Accused of Killing Miss Norling and Charles Wilson While in a Frenzy.

Fireworks at Political Meeting Injure Five Persons at Buffalo.

New York, Oct. 26.—Frank H. Warner, formerly a prosperous hat dealer, insisted upon acting as his own lawyer when he was put on trial in the Court of General Sessions to-day, charged with two murders.

Judge Foster assured him that his witnesses would be subpoenaed for him, and directed that the case go to trial. Warner began personally to examine the witnesses, but after a time he gave way to the attorneys who had been designated to defend him.

Warner is charged with the murder of Esther C. Norling, cashier in a haberdashery store in East Forty-second street. He shot the girl down in the doorway of the store.

Fireworks Explode. Buffalo, Oct. 26.—One person was possibly fatally injured and four others received serious injuries as the result of the explosion of fireworks at a political meeting held last night at 1338 Broadway.

HUNDREDS OF TONS OF GRAPES PRACTICALLY UNFIT FOR USE.

A Grimbsy Wedding—Bible Society Meeting—Benefit for an Ex-Teacher.

Grimbsy, Oct. 26.—(Special).—Miss Doran has returned home, after a pleasant visit in Burford. T. H. and Mrs. Brooks, from the Cobalt, are new residents in town.

Hundreds of tons of grapes that could not be picked before the last frost, are practically unfit for anything at all now. Beautiful large clusters of Rogers and Niagara grapes are a sight to the passerby as they hang shrivelled in thousands of bunches on the withering vines.

Beamsville District. Mrs. Gebot, of Manistee, Mich., spent several days in town last week, being a guest at the Robinson House.

ON STOCK EXCHANGE RAN PAST SIGNAL.

When the Financial Crisis Was at Its Height.

Mr. Robert Loring, of Montreal, representing the great firm of printing press builders, R. Hoe & Co., was in the city yesterday, on his way home from New York. He was at Gotham on Thursday, when the financial crisis was at its height, and was a spectator of the scene at the Stock Exchange, from the gallery.

Three Persons Killed and Twelve Hurt in Railway Collision.

London, Oct. 26.—Three persons were killed and a dozen others were injured this morning in a rear collision at West-hampstead station of the Metropolitan Underground Railroad. The rear train, it appears, ran by signals in a fog and crashed into a train which was standing at the station.

TIMES WILL CALL OFF THE GAME

The Times will receive a detailed report of the big football match at Montreal this afternoon over its own leased wire, which will run direct from the scene of the battle into the Times building.

ST. PETER'S HOME WILL LIKELY BE CLOSED.

Suggestion That Country Might Use it for Home for Incurables.

City Patients Will Be Cared For in Institution Being Built Now.

It was intimated on good authority in the City Hall this morning that the death of Miss Chowne, matron of St. Peter's Home, would probably result in the closing of that institution.

Members of the Board of Works and Parks Board, after inspecting the land W. D. Platt is offering for a park, on Monday afternoon, will inspect the mountain brow, from which to below the East End Incline.

Eleven cases of diphtheria have been reported to the Medical Health Officer during the week. Five of these are in three houses on Macaulay street, east of James.

TIGERS ARE FAVORITES IN BETTING AT MONTREAL.

Kings of the Jungle Had Light Work Out This Morning.

(Special from Times Reporter.) Montreal, Que., Oct. 26.—This city is quite football wild to-day. The Tiger-Montreal game is about the only thing talked of in the hotels since the Tigers arrived here last night in good condition and put up at the Windsor. They were accompanied by about 20 supporters and over 100 came by the evening train.

DEATH OF THE GOOD, KIND MATRON OF ST. PETER'S HOME.

Miss Lucy A. Chowne, for many years the matron of St. Peter's Infirmary, passed away yesterday afternoon at the City Hospital, as a result of an accident that occurred on October 9th last, when she, in company with Mrs. George Bull and Miss Macartie, were being driven along Duke street by James Bolton.

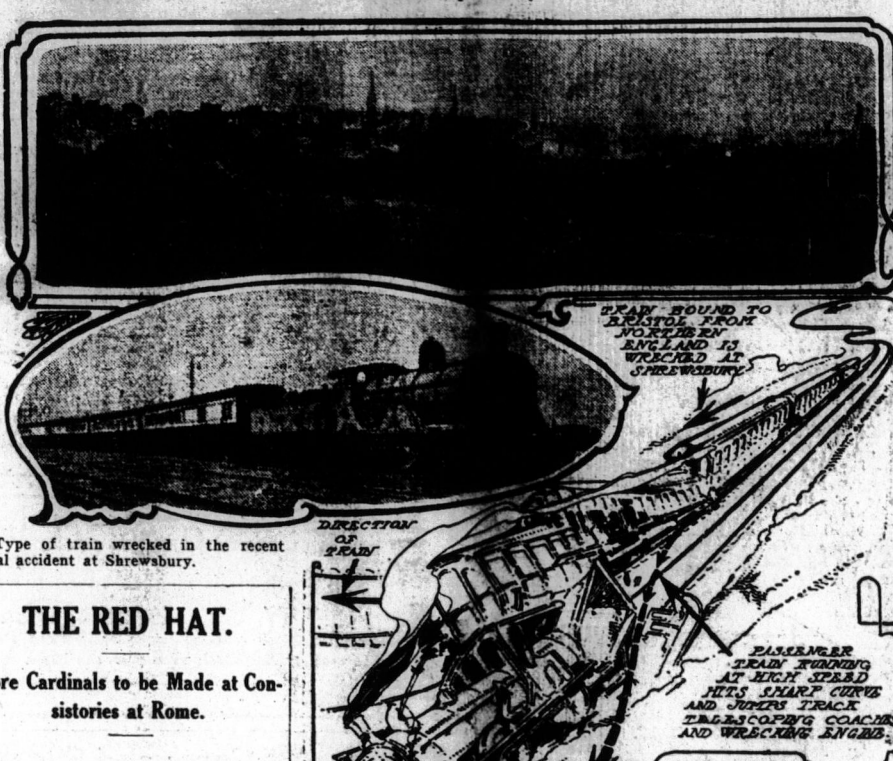

DROPPED DEAD. BROKE DOWN.

Had Plead to Be Sent to Jail as it Would Kill Him.

New York, Oct. 26.—A despatch to the World from Pittsburgh says: "Please don't send me to jail, judge. I've never been in jail in my life and it will kill me," pleaded Michael Dolan, an old man who has been arrested for drunkenness.

Love and Crime

"She is the loveliest girl I have seen in London this season!" a man says, with quick decision, after studying Lady Christabel across a dinner table at intervals for an hour and a half.

"She's not quite my style," answers the young gentleman who is sitting beside Sir Roger. "She's rather pretty, looks nice and wholesome, and doesn't make up, as far as I can see—"

"Doesn't make up—put on the red and white, you know, as all the others do," the young gentleman says, looking rather disconcerted, for he has a wholesome fear of Sir Roger Allison, as well as a great respect and admiration for him.

"I never look at old women," the Marquis of Glendornoch says, pettishly, dropping his lip in his annoyance, but also lowering his voice as the lady to whom he is ungraciously alluding passes by with the other ladies leaving the table.

But Dame Eryntrude Mallibrane looks at the Marquis of Glendornoch. One glance from those keen, deep-set, red-brown eyes of hers, which seem to burn with a fierce light in the hollow orbits beneath the thick, black eyebrows, which are in such curious contrast to the snow-white hair.

One glance only, and a smiling one—an unmarried marquis with thirty thousand a year rarely receives frowns from "the wily sex"—but that one peculiar, swift smile seems to penetrate right through the fishy orbs of vision belonging to the young nobleman, and go into the receptacle which ought to contain his brains, and discover all that is hidden there.

He drops into his chair again with a sudden look, and viciously twists the few long, coarse, hay-colored hairs on his upper lip, which he calls a "moustache."

"If so, then," he says, spitefully, "Lady Christabel's grandmother has heard me saying that I thought Lady Christabel's mouth is too large and her forehead too broad, and her hair too dark for my taste. They say the old woman keeps her granddaughter regularly shut up in seclusion all the year round, and only sets her be seen for a couple of months in the season; and not even then unless there's a desirable party on view at the same time." And the most honorable Marquis of Glendornoch chuckles as he speaks, like an underbred schoolboy.

"Meaning yourself—on this occasion?" Sir Roger says, with a smile that is so full of contemptuous amusement that the youthful peer reddens in honest shame.

He wriggles a little, and twists at his moustache, and falls back on his lip, and his stock of self-assurance.

"But I can wait. Fortunately, there is plenty of time," she says to herself looking ahead to another year with the same unwavering determination: "I can wait, and I will manage better in the future. I will take care Glendornoch does not escape next season."

"What do you think of Glendornoch's friend, dear Mrs. Mallibrane?" the marquis asks. "Sir Roger Allison, I mean? You met him at dinner here last week. I think him quite the most charming scientific man I know," Lady Glendornoch says, laughing, "for he makes everything so nice and easy to understand!"

"Oh, Glendornoch thinks very highly of Sir Roger! He does, indeed!" Lady Glendornoch says earnestly.

"That is so nice," she says, smilingly. "So few young men at the marquis's age care for intellectual friendships."

And Dame Eryntrude Mallibrane learns so much, with those keen senses of hers, in that first brief interview that she resolves instantly on an effort to secure the partisanship of the marquis's friend.

And most graciously and cordially she proffers him an invitation to a small, select dinner party, her last one for the season, to meet the marquis, Lady Glendornoch, and Christabel, a well known artist and his wife, a brilliant dramatic writer, and one or two others.

"I should have great pleasure in accepting, Mrs. Mallibrane," he says, quietly, "but on the seventeenth or eighteenth I expect to meet a man on his way to England, whom I am most anxious to see, and I must hold myself disengaged for two or three evenings at least. He is a man," continues Sir Roger, growing enthusiastic in his explanation, "who has explored in detail a great portion of West Australia, which is practically yet unknown, and he possesses an amount of practical information on the very subjects in which we are interested, which will be invaluable to us if I can get him to join our party. A splendid fellow he is!" Sir Roger winds up, heartily: "brave, young, courageous and ready-witted. The son of an old settler."

Just a week later than that first meeting with Sir Roger Allison, and on the very day before Lady Christabel is to leave town, they meet him again at luncheon at Glendornoch House. For the marquis pays his mother the unusual compliment of being present at the family table at this hour of the day, and Sir Roger sits with him. And the afternoon being wet and chilly, although it is in the first week in August, Lady Glendornoch proposes they shall sit under the fire in her sitting room, a deliciously cozy room, all flowers and perfumes and warmth from the radiant asbestos fire, a thing of beauty glowing in gold and crimson on the marble hearth.

