

BOOKS MOST IN DEMAND.

Dickens Selling Better To-day Than Ever Before.

Some Recent Novels Are Very Popular This Summer.

Opinion of Librarian Hunter and the Booksellers.

What are the books being most widely read in Hamilton at the present time? Around such a question hangs a great deal of interest...

The Times has made careful inquiries as to the books the citizens are reading mostly, at the present time, and thanks to the kindness and courtesy of Librarian Hunter and his assistants...

Popular works of travel: "Stoddard's Lectures," "The Other Side of the Lantern," by Treves; "The Spell of Italy," by Mason...

What are the books that are the best sellers just now? The current issue of the Bookseller and Stationer give the following six as the best sellers:

"Inner Shrine," anonymous; "Marriage-a-la-Mode," by Mrs. Humphrey Ward; "Man in Lower Ten," by Rinehart...

The light modern novel is selling remarkably well at this time, particularly owing to people going on their holidays preferring something light to read.

"What is the reason?" It is thought by many that in these strenuous days and the hurry and bustle of the times...

However, in spite of the market being flooded with the innumerable works of new authors, the local booksellers say that Dickens' books are selling better than ever.

"Marriage-a-la-Mode" is a humorous and satirical in turns, dealing with American manners and customs seen through the spectacles of Mrs. Humphrey Ward or her last visit to this country.

The book is absorbingly interesting, and from it much can be learned.

Some Fine Briar Pipes. French briar pipes, with genuine amber mouthpieces, in handsome cases, are sold at Peacock's pipe store.

HELP ALONG

The Milk Commission's Work of Baby Saving.

The clean milk crusade is now in full swing, and from the number of applications for milk the public appreciate the importance of this life-saving work.

The offer of Peebles, Hobson & Co. will be appreciated by parents who find it difficult to get to the depots for the milk.

About $900 has been spent by the milk commission in carrying out the clean milk idea and subscriptions to defray expenses are earnestly solicited.

Call at the depots—in the Butter market and at City Hospital—see what the commission is doing, and then help it along by a subscription sent to the treasurer of the Victorian Order of Nurses, Mr. C. W. Cartwright, Landed Banking & Loan Building.

THEY DID WELL

Prizes and Mentions Won by the Hamilton Students.

Hamilton, the home of champions, is continually adding to her fame. In the "Contract Records" competition for designs for a $2,500 house four young men from this city who competed came within an ace of making a clean sweep.

Of those who won prizes and "mentions," seven in all, no less than four came from Hamilton.

First prize, $20—Harvey A. Dawson, 400 Cote St. Antoine road road, Westmount, Montreal, Que.

Second prize, $15—F. R. Lumsden, 107 Erie avenue, Hamilton, Ont.

Third prize, $10—Collins Stevenson, 608 Spectator building, Hamilton, Ont.

First mention—Frederick W. Warren, 28 Tisdale street, Hamilton, Ont.

Second mention—Louis Schwarz, jun., 310 Main street east, Hamilton, Ont.

MARKET FIRE.

Little Blaze Caused Big Stir on Busy Square.

A fire on Central market on a busy market day like Saturday is an unusual occurrence but such was the case this morning, and quite a stir was created.

A small fire started in the Parke & Parke drug store, which is situated in the business section of the market and an alarm was turned in.

When the fire reels dashed into the market the excitement for a few minutes was intense but the firemen soon had the blaze under control and everything calmed down again.

IS COMING.

Hamilton to Have a Taxicab Service Very Soon.

SEEN AT THE PLAYGROUNDS.

Splendid Provision Made For the Hamilton Children

And Apparatus Enough to Accommodate Large Number.

Safety of Children Has Been Kept In Sight.

The Playgrounds Association, which was organized for the purpose of providing amusement for the children during the summer months, has met with great success as a result of their diligent efforts, and now that the apparatus is practically all installed, all that is needed to verify their expectations is the children, and it is not anticipated that they will be scarce, as many are anxiously waiting for the opening, which takes place on Monday.

All the equipment is first-class, and the parents need have no fear as to the safety of their children, for not only will they be in no danger of being injured, but a supervisor has been appointed, who will maintain order.

The members of the Association have purchased amusements for the smallest children to the largest, and the variety ought to please the taste of all. The swings for the little tots have steel fastenings and everything in their construction is steel, with the exception of the carriage, which is of canvas.

The baskets for the basket ball are all in position, as are also the uprights for the volleyball. An arbor has been erected, where the small girls can play house or any other game to their fancy.

In the gymnastic line are the parallel bars and the high jump, as well as a fifty-yard course for sprinting practice.

The finishing touches are now being put on, and the painting is nearly completed, but, although the intention was to open the grounds for the children on Monday, it may be necessary to delay it a day or so, in order that the paint may be thoroughly dry.

MILITARY TATTOO.

Entertainment Starts at 8 o'clock Tuesday Evening.

The massed band concert at the military tattoo on Tuesday evening will start at 8 o'clock.

Each number will be conducted by a different band master. At 8.45 the tattoo proper will commence.

Each of the eight bands will enter the parade grounds by the southeast corner, playing its regimental march, and will parade in front of a continuous blaze of tattoo lights.

T. W. Hand & Co. have charge of the fireworks and illuminations. There will be dancing and other features. This will be a grand spectacular, as well as a musical, entertainment. Get tickets early at Anderson's or Nordheimer's music stores.

CANON BULL.

Funeral of the Late Beloved Clergyman To-day.

The funeral of the late Canon George Armstrong Bull took place this afternoon from the family residence, 269 Bay street south, to St. John's Church, Ancaster, and interment was at the burying ground of that church, where two sons rest.

A service was conducted at the house at 2 o'clock by Rural Dean F. E. Howitt and Canon Sutherland, sub-dean, of whose parish the deceased was a member.

The service at St. John's Church, Ancaster, was conducted by Rev. Canon Sutherland, assisted by Rev. Canon Sutherland and Rev. C. E. Bell, rector of that parish.

The pallbearers were: George H. Bull and J. Eldon Bull, city; Dr. Farmer, Ancaster; Richard Bull, Belleville; Harcourt Bull, New York, and Thomas W. Farmer, Ancaster. The chief mourners were: Harry Bull, Montreal; Mr. Tench, Niagara Falls; Rev. Canon Bell, Milton; Robert Farmer, Ferguson, and George and Richard Farmer, of Ancaster.

The remains of Frederick Burk were laid at rest in Hamilton Cemetery yesterday afternoon, the funeral taking place from his late residence, 9 Richmond street, by the Rev. H. McDiarmid officiated at the house and grave, assisted by Capt. Jordison.

The pallbearers were: P. L. Scriven, T. Simpson, William Coombes, John Peet, Ellis Creek and R. Spencer. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful, and included the following: Pillow, family; wreaths, Herkimer Baptist Church choir, Mission Circle, Miss McCallum, R. Campbell & Sons' employees; cross, girls of Zimmerman Manufacturing Co.; anchor, A. O. U. W.; sprays, Mrs. Crawford and family, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. Vanfoss and Mr. and Mrs. Morriss.

CAPTAIN SUICIDES.

New York, July 24.—As the pilot was bringing his steamer, the Tuscania, into port to-day Capt. Thomas Critchton pulled a lever from his pocket and shot himself dead on the bridge. He had suffered severe pains in the head. He was 35 years old and unmarried. His home was in Perth, Scotland.

M. T. HILUS DELCASSE, Former Minister of Foreign Affairs, who was shot in the stomach by the assassin Clemenceau ministry.

DO NOT FEAR MR. MALONE,

Although He Threatens Injunction Against the City To Prevent Use of Cataract Power for Pumping.

Gas Supply Company Wants City to Buy Its Plant.

Every time the City Council makes a move in power matters it is threatened with litigation. No one in the City Hall thought for a minute that any effort would be made through the courts to stop the city from contracting with the Cataract for a year's supply of power for the east end mountain waterworks system.

Mr. Malone's letter reached the city clerk's office to-day and is as follows: "In pursuance of the statutes in that behalf made and provided, as an elector and ratepayer, I hereby give you notice that I will at the proper time apply to the High Court of Justice for the Province of Ontario to set aside any contract the Council may enter into with the Cataract Light & Power Company for power to be used in supplying the mountain top residents with water."

"On the 7th of June last, passed by a large majority, the ratepayers of this city voted down a by-law authorizing your corporation to enter into a contract with the Cataract Co. for a supply of power, and by a large majority voted in favor of the city entering into a contract for power from the Hydro Electric Commission. In entering into any such contract with the Cataract Company you are clearly over-riding the expressed wish of the ratepayers of this city, and in contravention thereof."

In such action I will ask the court to hold each and every alderman voting for such contract personally liable for the cost thereof in the city in consequence of the passing of such illegal contract. In your appropriation for the year there was no sum set apart for the purpose for which you propose to enter into a contract with the Cataract Co."

The city officials are not at all alarmed over Mr. Malone's threat. In fact, the committee expects to close the contract with the Cataract Company to-day, having that authority from the council. General Manager Hawkins and (Continued on Page 16.)

CHIEF SMITH IN ACCIDENT.

Mrs. Smith Was Very Painfully Shaken and Bruised.

That Chief of Police Smith and his wife are not seriously injured is undoubtedly due to a Divine Providence. The chief and Mrs. Smith are away from their holidays and were going by train to Shelburne the other day to see their son, who is a doctor there.

When near Caledon the train left the track, some of the coaches almost overturning. Chief Smith and his wife were in the last coach, and Mrs. Smith was so severely bruised and shaken that she suffers greatly. The chief escaped injury. They are now at Muskoka, where they will remain during the rest of their holidays.

PICNIC DAY.

Large Number of Outings This Fine Saturday.

The International Harvester picnic to Niagara Falls this morning had a large number of the employees and friends to enjoy the pleasant ride over the T. H. & B. line.

Altogether 10 coaches were required to carry the six hundred people. The excursion left at 8 o'clock.

The Sunday school of Gospel Tabernacle held its annual picnic to-day at Niagara Falls and about 400 took in the trip.

The Methodist Church choir of New Beach had an annual picnic to-day at the Mountain View Park, and quite a number came to this city on the Modjeska and Macassa and transferred to the Street Railway cars, which conveyed them to the incline.

The Ramblers' Club held their annual picnic at Nash's Grove this afternoon, and a bumper crowd went down. The committee in charge spared nothing to make the outing a successful one.

A large number of the scholars of the Emerald Street Methodist Sunday school and their friends enjoyed their annual outing this afternoon at Mohawk Park, Brantford.

A large number of tickets were sold for the picnic of the A. O. U. W. at the Maple Leaf Park this afternoon and the weather was certainly ideal for such an outing.

FATAL TROUPE.

Christiana, July 24.—Capt. Engelstad, of the Norwegian navy, met a tragic death by lightning to-day. He was taking meteorological observations during a thunderstorm, and when he happened to touch the wire holding the copper wire attached to the kite, which was a thousand yards high, he was struck dead on the spot.

ASCENSION BOYS' CAMP.

The boys of the Church of the Ascension, Hamilton, are arranging for their annual camp at Port Dover, July 31st to August 15th. This camp is in charge of men of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew and affords a splendid outing for boys of 15 years of age. They camp in a large orchard overlooking Lake Erie, and have all the facilities for games, bathing, etc.

GUARD KING.

Precautions Against Assassination of British Public Men.

Keir Hardie Warned That He Must Bridle His Tongue.

London, July 24.—For the first time in his reign, King Edward has not gone out of doors for a month without a bodyguard of armed detectives.

He fears, or rather his Cabinet fears, an assassination. The same precautions have been taken for the safety of all the members of the royal family, especially the children of the Prince of Wales.

Before the assassination of Sir William Carson by the Indian, Dhillgra, it was the King's custom to go about as an ordinary citizen without guards. All this is now changed, for the police fear the effect that Dhillgra's crime may have upon the minds of the "Terrorists, of whom there are many from all parts of the world in London."

For the approaching visit of the Czar to England unprecedented precautions are being taken. Every suspected terrorist or anarchist is kept under constant surveillance. Every port is closely watched for terrorist arrivals.

When the czar's yacht anchors off Cowes, it will be impossible for anyone without an official permit to get within gunshot of the vessel. The murder of Wylie has aroused such a fear of hidden peril that not only is royalty guarded, but the members of the Cabinet do not stir abroad without an escort. Lord Morley, Secretary of State for India, and Prime Minister Asquith, both objects of Indian resentment, walk the streets attended by bicycle detectives and a small army of plain clothes men.

Sir Henry Cotton and Keir Hardie, the Socialist leader, have been warned by Scotland Yard that they must tone down their speeches which, it is charged, foster the spirit of discontent among the Indian disturbers.

ARRESTED.

G. T. R. Collector Here in Custody at London.

London, Ont., July 20.—Miltville Newmans, wanted in Hamilton on a charge of defrauding the Grand Trunk, was arrested here this morning, and is being held pending the arrival of authorities from Hamilton.

A warrant was issued here some days ago for Newman. He was employed by the G. T. R. as a collector. One charge only has so far been made against him, but when the warrant was applied for the complainants stated that there would be others.

FOR $10,000.

Former Smithville Teacher Suing Department Inspectors.

Mr. W. M. Elliott, M.A., late principal of Smithville High School, has issued a writ, through his solicitor, Geo. S. Kerr, K.C., against J. E. Netberill, Inspector of High Schools of Ontario, and R. H. Cowley, Inspector of Continuation Schools of Ontario.

While in discharge of his duties as principal of the school, Mr. Elliott alleges, the inspectors visited his school, and reported to the Department of Education that he was incapable of doing justice to the students, as teacher and principal. He claims further that the reports sent into the department by the defendants respecting him were false to the knowledge of the inspectors, and made with malice.

Mr. Elliott resents the action taken and claims $10,000 damages.

NAME NOT ON ONTARIO LIST.

Dr. Pellitier Fined $50 In the Police Court.

A Round-Up of Vags by the Police.

One of Them, a Young Girl, Sent Down.

In the Police Court this morning John Scotten, 13 Burton street, pleaded not guilty to a charge of vagrancy. P. O. Ince said Scotten was loitering around the corner of Picton and Wellington streets with a gang of toughs. Mrs. Jones complained about the annoyance caused by the gang assembling near her house. Yesterday one man knocked at her door repeatedly, but she could not say it was Scotten. Scotten's sister gave evidence on his behalf, and said he was home yesterday. Sergeant Finch said that district was infested with toughs of a bad kind. His Worship discharged Scotten with a warning that should he appear in court again he will be punished for vagrancy, and he must not associate with loafers, as he was determined to suppress them.

George Hurst, 6 Kennel street, was charged with stealing a pair of shoes from J. L. Carr, of Glenside. Hurst pleaded not guilty. Carr said he was sitting on a seat in the Court House square when prisoner came up and lifted the box away from its place beside him, and later on, when he picked up the box again, the shoes were missing. Defendant had a little drink in him, and did not intend to steal. His Worship found him guilty of theft, but remanded him till Tuesday for sentence.

At the instance of the Ontario Medical Association, Dr. Pellitier was charged with a breach of the Medical Act. Defendant, a tall, delicate-looking man, claimed to be a graduate of universities of the United States, South America and France. Detective Bleakley said his name was not on the Ontario medical list. A. M. Lewis appeared for defendant. Dr. Pellitier said he was a Canadian, born in Montreal. Magistrate Jeffs fined him $50, as it was proven his name was not on the medical list of Ontario, and that was designed with the object of protecting the public.

Andrew Bell, 74 MacNab street north, answered a charge of vagrancy. The police gave evidence that he was up in the spring on a similar charge and fined $20. Several constables gave evidence of his being an associate of undesirable persons. Defendant said he had been at Parry Sound, but the flies drove him back to Hamilton. Bell was asked by his worship if he would not rather be bothered by flies than in jail, and said: "Yes, your worship." He was allowed to go on condition that he leaves the city at once.

John Crossover, Aldershot, "was a little full," according to his own statements, and being known to the police as an "old shot" was remanded till Tuesday to allow some of the turbulence to get out of him. Charles Wilson, 22 Park street, and William Jameson, East avenue north, each subscribed $2 to the court funds for quaffing too freely.

Lillian Buchner, a fairly comely looking young woman, was charged with vagrancy. The police said she was a bad character. She was sentenced to six months in jail. The girl was stunned by the sentence, and with great difficulty controlled her emotions.

For reckless driving at the corner of King and James streets, Charles Mooney, Emerald street north, was fined $5.

Charles Wilson, O. W. Robbins and John Burns paid $2 each for allowing dogs to run at large.

O'Keefe pleaded not guilty to a charge of theft from the G. V. R., and was remanded on his own recognizance till Monday.

TO F. C. MILLS.

Times' People Make Presentation to Late Sporting Editor.

Mr. F. C. Mills severed his connection with the Times yesterday, after an engagement of fifteen years as reporter and sporting editor, and will assume the duties of advertising manager of the Herald at once. As a parting gift and a token of their appreciation of his long and valued services and his personal worth the members of the staff and the company made a presentation to him of a pair of exceptionally fine den chairs—sucker and arm chair in solid early English oak—valued together with their best wishes for his future success and the prosperity and happiness of his better half and himself.

