responsible for the victory. On the 16th end he was lying shot, but Langford's bowl was second shot. Both bowls were close on the kitty, and only a narrow pot opened a way to the London bowl. With the counter of the way the Thistle rink would count six, Chambers decided to take the chance and play his next bowl to remove the Langford one. He made a beautiful over-the-draw and took the London bowl out on an ass whet. It was this shot that practically won the game for him. The six end gave him a lead that was never overhauled.

The Aylmer rink has been visiting the W. O. B. A. for a number of years, and their win this year is a popular one. In previous years there are generally three or four Aylmer rinks present, but this year only two of them came and both made splendid showings.

McNeen Down to Semi-Finals.
The McNeen event narrowed down to the semi-finals last evening. This trophy may also be carried out of town. McGillivray's rink, who were in the semi-finals, and, judging by the way it is going, stands a good chance to win the cup. "Jim" McDougall's London Rowing rink is also in the semi-finals, and these two fought it out for the final this morning.

The Scotch doubles are also narrowing, although there are many games left to play yet. They will be finished sometime this afternoon.

THE STORY BY ENDS.
1st End.—Hill drew two nice shots for Aylmer, Gillespie hit the 12th and was lying shot, but Langford's bowl was second shot. Both bowls were close on the kitty, and only a narrow pot opened a way to the London bowl. With the counter of the way the Thistle rink would count six, Chambers decided to take the chance and play his next bowl to remove the Langford one. He made a beautiful over-the-draw and took the London bowl out on an ass whet. It was this shot that practically won the game for him. The six end gave him a lead that was never overhauled.

Chambers counted on a bowl that was a yard from the kitty.
Aylmer 21, London 19.
19th End.—Langford's rink had a couple of shots, when Chambers played a runner and made it a dead end. The end was played over, and Gillespie, Fetterley and Bluet had lay shot when Dr. Fear played runner and took all three of them out. Aylmer lay two shots on an open kitty, and Langford drew in on his last one and out one of them.

Aylmer 23, London 19.
20th End.—Hill lay shot on his first bowl, but Gillespie drew in behind on his second bowl and lay shot. Fear spoiled by taking kitty out, and Aylmer lay 4. Bluet drew in and out one of the Aylmer shots. Langford's first bowl hit a hard place of ground and bounced. His second was wide.

Aylmer 26, London 19.
21st End.—Langford lay a couple of shots early in this, but Aylmer 19 was bunched all around. Chambers drew in for shot, and although Langford tried hard to get it out he could not, and Aylmer scored 1.

Final score: Aylmer 27, London 19.

BASEBALL WITH WOODSTOCK; LACROSSE WITH ST. MARYS

Big Double Bill at Tecumseh Park on Saturday Afternoon.

London fans will have the opportunity of seeing the Hyman baseball team and the London lacrosse team in action again tomorrow, when a big double bill of baseball and lacrosse will be staged at Tecumseh Park. The Hyman team, which is going very good at present, will meet the strong Woodstock club in what promises to be the best game played in the W. O. B. A. this season. The Hyman club has been considerably strengthened of late, and is putting up a fine brand of the great pastime. Manager Parker announced this morning that he would pitch Jack Gillis, the local boy who has won so many games for the Hyman club, and he has also a new pitcher in reserve in case Gillis goes bad.

The lacrosse game will be between St. Marys and London. The St. Marys team is at present leading this district, but a win from them tomorrow will put them down even with Brantford, owing to the victory of the Brantford club over St. Marys on Thursday. If the London team can win the remainder of its games, and Brantford can trim St. Marys once more, the district will be tied.

J. M. Wrong is a splendid second man. He does not care so much about getting shot, as laying his bowls down so that they will cut off. The other fellows scoring a big end, should the kitty be raised. He was usually a trifle strong, and the wisdom of this was seen on many ends when the jack was raised.

Dr. Fear did not play his usual good game at the start, but he was going like a house on fire at the finish. His running shot prevented a big London score on the nineteenth end.

Phil Fetterley played a nice game after he warmed up to it. In the early ends he did not get the distances right, but he put in some great draws in the final stages of the game.

ECHOES FROM THE GREENS

It was a nice game between Langford and Chambers, and up to the 15th end it was anybody's victory. Langford was leading for the greater part, but those six ends were too much for the Thistle rink.

Claude Bluet played his usual good game, while Skip Langford's shots were particularly effective. The big Thistle skip was strong on draw shots, and several of these he hit in the kitty when Aylmer was lying shot.

Aylmer is having an old boys' reunion in August, and one of the chief things of interest in the old town will be the Labatt trophy, according to Dr. Fear.

Following the Labatt trophy game, the winning rinks were presented with the prizes. President-elect Pete Bayden made the presentations. Dr. W. J. Fear responded for the Aylmer rink, and A. A. Langford said a few words for the London rink.

Skip Haisley and his players were also presented with prizes at the same time. The Queen City skip made a brief reply, and stated that they would be back again next year. One of the presentations made to the winners of the Tecumseh trophy was a refund of their board bill at the Tecumseh House. George O'Neill, donor of the Tecumseh trophy, makes a habit of doing this every year, and it always gets him a lot of appreciation.

Lead E. W. R. Hill, of the Aylmer rink, was the biggest man on the green in the Labatt finals. He was taller than Skip Langford, and looked to be heavier than Dr. Fear. He played a nice lead game for the winners, and had a share in the victory.

HE OUGHT TO SEE OUR GREEN PEAS
"Why don't you work in your garden and get a pepper?"
"The appearance of the vegetables in my garden," replied Mr. Crossroads, "encourages an appetite."

England and the United States Play Davis Cup Games Today

Both Teams Appear To Be in Splendid Condition for the Big Match—Courts Are in Good Condition and Big Crowd Begins to Arrive Early.

[Canadian Press.] Wimbledon, England, July 25.—Play in the challenge round of the Davis international tennis trophy, in which the United States team meets the English holders, began today under ideal weather conditions. Maurice E. McLoughlin, of San Francisco, had been drawn against J. C. Parke, while R. Norris Williams, of Philadelphia, was matched against C. P. Dixon in the first two singles matches. The famous centre court of the All-England Lawn Tennis Association ground, although showing signs of wear after the strenuous season, was in fairly good shape. All the reserved seats had been sold in advance, but the crush at the opening was not so great as at the match between A. F. Widding and Maurice E. McLoughlin for the All-England lawn tennis championship, which was won by the New Zealander. The American players spent the morning on the courts under the coaching of Robert D. Wren, president of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association, and Harold H. Hackett, captain of the American Davis cup team. Both McLoughlin and Williams appeared to be at the top of their form. The English players, who had just returned from a series of tournament matches in various parts of Great Britain, seemed also to be in splendid condition. Parke appeared early on the practice court, passing balls with A. E. Beamish, the well-known English player. The referee announced that no decision had been made in regard to the wearing of splices, the American players being allowed to wear them if they chose. McLoughlin and Parke played the first match. McLoughlin came on to the court first and when Parke followed he was seen to be perspiring as a result of his fast practice with Beamish. McLoughlin served first and won the first point in the match. McLoughlin won the first set from Parke, by 10 games to 8. Parke won the second set from McLoughlin by 7 games to 5.

He was put out of the finals by McDougall in the early morning games.

