Trinity University, Toronto.

FOUNDED - - - 1852.

THE ENTRANCE DRIVE FROM THE LIBRARY WINDOW.

The Faculties in which degrees are granted by Trinity University are seven in number:— Arts, Medicine, Law, Pharmacy, Dentistry, Music, Divinity.

The Colleges in affiliation with the University are five in number:—

Trinity College, for Arts and Divinity, founded in 1851.

St. Hilda's College, with Residence for Women, founded in 1888.

Trinity Medical College, founded in 1850.

Ontario Medical College for Women, founded in 1883.

Toronto Conservatory of Music, founded in 1886.

The two Medical Colleges are in the east end of the city near the General Hospital; the Conservatory of Music is centrally situated on College Street; and the two Residential Colleges, Trinity and St. Hilda's, are beautifully situated in their own park of over thirty acres in the western part of the city. The impression made upon the visitor by this imposing group of buildings, with their picturesque surroundings, is described in a recent number of the Illustrated Buffalo Express as follows :—

A VIEW IN THE GROUNDS LOOKING TOWARDS THE PROVOST'S LODGE.

“ The visitor to Trinity University, Toronto, as he walks through its thirty acres of park and threads his way with difficulty through its rambling buildings, finds himself, to his great delight, transported suddenly into the quaintness and charm of Old World conditions. The College is built in the Tudor style of architecture, with a profusion of pinnacles, and an outline so broken with buttresses and deep recesses that light and shadow have full opportunity of producing their most artistic effects. It is as much unlike a building which the architect of to-day would erect as one can well imagine ; and, although in actual figures this pinnacled and turreted pile is only fifty years old, yet it conveys the impression and exercises the fascination of those halls and colleges across the rolling sea, which are so much more venerable in their antiquity and so rich in the accumulated associations of many generations. Small wonder is it then that Trinity makes an indelible impress always upon the affections and memory of its graduates, who entertain for it the same kind of tender regard that has made men call home 'the sweetest word in the English tongue.'"

To the foregoing enumeration of affiliated institutions must be added the name of Trinity College School, Port Hope, an excellent residential school where boys receive a thoroughly first-class school education in preparation for the University. Ridley College, St. Catharines, although not officially connected with Trinity, may be mentioned here as another residential school with similar aims, where boys are given an excellent preparation for the various courses of study in Trinity University.

Trinity is best known throughout Canada and the United States for its achievements in the three branches of Arts, Medicine and Divinity. In these departments its graduates are known far and near, and names of prominent men who are proud to acknowledge Trinity as their alma mater will readily occur to the minds of all. It is interesting to note how wide a field is covered by the graduates of Trinity. A few well-known names will serve to illustrate this. Dr. Gilbert Parker, M.P., of London, England; the late Mr. Archibald Lampman, of Nova Scotia; Dr. William Osler, of Baltimore; Bishop Anderson, of Chicago; Dr. Rowe, Bishop of Alaska; Dr. Brent, Bishop of the Philippine Islands; Sir John Bourinot, K.C.M.G., of Ottawa; Mr. Christopher Robinson, K.C., Toronto; The Honourable Mr. Justice Irving, of the Supreme Court of British Columbia; Dr. Baldwin, Bishop of Huron; and Dr.

MR CHRISTOPHER ROBINSON, K.C., D.C.L.,
CHANCELLOR OF TRINITY UNIVERSITY.

Mills, Bishop of Ontario. Or, if further illustration be sought for, the following table is sufficiently striking; it is compiled from the Year Book of 1901-02:—

But not only are the Alumni of Trinity to be found all over the world; they are to be found also in every profession and walk of life, notably in scholastic positions and literary pursuits, in the musical world, in medicine, in law, in politics, in the army, and in the ministry of the Church. That they are much sought after is evidenced by the applications which are continually being received by the authorities of the University for Trinity men to fill various positions in the professions and other walks of life.

Faculty of Arts.

The courses of study leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts have proved the main stronghold of the influence which Trinity has exerted upon the life and thought of the community for the past half century. It is in the pursuit of these studies, and by the help of the influences with which they are surrounded, that men have laid the foundations of knowledge and character, upon which, in later years, they have been able to win their success in the various departments of human activities.