THE RAMBLERS' CLUB held their annual picnic at Nash's Grove this afternoon, and a bumper crowd went down. The committee in charge spared nothing to make the outing a successful one.

A large number of the scholars of the Emerald Street Methodist Sunday school and their friends enjoyed their annual outing this afternoon at Mohawk Park, Brantford.

A large number of tickets were sold for the picnic of the A. O. U. W. at the Maple Leaf Park this afternoon and the weather was certainly ideal for such an outing.

POOR CROP.

Early Potatoes Disappointing But Late Ones Better.

The early new potatoes being offered this year are poor in quality, and most of the growers report small crops. When spoken of this morning one gardener stated that the crop was the worst in years. In some places a few baskets of excellent potatoes have been secured. The backward season did not give the potatoes a chance, and in some cases plants grew only about four inches. Some of the farmers have plowed up their patches without securing anything beyond a few small potatoes which were not good enough to offer. The crop last year was poor, but it was not as much as compared to the one this year. Although the early potatoes are poor, the late ones promise well.

DIED ON STEAMER.

Antwerp, July 24.—Mrs. Maria Rook, an American, aged 42, died suddenly on board the Red Star Line steamer Kroonland as the vessel was leaving this port to-day for New York.

ROOSEVELT RETURNS.

Nairobi, British East Africa, July 24.—Col. Roosevelt and his son, Kermit, arrived here this morning from Naivasha, thereby bringing to a close a successful ten days' hunting tour on the south shore of Lake Naivasha, from Capt. Attenborough's ranch.

Smith is second in the Elkington Cup competition, winning £2; Sgt. Smith, 40th, also won £2. The Elkington prizes are awarded to the competitors whose respective scores in the Secretary of State for War, Duke of Cambridge, Imperial Tobacco, make up the highest aggregate. England won the National Challenge Trophy, in which Canadians competed on the Irish team. Ireland was fourth.

A TIGER HUNT. Roosevelt Training in Africa For Fight With Tammany.

Paris, July 23. — John S. Wise, jun., of New York, who is now visiting Paris, says that former President Roosevelt, just prior to his departure from New York on his African hunting expedition, promised him and other Republicans in New York that he would return in time for the Majority campaign. Mr. Wise says he has not given up the hope that Mr. Roosevelt will lead the Majority ticket in New York this autumn.

LIBERALS WON. A Government Victory in the Derbyshire By-Election.

London, July 23. — The result of High Peak (Derbyshire) by-election is: O. Partington, Liberal, 5,619; A. Profumo, Conservative, 5,272. Majority for Liberals, 347. Total vote cast, 10,891. The by-election was rendered necessary by the appointment of Mr. Partington to be Government Whip and Lord of the Treasury. At the general election three years ago the contestants were the same. On that occasion Mr. Partington polled 5,458 votes to Mr. Profumo's 4,662, the Liberal majority being 796, and the total vote cast 10,120. Mr. John Colough, barrister, at one time Secretary of the British Chamber of Commerce in Paris, has been chosen Liberal candidate in Clapham.

SHARK IN BATTLE. CAPTAIN CAPTURES THE BIGGEST HAMMERHEAD KNOWN.

Struggle Lasts Six Hours—Monster Might Have Won But for the Help Given Fisherman by Other Sharks. Miami, Fla.—Trust to Captain Charles Thompson of this place, for exciting adventures with denizens of the deep blue sea. He has had many of them, partly because he makes a business of hunting freak fish and partly because he cannot help it, but his greatest triumph came recently when he tackled and landed the largest hammerhead shark ever seen in or about this region, dead or alive. The monster measured sixteen feet in length and weighed in the neighborhood of two thousand pounds. The story of the capture of this great shark makes the yarns of writers of fiction pale into insignificance. It was an experience few would care to encounter. Early in the morning Captain Thompson went to sea in his twenty-two foot dory in quest of green turtle. He was accompanied by his brother-in-law, and ran into a school of a hundred hammerhead sharks.

THE HOUSEKEEPER. CABBAGE SALAD.

Take the tender white centre from a head of cabbage. Shred fine and crisp in ice water. Make a cooked dressing of three egg yolks, three tablespoons of butter, five of tarragon vinegar, one teaspoonful of grated horse radish and the same amount of mixed mustard and a good pinch of salt. Cook over hot water until creamy; when cold add an equal portion of whipped cream and stir through one pint of the shredded cabbage we drained. One cupful of chopped peanuts, and half a cupful of dried pickled beets. Fill the cabbage shell and garnish with celery leaves and circles of beets. TO COOK ROUND STEAK. Take two pounds of round steak, cut into pieces large enough to serve one person, score well with sharp knife, place in a roasting pan or skillet, season, and dredge with flour; add a few bits of butter, slice an onion or two over the meat, and pour a cupful of water. Place in the oven and bake slowly for an hour, or until tender. This makes round steak good and palatable. RANCH STEAK. Get a thick round steak and gash both sides. Rub in all the flour you can. (I use the bottom of a teacup to force it in.) Brown in hot bacon fat. Season and sprinkle with two or three cut seeded chili peppers. Cover with hot water and stew slowly. Can be cooked nicely in the hay cooker. Sure good. GAS EXPLODED. A Building Partially Demolished at St. Malo. Quebec, July 23.—An explosion occurred this morning in the plant of the Frontenac Gas Company at St. Malo, demolishing a portion of the building, damaging much valuable machinery and seriously injuring Gerrie Hamilton, an employee of the company. The explosion occurred about 10 o'clock, and was due to a gas leak, which was caused by a gas pipe which was about 75 feet in length, but very fortunately none of the employees happened within its reach when it fell except Mr. Hamilton, whose escape from instant death was miraculous. The loss suffered by the company will reach several thousand dollars.

THE FOUNTAIN PEN IN RUSSIA. AND THE Chick Pen in Mexico, All Under the Watchful Consular Eye.

Every once in a while the Consular Reports contain information of a sort that appeals as being odd. For instance, to a man whose first emotion when he hears the name Russia is to think of Siberia and general darkness and persecution, an announcement of trade opportunities for fountain pens rings queer. The announcement to the intending introducer of fountain pens concludes with the note: There is a polytechnic school in Riga and a university at Dorpat, both in the Province of Livonia. The former has about 1,700 students and the latter 3,000. There are no book rooms maintained at the high schools, but students can obtain stationary, etc., from the bookstores (proctors). As a rule, however, the students purchase their supplies at the different stores. Correspondence with these bookstores would be of little or no value, and business relations should be confined to business firms. Almost next door to this item is an article regarding the growth of chick pens in Mexico. The reader is informed, are almost universally exported to Spain. It is said to learn that Spain's typical dish depends not a little upon imports from Mexico. The steamer Westmount struck Kingston wharf at Moore's elevator, she was pulling in to take on the pilot and supplies. The wharf was split and moved some eighteen inches. The elevator was also hit and dented by the blow, the machinery being shifted. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death at the inquest on Edward Cahoon, brakeman, killed in the Grant Trunk freight yards, Toronto. Professor Price, of Ottawa, and Dr. D. Starr Jordan, of Stanford University, joint Fisheries Commissioners for Canada and the United States, are in British Columbia, investigating the salmon fisheries.

THE HAMILTON TIMES

SATURDAY, JULY 24, 1909.

LIBERTY ASSAILED.

Professor Goldwin Smith deserves great credit for his work in defence of the rights of the individual as opposed to the tyrannical legislation forced through the Legislature by Sir James Whitney denying the rights of property and closing the courts of justice to the wronged. Referring to his course in the matter, Prof. Smith says:

Without distinct reference of any kind to the people, whose name is so freely introduced, the Provincial Government claimed and exercised a power defined by the Dominion Minister of Justice as that of "confiscation without compensation," and together with a power of closing the door of public justice; thus stripping the Englishman here of the most fundamental and sacred rights of the Englishman at home.

Few thinking men will differ with Professor Smith when he expresses the opinion "that the British Parliament should ever have intended to confer upon such a body as a Provincial Legislature a general and uncontrolled power of 'confiscation without compensation,' and at the same time the power of exclusion of the owner deprived from justice, is incredible." He thinks that whatever power was intended to be given was intended to be controlled by the personal veto of the Lieutenant-Governor of the Province, and by that of the Governor-General.

THE REAL NAVY.

If one were to shut one's eyes to the facts before one today and to one's knowledge of recent history, one might be more easily deceived and alarmed by those who seek to shake confidence in the efficiency of British naval defence. The naval manoeuvres witnessed by the Imperial press delegates a few weeks ago were in themselves a magnificent illustration of Great Britain's ability to hold its own; and the display of three great fleets, north, east and west of the United Kingdom, is a demonstration which will certainly not be lost upon the world.

A glance backward to the great review of Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee in 1897 discovers only 21 big battleships. There were no more in King Edward's coronation review in 1902. In the manoeuvres of a few weeks ago, there were forty.

The temperance wave sweeps onward and throughout the United States and Canada the legal traffic in intoxicants is becoming a diminishing quantity. In the older lands, too, the cause of sobriety makes progress. There is a great improvement in the habits of the populace of Canada over those of 50 or even 25 years ago.

ASSASSIN MAKERS.

English papers just to hand contain full reports of the assassination of Sir William Curzon Wylie, and the details throw some light upon the state of public feeling in regard to the crime. It is pleasing to learn that the mass of the Indians in London regard the crime with detestation and horror, and that Krishnavarma, the editor of "The Indian Sociologist," an organ of sedition now in its fourth volume in London, has not gained friends by his dupre's murderous essay. He takes refuge in France.

The murderer came from Amritsar, in the Punjab, and entered University College in October, 1906, for a three-year course, which was just studied. He is about 25 years old, studious, quiet, and did not associate with Indians out of his own caste, which is a rather low one.

An Indian meeting was held at Caxton Hall, at which Sir Mancherjee Bhownagree presided, and resolutions deploring the crime and expressing detestation of it were passed. It was regarded as a set-back to the just and legitimate aspirations which had been engaging the attention of British statesmen.

The Ottawa Citizen is carrying its war against the Ross rifle to a degree which stamps it as unfair, unscrupulous and malicious. And none more keenly realize that than the military men of the country.

But it is worth while considering whether the high license fee proposed to be required for the sale of cigarettes would not be more useful in driving the trade into certain channels than in restricting the sale to boys.

Such occurrences as the destruction of the Cataract Power Company's station at Dundas are liable to happen at any time. Under the Hydro-Electric system the loss would fall on the people served by it. They take all risks.

The London, Eng. papers give the name of Sir William Curzon Wylie's assassin, who was yesterday sentenced to death, as "Dhingra." Cable reports give it variously as "Dhingari" and "Dinagari." An assassin by whatever name is equally detestable.

A SOBER PEOPLE.

The commission on the revision of the Ontario statutes, of which Judge Snider is a member, is still busily engaged in the very considerable task before it. It hopes to have the work done by the time the Legislature meets in January.

It is to the credit of the Canadian people that the day has passed here when a man can be a drinker without suffering disadvantage. Our railway and other traffic associations, our great financial and commercial institutions, all taboo the drinker.

HELP THE GOOD CAUSE!

The efforts of the Hamilton Milk Commission to reduce the infant mortality by making available to mothers clean milk, and by directing them how to care for little ones in hot weather, are being appreciated by the public of the city. The scheme is now well advanced, and its continued success is largely a question of funds.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Brace up, Ald. Hopkins! Don't dodge your public duties because some bigoted supporter may threaten you. Take a tonic!

Now, Ald. Hopkins, can your ingenuity find any other quibble to cause delay in furnishing the mountain residents with water?

The Parks Board's latest park scheme is a large one and involves a good deal of money. But it merits careful consideration before being pronounced too big for a city like Hamilton.

Petitions for the disallowance of Whitney's legislation depriving citizens of their right to appeal to the courts continue to be sent in. No honest Canadian who is seized of the facts will hesitate to join in the appeal to the Governor-General to protect their rights against the piratical Premier and his Russian acts.

Any proposal for a central station that is satisfactory to the railways—and that will not require us to give up the city to them and go out and sit on the mountain side—will be worth considering. What a lot of money would have been saved if the public convenience had been served by the adoption of the scheme which the Times advocated when the T., H. & B. was projected!

The two neighbors who were passing the little cottage heard sounds as of a terrific conflict inside and stopped to listen. Presently they heard a loud thump, as if somebody had fallen to the floor. "Grogan is beating his wife again," they said.

EASY FOR JARVIS PUPILS.

From many places, including Hamilton, come complaints regarding the difficulty of the recent entrance examination, especially the arithmetic and geography papers, which it is claimed is the reason fewer girls than boys passed in Hamilton.

THE MEANEST YET.

Politics are seen in the worst phase when even the splendid performances of our Canadian marksmen at Bisle are belittled by the Conservative press in order to save their face and justify their venomous attitude towards the Ross rifle.

MORE PAY. (Montreal Gazette.) Professor Wong, of Toronto, out at Nelson, B. C., has been telling of the work of journalists and school teachers and making a plea for better pay for both classes.

THE PURE MILK MOVEMENT. (Detroit Free Press.) Detroit, like other modern cities, has come to realize that its milk supply must be pure or it will be dangerous.

FREE ADVERTISING. (Kingston Whig.) The question of free advertising is a prolific source of worry to every publisher. He does not wish to appear mean or to offend his friends, and yet he must remember that he has to depend upon the revenue from his paper to provide his bread and butter.

WHERE FRIENDSHIP CEASED. (Illustrated Brit.) "Never heard what broke up their friendship? Dear me! I thought everyone had heard that. Brown is engaged, you know."

NO NEED OF INTERFERENCE. (Chicago Tribune.) The two neighbors who were passing the little cottage heard sounds as of a terrific conflict inside and stopped to listen.

THE MEANEST YET. (Toronto Globe.) Politics are seen in the worst phase when even the splendid performances of our Canadian marksmen at Bisle are belittled by the Conservative press in order to save their face and justify their venomous attitude towards the Ross rifle.

THE KICKERS' COLUMN.

STRENGTH O' COLUMNS.

Editor Times: A bet's B that a hollow iron pillar which is a shell an inch thick and a foot in diameter is just as strong as if it were solid iron a foot in diameter. B bets that the solid pillar would be much stronger. Which winst---Builder.

B wins. The solid column would undoubtedly have vastly greater resisting power. The same weight of metal in a hollow shape of a hollow cylinder, but that is a very different proposition.

QUITE A TRIP.

To the Editor of the Times: Sir,—How far is it from Canada to Johannesburg, South Africa—Student of Imperialism.

From Hamilton to Cape Town, via Southampton, is 9,940 miles. From Cape Town to Johannesburg is 1,615 miles.—Ed.

VERY IMPORTANT DIFFERENCE

Editor of the Times: Sir,—Do "rajah" and "maharajah" mean the same, and what rank do they signify?—Canadian.

"Rajah" is an Indian word meaning "king," or "sovereign." "Maharajah" is a prefix meaning "great." "Maharajah" means "great sovereign."—Ed.

IRELAND'S POPULATION.

To the Editor: Can you tell me the population of Ireland according to the official count, and how it is divided as to religion?—Erin.

The census of 1901 gave Ireland's population as 4,465,546, divided as follows: Roman Catholics 3,310,025

Table with 2 columns: Religion, Population. Roman Catholics 3,310,025, Protestant-episcopalian 579,385, Presbyterian 443,491, Methodist 61,325, Jews 3,769, All others 56,703, No statement 1,912.

SCAVENGER CANS.

Editor Kiekers' Column: Will you permit me to congratulate the authorities on the artistic effect produced by the row of seven or eight "White Wings Brigade" receptacles (not always all too clean), that decorate the corner of King and John streets, and others the Gore, over Sunday? Surely, they could at least be hidden in convenient alleysways.

So far this year there has been an increase of seven per cent. in the number of marriages over the same period last year. It is referred to as a sign of prosperity.

MORE CARS.

Editor Kieker,—Why don't the Radial Company try to accommodate the Beach traffic? You would think from the way they act that they didn't want to be bothered with the business. The cars they do put on are always so crowded that half the people can't find seats.

ABOUT NEW YORK.

During the last year there have been 11,000 children before the Children's Court, and in more than half of the cases the fault was found to be in the home of the child.

A New York real estate dealer who keeps close tabs on values says that every baby born in the city adds $100 to the value of real property, baby population and values advancing in that proportion.

Small bills are at low tide in New York city early in the morning. A man with nothing less than a five dollar bill will find trouble in getting change on street car lines, at subway and elevated ticket windows, or in shops.

Only fifteen persons out of each hundred in New York city has an American born ancestry for three generations.

Records of the Board of Health indicate that the birth rate of New York city will be 127,000 this year.

Detroit Over Civic Holiday.