SHORTSTOP DUNLOP WILL GO TO CLEVELAND

London Club Will Be Paid $1,500 For Him, It is Said, When He Reports At End of Season.

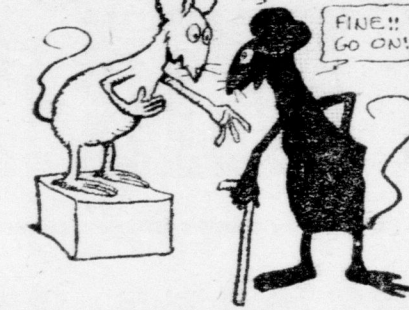

Shortstop George Dunlop, of the London ball club, will get a try-out with Cleveland, following the end of the Canadian League season, according to an unofficial statement this morning. The deal has been pending for some days, and it is believed that President Stevely completed the deal a few days ago when he paid a visit to President Somers, of the Cleveland club. According to the statement given out, the London club will be paid $1,500 for the big shortstop if he makes good. Part of this amount will be paid out as soon as Dunlop reports, and the other piece of it will be handed over when the player delivers the goods. Dunlop will finish the season with London. Several big league scouts have been in the city looking him over and it is believed the Cleveland club bought him on the strength of Scout Bill Reidy's recommendation.

Stars in A. A. U. National Championship

H. P. DREW.

F. KELLEY.

A fitting finale to a week of great athletics, beginning with the finish of the Boy Scouts' run from Washington, Chicago staged the senior championship contests of the Amateur Athletic Union.

The greatest athletes of the land assembled in the Lake Michigan City to struggle for medals and honors. The biggest point winner of the meet was H. P. Drew, the marvellous colored sprinter, who won the 100 and 220 yard dashes. Drew was a member of the American Olympic team last year. Kelley, the coast flyer, was another star performer, winning the 120-yard high hurdles from the fastest field that ever ran in the event in the United States. Kelley won in the last stride, fairly throwing himself upon the tape ahead of the next man.

This was the last game of the season for First Methodist, and they were only once victorious out of eight games played. They held the record for tall-orders of the league all the way through. Clarke for Wellington Street pitched a good game and was well supported by Campbell, Lashbrook and Higgins did battery work for the First team. Tonight at Queen's Park Dundas Centre and Hill Street play. A good game is anticipated.

A SLIGHT MISTAKE.

The tourist stood and gazed in wonder at the hill—such a hill. It was amazing! lovely, gorgeous! magnificent! enough to make an emotional poet swell with ecstasy. The beautiful flowers studded here and there among the deep-green fields, opening out their gaudy petals to drink in the warm rays of the summer sun were splendid. The tourist almost ran past the girl who was sitting there—he had scarcely taken two steps up its sloping bank when the girl jumped up with a scream. "You—you brute!" she shrieked. "How dare you trample over my hat!"

BEACHES AT PORT IN AWFUL STATE; AGREEMENT FAILS

Public's Playground Is Littered With Rubbish and Given No Care.

Village Has Failed to Provide Water System or Maintain Roads.

Port Stanley conditions are calculated to give members of the London and Port Stanley Board trouble before the year is ended. Over a year and a half ago the city entered into an agreement with the village municipality of Port Stanley, whereby the village was given rights of way for two roads across the beach. In return for this the village agreed to maintain the roads and to pipe water along the beach for the use of picnickers, placing several hydrants at convenient places along the route of these roads. The roads have never been maintained, neither have the promised water hydrants been installed. The combination of the two has been a direct violation of the agreement, but so far no action by Mayor Graham or the London and Port Stanley board to see that the violated clauses were lived up to. Strenuous criticism is now being levelled at the board because of its failure to see that the citizens were provided with the water. Beaches in Dirty State.

Another objection that will be pressed against the L. and P. S. board's management of affairs is the dirty condition of the beach. It is claimed by hundreds of citizens who have visited the Port this summer that the beach was never so littered before, and that the services of one man, who would be constantly employed in picking up refuse and picnic litter, would make a 1,000 per cent difference in the natural beauty and attractiveness of the city's own summer resort.

"It is a disgrace the way they keep the beach," said one citizen this morning. "Years ago when the picnics were held up on the hill things weren't so bad, but now—well now it's no pleasure to be on the dirty beach. They ought to clean it up and keep it cleaned up."

Poor Sanitation. Sanitary arrangements are admittedly of the worst type, and there is a strong possibility that the health authorities of the village may step in and close the lavatories that are scattered over the beach. The doors of these places have been wrenched off, and they are all in wretched condition. According to the testimony of those who have been to the Port this summer, London is vitally interested in the welfare of the Port, and the mismanagement of the affairs of the London and Port Stanley board is something that has aroused resentment among the city hall. The L. and P. S. is to be turned back to the city next year, but so far City Engineer W. N. Ashplant, who is by virtue of his office, engineer of the London and Port Stanley, has never been ordered by the board to make an inspection of the road.

ASPHYXIATED HIMSELF. [Canadian Press.] New York, July 25.—Robert Schroeder, a wealthy retired stockbroker, committed suicide by inhaling gas in the same manner his wife had ended her life a year ago, and in the same room. He had been dependent since his wife's death.

GRAVE DANGER IN LATEST MOVE MADE BY TURKS

News of Invasion of Bulgaria Created Consternation in London.

Jealousy and Mistrust Is Paralyzing European Powers Diplomacy.

[Canadian Press.] New York, July 25.—A cable to the Tribune from London says: News of an exceedingly grave character reached London last night and is confirmed in authoritative quarters. It may be summarized as follows:

A Turkish force, whose strength is not stated, but which appears to consist of Kurdish cavalry, has invaded old Bulgaria. The town of Jamboul has been occupied, and, according to official telegrams, sacked, with other towns and villages. Against this fresh act of aggression on the part of Turkey, Bulgaria has already lodged a protest with the powers.

Dangerous Situation. By carrying a campaign of reconquest from Adrianople into what cannot possibly be claimed as anything but Bulgarian territory, Turkey has created a new situation full of dangerous possibilities. So far as can be judged, the force which made this incursion is part of the cavalry division which accompanied Enver Bey to Adrianople, and which has evidently now pushed northward with a speed by no means reckoned on by those who imagined the Ottoman army lacked the necessary mobility and transport for such an advance.

Caused Surprise. When the intelligence of this move by Turkey arrived in London, the conference of ambassadors was sitting at the foreign office, and it is understood that the information caused a feeling akin to consternation. Their excellencies had been engaged in discussing the position created by the reoccupation of Adrianople, and fully recognized that this latest instance of Turkey's resolve to defy the powers, and tear the treaty of London up was calculated to increase the difficulties of a situation already sufficiently complicated.

Unable to Agree. The ambassadors, however, were unable to agree what to do, and it is evident that European diplomacy is semi-paralyzed by personal jealousy and mistrust.

Very little is now needed to break up the coalition which even now is little more than a name. If Europe cannot agree on common action, Russia will take the matter in hand alone and will put into effect her historic policy by occupying Armenia. It is known that she is at this moment ready to take this step. France and Great Britain are pressing her not to complicate the situation, and Russia is temporarily awaiting events. It appears doubtful whether any armistice will be signed at Nish until peace preliminaries have been arranged. Greece and Serbia have been given rights of way for the way of an armistice, while pushing their attacks in the direction of Sofia. It is reported that Roumania has warned Serbia and Greece that if they occupy the Roumanian frontier, her army will be ordered to occupy Sofia first.

