CHAPTER XVI.
Perplexity.

'Theodosy has been to see us, and though, in my way of thinkin', she ain't as handsome as Margaret, she looks as well as the generality of women. I liked her, too, and as soon as the men's winter clothes is off my hands, I calkerlate to have a quiltin', and finish up another bed-quilt to send her, for, man-like Geo. has furnished up his rooms with all sorts of nicknacks, and got only two blankets and two Marsales spreads for his bed. So I've sent 'em down the herrin'-bone and risin' sun quilts for every-day wear, as I don't believe in usin' your best things all the time. My old man says I'd better let 'em alone; but he's got some queer ideas, thinks you'll sniff your nose at my letter, and all that, but I've got more charity for folks, and well I might have, bein' that's my name.

CHARITY DOUGLAS."

To this letter were appended three different postscripts. In the first Madam Conway and Maggie were cordially invited to visit Charlton again; in the second Betsey Jane sent her regrets; while in the third Madam Conway was particularly requested to excuse haste and a bad pen.

'Disgusting creature!' was Madam Conway's exclamation, as she finished reading the letter; then, tossing it into the fire, she took up another one, which had come by the same mail and was from Theo herself.

After dwelling at length upon the numerous call she made, the parties she attended, the compliments she received, and her curiosity to know why her grandmother came back that day, she spoke of her recent visit in Charlton.

"You have been there, it seems," she wrote, "so I need not particularize, though I know how shocked and disappointed you must have been; and I think it very kind in you not to have said anything upon the subject, except that you called there, for George reads all my letters, and I would not have his feelings hurt. He had prepared me in a measure for the visit, but the reality was even worse than I anticipated. And, still they are the kindest-hearted people in the world, while Mr. Douglas is a man, they say, of excellent sense. George never lived at home much, and their heathenish ways mortify him. I know, though he never says a word, except that they are his parents.

"People here respect George, too, quite as much as if he were a Conway, and I sometimes think they like him all the better for being so kind to his old father, who comes frequently to the store. Grandma, I begin to think differently of some things from what I did. Birth and blood do not make much difference in this country, at least; and still I must acknowledge that I should feel dreadfully if I did not love George and know that he is the kindest husband in the world."

The letter closed with a playful insinuation that as Henry Warner had

Sluggish Liver Action

Causes indigestion, constipation and bilious headache—Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills the cure.

"Sluggish liver has been my trouble," writes Mrs. I. P. Smith, Paris, Ont., "and I have been greatly benefited by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I have taken medicines from several good doctors, but none ever did me the same amount of good as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I could not keep up and do my work if I did not use these pills when the bilious spells come on, and I have recommended them to many."

"Dr. Chase's medicines were about the only kind that came into my father's house 40 or 50 years ago, and they were always satisfactory." Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are prompt, definite and direct in their action on the liver, kidneys and bowels, and are therefore the most effective treatment obtainable for biliousness, indigestion and constipation. 25 cents a box, 4 for $1.00, at all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Dear Sirs,—I have found Zam-Buk most reliable for healing cuts and abrasions; while for the relief of skin irritation it is invaluable.

How Zam-Buk Cures Burns.

Stoker Kingsnorth, of H.M. First Class Cruiser "Cochrane," says: "One day I fell with my arm on an exhaust steam pipe, which fairly frizzled the skin. At once the ship's surgeon dressed my arm, but from the first, the burns took the wrong way, owing to a lot of coal dust and dirt from the pipe having got embedded in the flesh and setting up blood-poison.

"For weeks I remained under treatment, but the ordinary ointments proved no good for my arm. Indeed, I got worse, and I became alarmed at the spreading of the poison. I therefore obtained a supply of Zam-Buk and almost as soon as this was applied I got ease. From the very first application, healing commenced; and a few boxes of Zam-Buk healed my wound completely."

Zam-Buk is just as good for piles, blood-poison, festering sores, pimples, eruptions, cuts, bruises, and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c. box all druggists and stores, or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Try Zam-Buk Soap, 50c. tablet.

gone, Maggie might possibly marry Arthur Carrollton, and so make amends for the disgrace which Theo had unwittingly brought upon the Conway line.

For a long time after finishing the above, Madam Conway sat rapt in thought. Could it be possible that during all her life she had labored under a mistake? Were birth and family rank really of no consequence? Was George just as worthy of respect as if he had descended directly from the Scottish race of Douglas, instead of belonging to that vulgar woman? "It may be so in America," she sighed, "but it is not true of England," and sincerely hoping that Theo's remark concerning Mr. Carrollton might prove true, she laid aside the letter, and for the remainder of the day busied herself with preparations for the return of Arthur Carrollton, who had written that he should be with them on the first of December.