Knight's of Sherwood Forest, A. O. F., will run their third annual excursion to Detroit on Saturday, July 31, good for four days. A special train will connect at Waterford with train leaving Detroit Monday night at 11.45, so that passengers will be home in time for work Tuesday morning.

GOOD TEMPLARS.

In spite of the wretched weather there was a fair turnout at the meeting of International Lodge, held last evening. The programme consisted of piano solos by Miss Lily Boniface and Miss Lizzie Smith; songs by Miss M. Morgan and Miss Maggie Sim, and recitations by W. Dunnam, A. Leslie and G. Austin. L. Audette gave an interesting talk on phenology and palmistry, which made some of the members sit up and take notice. Next Friday evening the quarterly election of officers will take place.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Henderson are staying at the Muskoka Royal, Lake Rosseau, Muskoka.

Mrs. P. H. Bradley, with her children, is summering at Gaspe, Quebec.

Mrs. Hendrie has returned from a short stay at the Caledon Club.

Mr. and Mrs. William Fearman and Miss Margaret Fearman are staying at Beaumaris, Muskoka.

Dr. and Mrs. A. E. Wickins have returned from a trip up the lakes.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Eastwood gave a garden musical on Thursday evening in honor of their guest, Miss Lawson, Chicago. A delightful programme was arranged, consisting of selections by Mrs. Mackelcan, Miss Lawson, Mr. Morden and Mr. C. Percival Garratt. The garden was lighted with Chinese lanterns and an orchestra played for dancing in a marquee erected on the lawn. Mrs. Eastwood received in a white embroidered gown, assisted by Miss Lawson, who wore a dainty flowered mousseline de soie. The weather, which had been threatening during the day, improved sufficiently to permit a promenade on the lawn, where a dainty supper was served, following the musical numbers.

Mrs. Balfour and the Misses Balfour have gone to Muskoka for the summer.

Mrs. Charles Powis and family are spending the summer at Mary Lake, Muskoka.

Miss Jean Haelett is visiting in Cobourg.

Miss Bessie Bleakley has returned home after spending a pleasant vacation and relatives in Toronto.

Mrs. E. Bates and Miss Gertrude Bates are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Weller, Roxbury, Boston, Mass.

C. O. F. EXCURSION.

As the day approaches for the big excursion of the year, the committee in charge of the Canadian Order of Foresters outing to Niagara Falls and Buffalo, are busy completing arrangements for the comfort of their many patrons. The T. H. & B. Ry. has promised up-to-date equipment, and enough cars so that everyone may have a seat. No matter how many go, for those wishing to go to Buffalo, the train will leave at 8:00 o'clock sharp on Civic Holiday, August 2nd. Those going to Niagara Falls will leave at 8:30 a. m. Returning, the Buffalo train will leave the Bison City at 7 p. m., and the train from Niagara Falls will leave there at 7:30 p. m. The return trip will be made in good time, and the committee is also sure that patrons will be able to spend a most delightful holiday with them.

FOUND ICE AX.

Geneva, July 24.—The ice ax of Dr. Spitz, of Baltimore, who was killed by an avalanche in 1870, was found to-day at the bottom of the Rossens glacier at Chamoni. The ax bears the name of Dr. Spitz.

CRUISER ASHORE.

Harwich, Eng., July 24.—The British protected cruiser Blenheim grounded on a sand bank while entering the harbor this a. m. The position of the warship is not serious, and it is expected she will be floated at the next tide.

DUNDAS HAS POWER AGAIN.

Trouble Caused by Storm Was Soon Overcome.

Dundas, July 24.—Users of Cataract power were able to resume work this morning. The entire destruction of its sub-station here by fire yesterday morning has been overcome by making direct connection with De Cew's Falls, presumably the same as before the fire. The connections were made during the day yesterday, and both power and light were available by 6 o'clock last evening. The loss at the sub-station, it is reported, will reach $10,000.

SIR CHARLES RIVERS WILSON.

There have been, at least, seven really dramatic moments in the history of Anglo-Canadian finance, says the Canadian Gazette of London, Eng. One of them gave Canada, for weal or woe, her state-owned railway, the Intercolonial. Another dramatic moment set the Canadian Pacific Railway Company upon the road of financial rectitude, as interpreted by British standards, and of prosperity. And it is under the stimulus of these later successes that the Grand Trunk is moving forward to the conquest of new fields through the instrumentality of its Grand Trunk Pacific enterprise. Born in London in 1831, Sir Charles Rivers Wilson was educated at Eton and Balliol, and began business life as a clerk in the Treasury Department of the British civil service. For five years he was private secretary to the Earl of Beaconsfield, and subsequently became Comptroller-General of the office for the reduction of the national debt and Finance Minister in Egypt. His wife, whom he married in 1865, was the Hon. Beatrice Violet Mary Mostyn, sister of the seventh Baron Vaux, of Harrowden. In addition to his presidency of the Grand Trunk, Sir Charles is director of the Alliance Assurance Company, Limited; chairman of the British Electric Traction Company, Limited; director of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company, and chairman of the International Syndicate, Limited.

FATAL WRECK

Rutland, Vt., July 24.—A wrecking train was despatched from here early to-day to Welder Station, near West Lebanon, N.Y., on the Champlain division of the Rutland Railroad where a freight train had been wrecked, causing the death of one of its crew and the injury of another.

The dead man was brakeman W. W. Hopkins, of Bennington, while conductor N. W. Dwyer, of this city, was severely hurt.

One good swift kick will sometimes accomplish more than a lot of kindness.

Gurney-Oxford Stoves GAS WATER HEATER

Is a convenience well worth having, and at very little expense. Hot water in abundance—twenty-five gallons in twenty minutes—cost two cents.

The copper-filled coil is heated by a powerful burner, with a removable cap. The heat is retained in the heater by the inverted cone, and all the heat goes into the water, instead of up the chimney.

Iron Coil and Disc $11.00 Coppered Coil $8.00

GAS WATER HEATER can be used in connection with your old hot water system, or entirely independent of it—for bath, laundry or kitchen is convenient and most economical. Some other heaters may work well when new—Gurney's Hot Water Heater is right when you buy it, and stays right.

800 of these Gas Water Heaters now in use here in the city; giving perfect satisfaction. Our guarantee goes with them. Call and we will show you this line.

SUTTON CASE. GREAT BRITAIN.

Chauffeur Says Dead Man Was Not Aggressor. Evidence So Far Pleases Sutton's Mother's Attorney.

Annapolis, Md., July 24.—The navy practically rested its case yesterday in the investigation of the circumstances surrounding the death of Lieutenant James N. Sutton. After a short session to-day, Commander John Hood, president of the court of inquiry, adjourned the hearing until Monday.

Attorney Davis, counsel for Sutton's mother, expressed himself as satisfied with the developments of the case this week.

"We are entirely satisfied with the development of the case," he said. "We have discovered nothing in the way of surprises and what has developed in the nature of the unexpected has been confirmatory of our opinion of the affair and has strengthened our belief."

"Nothing has developed to change our judgment and theory of the case."

The Suttons have contended from the start that a bullet inflicted during a brawl with officers of his corps killed Sutton.

Mrs. Sutton and her daughter will both testify at the hearing next week.

Most of to-day's session was occupied with the testimony of the two chauffeurs, William J. Owens and Edward Griffith. Owens testified he drove Sutton and a party of young officers from Carvel Hall Hotel to the marine camp on the night of the shooting, and witnessed an altercation and interrupted a fist fight between Sutton and Lieutenant Adams as he left his passengers near the parade grounds, adjacent to the camp.

He was told to beat it, he said, came back to town and did not learn of the shooting until the next morning.

Owens gave the first bit of evidence to indicate that Lieutenant Robert E. Adams and not Sutton was the aggressor in the first of the several rows that occurred on the night Sutton met his death.

"Just as we got over the bridge in the reservation, one of the officers in a party told me to stop the machine," said Owens. "I stopped. Lieutenant Adams got out, took off his coat and threw it on the ground. Then Lieutenant Sutton got out. He paid me the fare and stepped away from the machine."

Adams rushed at Sutton. The two other officers, whose names I don't know, caught Sutton by the arms. Sutton told Adams to go away; that he did not want any trouble with him. Then one of the officers told me to leave. I moved away with my machine, but not far, because I wanted to see what was coming off. Adams rushed at Sutton again. The other officers still had hold of Sutton. Adams did not strike Sutton. I heard Sutton say, 'If he wants to fight, I will fight him.' Seeing me lingering, the officers that had spoken before called out, 'Orderly!' and I thought it was time for me to go, and I went away."

TWO DEATHS

St. Catharines Lawyer and Thorold Resident Dead.

St. Catharines, Ont., July 24.—(Special)—Wm. Stewart Wilson, for many years a practising barrister, of this city, died last night, after an illness of several months of cancer. He was 70 years of age and unmarried.

Richard Birbeck, one of the oldest residents of this district, passed away at the residence of his son, Richard Birbeck, jun., in Thorold last evening, aged 90 years. Half a century ago he was one of Thorold's leading business men. He later went to Manitoba, where he spent twenty years there. Returning to Thorold six years ago, he spent the rest of his days there. His wife died two years ago. H. Birbeck, of Hagersville, is a son.

No, Maude, dear; you don't have to go to one of the Prohibition States for a dry climate.

The Flow of Solids.

The idea of flow is generally associated with the movement of liquids and gases, and indeed the term fluid is usually restricted to these two states of matter.

Nevertheless it is beginning to be understood that nearly every substance is capable of a movement corresponding to the idea of flow, and that such a thing as absolute rigidity does not exist.

The flow of solids occurs in such mechanical operations as the drawing of wire, the manufacture of drawn tubing, the production of various shapes in the forming press and in the spinning lathe, and all these are well known to the engineer. To the general observer it is apparent that we have in the mountain glacier an example of continuous flow of an apparently solid mass, and that too without rupture or disintegration.—Cassier's Magazine.

A boy is more trouble to bring up than a girl, but he pays you better in after life.—Mrs. W. Gregory, at Sutton.

CORRECT and becoming finishes for the neck and waist are obviously important details which require discretion in selection, for they must swing in harmoniously with the rest of the costume.

This is especially true today when fashions are scarcely launched before others more alluring are offered and the cost of these accessories in a single season amounts to a substantial sum. Therefore every purchase should be carefully weighed and extreme styles avoided.

What are commonly termed "soft" styles in neckwear are to predominate during the coming summer months; indeed they are much in evidence at the present time. The tall, stiff turn-down collar has given way to the unlaundersed lingerie collars which cling to the outline of the neck less aggressively than the stiff linen collar.

Before describing negligee collars, let me say that stiff collars with turn-over of lace, Irish crochet, Bebe Irish, guipure and Cluny, with rebats to match, tend to give a dressier and cooler looking finish to the neck than those of heavy linen. A pertinent novelty is the stiff collar with deep turn-over of Mexican drawn work.

Many of the new lingerie collars show small, plaited frills at one or both edges. In some cases there are inner frills of lace between those of batiste, or an edging on the frill itself.

Two collars of this style are shown among the illustrations. One in a pale blue batiste with a circular tab in centre worked in satin stitch and eyelets, the edge being scalloped. A little plaited ruffle lace trimmed escapes from the lower edge; the double tabs are similarly treated.

The collar to the right is of cream handkerchief linen daintily embroidered and having insets of Valenciennes lace. The upper edge carries one ruffle, while the lower carries two.

The latest development of the ubiquitous rabat shows the addition of a bow or pointed ends surrounding it.

Formerly because of the unfinished manner of the top, the rabat was thrust under the collar and so held with a brooch or a bar pin. This little extra touch has improved its appearance considerably.

Everything in the way of lace and embroidery goes into the rabat. Indeed it is a most economical and attractive way of utilizing the tid-bits of one's lace box.

A most charming little Dutch collar, an exclusive novelty, is shown on the figure, and is almost as filmy as a cobweb with a little rabat to match. Many of the higher priced collars show rather unusual shapes. This is an effort to escape the conventional styles. Yet one cannot go amiss in collars, for they are deep, shallow, circular, square, oblong, pointed—there is really no limit to the actual shape and design.

A simple and conservative style is shown here, with in the centre of the page. It is net plaited into cascades, with the bow and two pendant ends tipped with balls of pale green satins. Another is shown on the figure to the extreme right. Here a square meshed net is embroidered in black silk matching the stock collar.

Neck ruches continue to be worn and usually flourish with furs at Easter, especially at Atlantic City. An attractive ruche is shown in the upper left hand corner of gray chiffon edged with black chenille. It is made quite full and is finished with two pendant ends of black velvet with long silken tassels.

Another neck piece that is quite desirable for many occasions is fashioned of old pink satin laid in soft folds with double bows in the centre caught with a square buckle of dull silver. The top is finished with a crepe lace ruching.

Girdles for the most part are of satin or soft silk, shaped and trimmed with scarf ends and bows and rosettes. Silk fringes, crocheted balls and pendants, besides handsome crocheted set pieces, adorn the newest girdles. Most every fashionable color is represented.

Suede, kid and patent leather are shown in particularly handsome designs. One of gray kid is shown at the lower edge of the page, bound with a darker shade and having a smoked pearl buckle pierced with uncut sapphires. To the right is a novelty in brown suede which any girl can make. It is slightly shaped, made with a pointed end and trimmed with a deep fringe of cut suede. At intervals around the side are small buttons also of suede.

A charming belt is also shown toward the centre of the page, and is suggestive of those of tapestry, brocaded silk, fancy elastic belting and those of illumined leather. The tall buckle harmonizes with the materials so employed.

The sympathy of a wide circle of friends goes out at this time to Mr. Kennedy, landlord of the club house, on the drowning of his son, Mr. J. C. Kennedy.

Mr. Kennedy also had charge of the Village Inn at Grimsby when it was doing business, and the young man was well known and liked all through the district.

The pity is that he met his end at so early a stage of life and in such an untimely manner.

Those who knew him best refer to his many fine qualities.

BEAMSVILLE.

Miss Sarah Rogers, New York City, is visiting her brother, F. B. Rogers.

Miss Crawford, Hamilton, was the guest of J. and Mrs. Watt over Sunday and Monday.

John Ritchie, Lindsay, was home over the week end.

Miss Switzer, Richmond Hill, spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Armstrong this week.

Miss Evelyn Kelly, Hagersville, is staying with Miss Albright.

Mr. L. Riggins, Detroit, is home for his holidays.

Mr. J. McPhee has returned from Goderich, where he was visiting his parents.

The annual Merritt reunion picnic took place this year at the home of Mr. James Merritt at the lake, Clinton township. The affair was as great a gathering as ever.

G. S. Karr sent out the first shipment of peaches from this district on Tuesday.

August 11 is the date of the summer picnic of the Lincoln Farmers' Institute. It will take place at Victoria Hall grove as formerly.

Saturday morning last Mr. Taylor, who is hired by E. Field-Marshall, stepped into a large hornets nest, and was so badly stung that he has been laid up ever since.

Madie's Aid of the Methodist Church never held a nice garden party than the one on Tuesday evening on Mr. Frampton's lawn.

The band was present to enliven the proceedings, and a vocal and instrumental programme was also given.

A very large number of citizens were present, and the proceeds were most satisfactory.

Miss Gray, St. Catharines, is staying with her sister, Mrs. C. E. Riggins.

Station 26 and Burlington baseball teams crossed bats at Station 26, in the League, last night. Despite the disagreeable weather, a large crowd turned out to see the game which was a hummer.

Chicago, July 24.—"Kid" Howard, of Chicago, and Governor Marshall, of Indiana, are scheduled for a contest to-day. Howard insists that he will hold three boxing matches at Hammond.

Referring to the proposed outlaw meeting at Deloraine Park, Montreal, the Canadian sportsman says: "The way of the transgressor may be hard, but it is also devious and persistent."

A wild and woolly plunge was made on Charmion in the first race. The colt had worked a very fast trial recently, and Joe Yeager and several other large operators started in to make a killing.

"The Captain" for July has the following excellent article by Phil Paterson on "Athletes I Have Met" (And Would Rather Not Meet Again):

It's one thing to be an athlete; quite another to know how to behave as an athlete—how, in fact, to "play the game" when playing a game.

Jockey Crowley was an addition to the riding world. He came from New York, and is under contract to S. J. Kirkman.

Aviators of the World Are Watching Nova Scotia Town

Baddeck, N. S.—In the whole world there is perhaps not one spot where so much is being done toward the practical and scientific development of human flight as in this little town of Baddeck, so remote from the centres of popular gossip that only a few scientists and inventors scattered here and there throughout Europe and America realize what is going on.

Here a group of earnest young scientists and engineers, aided and inspired by the genius of Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, are working along original lines, and what they have already accomplished has caused men of the scientific world to watch their achievements with keenest interest.

With its setting of ocean, lakes and mountains Baddeck has for many years been a beautiful summer picture that has drawn hundreds of Canadian and American tourists here, but when the history of the future undertake to tell the true story of mechanical flight he will doubtless find that here on the shores of the Bras d'Or Lakes were worked out the most important problems in the practical flying machine.