REJECT PROPOSAL. [Canadian Press.] Bucharest, July 25.—Greece and Serbia today both definitely rejected the Russian proposal for the conclusion of a provisional armistice during the conference at Nish. The two Governments say they can only consent to the cessation of hostilities after the signing of an armistice and of the peace preliminaries.

Will Keep Order. After he has rid the prison of the second-term men to be transferred to Auburn, Warden Clancy expects to have no more trouble keeping order. The rest of the second-term convicts are to be sent away tomorrow. To them and a few of their more desperate sympathizers the warden attributes the mutinies that broke out at Sing Sing this week, the two fires in the prison shops which caused more than $150,000 damage, and the attempt to murder a negro convict whom the matrons regarded as a traitor.

Plots Failed. The attempt to burn the shoe shop yesterday was frustrated, and a strike among the shoe workers was foiled because the warden had been warned of them in advance. Some of the convicts believed that information had reached Mr. Clancy through a negro known in the prison as "Texas Jack." Yesterday evening as the shoe workers were filing out of the workshop five of the convicts with shoe knives in their hands leaped upon the negro and slashed him so savagely that he may die.

ACCIDENTALLY DROWNED
Harold Beswick Lost His Life in Lake of Bays.

[Canadian Press.] Toronto, July 25.—Harold Beswick, clerk in local insurance office and son of George Beswick, of Orangeville, was drowned off Dwight, Muskoka, in the Lake of Bays, last night. He and G. D. Atkinson, also of Toronto, left Toronto on Tuesday for their vacation, taking with them a new motor-boat, and it is understood that Beswick was drowned from the boat. The body was recovered and interment will be at Orangeville.

TWO MORE VICTIMS
Thirty-One Bodies Have Been Recovered at Binghamton.

[Canadian Press.] Binghamton, N. Y., July 25.—Two more bodies, or fragments of bodies were recovered from the ruins this morning, making 31 which have been taken out of the debris. The examination of the ruins was finished at 9 o'clock today, and there are still nine bodies to be accounted for. Affidavits were filed that women had been seen lying along the north wall as the building fell, and these ruins are being uncovered.

WILL VISIT MONTREAL. [Canadian Press.] Quebec, July 25.—Mr. Labori, batonnier of the Paris (France) bar, accompanied by Mme. Labori, their three daughters and secretary, left for Montreal this afternoon.

DEPORTED 34

Great Majority Were Either Diseased or Too Poor.
[Canadian Press.] Quebec, July 25.—The immigration authorities deported 34 undesirable immigrants by the Empress of Ireland yesterday afternoon. With two exceptions, they were Russian Jews, Syrians and Arabians. The Quebec Canadian agency reported 18, the American officials 11, while five were from Montreal. Two were insane and were suffering from trachoma, and two others were suffering from tuberculosis. The balance were pauper immigrants.

WHITMAN AT QUEBEC. [Canadian Press.] Quebec, July 25.—District Attorney Whitman, of New York, arrived in Quebec last evening on the steamer Trinidad. He will spend a few days here taking in the sights of Quebec.

IN THE POLICE COURT

Robert King is a brave from the Oneida Indian reserve. In the old days Robert would have been a heap big fighter, and would have rejoiced in a name that would have sounded like "Kai-Em-Alive," or words to that effect. The red man is no longer a warrior, but, just the same, Robert is a fighter. The main thing he fights is the white man's firewater. One hundred years ago he would have taken scalps. Now he takes drink.

Yesterday morning Robert was released from the county jail at 7 o'clock, after having served 21 days for being drunk. Three hours later he was in the tolls again, having accumulated a glorious cargo. When he appeared this morning he drew another 21-day sentence, just by way of a lesson that fighting even booze is taboo in the best Indian circles of today.

One Lung's Brother.

Louie Lung runs a laundry. According to Percy King, the chief of police and Health Inspector James Luntan, he doesn't run it right. He and his employees sleep and eat in the laundry room, contrary to the provisions of the Ontario act. This morning Louie failed to appear in answer to the charge. The case was enlarged until tomorrow, and a warrant issued for Louie, to make sure that he would appear.

Too great a load of firewater was responsible for the appearance of two brothers in the county court. They were charged with being drunk and disorderly.

Ambassador Wilson Is In New York

[Canadian Press.] New York, July 25.—Henry Lane Wilson, United States ambassador to Mexico, arrived today on his mission to discuss Mexican conditions with President Wilson and the Department of State. The steamer Mexico, on which he sailed from Havana July 22, was off Sandy Hook, at the entrance to New York harbor, at 10 a.m. Wilson was expected to reach Washington tonight.

WEDDING BELLS

FEHLER-PETERSON. A quiet and pretty wedding took place at 150 Colborne street, on Wednesday evening, when Miss Annie Elizabeth Peterson, the youngest daughter of Mrs. Peterson, of this city, was married to Henry Charles Fehler, of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. McKibbin. The bride wore a dress of pale blue satin, and carried white roses and lilies of the valley. They will reside in this city.

LITERATURE AND DIPLOMACY.

"We have today no fewer than five met of letters to represent the United States at European courts," says the New York Nation. "London has W. H. Page, Rome has Thomas Nelson Page. Dr. Van Dyke is appointed to The Hague. Maurice F. Egan, now minister at Copenhagen, is reported to be in line for promotion. President Schurman, of Cornell, is our minister at Athens. Mr. Meredith Nicholson, also, was asked to go to Lisbon. If Mr. Wilson keeps up the pace set by the nomination of four bookmen in a row, the conditions obtaining when Motley, Lowell, John Bigelow and Andrew D. White were ministers plenipotentiary, and Bret Harte and W. D. Howells combined the pursuit of literature with the performance of consular duties at Glasgow and Venice, of this reproduced in kind if not in degree. Ambassadors and legations for successful writers and editors, humble posts for writers who still have to make their way, might render the life of our State Department a treasure house for the future student of American literature."

What the King and Queen Saw In the Workshops of the World

The Royal Visit to Lancashire—Half the Cotton Trade of the World—Why Lancashire Excels—The Geniuses of Other Days.

The King has finished touring Lancashire with the Queen, the object, as the King explained in his reply to a county address, being to extend their acquaintance with the industries of Lancashire, and more particularly with the men and women on whose devotion and energies, under Providence, these industries depend. Some idea of the enormous growth of the country since her mechanical geniuses began to apply automatic actions to machinery, which, with the aid of steam power, gradually replaced the small and innumerable domestic workshops by the establishment of the ever-expanding factory system, is to be found in a most informing article by Mr. James Haslam, in the Liverpool Daily Post.

Half the Cotton Trade of the World. "Our chief industry," he says—"in fact, now the chief industry of the country—is that of the manufacture of cotton fabrics. And what fine tales we could tell its majesty about this—about its beginning, its growth, its present importance to national wealth, its world supremacy, its real men and women, and lads and lasses, who work it, its ever-recurring struggles between masters and men, and the handshakes at the end of them, with some such remarks, as, 'Well, we've never seen you next time.' Anyhow, we all know that this cotton industry is the admiration of the world.

