COLORED MAN KILLED.

A LINE FENCE QUARREL IN COLCHESTER SOUTH.

Edmund Matthews Shot by Oliver Richardson—The Latter Alleges Self-defence—The Land in Dispute Said to be Worth 85 Cents.

Harrow, July 13.—A long-drawn-out quarrel between Edmund Matthews (colored) and Oliver Richardson (white) of the third concession of Colchester South, about two and a half miles west of this village, over the boundary line between their farms, culminated on Friday in a fight, in which Matthews received injuries from which he died yesterday about 4 o'clock. Richardson had a revolver and fired several shots at Matthews, four taking effect, three in the body and one in the arm. The ball, which, no doubt, caused death lodged in the kidneys. Richardson and his two sons, who also took part in the melee, were immediately arrested and lodged in the village lock-up until Saturday, when they, with Mrs. Richardson, were taken to Windsor by Detectives Campau and Mahoney of Windsor. In the Police Court there Mrs. Richardson and the sons were discharged, and Richardson remanded to jail pending the outcome of Matthews' wounds. The tract of land in dispute, according to the valuation of an expert, is said to be worth, at $65 per acre, only 85 cents, but each of the disputants has spent hundreds of dollars in law costs, besides having several previous encounters, in one of which Richardson nearly lost his life by an axe in the hands of Matthews.

Dr. Hazard of Harrow, the Coroner, had a jury impeached shortly after Matthews died, and after the juryman viewed the remains, the inquest was adjourned until Monday, and in the meantime a post-mortem examination of the body will be made by Dr. Mackenzie of Kingsville.

The version of the fight given by the Richardsons differs in every respect from that told by Matthews. They place all the blame for commencing the fight on Matthews, and say that he and his boys commenced throwing large stones at them before they attempted to take a hand in the fight. Mrs. Richardson says that when her husband pulled his revolver she was struck by a stone, and does not remember anything about the shooting. Richardson himself says that he pulled his pistol in self-defence, and shot Matthews to prevent him doing him an injury with the stones. The boys of Richardson tell the same story as their father and mother.

SWALLOWED SAFETY-PIN.

And Taken Four Hundred Miles For an Operation.

New York, July 13.—Mrs. Thompson, wife of Lewis S. Thompson of Red Bank (N.J.), who has leased the Cooper camp on the Upper St. Regis Lake, made a journey of about four hundred miles yesterday afternoon by a special train with her seven-months-old boy, who had swallowed a safety-pin. At the hospital one of the house surgeons took an instrument especially constructed for such cases. It was gently forced down the baby's throat, and the pin was coaxed, the position closed, and then the closed pin withdrawn. The operation required less than two minutes for its completion, and left the child unhurt, except for a slight irritation of the lining of the throat, where it had been pricked by the pin.

SAVED BY HIS PANAMA.

Santos-Dumont Has a Thrilling Experience.

Paris, July 13.—Santos-Dumont's Panama saved his life this week. During one of his excursions in the air the motor of his airship emitted sparks, and a tiny flame crept up along the apparatus, threatening to ignite the delicate fibre of the balloon. The spectators watched horror-stricken. Perceiving the danger Santos coolly threw the flame with his Panama and continued his trip as if nothing had happened.

JUDGE ARMOUR DEAD.

After a Lingular Illness in London.

London, July 13.—Justice Armour of the Supreme Court of Canada and a member of the Alaskan Boundary Commission, who had been ill for some time, and recently suffered a relapse, died at the London residence of his son on Saturday morning.

It is understood that the body will be brought to Montreal on one of the Allan steamers, and thence to Cobourg on the G. T. R. day train. The funeral will take place in accordance with the wishes of the deceased, on the following day.

Ottawa, July 13.—The news of the death of Justice Armour was received here yesterday. Since coming to Ottawa Justice Armour made many friends and his death will be greatly regretted here. It is not likely that the Government will lose any time in appointing a successor to him on the Alaskan Boundary Commission. There will be no necessity for filling the vacancy his death creates in the Supreme Court before September. The position will likely go to Ontario, although there has been an effort for some years past to have the Province west of Lake Superior represented on the Supreme Court Bench.

Cobourg, July 13.—The sad news of Justice Armour's death was received here yesterday, and has cast a deep gloom over the entire town. The flag on the Town Hall is at half-mast, and Mayor Floyd cabled the town of Cobourg's sympathy to Dr. Armour in London.

THE PALMA TROPHY.

Recaptured by Team From the United States.

Bisley, England, July 13.—The United States has recaptured the Palma Trophy. Her team scored an aggregate of 1,570 out of a possible 1,800, and beat all the best shots of Europe, South Africa, Australia and Canada, congregated for the first time, on English soil to compete for this trophy. Great Britain was second, with 1,555; Canada third, with 1,518.

The shooting was three distances, 800 yards, 900 yards, 1,000 yards; teams of eight men; points possible for one team at each distance, 600, or a total of 1,800 for the three ranges. Shooting began at the 800-yard range, the weather conditions being favorable, though the heat was terrific. The following was the team result at 800 yards:—

United Kingdom	554
America	551
Canada	530
Australia	518
Natal	513
Norway	447
France	441

The totals for the 1,000 yards were:—

America	504
Great Britain	497
Canada	488
Australia	491
Natal	39
Norway	386
France	385

The shooting of the Canadians at the third range, 1,000 yards, was as follows:—

T.H. Hayhurst, 13th	533
J.M. Jones, 32nd	554
W.C. King, 40th	554
T.H. Simpson, R.C.	553
E.C. O'Brien, 30th	435
Peddie, 5th	545
Stuart, 6th	545
J. White, 13th	544
Total	488

Following are the total aggregate scores of the various teams:—

America	1,570
Great Britain	1,555
Canada	1,518
Australia	1,501
Natal	1,399
France	1,240
Norway	1,240

EIGHT HUNDRED ARRESTS.

For Complicity in the Kishineff Massacre.

Washington, July 13.—Information of an entirely trustworthy character concerning the Kishineff massacre has reached here. From advices received here it appears that the protests which arose in the United States and many other civilized countries against the murderous attacks on the Jews in Kishineff last spring have not been without practical effect. This information states that the Russian Government has been moved to vigorous action in the matter of investigating and punishing those who were responsible for the Kishineff massacre. Eight hundred arrests have been made, and as a result of the preliminary examination three hundred and fifty persons have been remanded for trial in the lower courts. Four hundred and fifty cases have been sent to the Court of Appeal, of which fifty-three are indictments for manslaughter. A change of venue having been ordered, the trials of those accused of murdering and horribly mistreating the Jews at Kishineff will occur in September at Tiraspol. The services of four distinguished lawyers have been secured to assist the prosecution in the murder cases, and three well-known lawyers will aid in the prosecution of the synagogues property cases.