And indeed it has always been the special aim of Trinity thus to lay the foundations of character, strong, deep, and abiding, and to instil such a love for learning and true scholarship that ever increasing growth of knowledge in after years will be ensured. In this connection we venture to quote the following paragraph from a late number of the Daily Colonist, of Victoria, B.C. :—

“ For many years past Trinity has enjoyed honorable distinction as a notable centre of culture, and a home of the best classical and English Scholarship ; and it is along the same lines, which have proved so valuable in the past, that it is now proposed to further strengthen and develop the work. Any departure from old traditions would be deprecated on all hands, and rightly so ; for some of the best influences of University education in Canada find their meeting place in ‘ dear old Trinity,’ as her graduates fondly term their alma mater. Moreover, the type of education which Trinity has always made it her special aim to produce, is being more and more appreciated in Canada, with the growing wealth of the Dominion and the increasing attention that is being paid to the study of English literature and to classical scholarship, as well as to the careful development of character as an important feature of higher education. Doubtless it is because Trinity has from the first been careful to keep in the forefront of her curriculum those branches of knowledge which by common consent are admitted to be the best adapted to the harmonious development of the highest and best humanity in every man—and so are called 'the humanities'—and to foster the influences and maintain the surroundings which tend to produce upon character the most lasting effect for good, that she has so long enjoyed her enviable supremacy among the places of higher education in Canada for the sons of gentlemen. Of late years, since the foundation of St. Hilda's College, a similar claim in respect to the higher education of young ladies might well be made; but the work of the University in this department is by no means so widely known as it deserves to be. To those two Residential Colleges Trinity is mainly indebted for the position she occupies to-day, since without such Colleges it would be clearly impossible to carry on an educational work of this high character and standard. For it is not in the lecture-room that the most important part of the work is done, nor is it a work which can be tested by examinations merely. But it is essentially one in which the constant personal influence of the professors upon the students, and that kind of social intercourse which the conditions of Collegiate life alone render possible for most University students, have to be taken into account ; and these must be accorded a large place in the gradual attainment of that general culture which should always be the stamp of the educated man or woman."

Religious Teaching and Influences.

When Trinity University was founded fifty years ago, in a time of much religious controversy, it was not unnatural that it should be hedged about with certain restrictions and doctrinal tests. But as time went on most of these were seen to be unnecessary, and were one by one either dispensed with altogether, or else confined to their proper sphere, the Faculty of Divinity, which has always been and must necessarily remain under the sole direction of the Church of England, existing, as it does, partly for the training of men for the ministry of that Church, and partly for advanced courses of theological study leading to the degrees of B.D. and D.D.

Religious Freedom of all Arts Students.

Outside of this Faculty of Divinity, which might be popularly described as the Church of England Theological College in affiliation with Trinity University—just as Knox College, for example, is the Presbyterian Theological College in affiliation with the University of Toronto—there are no doctrinal tests of any kind enforced, or creed restrictions imposed, by Trinity University.

THE CHAPEL LOOKING WEST.

THE AMBROSE EN.

Side by side with this statement of the religious freedom which is enjoyed by all, we desire to set a parallel statement to show the extreme care that is taken to surround all students of the two Arts Colleges with the healthy influences of a sound, robust religious faith, and to require regular participation in religious worship. In these all-important matters, while students are given wide freedom of choice as to place of worship, and as to the subjects of Religious Knowledge lectures, which they attend, yet within the limits of the freedom thus allowed, they are brought under careful supervision. Accordingly, no student is permitted to be without suitable instruction in the Bible and cognate subjects, or to neglect attendance at the services of the church to which he may belong. The very great care exercised in all such matters, as well as the wide freedom of choice allowed, may be inferred from the following extracts from the Book of Statutes and By-Laws of Trinity College :—

CHURCH OF ENGLAND STUDENTS.

“Every Student in Arts, being a member of the Church of England, and every Student in the Divinity Class, is required to be regularly present at the Chapel services, unless prevented by illness, or absent from College on leave.”

The Statutes further provide, as set forth in the Calendar, that every student in Arts, being a member of the Church of England, is required to attend lectures and pass examinations in the Church Catechism, Church History, the History and Contents of the Book of Common Prayer, and general Bible Knowledge.

STUDENTS OF OTHER CHURCHES.

“Students in Arts, who are not members of the Church of England, shall be excused from attendance at the Chapel services, if they so desire, under the conditions set forth in the statutes, Cap. VII; provided that every such student shall make known to the Provost what place of worship in the city he purposes attending on Sundays, and the Provost shall thereupon report his name to the Pastor-in-charge, with the request that he will receive such Student under his supervision in this regard."