There in this county we have 56,000,000 cotton spindles, and 786,000 cotton looms—or nearly one-half of the total cotton trade of the whole world. Lancashire has now a population of 1,768,474 which is greater than the population of Scotland or of Ireland, and more than twice as great as the population of Wales. Of the 580,000 men, women, and children employed in the cotton industry of the United Kingdom, about 92 per cent work in Lancashire mills.

The Growth of Population. "The factory towns through which the King passes began to grow mushroom-like at the close of the eighteenth century. If you go back to 1760, when King George III. ascended the throne, our big spinning and weaving towns of today were mere villages and hamlets, nestling at the feet of green hills or sleeping on the banks of limpid streams. But look at the difference of one or two of them, for example: In 1804 (after the close of the new factory system), Bolton had a population of 16,000; it has now 181,000. Blackburn came into the century with about 11,000 souls; the present population of the town is 124,000. Oldham started the century with 12,024 people, and in 1911 she had 147,495 citizens. The population of Lancashire altogether was only 672,731 in 1801—a figure which is exceeded today by Liverpool alone (with 746,556), or Manchester (with 714,427). The increase in the population of the big towns may be measured at the rate of 1,000 to 1,500 souls a year. This was so in the last half of the nineteenth century. It has been so since.

The Centres of Spinning and Weaving. "Now, in the four towns—i.e., Bolton, Blackburn, Oldham, and Burnley—you get the centres of the spinning and weaving industry. Burnley is the most distinct weaving town. Blackburn has a greater mixture of spinning. But Burnley and Blackburn together are the principal weaving centres. The two towns have about 200,000 power looms and nearly 100,000 cotton operatives. Oldham is the world's biggest centre of the coarse and medium cotton spinning trade; Bolton holds the same high rank in fine spinning. Both Bolton and Oldham have numerous looms, but they are distinctly spinning towns. Oldham district has 179,000,000 spindles, or more than half the number in all cotton mills in all other European countries combined. Bolton has about 7,000,000 spindles, largely producing a class of yarn that cannot be equalled in any part of the globe.

Why Bolton Spinners Excel. "All cotton centres in the world strive, wherever they can, to come nearer to the level of Bolton. All can get the same class of machinery, if they want it, but they cannot secure the same class of workers. The fine spinning industry was founded, of course, on the invention of a Bolton man—that is, of Samuel Crompton, who completed his spinning mule in 1779, but never took out a patent for it. Since then Bolton has held the premier position in the production of gossamer-like threads of yarn. A financial magnate of the United States would have paid America at one time to have presented every spinner and weaver in Lancashire with £5,000 to have transferred his or her services to American mills. Comparing them with the polyglot cotton mill workers of America, an American statistician observed, two or three years ago, that the United States could not hope to compete with Lancashire for generations to come. He put it in this way: 'The practice of handling delicate cotton threads and the art of weaving them into fine fabrics, in Lancashire, are born with the children; they are part of their blood; the children are born to spin and weave, and American children cannot hope to equal them in this day and generation.'

But we did not take kindly at first to the mechanical devices that gave us such a long start as spinners of yarn and weavers of cloth. Rather than as a maker of manufacturing nations, invention was regarded as the forerunner of the economic ruin of both masters and men.

was compelled to leave Lancashire. A mill which he erected at Birkacre, near Chorley, was burned down while a powerful body of police and soldiers looked on. As if that were not enough, Lancashire manufacturers combined not to buy any of his yarn when he went to set up mills elsewhere. Honest Samuel Crompton had to work in secret and fear of his life.

The Changes of a Century. "But from these mad outrages, our forefathers proceeded to apply themselves to steady work and improvements. Nevertheless it is impossible for any stranger to realize the difference between what exists today and what was endeavored to be done in the beginning. Samuel Crompton's mule contained no spindles. One hundred years ago, two men would have thought they were doing exceedingly well by taking charge of 200 spinning spindles, running at 1,000 revolutions a minute. Today one man and two youths take care of 2,000 to 3,000 spindles running at 9,000 and 9,500 revolutions per minute.

Year after year new processes are being carried on by self-acting apparatus that would hardly have been dreamed of a comparatively short time ago. Strangers are spellbound by it all; it moves their imagination and makes them think that with the mechanical genius of Lancashire nothing is impossible.

STARVING CLERGY. "Often when parishioners think their clergyman is not working hard enough it is because he is not properly fed," said the Bishop of Chichester at the annual meeting of the Poor Clergy Relief Corporation. The poverty which existed among the clergy, he added, was a disgrace to the Church of England. They were really starving the clergy.

THREE MERRY MARINERS.

1. Having got a day on shore the boys were busy studying the latest news, and not taking much notice of the tide.

2. Some kind people, seeing that the merry lads were surrounded, tried to divert their attention from the papers to the flowing tide. But they had seen—

3. Enough of tides, and were lost in their paper. Fearing that the boys would be lost entirely, a fussy old gentleman rang up the lifeboat.

4. Which duly arrived, only to find the lads merrily paddling ashore in very smart paper boats which they had made after they'd finished reading.

ACCORDING TO PASSPORT.

An amusing story—which shows the value of the passport system—comes from Russia. Prince Metechersky, who is a journalist by profession, was commissioned by the Czar to investigate certain agrarian troubles. The prince went to Roumania, and there obtained one of the permits necessary for taking live stock across the frontier.

Then he went to a Russian frontier post and presented the document to the official as his warrant to pass. The official could read but little in Russian and knew no Roumanian, but the big document, with coat-of-arms and seal, greatly impressed him, and he cheerfully put the Russian official stamp on it.

His investigations ended, the prince went back to Moscow, and at the first opportunity presented the passport to the governor, saying: "With this document I entered Russia, and travelled about for five months, yet you must admit that the

SCOTTISH CHURCH REUNION

Movement to Join Again the Established Church and the United Presbyterians — Nature of the Cleavage.

Presiding at a meeting in London last week of the Young Men's Guild of the Church of Scotland, Mr. Arthur Dal- four spoke on the question of the reunion of the United Free Church with the Established Church of Scotland, and he said "that there could be no turning back now in this great work of reunion except at infinite cost to the spiritual welfare of the Scottish people."

Facts Which Are Overlooked.
The Union Problem of the Scottish Church, as it is set forth in the Contemporary Review by Prof. W. P. Paterson, D.D., opens with a very lucid statement of two facts which, as he says, are assumed by Scotsmen to be matters of common knowledge. A quotation will certainly help readers on this side of the border to a better understanding of the question:
"One fact," says Prof. Paterson, "is that the Church of Scotland, as by law established, is a Presbyterian church. The second is that it is a popularly established church, which has steadily grown with the expansion of Scotland, and which is firmly rooted in the affections of the people of Scotland. Various tests combine to show that nearly a half of the Scottish people own it as their spiritual home."

"The Church of Scotland, however, embraces only a section of the Presbyterian family within the land. There are four minor sects, which, through inconsiderable in numbers, maintain with zeal and piety their particular testimony as Reformed Presbyterians, Original Seceders, Free Presbyterians, or Free Churchmen. But the main body of Presbyterian dissent — if the convenient term may be used without offence — has been consolidated in the United

Free Church, which was formed in 1840 by the incorporating union of the Church of the Disruption, with the United Presbyterian denomination. Without doubt, the United Free Church of Scotland is one of the most spiritual, learned, liberal and efficient that is to be found within the pale of Christendom. Its service to Scotland may be gauged by the circumstances that it numbers over half a million communicants, and the affection and confidence which it inspires are reflected in the financial sacrifices of its members, who make an annual contribution to the support of its ministry, and its enterprises amounting to £1,000,000.