BROKE THE BANK.

The Cashier Confesses to a $50,000 Shortage.

Newburg, N.Y., July 13.—Jos. W. Cummin is in jail here on the charge of grand larceny. He was Secretary-Treasurer and cashier of the Cornwall Bank and is alleged to be a defaulter to the extent of about $50,000, wrecking the bank. Yesterday the State Bank Examiner appeared at the bank and before the examination of the books Cummin took him aside and confessed that he was short in his accounts between forty and fifty thousand dollars. It is said that he speculated with bank funds.

A Fatal Handicap.

Berlin, July 11.—Two German women, both accomplished swimmers, anxious to learn how far a woman is handicapped by her clothing when she falls overboard, arrayed themselves in evening dress, donned hat and gloves, and threw themselves into the water. Members of the swimming club to which they belonged watched the expedition, and a canoe followed the swimmers, deciding that though a woman's clothes buoy her up at the outset they are an almost insurmountable obstacle to swimming once they become heavy with water. Corsets they pronounce the most serious handicap, making a strong stroke a practical impossibility.

Cotton Mills Idle.

Fall River, Mass., July 11.—Two million eight hundred thousand spindles in Fall River will be idle next week. The Davel Mills shut down to-day until August 2, and the Mafford and Wampanoag Mills are closed, but only for one week. The Chase Mills, which closed one week ago, will resume July 20. Border City Mill No. 1, which has been idle several weeks, will remain shut.

BLOWN UP TWENTY FEET.

Mr. CARL ANDERSON SERIOUSLY INJURED.

A Blast Hung Fire in the McGowan Copper Mines, Near Parry Sound, but Went Off When Mr. Anderson Stood Over it.

Parry Sound, July 13.—A dynamite accident occurred at the McGowan Copper Mine Saturday, in which Mr. Carl Anderson, the superintendent, was seriously injured. Five blasts were being let off from fuses on surface work. Four exploded, but the fifth not going off, Mr. Anderson approached to ascertain the cause. When he reached the spot the charge went off. He was blown fully twenty feet into the air. He will recover, but sustains serious injury to the left arm, and will lose three fingers from one hand.

WILL CHECK RUSSIA.

Japanese Statesmen Agree on a Positive Policy.

Victoria, B.C., July 13.—Despatches by steamer from Tokio, dated June 25, say that the political atmosphere of Japan during the last week has been thick with rumor of impending war. The signal for their birth was the arrival of General Kourapatkin, Russian Minister of War, who is expected to leave on the warship Askold for home to-day, thereby considerably curtailing the announced term of his stay.

The immediate cause of the angry sentiment is a succession of reports of Chinese diplomatic intrigue with Russia at Peking, and continued Russian encroachment upon Korea. There had been an extraordinary meeting on the 13th, at which Admiral Baron Yamamoto, Minister of the Navy, who has been testing the war efficiency of all the Japanese ports, was present, and it was rumored that the Cabinet was unanimous for a "positive policy," having for its object the checking of Russia by an appeal to arms if necessary. It was not known, however, how the elder statesmen ("genre"), an ex-officio political power in Japan, regarded the matter, nor whether the policy intimated China or Russia as the best possible object for direct attack. This latter problem is not yet known, but extraordinary steps were taken to ascertain the sentiment of the elder statesmen. On June 23 a conference of these veterans was called before the throne. Marquis Ito, Field Marshal Marquis Yamagata, Field Marshal Marquis Omura, Count Matsukata and Count Ito were present, and the Premier, Ministers of War, Navy and Foreign Affairs joined them. The grave political situation was discussed at length. While it was not learned what occurred, Japanese papers point to the conference as showing the increasing gravity of the situation. Marquis Ito and Count Ito are known to oppose drastic measures, but the Ministers and Marquis Yamagata and Count Matsukata favor the Cabinet's stand. At a second conference, held on June 24, it was said that Marquis Ito had come to agree in general with the Cabinet's view for a "positive policy."

AN ACCORD ESTABLISHED.

As the Result of Loubet's Visit to London.

New York, July 13.—The London correspondent of The Sun cables:—Nothing has yet been made known or leaked out in regard to the interviews between the Marquis of Lansdowne and M. Delcasse, the Foreign Ministers respectively of Great Britain and France, but it is universally believed that important things were done when they met in London. The Paris Ecclair says:—"If an alliance was not signed, the effects of which will make themselves felt, not only in Anglo-French relations, but also in the policy of all the great European powers."

What is morally wrong can never be politically right.

KILLED ON TRACK

Joseph Browning, a colored man, was found dead on the G. T. tracks about a mile and a half east of here yesterday morning.

The crew of a westbound G. T. R. freight at 7.30 yesterday morning noticed the remains of a man badly mangled on the tracks, and on coming to the city notified the local agent, J. C. Pritchard, who immediately had the section gang go out to the scene of the accident and bring the remains to the city.

Coroner Dr. J. L. Bray was notified and, upon examination into facts, found it unnecessary to hold an inquest.

When picked up by the section hands yesterday morning the unfortunate man's skull was fractured, a large piece was taken out of one arm and the sole of one boot taken off.

Deceased is supposed to have been drunk at the time of the accident and walking along the track. A bottle of tanglefoot was found by his side, unbroken, although half gone.

Constable Browning, of this city is a half brother of deceased.

MONDAY, JULY 13.

CONCERNING THE JUDICIARY.

The Ottawa Citizen has expressed the view on several occasions that one of the most serious results of the Gamey-Stratton royal commission has been the injury to the prestige and standing of the bench in Canada. Putting aside entirely the narrower partisan view of the affair, every Canadian, irrespective of politics, must deplore the fact that the judiciary whom we have always regarded with pride and delighted to honor should have suffered in the estimation of the masses of the people. As a political opponent of the Ross Government we have taken the view that it was an unwise, selfish and unpatriotic move on the part of Premier Ross to drag the judiciary into this unsavory case—to employ representatives of the bench to pull the chestnuts out of the fire for his distressed cabinet. The initial blame was his. But no one can shut his eyes to the fact that the judiciary might have declined to be drawn into the case. Having allowed itself to be drawn in, it had still another chance to retrieve itself by a dignified, impartial pronouncement which, even though the decision were the same in substance, would have had a beneficial effect upon public opinion. Even the political adherents of the Ross Government will in their calmer moments admit this. Putting aside all political rancor or prejudice in the discussion of a situation which, as regards the standing of our judiciary, should be above that plane, the existing state of affairs in Ontario demands the attention of those in whose hands lies the task of rehabilitating the judiciary in the public estimation. That a pressing necessity exists is corroborated by a recent article in the Canadian Law Journal which treats the matter from a purely professional and non-political standpoint. The Law Journal says:—

This is, at least so far as Ontario is concerned, a day of judicial commissions, also a time when the high court bench has been weakened by the illness or infirmity of several of its judges. Strangely enough, it is also a time when it is said that there is necessity to form a fourth division of the court and an increase in the number of the judges. There seems to be a little inconsistency in all this. It does not require much consideration to see that the proposed increase would be unnecessary if vacancies were promptly filled, if infirm judges were given a proper retiring allowance, if vigorous men were selected from the front rank of the profession, and, last but not least, if the judges were not taken from their proper judicial work, either to report upon allegations of bribery in connection with a political issue, or to go to the Yukon to inquire into the reasonableness or otherwise of some concessions. The common sense, business-like way of disposing of the alleged difficulty seems to be sufficiently obvious.