"I am one of the chilliest of mortals, I know," the marquis says, looking out at the pelted rain with a shiver, and then nestling down in her low, yellow, silk-covered chair. So I want to sit by the fire and listen to stories about West Australia, please, Sir Roger."

"Do!" Pleases, Sir Roger! repeats so, adds the marquis, with an intuitive knowledge that Sir Roger does not place the most absolute trust in his assertions. "She looks like that sort of woman," Sir Roger says, thoughtfully.

But neither he nor John, Marquis of Glendornoch, knows that the Dame Mallibrane, who is sitting next to him before she is a year older her granddaughter shall be the Marchioness of Glendornoch.

The said expedition has been undertaken by a few wealthy enthusiasts in the cause of science, to obtain some valuable information on certain geologic and botanic questions.

"There are no pink-and-white terraces in New Zealand since the last great eruption. I thought I told you so, marquis," Sir Roger puts in. "The very face of the country has been changed in parts by the torrents of mud and lava, the appearance of the pink-and-white terraces has been completely destroyed. But if you want to change your mind about coming with us, Glendornoch, you can do so at the eleventh hour, you know, before we leave England. Only if Lindsay is ready to start, we shall be off in three weeks, at the latest."

Mrs. Mallibrane raises herself suddenly from the depths of her luxurious chair and bends forward excitedly.

"Whom did you say, Sir Roger?" "Lindsay—my Australian friend, Roric Lindsey?" "Dame Mallibrane looks as if she is going to make some comment, but she changes her mind, and Sir Roger goes on. "Upon Lindsay I might almost say that the success of our expedition in a manner depends, if we push our researches beyond the Hammerley range and the hundred and twentieth meridian of east longitude."

Then he goes on to describe the route of the expedition.

TEA CAUSED DEATH. ENGLISH WINDOW CLEANER DRANK BEVERAGE TO EXCESS. Doctor States That, as Tea Contains a Quantity of Tannin, It Should Not Be Taken With Meat.

London, Oct. 25.—Excessive tea-drinking was stated at the inquest yesterday to have led to the death of William Mayo Allen, aged sixty-two, a window-cleaner, of Stoke Newington, who had been a teetotaler for thirty years.

On Friday last he ate a good supper of boiled beef, and then had some tea. Early next morning he was taken ill and died before a doctor could be procured.

Dr. Reginald Brown stated that the autopsy showed that the heart was weak and flabby, and there was some thickening of the mitral valve. The stomach contained undigested food, and was distended. Death was due to heart failure, consequent on the distention of the stomach, acting on a weak heart. Allen was an inveterate tea-drinker, drinking tea at every meal. Tea contained a quantity of tannin, and should not be taken with meat.

A verdict of death from syncope, weak heart and indigestion from excess of tea-drinking was returned.

LABOR TROUBLES.

MAY BE A GENERAL STRIKE IN HAVANA ON MONDAY.

Unable to Settle Dispute Between Machinists and Erie Railroad—Montana Smelter and Mines Have Again Begun Operations.

Havana, Oct. 26.—In labor circles where great unrest has prevailed for some weeks, the statement is made that plans have been made to inaugurate a general strike on Monday next.

The railroad strike shows little change. The officials complain of the police protection and declare that loyal employees are being intimidated.

Negotiations Off.

New York, Oct. 26.—An unsuccessful attempt has been made to settle the strike of the machinists in the repair shops of the Erie Railroad which began several months ago against piece-work, at conferences between representatives of the strikers and general manager Stuart within the last week.

It was stated to-day that all negotiations are off.

Resumed Work.

Butte, Mont., Oct. 23.—The Pittsburg-Montana Smelter and Mines resumed operations yesterday after suspension of about two months. Two hundred men are afforded employment. The company is composed principally of Pittsburg and New York stock holders.

ELECTED OFFICERS.

Mr. J. Taylor Chief Templar of International Lodge.

At the meeting of International Lodge, held in the C. O. F. Hall last evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing term: A. Lawson, Past Chief Templar; J. H. Taylor, Chief Templar; Miss Mary Morrison, Vice-Templar; Mrs. D. B. Smith, Superintendent; Juvenile Work: T. B. W. Macnaughton, Secretary; Miss Daisy Madden, Assistant Secretary; A. H. Lyle, Financial Secretary; A. D. Howgego, Treasurer; J. R. Morrison, Chaplain; J. F. Lumsden, Marshal; Mrs. Daw, Deputy Marshal; H. Diack, Registrar; Miss L. Boniface, Musical Director; J. Fleming, Guard; W. Dunsman, Sentinel.

CROWDS AT RIGHT HOUSE.

Thanksgiving Sales Proving a Great Magnet.

The great Thanksgiving sales now in progress at the Thomas C. Walkers store are drawing thousands of customers, old and new. And well they may, for this old reliable firm, not content with displaying the greatest assortments and best values in goods are offering for all next week a series of special buying inducements that will bring them hundreds of new friends and cement old friendships the tighter. The goods involved are fresh new things for fall and winter. Styles are right and quantities are of the well-known Right House character. It is the season's best opportunity to supply your every need and to save many dollars on your outfit.

Visit the Right House on Monday or Tuesday night and see for yourself what splendid bargains may be secured. You will find some of the details in their big advertisement in this paper.

Y. M. C. A. BAZAAR.

The Y. M. C. A. bazaar held yesterday afternoon and evening was the occasion of a large gathering. The rooms looked at their very best, being prettily decorated with scarlet runners and autumn leaves. Mrs. Melagan presided over the tea room, which was well patronized. In the evening the young ladies in the home served ice cream, cake and coffee from an artistically decorated booth in the corner of the hall. During the course of the evening an excellent musical programme was supplied by Mrs. Gordon Henderson's Guild of Workers. It consisted of vocal solos by Mrs. P. D. Crerar, Mrs. Vanzer, Miss Gibson and Miss Holloway, and a piano solo by Miss Grayham. Miss Crerar acted as accompanist.

PAINT SHOP FIRE.

Fire did $200 damage to Robert Blair's workshop in the rear of 34 Catharine street, at 1 o'clock this morning. The cause of the fire is unknown, but the opinion is that it was set on fire by some one sleeping there. The shop was badly scorched and a lot of paint and tools were burned.

A number of "leaf" fires have been extinguished every day for the past week. There were two yesterday, one at West avenue and Hunter streets and one at Victoria Park.

A. O. U. W. CELEBRATION.

The 39th anniversary of the Ancient Order of United Workmen will be fittingly celebrated by the local members next week. To-morrow they will attend the Christian Workers' Church, corner Merrick and Park streets, at 3 o'clock. On Tuesday evening a mass meeting of the members will be held in A. O. U. W. Hall, at which a large number of candidates will be initiated, in the presence of Grand Master Workman Cameron.

TIRED OF STRIKE.

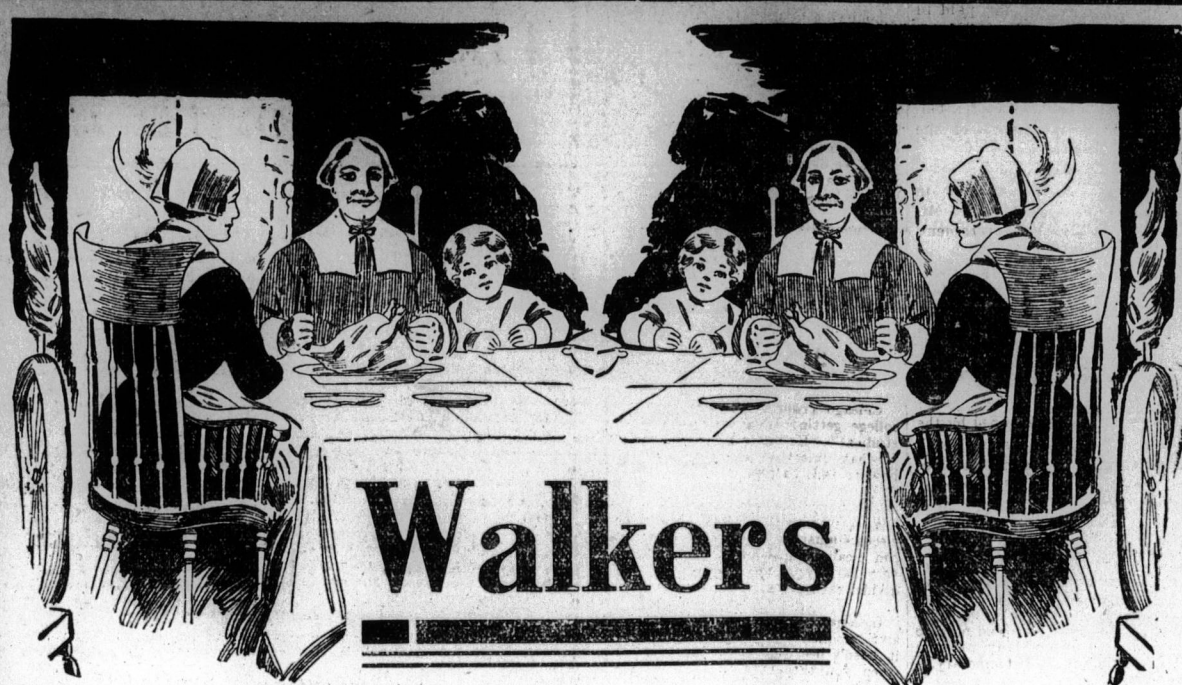

St. Louis, Oct. 26.—Mgr. R. H. Bohle, of the Western Union office in St. Louis, said last night that 22 striking telegraphers had applied for their former positions, and that most of them would return to the key to-day.

NEW UNION PARTY.

Robert Roadhouse Speaks to Socialists in Vigorous Way.

London, Oct. 26.—A meeting was held last evening in the rooms of the socialist labor party and was addressed by Mr. Robert Roadhouse, the Cobalt organizer, who is an industrial unionist. He repudiated the auspices of the Industrial Workers of the World, an organization which proposes to organize the workers by industry and is opposed in every respect to the programme of the American Federation of Labor.

HOW TO WIN A WOMAN.