The conditions referred to in the Statutes, Cap. VII, together with further special provision to ensure absolute freedom of creed, are set forth in the Calendar, by referring to which it will be seen that all non-Anglican Students, instead of being required to attend lectures in Anglican Church History and Doctrine, may substitute optional courses of study in the Holy Scriptures, Moral Philosophy, and Christian Ethics, suitable to students of all denominations.

It is plain, therefore, that students of all Christian communions are given the fullest freedom to enjoy the many advantages of the two Residential Colleges of Trinity University, with the general religious influences of these Colleges, without having to absent themselves from the worship of their respective churches, and without being required to attend lectures and pass examinations in doctrinal subjects, which may be at variance with their own church tenets.

Trinity College,

FOUNDED IN 1851.

The oldest and most important of the five Colleges affiliated with the University, is Trinity College,

A CORNER OF TRINITY COLLEGE FROM THE TERRACE.

which includes under one roof an Arts College and a Theological College, with a teaching Staff in Arts and Divinity, and with extensive Residence accommodation for Students and Professors in both these Faculties. The Provost and five of the professors have their residence entirely in the College, while all the other members of the Staff have rooms in the College, where they spend most of their time, and so are kept in constant touch with the other professors and students in Residence. The advantage of thus having the whole student body and professoriate brought together in this close relationship and contact, not only during lecture hours but almost continuously, can hardly be over-estimated.

The Buildings.

The buildings comprise, besides the Residence, Lecture-rooms and Science laboratories, a spacious Convocation Hall, a Dining Hall with all the accessory apartments, a lofty and beautiful Chapel, where Morning and Evening Prayer is said daily during Term, a large gymnasium, athletic rooms, "common-rooms" for dons and for students, and the College Library. The original building was erected in 1851-52, the Convocation Hall and new Dining Hall in 1877, and the Chapel in 1883. The residence and lecture-room accommodation has been twice increased, first in 1890 by the addition of the extensive West Wing, and again in 1895 by the addition of the East Wing. The gymnasium was built in the same year. The Provost's Lodge, a separate residence for the Head of the College, is situated in the northerly part of the University grounds, and close to it stands St. Hilda's College, the foundation stone of which was laid by the Countess of Minto in the spring of 1899.

The College Life.

To the general life and surroundings of Trinity College the utmost attention is paid, the authorities recognizing that in a Residential College the education of the students is going on all the time, and not merely during the lecture hours. Another quotation from the article, already referred to, in the Buffalo Express, serves to exhibit the force of this :—

“Trinity stands for an Old World conception of university life. Her students live in residence, and the College is a little social world of its own, where men are trained in the gentle art of a common life, and learn the amenities and courtesies of intercourse with their fellow men. Students and professors alike share in this common life, and contribute their influences each to the other—the students continually bringing freshness and vivacity into the old College halls, and the ‘dons’ ever imparting to this living stream of men something of their own refinement, polish and culture. The result is beneficial in the highest degree, and it is the man’s own fault if anyone goes out from Trinity, after two or three years’ experience of its residential life, without the depth and breadth, the feelings and manners of the true gentleman.

Cost of Residence.

The cost of residence in Trinity College, together with tuition and examination fees, and other necessary expenses, is given approximately in the subjoined table. Room-rent varies greatly according to the size and location of the rooms selected, running from $16 or $18 a year up to $50 or more. Certain other items also will vary according to the care and economy practised by the student, but they may be easily kept within the figures here given, if necessary. The variable items are marked with an asterisk.

The academic year for Students in Divinity is shorter by two months than for Students in Arts; hence the lower estimate for Room-rent and Board.

Matriculation Examinations.

Matriculation Examinations are held regularly in Ontario twice a year:—

(1) In July, at Trinity College and at the various High Schools and Collegiate Institutes throughout Ontario. This examination is conducted by the Education Department of Ontario, on behalf of all the Universities of the Province.

(2) In September, at Trinity College only. This examination is conducted by the University.

Special arrangements are made from time to time for holding Matriculation Examinations in British Columbia, and at different centres outside of the Province of Ontario. For further information in this regard, application should be made to the Registrar.

A special examination is conducted in British Columbia in July of each year, in connection with the British Columbia scholarship for General Proficiency

The subjects of the Matriculation Examination are given in the Calendar.