There is really no necessity to add to the number of the high court judges. The question of expense, though a minor one, may be noticed. The proposed new division will probably add some $20,000 to the yearly cost of the court. All sorts of schemes have been invented to supplement the present utterly inadequate salaries of the judges. It would be much cheaper to give to each of the present judges an additional $1,000 per annum. But this is not the most important part of the subject. Is it fair to judges, or to suitors, or desirable as a matter of public policy, that various "pious frauds" in the line of indirectly increasing judicial salaries should be resorted to, or that they should have extra pay for outside work? The independence of the bench is of vital importance both to the public and the profession—much more important than the benefit resulting from having an occasional enquiry more satisfactorily conducted. There might be a danger of this independence being jeopardized by the growing practice of taking judges from their proper work to discharge extra duties with extra emolument. All these things give occasion to the enemy to blasphemy. The consequence is just what might be expected; unpleasant remarks are made in reference to the judges, with the inevitable result of lessening the esteem in which the bench of this province has heretofore been held. We are on the down grade in connection with matters affecting the dignity of the bench and the respect for it in the public mind. Is time that more thought were given to these matters. The country cannot afford to have the judicial pedestal lowered. The effort must be to raise it, for it is not what it once was.

"And here we are confronted with a somewhat difficult matter to discuss without the danger of being misunderstood. Their Lordships, Chancellor Boyd and Chief Justice Falconbridge, the commissioners in charge of the Gamey-Stratton bribery commission, have closed the enquiry and made their report. The finding of the commissioners is viewed favorably or adversely according to party predilections. The commissioners, though holding high judicial positions, did not serve in that capacity but as ordinary citizens, and as such their finding has been sharply criticized, whether rightly or wrongly it is not our province to discuss. We assume it is right because they so find; but it must be remembered that the country at large really sits as the jury and will not abdicate its function as the final court of appeal on the questions involved in the Gamey charges, for it is facts bearing on questions of political morality, and not points of law, that are involved. But what is to be deplored is that unworthy motives are attributed to the commissioners. The mud-throwing, incident to a political conflict, reaches to the bench. It was just this fear, no doubt, that induced a writer in these columns (ante. p. 195) to hope that the judiciary might not be called upon to act, or might decline to do so. The learned judges who were appointed, and who undertook the burden of the reference, doubtless thought that they would be discharging a duty to the public by so doing; and without any question such a forum was a much more satisfactory one than the "bear garden" of a parliamentary committee.

"It may also be said that the commissioners exercised very properly a wise discretion in the Liberal admission of evidence, though even here complaints have been made, not specially by counsel engaged for the prosecution, but by some of those on the jury, i. e., the public. We have nothing to say as to this, nor do we propose to discuss the evidence or to express any opinion on the finding of the commission, as that would take us within the arena of political controversy, which should be studiously avoided by a professional journal. But what we say—and we think it cannot be gainsaid—is, that the report will not, and naturally cannot be expected to, meet with the acquiescence of the community at large, for the simple reason that the enquiry involved part politics in connection with an incident in a somewhat bitter political contest. This non-acquiescence leads to evil results. When a judgment is given in a suit between individuals or corporations it is prima facie assumed that the finding is correct, and even the disappointed litigant generally accepts his defeat without calling the judge hard names. This has happily been the habit in the past. It will be a bad day for the country when people get out of this habit in the future, as we fear they are beginning to do; and it is just such enquiries as this which will operate in that direction, no matter how careful or fair the judges may be. For reasons such as these there are many who regret that the services of members of the bench were invoked, and that these judges felt it their duty to accept the call."

Six Doctors Failed to Cure Him.

ERYSIPPELAS AND SALT RHEUM WAS THE TROUBLE.

Burdock Blood Bitters

DID MORE THAN SIX DOCTORS COULD DO.

Mrs. Theo. Newell, Argyle Sound, N.S., expresses her opinion of this wonderful food remedy in the following letter:

"It is with the greatest gratitude that I can testify to the wonderful curative powers of Burdock Blood Bitters. For years my husband suffered terribly with Erysipelas and Salt Rheum. He was so bad at times that he could not sleep on account of the itching and burning. He had been under the care of six different doctors, but they failed to do him any good. I had read different times of the wonderful cures being made by Burdock Blood Bitters, so advised him to give it a trial. He did so, and after taking five bottles was cured without a doubt. I would strongly advise any person troubled with blood disorders to give B.B.B. a fair trial for I am sure it will cure them."

WHEN BOYS WERE MEN

By John Habberton.
Author of "Helen's Babies," "George Washington," Etc.
Copyright, 1901, by John Habberton.

"Not for me, sir, that I know of," said Brainerd quickly.
"Oh? Well, so much the more to your credit. Nevertheless 'tis true. You're both commissioned to the Forty-third. It seems from a letter accompanying your commissions that the Forty-third is in a bad way—good men, bad officers—so bad that the command can't be trusted to take the field. A lot of the officers have been weeded out, and the governor wished to replace them with men from regiments that are in good shape and have seen hard service. The senator from your district strongly recommended you, Frost, and called that your father took with him a handsome young woman who told an extraordinary story of your bravery and produced a letter in evidence. I can't understand how you, your colonel, failed to have learned the facts, but—"
"Your cousin May!" exclaimed Brainerd. Then he sprang to his feet and hit me between the shoulders with a force which I could not have believed was in his tiny frame. The colonel looked surprised, and Brainerd murmured "I beg pardon" and collapsed in confusion.

"It seems, further," continued the colonel, "that the governor said he wished he knew of some other trooper of equal courage and ability, upon which the young lady said she could name one and straightway praised you, Brainerd, without stint and declared that if you two could be sent together you could end the war. I can't imagine where the young lady obtained her knowledge of the special requirements of the service or how she came to know so much of the soldierly qualities of two of my corporals, but these commissions are the result."