The day came, and, unusually excited, Maggie flitted from room to room, seeing that everything was in order, wondering how he would meet her, and if he had forgiven her for having been so cross at their last interview in the woods. The effect of every suitable dress in her wardrobe was tried, and she decided at last upon a crimson and black mering, which harmonized well with her dark eyes and hair. The dress was singularly becoming, and, feeling quite well satisfied with the face and form reflected by her mirror, she descended to the parlor, where any doubts she might have had concerning her personal appearance were put to flight by Anna Jeffrey, who, with a feeling of envy, asked "if she had the scarlet fever!" referring to her bright color, and saying, "she did not think too red a face becoming to any one, particularly to Margaret, to whom it gave a blowy look, such as she had more than once heard Mr. Carrollton say he did not like to see!"

Margaret knew well that the dark-browed girl would give almost anything for the roses blooming on her cheeks; so she made no reply, but simply wished Anna would return to England, as for the last two months she had talked of doing. It was not quite dark, and Mr. Carrollton, if he came that night, would be with them soon. The car whistle had sounded some time before, and Maggie's quick ear caught at last the noise of the bells in the distance. Nearer and nearer they came; the sleigh was at the door, and, forgetting everything but her own happiness, Maggie ran out to meet their guest, nor turned her glowing face away when he stooped down to kiss her. He had forgiven her ill-nature, she was certain of that, and very joyfully she led the way to the parlor, where, as the full light of the lamp fell upon him, she started involuntarily, he seemed so changed.

"Are you sick?" she asked, and her voice expressed the deep anxiety she felt.

Forcing back a slight cough and smiling down upon her, he answered, cheerfully: "Oh, no, not sick. Canada air does not agree with me; that's all. I took a severe cold soon after my arrival in Montreal; and the cough he had attempted to stifle now burst forth, sounding to Maggie, who thought only of consumption, like an echo from the grave.

"Oh, I am so sorry," she answered, sadly, and her eyes filled with tears, which she did not try to conceal, for, looking through the window across the snow-clad field on which the winter moon was shining, she saw instinctively another grave beside that of her mother.

Madam Conway had not yet appeared, and as Anna Jeffrey just then left the room Mr. Carrollton was for some moments alone with Maggie. Winding his arm around her waist, and giving her a most expressive look, he said: "Maggie, are those tears for me?"

Instantly the bright blushes stole over Maggie's face and neck, for she remembered the time when once before he had asked her a similar question. Not now, as then, did she turn from him away, but she answered frankly: "Yes, they are. You look so pale and thin, I'm sure you must be very ill."

Whether Mr. Carrollton liked blowy complexions or not, he certainly admired Maggie's at that moment, and, drawing her closer to his side, he said, half playfully, half earnestly: "To see you thus anxious for me, Maggie, more than atones for your waywardness when last we parted. You are forgiven, but you are unnecessarily alarmed. I shall be better soon. Hillsdale air will do me good, and I intend remaining here until I am well again. Will you nurse me, Maggie, just as my sister Helen would do, were she here?"

The right cord was touched, and all the soft, womanly qualities of Maggie Miller's nature were called forth by Arthur Carrollton's falling health. For several weeks after his arrival at Hillsdale he was a confirmed invalid, lying all day upon the sofa in the parlor, while Maggie read to him from books which he selected, partly for the purpose of amusing himself, and more for the sake of benefiting her and improving her taste for literature. At other times he would tell her of his home beyond the sea, and Maggie, listening to him while he described its airy halls, its noble parks, its shaded walks and musical fountains, would sometimes wish aloud that she might one day see that spot which seemed to her so much like paradise. He wished so, too, and oftentimes when, with half-closed eyes, his mind was wandering amid the scenes of his youth, he saw at his side a queenly figure with features like those of Maggie Miller, who each day was stealing more and more into his heart, where love for other than his nearest friends had never before found entrance. She had many faults, he knew, but these he possessed both the will and the power to correct, and as day after day she sat reading at his side, he watch-of her bright, animated face, thinking what a splendid woman she would make, and wondering if an American rose like her would bear transplanting to English soil.