Matriculation Scholarships.

There are eleven Matriculation Scholarships offered for competition annually. Two of these are open only to students of Upper Canada College, and one is open only to candidates writing in British Columbia, where a special Matriculation Examination is held annually in July. The scholarship for Biblical Knowledge is offered annually at the September examination. The remaining seven scholarships may be competed for at the July examination, and are open to students of either sex. Competitors for any of these seven scholarships may write at any High School or Collegiate Institute in Ontario, or at Trinity College.

Special Courses.

Recognizing the fact that there are many young men and young women who wish to enjoy some of the benefits of university education without proceeding to a degree, the College opens its lecture-rooms and residences to any applicants for the privileges who, in the opinion of the Heads of the several departments, may be able to derive advantage from them. These privileges are granted to non-matriculated students, as well as to those who have passed the matriculation examination. The courses open to Special Students are :—English, French, German, Italian, History (Canadian and English), Mineralogy, Geology, Botany, Biology, Physiology, Chemistry, Philosophy, Physics, Mathematics, Actuarial Science, Latin, Greek, Biblical Knowledge, Church Doctrine, and Christian Ethics.

The English Language and Literature.

Special attention is paid by Trinity University to the study and use of the English Language. Every opportunity is offered to students to acquire a cultivated style in speaking and writing, and thorough courses of instruction in English Literature are given. These courses, which are open to all, are largely attended by Special Students, that is to say Students not taking full Arts courses. This department is under the personal direction of Professor Clark, M.A., of Oxford and Aberdeen; D.C.L., honoris causa, of Trinity University; LL.D., honoris causa, of Hobart College, Geneva; and Past President of the Royal Society of Canada. Well known throughout Canada as a public lecturer, Professor Clark is known also by his literary work, wherever the English language is spoken. His latest book, not yet published, is a monograph on Pascal; and earlier publications are his "History of the Anglican Reformation," a translation of Hefele's

TRINITY FOOTBALL TEAM, 1904.

"History of the Councils," and several others. As Professor of the English Language and Literature in Trinity University, Dr. Clark has the able assistance of Mr. H. C. Simpson, M.A., of Magdalen College, Oxford. For detailed information of the English Courses, the Calendar should be consulted.

Actuarial Science.

Another course in which Trinity has won special prominence is that of Honour Mathematics. In this course, with a view to meeting a need which is being increasingly felt by many students, provision has been made lately for lectures and examinations in certain branches of Actuarial Science. The head of this department is Professor Mackenzie, who, as an Honour graduate of Trinity University, reflected fresh honour upon his alma mater last year, by taking first place in the examination conducted in London, England, for Associateship in the Institute of Actuaries of Great Britain and Ireland. This examination was open to the English-speaking world, and eighty competitors from different parts of the Empire entered. Of these only thirteen were successful. Professor Mackenzie, after graduating at Trinity in 1887, proceeded to a degree in the University of Cambridge also, where again he obtained high honours, gaining the position of wrangler in the Mathematical Tripos. He afterwards engaged in scholastic work both in England and Canada, and in 1895 was appointed to his present position in Trinity University.

Science Courses.

The special advantage which Trinity offers in Science studies is the direct personal supervision of each student in his laboratory work. Professor Montgomery, M.A., B.Sc., of the University of Toronto well known in Canada, England, and the United States as a geologist and mineralogist, devotes himself exclusively to the careful supervision of the work of all his students, and with excellent results. The laboratories are furnished with every requisite for the departments of scientific studies embraced in the curriculum; and thoroughness of knowledge, with efficient practical work, is insisted upon from every student. In connection with this department mention should be made of the large collection of rare and valuable geological specimens (to which the students have free access at all times), including a collection made by Professor Montgomery himself, during many years spent in various important geological centres in Canada and the United States, and added to by the purchase of specimens from other parts of the world. There is also a very valuable collection of Palaeontological Charts, prepared by Professor Zittel of the University of Munich, who is acknowledged to be the highest living authority in Palaeontology.

TRINITY COLLEGE CLASS OF '04

Other Courses of Study.