(By Helen Oldfield.) It is a mistake to suppose that the average man believes that, provided he is willing to exert himself to take the time and trouble, he can marry any woman of his acquaintance who is not won already. There undoubtedly are some men who are so conceited, but this number is relatively few. Unless he is uncommonly good looking or attractive, in which case the women he knows from his infancy have combined to spoil him, the young American of today is disposed to be modest and unassuming, rather than otherwise. Moreover, this disposition upon his part usually is increased by his falling in love. The effect of love upon the true lover is to make him different, even humble. He exalts the lady of his choice and abases himself, and in most cases is quite ready to acknowledge that he is not half good enough for her. True, neither is any other man worthy of her in his eyes, but that does not interfere with the fact of his humility.

works. What wins a woman's love most surely in a man is his capacity for loving. His devotion to her, provided it be not oppressive, his tenderness and ardor will make her his more surely than anything else in the known world. The plainest man, who understands the art of paying delicate little attentions to a woman, who remembers her tastes, to gratify them, who, for instance, does not forget her birthday, may succeed as well or better than the handsomest man who thinks more of himself than of her.

It is the part of a lover not only to make the most of himself, but also to make the most of her whom he loves. It is exceeding sweet to a woman to know that she has been raised upon a pedestal. The humility of her lover, provided there is nothing about it, is deeply precious to the woman who loves. Only let her know his ideal of her, and if she is worthy of his devotion she will deem it a sacred privilege to be in fact all that his most romantic fancy has pictured her. And whatever a man may be to the world, he owes it to the woman whom he loves to be to her something better than his common self. There lies a poet's heart in many a man who never has written a line of verse; an artistic soul in many a man who cannot draw a picture; a musician's nature in many a man who cannot turn a tune. Thus in every human being, whatever his shortcomings may be, there is a better self, a purer nature, which it should be his delight to show to the woman he loves. It often is said that lovers see in each other things no one else can discover. "Love is blind," says the proverb. May not the truth be that his vision is clearer and stronger than that of any other?

FINCH BROS. 29 and 31 King Street West. In business Mr. Graham's word is good, but in politics one is apt to apply the traditional grain of salt to even the King's speech. And Mr. Graham himself can scarcely expect that one bald statement over his signature will clear away the cloud of public suspicion which has gathered about the management of that 1904 campaign, a management with which he was intimately connected. This business, around which so much of disreputable rumor has collected, can be satisfactorily cleared up only by an investigation in which the various participants can be examined under oath—such an investigation as Dr. Pugsley has opened the way for by laying himself open to legal action for libel on the part of the Conservative leader and of some of his prominent supporters. Many householders dislike to burn organic refuse because of the offensiveness to the process. This can be overcome entirely by first drying such matters in the ash-pit beneath the fire.

The Location and Making of San Francisco.

Retrospective contemplation should allow for the fact that her founders, her subsequent boomers, and even her blighted and grafting sand lotters, found the expansive level tracts about the water front amply sufficient to satisfy the wildest dreams of a fortuitous future, of even the most sanguine of these virile souls of those early days.

Since those pioneer days of 1849, so much has happened! Oh so very much has been crowded into these six short decades of her brief span of municipal life.

THE MOLTKE CASE.

Libel Action Likely to Involve Members of Royal Family.

Berlin, Oct. 25.—The hearing of the case of Count Kuno von Moltke, former military governor of Berlin, against Maximilian Harden, editor of Die Zukunft, for defamation of character, is growing more and more sensational every day.

In the course of to-day's proceedings Dr. von Gordon, counsel for the plaintiff, declared that he would eventually ask for the testimony of Emperor William to prove that Count von Moltke never had used his official position to promote political ends.

When I looked up Miss Underhill was looking at me with parted lips and wide open eyes.

"How did you gain this information, may I ask?" I said to her.

"Oh, you see, I included the document by mistake to me, instead of to his own solicitor, and he has not found out yet, for I only got it to-day."

"Then," I said, "it amounts to this, and I looked straight into her lovely eyes, you must find a husband to-day and marry him to-morrow. I shall get the license and give the bride away myself."

"You!" she said, catching her breath. "You give the bride away, Mr. Mansell? Oh, what shall I do? How can I find a husband? Where are they?" she fattered, hopelessly, looking round the office as though a few might be stored away in the bogus deed boxes.

"There are cases on record," I replied, placing the tips of my fingers together, "where a woman was betrothed and married on shorter notice."

"Ah, but someone found a husband for her, of course," said she.

"Miss Underhill," I said, rising and approaching her, "I can find a husband for you, provided you promise to take him on my recommendation and not to back out of it. But tell me the requisitions in the case first."

"Oh, well," she said, blushing furiously, "mainly looking, you know; he must not be an old frump or a freak or anything queer," and a look of coquetry stole into her glance.

Stops Itching, Heals the Skin.

It is because Dr. Chase's Ointment possesses in a remarkable degree the ability to stop itching and heal raw skin that it has become known the world over as the most successful treatment for such diseases of the skin as eczema, salt rheum and psoriasis.

By all means tone up the system by the use of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, but also cure the eczema by the local application of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

The wretched stinging, itching sensation will soon disappear under this treatment and gradually and naturally the raw sores will become smaller and smaller until they entirely disappear.

But there are scores of ways in which Dr. Chase's Ointment is useful in every home, and especially so where there are children or suffer from itching, eczema, chafing, insect bites, hives, poison-dart skin or any form of skin irritation or eruption.

Mothers use Dr. Chase's Ointment for the chafing and skin troubles of babies in preference to unsanitary prodding powders; 80 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

THE MINISTER'S READING.

The following is an extract from a paper on the above subject, read by Rev. Mr. Dickson at the last meeting of the Galt Ministerial Association.

THE CHIEF GROUND FOR THANKSGIVING.

The pardon of sin is emphasized as the chief ground of thanksgiving in God's holy word. This makes a good reason why we should do the same.

REMEMBER ETERNITY.

If eternity is simply time indefinitely prolonged into the future, how can we remember it? We can't remember the future. Memory has to do with the past, with something that has already touched our life.

GRIDIRON BATTLE AT MONTREAL.

Good Crowd of Rugby Enthusiasts Went From Here.

Hamilton Tigers Will Be Well Backed—Secretary Hay Criticizes George Ballard, ex-President of the O. R. F. U.

Inter-Provincial, senior—Argos at Ottawa, Tigers at Montreal. Intermediate—Dundas at Hamilton, London at Argos. O. R. F. U., senior—Peterboro at Vics. Intermediate—Vics at Tammany Tigers.

Junior—Brockville at Gananoque, Canada Life at St. Michael's, Parkdale at Aura Lee, Berlin at Galt, Watford at Tiger III.

Inter-Collegiate, senior—McGill at Varsity, Ottawa College at Queen's. Intermediate—McMaster at Varsity II, Queen's II, at McGill II.

Big Game to-Day. About 75 followers of the champion Tigers left for Montreal last night to see the battle of the season on a Canadian gridiron, between the Tigers and the Montreal team, the leaders in the interprovincial race.

The full report of the game will be published in the special edition of the Times, which will be issued about 4.30—just as soon as the game is over.

The Montreal Herald said last night: The Tigers are coming down from Hamilton confident that they will win from Montreal's premier Rugbyists here on Saturday.

The Tigers with a stronger team than they have this season, defeated the Quebec champions last year, but they accomplished the feat by the skin of their teeth, being materially aided by a greasy gridiron and a field that was ten yards short of the official distance.

Since then the Tigers have strengthened up, the most notable change being in the back division, where Gordon Merrick has replaced the London man, Clime, at centre.

Southam would not play in Hamilton against Montreal, as he had just returned from a trip to Europe and had not done any training.

Secretary J. B. Hay, in moving the acceptance of the resignation of Mr. Ballard, stated that he wished to make clear the union's position regarding the interprovincial union and the O. R. F. U.

But then the local football leaders allze that Secretary Hay was too considerate of the Toronto Victorias—the club he represents. But for that they claim there would have been a good senior series in the O. R. F. U.

Last night at the meeting held in West End Y. M. C. A., called for the purpose of talking over ways and means of financing the proposed trip of a Canadian team to England next year, the discussion turned on the methods of selecting the representatives at the Olympiad.

It appears that the Olympic promoters have placed the matter in the hands of the Governor-General, who in turn has deputed his authority to Col. Hanbury Williams, but the latter has not yet seen fit to communicate with the C. A. A. U.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES. A Class for Foreigners at 10 A. M. To-morrow. On Wednesday evening a banquet will be given in honor of Grand Master Workman C. E. Cameron, in Arcade Hall, James street north. The feature of to-morrow's programme at the Y. M. C. A. will be the men's meeting in the afternoon, when Pastor P. W. Philpott will give an address to men. Special music has been arranged for, led by Mr. D. M. Barton. All men cordially invited. Bible class at 3 p. m. is a good place for any young man to spend an hour. It will be led by Mr. J. A. Kneale. The International Sunday School Lessons will be studied. The class for foreign-speaking young men at 10 o'clock will be in charge of Messrs. Geo. Larn and E. Buscombe. Young men who would like to become more familiar with the English language would profit by attending this class. Members wishing tickets for Mr. Barton's special lecture can get the same by applying at the office. The Membership Committee held a meeting last night, J. A. Taylor presiding. Mr. H. C. Moran was appointed secretary of the committee. It will meet the first Thursday in each month. Forty-three new members have been received already this month, and the committee will endeavor to largely increase that number. Nov. 14th is set for the date of the Ladies' Auxiliary annual high tea. There was a large attendance at the Workers' training class last night, from 6.30 to 7.45. New Publications. The new volume of St. Nicholas starts off in the November number with a strong flavor of adventure, on sea and land. Especially to delight the boys is the first installment of "Three Years Behind the Lines," the true chronicles of a "diddy-box," set down by a lad of good family, who ran away to sea and enlisted for three years. Just now naval service under Uncle Sam appeals to a boy—a record written in the first place to comfort a homesick boy—makes interest as little ones. Later chapters will tell of the runaway soldier lad's share in the stirring events of the battle at Manila Bay. Another feature of the new volume, especially to delight the boys—why not the girls as well?—is the true chronicles of Major-General O. O. Howard's stories of "Famous Indian Chiefs," a series opening fitly with a sketch of Oseola. Probably no white man has ever known so many famous Indian chiefs as General Howard, who, after his distinguished career in the war of 1861-1865, was chosen by President Grant to make peace with the Apaches and other tribes in Arizona and New Mexico. In the six years following 1874, he commanded the United States Army in two Indian wars, and came to know intimately more than twenty famous chiefs from New Mexico to Alaska, several of whom had been his foemen in the field. Ernest Harold Baynes tells the true story of an unusual pet, "Dauntless, My Big Timber Wolf," and Virginia Mitchell's "In the Tolls of Fate" is a thrilling story of a girl's wild adventure. There are delightful stories "For the Very Little Folk," and features of unusual interest in Nature and Science and the St. Nicholas League; and more than the usual store of pictures and rhymes. WORK AT GULEPH SLACKENING. Guelph, Oct. 25.—The Raymond Company will close for stocktaking. They will start up full blast on the 1st of December. At the Canada Furniture Company's factory the work hours have been reduced to eight hours per day. It is understood also that the Bell Piano & Organ Company contemplate closing down their plant for a week. PEEL TO THE BANKS. Montreal Stock Exchange Asks for Million-Dollar Security Fund. Montreal, Oct. 25.—Owing to the panic which has been threatening the local stock market, a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Exchange was held to-day. At this meeting it was decided to have a committee wait upon the banks to-morrow with a request that they deposit at least $1,000,000 with the brokers in order to provide against any undue slaughtering of stocks and also for the purpose of quieting the fears of the public. Mr. Rodolphe Forget presided at the meeting. Mr. J. D. Cholwill, well-known Toronto hotel man, is dead. Two storehouses of the Grenadier Ice Company, Toronto, were destroyed by fire. IN THE WORLD OF AMUSEMENT