Very complacently Madam Conway looked on, reading aright the admiration which Arthur Carrollton evinced for Margaret, who in turn was far from being uninterested in him. Anna Jeffrey, too, watched them jealously, pondering in her own mind some means by which she could, if possible, annoy Margaret. Had she known how far matters had gone with Henry Warner, she would unhesitatingly have told it to Arthur Carrollton; but so quietly had the affair been managed that she knew comparatively but little. This little, however, she determined to tell him, together with any embellishments she might see fit to use. Accordingly, one afternoon, when he had been there two months or more, and Maggie had gone with her grandmother to ride, she went down to the parlor under the pretense of getting a book to read. He was much better now, but, feeling somewhat fatigued from a walk he had taken in the yard, he was reclining upon a sofa. Leaning over the rocking-chair which stood near by, Anna inquired for his health, and then asked how long since he had heard from home.

He liked to talk of England, and as there was nothing to him particularly disagreeable in Anna Jeffrey, he bade her be seated. Very willingly she complied with his request, and after talking awhile of England, announced her intention of returning home the last of March. "My aunt prefers remaining with Madam Conway, but I don't like America," she said, "and I often wonder why I am here."

THE WOMAN—THE PURCHASING POWER IN THE FIRM OF MAT-RIMONY.

You Women of Newfoundland do the buying of ninety per cent of the food, clothing and home furnishings used by yourselves and your families. So, practically speaking, your men are the Earning Partners and you are the Purchasing Partners in the Firm of Matrimony. Your budget for these three expenditures alone runs millions of dollars a year.

Now the success of any firm, whether it be engaged in the business of Boots and Shoes or of Matrimony depends not upon the earnings, but upon the spendings of that firm—not from the income, but upon the outlay. So, absolutely, the success of your matrimonial venture depends upon you, the Purchasing Partner of that firm.

If this is true, the question is how to go about it to make your business a success. And the answer is, like any of the other successful purchasing agents of successful business firms all over the Island.

They keep in touch with the price lists and the quality of every commodity they buy. You must do the same. Their price lists come to them in advertising form. So do yours. They watch every advantage and try to buy when the market is low. So must you. You must be even more wide-awake than they. Only their position depends upon their success. Upon your success depends your happiness.

Now, how to go about it.

Take the advertising in this paper to-day and every day. This is your market report. When silks are down, buy silks. When you find a good sale of shoes, buy shoes. Make up your weekly or monthly budget of money to be spent the same as any purchasing agent does and do not fritter it away.

Concentrate that money upon goods advertised in this paper. Concentration is the first rule of success. If any merchant is overlooking the immense buying power of your thousands of readers of this paper, you need have no hesitancy in overlooking him. He is not shrewd.

When you have done all your buying through the advertising news columns of this paper for thirty days, you will never go back to the old haphazard method again.

Turn to your advertising now. Begin the new plan to-day. All the lowest prices and all the highest standards of quality are advertised here. This is your market report. Money and happiness are both to be saved in this way.

The Taft-Roosevelt Controversy Discussed in the Commons.

Special to Evening Telegram.
LONDON, May 6.

The process of smoking-out alleged conspirators, who are charged by their political opponents with treason in connection with President Taft's Reciprocity plans, was inaugurated in the Commons this afternoon by Benn and Croft, Unionist members, who piled Premier Asquith with questions in regard to the published correspondence between Taft and Roosevelt in the course of which Taft referred to reciprocity as likely to make Canada an adjunct of the States. Premier Asquith, who showed resentment of the attack, sharply repudiated the reflection cast upon Ambassador Bryce, and said that he had in no way influenced the views of the late Canadian Government. The correspondence between Taft and Roosevelt was private, and Mr. Bryce could not have had any knowledge whatever of it. A total of eleven questions bearing on the same points was fired at the Premier, who made a general reply. He said: "I have seen extracts from the correspondence which appears to have passed between President Taft and Colonel Roosevelt as published in the press. I have no further knowledge of them than that, as the correspondence was private, it was obvious the British Ambassador could not have had any knowledge of its contents, and therefore could not have communicated them to the British Government. There is nothing in the correspondence, so far as we are concerned, to affect the relations between the Imperial and Canadian Governments as to what is to the mutual-advantage of Britain and Canada. The question of what is most to the advantage of Canada is primarily one for the Canadian Government. I must in view of these questions take the opportunity of repudiating emphatically the reflections cast on Ambassador Bryce and contained in them. Mr. Bryce had nothing to do with the views or policy of the Canadian Government. Negotiations were initiated and carried on by Canada. The British Ambassador, in pursuance of his plain duty, saw W. S. Fielding, then Finance Minister, from time to time during the Conference at Washington, in order to learn anything that might be useful for him to know. He did not interfere with the conference, but, if asked for advice, gave it, and all British subjects engaged in legitimate business are entitled to receive advice from a British Ambassador. For Mr. Bryce to have interfered with the negotiations going on at Washington, upon matters which were within Canada's own competence, would have been naturally resented by Canada generally. There has been no difference of opinion in the Dominion about that, whatever may be the difference between Canadians themselves regarding reciprocity. The manner in which Mr. Bryce performed his duties has been of great advantage in inspiring Canada with confidence in the British Ambassador at Washington, who will always be prepared to support the present Canadian Government, no less than it predecessor, in any negotiations in which they may be engaged with the United States."