A detailed description of all the courses of study is obviously impossible in the limited space in this little book, and the Calendar must be referred to for further particulars. Here it must suffice to add to what has been already said that all the departments of the University work are under the direction of thoroughly competent men, and that the principle of personal and individual supervision of students runs through all the work of Trinity. Professor Rigby, M.A., of the University of Cambridge, has charge of the department of History and Economics. Mr. A. H. Young, M.A., of the University of Toronto, who has studied also at the University of Strassburg, under Professor Keopful and Professor Groeber, and has enjoyed a long and valuable experience in teaching, is Professor of Modern Languages. Mr. Oswald

FRESHMEN FOOTBALL TEAM, 1901-1902.

Smith, M.A., of Corpus Christi College, Oxford, as Professor of Classics ; the Reverend Arthur W. Jenks, M.A. of the University of Dartmouth, and B.D. of the General Theological Seminary in New York, the Reverend H. T. F. Duckworth M.A., of Merton College, Oxford, and the Reverend Canon Sweeny, M.A., D.D. of Trinity University, as Professors in the Faculty of Divinity ; the Reverend E. L. King, M.A., of the University of Manitoba, as Fellow in Philosophy, and Mr. Richard Davidson, M.A., of the University of Toronto, as Lecturer in Hebrew, all add very materially to the strength of the Staff. Trinity College is, therefore, as the foregoing outline indicates, particularly well equipped in Staff, in laboratories, in gymnasium and opportunities for sport, and in buildings generally, for the special work it undertakes to do.

Junior and Senior Leaving Certificates.

Holders of these certificates will be counted as regularly matriculated students of First or Second Year standing on taking examinations in the additional subjects required for Matriculation and the First Year respectively. Senior Leaving candidates may thus complete their course in two years, if they desire to do so ; but the full three years course is strongly recommended.

St. Hilda's College was founded in 1888 as a College for Women proceeding to a degree in Trinity University, the intention being to provide for them the same sort of education as is provided for the men in Trinity College itself. In other words, it was to be a College in which there should be lectures in all the branches of an ordinary Arts course, combined with instruction in Biblical knowledge, etc., and with all the well known advantages of influence exerted mutually by students in their daily intercourse with one another and with those set over them.

Aims of Education.

Education is much more than mere instruction, since it concerns itself with views of life and matters of conduct and manner as well as with learning. In a word, it means refinement and the upbuilding of character. These aims can be best attained by the residential system, especially in the case of woman with her homemaking instinct. There is nothing better for the making of a womanly woman than intercourse and association with womanly women possessed of some experience of the world. All of these advantages are offered to intending students by St. Hilda's College, whether they wish to proceed to a degree or to content themselves with taking up only one or two courses of study.

Co-education.

In 1894 it was decided that the women students should attend all of their lectures at Trinity College with the men. From that time on St. Hilda's has been conducted as a Woman's Residence, and has been, as it was before, most successful in turning out a high type of womanhood.

The New Building.

Owing to the increase of students and the expense of renting houses, which oftentimes were unsuited to the purpose, even when remodelled, a fine and well arranged brick building was, in 1899, erected for the residence in the extreme north-western portion of the grounds of Trinity College. Thus the women students have, like the men, all the advantages of a building specially designed for the purpose which it is intended to serve. They are only three minutes' walk from their lecture rooms, and have a good view of the ravine which forms Bellwoods Park and the eastern boundary of the very beautiful grounds of Trinity College. From the upper windows they have a view of the lake, while the Trinity football and cricket field and their own tennis court form the more immediate foreground. It would be difficult to find a site in Toronto which combines in a more marked degree beauty of surroundings and convenience of location.

ST. HILDA'S COLLEGE, EXTERIOR.

Description of the Building.

Facing the south, the building is bright and sunny, and it is also well ventilated. Its spacious verandahs provide pleasant corners for summer or autumn afternoons or evenings. The internal arrangements are most comfortable and of the latest design, steam being used for heating and electricity for lighting. The plumbing is of the most approved kind and is altogether above suspicion on sanitary grounds. Not only the more public rooms but the private apartments also are large, airy and comfortable. On the ground floor, besides the Lady Principal's quarters, there are found the drawing room, the common (or general sitting) room, and the dining-room, all provided with open fireplaces. Being arranged in the shape of the letter L, and opening into one another by sliding doors, they afford ample room for large gatherings, whether of a social or other nature.

Students' Rooms.

The first and second floors are given up entirely to the students' private rooms, most of which serve the purpose of study and bedroom combined. In several of these there are open fireplaces, which play an important part in the home life of the students, and alcoves which admit of a separation of the bedroom from the sitting-room proper. Clothes-presses also add to the convenience of the rooms and to the comfort of their occupants.