Bennett's All Star

"Motoring" one of the most laughable sketches in vaudeville, and Della Fox, the comic opera star of famous memory, will be the headliner at Bennett's Theatre next week. "Motoring" is an act which is practically unknown to local theatre devotees, because it is one of the newest of the better class of vaudeville acts, but Della Fox, although she is new in vaudeville ranks, comes heralded by a reputation which is familiar to the great majority of playhouse patrons. These two acts coming direct from the best theatres in the United States form a rare combination for the one week; but besides them there are six other acts, the merits of which rank them with the best novelty productions. The whole programme for next week is one which will make Manager Driscoll smile and the people of Hamilton sit up and take notice.

In "Motoring" patrons will witness a particularly fine comedy sketch. Based on one of the most popular pastimes of the day, staged in an elaborate manner, and produced by a company of clever English comedians, it is an act which appeals to all classes of theatre-goers. The act is being produced by Harry Tait's famous troupe of English comedians. From a humorous standpoint the theme of the act is one of remarkable originality and perfection. The piece de resistance of the sketch is the breaking down of a "chu chu" machine, and of the efforts of an inexperienced chauffeur to repair it. The act was produced at Shea's Theatre in Buffalo recently, and it is said to have created a veritable laughing sensation. It comes here from Pittsburgh, where it has been the chief feature in vaudeville circles for the past week. In Della Fox local theatre-goers will behold one of the daintiest and most captivating soubrettes on the stage, a singer of culture and an entertainer of merit. Her performance is of an elevating character, and to a company of clever English comedians, it is an act which appeals to all classes of theatre-goers. A SCENE FROM "WAY DOWN EAST," Which will be seen at the Grand on Thanksgiving Day.

At the Grand

The "Wizard of Oz," which comes to the Grand on Friday and Saturday next, promises to outlive any of its contemporaries in the pleasant field of musical extravaganzas. No many excellent features of a novel and entertaining order does "The Wizard of Oz" possess that little wonder should be expressed at its longevity. It is happy in comedy drawings, no two types as the droll Scarecrow and Tin Woodman ever having been equalled for originality. Then there are the other stage folk ranging from charming little Dorothy Gale and vivacious Trisxie to Imogene, Dorothy's fiddleome heifer companion, and the mischievous lion. The Lady Lunatic, the Prince, the Wizard and Pastoria are all cleverly drawn characters. The musical numbers are bright, tuneful and catchy. The scenic effects are beautiful, novel and unique, the poppy field scene in summer changed to winter being a distinct triumph in stagecraft.

An unusually strong company of principals are with "The Wizard of Oz" this season. George Stone and Frank Hayes, a clever eccentric comedy pair, play the Scarecrow and Timpani. Wm. Barry, son and namesake of the famous little comedian, is The Wizard; Joseph Schroeder, playing Imogene; Robert Burns, one of the best animal impersonators and acrobatic comedians, is doing the timid lion; Dorothy is played by little Mimosa Cavendish; Gertrude Barrold makes a captivating Trisxie; Anna Suits a dashing Prince, and Lillian English a clever Lady Lunatic. The chorus numbers fifty.

"Way Down East" with its homely rural types comes to the Grand on Thanksgiving afternoon and evening. The record of this rural play from a statistical standpoint is truly remarkable. It is estimated that it has been seen by more than 5,500,000 people, and its gross takings have been in the neighborhood of $4,000,000. It has more metropolitan runs to its credit than any other play of the present time. The natural deduction is that it is a play that appeals to all classes—the high and low, young and old, city folk and country folk. It is a plain story for plain people. The country folk find enjoyment in having their own people set before them. The blase city man is taken back to the time when, with stone braided feet he chased the butterfly through the meadow. Withal, the story of the play points a moral that is applicable to all mankind. This moral is not flung out like a signpost.

but is unconsciously observed. "Way Down East" is a clean play and a wholesome one. It is a drama full of what is termed heart retribution which overtakes the man who betrayed her by a false marriage, is one to stir the blood and thrill through the being. The entire big cast and elaborate production utilized in all the metropolitan runs will be seen here.

The attraction at the Grand to-night will be "Shadowed by Three," an intensely interesting detective play. A large audience was pleased with it this afternoon.

One of the most popular melodramas of the better sort on the road is "The Shadow Behind the Throne," which will be seen at the Grand next Wednesday matinee and night. It was seen here last year and made a hit. The same excellent cast of players is still with the production, including the clever emotional actress Edith Bland.

One of the pleasing attractions booked for an early appearance at the Grand is "The Mayor of Langhland."

With Charles J. Ross, and Mabel Fenton heading a large cast of principals supported by a chorus of over 50 people, "The Social Whirl" a musical comedy in two acts, burlesquing a society publication, will be presented at the Grand shortly. The piece is by Charles Doty, Joseph Herbert and Gustav Kerker and had a long run at the New York Casino. It is a Shubert production, and was staged by R. H. Burnside.

At the Savoy Theatre next week as the chief headliner of another excellent bill, the management announce one of the advanced vaudeville's largest and most expensive productions, Joe Maxwell and company of ten people, presenting "A Night in a Police Station." It is a one-act musical comedy that has been making a most pronounced hit for several weeks at all Klaw & Erlanger's big houses. The playlet was written by Joe Hart, who has probably produced more clever vaudeville sketches than any author in the business. His master hand is seen in every detail in this sketch, and the press and public have approved of it as one of the cleverest skits Hart has written. The plot is based on the arrest of six chorus girls for exceeding the speed limit in an automobile. The stage shows the interior of a police station, and after ten minutes' bright dialogue and clever comedy the girls are marched in, accompanied by the police captain. They are prettily costumed, and are said to have voices of uniform excellence. The numbers in which the ten people join are sure to be well liked. All the members of the troupe have good voices and are capable actors. The songs are new and catchy.

Every act on the bill will be in keeping with the excellence of this big headliner. The special added attraction will be the Three Ernesto Sisters, a European aerial novelty, which for many months has featured and proved the biggest kind of a hit at the leading vaudeville houses in Europe. The work is said to be all new, original and in spots sensational. It is reputed to be entirely out of the ordinary run of entertainment of that class, and if it justifies the claim of the advance notice will be the biggest kind of a hit.

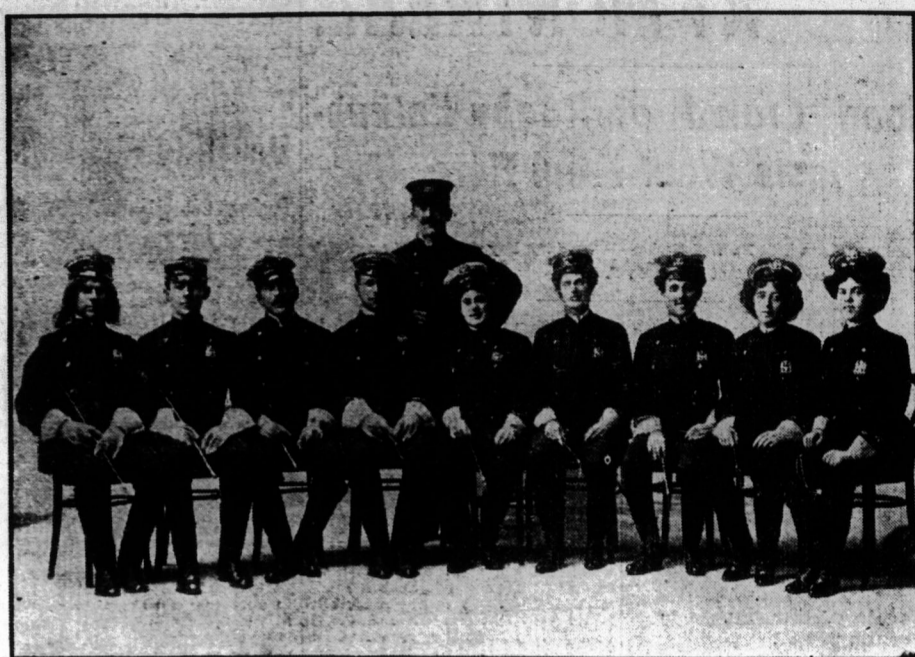

Johnny Johns, who is famed as "The Boy From Dixie," promises several minutes' pleasing entertainment. Johns is a clever comedian with a good line of bright stuff, and is said to have a way of establishing himself in the favor of the audience without delay. An animal upon to please, and Dewar's cats and animals fulfill all expectations in that respect. The animals are said to be wonderfully well trained, and to give a very novel exhibition. Hayden and Davis will be seen in a clever talking skit entitled "One Good Turn Deserves Another." They are a clever team and have a very entertaining act. Hal Merritt will present another novelty, "The Poster Girl Monologue," an exceedingly bright little turn, sure to please. Reed and St. John are a pleasing pair of vocalists, who will introduce new songs. Mabel Berra is a pleasing soprano. The pictures close the show.

General Gossip

There is another movement on foot in England against a censor of plays, who during the past year has been subjected to much criticism.

A petition to the English Premier is in circulation, and it is being signed, it is reported, by leading dramatists, novelists, critics and others whose combined judgment as to the question of the utility or the uselessness of this functionary would seem to be conclusive. In fact, it is more than a question as to mere utility or uselessness, for men prominent in London dramatic and literary circles declare that if the censorship shall be maintained it will drive desirable writers from the stage.