The story of the Baddeck School of Aviation begins with the experiments of Dr. Alexander Graham Bell here, several years ago. His estate, known as Beinn Bhreagh (the Scotch for beautiful mountain), is situated on Baddeck Bay, and is one of the most romantic spots in Canada. With its sylvan walks, its tetrahedral tower and many evidences of scientific research, it has become the Mecca of students in many branches of science, but just at present the science of aviation takes precedence over everything else.

When the National Aerial Experiment Association was formed a few years ago, composed of the foremost scientists and inventors in America, the headquarters of the association were on Dr. Bell's estate. He was the head of the association and gathered about him a group of the ablest men in the country. A large laboratory was constructed near his mansion, and within its walls was performed some of the most important work yet done in the direction of producing a practical heavier than air flying machine.

By time limitation the Experiment Association came to an end on March 31 last, and to-day the laboratory and factories of the association are being utilized by the Canadian Aerodrome Company. This company is doing its work under the direction of J. A. D. McCurdy and Frederick W. Baldwin, two active workers in the Experiment Association, and the flying machines which they have built are ready for trial.

Those who are familiar with the flights made here over the ice of the Bras d'Or Lakes by Mr. McCurdy last winter in the Silver Dart are well satisfied as to what the new machines will do. Dr. Bell and those interested in the company will say nothing as to what they expect. They are willing to wait a few days or weeks and let the truth go out to the world through the usual channels.

Every pleasant day here last winter Mr. McCurdy flew about over the ice, oftentimes when the mercury registered very close to the zero point. A nine mile circular course was marked out by setting spruce bushes in the ice, and the circling of the Silver Dart about this course became as common a spectacle as the movement of sleighs were made which came near to that.

Little, however, was known of these achievements to the outside world. There was no desire for publicity. It was the purpose of these young men to learn from continued experiment just what they must do to make a machine more efficient than the Silver Dart, and they believe they have learned the truth.

While connected with the Aerial Experiment Association, Messrs. McCurdy and Baldwin were constantly seeking to build a machine which would offer less head resistance than the Silver Dart, which was the fourth aeroplane built by the association. This machine had about the same efficiency as the machines of the Wright brothers, and was especially adapted for the Kirckman Motor Company, of Bath, N. Y. These engines develop 40 horse power at 1,400 revolutions per minute, and have a maximum speed of 2,000, at which they can develop 48 horse power. They weigh complete about 320 pounds. Bosch, of Germany, supplied with no batteries to start, as in other machines, will be the ignition system used for engines. A single wooden propeller is used of 7 feet 6 inches diameter and nine foot pitch, which is driven by a chain drive.

A new tubular truss 12 feet long, 28 inches deep and 30 inches between the curved level of the machine of about four inches, which gives promise of being very efficient, not only matter of resistance. The laterals alone from the strength standpoint, but in the are formed of seven-eighths tubing, the perpendiculars and horizontals being front control, is raised so that its centre is in a direct line with the thrust of the propeller. The surfaces of the front control are curved similar to those of the main planes.

In a normal position the surfaces will present an angle of incidence to the air of advance of the machine of about four degrees. To steer the machine up the angle will be increased, and to depress the machine the angle will be lessened. This action is effected by a straight rod which runs from the control to the steering wheel, grasped by the operator. To raise the operator grasps the wheel and pushes it forward. To lower, he pulls it back. Here, again, these movements are more or less instinctive.

NEW TYPE OF RADIATOR. Perhaps one of the greatest changes made in this machine is the method employed of cooling the engine by means of a new radiator designed and constructed by Messrs. McCurdy and Baldwin. This radiator, which is of 1-64 inch copper, is made up in two sections, one of which is mounted between the two front struts of the second panel on the starboard side of the machine, and similarly the other section is mounted between the two front struts of the second panel on the port side. Each of the surfaces is 6 feet 6 inches long, 3 inches wide and 3-32 inch thick, spaced three inches apart, allowing eight surfaces for each section, which, in all, makes a total of 52 square feet of radiating surfaces, which not only acts as a radiator, but produces a lift having an efficiency of 20.

At the outside extremities these surfaces fit into a copper tube which is half fish shaped, and which when coming against the strut, one-half of which has been removed, again gives the full fish shaped form, which makes a very neat arrangement.

It is a great improvement over the automobile radiator used on the Silver Dart, which gave absolutely no lift and offered considerable head resistance.

GASOLINE TANK NOVEL FEATURE The copper tank for the gasoline is also another novel arrangement. It is made to fit between the two middle ribs of the machine, and are three inches by one inch in the centre panel, gradually decreasing toward the wing tips until they are 2-14 by 3-4 of an inch.

The sockets into which these struts fit are made of 22-gauge steel, and are oval in shape, while square ones are used for the upper and lower chords.

Much attention has been given to the idea of eliminating as much head resistance as possible, and it has been deemed advisable to have visible only the lateral and chordal wires, which are of nickel steel, the other wires being hidden between the surfaces of the planes.

This arrangement will greatly aid in getting rid of some of the head resistance and yet enable the machine to have great rigidity.

The tendency which every aerodrome has to tip to port or starboard is controlled by lateral rudders or "wing tips." These rudders are four in number on these machines and are placed at each lateral extremity of both surfaces, and give the appearance of being a continuation of the surfaces themselves, although upon closer inspection you find that in a normal position these tips are horizontal, whereas the main surfaces have an angle of incidence of four degrees.

The pair on the port side act together as do similarly the pair on the starboard side. If the machine tends to dip down to port the rudders on that side act so as to steer that end of the machine up, and at the same time the starboard pair act so as to steer that end down, and so by such a combined action the lateral equilibrium of the machine is controlled.

NEW METHOD OF CONTROL. The operation of these tips is brought about by the inclination to right or left of the aviator's body. His shoulders fit into a tubular lever, and to this lever wires are attached which, moving the tips as desired, the aviator always inclining his body to the high side of the machine, which action, as can be readily understood, is instinctive.

This method of control is quite novel, and was first used in the machines designed and constructed by the Aerial Experiment Association.

It differs greatly from the method employed by the Wright brothers, inasmuch as they warp their surfaces by moving a hand lever in the direction desired. These wing tips will be larger than those used on the Silver Dart, and will have double surfaces similar to those used on the main planes.

The chords are made of seven-eighths tubing instead of rods, which gives a much stronger arrangement.

Many changes have been made in the construction of the truck. The spruce skids are 9 feet 9 inches long by 1-34 by 4 inches, gradually tapering to 3 inches, and have been arranged so as to be raised to the ground instead of being elevated.

With this arrangement the axle of the main front wheel will go in the same plane as the skids and no special motorcycle fork will be used. Not only does this arrangement greatly strengthen the truck, but simplifies the construction and cuts down weight.

Special wheels have been designed for these machines with hubs twice as long as those used in ordinary motorcycles, which gives a much more rigid form of construction. There is a space of five inches between the spokes flanges. The wheel is 26 inches in diameter, with a 25 inch pneumatic rubber tire.

The vertical rudder, which controls the direction of the machine to right or left, is hinged eleven feet back from the rear of the main planes. This rudder is four feet high and two feet deep, giving an area of eight square feet. The wires for moving the rudder are led through pulleys to the steering wheel shaft, and are wound round a drum which is revolved by the operator turning his wheel. It is similar to the method employed in sailing vessels.

ENGINES AND EQUIPMENT. The engines used are specially assembled by the Canadian Aerodrome Company by the Kirckman Motor Company, of Bath, N. Y. These engines develop 40 horse power at 1,400 revolutions per minute, and have a maximum speed of 2,000, at which they can develop 48 horse power. They weigh complete about 320 pounds. Bosch, of Germany, supplied with no batteries to start, as in other machines, will be the ignition system used for engines. A single wooden propeller is used of 7 feet 6 inches diameter and nine foot pitch, which is driven by a chain drive.

A new tubular truss 12 feet long, 28 inches deep and 30 inches between the curved level of the machine of about four inches, which gives promise of being very efficient, not only matter of resistance. The laterals alone from the strength standpoint, but in the are formed of seven-eighths tubing, the perpendiculars and horizontals being front control, is raised so that its centre is in a direct line with the thrust of the propeller. The surfaces of the front control are curved similar to those of the main planes.

In a normal position the surfaces will present an angle of incidence to the air of advance of the machine of about four degrees. To steer the machine up the angle will be increased, and to depress the machine the angle will be lessened. This action is effected by a straight rod which runs from the control to the steering wheel, grasped by the operator. To raise the operator grasps the wheel and pushes it forward. To lower, he pulls it back. Here, again, these movements are more or less instinctive.

GASOLINE TANK NOVEL FEATURE The copper tank for the gasoline is also another novel arrangement. It is made to fit between the two middle ribs of the top section of the centre panel, with its top and bottom having the same curve as the machine.

It is all covered over with cloth, so that one would not suspect that a tank was there at all. It measures four feet six inches long and seventeen inches wide and has an average depth of about two inches. This gives it a capacity of about eight gallons.

Two other tanks arranged in the same manner on each side of this one bring the gasoline capacity up to about seventeen gallons. By placing the tank between the surfaces there is absolutely no drift, and from a point of efficiency the arrangement is unsurpassed.

The total supporting surface of the machine, including front control, is about 550 square feet. When complete and mounted by aviator it will weigh about 1,050 pounds and will have a flying angle of about 4 degrees.

FLYING THEIR RECREATION. Messrs. McCurdy and Baldwin, both of whom are about twenty-five years of age, are graduates from the University of Toronto Scientific School, have acquainted themselves with the principles of aviation both from a theoretical and practical standpoint, and are unlike most investigators in this line of research, as they believe in laboratory experiments for scientific records.

They have without doubt equipped themselves with one of the best aerodrome factories in the world to-day, nearly everything except engines being manufactured at their own place.

Their new machine contains the finest workmanship that has yet been seen on any flying machine, all the crude arrangements of front control, chords, guy wiring, radiator, gasoline tank, etc., being done away with and although weighing more than the Silver Dart, about nine hundred pounds, will be far more efficient in all details of construction.

MAY COMPETE WITH WRIGHTS. At present they are thinking of little else than the trials for the Canadian Government at Petawawa, and when they are finished the young aviators and their machines may be in demand in many parts of the world.

But Baddeck will continue to be one of the most important centres in the world of aviation there is little doubt, as it possesses many advantages which other localities do not have. The expanse of water affords great facilities for experimental work over its smooth frozen surface during the long winter months, when aviation in most other places is at a standstill.

In the summer these lakes, which have been called the Killarney of America, are most useful for hydroplane experiments, which must necessarily go hand in hand with aeroplane experiments if flying machines are to become of practical use in war and peace.

Besides these advantages there is the atmosphere of scientific progress here, with all the requisite equipment for experiment and no interference from crowds and bothersome critics.

The best tea can be utterly spoiled by exposure to contaminating influences, as bulk teas so often are. The sealed lead packets of the "Salada" Tea Company give you tea fresh and fragrant from the gardens to the teacup.

Back to Nature

(By Stuart B. Stone.)

There were three things that combined to lure the J. Grigsby Mullins away from the grim, relentless city to the fields of sylvan green. The first was the "Way Down South" rural melodrama that moved Mrs. Mullins to tears of reminiscence. The second was a book that Mullins read called "Heaven on Half an Acre, or How to be Rich Though a Farmer." Then came the ad. in the Evening Scimitar about the "grand, rugged scenery" and "life-giving ozone" at Ranleigh Farms. Mullins immediately vacated apartment No. 24 at the Verona and moved bag and baggage to Ranleigh Farms.

The grand, rugged scenery consisted for the most part of several steep, red-clay banks by the roadside; but the life-giving ozone was present in oceanic quantities, so that on the whole the Mullins were delighted.

The children scattered with whoops of glee, and Mullins and his wife went merrily down to the spick-and-span barn for purposes of inspection.

But somehow things went wrong. Mullins attempted to milk the sleek Jersey, and she deftly kicked a quart of the creamy fluid into his shirt bosom. Then on the way back to the house a rotten plank snapped, dumping Mrs. Mullins into a sticky bog.

At the front gate they met young Harold strung vigorously because he had been stung by a bee. Loud cries issuing from the turn of the road brought them on the double quick to Virginia, the oldest daughter, who, clad in brightest scarlet, had sought refuge in a pig pen at the approach of an inquisitive bull. A babble of shrill young voice smote their ears and they turned to confront Freddie, striding indignantly down the lane, followed by fourteen rural youngsters, who were commenting on every detail of his natty blue sailor-boy attire.

"Let us go inside," said Mullins. "We have not yet adjusted ourselves to the buoyant, invigorating country life."

It set into rain, and as night came on something in the forest nearby began a dolorous screeching.

THE CIGARETTE

550 Places in the Capital Where They Can be Bought.

(Ottawa Journal.) The efforts of the Women Christian Temperance Union to persuade the City Council to increase the amount of the cigarette license fee is altogether commendable. The object of the several branches of the union in Ottawa is to minimize and in the end entirely prevent the sale of cigarettes to minors. They think, and quite reasonably think, that the increase in the fee would largely decrease the number of places at which cigarettes would be sold, make it increasingly difficult for boys to obtain cigarettes and in every way tend to stamp out the evil in Ottawa.

For it is an evil. Cigarette smoking by boys not yet out of knickerbockers is a common sight in Ottawa. It is a sight that tries the human sensibilities of anyone with any experience in or knowledge of the matter. Where an adult may make a practice of smoking cigarettes without any visible impairment of his energies, physical or mental, there is only a negligible proportion of children in their teens immune from the deterioration which follows the use of tobacco at an early age. It is a common argument by the defenders of the cigarette that the tobacco in a good cigarette is tobacco in its purest form. The cigarette within the means of the average boy who falls within the hooks of the habit are not composed of tobacco in its purest form. Their fumes would poison even a tobacco-proof adult. In the highest position of the hierarchy of cigarette smokers, applies the narcotic to the nerve centres nearest the brain. The boy who smokes cigarettes at all is sowing in his system the seeds of physical, mental and moral decadence. This is not a theory; it is a fact ascertained in experience.

Now, Ottawa charges only $1 for a license to sell cigarettes. In Toronto for the sale of tobacco only there is a fee of $1, for tobacco and cigars it is $5, and for tobacco, cigars and cigarettes $25, or, in other words, for the sale of cigarettes $25 is the fee. In Winnipeg the retailers of cigarettes pay an annual tax of $50. In Toronto and Winnipeg apparently the object is to place the right to sell cigarettes only in the hands of persons of unquestioned substance, who will be the more cautious to observe the law in all respects.

It is said that in Ottawa there are no less than 550 licenses for the sale of cigarettes. A boy under the legal age would find it difficult and probably impossible to obtain cigarettes from an experienced tobacconist whose time is given entirely to the sale of tobacco. But he might find it not so hard to obtain them from persons to whom the sale of cigarettes is a side line.

However that may be, smoking of cigarettes by small boys in Ottawa has attained formidable dimensions, and the City Council would do well to accept the proposition of an increased license fee. The police have a duty in the matter, too. Under the law they have the right to interrogate any boy under 16 with cigarettes in his possession; this interrogation with a view to ascertaining the identity of the seller. If the police do not see the boys smoking cigarettes in Ottawa they must have their eyes closed. If they were to exercise a little more vigilance and secure a few convictions on these lines they might help along a good cause. The cigarette should be effectively forbidden to the boy.

Individual Drinking Cups Since the days when the moss-covered bucket that hung in the well was considered the type of biocidal inspiration and healthfulness, time has wrought many innovations in the cups of the olden days and the hand of the law is now wielded to protect people from dangers that their forbears never dreamed of. For instance, the State board of health of Kansas has issued an order which forbids after Sept. 1st next the use of common drinking cups on railroad trains and in railroad stations, in public and private schools and in State educational institutions. The effect of such an order will be to necessitate the carrying of private cups by travellers and by school children, unless in the case of the schools some provision can be made to have individual cups kept in the schools for the use of the hundreds and thousands of children. Such a provision would involve quite a problem of management.—Nashville Banner.

MINISTERS, SPEAKERS, SINGERS: For Their Special Benefit a Scientific Voice Improver Has Been Invented.

Because of its strengthening influence upon the vocal chords Catarrhazone cannot be too highly recommended as a wonderful voice improver. It almost instantly removes huskiness or hoarseness, thus insuring clearness and brilliancy of tone. Catarrhazone keeps the mucous surfaces in perfect condition, thereby removing the singer's greatest source of anxiety—unfitness of voice. The most eminent speakers and prima donas would not be without Catarrhazone and credit in no small degree their uniform strength and brilliancy of tone of its influence. The hard rubber inhaler fits conveniently in a purse or vest pocket, and may be used in church, theatre, any place or time. Price $1.00, all dealers, or The Catarrhazone Co., Kingston, Ontario.

SCRAPING THE STOMACH

Dangerous and Painful Operation Avoided by Taking "Fruit-a-lives."