Chapel and Music-room.

Besides the bathrooms there are only two rooms on these flats which are put to use other than those just described—the sick room and the chapel. Happily the former has not been required for the purpose denoted by its name, because the health of the College has been exceptionally good, but under the name of the music-room it has been much used and enjoyed. The chapel is used every day, the students assembling there for prayers.

The Day's Work.

After prayers comes breakfast at 8 o'clock, which leaves ample leisure before the students go over to Trinity College for the first lecture at 9 o'clock. Lectures are held continuously from that hour till 1 o'clock. Dinner is served at 1.15, after which the day belongs absolutely to the students, except in so far as they are required to attend lectures again, which are purposely kept few in number, so far as the afternoon is concerned, with a view to securing the health of the students and the best intellectual results. Tea comes at 6.45 p.m., being preceded by prayers in the chapel. The evening is given to study or such other engagements as the students severally may have made. Being women, not school girls any longer, they regulate their own time and engagements to suit themselves and the discipline of the house. Late engagements, as well as all matters of discipline, are, of course, under the control of the Lady Principal, who generally acts as chaperone to concerts, etc., or provides someone else to act for her in that capacity.

Games and Exercise.

It is the policy of the management to encourage physical exercise as a means of counteracting the effects of severe application to study, which, harmful to men, may be much more so to women, who are more likely to give themselves up to it unduly, than men are. Tennis, skating, and hockey are therefore indulged in to a considerable extent, but thus far they have not interfered in any way with the proper business of the College life

Literary Society, etc.

The students have formed among themselves various societies of those kinds usually thought to be of advantage as adjuncts to a College course. Among these is, naturally, the Literary Society, in connection with which debates are held, readings given, and essays read. Under the direction of one of the lecturers in English, there has been added a club for the study of English authors along the lines laid down in the University's course in English. By means of a club the subject can be treated in a more thorough way than may at all times be possible in a set lecture, for the members write papers and enter into discussions of the same, thus becoming familiar with the application of canons of criticism and taste.

The Chronicle and the Alumnae Association.

Recently the students have begun the publication of a printed paper called the St. Hilda's Chronicle, in which they are aided by graduates of the College. The graduates are very loyal to the College, thus giving the best possible proof of their sense of the benefits they have received from it. They have formed an Alumnae Society, which is not only strong in numbers, but has done a great deal to help the College, notably in the matter of contributing toward the furnishing of the new building and toward the establishment of an exhibition for the purpose of aiding in educating students.

Open to Regular and Special Students.

The College is open to all women, regardless of creed, who wish to enjoy its privileges and discipline. Provision is made for those who wish to take special courses, whether they have, or have not, passed the matriculation examination of Trinity University, which is the matriculation examination conducted by the Education Department of Ontario. For any special students who may desire it, the Council has in contemplation the arrangement of a course in Domestic Science, including sanitation, the composition of foods, their preparation and preservation, etc.

Special Lectures.

In Lent 1902, a special course of lectures for resident students only, was delivered on successive Monday evenings by Professor Montgomery, Mr. E. E. A. DuVernet (of Osgoode Hall), the Dean of Trinity College, and Mr. Michael McLaughlin. Their subjects were "Mines and Mining," (illustrated by lantern views), "Domestic Science," "Things in Law which are of Interest to Women," "The Development of English Political Parties of the Present Day," and "The Wheat Fields of the North-West." Similar courses will be given without charge from time to time for the purpose of broadening the sympathies and the mental outlook of the students.

Room for Musical and other Students.

So far as there may be accommodation for them, the Council will admit to the privileges and comforts of the Residence young ladies studying at the Toronto Conservatory of Music or the Art School, etc., such students, of course, being subject to the ordinary discipline of the house. A fixed charge per week is made for boarders, application to be made to the Lady Principal.

Special Courses.

Subject to the consent and advice of the Professors in charge of the various departments, special courses are offered in all the regular branches of study in the Arts' course; that is to say in English, French, German, Italian, Botany, Chemistry, Physiology, Mineralogy, Geology, Biology, History, (English and Canadian), Mental and Moral Philosophy, Logic, Latin, Greek, Mathematics, Physics, Mechanics, Greek Testament, English Bible and Biblical Literature, Church History, Prayer Book, etc.

Regular Courses.