The latest acts of the censor that have newly aroused opposition to his function have been refusals to permit the representation of certain plays by English dramatists. The Lord Chamberlain is figuratively the censor of the drama; as he is the master of ceremonies and all matters that relate to social life in his environment. Literally, however, the censor is George Alexander Bedford, "the examiner of plays," whose word and judgment naturally are effective in the premises. The Lord Chamberlain acting upon his advice.

and kindred arts to procure the representation of plays like Maeterlinck's Moma Vanna, Ibsen's Ghosts, and Shelley's Cenci, in spite of the censor's prohibition.

Andrew Lang, in the London Morning Post, asks why people no longer weep in the theatre. He assumes that people nowadays are unmoved in the presence of what should be moving tragedy, and even goes so far as to assert that "certain kinds of misery excite agreeable sensations."

Mr. Lang is a typical Englishman, and the English of his class no longer give vent to their emotions. He will find tears and laughter in response to acting in plays that touch the multitude if he will go where such plays are represented. They are not produced, however, as a rule, in theatres of the sort that one would expect Mr. Lang to attend.

The Philadelphia Ledger credits William Henry Rice, the old-time minstrel, with a discovery of his files that a play made from Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" was produced in that city at the old Chestnut Street Theatre in 1855.

The piece, it is said, was dramatized by J. B. Howe, and Barnum seriously considered a production of it at his museum in this city.

An actor named Harris undertook the role of Christian, and Frank C. Bangs, then a very youthful player, was the Hopeful.

After spending ten successful years in Europe, Ellen Beach Yaw, the great California soprano, returned to the United States this fall and commenced a tour of America. So far she has met with the greatest success. Efforts are being made to get the great artist to come to Hamilton, and with that end in view guarantee lists have been opened at the box office at the Grand, at Nordheimer's music store and at the Conservatory of Music. If the musical people subscribe for 400 seats by Wednesday evening a concert by the "highest soprano" in the world will be given at the Grand on Dec. 4. Mr. A. J. Small is holding the Grand open for that date till next Thursday. Miss Yaw sings in Buffalo on Dec. 3, and the 4th is the only date that she can give Hamilton this season.

Willie Eckstein, brother of Harry Eckstein, the well-known impersonator of this city, is coming to Bennett's the week after next in his pleasing musical act. Mr. Eckstein is attaining an enviable reputation as a pianist and violinist, and his numerous Hamilton friends will be pleased to hear of his success.

Successful Plays Often Made Over.

After some shows have been on the boards a few years they are vastly changed from what they were on the night of their first presentation. In some instances the changes that come over the pieces are not so important, but with other shows the transportation is radical. Whole acts are eliminated or changed around. New songs are put in and new jokes are written. Sometimes the scenery and costumes are changed from what they were in the beginning.

George Ade's "Artie" underwent several changes while it was in Chicago, the entire first act having been rewritten between the day that the play was put on and the one on which it was taken off.

"Artie" didn't get started just right and Ade hurried up from his farm at Brookland to inject a little more action into it. In the same way the second act of "The Girl Rangers," the Nesbit and Lederer attraction, had to be rewritten while the show was in its maiden run.

In one of the later Hoyt plays a most startling change was made. The play did not run smoothly, and for a time the managers were puzzled to know what ailed it. Then Hoyt himself discovered that it had been put on backwards, and to remedy this defect he ordered the third act to be switched around so that it would be first, and the first act was changed to the second. This left the second act to go on last, and it is theatrical history that the play, after these remarkable changes, became one of Hoyt's greatest successes.

SCARCITY OF TAILORS.

Since the Revolution Began Young Men Will Not Learn the Trade.

Blame for the dearth of journeymen tailors is laid at the door of semi-ready tailoring. The revolution of this particular trade caused by their system has discouraged young men from learning the tailoring trade in the old way. Printers and publishers are having the same trouble since the introduction of typesetting machines.

This is why many merchant tailors are writing to the Semi-Ready Company in Montreal to secure the sole agency for their Special Order Department. The company makes suits to measure within four days for all their agents. They use only the finest British woolsens, and give the same guarantee which accompanies their regular stock garments.

An order placed with Mr. McClung today for a made-to-measure suit will be delivered within the week.

It was the morning of Thanksgiving Day and the sort of a day which usually has the effect of making one glad to live; when sunshine and frost happily unite and blend their force, strength and vigor to produce the perfection of early winter.

Miss Crabtree Petting "My Star"

"THERE'S twenty trotters—most of them good ones; too—in Charlotte Crabtree's stables," remarked a well-known horseman to a group of friends. "Some day she'll be one of the most famous owners on the Grand Circuit."

"Who is Charlotte Crabtree?" asked one of the party. The horseman regarded the questioner with eyes of pity.

"Who is Charlotte Crabtree?" he repeated slowly. "Well, of course, you're young. But haven't you ever heard of Lotta, the winsome, dashing little Lotta, of the stage? Why, man, a quarter of a century ago she was one of the most popular actresses, not only in America, but in all the world."

"Fifteen years or so ago she retired from the stage. But the dear little woman, I guess, must miss the thrill of the footlights; love of excitement has not cooled in her blood, else she would not own and race trotting horses."

"Wealthy? Well, in Boston, where she lives, Miss Crabtree is credited with the possession of at least a million. She is regarded as the richest of American actresses."

Leaving Her Auto to Greet the Winner

the winner, a beautiful chestnut mare, standing there, panting and perspiring.

Impetuously Lotta threw her arm about the neck of the beautiful animal, and with the other hand caressed its sensitive nose. How the crowd cheered.

The little woman was radiant. She stood there until the wreath of flowers was placed about the neck of the triumphant horse, then she bent forward and smelt the odorous blossoms.

"Disappointed?" She laughed blithely. "Certainly; but why should I blame my Sonoma Girl? She lost and another horse won. See? The dear creature," and she again petted the horse. "They're all so lovely; I like them all. Sonoma Girl will win next time. Oh, yes, I am sure she will."

Now, if you had spent $26,000 for a trotting horse, you would probably have said things about the animal if it had lost. Not so with Lotta.

"You see, I know just why Sonoma Girl broke at the turn," she eagerly explained. "At Buffalo, you know, on one of the turns, she was run into, the driver was thrown and she ran away. Now, so sensitive an animal as Sonoma Girl certainly remembers an accident, and the memory of this episode is so painful that she always thinks some one is going to run into her again."

"But she will learn to forget, and then she will be all right. See? She is a beautiful mannered horse, and I admire good manners in horses. I am very, very fond of her."

And when some one offered Lotta an amount of money for the horse exceeding that which she paid for her, the actress promptly refused it. Sell Sonoma Girl? No, indeed!

A modest, even an inconspicuous figure, Lotta does not court attention. When she passed from the stage, her life, she said, was to be her own. But interest has never failed in this bewitching woman of a quarter of a century ago.

Usually Lotta dresses in white duck suits, wears plain hats, a heavy veil and light furs. Her love of horses draws her to the track, and when she fondles the animals she often gets more cheers than the victors.

Of course, Sonoma Girl is Lotta's favorite. "Next comes My Star," she says. "You know My Star was the fastest green pacer this year. My brother Jack and myself love all our horses—we have twenty. There are Stella Oakes and Roan Wilkes. Hal Direct is the best stallion in the world; he's a charming fellow. Then there are more pets in our family—Roberta, Jenny Scott and Mary Scott, Emma D., Lord Autograph, Nut Boy and Gentry Star."

At her home it is interesting to see Lotta and her money," which her mother

says. Then there were great days during the Civil War. After discussions about the fray over their "red eye" the miners went to the city of Jefferson, where Miss Lotta was the star attraction.

She caught them with the song, "When This Cruel War is Over," and nuggets, even bags of nuggets, were thrown her way when she made her appearance on the stage.

Sophie and Irene Worrell sang "How Can I Leave Thee; How Can I Say Farewell?" and "Hark! I Hear an Angel Sing," respectively. John de Angella, father of Jefferson, went on the stage in that city. W. Bernard started his career there, and became a member of the old San Francisco Minstrels, which netted him $25,000. Others on the bill with Lotta were "Ben" Cotton, George H. Coss and "Doc" Murphy, who is now worth half a million, and was made famous by Fred Madden's "The Gerry Cow."

Everybody who was anywhere near there, but Lotta was the most popular of the lot. Ten years after her debut at Niblo's Garden, and after scoring a rousing success started on the Western tour.

For thirty years she played in the United States and England. She took the part of Topsy in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and played in "The Little Detective," "Firefly," "Musette," "Nittouché" and "Fanchon the Crickler."

Lotta was fortunate in choosing her parts, selecting those of diminutive characters. She was so petite and winsome herself that she inevitably made a hit. It was John Brougham who called her the "dramatic cocktail."

She was wise in investing her money as she made it, usually in real estate. She retired fifteen years ago, the wealthiest actress in America.

Lotta owns a home in New York, but spends most of her time at the home of her brother, Jack. Here she divides her time between raising flowers and her horses. Wherever she goes Lotta is followed by her dog, in her stable she has a pet monkey.

Lotta has only recently begun her racing career, but the fever has got into her blood. So, don't be surprised if she develops into the foremost track enthusiast of the country. For she says:

"I am passionately fond of trotters, and always have been. It seems so wonderful to me how they can do it—how they can lift their feet so swiftly, and let them fall so evenly, and endure it all, mile after mile. I don't believe the public has realized quite how wonderful it is."

"What do I prefer, form or speed? Well, form makes smooth speed, of course, although there is really no rule about it. Sonoma Girl's driver says that when he is riding her, he really doesn't realize just how fast she is going because her gait is so smooth and so poetically graceful."

"I certainly prefer form to sheer brute strength in a horse even at the sacrifice of a little speed and endurance."

"What do I like best about horses? Why, gameness is the chief quality that I admire in them. But, of course, speed counts. There must be some of both in a horse, but I really prefer gameness to speed in a horse of moderate speed rather than faint-heartedness in a faster animal."

"Nature in the ranches," Lotta declares, "a girl will go to the corral, single out a bronco and ride bareback like the wind with that easy graceful swing over the mountain roads that I can't realize just how fast she is going because her gait is so smooth and so poetically graceful."

Women of R.F.D. Routes Make Bravery Records

A SHORT time ago it was announced that Sonoma Girl, at Columbus, Ohio, had made the fastest trotting track mile of the year and a world's record for a green trotter—2:05 1/2.

"Is this the Sonoma Girl that Lotta Crabtree recently purchased for $26,000?" was the question that few around track circuits.