"The Church of Scotland and the United Free Church are at one in the matters which are commonly regarded as of capital importance in ecclesiastical controversy, while their secondary differences have been considerably toned down in recent times. Both own as their doctrinal standard the Westminster Confession of Faith; and though in former generations the non-established branches of Presbyterianism claimed to be the special representatives of orthodoxy, evangelicism, and moral rigor, it is increasingly recognized that various types of doctrinal teaching and of religious experience are distributed impartially throughout the two communions. Both have sought to add dignity and beauty to the severe simplicity of the traditional Presbyterian worship. Their ministers are comrades at school and university, and only part company at the threshold of the Divinity Hall."

Political Cleavage.
The membership of each church is a cross-section of the Scottish people — with the qualification that the United Free Church has the allegiance of a relatively large proportion of the educated and prosperous middle class, while the Church of Scotland has taken a swag- ger hold of the purely working-class communities, and has steadily gained ground in the rural districts. The political cleavage is more apparent than real. The ministers of the two churches, it is true, are almost solidly massed in the opposing political camps; but many influential Free Churchmen became Unionists in 1885, and there is a silent multitude of the membership of the Church of Scotland, which has stalwartly continued to support the Liberal traditions of the realm."

PRINCE OF WALES IS BESET BY TRADESMEN

Competing For His Future Patronage All Over the World.

Tradesmen all over the world seem to be competing for the future patronage of the Prince of Wales. Realizing that in all probability another year will see him installed in a palatial mansion of his own they are a-bombarding Buckingham Palace and the Prince's rooms at Oxford with samples of their wares and requests for orders in years to come.

So far none of these efforts, although many have represented a great deal of work and ingenuity, have had the slightest effect. All have been returned to the senders with a polite note to the effect that when any goods are required from them by the Prince an intimation to that effect will be sent to them.

London tradesmen and storekeepers, who know the rule of the palace, have, of course, not yet moved in the matter at all. What happens in their case is that when a royal order is to be given for their particular class of goods a request is sent to them to send a representative and samples to Buckingham Palace or Windsor. At the palace the goods are then set out in most elaborate form in a room set aside for this purpose, and the King or Queen or the royalty who is buying them chooses from among the various competitors. It is the custom to spread the purchases over a wide area so as to give as many reputable firms as possible an opportunity of saying that they "supply the royal family."

Tradesmen from abroad are, however, generally ignorant of this practice and have, accordingly, treated the young Prince as they would any other rich, prospective customer. In his particular instance no pains have been spared to make their wares especially attractive. Single catalogues in very bindings, which must have cost a very considerable sum to produce, have, in many cases, been sent, while valuable jewelry, richly engraved cigarette cases and specially-bound books have been everyday occurrences. Considering that the Prince of Wales is still kept on a very slender allowance—although the revenues from the Duchy of Cornwall alone bring him in a sum of over $400,000 yearly, his fingers must itch at times to possess some of the charming articles which have thus been showered upon him, especially as he is now at the age when the average boy loves to deck himself out in the finery of personal adornments. However, everything that comes along is returned to the sender in the same relentless manner.

The limit was reached recently when one particularly enterprising storekeeper addressed a letter to the Prince, "care Buckingham Palace," asking whether the firm in question "might be allowed to supply gowns to the future Princess of Wales."

CHINA'S CONDITION.

"Three capital facts with regard to China, of which everybody should be hold in England, are: First, unless vastly increased taxation is willingly voted by the provinces, China cannot pay her way, and must become bankrupt. Secondly, Parliament will never vote that taxation unless its authority is supreme. Thirdly, if bankruptcy finally comes, foreign intervention and forcible participation under some euphemism will infallibly follow. Does England want this?" asks the "Telegraph's" Peking correspondent.
"The continual contempt that is displayed for Parliament is an evil augury for the future, while the massing of northern troops in Central China when well-armed Mongol bands, unchecked, are raiding the country far and wide just beyond the Great Wall, is a further interesting commentary on the whole policy of the present regime."

COLOR PREJUDICE IN LONDON.

"Two of America's most distinguished colored citizens, the Rev. Dr. Borden, of New York, and Professor Elcheilberger, principal of Walter's Institute, Arkansas, arrived in London on their way to Zurich to attend the World's Sunday School Convention. They both, to their surprise, found themselves confronted with the color prejudice in London," says the Central News. "They were refused admission to several well-known hotels, and only after very distressing experiences succeeded in getting accommodation in an out-of-the-way private hotel."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Reply to Rev. Mr. Riddiford.

To the Editor of The Advertiser.

There seems to be need for comment on Rev. Mr. Riddiford's extravagant eulogy of the cadet movement in his sermon last Sunday.

Mr. Riddiford's text is not quoted in your report, but it evidently consisted of one of St. Paul's metaphorical references to the Roman soldiery in illustrating some admonition to those who were trying to live the life of the Christian. It is surely straining matters somewhat for Mr. Riddiford not only to argue from this figure of speech that St. Paul approved of soldiering, but also to assert that "God chooses some men to be soldiers." It seems to me most awful blasphemy to say or imply that God called men to blow the Chinese to pieces in the opium war, to slash and stab Tibetans in the "punitive expedition," and to spit Boers on lances in the South African wars.

Mr. Riddiford seems to be quite unaware that most recent wars have been the result of commercial and political intrigues and the unholy ambitions of politicians and military officers, and that the soldiers who fought in these wars were merely the hired agents and tools of the unscrupulous or misguided men who bring on the wars.

The Founder of Christianity forbade his followers to attempt to establish or maintain the Christian religion and institutions by force of arms. He rebuked the impetuous Peter for drawing the sword in his Master's defence, and made an announcement that should have served as the guiding policy of Christianity in all ages to come, the announcement that "My kingdom is not of this world, else would my servants fight." And this doctrine and policy were adhered to by early Christians until Christianity was corrupted by the unholy alliance with the Emperor Constantine.

Mr. Riddiford is reported as speaking of the cadets as consisting of the "brightest, bravest and best boys of our land." This, of course, is arrant nonsense. Most of the "brightest, bravest and best boys of our land" are too busy in useful industry during June and July to be spending their time in the cadet camp. They are working from eight to ten and twelve or fourteen hours a day in the store or factory or on the farm. Some of them will work at this all summer, some all year. This requires much more bravery than a few weeks' picketing on Carling's Heights. Here is where they will get training and discipline that is far more severe and will be of much more use to them and their country than practicing the goose-step and the forming of "fours." I have a chance to know, for I have tried both.

LEGAL QUERIES

SUBSCRIBER—Is a charge of $23.40 the legal rate for succession tax on 40 shares of Ottawa Bank stock, in the province of Ontario? If this is an illegal charge, how shall I proceed to obtain redress?

Answer—The succession duty on a legacy to a collateral relative or stranger is 10 per cent. The charge seems to be correct on the market value of 40 shares of the bank stock. If it were illegal your only remedy would be to petition the Government for a refund.

MOTORBOATING

Motorboating is the art of owning a motor boat, or else of getting invited on one.

In nine cases out of ten the guest has more fun than the owner. But when the craft breaks down or casts a shoe three miles from shore the guest is often invited to get out and walk.