"We can't accept them, sir," said Brainerd, "if they've been granted on such hearsay and misapprehension." I didn't approve of Brainerd's "we." He had the right to decline for himself, should he insist on being so foolish, but I wanted my own commission, no matter through what mistake it was issued. The colonel, too, was of my way of thinking, for he replied:

"Nonsense! Never lose a chance to reach higher rank, especially to move your insignia of rank from your sleeve to your shoulder."

"But, sir, there are other men more deserving of it," said Brainerd. "I'd feel ashamed to wear shoulder straps if McTwyny must go on with only a sergeant's stripes. You ought to see him fight!"
"Oh? McTwyny? That freckled Irish tiger that's a sergeant in your troop? Oh, he couldn't help fighting if he tried!"
"But there's brains behind his fighting, sir. If you'd seen and heard—"
"There's brains behind all real fighting, corporal—er—lieutenant. Don't ever forget it, or your enemy will get the better of you."

"But there's such a lot behind McTwyny's," persisted Brainerd. "Think of the odds that were against him. He had only 18 men with whom to fight what looked like a brigade—certainly a thousand—and he talked and acted like a general instead of a mere sergeant."

"When? Where? How do you know?" asked the colonel, with a quizzical smile apparently at Brainerd's assuming to know how a general would act.

"This afternoon. Way off to the right of the road our regiment took. We saw him. We were in the fight with him and were proud of it and of him."

"Bless me! I heard such wild stories of that skirmish that I've already asked your captain for a written report. Tell me all about it!"
Brainerd told him without a word of exaggeration, yet as he talked the colonel arose and paced his tent like an excited lion in a cage. He clinched his hands, and his eyes flashed, and he sputtered small groups of Scriptural words that were not prayers. Brainerd stopped abruptly after telling how Mick felled the skirmishers' captain.

"The tiger!" exclaimed the colonel. "I wish there were more of his kind in the regiment!"
"But isn't he a man, too?" asked Brainerd. "And shouldn't he be rewarded?"

"It shan't be my fault if he isn't a man from this day forth," interrupted the colonel. "Come with me. I suppose he is in the hospital."

"Or dead," I suggested.
"Nonsense!" growled the colonel. "Loss of a fore paw never kills a tiger. Lieutenant Baslow of our regiment has shot him in India. He was in the British service and has told me all about it."

Instead of going direct to the hospital the colonel stopped at a captain's tent and asked for one of the occupant's jackets—an old one. The captain looked surprised, but complied with the request. The colonel strode rapidly to the hospital tents, followed by Brainerd and me. Entering the surgical ward, he asked:

"Is McTwyny here?"
"Present, sir," came from a red face on a cot, and a big freckled hand came to the side of the face in the position of salute.

"I'm sorry to hear of your loss," said the colonel, "and I've brought you the best consolation I could think of. This is the jacket you shall wear when you get up again, Captain McTwyny."

LOVE

Often leads to poverty. No real woman ever sold her heart for the luxuries of life. But many a woman who has gladly faced poverty for the man she loved, may well doubt her wisdom when pain becomes the mate of poverty. If she were rich, she thinks, she could find a way of cure. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is within the reach of every one. It lifts the burden of pain which weighs down those who suffer from womanly diseases. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"You have my heartfelt thanks for your kind advice to me," writes Mrs. Geo. Fielder, of Victoria Avenue, Galt, Ontario. "Was troubled with catarrh of uterus for over a year. The doctors said I would have to go through an operation, but I commenced to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Golden Medical Discovery, also his 'Lotion Tablets' and 'Antiseptic and Healing Suppositories.' Now I am completely cured, after using six bottles of Dr. Pierce's medicines. I am glad to say my medicine has made me a new woman."

Weak and sick women, especially those suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are easy and pleasant to take. A most effective laxative.

"Whooroo!" exclaimed Mick. He closed his eyes an instant, then opened them and said, "Av Norah cud only see it!"

"She shall see it, with you inside of it, as soon as you're fit to go north on leave of absence. Is there anything else I can do for you?"

Mick pushed aside his sheet, displayed his severed arm lying on his breast and said:

"Don't let 'em throw this away." "He knocked me down for trying to take it from him," whispered the nurse, "but of course a thing of that kind can't be kept."

For a moment the colonel seemed to be choking. When he recovered, he said:

"Let me take it. I'll have it buried with the honors of war. The company you're to command, captain, shall fire a salute over it."

"Oh thank ye very kindly, sorr, for that an' that else ye've done, but how about thim two little dhivils forinst ye? In the foight wld the fine ralls—glory be to the polkes av auld Ireland—they were wot' more than all the rist av the platoon put together. Little Brainerd, ah, that a shillelah twister he'd make! An' as for Frost, he saved me own loife two or three times in succession."

"Good!" exclaimed the colonel. "They shall be taken care of. Now keep as quiet as you can, captain, so as to get well quick—and see Norah. Nurse, hang this jacket at the foot of his cot in some way so he can always see the shoulder straps when his eyes are open. Come along, men—I beg your pardon—gentlemen."

TROUBLES OF EX-CHIEF OF POLICE

Could not Stand Before Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mr. Charles Gilchrist had Diabetes For Years—Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Him.

Port Hope, Ont., July 13.—(Special).—Mr. Charles Gilchrist, Chief of Police here for fifteen years and afterwards Dominion Fishery Overseer, is always willing to add his testimony to the volume of proofs from all parts that Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to cure any form of Kidney Disease.

"I am a healthy man, Dodd's Kidney Pills have done the job," is the way Mr. Gilchrist puts it. "When I first started to take Dodd's Kidney Pills I was in an awful state. I had been a sufferer from Diabetes and Kidney Disorder for ten years. My urine was of a dark brick color and I would suffer something awful while passing."

"I tried everything and tried the doctors but could get no help till I was advised to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. They have made me a new man."

Mr. Gilchrist is getting on in years but he feels young. That's what Dodd's Kidney Pills do for a man.

THE FORNAKEN.

By Duncan Campbell Scott.