"The same," was the reply of knowing ones. So Lotta, the former actress—now known as Miss Charlotte Crabtree, of Boston—had the satisfaction of experiencing a vindicated faith. She believes thoroughly in Sonoma Girl; she expects the California mare to prove the pride of her growing stable.

Three times before this she had raced the mare, and three times the horse had lost. But each time the owner only smiled, quite good naturedly.

She loves the sport for sport's sake, and possesses the true sporting spirit. What the thrill of the stage, the thunders of applause, and repeated curtain calls were to her in years gone by, the excitement of watching her horses battle for victory on the track is now to her, in part, at least.

FOUND A REAL PRIZE

After years of search Lotta has probably found a prize in Sonoma Girl. This sensational California mare swept through the Grand Circuit last summer, showing wonderful flights of speed. In time she is expected to become a wonder of the trotting track.

Horse racing is the joy of Lotta's life. She loves horses—animals of every kind, in fact. She says her mission in life is to curtail cruelty to animals, and her recreation is the racing of fine high-bred horses. Then there's Jack, her brother, who likes horse-flesh, too. And as they live together, with the horses they make a happy family.

Not long since the sun beat warmly on the Readville track and a bustle of excitement swept over the eager assemblage.

In an automobile, near the track, sat a little woman leaning on the edge of the tussle, her veil uplifted, and watching the horses anxiously. A little woman, with sparkling black eyes, a rosy flushing face, whom no one would have taken for being 30 years of age. Miss Crabtree does not show her age. She is almost as animated, as winsome, as sparkling as she was in the days when she delighted the crowd with her dancing.

Two horses raced with heaving sides around the track. As they turned into the home stretch one was seen to be leading. The crowd began to cheer, as crowds at race tracks will; the first horse continued to increase its lead. Lotta watched eagerly, but with a smile on her face, even if the horse in the rear was her Sonoma Girl, upon whom she had bet a large sum.

Her $26,000 mare had lost. While the crowd was cheering the winner, the young old woman stepped from her automobile and walked across the track. She reached

OF the 37,597 rural free delivery routes maintained by the Postoffice Department of the United States, 253 are regularly served by women carriers, and there are four times that many female substitute carriers.

With the rural delivery service there has sprung up a kind of danger skin to that faced by the borderland stage drivers, now almost extinct, and that so many women face these perils is placing the sex on a novel dramatic stage.

But when it develops that women carriers not only face dangers on the highway, but exhibit bravery unsurpassed by that of the old stage drivers, the wonder grows. That such is the case recent records made by Fourth Assistant Postmaster General DeGraw, at Washington, show.

They bring to light such adventures as the killing of a wildcat, saving the mail from a swollen stream which had washed the carriage away, forcing a way afoot through a blizzard when a horse could not make it, and other incidents fully as striking.

In his last report Mr. DeGraw, in charge of the R. F. D. service, gave precedence to a woman over all carriers in the service in point of bravery and devotion to duty. This woman is Miss Etta Nelson, driver of R. F. D. No. 3, from the Pittsfield, Maine, postoffice.

In three years Miss Nelson has never once been found derelict when told to carry the message to Garcia. Only on two occasions has the violence of the weather been considered by the local postmaster sufficient to excuse her from covering the route. And one may believe that it was then very violent indeed.

Six days of every week, over twenty miles of rough country road, she takes mail to seventy-five families, and never has a patron complained of her service.

A bear once faced her in the highway; she "licked up" her horse and escaped.

Again an automobile scared a horse which she was trying for the first time, but she stopped him, and went back and gathered up every bit of the scattered mail.

Last winter one of the worst blizzards in recent years raged in that territory; the mercury was down to 20. Roads had been obliterated; even the foxes and rabbits had cleaved to their holes.

Well, the mail was delivered every day through the blizzard. When the drifts were at their highest Miss Nelson's horse was unable to go further, even when the brave carrier tried the expedient of driving over the rail fence and cutting across fields.

"Jumping from the sleigh—she wore high rubber boots—Miss Nelson adjusted snowshoes, slung the mail pouch across her back and finished the route afoot, then returned to where she had left the horse, well blanketed, and drove back home.

But little Miss 25, alert, pretty, athletic, she presents an odd appearance in winter, attired in fur overcoat, sweater and seal skin cap.

Of course, delivering mail doesn't take up all her time. She is busy several hours a day keeping house for her father—she is considered as capable at house-keeping as at mail carrying—and besides takes time to teach Sunday school. Her pay is $75 a year.

There is a route out at Linton, Ind., where two sisters render service of which almost any old stage might be proud. They are Miss Ethel and Mollie Stephens.

Recently, when the roads were impassable for teams the girls delivered the mail afoot every day for weeks over a twenty-mile route.

For sheer pluck and bravery however, a southern woman is well in the lead. Some women have done heroic deeds from motives of self-preservation, but the most notable of Miss Etta E. Bolton's achievements in the R. F. D. service—was done to save, not her own sweet life, but the United States mail.

At the time of this incident she was the only woman mail carrier in Alabama. She operated a route from Mobile.

A heavy rainstorm had occurred during the night; the streams were all swollen. Curiously enough, the water in the stream which all but proved fatal to a horse of moderate speed rather than faint-heartedness in a faster animal.

Lotta declares, "a girl will go to the corral, single out a bronco and ride bareback like the wind with that easy graceful swing over the mountain roads that I can't realize just how fast she is going because her gait is so smooth and so poetically graceful."

Paris is trying to make a very decided change in skirts. Efforts are being made to bring in the double skirt, and some of the new models are very effective.

Then we have specimens of the three-tier flounce in cloth. These are for what I call "dresy" tailor-mades. The practical tailor-mades must of necessity have a fairly short skirt, some admirable examples of which I have already seen, tight-fitting to about five inches below the waist and then seeming to float out into box pleats, weighted by soutache.

But the double skirt which the Parisian dressmaker tried very hard to make us all adopt in the early part of the spring has now appeared in many beautiful guises. A pale biscuit cloth, with a double skirt, slightly trained, with a pointed over-piece in the front, is edged with taffetas of the same shade, cut on the bias, with little entre-deux de heavy black silk stitching. This is worn with a cut-away Louis coat of the cloth, edged with taffetas and black stitching, and a waistcoat of gold galon and white brocade, finished with the most delightful revers and collar of black velvet and a jabot of old lace. The Louis sleeves are turned back with a black velvet gauntlet and a frill of lace. This looks well with a most lovely tricolor hat of black satin, lined with velvet, ornamented with cockades of peach-colored velvet, with a huge embroidered button in the center and a pouf of biscuit-colored ostrich plumes shaded into pink.

These double skirts are certainly new and smart, but very inconvenient, and may be fitly relegated to house and carriage wear. They are quite impossible for walking or any quick mode of progressing. Still they strike a novel note, and in many instances a very becoming one, and especially are they nice with the long cut-away coats.

One black satin Louis coat is trimmed with wide silk braid, with a long, brocaded waistcoat, trimmed with velvet buttons to match the high turn-over collar. The skirt is trimmed with the silk braid, and a tricolor hat of velvet has feathers at the side.

NEW COLORS.

- A dull green.
- An old rose hue.
- The rich Murillo blue.
- A variety of lovely maize hues.
- A tone between egg-plant and deep wine.
- Beautiful blues ranging from royal to Delft.
- A charmingly subdued blue-green peacock color.
- A charming brown between russet and chestnut.
- And any number of neutral, almost indescribable shades.

CLEANING FURS.

An Effective Method Used by the Russians.

Just at this time many owners of furs are receiving them from the summer storage and finding them dead-looking and lustreless, a condition in which even handsome furs are not attractive.

This is usually due to the fact, says the Technical World Magazine, that the fur is simply soiled, and it may be cleaned and brightened to a remarkable extent by a simple method, without the slightest danger of injury to the article. This is the method employed by the Russians, who are certainly the most extensive users of and probably the best informed on the subject of furs of any nation.

Rye bran should be heated in an iron or earthenware vessel, being stirred all the while, until it has become as hot as is bearable to the hand. The bran should then be poured upon the fur in liberal quantities and thoroughly rubbed in. The fur should then be brushed

Paris Approves Double Skirts---Tunic Effects Are the Thing for Carriage and House Wear---New Draped Effects and Other Items of Interest with a clean brush or shaken and pounded until all the particles of bran have been removed.

The result of this treatment will be that all dark furs have regained their freshness and lustre, and that white furs appear like new.

JEWELS AND PURSES.

Modish Earrings--The New Bridge and Glove Purses.

Womankind delights in pendant tassels of pearls. Wherever the fortunate possessors of these beautiful gems are to be found they seem to be wearing them in that way.

Drop earrings of pearls that quiver in their setting and diamond earrings, with a large brilliant set in the centre, so that it sways backward and forward, are very fashionable, and so is a single pearl hung from a thread of diamonds. Emeralds festooned with quite small diamond work are also well worn, or a pearl the size of a pea hung from a fine thread of diamonds.

Quite a number of small purses expressly made for the use of bridge players have been issued by the makers of bridge trifles. The most beautiful are those carried out in gold mesh diapered with a pattern. The mouths of these purses are jeweled and are modeled in various fantastic forms. In one case a dragon is the design, in another a sea-horse, and in a third a flag partly furled and partly unfurled.

Since there is no hope held out by the dressmakers of pockets in the new autumn costumes, the gloves have come to the rescue of their customers. The newest glove has a little purse inserted in the palm of the left hand, of a size quite sufficient to take enough small change for the day's requirements. The purse is so neatly adjusted in its place that even when it is full of money it is not uncomfortable to the hand, but the money should be small.

BUTTONS.

They are here. They are decorative. One can't have too many. Most of them are taffeta-covered. Occasionally velvet serves in their making.

The material matches some detail in the dress.

In many smart examples tiny buttons are formed into solid lines.

One poem in brown crepe de chine with touches of blue shows tiny brown taffeta-covered buttons. (A part of the sleeve is taffeta.)

A deep stone gray charmeuse (a peculiarly soft silk with a satin finish) shows velvet buttons of the medium size.

Some of these rows of buttons appear actually to button, but by far the greater number are set on in purely ornamental rows.

Gold Gloves and Silver Ties.

The latest novelty in the line of the goldsmith's art, says the Technical World Magazine, is a golden glove covered with precious stones, which is put on the left hand by its fortunate owner. The possessor of such a glove can be seen in the international fashionable watering places and also in the elegant sections of Paris. The expense involved in the making of such a glove is estimated as being from $1,100 to $2,400. A necktie made of silver threads, the invention of a Wiesbaden jeweler, is less expensive than the glove just described. The neckties are considered very novel, especially by those who can afford to spend the necessary amount thereon. They cost $350.