Gulph, Ont., Aug. 6, 1908. I suffered for many months with dreadful Stomach Trouble, with vomiting and constant pain, and I could retain practically nothing. My doctor stated that I must go to the hospital and undergo an operation of scraping the stomach, and be fed by the bowels for weeks. All the medicine the doctor gave me I vomited at once. I was dreadfully alarmed, but I dreaded an operation and had refused.

"Fruit-a-lives" are 50c a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, trial box 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-lives, Limited, Ottawa.

My Creed. This is my creed: To do some good, To bear my ills without complaining, To press on as a brave man should For honors that are worth the gaining; To seek no profits where I may, To win my living by my day, To do some service every day, To be a blessing on my loving brothers.

This is my creed: To close my eyes, To little faults of those around me; To strive to be when each day dies Some better than the morning found me; To ask for no unearned applause, To cross no river till I reach it; To always have a worthy cause, To fearlessly and fairly preach it.

This is my creed: To wisely shun The sloughs in which the foolish wallow; To lead where I may be the one Whom weaker men should choose to follow; To keep my standards always high, To find my task and bravely do it; This is my creed—I wish that I Could even live half way up to it. —S. E. Kiser in Chicago Record-Herald.

The chronic borrower always has a striking personality.

I had heard of "Fruit-a-lives," and the great success they were having in all Stomach Troubles, and I decided to try them. To my surprise, the "Fruit-a-lives" not only remained on the stomach, but they also checked the vomiting. I immediately began to improve, and in three days the pain was easier and I was decidedly better. I continued to take "Fruit-a-lives" and they completely cured me.

ANDERSON IN VANCOUVER.

Alleged Bank Forger Arrested Trying to Pass Cheque.

His "Accepted" Stamp Didn't Go at That Bank.

Cashed Cheques in Europe and the United States.

Vancouver, B.C., July 23.—John Alfred Graham Anderson, former ledger-keeper at the branch of the Bank of Montreal at the corner of Portland and Queen street, Toronto, was arrested at the Hotel Vancouver, in this city, this morning. He attempted, it is said, to pass a fraudulently marked cheque at the hotel here and was reported to the bank. He is being held pending instructions from the East.

Anderson's recent movements have puzzled the Toronto police. Only two days ago they said that he had not the slightest intimation as to where the fugitive was. The last they heard of him was in Gananoque, Ont., two weeks ago, and after that he eluded them. After they had located him at that place he apparently managed to get back through Toronto, on his way to the coast, without detection.

All the police departments from coast to coast, and, in fact, in Europe had been notified, but he remained undetected until the finish at the coast hotel.

Following are some of the places where Anderson cashed cheques: Banque de Paris, Paris, France, $250. Branch of same bank at Chicago, 200. Branch of same bank at Los Angeles, 300.

Canadian Bank of Commerce, San Francisco, 450. J. L. Brandon, Omaha, Neb., 750. New Denison Hotel, Indianapolis, Ind., 35. Y. M. C. A., Burlington, Vt., 375. Dominion Bank, Windsor, Ont., 15. Detroit National Bank, 15. Bank of Nova Scotia, Boston branch, 15. Imperial Bank, Galt branch, 25. Bank of Commerce, Galt branch, 15. Quebec Bank, Pembroke, Ont., 15. Royal Bank, Montreal, 15. Besides these there have been numerous complaints against Anderson.

The method employed by Anderson was to mark cheques "accepted." He would then go to a dealer, a bank, or most any place, and realize on the paper.

Detective Murray leaves to-day for Vancouver to bring the man back, and he will be tried in Toronto first. The Vancouver correspondent telegraphs that Anderson arrived in Vancouver on Wednesday, registered at the Hotel Vancouver, Toronto. Running short of funds last night he attempted to induce Manager Derouville to cash a cheque for $1,900. The cheque bore across its face the rubber stamped imprint "accepted." Derouville refused to pay. After saying he had cashed several at Seattle, and volunteering to have the paper vouched for at the local branch bank, Anderson left.

Manager Derouville notified the management of the bank that the young man was sitting in the porch of the hotel. Anderson was arrested shortly afterwards. At the police station he admitted his identity.

The charges on which Anderson will be tried here will be for passing cheques with forged acceptances on local business houses.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The Red Book Magazine for August is by far the most attractive issue of this admirable magazine we remember ever to have seen. A better midsummer magazine, indeed, would be difficult to select. The art portrait section is exquisitely printed and the department devoted to the drama is up to the minute. The wealth of fiction opens with a story by Roy Norton, entitled "Sand, the Substitute," in which there is pictured a blizzard on the mountain top that will be as refreshing as a cool breeze to August vacationists. Richard LeGallienne contributes, in his charming manner, one of the most beautiful short stories he has ever written. Its title is "The House of Joy That is Gone."

The leading article of the August Century, the Midsummer Holiday Number, is Mr. Richard Watson Gilder's "Grove-Cleveland: A Record of Friendship." The pictures are new and mainly from amateur sources. One of the pictures in the August number gives the interior of the studio at Marion—with Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson and Mrs. Cleveland and her mother—in which room Mr. Cleveland conducted a sort of moot-court of the most amusing description, "one night in Marion." A number of Mr. Cleveland's familiar letters are published, and the first paper closes with a section called "The Children's Hour."

The rest of the number is largely fiction, the kind that reads well during midsummer holidays. There is the third and last of the anonymously published "Thirteen at Table" stories, "The Fourteenth Guest." Is it writer Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, Owen Winter, or Margaret Deland? The number has also, besides short stories by Katharine Metcalf Roof, Cleveland Moffett, David Gray, Casper Day, and L. Frank Todd, the first of Albert Hickman's "The A-Plat Major Polonaise," the extraordinary story of a musician of exuberant temperament, and his experiences in a Nova Scotia camp. Mr. Hickman's humor has already been shown in his shorter stories, "Overproof," "Oriented," etc.

An interesting number is the August Strand Magazine. The fiction is particularly good and includes a rollicking story by the inimitable humorist, W. W. Jacobs, "The White Christ"; the remarkable novel, "The White Christ"; Frank Savile relates "A Tale of Kashmir" and Pett Ridge contributes three "Sketches from Life," which are gems in their way. The articles, interesting and unique as always, deal with such diversified topics as "Hands and Feet," by Shepherd and Aithen; "My Reminiscences," by Louis N. Parker, the "Patience King"; "The Daylight Saving Bill"; and "Wonders of Tropical Life." The color section is entitled "Sensation Pictures" and shows some extraordinary and startling pictures.

J. E. Brown, of the Brown, Lee Company, Geuph, was committed for trial on charges of defacing the firm's books and obtaining money by false pretences.

TIMES PATTERNS. ELECTRICITY ON THE FARM.

RUSSIAN DRESS FOR LITTLE BOY.

No. 5757.—A smart dress for the little boy is here shown in the popular Russian style. It closes at one side of the front and slight gathers at the neck in front give an easy, comfortable fit. Made up in the washable fabric, it is ideal for playtime or everyday wear. Serge, mohair, Scotch gingham, linen and pique are all suggested for the making. For a child of four years 1 1/2 yards of 44-inch material will be required. Sizes 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 years.

DOCTOR GAVE HIM UP.

A Terrible Experience With Kidney Disease and Dragging Backache.

Expected Death any Day.

To get well and keep well after being pronounced incurable by his physician, I had to call in my physician. For a week he attended me constantly, but I grew weaker and sicker every day. The pains in my back, the blinding headaches, the awful weakness from which I suffered almost killed me—the doctor said it was hopeless.

"As a last hope I was persuaded to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They brought back my strength, aided my stomach, created new appetite, cleansed my blood and gave me relief from pain. I continued the treatment for three months and was cured."

Surely there is an obvious moral and lesson here for all men and women. If you are suffering from any derangement of the system, if you are tortured and distressed by indigestion, if you are weakened by the ravages of constipation, kidney, liver or bladder complaint—if your blood is weak and your system run down—then use Dr. Hamilton's Pills, take them continually until you are fully restored to health again.

Give Dr. Hamilton's Pills an immediate and thorough trial, your faith in them will be rewarded.

IN FOOT OF WATER.

Richard Lawson's Body Found in Nith, Near Paris.

Paris, Ont., July 23.—Mr. Richard Lawson, of Falkland, three miles from here, was drowned in the River Nith on his farm this morning. He went out to work in the wheat field at 6.30 and shortly after was missed and was found lying in a foot of water at a mile from the farm. Mr. Lawson was sixty years of age, and a prosperous farmer. He had lived on the farm where he died for sixteen years.

SAVED BY MOSQUITO

The Sting Awoke Sleeper Who Discovered Fire.

Montreal, July 23.—The sting of a mosquito saved the lives of five and led to the discovery of a fire in a summer cottage in the Laurentians north of here last night, which might eventually have destroyed the dwellings of the whole summer colony of Lac Brule.

Mosquitoes were a thick last evening that Mrs. Griffiths, the wife of Dr. F. H. Griffiths, of this city, who has a summer home on Lac Brule, started a smudge on the verandah. About 10 o'clock she and her four children retired, the eldest boy turning the smoking chest and lights leaving before the door out on the gravel walk. Shortly before dawn Mrs. Griffiths awoke, hit a mosquito a crack just in time to prevent him from boring a hole in her cheek, and unable to sleep arose and opened her window.

A crackling noise and a smell of smoke attracted her attention. From the verandah a small tongue of flame flickered upwards. Quickly arousing her children and throwing as many clothes as possible out of the windows, Mrs. Griffiths led the way hastily down the back stairs and viewed from the lawn the destruction of her pretty summer home.

ELECTRICITY ON THE FARM.

MAINE FAMILY'S NOVEL WAYS TO SAVE EXTRA LABOR.

Feeds Horses, Drives Cows—Sounds Alarms When Thieves Come and Tells When Postman Leaves a Letter in the Box.

Auburn, Me.—Electricity has been harnessed on the Ramsdell Farm, in Minot, Me., and at the button touch or time clock behest of the proprietors it is made to do many kinds of work. The same subtle force that Benjamin Franklin once drew from the cloud on a kite string is now harnessed up as a willing slave to agriculture.

This sixty acre farm is five miles west of Auburn, near the Lewiston and Mechanic Falls electric line. It was purchased by the present owner, T. S. Ramsdell, and his wife, Mrs. E. Ramsdell, father and son, eight years ago. The senior member of the firm, Osgood Ramsdell, was for a long time engaged in the mills of Lewiston, and the junior member, Edgar E. Ramsdell, has for years been an expert electrician and is chief inspector of the New England Telephone Company.

For fourteen years he was in the employ of an electric lighting company in Salem. The entire family is electrically inclined. Two other brothers, A. B. Ramsdell and H. C. Ramsdell, in the family, largely developed, and in leisure moments when at home have helped in the installation of electrical devices.

Upon entering the house the visitor is confronted with an array of electrical mechanism in the dining room which covered a large space on the walls. A feature of the entire installation, which includes a telephone and electric bell call in each room in the house, besides the manifold other connections with stable, mail box and poultry house, is the entire absence of visible wires, except in the cellar, where the cables, disposed carefully out of harm's way, tell the story of skilful installation.

The gratifying thing about the electrical plant is the fact that everything works. Of the score or more separate devices used for utilitarian or demonstration purposes, all work with accuracy at the press of a button or the initiative of the clock that controls them.

At present the electricity required to operate all the apparatus is obtained from thirty-two dry cell batteries, but plans are being made for installing a water power plant which can be provided by means of a dam across a ravine on the farm. From this source it will be possible to obtain sufficient electrical power to do all the mechanical work of the farm, such as sawing wood, grinding feed, cutting ensilage, threshing and various lesser operations such as running the separator, corn sheller, grinding mill, churning and sewing machine.

In fact, after seeing what has already been accomplished on the farm, visitors say they will not be surprised to find cows being milked, horses carried and chickens picked by the electricity in the near future. The electric power generated by the water power will also be employed to light the buildings and probably for cooking.

Of the various uses made of electricity at this farm, the feeding of the horses by merely pushing a button at the house occasions the greatest surprise to visitors. If it is desired to have the feeding done very early in the morning, or at any time when the family is absent, a small electrically operated electric clock, and at the scheduled time the current does the trick by opening the chute, in which the feed has been previously placed.

Another interesting feature of the equipment is a fire alarm system just as complete and accurate as is to be found in the city systems. The system includes a twelve-inch electro-mechanical gong, indicator, pen register and boxes; box No. 52 on the barn and box No. 35 on the panel, and when either box is pulled there is a response from the eighteen inch electro-mechanical gong in the house and on the similar twelve-inch gong in the same. At the same time the indicator marks the call on the permanent register. In addition an electric whistle is operated on the front of the barn.

The electrical announcement in the house when mail is deposited in the rural delivery box is another practical convenience. The main poultry house is protected by an electric burglar alarm which, when set off by any movement of doors or windows, operates a ten inch gong in the dwelling. Recently two or three houses have been moved and now a change will be made in the system so that each of the five poultry houses will be connected with the annunciator and register. The movement of doors or windows in any one of the houses, and the bell will continue to ring and the register needle indicate which house is being disturbed even if a door or window is immediately closed.

In the Ramsdell dwelling ten local telephones are in use besides the outside phone, each bedroom being provided with a portable desk set which can be made to ring at any window in the house. Two others are installed, one in the barn and one in the shop across the road. Also a line is to be run around the farm with a provision made for attaching a portable telephone when the men are at work at a distance from the house.

Two other novel features to be installed are an electrical gate opener, by which the cows can get into the lane that leads from the pasture to the barn. This gate being at a considerable distance from the house, it can be electrically controlled by pushing a button, with a saving of many steps. The other will be a battery call telephone in the stable connecting with the bedroom in the house, which will sound an alarm whenever there is trouble among the stock.

case of a shower one cord is pulled, cutting off the line where it enters the building and leaving the arrester connected to the ground. After danger from the lightning is over the other cord is pulled, throwing the telephone once more into operation.

The Ramsdells do not expect to see many of the devices employed on their farm come into general use, but they say they have good reason to believe that a considerable number of the ways of employing electrical energy now in use and being planned will be utilized on hundreds of Maine farms in the lifetime of many now living.

The family includes the senior member of the farm firm, Osgood Ramsdell, and wife; the son, Edgar E. the prime electrical head, his wife and five young electricians. The eldest girl, Nina Ramsdell, eleven years old, will be the operator of the new branch magnet exchange switchboard in the dining room. She will doubtless be the youngest operator in New England.

TWO GIRL SLAVES.

ALMOND-EYED MAIDENS TELL OF BRUTAL TREATMENT.

Sold by Relatives and Brought by Their Masters to New York's Chinatown—Held There Against Their Will as Household Slaves.

New York, July 23.—Two round-cheeked little maids, their almond eyes very, very wide, their straight brows brushed flat across their foreheads, their black braids, laced with scarlet silk, hanging precisely down the middle of their backs, stood demurely before Justice Wyatt in the children's court today, and swore to a story which left little sympathy in those who heard for two elderly celestial merchants, who reported their "children" missing to the police last Wednesday night, for both little girls, who can make themselves understood in English, swore they have no parents living in America, and they have been held here against their will as household slaves, harshly treated, and forced to work long hours. They were accompanied by an agent of the Children's Society, who had found them on the day of their disappearance from the Chinese at East-side Parish House, with Miss Mary E. Bank, their Sunday school teacher, whom they had recently accompanied on a week's outing to the country. To the superintendent of the society the two made a sworn statement, in part as follows, which was read to-day in court:

"My name is Moy Yum Toy. By Chinese reckoning I am fifteen; by American, fourteen. My father died when I was very young, and my mother married again, and left me alone with my grandmother, who was very, very poor, and I was sold to the wife of Moy See Chai, and she brought me over here to America about two years ago, and I have been with her ever since. I have had to work very hard in the house, making buttons and button loops from young, and late at night, when I take a rest I get scolded and beaten. Whenever my mistress' boy called to me to do certain things, and when I was not able to do it fast enough the boy would beat me. "I do not want to say anything that is not true against them; they fed me well. But my mistress once told me: 'If I killed you they could only arrest me.'"

Chin Fong Toy's narrative was similar. She was sold in China for $100, she said, brought to this country and sold again for $500 gold, and has been with her present master ever since, some nine months, making buttons and button loops for the stores. "Some mornings," her statement reads, "I had to get up at 7 o'clock, and sometimes work every night on until 2 o'clock in the morning. I was not allowed to go out. "If I don't work all the time I get beaten. I had to do all the washing—sheets and all. The only teaching I ever received was by Miss Bank, who taught me to sew for an hour, or so every Monday. "I would rather die than go back to Mot street."

Neither she nor her companion will have to. Pending full investigation of their tale, they will be held by the Children's Society. Both little girls are about the same age. Chin Fong Toy slightly the elder. Their story has attracted a lot of other rigid investigation in Chinatown, which has hardly settled down after the chaos and probing which followed the murder of Elsie Sigel. An officer of the Children's Society said that the Government would be asked to look into what appears to be actual slave practices.