Motor boats are of many sizes and varieties, ranging from the palatial gasoline yacht with a phonograph and a chef to the humble, greasy scow with the two horsepower hacking cough attachment.

Owners of motorboats endeavor to rival sailing yachtsmen in personal beauty. About the time the ladies are aboard and all is lovely, something goes wrong with the motor's digestive works.

Then it's back to the monkey wrench and the oil waste and pretty soon the dainty white trousers look as if they had been laundered in hot chocolate.

Motor boats are now guaranteed to be dust proof. But when they are also muss proof and cuss proof we'll save the change from our gas bills and invest in a copy.

Any young man of modest means can own a motorboat. In order to pay the bills, one must cut out drinking, billiards, bowling, cards, movies, tobacco and cigarettes. One must learn to eat on twelve cents a day. One must give up one's lodgings and sleep on the boat. Using the engine for a pillow, you may rest comfortably, lulled by the gentle ripples.

The fastest thing on water is the hydroplane. This is a new-fangled motorboat, so stuck up about its speed that it keeps its nose in the air.

The faster it goes the higher it sticks its bow. As the bow is displacing only air instead of the briny, the result is fifty miles an hour on a glass track.

A twenty-foot hydroplane contains enough machinery to capsize a brewery. It takes enough gasoline to blow the lake out from under it. Also to spatter pieces of brass tubing and speed maniac all over the landscape.

If you ever get invited on a hydroplane put on a bathing suit consisting of football armor, cork-lined. But ordinary motorboating is quite safe, thank you, and instead of life preservers one can take along a mandolin, one's best girl and an all-day smile.

After a couple of trips you, too, will contract motorboatitis and begin planning to build one down cellar with a blue print and a tack hammer.

Canadians Want American Foxes

Many Breeders Are Trying to Secure Specimens From Alaska.

[Canadian Press.]

Washington, July 25.—A number of Canadians have written to the Department of Commerce seeking to buy some of the blue and silver foxes from the Government's preserves in Alaska, but no citizen of the United States has made similar request, although the department is anxious to get some Americans to go in for fox breeding.

Assistant Secretary Sweet declared today that good profits await those who take up the industry. The Government, he said, has a number of small islands off the Alaskan coast which it will lease to anyone who desires them for fox farming, and at the same time the Government will furnish breeding animals at low prices.

There are several fox-raising establishments in Canada, said Mr. Sweet, which are reported to be making big profits, and as the skins bring fancy prices in London, centre of the fur-selling trade, he thought citizens of the United States should be reaping part of the returns.

St. Marys Citizens To Clean Up Yards

Provincial Medical Health Officer Is Making Inspection.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

St. Marys, July 25.—Dr. Thos. McNally, of Guelph, provincial medical health officer for this district, was in town yesterday, and accompanied by the local health officer, Dr. A. E. Fraleigh, made an inspection of many backyards and premises, and in any that were found not up to sanitary conditions, the owners' names were handed in to Chief Young, who was instructed to have such places put into sanitary condition at once.

Mr. Caster, of the Ontario Government hydro-electric staff, is in town looking over and adjusting disputes that may have arisen from the streets, that daily accumulates, as at present during high winds it is blown on to the sidewalks, and into stores and other premises.

It is admitted that oiling the streets has done a great deal of good in preserving the roads, but many are urging that something be done to collect and remove the oil from the streets, that daily accumulates, as at present during high winds it is blown on to the sidewalks, and into stores and other premises.

There is much dissatisfaction over the council handing over the Elgin street terminal to the C. P. R. without any compensation, as many private persons would like to buy the 60 feet width of property as a building proposition and for many other purposes.

Many persons value this at $1,000, as persons on the opposite corners are asking that amount for their properties.

AYLMER.

Aylmer, July 25.—Byron Harris, Aylmer's night watchman, who commenced his duties on Saturday evening.

The funeral of Springer McDonald took place from the G. T. R. depot on the arrival of the Wabash eastbound train to the Aylmer Cemetery. Rev. R. D. Hamilton conducted the services at the grave. The pall-bearers were J. H. Glover, George W. Youell, A. R. Christie, G. A. Bingham, A. R. Lemon and Fred W. Love. Those from a distance attending the funeral were Fred Pursell, Simpson, Misses C. and T. Lee Cascarden has left for the County of Hamilton, to make a Government inspection of grain.

Ernest D. Van Dine, of Toronto, called on Aylmer friends here yesterday.

Miss B. Connor entertained a number of her young friends on Monday afternoon.

IF WE COULD WALK THE BED OF THE ATLANTIC

What We Should See If We Could See. According to Sir John Murray—No Light, No Seasons There—Cold, Noiseless, Motionless—Deepest Part of Atlantic is 31,614 Feet.

Dr. A. E. Shipley gives a vivid account of what we should see if we could walk beneath the Atlantic instead of travelling on its surface. Writing in the Edinburgh Review he bases his article mainly on Sir John Murray's notable book on "The Depths of the Ocean" (Macmillan), which records the recent researches of the Norwegian steamer, Michael Sars.

Walking Over the Atlantic Bed.

"The passengers and the crew of a liner racing over the surface of the Atlantic are apt to imagine that under them is a vast layer of water of varying depth sparsely inhabited by a few fish," says Dr. Shipley. "As a matter of fact the whole of this great ocean is teeming with life. If instead of taking ship we could take to the water and walk across the bed of the Atlantic to America, starting from the shores of Western Europe, we should in effect be travelling through a succession of new countries. Not only would the surrounding physical conditions vary as we advanced, but the animal and plant life would vary in correlation with the altering physical conditions."

On the Sea Floor.

"Walking further and further towards the depths of the Atlantic we should soon lose all sight of the algae; and the shallow water fish, the plaice and sole, whiting, skates, dogfish, and others, and could, would give way to the megrim and the hake. The sea-floor would gradually change from rock or gravel or stones to sands, and ultimately to mud or ooze of various tints, their original colors often modified by the action of the decomposition of organic particles in them and on them. All these finer deposits are derived from the neighboring land and are blown seaward by off-shore winds or washed down to the sea by rivers."

Matter in Suspension.

"The distance to which fine matter in suspension may be carried is very great. The Congo is said to carry its characteristic mud as far out to sea as 600 miles, and the Ganges and the Indus as far as 1,000 miles. Except in the neighborhood of such great rivers a subaqueous traveller would soon pass beyond what Sir John Murray has called the mud-line, a line that limits the terrigenous deposits everywhere surrounding dry land. Having reached this limit we must proceed warily, for at the mud-line, at an average depth of 100 fathoms we shall find ourselves at the edge of the continental shelf, that rim which extends seaward to a varying distance from all land areas, the rim on which Great Britain rests. Beyond lies the continental slope, a precipice more or less abrupt and more or less high, descending by steep declines or terraced cliffs until depths of 2,000 fathoms are reached."

The Deepest Ocean Pit.

"The deepest ocean pit as yet sounded lies in the Pacific. It is 31,614 feet deep, thus surpassing by 2,612 feet the height to which Mount Everest rises above the mean ocean level. Roughly speaking, the heights to which the higher mountains rise above sea level is paralleled by the depths to which the deepest 'deeps' sink below that level. Yet these inequalities are negligible as compared with the diameter of the earth, and could we shrivel up our globe to the size of an orange, mountain ranges and abyssal depths would be no more prominent than the rugosities of the orange skin. It may be added that if all the elevations of the earth were removed and filled into all the hollows we should have a world smooth as a billiard ball and completely surrounded by an ocean 1,450 fathoms deep. This is called the 'mean sphere level.'"