Regular courses are provided for matriculated and non-matriculated students alike, in both pass and honours, in Philosophy, Classics, English, Modern Languages, History and Political Economy, Mathematics, the Sciences, and Theology.

Success of Students.

In one or other of these honour courses, but notably in English History, Science, and Modern Languages, women students have attained high distinction since the University first opened its examinations and lectures to them. One of the women who graduated with first class honours in Philosophy is a practising barrister in Port Arthur, following thus in the footsteps of the first woman to be admitted to the Ontario Bar, who is an honour graduate in Mathematics from this College and University, and is now a member of the Toronto Public School Board. Another was a nurse in the Philippine war, while many have good positions in schools in Canada and the United States.

Several who have pursued their course without the intention of putting it to use in the way of earning a living are exercising a beneficent influence in their respective spheres.

It is to be hoped that, as the years go on, Ontario's experience will be similar to that of England and the United States, in both of which the higher education is sought by an ever increasing number of women for its own sake and for the power which it confers upon those who pursue it.

Length of the Regular Course.

The course of instruction leading to the degree of B.A. is three years in length. For those who present a first class non-professional certificate it is shortened to two years, on the completion of matriculation, though the authorities deem the full three years none too many for deriving the full benefits to be gained from the system. The academic year begins on or about October 3rd, and ends on or about June 24th, with two vacations of about three weeks each at Christmas and Easter, thus making three terms a year.

Fees for Board and Lodging.

Fees for board and lodging are payable to the Bursar of St. Hilda's College. The fee is $60.00 per term.

A discount of ten per cent. is allowed on the fees for board and lodging, as well as on the fees for tuition, if paid during the first fortnight of term, thus making a total minimum fee of $69.00 a term or $207.00 a year, without counting examination fees.

Of the scholarships there enumerated, eight are open to women as well as to men, namely, two scholarships in Classics, two in Mathematics, and one each in English, History, and Geography, in Science, in Modern Languages, and in Biblical Knowledge. For full particulars of all these scholarships the Calendar of Trinity University should be consulted.

Trinity Theological College

THE DIVINITY SCHOOL OF TRINITY UNIVERSITY.

Although established primarily to give a liberal education on a Christian basis to men intending to pursue any of the various callings and occupations of life, Trinity has always regarded the preparation of men for the sacred ministry of the Anglican Church as an important part of its work. Its theology is not that of any special school of thought, but that of the formularies of the Church. Being representative of the whole Church of England in Ontario (all of the Bishops having seats, ex officio, on the Corporation, or Governing Body, of the College and University), Trinity College guarantees to those who come to her for their training in theology that they shall be taught doctrine in perfect harmony with the Book of Common Prayer and with the Holy Scriptures.

Theological Study and Practical Work.

Students in Divinity receive a thorough training in all the branches of theological knowledge most required for the later exercise of their ministry, and enjoy the further advantage of much practical work throughout their course. During the long vacation they are generally engaged in mission work, in one of the Dioceses of Ontario or of the Canadian North West, or else they are attached to the rector of one of the more settled parishes nearer home, for work and training under his guidance and supervision. During term-time also the students have frequent opportunity of conducting services at points not too far distant from Toronto to be reached on Saturday afternoons, and in the city they engage in Sunday School work and in the teaching of Bible Classes.

These varied forms of practical training prove of inestimable benefit to men who are being prepared to undertake the sole charge of missions and parishes.

Length of the Course.

The length of the Divinity Course for candidates for Holy Orders is three years for non-graduates, preceded by one year in Arts; or for graduates, two years after the taking of their degree, the first year work of the Divinity Course being combined with the final year in Arts. Non-graduates, who take the one year in Arts and three years in Divinity, proceed to the degree of Licentiate of Theology (L.Th.). But the course which is strongly recommended to all Candidates for Holy Orders, who can afford the time, is the full five years' course, leading, in three years to the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and followed by the additional two years of special Divinity studies. The course of study embraces the Holy Scriptures, in English and in the original languages; Church History, English and General; Ecclesiastical Polity; the writings of the Latin and Greek Fathers; Apologetics; Homiletics; and Dogmatic and Pastoral Theology. For further particulars the Calendar should be consulted. All Divinity Students enjoy the advantage of careful training in the composition and delivery of sermons, as well as of continual teaching and practice in regard to the reading of the Liturgy and the Holy Scriptures in the services of the Church. Special importance is attached to the devotional life, and short services of instruction, meditation, and intercession are held regularly in the College Chapel.