Once in the winter,
Out on a lake
In the heart of the north-land,
Far from the Fort
And far from the hunters,
A Chippewa woman,
With her sick baby,
Crouched in the last hours
Of a great storm.
Frozen and hungry,
She fished through the ice
With a line of the twisted
Bark of the cedar,
And a rabbit-bone hook
Polished and barbed;
Fished with the bare hook
All through the wild day,
Fished and caught nothing;
While the young chieftain
Tugged at her breasts,
Or slept in the ladings
Of the warm tikanganan.
All the lake-surface
Streamed with the hissing
Of millions of ice-flakes,
Hurled by the wind;
Behind her the round
Of a lonely island
Rosed like a fire
With the voice of the storm
In the depths of the cedars.
Valiant, unshaken,
She took of her own flesh,
Baited the fish-hook,
Drew in a grey trout,
Drew in his fellow.
Food then inside her,
Dead in the snow.
Valiant, unshaken,
She faced the long distance,
Wolf-haunted and lonely,
Sure of her goal
And the life of her dear one;
Tramped for two days,
On the third in the morning
Saw the strong bulk
Of the Fort by the river,
Saw the wood-smoke
Hang soft in the spruces,
Heard the keen yelp
Of the ravenous huskies
Fighting for whitelish;
Then she had rest.

II.

Years and years after,
When she was old and withered,
When her son was an old man
And his children filled with vigor,
They came in their northern tour on the verge of winter
To an island in a lonely lake.
There one night they camped, and on the morrow
Gathered their kettles and birch-bark.
Their rabbit-skin robes and their
mink-traps,
Launched their canoes and slunk
away through the islands,
Left her alone forever.
Without a word of farewell,
Because she was old and useless,
Like a paddle broken and warped,
Or a pole that was splintered.
Then, without a sigh,
Valiant, unshaken,
She smoothed her dark locks under her kerchief,
Composed her shawl in state,
Then folded her hands ridged with sineus and corded with veins,
Folded them across her breasts spent with the nourishing of children,
Gazed at the sky past the tops of the cedars,
Saw two spangled nights arise out of the twilight,
Saw two days go by filled with the tranquil sunshine,
Saw, without pain or dread, or even
a moment of longing:
Then on the third great night there came thronging and thronging
Millions of snowflakes out of a windless cloud.

They covered her close with a beautiful
crystal shroud,
Covered her deep and silent,
But in the frost of the dawn,
Up from the life below,
Rose a column of breath
Through the tiny clefts in the snow,
Fragile, delicately drawn,
Wavering with its own weakness,
In the wilderness a sign of the spirit,
Persisting still in the sight of the sun
Till day was done.

Then all light was gathered up by the hand of God and hid in His Breast.
Then there was born a silence deeper than silence,
Then she had rest.

—The Outlook.

Power of a Swan's Wing.

"Swans," said a Toronto Island habitue, "have great strength of wing. It is said that with a blow of its wing a swan can break a man's leg, and I have no doubt this is so. A doctor told me one day, as we stood together by the island lake, that one of his first cases had been that of a man whose arm a swan had broken with its wing."

"The accident occurred in Arkansas, on Swan Lake, a body of water where these birds abound. A huntsman was 'fire-hunting,' when a swan, making for the light, flew straight at his head. He put up his arm to shield his face, and the powerful wing of the white bird struck him like a club. Both bones in the forearm were broken; it was a compound fracture."

"If a swan, accidentally, can break in this way a man's arm, there is, in my opinion, no room to doubt that it could, if it desired, break with a well-directed blow, a man's leg."

GAYNOR-GREENE CASE.

APPEAL BY U.S. TO IMPERIAL PRIVY COUNCIL.

The Famous Quebec Extradition Case Not Allowed to Drop—Mr. MacMaster Acting For Washington.

Quebec, July 13.—The Gaynor and Greene case has suddenly taken another turn. A cable was received here on Thursday evening from England, to the effect that a petition had been presented to the Privy Council, asking for leave to appeal to that body from Judge Caron's judgment, rendered last fall, which practically allowed Messrs. Gaynor and Greene the liberty in this Dominion. The details of the appeal are very meagre, but are supposed to have been engineered by Mr. MacMaster, advocate, of Montreal, who has been in England, since last May, and who represented the United States authorities in this case before the courts of this Province.

Immediately on receipt of the cablegram Mr. Taschereau, who was the leading counsel for the defence of the Americans in their extradition proceedings, communicated with his clients and left for England to contest the petition.

Washington July 13.—Published report from London to the effect that Mr. MacMaster of Montreal, one of the leading lawyers of the Canadian Bar, will represent the United States before the Privy Council of England on the application for leave to appeal from the decision of Justice Caron of Quebec in the Greene and Gaynor case, is confirmed here.

A HAPPY EVENT

On Wednesday last a very happy event occurred at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McGregor, Mull, when their daughter, Annie May, and William Parsons, of Detroit, were united in holy bonds of matrimony by the Rev. Dr. Jamieson, of Blenheim.

The bride was beautifully attired in white and the young couple looked charming while being united among their floral surroundings. Many distinguished guests were present and flowers and bouquets were freely distributed.

A large number of friends and relatives gathered at the depot and greeted the happy couple with a good supply of rice. They left on the five p. m. train for Detroit, where they will make their future home. The bride was a popular young lady among society and her presence will be sorely missed.

Their many friends at this place join in congratulations and wish them a long, prosperous and happy life.

BEAT DETROIT

Wallaceburg, July 11.—In one of the hardest fought, most keenly contested games ever played here, the victorious Detroit lacrosse team were defeated by Wallaceburg by a score of four goals to two. The Detroit home gave a fine exhibition of team play, but were unable to break the Wallaceburg defence. Every man on the home team played a star game, the passing and shooting of the home players being of the sensational variety. The attendance was large.

NEARLY SHOT

Wm. Curran, butcher and general good fellow, had a narrow snuff for his life last Friday evening. He was up at his slaughter house on the Jackson farm when a bullet came through the open door, pierced his coat-tails and impeded itself about an inch in a rail. The leaden missile, had it been an inch to the right, would have pierced Mr. Curran's anatomy, halfway between his brains and his feet. The butcher man thinks a lot of his coat, but is still a little nervous. No trace could be found of the man behind the shot. Mr. Curran has no enemies that he knows of, and thinks that the shot was a chance one fired at random.

George Gould's New Railway.

Wheeling, W. Va., July 13.—"We will have our road completed and in operation from Tidewater to Tidewater, from ocean to ocean, within eighteen months," said George Gould yesterday on the occasion of a short visit to Wheeling to look over the Wabash's interests here. He said he was able to announce that all arrangements would go through, connecting lines be built and one vast system from east to west running in a year and a half. "One good feature about the road will be its lack of dangerous or even heavy grades. None will be so hard as to prevent the hauling of seventy or seventy-five cars in a single head train, and this is saying a great deal," said Mr. Gould. Continuing, he said he was interested personally in the proposed Wheeling, Waynesburg & Eastern Railway, which will connect the great mills of the Wheeling district with the coke fields of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Gould's assertion that he is back of it means its success. In that case the Ohio will be bridged here and connections made with the Wheeling & Lake Erie, already dominated by the Gould interests.