Two well-known Chinese merchants posed as the fathers of the children, and they are under police surveillance. The youth of the children, however, and the many contradictions which the police always find in investigating a Chinese mystery, take a tinge off the seemingly serious aspect of the affair until the whole matter has been sifted.

TOOK LEAP.

Fireman Dreamed He Heard the Call to Duty.

New York, July 23.—Dreaming that he was on duty with his fire company, truck No. 61, of Brooklyn, and that he heard an alarm coming in, George M. Murray, 28 years old, leaped from his bed and despite the struggles of his frantic wife, who got a black eye in the fight, dashed head foremost through the window of their home on the third floor of 250 Court street early to day. He was carried to the Long Island College Hospital, where it was discovered that he had sustained only a few minor injuries. He is back on duty.

GOOD SHORT STORIES

THE ORIGINAL COCKNEY.

The city man came down to breakfast red-eyed and pale. "A quiet country vacation?" he grumbled to the farmer's busy daughter. "Why the devil, when you have been so long in the city, you are not unacquainted with the country?" he asked, excitedly. "That's the feller. He's been neighing like that all night."

A LONDON DINNER. "A German," thus writes the London Mail: "A dinner is in progress at a first-class hotel. Elegant toilets, splendid surroundings, and an absence of sound, slowly, stiffly, like automatons, the dining ladies and gentlemen proceed with their meal. The scene is undoubtedly very impressive, but who so sad! Amid crystal and porcelain, amid a scene that fairly invites, begs, cries for a bright smile, a low, rippling laugh, or at least that deep, animated hum that makes itself otherwise noticed wherever there is a large gathering, the diners sit as in a vast, empty hall, the judgment day. Sometimes somebody does speak. One word or two. The lips hardly part. The other nods his head in terrible earnest. Then silence reigns supreme again."

A friend, who had been in England, once related a story, the point of which I have never appreciated until now. Like myself, the first time he had entered a dining room in London he looked around in surprise. Finally to ward the end of the meal he called the waiter. "Tell me, please," he asked; "does anybody ever laugh here?" "Well," replied the waiter, "I am sorry to say that they have had complaints before. But not often, sir—not often."

This story of President Taft, says the Rochester Herald, comes from Cincinnati: Once, when a pretty Cincinnati girl was a child of six or seven, Mr. Taft calling at her house, found nobody home excepting herself. She entertained him a little while, and when he rose to go he stooped down and kissed her. "Here's one," he said, "for the baby. Here is another for little Jim. And here is a third for little Billy-boy."

LOTS OF TIME. Joaquin Miller was once overtaken by a countryman, who gave him a long ride. Tired at length of conversation, the poet took a novel from his pocket. "What are you reading?" said the countryman. "A novel of Bret Harte's," said Mr. Miller. "Well, now, I don't see how an immoral being wants to be wasting his time with such stuff!" "Are you quite sure," said the poet, "that I am an immortal being?" "Of course you are."

A young woman from London, England, named McMillan, 30 years of age, died on board the Empress of Ireland during the voyage. She was accompanied by her husband and two children, and was en route for Vancouver. The Empress of Ireland will build a new round-house at the foot of Bathurst street, Toronto.

Four Greats Deadweight. Newcastle-on-Tyne, July 23.—Inquire received by the Armstrong shipbuilding firm indicates that the Government will give out almost immediately orders for four additional super-Dreadnaughts, which it is expected will be armed with 15.5-inch guns.

Importer of Fine Shoes

We are the largest importer of fine shoes in the city. The firms who offer us the NICEST and BEST for the money, are the firms who get our trade. We presume that the public do their buying on the same basis—which accounts for our doing such a large and steady business.

Oxford Shoes

Our Oxford trade this season has been the largest on record—which is the natural result of our careful buying. We buy for PROMPT CASH and are not tied down to any one firm, but buy wherever we can get THE BEST VALUE FOR SPOT CASH in the States and Canada. When the Shoes arrive in our store the price is marked in plain figures at as low a figure as possible, as we do not approve of other store methods of marking goods at a high price in order to have a reduction sale later on. Our Shoes are sold on their merits, which ensures to us a steady business the year through.

Hagar Fine Shoes

This season we have sold more Hagar Shoes for women and men than during any former season. They are certainly the NICEST and BEST fine shoes made in Canada. American shoe travellers have told us that "Hagar Shoes" are the only shoes in Canada that interfere with their business—that if there were no Hagar Shoes they could double their business in Canada. We are the only firm in Hamilton where these celebrated shoes can be purchased.

NAMES—When you see such names as Kneeland, Barry, Hagar, Hurley, Stetson or Sorosis on a shoe, you can rest fully assured that such a shoe is all that it should be for the price asked.

ASHES OF BUDDHA.

Discovery by Archaeologists at Peshawar, India.

London, July 23.—Excavations conducted by the Archaeological Department of the Indian Government near Peshawar have resulted in the discovery of an ancient Buddhist stupa, or memorial mound, containing a bronze casket, within which are some ashes of Gautama Buddha. The ashes are enclosed in a wrought hexagonal rock crystal receptacle, sealed with the royal seal of Emperor Kanishka, who was ruling in Peshawar at the opening of the Christian era. "When Buddha died in 482 B. C. his body was cremated, and the ashes divided into eight parts among his disciples," said Dr. L. D. Barnett, keeper of Oriental books in the British Museum to-day. "One of the vases containing these, and known as the Piprahva vase, was discovered ten years ago by a Government surveyor."

ONE LEADER LESS.

Vice-President of U. M. W. Takes His Departure.

Gloucester, N. S., July 23.—From an output of 8,900 tons recorded at 4 o'clock this afternoon the officials of the Dominion Coal Company were certain to-night that the output for the day would go into five figures. Dominion No. 1 is now producing about as much coal as at any previous time in its history. The total figures for to-day from this mine were close on 2,200 tons, and Manager Maxwell is now getting within 200 tons of this colliery's record.

The company has now formed somewhat different opinions of the amount of coal a man is capable of producing a day. The men now at work are working their hardest, and tales of men taking ten, twelve and fifteen dollars a day are in circulation, which do not make any too pleasant retailing to the man who is living on two dollars a week strike allowance.

Montreal Lineman Electrocuted. Montreal, July 23.—Peter Lanthier, a Montreal Light Heat & Power Company lineman, was killed instantly this afternoon while at work at the top of an electric light pole at the corner of Dorchester and Labelle streets. No one actually saw the electrocution, but some children drew attention to the dead body of a man hanging over a cross-bar. Death must have been instantaneous.

A British Columbia Toothpick. Montreal, July 23.—Four hundred dollars worth of lumber arrived in Montreal for the Harbor Commissioners this morning in one piece, a giant log, which it took two long flatcars to accommodate. This is the first "British Columbia toothpick" to come to the port this season. The giant is a beautifully cut pine log almost four feet square and close on seventy feet in length.

FOR THOUGHTFUL PEOPLE

The King in His Beauty.
(From the Watchman.)

Who who walk uprightly,
Whose trust is in the Lord,
Whose joy is in His service—
His smile the best reward;
Who strive to keep unflinching
The path the Master trod,
While others turn from duty,
True to the right and God;
How sweetly 'mid thy toiling
This message comes to thee,
The King in all His beauty
One day thine eyes shall see.

Though oft the way be weary,
Though cares oppressive throng,
Above the strife and discord
Like chant of heavenly song,
This message comes to cheer thee
From out the Book divine,
And soothes to trustful quiet
Each troubled thought of thine:
Rejoice! Beyond the toiling
The heavenly rest shall be:
The King in all His beauty
One day thine eyes shall see.

One day He'll bid thee welcome
Home to that far-off land
Where, clad in robes of whiteness,
His own redeemed ones stand,
There, crowned with joy and gladness,
They walk the shining way,
Where sorrow and where sighing
Forever flee away.

Take heart amid the conflict!

Sometimes you desire to do so, but language fails, you cannot convey the secret and you never will. Secrets are dying every day, and even angels are not called upon to bury them.

What's a secret? An affair which few people know. A secret is hid from men; known to God, revealed to His chosen ones. The wise and prudent know some secrets; there was an inner circle which only babes came to possess, which called forth the great thanks of Christ. Abraham had a secret and it whispered, "Get thee out," and he went with a larger joy than you will ever know. Moses fled to Midian and stayed forty years. He had a darling secret, which nourished patience, courage, dignity, and now he signs, "Forty years long was I made glad with sustaining food." Mary "kept all these things and pondered them in her heart," the most priceless gems that ever came to a solitary soul, her solitary soul forever. Angels came to crown her, and she was not proud. # Heaviness at Pit of the Stomach

A Feeling of Uneasiness Before and After Meals is Quickly Cured With Nerviline.

Nearly everyone gets an occasional attack of indigestion and knows just what that heavy feeling means in the stomach. "I was subject to stomach derangement and my health was seriously hampered on this account. After meals I belched gas, had a weighty sensation in my stomach and over my left side. The first relief I got was from Nerviline—I used it three times a day and was cured." I continue to use Nerviline occasionally, and find it is a wonderful aid to the stomach and digestive organs.

The above letter comes from Mrs. F. R. Stetson, wife of an important merchant in Brockton, and still furnishes proof of the exceptional power of Nerviline is furnished by A. E. Rossman, the well-known upholsterer of Chester, who writes: "Let every one with a bad stomach use 'Nerviline,' and I am sure there will be few sufferers left. I used to have cramps, rumbling noises, gas on my stomach and severe fits of indigestion. Nerviline was the only remedy that gave me relief, and I found it so entirely satisfactory that I would like to have my letter of recommendation published broadcast in order that others may profit by my experience."

You'll find a hundred uses for Nerviline—it's a trusty household remedy that sells to the extent of a million bottles per year—that's the best proof that it must cure and give unlimited satisfaction. # Preserving Fruit in Combinations

(By Alice Gitchell Kirk.)

A new departure in canning, preserving and jelly making is the combination of two or more fruits, which gives a very pleasing change in flavors. At first thought one might want to mix any or all seasonable fruits together. This is not the case, and the correct combinations of various fruits with different acids will require some careful thought. Do not unite too many fruits; two or three make a delightful change. Some fruits, such as elderberries and blackberries, need no addition of acid, with plenty of acid, such as currants, gooseberries, green grapes or tart apples. As many questions have been asked regarding the mixing of the present fruits in the markets, the following combinations may at least be suggestive:

A delicious jam or jelly is made from equal parts of currants and red raspberries.

Cherries and pineapple, or strawberries and pineapple, or apples and pineapple, go together well, canned or preserved.

A new sauce to serve with meat which is most appetizing is made of one quart of ripe gooseberries, cherries, strawberries, or currants in place of the latter, with three-fourths as much sugar, cooked until thick. Add spices and vinegar to suit the taste.

Equal portions of red raspberry and pineapple juice make a delicious ice.

A stick of cinnamon added to the crab-apple juice while boiling adds very much to the flavor of the jelly.

Elderberries and green grapes, equal portions, or tart apples, make a fine jelly.

Peaches canned with maple syrup give an unusual flavor.

CRAB APPLE JELLY.

Wash the crab apples and cut them in quarters. Put into the preserving kettle and nearly cover with water. Cover and cook slowly until the apples are very soft. Pour all into the jelly bag and let drip over night or several hours. Boil 20 minutes and add an equal amount of heated sugar. Boil and skim and it should be jelly at once. A stick of cinnamon and half a dozen cloves boiled with the juice makes a spicy jelly which is very nice to serve with meats.

CHERRY COBBLER.

Fill an earthen pudding dish two-thirds full of juicy, tart cherries, and sprinkle plentifully with sugar to sweeten and bite over with a cover with a paste of rich biscuit dough twice as thick as pie crust. Make several openings in it and bake 45 minutes. The filling may be made same as cherry pie recipe given, allowing for three cups of pitted cherries, one egg, one tablespoonful of flour and one cup of sugar. Cover or less, according to the tartness of the cherries. Peach and apple cobbler are made the same.

CHERRY SHRUB.

Take a quart of very ripe stoned cherries and wash through a colander. Add these to a quart of water and a pound of sugar which have been boiled for five minutes. Also add the juice of a large lemon. Strain and set aside until cold. Partly freeze or serve with shaved ice. Some very nice combinations of fruits could be made here.

Are You Nervous?

Well, don't worry. Simply forget it. And try to get strong. Don't dilate on inherited nervousness. Such a physiological fact is not a thing to be ashamed of.

Rather one should set out to live it down and to recover.

Of course, there's something in heredity—diseases or what not.

The Sunday School Lesson

LESSON IV.—JULY 25, 1909.

Paul at Athens.—Act. 17: 16-34; Acts 17: 22-34.

Commentary.—I. Paul stirred because of the idolatry of Athens (vs. 16-21). Paul is in the famous city of Athens, the capital of the intellectual world, as Rome was of the political, and Jerusalem of the religious. While the apostle waited for the coming of Silas and Timothy, he employed his time, speaking in the synagogues to the Jews, and in the market places to those whom he met. The leaders in philosophy and religion became interested and had conversations with him about his religion. The Epicureans entirely denied a providence, and he said that the word was the effect of mere chance, asserting that the soul and body died together. The Stoics held that matter was eternal; that all things were governed by fate; that virtue was its own reward, and vice its own punishment. After discussing with these philosophers for a time, they requested Paul to leave the curious and thronging crowds of the market, and address them from the platform on the summit of the hill, called Areopagus, or Mars' hill, where were assembled the noblest of Athens, the first politicians, the first orators, the first philosophers.

II. Paul's address on Mars' Hill (vs. 22-31). Note three principal divisions to the sermon: 1. The relation of God to the world. 2. As Creator. 3. As Lord of heaven and earth. 4. As self-sufficient. 5. As the source of life and blessing. 6. The dignity and destiny of man. The doctrine of Christ and his salvation. The third division of the discourse was not finished. 22. Paul stood—Paul spoke in the open air, Mars' hill—"The Areopagus."—R. V. This hill was to the west of the Acropolis, and was the meeting place of the Athenian Council. To this hill of Mars the philosophers led St. Paul, that he might more conveniently address a larger audience. Cam. Bib. Yes, yes, yes, yes, yes. He was addressing men of high intellectual powers. Their city was the most renowned in the world for literature, art and philosophy. It had a world-wide reputation for military talent, learning, eloquence and culture, but was wrongly given to idolatry. Altars, shrines, statues, images of every shape and size crowded the streets, temples, squares and groves. The speech as here given must be only a brief outline of Paul's address. He no doubt spoke at some length, but what we have would not require three minutes in its delivery. I perceive—Paul had observed the important features of the city. Too superstitious—The expression used by the apostle was complimentary. Ye are "very religious."

23. Your devotions.—See R. V. The apostle had beheld their altars and works of art consecrated to religion. To an unknown god (R. V.)—That no deity might punish them for neglecting his worship, or rebuke them in asking for blessings, they not only erected altars to all the gods named or known among them, but, distrustful still lest they might not comprehend fully the extent of their subjection and dependence, they erected them also to any other god or power that might exist, although as yet unnamed in their hearts. "The human heart yearns for the living God, with whom it may commune. God is an unknown God to those who . . . live for the world and its lusts; who refuse to find him in Christ." Ignorantly worship—See R. V. The apostle does not intend to say that their worship was of an ignorant character, but that they offered it in ignorance. He declares I—"It was death for any private person to disturb the religion of the state by the introduction of any foreign god that had not been publicly recognized. But how admirably does Paul avail himself of the inscription on the altar! Who could accuse him of introducing anything new, when he only expounded to the Athenians the attributes of the God whom they had ignorantly dershipped?"—Lewin.

24.—God that made—While the apostle respected the rank and position of his hearers, yet he preached the truth without any hesitate to oppose their erroneous opinions. 1. There were not many gods, but one God. 2. The world did not come into existence by chance. 3. Fate did not control the affairs of life. Dwelleth not, etc.—In this Paul strongly opposed their idolatrous belief and practices. 25. As though he needed—The hearers brought food and drink and costly gifts to their idols. Paul contrasts their deities with God who is independent of his creatures and needs nothing. Prayer.

Our Father in heaven, we lift up our hearts in gratitude to Thee for all the manifold mercies wherewith Thou hast enriched and gladdened our lives. Surely we may say that the lines have fallen to us in pleasant places and ours is a goodly heritage. Thou hast blessed us in basket and in store. Thou hast given us strength to labor and skill to devise. Thou hast blessed the efforts of man so that the land is filled with bounty and there is prosperity on every hand. Let not the very abundance of Thy gifts prove a snare to us to blind us to Thee and to the deeper and holier things of life. May Thy great love, manifested to us on every hand, awaken in us a deeper love, and lead us to a fuller and more unreserved surrender of ourselves to Him who is the highest expression of

Controlled by God.
(By C. H. Wetherbe.)

Even some Christian people too frequently forget the great truth that God controls the affairs of this world. How many things that seem to us to be the result of human effort, are really the work of God's own time and way.