"The Atlantic has an average depth differing but little from the 'mean sphere level.' Compared with the other great oceans it has an unusually large area of comparatively shallow water. Of its total area 27.5 per cent is covered by water less than 1,000 fathoms deep; 18 per cent lies between 1,000 and 2,000 fathoms; and 47 per cent between 2,000 and 3,000 fathoms; the remaining 7.5 per cent is still deeper."

An Illimitable Plain.

"At the foot of the continental slope lies an illimitable plain, of a uniform dull, grayish-buff color, flat and featureless as the desert, and only diversified by an occasional 'eye' uncovered rock or the straight line of a recently laid cable. This plain continues with hardly a change in scenery or in level until we approach the great mid Atlantic ridge. As Bruce has shown, this ridge, which roughly bisects the Atlantic, extends from Iceland as far south as 52° of south latitude, with a slight and quite inappreciable break just under the equator. The ridge runs almost parallel with the eastern contour of North and South America, which, in turn, as the ordinary map will show, roughly corresponds with the western contour of Europe and Africa. From time to time the ridge rises above the surface of the water, as in the Azores group, St. Paul's Rocks, Ascension, Tristan da Cunha, and Gough Island."

"Having ascended the eastern and descended the western slope of this mid-Atlantic ridge, we should again traverse plains of grayish ooze far more extensive than any level land tract known to geographers, and as we approached the American coast we should gradually pass through, in reverse order, the zones of life traversed when leaving Europe. On the eastern coast of America the slope is much more gradual than on the western coast of Southern Europe and Africa."

No Light and No Sound.

"In describing this imaginary journey across the ocean bed we have spoken of the things we should 'see'; but in reality we should see nothing at all unless we were gifted with the power of seeing in the uttermost darkness. At the bottom of the Atlantic a darkness prevails with which the blackest night on land would seem comparatively twilight. No ray of sun or moon can pierce through anything like 2,000 fathoms of water, and the only light ever seen at these great depths is due to the phosphorescence of certain of the deep-sea organisms."

"Not only is there no light, but there is no sound at the bottom of the sea except for the rare explosion of a submarine volcano, and even when that occurred the noise must be somewhat muffled."

"There is no sound, no echo of sound, in the depths of the 'deep.' Down there all is dark, and all is silent. It is also persistently cold."

No Seasons Beneath the Sea.

"The waves that churn the surface overhead are unfelt at the depth of a few fathoms; even the great surface currents which stream along the upper waters of the ocean are hardly perceptible below some 200 fathoms. There are of course—as the wear and tear of cables teach us—places where deep sea currents are strong; but on the whole the abysses of the sea are cold, noiseless, and motionless. The monotony of the surroundings is increased by the fact that no diurnal or seasonal change reaches those great depths."

"Summer and water, spring and autumn, are to them unknown, for there is no such thing as night and day, seed time or harvest. Deep sea animals live at a tremendous pressure. Every five fathoms we descend in the sea the pressure increases by one atmosphere, and at a depth of 3,000 fathoms the pressure on each square inch of the body of an animal amounts to three tons, where as at the surface of the waters it is about fifteen pounds. So great is this pressure that unless special precautions are taken the glass of the thermometer, which measure the bottom temperatures is crushed to powder."

DIFFICULT TO CATCH.

An Englishman who was appointed to an important post in China got married soon after. Amongst the recipients of the usual little cardboard boxes containing a piece of wedding cake was a Chinese merchant with whom the bridegroom had an outstanding account for goods supplied.

After the honeymoon one of the first persons the newly-wedded husband met was his Celestial creditor. "And how did you like the cake?" said the Englishman, laughing, after the usual congratulations. "Ah, ha!" returned the Chinaman, with a cunning leer, "no such big fool to eat him, sah. Me put cake in fire. Burn him up. He! he!" "Oh, that's too bad!" said the Englishman, very much hurt. "You might have tasted it at least, out of compliment to my wife and myself. Why didn't you?" "Me too clute, sah," said the Celestial, with the same cunning smile. "You owe me money, sah! sendee poison cake; I eat him; I die; you no payee up. Hou-p-la. He! he! he! I know you Ingles!"

SMILE AND PASS ON.

"How long are we going to put off the entire rebuilding of London?" asked Mr. G. Goodwin, in a letter to the Spectator. "I know the smile the suggestion will evoke, but I ask in what other way are you going to prevent London being choked with its own growth? I maintain that the suggestion is not only feasible, but that it will have to be adopted, and that very shortly. We simply cannot go on much longer. All our devices and dodges cannot hide the fact that the town has grown anyhow, and that incredible waste takes place every day—waste of time, temper, money, effort—the saving of which will pay a handsome interest on the vast sum undoubtedly necessary to put matters right."

Abraham Invented the Plow Over 5,000 Years Ago.

And Babylonians Are Using the Same Sort of a Plow Yet—To Keep the Birds From Eating Grain, Abraham Rigged Up This Combination Planter-Plow.

Special Correspondence.

Philadelphia, July 25.—The University of Pennsylvania owns what is believed to be the first picture of the plow invented by Abraham fifty centuries ago. Abraham's plow is a combination seeder and planter, and three men were necessary to operate it.

The picture was engraved on brick which has been unearthed recently, and plows of the same kind are used in Babylonia today just as they were 5,000 years ago.

The Book of Jubilees, which was published in the second century, B.C., tells how the Babylonians were punished when they yielded to Satan. Birds were sent to eat the grain which they had sowed in their fields, and, according to the authority cited, when they repented, Abraham devised this implement so that the people need no longer fear the ravens.

The apparatus had an attachment which reached through the ground as a tube, and into which the seeds were poured.

Sport Program Featured Holiday

West Side Businessmen Walloped the East Side at Ingersoll.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Ingersoll, July 25.—Baseball games were the big features of the third weekly half-holiday yesterday. The sport program was opened with a game between the east and west side businessmen, in which interest never lagged. It was a case of sweet revenge for the west side. They took the measure of their opponents to the tune of 16 to 8 in a game that was replete with plays, good, bad and indifferent.

The second game was between the Colts of Ingersoll and the Y. M. C. A. team of Woodstock. The locals were in fine fettle and snatched a fine victory by a score of 9 to 7.

Mr. H. J. McKenzie, for the past year and a half in the employ of the Mc-Intyre Housefurnishing Company, has accepted a situation with Philip & Simpson, Sarnia, and will leave on Monday to enter upon his duties.

No new reports have been received of the fish dying in the Thames. Large quantities were observed when the first announcement was made, and although some are still to be seen, they are evidently not dying in the numbers they were a week ago.

There are a number of citizens who have objected and not without good cause, to the noise and danger produced by small boys coasting on their express wagons. The matter has been carried to the police department and parents have been called upon to have their children desist riding their wagons
in the manner complained of.

The noise of the wagons is also strongly objected to by many persons who find it necessary to sleep in the daytime.