DETERMINED TO DIE.

Frank Waters Crawls Into the River at London.

London, Ont., July 13.—Frank Waters, who was discharged from Victoria Hospital on Sunday last, made a deliberate attempt to drown himself in the Thames River, near York street bridge, yesterday. He was seen to jump in the river and crawl on his hands and knees into deep water. Charles Heaman and another young man prevented Waters from accomplishing his purpose. Waters told the police he wanted to die, and would repeat the attempt to kill himself. He was remanded for a week. Waters was being treated for alcoholism in the hospital. He is 55 years old, married, and has a daughter. He has been a lightning-rod agent, also a cab driver.

THE PONTIFF PROGRESSING.

Doctors Issued the Most Encouraging News So Far.

Rome, July 13.—Pope Leo has lived to see another Sunday, and with the Sabbath quiet which fell upon Rome came also peace and even progress to the Pontiff. Last night Dr. Laponi made the following important statement in answer to the question if he believed that the improvement in the Pope's condition could continue. "I believe that if the improvement lasts until July 21, we may not perhaps achieve an absolute cure, but we will secure such a general state of health in the patient as will allay our anxiety."

For the first time he does not feel any ill effects from his reclining position, and the doctors construe this to mean that there is no renewal of the pleural secretion, which previously, when the patient was reclining, pressed against the lung.

During the morning the Pontiff participated in the celebration of Mass in the chapel adjoining the sick chamber. The door connecting the sick room with the chapel was opened, so that his Holiness might follow the service. The Pontiff had several hours' repose. Dr. Laponi resting near him throughout the night. The physician twice administered injections to him, once of digitalis, to strengthen the heart, and another of camphor-caffeine to overcome the patient's growing depression. This morning found the Pontiff with spirits bright, and the conditions generally improved. Dr. Mazzoni joined his associate at 8.20 a. m., and after a brief conference issued the most encouraging official bulletin thus far given. The pulse, which went down yesterday to 82, had risen to 86, while the temperature and respiration showed no abnormal characteristics.

WRITES HOME

Fred Tobey, brother of Roy Tobey, of the 2 T's, writes The Planet from Saskatoon, giving the following:—

Chronicles of the Children of England:—

1. And it came to pass in the year 1908 that there was a great passover. For the children of England passed over the sea to a land secured by conquest unto their fathers, a good land and pleasant, a land of corn and nowhere a land flowing with wheat and money.

2. They came with their young and with their daughters, with their revolvers and with their rifles did they come.

3. And there rose up among them a mighty man, "Barr Moses," and there was with him before the people "Aaron R. Lloyd," and the people rebelled against Moses, but they clove unto Aaron, and they would have made for themselves a golden calf, but peradventure none were found who knew what a calf looked like.

4. Then the children of England crossed the Red River by the C. P. R. bridge and continued their journey unto the land prairie and pitched their tents in a place called by the inhabitants of that country Saskatoon.

5. And the natives of that place came out unto them with oxen and did sell them unto the children of England.

6. Moreover, the natives of that place showed unto the children of England which part of the axe is the handle and which part wood is cleaved with.

7. And some there were who said "This land is not like unto England. Come, let us return, for there are no houses of brick and stone in which our souls delighteth."

8. And some there were who said, "Here are no buffalo to chase and no Indians to shoot; we have been deceived, let us return." But the better part remained in the land of prairie. Moreover, they traded their spurs for ploughshares and their revolvers for potatoes, and gathered unto themselves flocks and herds.

9. And they came unto the land they sought, even unto the River Saskatchewan.

This is as true to life as any article written.

JUDGE HOKE'S COURT

Sandy Bend Justice is Still Free to All.

"WHAT is the cry that comes to me an hour after midnight, when the Red Dog saloon has been closed and I have sought my bed?" asked Judge Hoke of Sandy Bend as he opened court and looked over his audience. "Is it the cry of a hungry coyote, of a prowling wolf, of a steer which has broken his leg in a stampede? Is it the cry of a night bird, a lost woman or a wounded man?"

"Three nights ago such a cry came to my ears as I dozed, and I felt shivers go over me. I got up, seized my guns and opened the door. There stood the critter who had uttered the cry, and as he saw me he uttered out again: "Justice! Justice! Justice!"

"Not to get anybody worked up to a nervous state, let me tell you that Jack Taylor stood there before me. The cry had come from his lips. He sits over there on a bench, and his mug is familiar to all of us. He's been hangin' around Sandy Bend for a matter of three years, and it's been generally believed that he was handy with a gun. I've been one who believed it, and when I think of it I could weep tears of chagrin.

"Yes, Jack Taylor stood there and wailed out that he wanted justice, and it was my opinion that he must have been terribly wronged. He tells me what seems to be a plain story, and my judicial sympathies are aroused and I issue a warrant for Redheaded Mike and tell the constable to bring him in dead or alive.

"That's Mike over there. He don't know one end of a gun from another, and every Chinymen in town has given him the boot a dozen times over. He's redheaded, but he ain't got no more fight in him than a Jack rabbit.

"Jack Taylor tells me that as he was goin' up the trail to his shack that night somebody holds him up with two guns under his nose and goes through him for $10. He recognizes that somebody as Redheaded Mike. He makes an awful struggle to save his dollars, but is knocked down and left for dead. When I heard of that bold faced robbery and assault within eighty rods of this yere courthouse I made up my mind to give Mike such a sentence as would make his hair curl in knots. He was found by the constable and brought in yesterday, and I don't think any of you are gazing at a desperado when you look at him.

"JUSTICE! JUSTICE! JUSTICE!"

"Now for the other side of the story. Mike was lookin' around for free drinks the other night when he runs across Jack. Jack asks him to come up to his shack and play poker. No matter what sort of a critter Mike is in other directions he's all right on poker. This court has tried him to its sorrow. His trick in holdin' full houses and fours is simply remarkable. He goes along with Jack. He hasn't a red cent, but he has an old silver watch to make a pot on. He wins three on the very first pot.

"Then two Chinymen drop in and see the rest of the game, and they both tell the same story. There's a five dollar pot on the table, and Jack gets three and draws down to his hand and bets $1. Mike gets two pairs and draws another queen to make a full house. He sees a dollar and goes one better. They see and raise, and when Jack finally calls he's a beaten man.

"The next pot is a little better for Jack. He stands pat on an ace full, while Mike holds up three tens and catches the fourth. Then it was a good thing to see. Mike's watch and winnin's and clothes was in that pot, and so was Jack's money and his guns. When the call came he was a busted man and chills was gallopin' up and down his back. He yells out that he has been cheated, but the Chinymen swear that it was all fair play. Mike leaves a dollar on the table, accordin' to Hoyle, and saunters off with the balance, and Jack Taylor cries out that he is a ruined man and falls down in a fit. It was after he had recovered that he comes crawling down to Red Dog and I hear his wail from the darkness.