An ancient believer once asked: "Is anything too hard for God?" His faith grasped the truth that God is absolutely infinite in all respects. Who can conceive the greatness of God's power? He is vastly beyond the reach of human thought. It was this truth that animated the stalwart believers of Bible story. They forcefully believed that God controlled nations, as well as individuals. This is why they were so serene, so hopeful, so expectant amid all the threatenings and darksome dangers. It is why they confidently looked for deliverance from menacing armies, however much greater in numbers and in equipment they might be as compared with their own forces.

The men of faith saw Almighty God, and they were sure that His word was victory to His people, so long as they were true to Him. It was this sublime faith which Paul constantly exercised. He kept thought on the exceeding greatness of God, ever believing that He controlled all men and all things. Rest your heart in the thought of such a God. It will keep you from bad worrying and heart faintness.

Thou Shalt Know Hereafter.

God keeps a school for His children here on earth, and one of His best teachers is disappointment. His secret place, when you and I reach our Father's house we shall look back and see that the sharp-edged, rough-visaged teacher, disappointment, was one of the best guides to train us for it. He gave us hard lessons; he often used the rod; he often led us into thorny paths; he sometimes stripped off a load of luxuries; but that only made us travel the freer and the faster on our heavenly way. He sometimes led us down into the valley of the death shadow; but never did the promise read so sweet as when spelled out by the holy oil of faith in that very valley. Now where did he leave us so often, or teach us such sacred lessons, as at the cross of Christ. Dear old rough-headed teacher! We will build a monument to thee yet, and crown it with garlands, and inscribe it: "Blessed be the memory of disappointment!"

WOULD YOU CONVICT— ON CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE?

THE MONEY BEARER A TRUE STORY

"Ivan Broca, of St. Petersburg and Paris, at your service," he returned.

The Russian's Story.

"I ask if the house has a good name," said Upham, harking back to the question. "So far as I know there is no breath against it. Jonathan Bradford, who keeps it, has been known for years as a worthy man. Many of my friends who have business in this section stop here and have always been dealt with fairly. But who is to say that all are honest who come to this particular hotel?"

"Do not remind me further of my folly," said the foreigner, with a laugh. "I have already made up my mind that it was a thoughtless and childish thing to do. In truth, I have heard so much about the safety of travel in your land and the excellent protection of the police and the laws that I abandoned the care I would have exercised elsewhere when once I stepped upon your shores."

"You rate us too highly," said Cobwell. "There are thieves and villains enough in England to make one slow to carry such wealth as you do now."

"It is not so much," said the other, carelessly. "I had no time to exchange money for a letter of credit. But you are doubtless right. I will seek out a bank to-morrow."

"From what you say I judge this is your first visit to England," observed Upham, "though your way of speech does not bear it out."

"You are kind," answered Broca, "but this is indeed my first time across the Channel. You stare, but you must know that my mother was an Englishwoman. My father was French, and I have lived much of my life in Russia. It was so, perhaps, that I grew up to regard England as a place where none need fear for his person or possessions."

Cobwell noticed that the glasses had been drained and rapped on the table. The door into the rear room, where was the bar, opened quickly and Jonathan Bradford, the proprietor, appeared. A stout, well fed man, he bowed to the three suavely and took their orders. After a few more rounds to the accompaniment of a desultory conversation on general topics the Russian excused himself, saying that he must rise early next morning, bade the tradesmen good night and withdrew.

"A curious man," said Upham, as the door closed upon Broca. "What do you make of him?"

"He is either a great knave or a great fool," answered Cobwell, bluntly. "In fact, when I first saw him playing at building blocks with his gold I imagined that he was some sharper and that his intention was to inveigle us with some game or some tale of wondrous fortune."

"I think you are wrong. He made no attempt to draw us with the money. As to his being a fool, perhaps his explanation of being a stranger here will cover his recklessness. For the rest, he is pleasant and well mannered. I confess to a distinct liking for him, though there is a touch of mystery about him I cannot fathom. He said nothing of his present business or his destination."

"Probably the result of belated caution," was the dry answer, and there the matter rested between them. Soon afterward the two men retired to their room.

It was well past midnight when Upham found himself sharply and suddenly awakened. There was no light in the place and he lay for some moments collecting his thoughts and striving to determine what had disturbed him. His first, dim impression had been of fear and horror, but he was unable to discover its source. He could hear the steady breathing of Cobwell from the bed across the room.

Murdered in Bed.

Then, as if borne upon a palpable breath that stirred the hair on his head, came a faint sound as of a stifled moan. Sensible and sound minded man of affairs though he was, he yielded for a moment to the suggestion of the supernatural. But the chill lifted from him when the moan was repeated more distinctly. At first it might have come from any direction, but now he was able to place its source as behind the partition at the side of his bed. He rose quickly and strode over to Cobwell, shaking him by the shoulder.

"There is some one in pain," he whispered, "come." The younger man struck a match and lighted the candle. The moan was heard again and the two started for the door. Upham delayed for a moment to open his valise and take from it a loaded pistol. They flung open the door and paused for a moment on the threshold.

The hall showed dark before them, but ten feet toward the front of the house a door stood ajar and a thin pencil of light drew a sharp, bright line upon the floor and opposite wall. As they looked the ray widened suddenly and was as quickly obliterated. They had a confused impression of a vague, white figure that vanished toward the further end of the hall. It was gone and the single ray from the crack of the door once more shone as the only break in the picture. Another moaning sound hurried them forward, Upham with his pistol ready.

They pressed into the room together. The apartment, as was immediately evident, was the one adjoining their own. A candle with fading wick stood upon a table. There was but one bed and this was occupied by a figure wrapped in the bed clothes. Scattered garments and the contents of several valises covered the floor. Approaching the bed with dread and hesitation they saw the face upon the pillow was that of the Russian traveller, Ivan Broca.

Recovering from the feeling of awe that restrained him, Upham leaned over and drew back the coverlet. The man's breast and the sheets were drenched with blood. A wailing gash showed that his throat had been cut from ear to ear. As they stood, stricken with horror, the body shuddered slightly and was still. There were no more moans. The man was dead.

At the inquest next day Upham and Cobwell were submitted to a severe examination as to their relations with the Russian. They related, clearly and in detail, the manner in which they came to speak to him, the subsequent conversation and the discovery of the body. It was clear that the authorities of the town regarded their connection with the murder as being of the utmost importance and they were required to produce witnesses who could vouch for their standing and character. Cobwell was worried by the too evident desire to cast suspicion upon himself and his friend, and even Upham was not proof against the unpleasant suggestions thrown out. Having given their testimony they retired to the rear of the inn parlor, where the hearing was held, and here they were approached by a tall, elderly man of dignified demeanor. He introduced himself as Inspector Trumbull, of Scotland Yard.

"Just happened to be in the neighborhood," he said, in a friendly manner. "I was interested to observe the methods adopted by those in charge of this affair. They bothered you a bit, eh? Well, suppose you tell your story to me and you'll find me a better listener."

Encouraged by the impression of complete confidence in their own innocence which the detective managed to convey, the young men repeated their defined remembrance of a shifty eye and uneasiness of movement on the part of the inn keeper during his testimony at the inquest. Such might easily, of course, be the result of the scandal in which the worthy man's house had been involved, but Inspector Trumbull was alert to every possibility.

He went over all the articles of furniture, turned back the rugs and tapped the walls. He looked closely on the floor and bed clothes for stains. A chest of drawers and an iron bound box, which was not locked, were searched. Still he found no clue. He was about to proceed to the rooms of the maids when he returned to take a final look into a recess of the wall used for clothing and concealed by a curtain. In stepping back his foot struck a shoe, of which there were a number upon the floor of the closet. Stooping, he picked up the article to restore it to its place. Something rattled within it. He felt inside and drew out a short knife with a razor edge. It was covered, shaft and blade, with blood. The stains had scarcely dried.

Sure of being on the right trail now, the detective story in undertones. Under these happier conditions they were able to give a much more satisfactory and comprehensive account. When they came to that part of the narrative describing how they came to leave the room Upham, who was talking, mentioned the fleeting glimpse of a figure in the hall. Trumbull caught him up eagerly.

APPROACHING THE BED WITH DREAD AND HESITATION THEY SAW THE FACE UPON THE PILLOW WAS THAT OF THE RUSSIAN TRAVELER.

"You say you saw some one there?" "I saw something," said Upham doubtfully. "But it was gone in a flash. The shock of finding the body knocked it out of mind until just now."

Tracking the Crime.

"You did not include it in your testimony," said Trumbull, "but you need not be alarmed. It may be best so."

He questioned Cobwell, who also retained the picture of a swiftly opened door and a white figure. After that he heard them out in silence and then left them to make himself known to the authorities. Neither of the young men was named in the verdict, but they were informed that Trumbull would regard their continued presence in town as a favor and they stayed.

The first move of the detective was to inspect quietly and without ostentation the employees of the hotel and the visitors, all of whom had been detained. There were three maids and two men servants. The quarters for the hotel staff, he found, were on the upper floor, where was also the room occupied by Jonathan Bradford. Broca and the two tradesmen had slept on the third floor, the one below. He discovered that the stairs leading to the top floor were at the front of the house for the last flight.

Of the remaining rooms on the third floor forward from Broca's only one had been occupied on the preceding night. An elderly couple, a country banker and his wife had been its tenants. Eliminating them from his inquiry, there remained only the stairs to the upper floor as the point toward which the mysterious white figure seen coming from Broca's room had moved.

Trumbull chose an hour during the afternoon when, as he assured himself, Bradford and all the servants were below stairs. He mounted to the top floor and began his investigations. One large room at the front of the house, it was evident, was occupied by the two men, tapster and hostler. He went over its scant furnishings carefully but quickly, examining the mattress, the garments that hung from the walls and the flooring with observant and practised eye and searching hand. Finding nothing of value to his purpose he passed on through the two rooms in which Bradford and his wife lived.

If possible, he gave more care to his examination of these apartments, having in mind a certain well sought further evidence. He bethought himself of the night garments of the Bradfords and sought them. He found a woman's gown, but the other was missing. Once more he made a round of the rooms, then headed back into the closet again. Since one shoe had been so productive another might prove to be. After examining them all he found the garment he sought stuffed in one of a pair of high boots. The right sleeve was blood stained and the side where the wearer's knee might have pressed against a bed was also marked.

The One Puzzling Point.

But one point now remained to puzzle Trumbull. The leather pouch described by Upham and Cobwell had been found on the table of Broca's room, empty. The two men, although they had not seen the money closely, estimated that it must have held five hundred pounds, supposing the coins they saw to have been sovereigns. This made a heavy and a large amount to hide, but further searching in the rooms failed to reveal the slightest clue as to its disposition. The detective decided to delay arresting Bradford until the last possible moment in the hope of receiving some inadvertent hint as to the location of the treasure. Meanwhile he removed the knife and the night gown, fearing that the inn keeper would take the first opportunity to remove the proofs of his guilt.

On returning to the first floor Trumbull was informed by the local police officer in charge of the case that one of the maids had indicated that she had information of importance bearing on the murder. She had not been called at the inquest. Her revelations had been delayed in order that the Scotland Yard Inspector might be present. She was taken to a rear room in the presence of several of the authorities and asked to tell what she knew.

"After the house had been roused and the murder made known," she began, "I went back to my room. It must have been about two o'clock. I heard nothing, but felt moved in some strange way to look out of the window. It was dark, but there was a moon. The sky was clouded. After a while the clouds parted and the garden was lighted for a few minutes. Out under the big elm I saw what I took to be a man, digging. I only got a peep at him, for the clouds came back. No, I could not say who it was. It was a big man. No, I could not say that I put a name to him or that I thought it was any one I knew. I was afraid it was only a vision, like, and I went back to bed."

As the detective and others of the party passed out to the garden of the inn Trumbull hung back a moment and exchanged a few words with a constable. The man turned into the bar, where Bradford was dispensing in person, and took up his position near the door.

It was found that the sod near the foot of the tree had been disturbed, and, a mattock being obtained, men were set at work excavating at that point. News of the strange occupation of the authorities was quickly abroad about the place, crowded as it was with curious hangers on and idlers. The rumor reached the bar that "some one was digging in the garden." At the word Bradford dropped a glass he held and stepped hastily to a window overlooking the proceedings outside. With the one glance he turned and made for the door. The constable stopped him. The inn keeper's face turned to a horrible blue mask of hate and fear. He raised his powerful arm to strike, but found himself confronted by a revolver and fell back. In another moment he had been overpowered by officers, handcuffed and locked in the pantry.

Trumbull heard the report of Bradford's arrest just as the men who were digging uncovered a slab of wood. This proved to be the cover of a small, solid box, which was quickly lifted out and placed upon the grass. The detective untied a cord with which it was fastened and threw back the lid. The receptacle was half full of new, bright sovereigns.

The Scotland Yard man went over the case with the local authorities and placed them in possession of his facts and his evidence. The story he constructed was simple and clear. Bradford had seen Broca counting the gold through the partly opened door into the bar and probably had listened to the conversation with Upham and Cobwell. Both the young men recalled the promptness with which he answered to the latter's call for drinks. The inn keeper had entered the room of the Russian, cut his throat, taken the gold and returned to his room up stairs. Later, when the alarm had been given and all was confusion in the hotel, he had slipped out and buried the treasure. It was likely that he had prepared the pit for it earlier in the evening, certain of his success in carrying out the crime.

All Counterfeit Coin.

During the conversation among the officials concerned Upham and Cobwell were present to fortify each point in the matter with which they were connected. Cobwell was standing near the table on which the box containing the money had been placed. While Trumbull talked the young draper picked up one of the coins and studied it curiously. Just as the little ceremony was closing he ventured an interruption.

"If you'll pardon me for posing as an expert, which I am surely not," he said, "I'll merely make the assertion that this coin is counterfeit."

All the members of the group moved in about him at this startling announcement and each examined one of the sovereigns for himself.

"It cannot be that all are counterfeits," said Trumbull in amazement.

"And yet they are," answered Cobwell. "The best counterfeits I have ever seen, heavy, well stamped and right to the touch, but still worthless."

The officials after careful scrutiny were forced to admit that the Londoner was right. There was not a sound coin in the collection. The proceeds of the four murders were to be valued at so much brass. The detective's keen mind moved ahead on the new scent.

"I imagine that the government, gentlemen, would like very much to know more about the previous history of the unfortunate young Russian, Ivan Broca, of St. Petersburg and Paris."

In fact, during the interval preceding the trial the full machinery of Scotland Yard was set to revolving about the identity of the victim. It was learned that he had crossed to Dover but a week before and had journeyed by slow stages to Bradford's inn. No confederates could be found nor was it discoverable that he had had communication with any one since landing. At Calais the Continental travel stopped abruptly. The police of no city in Europe had ever heard of Ivan Broca. Neither did they know of a counterfeiter answering his description. Nor was any one of his description missing or wanted for any crime whatsoever. The most persistent effort failed to get back to the simple, ascertainable facts that a young man carrying more than five hundred counterfeit sovereigns had been murdered.

In this amazing situation the course of justice as relating to Jonathan Bradford played but a minor part and the criminal proceedings attracted slight attention as compared with the mystery. The inn keeper made a stout and sullen defence and was convicted in short order on the case prepared by Trumbull. He was duly sentenced and executed.

It so chanced that the two tradesmen, Upham and Cobwell, were together in the town where they had been actors in this tragedy nearly two years later, staying at another hotel this time, for Bradford's had been closed and deserted since his death. The papers contained an account one day of the confession of a notorious criminal, doing in a London jail. He said that he was the murderer of Ivan Broca and that Bradford had been innocent.

According to his statement he had seen Broca in a hotel in Dover, where he had displayed some gold, and had followed him to the town in question. He had determined to kill him here and, obtaining access to the inn, had hidden himself in one of the empty rooms on the same floor with the Russian. He had stolen into Broca's room at night, cut his throat and obtained the money. While transferring it to a bag he had found that it was counterfeit. Alarmed at a noise overhead he had fled, leaving the coin on the table and means of a rope.

The two friends read this account of the affair incredulously, recalling the many absolute proofs of Bradford's guilt. They continued the discussion into the evening, when they took dinner with a clergyman of the place. Their host heard them in silence until after the meal, when he revealed the explanation as to Bradford.

"I attended Jonathan Bradford to the end," said the reverend gentleman, "and I have since been accepting some confession as has just been published. The inn keeper was innocent, not as to intention but as to fact. He told me the truth before he went to the gallows."

"It is true that he planned to kill the Russian. Having seen Broca count the coin through a crack in the door, he became, at that moment, a bloody minded criminal. Knife in hand he crept to the young man's room that night. He was surprised to find a light in the apartment and more so to see the 'gold' spread out upon the table. His resolution still held, however, and he set out to the bed. Turning back the coverlet and lifting his weapon to strike he was stricken with fear and terror to observe that he had been the second to plan the act that night. In his emotion he dropped his knife, which became stained. His gown also was marked when he recovered the telltale weapon. He summoned courage, before creeping back upstairs to sweep the 'gold' into the sack of his garment, and later in the night he buried it. The missing facts in his narrative have now been supplied."