Hat in black ribbed silk with large choux of soft black velvet and two bright violet plumes.

A FISHERMAN'S LUCK.

Weak, Worn and Almost in Despair When Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Came to His Rescue.

"My strength was almost gone, my breath very short and I could hardly walk. I used many remedies, but they did not help me. Finally, a friend advised me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did so, and today, thanks to the pills, I am a perfectly well man."

This very emphatic statement is made by Mr. R. L. Porter, of Mattland, N. S. Mr. Porter is a fisherman, and naturally a hard working man, subject to much exposure.

"I was in a state of debility and bloodlessness, some- times I could attend to my work, but often was too weak and miserable to do so. I was wretched and restless at night, and could not sit in the morning. I was troubled with pains in my back and shoulders, sometimes I could hardly straighten up. Then indigestion came to add to my misery, and my condition was such that I was almost hopeless. I tried several medicines—but in vain. Then one day a friend said why don't you try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills? I tried them, and I shall always be grateful for them. In a short time I began to regain my health. I could eat better, and could eat any kind of food. My strength returned. I could attend to my work. I was, in fact, perfectly well again, and this is actually due to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the strength and drive out disease in just one way—they actually make new red blood. That is all they do, but they do it well. They don't act on the bowels—they don't purge and weaken like common pills. They don't bother with mere symptoms, they go right to the root of the trouble in the blood. That is why they cure anaemia, with all its headaches and backaches, and dizziness and heart palpitation. That is why they cure indigestion, rheumatism, neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, general weakness, and the special ailments that growing girls and women do not like to talk about, even to their doctors. But you must insist on getting the genuine pills with the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," on the wrapper around each box. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50c. a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SELECTING A HUSBAND

Should be Taken While Yet Young, Docile and Plastic.

Because it is the duty of every woman to marry some man it by no means follows that she is deprived of the privilege of making acute discrimination; on the contrary, to fulfill her mission as completely as possible, she should exercise the greatest care in selecting a mate.

Time was when she had no say in the matter, and, in some countries, she has little or none to-day; but, in this happily civilized land, she still possesses, and will undoubtedly hold for all time, the right first to choose and then ensure. It is a noble prerogative—one, in our judgment, that should be appreciated and cherished above all others. And yet, as we have observed, it should be exercised with caution. Let nothing be left to chance, as Plato would have had it when he decreed that pairing should be done by lot; while not over-vice, be at least particular, in order that the one chosen may feel honored by the distincnorance about that more or less exposed part of his anatomy.

And how he goes pimper it! Is he chinless? Then he does in for a most virile Vandyke beard.

Is his mouth cruel or weak? Why, all he has to do is to drape it with the most becoming cut of mustache.

Is the lower part of his face out of the beauty race? That doesn't phase him. He grows a patriarchal beard.

And all this isn't mentioning his hair. Ah, the poetic possibilities of lengthy tresses that tempt sympathetic fingers as well as the breezes. Shear these off and the feminine followers of many an idiot would die.

MAKING BREAD.

Some cooks prefer to set a sponge when making bread, allowing it to rise in the shape of a well-beaten batter before adding flour enough to do the kneading. "Sponging" makes a fine-grained bread, but it lengthens the time required for making as two risings are needed after the sponge is light.

Bread may be made from water alone instead of "half and half," as milk and water bread is called. Water bread is tougher and sweeter and keeps better than that made from all milk.

A good test of whether bread has been kneaded enough is to leave it on the board or molding cloth for a few minutes. When you take it up again, if it does not stick it is ready to put in the bread-pail.

If you want to make bread in a hurry simply double the amount of yeast—that is, if you are using compressed yeast. It gives no yeasty flavor, although brewers' and homestead yeast does leave a slight taste when more than the prescribed quantity is used.

Should the oven be too hot, set a pan of cold water in it for a few minutes. Milk bread browns more quickly than water bread, so do not imagine because your loaf is a nice chestnut brown that it is baked. Give it time enough, which is from fifty to sixty minutes for brick loaves four inches thick and an hour.

If you are detained from getting bread into the pans, when it has risen sufficiently, take a knife and cut down the dough till you are ready to attend to it. This allows the gas to escape and there is no danger of souring if you cannot return to it for half an hour.

It is best to have fire in such condition that it will need no replenishing while breadbaking is in progress.

Yeast may be kept perfectly fresh for at least a week or ten days by immersing the cake in cold water. The particles of yeast settle at the bottom and water acts as a seal from the air. Cover the glass in which the yeast is dissolved and keep it in a cellar or refrigerator. Occasionally pour off the water that covers it and add fresh.

RESTLESS BABIES.

Your little one is restless and cross if it is more than likely the trouble is due to some derangement of the stomach or bowels, and if Baby's Own Tablets are given the child will soon be bright and cheerful, and when the mother gives her child to rest settle at the bottom and water acts as a seal from the air. Cover the glass in which the yeast is dissolved and keep it in a cellar or refrigerator. Occasionally pour off the water that covers it and add fresh.

IS MAN BEAUTIFUL?

Artists say he is. They say he's woman's peer. Let's write that per thus: peer. It's hinted his shape is much better. It is declared his face is more beautiful. Of his figure one pleads innocence, not having been inclined to haunt the beach during bathing hours. But his face—there's no pleading ig-

A cold biscuit broken in halves and rubbed on patent leather shoes will give them a shine like new.

To Remove Water Stains.

Those annoying stains or rings that remain in water-pitchers after water has been left standing in them, can be easily removed by the use of potato peelings and a little vinegar.

EMBROIDERY.

Embroidery still holds first place as regards fashion. One of the newest kind rejoices in the name of macaroni. The name is descriptive, too, since it is a worm-like piping of the material itself, padded out circularly, and sewn on in the irresponsible sort of queer figures that macaroni takes. On cloth or silk it is very effective, when done in a dull fabric and applied to a bright one, or vice versa.

COIFFURE ORNAMENTS.

They are charming. M-rabont is much used. Gold tissue is on the list. Flowers are of very many sorts. Half wreaths are by no means "out."

Pompon effects seem to be the leaders, however.

Ostrich tips are always more or less in vogue.

One of the prettiest novelties shows mother-of-pearl glintings on a marabout feather of delicate tint.

A flower and foliage arrangement is charmingly done in finest gold tissue. It is exquisitely ethereal.

GLOVES.

They're mostly long. White is not dead. Suede rivals the glace. As a rule gloves match. They match dresses of pretty colors.

But don't wear bright green gloves whatever they match.

In many instances black or tan gloves to match shoes and hat are stunning.

VOGUE OF ERMINIE

Erminie, which seems almost as perennially fashionable as sable or diamonds, will be adopted by every woman who can afford such an extravagance as that of a white fur, which deteriorates so rapidly in London fogs and smoke.

Naturally enough, the real ermine wrap is taboed for the greater number of women, but, nevertheless, there are "consolations" for—small purses in the shape of the single skin which is hardly as wide as a collarband, and which, with head and tail complete, forms a close-fitting cravat.

Where the new peleries and short fur coats are concerned, a concession of economy can be made by carrying out these garments in alternate bands of Chinese embroid-

Profits From Alfalfa

Here is what one farmer—Rude Asper—did with thirteen acres of alfalfa on the D. F. Deck farm: The thirteen acres averaged five bushels to the acre, or a total of sixty-five bushels. This he sold at $8 a bushel, or $520. Besides this he sold the hay for $50, realizing $570 off of thirteen acres, or a little better than $43 an acre. This in itself is remarkable, but when it is remembered that this was done by Rude Asper, who admits that he is the poorest farmer in Osborne county, it is little less than miraculous. If the entire 100 acres contained in this farm were sown to alfalfa and made such a yield the value of the crop would be $6,850.—Downs News.

A very little girl awoke about two o'clock the other morning and asked her mother to tell a fairy tale. "It's too late, darling," the mother replied. "Daddy will be in shortly, and he'll tell you one!"

SIMPLE EVENING FROCKS FOR DEBUTANTES

The Way This Season's Tailor Girl Looks

DAINTY frocks for dress occasions are made of flimsy folds of fine batiste, chiffon, nets, tulle cloth, sheer mulls or soft silks. They are shown with many hand tucks and lavish use of lace.

The skirts are rather long and clinging. They are so cut that there is no superfluous fullness, being moulded around the waists and hips in the neatest fashion imaginable.

One of the astonishing and clever features is the use of groups of horizontal pleats in the middle front of some of the skirts, just below the curve of the hip and abdomen. The fulness is but slight, and adds to the grace of the falling folds rather than detracts.

Yet these little pleats prevent the close-clinging skirt from emphasizing the slightest tendency toward embonpoint, and are a saving clause in a skirt not too discreet in the matter of figure revelation.

This skirt model is at its best in cloth or soft velvet.

As for sleeves, the long, close sleeve in the mousquetaire transparent guise will be seen, as well as the short sleeve for the dressy bodice.

Some exceedingly alluring dresses are offered in yellow tones, and are greatly favored by the brunette debutantes.

However, in colors, either as a solid thing or in connection with floral designs, pink is one of the popular tones of the season.

Perhaps this is due to the popularity of the rose motif, which expresses itself most satisfactorily in the pink shades.

After pink come the yellow tones, the palest tints having preference.

Queer blues, mostly in china and deeper blue shades, are also very good.

But, after all, white is really the most attractive and generally charming for the debutantes.

In the first illustration is pictured a gown of deep pink silk voile with puffs of the same. The skirt rather full, with tiny ruffles of lace put on in the new way.

The yoke and sleeves are of lace or embroidered tulle.

The undersleeves are of soft white plain tulle. This frock, while it looks complicated, is really not at all difficult to make.

The second frock shown is in a soft shade of yellow chiffon. It has a perfectly simple skirt, not too full, gathered into the belt.

The bodice is very simple. The straps are fastened with two large fancy buttons.

The yoke and sleeves are a combination of white chiffon and heavy Irish lace.

The third model would be most attractive worked out in silk voile, either in white or a soft pastel shade of color.

Straps of satin, ornamented with jeweled buttons, are cleverly arranged in the lace yoke.

The sleeves are especially new, and are finished with silk tassels the same coloring as the linings. It is exceedingly smart, and yet simple to copy.

The fourth illustration given would make a charming frock for a young girl.

It is of chiffon, and cleverly trimmed with lace insertions of different widths.

The sleeves are made of tiny hand-tucked chiffon and lace insertings.

HER skirt is short—a good five inches from the ground.