"Feller citizens, there is no more to be told. If any of you can't see that Jack Taylor is a squalor you've got patches on your eyes. You must also realize the principle at stake. The noble game of poker is totterin' to its fall, or would be totterin' if this court wasn't here to extend a bracein' hand. We may steal each other's losses, but we must not steal the foundation stones of poker. The man who loses has to pay, and the

Doan's Kidney Pills FINALLY MADE A COMPLETE CURE.

Mr. Jacob Jamieson, Jamieson Bros., the well-known Contractors and Builders, Welland, Ont., tells of how he was cured: "For fourteen years I was afflicted with kidney trouble which increased in severity the last five years. My most serious attack was four years ago, when I was completely incapacitated. I had terrible pains across my back, floating specks before my eyes and was in almost constant torment. I could not sit or stand with ease and was a wreck in health, having no appetite and lost greatly in flesh. I had taken medicine from five different doctors and also numerous other preparations to no purpose. I finally began to take Doan's Kidney Pills and before I had taken five boxes the trouble left me and I now feel better than I have for twenty years. Those who know me know how I was afflicted and say it is almost impossible to believe that I have been cured, yet they know it is so. I have passed the meridian of life but I feel that I have taken on the rosy hue of boyhood."

Yachting costumes are among the considerations of the moment. French women are having a great deal of deep crimson serge made up in this way. The average woman, however, looks best in a costume of navy blue trimmed with touches of red or white.

Costumes of white serge and brilliantine are also smart trimmed here and there with touches of dull green. A blue yachting costume seen recently was of blue serge decorated with Rough white hopnacking skirts are very smart cut with a wide flare and trimmed with five rows of military braid.

Flat military braid is very good also for linens.

Orange linen is a new shade. It is usually trimmed with black and white braid.

The yachting costume illustrated is of serge. The jacket is blue and the skirt cream with a blue band.

A gentleman was dining with a family of which little Bessie was a member. When her father began to carve the turkey, he asked the minister what part he preferred and was told it was immaterial. A lazy liver may be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. A stick is all right for the back of a lazy man. But it would be a savage as well as a stupid thing to beat a weary man or a starving man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging liver it is a great mistake to lash it with drastic drugs. In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred a torpid or sluggish liver is but a symptom of an ill-nourished body, whose organs are weary with overwork. Let your liver alone. Start with the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in proper working order, and see how quickly your liver will become active and energetic. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvellous cures of "liver trouble" by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood making glands, cleanses the system from poisons, accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.

LONDON HOSPITAL.

Largest in the World and Takes $300 a Day to Keep Running.

What the cost of keeping up a great metropolitan hospital so long as the London Hospital has been plain by the Hon. Sydney Holland in his speech on behalf of the London Hospital on the occasion of its quinquennial appeal, says the London Evening Standard, but one of the largest in London, requires some three hundred pounds a day to keep it going. In spite of princely benefactions, in order to keep up with the growing demands upon it, the hospital has had to resort to the ruinous expedient of selling investments to the amount of twenty thousand pounds yearly. If this continues another five years may see this great institution involved in hopeless difficulty. The prospect opens up the question as to whether the London hospitals should not receive State aid. For many reasons the latter is not desirable so long as it can be avoided, but principally because it would undoubtedly involve an enormous drop in private subscriptions. The money, however, has to be found. London cannot afford to have the great medical institutions curtailed in the slightest degree, however, they are to be maintained without a State subsidy that very large section of the public which does not give to the hospitals the help it receives innumerable benefits from the hospitals, the more regular generosity on the part of those able to give would keep the London hospitals well in the van of medical science, with corresponding benefits to the community. While on this subject we are glad to note that St. Bartholomew's Hospital, which has been waiting for its removal to a suburban position, but the Lord Mayor's Committee of Inquiry two months ago decided that its present position could not be bettered. This is as it should be, but with this decision comes an appeal for aid from the general public which cannot be too much deplored. St. Bartholomew's is a richly-endowed institution with big funds at command. With due care these might be made sufficient for its needs, and it is certain a most opportune time has been found for an appeal for aid, when money is so urgently required by many equally useful but poverty-stricken medical charities.

King Edward's Valuation of a Beard.

The King has an immense belief in the social and moral influence which can be exercised by a well-cut beard, and it is an interesting fact, especially at this important juncture, that the success of the present British Ambassador here, Sir Edmund Monson, is largely due to the King's advice to him on this subject. A singularly handsome young attaché, Sir Edmund, already gray in the diplomatic service, wore when Minister at Brussels one of those big, ragged, straggling beards which Englishmen do not unfrequently affect. The then Prince of Wales, who was an old friend of Monson's, remarked to one day: "You should get that beard properly trimmed, my dear Monson. You will never reach the highest ranks of the diplomatic profession unless you do. A neatly cut beard is of enormous importance in life, believe me. It produces an extraordinary effect. Look at me. I have my beard cut regularly twice a week, and I never get a single word of complaint from the ladies. It is a great deal of my popularity due to it." Monson took the hint. The Foreign Office instantly began to treat him with a much greater measure of respect, and he is now at the top of his profession as Ambassador in Paris, in which capacity he was able to greet his royal mentor, and doubtless to compare beards once more. Paris correspondent of The New York Times.

Reminiscences of Disraeli.

A correspondent writes: "In his biographical sketches, just published, Mr. Bryce repeats a remark attributed to Disraeli at the Congress of Berlin, who is reported to have said of Lord Beaconsfield: 'Der alte Jude, das ist der Mann!' ('The old Jew, he's the man!') This is the first time one has heard of that mot, and it is doubtful whether Bismarck ever gave utterance to it. But what is authentic and certain is that at one of his Parliamentary sittings, when asked whom he considered to have been the ablest plenipotentiary at the Congress, the Chancellor replied, after a little reflection: 'I don't know about the ablest; but certainly at least the second ablest was Lord Beaconsfield.' The Prince's interrogator inferred that he had made mental reservation of the first place at the Congress for himself. Lord Amthill was fond of telling his friends that the only wall ornaments of the Chancellor's Cabinet were portraits of his own wife, the old Emperor, and Lord Beaconsfield.

A MONUMENT TO MILTON.

Old St. Giles, Where the Poet Was Buried, to Be Honored.