The clergyman's hearers heard the completion of the astounding story in silence, each forced to admit to himself that every objection to its truthfulness had been answered. It was Upham who spoke first.

"Aye," he said, "that serves to show us that Jonathan Bradford was innocent before the law and that justice erred. But it goes no further toward solving the strangest question of all in this strange business. Who was Ivan Broca?"

And the others were forced to admit that it did not.

MARK BELL, one of the best known lawyers of the country, who has served sixteen terms as president of the Medico-Legal Society, says:—"All evidence has been for centuries classed as either direct or circumstantial. By direct evidence we mean that testified to by witnesses or established by documents or writing; and, generally speaking, the term circumstantial evidence might be properly applied to all other forms of evidence. The courts in the past have regarded direct and circumstantial evidence upon the same footing as regards admissibility. But circumstantial evidence, whether conclusive or presumptive, is, in its nature, as original as direct evidence acting along separate lines, fully independent of each other."

"Direct evidence has sometimes been supposed to be superior to circumstantial evidence, but oftentimes a chain of presumptive evidence has a very decided advantage over the direct testimony of a limited number of witnesses. 'It has been well said in comparing direct evidence with circumstantial evidence that, while facts do not lie, their narrator certainly may and often does; and, further, that our inferences from facts may be false, and that affirmative action must follow mental certitude, based on the only evidence possible in the nature of the case, or the law must refuse to act. In the case of direct evidence, if the facts testified to be true, the ultimate proposition is established, while in the case of circumstantial evidence the facts testified to may be entirely accurate, and the consequent inference, which established the proposition in issue, be utterly fallacious."

"In my opinion circumstantial evidence has in many instances a value and cogency peculiar to itself and fully equal, if not superior, to direct evidence. For example, direct evidence is subject to fabrication and improper motive, and, where many witnesses concur, it is largely cumulative, while, on the other hand, the necessary correlation of facts under the conditions of the time, place, environment and causation renders a successful fabrication of circumstantial evidence an exceedingly difficult proposition."

"But we must take care on this side of the question to consider that it may be fairly said that facts apparently remote and isolated may, by unexpected and oftentimes accidental irrelevancy or by accurate adjustment of outside occurrences, give to circumstantial evidence a force far in excess of its intrinsic value. This teaches us that we should be very careful not to convict of capital crimes on circumstantial evidence alone; but circumstantial evidence, if complete, is often more reliable evidence than direct evidence itself."

"The courts have held that circumstantial evidence is equally trustworthy with direct evidence. Chief Justice Steven, of the Supreme Bench of England, was of the opinion, and right in his suggestion, that these distinctions between direct and circumstantial evidence should be abandoned."

THE two young tradesmen had observed the well dressed stranger, apparently a traveller like themselves, with uneasy interest since he had taken a seat at a table near their own.

Aside from evidences of wealth and distinction which he bore on his person he offered more unusual attraction to a vagrant attention from his immediate occupation. He had unstrapped a leather pouch which he had carried into the room and had taken therefrom a large quantity of gold coin. This he was now engaged in counting with care and method.

After watching this remarkable performance for some minutes in silence, during which time they exchanged inquiring glances, the two young men exchanged a few words in an undertone. The elder then turned to the stranger with a polite apology for intrusion.

"I hope you will believe that I have no motive but casual friendliness," he said, "but it is clear to my friend and myself that you are exposing yourself to an unnecessary risk in your show of so much money. We recognize, of course, that it is none of our business."

The man addressed looked up from his glittering piles with an expression half startled, half smiling. From his answer it was apparent that he was a foreigner, probably a Russian, though he spoke correct English.

"I had not thought of that," he said pleasantly. "Is it then unsafe in these parts?"

"Not unsafe, perhaps," returned the other, smiling in his turn at the naive question, "but it may be said with truth that no place where men meet and live is safe when criminals may be tempted by the tangible display of large sums."

"True. It was unwise of me," returned the stranger soberly. He swept the money into a pouch, strapped it tight and slipped it under his coat.

"Perhaps you can tell me whether or not this house bears a good name," he added, not unwilling to continue the conversation with men of such clear honesty and good will as his chance companions. "I am no coward, but you have convinced me that I have been foolish. In fact I had quite forgotten where I was when I set out to straighten a tangle in my accounts."

The tradesmen found the stranger a most likable fellow, with a frank and engaging manner and a simplicity that astonished while it charmed them. He was under thirty years of age, well proportioned and garbed as might become a prosperous member of a profession or a man of leisure. At his invitation they left their table and joined him. The elder, still under the constraint of his well meaning interference, introduced himself and his comrade with a touch of formality that might serve to offset any suggestion of boldness.

"This is Richard Cobwell, younger member of a well known firm of London drapers," he said. "I am Henry Upham, engaged in the lumber trade in Liverpool."

The stranger bowed affably and shook hands with each.

This is the Coupon—It is Worth 10 cents to You
Only One Cake Free to a Family

Taylor's Infants' Delight

Toilet soap should do just two things—remove the dirt and nourish the skin. Let us then show you how we have blended both qualities into a single cake.

For in 43 years we have learned the secret of perfect soap—one that leaves the skin as soft and pink as an infant's. So we call it Infants' Delight.

The olive oil in this soap comes from the gardens of France. There we pay the highest prices—often double what we might pay. But our oil is pure enough to use on your table.

Then we bring coconut oil over 12,000 miles from the isle of Ceylon. This oil has for centuries kept the Egyptian's skin soft and beautiful in spite of the tropical sun.

Please use a single cake—then let the results decide for the future.

See for yourself how it lathers into a rich, creamy foam. Note how it wears as thin as a wafer—how it leaves the skin as soft as velvet and as smooth as silk.

Besides this it is the loveliest soap for the baby's skin. And if it is best for the sensitive, pink skin of an infant, it surely is best for your own.

You will like the dainty perfume, too. We pay over $100 a pound for pure Otto of

Roses, but it requires 3,000 pounds of rose leaves to make a single ounce. The fragrance is simply exquisite, for it is only the scent

of roses—the breath of a

flowers.

Taylor's Borax Soap

Here again is a soap different in every way from the ordinary—it contains borax. Where other soaps merely cleanse, this goes further—it whitens and purifies. The effect of the borax is almost magical—it is the most wonderful soap ever made for the laundry.

In this soap we use only the finest grade of coconut oil, for it lathers with greatest abundance. Then we mix in the borax which softens the water and also softens the hands.

Soft water is pure, but hard water contains mineral matters which prevent the soap from lathering. Borax makes the hardest water as soft as rain water, so you require only half the amount of soap.

It cleans the daintiest of laces as well as the heaviest of woollens—and it prevents shrinkage of both. Every odor is removed and the cloth is pure and sweet. This soap also prevents starch from sticking, and adds greatly to the stiffness.

It sterilizes and destroys every germ, so as to avoid any possibility of contagion. Send a bar to the laundry and protect the health of your family.

This powerful cleanser is utterly harmless to the hands—it leaves them whiter and softer than before.

It requires twenty-one days to make a single cake. The labor of more than 200 persons is needed. Yet this wonderful soap costs no more than the ordinary. Simply because we make every year millions of cakes—we can buy at the lowest prices and give you the highest quality.

Don't Wait—

Cut Out the Coupon This Minute

We ask you to do us a favor—we want you to learn for your own interests the difference between these soaps and the ordinary. You have been using some soaps in the past and you naturally consider them good.

But now we ask that you compare them with these—try them both and note how vastly they differ. We gladly invite the comparison because we have made it ourselves and we know just what must be the result.

But it would be unfair to ask you to bear the expense of the test so we have made you this generous offer. We only ask that you buy one soap and we'll buy the other. Cut out the coupon on this page and take it to your dealer this week. Pay him only 5 cents and you will then receive both cakes worth 15 cents.

BELL PHONES

Consolidating the Companies Under
One Head in the States.

Pittsburg, July 23.—Absolute control of the Central District & Pittsburg Telegraph Company, the local Bell telephone concern, is to pass into the hands of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., according to an official announcement last night. The directors of the local company have voted unanimously to accept the offer of the latter concern to exchange fifteen shares of its stock for sixteen shares of Central District & Pittsburg Telegraph Company stock. This is on the basis of $135 for the local company's stock and $144 for that of the American company.

In discussing the deal M. H. Buehler, general manager of the Bell Telephone Co., said last night:

"This is the fourth deal in a movement which will eventually extend over the entire country. The local deal has been pending for some time, and is but a part of a movement on the part of the American Telegraph & Telephone Co. to consolidate all the Bell companies in the United States under one head."

HIS EXCELLENCY BACK.

Governor-General Was Met by Sir Wilfrid Laurier at Quebec.

Quebec, July 23.—His Excellency, the Governor-General, arrived at 10 o'clock this morning on board the R. M. S. Empress of Ireland. He was met at the landing by Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and His Honor the Lieut.-Governor, Sir Alphonse Peltier. The Excellency, after shaking hands with the distinguished people at the landing, was driven to the Vice-Regal quarters at the Citadel. He left at 2 o'clock for Ottawa.

BRIAND'S JOB.

New Premier Meets With Difficulty in Forming Cabinet.

Paris, July 23.—Aristide Briand, who was summoned to the Elysee Palace last night and charged with the task of forming a Cabinet to succeed the Clemenceau Ministry, which resigned early this week, is encountering difficulty, but while his success yesterday was problematic, a definite decision is expected to-night.

In the event of M. Briand's failure further efforts probably will be made to induce Leon Bourgeois, the former Premier and Foreign Minister, to accept the Premiership, as otherwise the situation will become very complicated.

M. Briand had a long conference today with Raymond Poincare, the former Minister of Finance, which created the possible presumption that he is to succeed M. Cailleux, who is understood to be somewhat disgruntled.

TRIED TO KISS JULIA

Policeman Saves 'Em From North
River; John's Ball $500.

New York, July 23.—John Force and Julia Burns were seated on the string piece in the North River at the foot of Twenty-Sixth street, watching the swirl of the tide below them. John grabbed Julia around the waist, and then a policeman was aroused by a double splash.

The policeman ran to the pier and found John trying to keep frightened Julia's head above water, so he jumped in to help, and the joint efforts of John and the patrolman finally landed Julia on the pier.

Julia insisted on John's arrest on a charge of assault, declaring that John had tried to kiss her.

An unfeeling Magistrate ordered John to appear for trial, and put him under $500 bail.

KING BALKED BY PREMIER.

Maura Wouldn't Let Alfonso Have His Own Way.

Real Facts Concerning Degrading of Prince Alfonso.

Monarch Had Favored His Marriage to Beatrice of Saxe-Cobourg.

Paris, July 23.—The details surrounding the romantic marriage of Prince Alfonso of Bourbon-Orleans to Princess Beatrice of Saxe-Coburg...

They reveal the fact that King Alfonso, instead of refusing his consent to the marriage, as was reported by Madrid despatches...

This story was obtained from the prince's own lips by friends a few days ago in Munich...

Prince Alfonso and Princess Beatrice first met on the occasion of King Alfonso's marriage to Princess Ena of Battenberg in 1906...

Both the Queen and the Queen mother espoused the prince's cause and sought to induce Beatrice to relent...

Later, at La Granja, King Alfonso, formally asked the hand of Princess Beatrice for his cousin...

"I give you my word of honor there will not be the slightest difficulty."

The prince then again proposed and was accepted.

Premier Maura said the marriage of an infant of Spain to a Protestant could not take place on account of the difficulties it would cause the government.

Princess Beatrice, because of her friendship for Queen Victoria, said she would give up the prince...

King Alfonso declared his giving of official consent to the marriage without the approval of his ministers...

Princess Beatrice then departed from Madrid, and Prince Alfonso, upon the advice of the King...

When the prince was graduated from the military school at Toledo on July 12th, he immediately volunteered to go to the front...

The prince again has wired King Alfonso, asking to be allowed to go to the front...

Princess Beatrice, upon the receipt of a telegraphic despatch from the bishop of Bamberg...

The prince, in concluding his story to his friends, said:

"Maura, the head of the Clerical party in Spain and because he holds a majority in Parliament...

DON'T NEED LAW

Going to Eurore to "Get" Slayer of Brother-in-Law.

Alabama Man Going to Take the Law Into His Own Hands.

New York, July 23.—"I am after the murderer of my brother-in-law," said G. H. Janney, a broker of Montgomery, Ala., as he stood on the deck of the Campanio just before she sailed to-day.

"I have located him in Europe and I'm going to get him. I don't need the aid of the law in this case."

Mr. Janney was nervous, but seemed determined. He had come from Danville, Va. as soon as he had received a tip on the hiding place of his victim.

He said that a year ago his brother-in-law, P. H. Spencer, had made preparations to go away for the summer, with his family from his home in Danville. Janney was to take care of the home in the absence of the family.

But in some way he got a premonition that restrained him, and he did not go to Danville. That made it necessary for Spencer himself to remain at home. He sent the family off, and remained alone in the house.

One night, as he was half awake, his arm brushed against something on the bed. He thought it was a cat, but in a second realized that it was the cold sleeve of a man.

He grabbed the man's wrist, but the intruder reached under Spencer's pillow and getting out his gun shot Spencer. In the morning it was found that a few articles of little value had been taken, but that others of great value were not touched.

"That was to give the appearance of a burglary," said Mr. Janney. "The man who killed Spencer wanted to make the public believe that Spencer was the victim of a thief. My brother-in-law lived long enough to tell his story, and the theory of a burglary was accepted."

"I discovered later that it was not a burglar, but a business enemy of Spencer, who killed him. The man learned that I suspected him, and disappeared. He had not been heard from for a long time till I got the tip. Now I am going to Europe to get him."

NEW RELIGION.

Dr. Eliot Foresees a Creedless Faith Coming.

No Intermediary With God and No Promise of Reward.

Cambridge, Mass., July 23.—Charles W. Eliot, former president of Harvard, prophesied the advent of a new religion in an address before the Harvard summer school of theology yesterday.

"It will not be bound by dogma or creed," he said. "Its workings will be simple, but its field of action limitless. Its discipline will be the training in the development of co-operative good will. It will attack all forms of evil. There will be no supernatural element; it will place no reliance on anything but the laws of Nature. Prevention will be the watchword and a skilled surgeon one of its members."

"There will be no personification of natural objects; there will be no deification of remarkable human beings. The new religion will not teach that character can be changed quickly."

"It will not deal chiefly with sorrow and death, but with joy and life. God will be so imminent that no intermediary will be needed. Its priests will strive to improve social and industrial conditions. The new religion will not attempt to reconcile people to present ills by the promise of future compensation."

SOLDIERS' BONES.

Skeletons Being Collected by Japanese to Make Powder.

St. Petersburg, July 23.—The irony of fate, writes the Vladivostok correspondent of the St. Petersburg Novoe Vremya, was never better illustrated than by certain facts that have just come to my knowledge.

A committee has been formed recently in the Russian capital under the presidency of the Grand Duchess Olga Alexandrovna, with the object of keeping the soldiers' graves in the Far East in proper repair.

Monuments have already been erected on certain battlefields, the Japanese having taken the laudable initiative at Port Arthur and on the Island of Okinawa.

But lately there has sprung up in Japan a great demand for carbonized bones, which it is understood serves as a basis for a newly invented explosive of tremendous power.

Japanese agents are swarming all over Manchuria and congregate on the spots where battles have raged most fiercely to procure the raw material. The Chinese, of course, dare not touch Japanese graves and carefully avoid them, but at Ben-hu station, on the Mukden-Shaho line, immense heaps of Russian soldiers' bones, mixed with horse skeletons, can be seen.

The dealers, it is added, leave the skulls alone, but pay on the average a yen, or half a dollar, per 100 tain (140 pounds) of mixed bones. A horrible thought, the correspondent observes, that the bones of the conquered may be made to serve as a means of destroying their brothers and sons!

A reader of the paper says this is not the first instance of soldiers' remains being thus desecrated. He recalls that within four years of the Battle of Plevna, which was fought in 1877 between the Russians and the Turks, 6,000 hundredweight of soldiers' bones were dug up on the battlefield and shipped to serve as artificial manure.

CORK LEGS.

As Life Preservers They Saved Cripple From Drowning.

Galveston, Texas, July 23.—William Davies, of Groveton, Texas, a legless man, 89 years old, furnished the most thrilling experience of any of the storm victims so far recorded. He was a guest at the Tarpon Fishing Pier, located on the north jetty, six miles from Galveston, in the gulf, and with others was thrown into the sea when the big building was demolished by the hurricane.

Before the building collapsed Davies discarded his two cork legs and catching some of the debris was carried seaward on the storm tide about 15 miles.

He was washed time and again from the raft. "It finally broke up, and he was sent adrift in the gulf. Searching about for debris to catch on to he was accustomed to see his cork legs floating with the current, and grabbed them."

With these supports under his arms he swam back into the bay and was carried by the tides into Galveston upper bay, 30 miles from where the pier collapsed, and was picked up by a boat. He was in the water 30 hours.