It is the new walking skirt, a flare skirt, band-trimmed with the same material.

The pattern is made, usually, with seven, nine or eleven gores.

Two narrow bands and one wide one are frequently used for the trimming.

Her smart coat is semi-fitting, half revealing and half concealing the trim figure.

It is a thirty-inch-length coat, which is quite the most approved coat to wear with the new short skirts.

It is very mannish in cut and finish, and the sleeves reach straight to the wrist; just the conventional two-piece coat sleeve is used with the velvet cuff.

The turn-down collar is also of velvet, but the lapels are of cloth.

A novel feature of the coat is the pockets.

There are as many as four of them sometimes, much to the delight of the wearer, who is quick to tell you that she has rebelled against being known as the pocket-less woman, and therefore is going in for as many pockets as she wants.

The materials are serge, worsted chevots or mannish suitings of any kind.

A great deal of soutache braid is used as trimmings for these suits.

Lingerie Making Hints

THE materials most satisfactory for use in fine lingerie are nainsook, cambric, linen, English long cloth and silk.

Removable flounces are daily showing in favor, and have much to recommend them, both on account of their daintiness and economy.

As every one knows, a petticoat shows wear first at the lower flounce, and most upper skirts easily outwear two garnitures.

terial with hems of plain yellow taffeta finished the bottom, and a wide flounce of white nainsook, elaborate with embroidery and lace, was fastened to the petticoat just below the knee, and fell over the silk flouncing within an inch of the foot.

This lingerie ruffle was put on with snap fasteners, and was easily removable for laundering.

Color Supremacy

THE color to reign supreme for a long time to come will be brown in all its variations, from dulcist buff to rich dark modore or old gold.

The new tone combinations in stripes with leaf brown produces the new zebra-striped effect now so popular for the tailor-made.

After browns come grays, and there is a vast number of stunning combinations of these, where stripes of various widths are woven in shadow effects merging in a distinct line.

It seems almost incredible that brown in almost any shade would find favor after its long-dominant influence.

Blues are also very good, from the lightest to the deepest shades. There is also a new color called rowish light, modified by a soft shade of brown which heretofore has not made its appearance in any other material than the soft, pliable cloth in which the shade is now found.

Another new shade used extensively on French gowns in combination brown is a pinkish yellow, suggesting deep tones of orange or salmon pink, perfectly blended into one perfect tone shade.

Feather Boas

BOAS big, round, fluffy, and from two to three yards long, have ousted the handsome flat scarfs of last season.

They come tinted, shaded and in mixed feathers. They will figure largely at the theater, the opera, the dance.

Cock's feathers, with the tips of the fronds finished with a tuft of glossy ostrich feathers, clipped and straight ostrich feathers, with little bunches of cock's plumage among them, are the novelties.

Besides these long boas there are necklets or collars of feathers which are finished with long ribbon ties or long many-stringed bead pendants varied in endless ways.

Hat Hints

THE backward trimming continues to flourish.

Handfuls of strange, soft-falling plumage is used in profusion in adorning the smartest models.

New Evening Coats

THE new evening coats are positive in their form.

They may be classed in two much approved styles, the ecclesiastical or chasuble cloaks, and the military or round cape.

The first are endless in their variety, disguised with bands of trimming, lace, fringe, satin bands and soutache.

Those of the second group vary very little; the trimmings are usually of braid, handsome cloth-covered buttons or velvet.

Flowers are a favorite trimming, and large buckles made of tinsel, galoon, drawn silk and velvet are some of the smartest touches.

Smooth and rough felt, long-haired beaver hats bid fair to establish themselves in favor for winter wear. Vying with them are large hats of velvet, the simpler ones trimmed with big bows of satin ribbon, the more decorative ones with handsome feathers.

The shady, downward turned brim still holds its own.

Smartest Details of Styles

CERTAIN details characterize the smartest styles for this season.

When one sees combined in a single costume three or more colors, laces, braids or tassels, and often endless needlework, there is but one thought for expression, and that is potpourri.

Long, graceful lines on skirt, shoulders that drop in Oriental fashion over elaborate undersleeves, does not lucidly describe the prevailing modes in fussy costumes, but merely suggest what the real styles are.

With the close-fitting skirt and the short-waisted effect brought about by various ways the drapery is arranged, or by the cut of the sleeves, it requires a Juno figure to do full justice to the style.

Many of the cross-over effects now in vogue are extremely becoming.

Fichu draperies across the shoulders have lost none of their attractiveness; neither have the pet-erine and cravat effect that finish bodies of the dressier types.

In truth, one may have as much elaboration as individual taste dictates and remain within the bounds of smartest fashions.

Two-Piece Dresses

CHARMING two-piece dresses, consisting of kilted skirt with shoulder straps or jumper effects, to be worn with lingerie guimpe and undersleeves, having a semi-fitted coat, cut double breasted and finished with lapped seams, is one of the new features in children's fashions.

Indistinct plaids and soft-toned worsteds are much in demand for these trim little suits.

For school wear there could be nothing more attractive.

The separate guimpe being changed as frequently as desired keeps the frock looking fresh and neat.

The Latest Fancies in Furs

FUR-TRIMMED dresses are not in favor this season, but cloth trimmings on furs such as sable, mink and sealskin are to be very fashionable indeed.

Muskat, pony-skin and mole-dyed squirrel skins are shown in bewildering variety for motor and long coats.

Stitched bands of cloth are used to define seams on fur garments. These seams heretofore have been preferably left undefined. Silk braids of a close fine mesh are employed for the same purpose in connection with heavy soutache and lace ornamental fastenings.

There is a real variety in muff shapes, perhaps, more so than in many years. Astrakhan cloth and fur muffs are curved in the square-shaped top and curved lower forms, while many of the mink ones are a wide oblong shape.

Where the sable is well matched and the muff a trimmed one, the shape is usually a narrow oblong with tails hanging below to a depth equal to the depth of the muff.

There is a fancy for the almost square muff with a head in the center at the lower edge, arranged in form of a full brush, the legs forming a trimming for the muff at the sides.

Wide revers of sable or fox will be used for the squirrel-lined tweed coats, and these, being usually meant for practical warmth, are provided with big storm collars also lined with fur.

The narrow silk-lined stole of last season has entirely disappeared from this winter's garments. Boas are thick, full and long.

Silver, white and brown fox, pointed and unpointed, are the furs chiefly seen in boas and collars. With them are carried big, full and flashy muffs.

Scotch tweeds for motoring and long cloth pedestrian suit cloaks are shown with high storm collars lined with fur.

Moleskin and mole-dyed squirrel skin are among the more accessible skins for the shorter furs, but these imitate the ways of mink and the sealskin, and are shown with cloth or braid trimming.

Many entire skins are used in the sable collars, from ten to fourteen being required for a collar of average size. The paws, head and brush are all used.

Some of the new mink collars are veritable wraps. The collars are often shown with the fur carried down to the waist-line in the back, where it ends with a center head, and two sides that hang some nine inches below the waist.

Little or no ermine is used, though individuals will doubtless don it here and there for dress occasions.

New Collar Pins

LITTLE jeweled pins and collar sets are now shown on the counters in endless profusion.

The fancy to secure the new collars visibly at the back with cuff or bib pins, and to clasp the two upper front edges with more handsome pins of the same shape, will continue smart during the winter.

Collar sets are shown comprising either sets of these pins with stickpins to match, or else a stickpin and links to match.

These links are used to hold the collar at the upper points or lower ones at the front, over the cravat. The collar must be buttonholed to receive the links.

The Whipping Stitch

WHIPPING is done by rolling the edge of the material between the first finger and the thumb of the left hand.

Stitches are then taken over and over through the roll, and the thread drawn up to form a frill.

A gathered ruffle may be joined to a skirt by placing it between the edges of a hem, or under the tuck, the edge of the tuck being stitched over the seam.

Evening Dress Coiffure

FOR evening dress coiffures there is an endless variety of ornaments from which the discriminating woman may select that which is more becoming.

The Empire bandeau is one of the most fashionable for the younger matrons and the woman of dignified carriage.

It is generally of velvet spangled with opalescent metal or jet, or shining with set jewels.

It passes, say, two-thirds of the way around the head, ending at the left side with a long ostrich feather that curls over the hair, or, in exaggerated instances, in a boa-like arrangement about the neck.

For the debutante there are all sorts of wreaths made of small rosebuds, white heather, crimson rosebuds—an endless choice of them. These are mounted on bandeaus of velvet, and are finished with rosettes of maline, tulle and pale-toned ribbons.

They set beautifully over the coronet braid, which is the most approved method of arranging the hair.

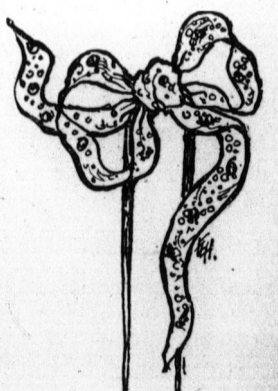

The braid usually extends, as its name indicates, well over the top of the head.

But it must be wide and full and thick to be effective.

A Petticoat Hint

WHEN you buy your next black petticoat buy it about two inches longer, taking the extra length up in a tuck.

Then when the skirt is worn around the bottom, cut the worn part off, hem again neatly, let down the tuck and your skirt is ready to do service some weeks longer.

Hair ornament. Wired bow of satin heavily beaded.

Children's Headgear

QUAINT styles in children's headgear now occupy the place of prominence.

Among the picturesque effects one sees the poke bonnet in a dozen different guises.

A very lovely one is made of a white felt flat having a semicircle cut in the rim and turned over the top, which has been previously secured to a wire crown.

A wide ruching of frilled lace fills in the scooped part, while rosettes of lace and tiny clusters of rosebuds decorate the top.

The same trimming is repeated where the ties are attached to the bonnet and again near the ends of the ties.

Barbaric necklace and belt pin of Roman gold set with beryl.

Hair ornament of cluster of flowers made from satin ribbon, each petal being a small bag containing sachet, caught together with French knots. Leaves of satin.

Evening Gown Materials

A GREAT deal of latitude will be allowed the younger women this season in the selection of materials for evening frocks.

The chief point to emphasize is the picturesqueness.

Silk, muslin, voile, marquisette, tulle, plain or embroidered, are among the materials represented.

Draped bodies, always charming for the slender girlish figure, will be generally worn with the slightly high waist line and wide, draped shoulders.

These will be seen very often with lace-made berthas or fichus.

Sashes and crushed girdles will be worn at the waist-line.

Many of the sashes will be given a deep added hem of silk or voile, according to the material of which the sash is made.