Must Pull Straws
to Decide Legacy

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Toronto, July 25.—In order to settle the question of which of two sons, Robert S. or Harold, shall receive a certain large fruit dish, forming part of a dessert set, the late Catherine Ann Morris directed in her will that they shall draw lots for it. The balance of her personal possessions she divides
among her five sons, three granddaughters and three daughters-in-law.

The estate is valued at $21,072, the greater part of which comprises $17-353 stocks. The five sons, James and Harold, Toronto; Robert S. Hamilton;
Murray, Brandon, and Edward
M., England, divide the residue.

George Everest
Dies at Arkona

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Arkona, July 25.—George M. Everest, proprietor of the Arkona basket factory, and one of Lambton's oldest residents, died at his home here today. He was 77 years old, and had been ill for some time.

For 30 years he was in the drug business in Forest before coming to Arkona, where he also had a store
before going into basket-making.

He leaves three sons and two daughters, William, of Defiance, Ohio;
George and Cicero, at home; Mrs. Mc-Kellar, of Toronto, and Mrs. D. Fraser, of Port Huron.

The funeral, which will be in charge of the Masonic Order, will be held on Sunday at Arkona Cemetery.

A man sent his neighbor's little boy to the drug store to buy five postage stamps.
He handed him two dimes, the extra one being for himself. Some time afterward the boy came back blubbering and said he had lost one of the dimes. "But why did you buy me the stamps?" asked the man. "Because, mister," replied the boy, "it was your dime I lost."—Judge.

Mrs. Bagrox—"Tell me, Professor, will my daughter ever become a great pianist?" "Possibly," replied the professor.
"But," Mrs. Bagrox—"But has she none of the qualifications necessary for a good musician?" "Herr Vaguetz," replied the professor, "she has two hands."—Puck.

LONDON ENGINEERS HAVE A FINE TIME AT SPRINGBANK

Railwaymen and Families Have Number of St. Thomas Guests Local Men Prove to Have Strongest
"Pull."

London railway engineers held their picnic to Springbank on Thursday afternoon, and for the time forgot their work and had a good time. Nearly three hundred of the engineers, their wives, children and friends enjoyed the hospitality of the brotherhood. St.
Thomas teams, the event being won by the local men in their picnic. The events were carefully prepared to include both old and young, everyone spending the afternoon in the best manner possible.
Some of the races were well attended and all entered heartily into the day's sport. The feature of the day was the tug-of-war between London and St.
Thomas teams, the event being won by the local engineers, who had two of the pulls to their credit. The ladies provided a fine supper in the pavilion,
and everyone went home after spending one of the best days of the season at the park. The winners in the various events were:

Engineers' wives' race, 50 yards —
Mrs. Cowles, Mrs. Radway, Mrs. Black.
Engineers' race, 45 and over — Geo.
Prodriger, John Scanlon.

Husbands' and wives' relay race —
Mr. and Mrs. R. Burr, Mr. and Mrs. P.
Lasenby.

Boys' race, under 15 — Tom Christopher, Alvin Prodriger, Richard Christopher.

Boat and shoe race — Margaret Christopher, Agnes Lenahan, James Grieves.

Tug-of-war, won by the London
team, consisting of J. Lackie (captain), G. Prodriger, W. Prodriger, P. Lasen-
by, J. Grieves, T. Bruce, H. Mc-Harg, J. Scanlon.

Visitors present from outside points were: Mrs. Olson, of York city; Miss Smart, Chicago; Mrs. Carey, St. Clair,
Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Newsome, Fort Worth, Texas, and Mrs. James Park, Chatham.

Repairs on the Wellington street
asphaltic block pavement will be started next week, the engineer reporting that he had notified the company to start within six days.

Plans are now ready for reinforced concrete pavement on Bellevue, Duchess and Tecumseh avenues and Marley Place, South London. The total estimated costs of these works is placed at $18,537.

Sanitary sewer on Dundas avenue and on Huron street, at an estimated cost of $1,700, were recommended to the council.

Petitioned Six Months Ago.
On request of north-end residents, who declared that a fully-served petition for the work had been submitted over six months ago the city engineer was ordered to prepare an estimate of cost for laying a sanitary sewer on Wellington street, between Victoria and Huron streets.

In reporting on the Nelson street improvements, stopped by Judge Talbot Macbeth, the city engineer said that records in the assessment office revealed
the fact that the residents for 330 feet east of Clarence street had encroached 25 feet and fenced off that property. It was for this reason that City Engineers Tracey and Graydon had refused to sanction improvement here.

Engineer Ashburn recommended the purchase of a 220-foot frontage for the purpose of making the improvements, if it was the wish of the board to continue them.

Cut Out Street
Stringing of banners across the street, permission to do which was granted to several applicants, was the subject of no little discussion. Chairman Bennett declared that while it was impossible
under existing conditions to allow one banner to go and refuse another London should be past the village stage. He announced his intention of moving that the present banner bylaw be rescinded
and one substituted refusing permission to allow any at all to be strung across the streets.

Requests for ash removal from some of the large manufacturing places of the city that had been forwarded to Supt.
W. C. Dodd, of the garbage collection department, and which had been refused by him because they were "manufacturers' waste," were read to the board.
Job Cook, a resident of South street,

City Engineer W. N. Ashplant reporting on pavement repairs, said the Queen's avenue had been finished, and that the Warren Bros. Company, layers of the bitulithic pavement, were finishing their repairs under contract, Talbot street
Pullerton to Oxford, and King street, Matland to William streets, contracts for which expired last year, and on which final repairs had been delayed were reported as having been completed recently.

CHILD DROWNED

Frightened Boy Did Not Realize Others Were Close at Hand

Alfred Wright Fell From Footbridge Running From Pine Lawn.

Alfred Wright, the 9-year-old son of Mr. Alexander Wright, of Madison avenue, Pine Lawn, met death in the south branch of the Thames, just west of the hydro transformer station shortly before 7 o'clock Thursday evening.

With two younger brothers, Eddie,
aged 6, and Robert, aged 4, the boy was crossing a suspension bridge between Pine Lawn and the farm of Mr.
Charles Parkinson, when in some manner, which will probably never be explained, as the two children were the only witnesses of the accident, he fell from the bridge into the water on the east side, about eight feet below. He came to the surface once, but quickly disappeared again. The body was recovered about 7 o'clock this morning,
the current of the river having carried it about 50 feet from the spot where the boy disappeared.

Child Panic-Stricken.
No one knew of the accident until the boy had been in the water some time. Fifteen minutes after the accident, the father of the boy, who was brother ran all the way home, a distance of more than a mile, to notify his father of the occurrence. It never occurred to the frightened child to go to some of the adjoining houses, or to stop passersby and tell them, and thus many valuable minutes were lost. Had he notified the people at the Parkinson farmhouse, which is only a few feet from the river, the chances are that the boy could have been rescued.
But instead he crossed the bridge and set out for home, with the baby brother following as fast as he was able. Arriving there he apprised his father of the accident, and he immediately rushed down to the bridge.
There was no sign of the boy, and the father spent nearly an hour wading about trying to locate the body, but without success. Meanwhile, neighbors came to his assistance, and a boat
from the Parkinson farm was launched and a systematic search begun.

Brigade Is Notified.
The fire department was notified and Chief Aitken and two of his men went to the scene with a boat and grapple-hooks, etc. Mr. E. V. Buchanan secured the pulmotor from the hydroelectric power station, and it was taken to the scene in the chief's buggy.