The academic year for Divinity Students is shorter than the Arts Year, beginning at the same time, on or about October 1st, but coming to an end in the latter part of April. This long vacation is intended to afford the fullest possible opportunity to the students of enjoying that practical training in the home mission fields and in parochial work to which reference has been made.

There are a number of Exhibitions and Bursaries for assisting Divinity Students who need such help, and particulars of these will be found in the Calendar.

An annual reunion of the clerical graduates of Trinity is held in January, combined with a conference on living topics of the day and on the practical work of the Church. This conference has been found a most valuable means of keeping the clergy in touch with one another and with their College, and it supplies a helpful stimulus to continuous and systematic theological reading.

Trinity Medical College.

Prominent among the institutions which exist for the purpose of imparting medical instruction in Canada, stands Trinity Medical College, with its large staff of able professors, lecturers, and demonstrators, many of whom, among both the older and younger men, have had wide and varied experience in England, Scotland, and the United States, or in one or other of the countries of continental Europe. The reputation won for the College by its professors and graduates during the thirty or more years that it has stood on its present basis is well deserved and most gratifying. In the theory and practice of medicine and in the theory and practice of surgery the lecturers stand in the foremost rank of the profession in Canada, while the work in anatomy, pathology, and the like bears favourable comparison, to say the least of it, with any that is done in the Dominion.

The College is situated in the neighbourhood of the Toronto General Hospital, in the east end of the city, and is therefore most conveniently located for the clinical work which is indispensable to a thorough medical course. The students have access also to St. Michael's Hospital and the Victoria Hospital for Sick Children, both of which are within reasonable distance of the College.

The Medical Society affords opportunity for discussion of papers upon professional subjects, while the Literary Society and the Y.M.C.A. provide for other interests of the students. One of the great events of the year is the annual banquet managed by the students themselves.

The Ontario Medical College for Women.

This College, which is also in the immediate neighbourhood of the Toronto General Hospital, and has for Dean a graduate of Trinity University, offers to women all the professional advantages which Trinity Medical College offers to men. It is the only College of its kind in the Dominion, and is doing most efficient work in training women medical students. Some of the graduates are in private practice, others are in charge of hospitals, and others again are engaged in medical missionary work in China, India, and other countries.

The students of this College have, like the men, access to the hospitals already mentioned. At the present moment a scheme is on foot looking to the establishment of a Woman's College Hospital for Women, at which, when in operation, there will be special facilities offered to the students of the College for the study of the diseases of women.

In this College also the student societies play an important part. There is a very flourishing Alumnae Society.

The Toronto Conservatory of Music.

The Toronto Conservatory of Music is the fifth College comprised in Trinity University. It stands at the head of the Colleges of Music in Canada, and has shown itself most enterprising in bringing to Toronto special talent in the various departments of its work, and also in erecting one of the best organs and concert halls in the Dominion. Its good work in the theory of music, in instrumental and vocal music, and in elocution has won for it the enviable reputation which it enjoys.

Trinity College School,

PORT HOPE.

Trinity College School, Port Hope, which has long been known as a first class residential school for boys, is, under the present Headmaster, the Rev. Dr. Symonds, making very rapid progress.

The School first gained its high reputation under the long and efficient administration of the Rev. Dr. Bethune, who imparted to it a character which, let us hope, it will always sustain. For Dr. Bethune succeeded in bringing into the fullest and most successful operation his strong belief in the necessity of paying due attention to the bodily development, and to the unfolding of the spiritual nature, of boys, as well as to their mental training, in order to give them what can alone be called, in every sense of the word, a true education. In his firm belief in this cardinal principle of education, and in the ability to translate faith into fait accompli, Dr. Bethune has an admirable successor in the present Headmaster. The School is being carried on by him along the same lines on which it was built up to its present excellence, and the marked ability which Dr. Symonds has shown for this special work has caused widespread satisfaction.

The location of the School is by no means the least of its many attractions. Situated on high land, overlooking Lake Ontario and the picturesque town of Port Hope, it affords everything that is desirable in the way of healthy and attractive surroundings; while its ample grounds and cricket field, with all the other provision made for outdoor and indoor sports, and its handsome and spacious buildings, go to make up a school equipment unsurpassed in the Dominion. The School has for many years gathered together within its walls boys from all parts of Canada, and its alumni are to be found to-day in every Province of the Dominion.