Except for one rather serious drawback, it would be hard to find a more suitable location in London for the proposed statue to John Milton than that in which it is now intended to place it—directly in front of the ancient church of St. Giles, in Cripplegate, London. Milton is buried in St. Giles—where, by the way, his great employer, Oliver Cromwell, was married—and the poet wrote his "Paradise Lost" in a house near by, which was destroyed long ago. Moreover, the entire surrounding district of Cripplegate is an historic one, and one of much literary interest. Though hundreds of Canadians find and explore it every summer, Cripplegate now is a desolate out-of-the-way quarter of London, and, of course, the proposed statue of Milton—which will be the first in the metropolis—should have, if possible, a really prominent site.

The scheme of erecting the statue has grown out of an ambition which the vestry of St. Giles have cherished for several years of making many necessary restorations to the historic church and improving considerably its surroundings.

Like many of London's oldest and most interesting churches, St. Giles, besides getting out of repair, gradually has become surrounded, on nearly every side, by rather homely and generally old-fashioned little shops and offices, and these the church's guardians have been anxious for a long time to tear down and afterward to extend St. Giles' churchyard so that the edifice itself may occupy the centre of an extensive open space.

Soon after it was decided, recently, to ask powers from the London County Council to carry out this program, one of two deputes for the Ward of Cripplegate, named Badderley, came forward with an offer to provide the funds for the statue of the great poet so closely associated with St. Giles, for which London has been waiting for so many years, and it now seems certain that the memorial will be erected.

Milton was buried in St. Giles in 1674. His remains were enclosed in a leaden coffin and there is an ugly story that when, in 1790, St. Giles was repaired to some extent, the coffin was opened by ruffians and the poet's bones scattered in every direction. This tale has been denied frequently, but quite recently it has been declared by an authority to be Milton, and the supposed location of his grave is marked by a stone. It was in 1620 that Cromwell, to whom Milton was secretary, was married in St. Giles. The old parish register also records the burial in the church of Daniel Defoe, but it is impossible to locate the grave of "Robinson Crusoe's" author.

St. Giles itself was built about the end of the fourteenth century. Near by it runs what once was the "Grub street," of Poole and his contemporaries, but which now is named "Milton street." It was in the neighborhood, too, that the famous "Cock and Bull" was hunted by Dr. Johnson and "Horace Walpole" and that the great fire of London finally burned itself out.

Cost of Being British Officers.

The commission which has been sent into the question of the private expenditures of subalterns in the British army has made its report, and with its report has made several recommendations, which may or may not be adopted. It finds that, under present conditions, the initial outlay for a subaltern in a regiment of the line averages $1,000. The annual charges which he must meet averages $750, to meet which he has $480 to pay, leaving a balance of $300 to come out of his private income. In the cavalry these figures become, respectively, $3,000, $1,400 and $800. It is pointed out, however, that in the infantry many officers reduce the initial outlay to $500, while in the cavalry it is more often $5,000. From year to year an infantry officer needs from $500 to $750 private income, and a cavalry, at the most conservative estimate, $1,500. Of course, some regiments, owing to the scale in which their living is pitched, are much more expensive than others. In the "crack" cavalry regiments a private income of from $3,000 to $3,500 is absolutely essential to the subaltern. The commission has recommended that the War Office supply field kit, furniture for home stations, at a nominal rent, contribute toward mess, support the bands and in the cavalry supply the chargers. This would mean a saving to infantry subalterns of $250 in the initial expense and $35 to $40 a year. In the cavalry the Government's supplying chargers, saddlery, stable gear and groom would mean a saving of $1,500 a year in the initial expense and about $900 a year.

"Master of the King's Music."

The London Star says that Sir Walter Parratt, who loses part of his occupation through the disbanding of the King's private orchestra, will retain his appointment as "Master of the King's Music." He is also organist of St. George's Chapel Royal at Windsor, a professor at the Royal College of Music, and examiner in music to the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge and London. Born in 1841 at Huddersfield, Sir Walter's first organ appointment was at the small church of Armitage Bridge, and his first important post that of organist at Magdalen College, Oxford, which has long been famous for the beauty of the musical portion of its services. When not playing the organ Sir Walter plays chess. He is President of the Oxford University Chess Club, and was for two years captain of the eight chosen to play against Cambridge.

THE BODY'S LIGHT.

That Photographs Can Be Taken by It Has Been Demonstrated by Prof. Arthur W. Goodspeed.

That the human body emits rays by means of which photographs can be taken has been demonstrated by experiments recently made by Professor Arthur W. Goodspeed, of the University of Pennsylvania. In making photographs by the light emanating from the human hand, Professor Goodspeed uses a method which is the reverse of that employed by means of the Roentgen ray. The object is placed between the photographic plate and the apparatus. In the ordinary X-ray apparatus, the object is placed between the mass of lead plates, in order to shut off the ordinary Roentgen ray, which has not the power to penetrate dense metals. This precaution, according to previous practice, would prevent the making of any impression whatever upon an object placed outside of the box. On the other hand, the plates is laid the photographic plate that is to be affected. It is enclosed in a light-proof envelope or box, so as not to be changed by the ordinary rays of sunlight which are visible to the human senses. On the photographic plate, any other object, coins, metals, or any other object which it is desired to photograph.

The Crookes tube is then placed in operation, and from its kathode come forth the X-rays. The photographic plate, resting on top of the box, is affected by the X-rays, and is entirely unaffected by the light of the human being put his hand in the plate beside the plate for a few minutes, and afterward develop the plate. He will see that the emanations from his hand have affected it, and that the object is dark spots where the metal object lay upon it, so that the photograph, exposed in a dark room at night, has been taken by the light of a human hand.

The commission which has been sent into the question of the private expenditures of subalterns in the British army has made its report, and with its report has made several recommendations, which may or may not be adopted. It finds that, under present conditions, the initial outlay for a subaltern in a regiment of the line averages $1,000. The annual charges which he must meet averages $750, to meet which he has $480 to pay, leaving a balance of $300 to come out of his private income. In the cavalry these figures become, respectively, $3,000, $1,400 and $800. It is pointed out, however, that in the infantry many officers reduce the initial outlay to $500, while in the cavalry it is more often $5,000. From year to year an infantry officer needs from $500 to $750 private income, and a cavalry, at the most conservative estimate, $1,500. Of course, some regiments, owing to the scale in which their living is pitched, are much more expensive than others. In the "crack" cavalry regiments a private income of from $3,000 to $3,500 is absolutely essential to the subaltern. The commission has recommended that the War Office supply field kit, furniture for home stations, at a nominal rent, contribute toward mess, support the bands and in the cavalry supply the chargers. This would mean a saving to infantry subalterns of $250 in the initial expense and $35 to $40 a year. In the cavalry the Government's supplying chargers, saddlery, stable gear and groom would mean a saving of $1,500 a year in the initial expense and about $900 a year.