Germany's Ambassador.

Special to Evening Telegram.
LONDON, May 6.

The Morning papers are impressed by reports that Baron Marchetti von Biehlerstein, the German Ambassador to Constantinople, is likely to be appointed Ambassador at London. They believe that such an appointment would have great significance, and would probably herald an era of better relations between Britain and Germany, and for that reason would be warmly welcomed. It is also suggested that Baron von Biehlerstein's leaving Constantinople for Berlin may be connected with a new attitude on the part of Germany towards mediation between Italy and Turkey.

Ran on the Sands

Reply to Mr. S. Ruby.

Editor Evening Telegram:

Dear Sir,—Please permit me space in your valuable paper to make a reply to my friend, Mr. Ruby. That gentleman can afford to be facetious at my expense; I am not and never can be witty myself. I am too much of a heavy plodder. Mr. Ruby is a light-hearted sort, light and flaky as the soil on his farm will be, when he will have started that lime kiln. I like his pleasant ways but cannot find approval for his propensity in misconstruing my words. He does me great injustice when he says I am trying to mislead the farmers. Nothing can be farther from the truth. I would save the farmers from their political, empirical would-be teachers. It is not all philanthropy which moves me to write either; my motive has a sound, practical basis: it touches my pocket-book. As a taxpayer my money is going into this farming boom, and I have a right to say that I will not see it foisted away without a word of protest. I am in favor of a farming policy, and believe we should make special effort to promote agricultural development. I hope Mr. Ruby will permit me the privilege of saying whether I approve of Morris's hard-brained policy or not. Anticipating his assent to the principle, I repeat what I said before, that Morris's policy has begun at the wrong end. Mr. Ruby says that lime is just as important as potash or phosphoric acid. I am not aware of having decried the value of lime; I admit its importance. What I said last week I repeat here, the indiscriminate application of lime is sure

At the Theatre.

Those who were in attendance at the Casino last evening enjoyed a Shakespearean treat. The offering by the Selman Stock Company was the celebrated play entitled, "The Merchant of Venice"—a comedy of ancient Venice which has charmed the hearts of theatre-goers for many years. In the present production there are five acts—the court scene does not terminate the play as on previous occasions, hence one is given the pleasure of the poetic beauty of the scene between the quartette of lovers in the moonlight outside Portia's house. One of the most striking situations in last night's play was the elopement of Jessica. Wooded by Lorenzo and his gallant friends, she leaves her father's home for the Bal Masque. The grief of Shylock on finding the empty house is pathetic in the extreme.

Mr. Joseph Selman makes a picturesque Bassanio. He is singularly adapted to Shakespearean roles and reads his lines with distinction; undoubtedly he was a success last night. Mr. P. S. Barrett was one of the individual hits; he made Shylock, the Jew, an excellent piece of character acting; he invested the part with great force, and in the court scene was at his best. Costume, make-up and general finish were capital. Mr. Harold Selman made Gratiano a personality of rare charm, infused lots of spirit into his characterization; while Mr. J. J. O'Grady, one of our local boys, was also good as Soloni. Mr. Alton Thomas had, in Lorenzo, one of the best roles in which he has been seen since coming to this city, and he made the most of it. Mr. Geo. Montserrat limned clearly the high-minded Antonio, Merchant of Venice, and Mr. L. C. Murphy, as the childish old man, Gobbo, blind and decrepit, achieved a decided success. Mr. Arthur Kelly was very amusing as Launcelot, the clown.

As to the ladies—Miss Gertrude Arden in her most capable manner brought out the charming characteristics of Portia; she is delightful in any role, and each show brings her new laurels. Miss Kathryn Irving whose previous work has stamped her as a most capable actress, gave a delightful portrayal of Nerissa; while Miss Nancy Lee Corwin made an admirable Jessica. To-night "The Merchant of Venice" will be repeated; to-morrow, "Mrs. Temple's Telegram"; Thursday, "Romeo and Juliet," and on Friday, "David Garrick" will be presented.

Bonne Bay Formulates Its Needs.

Special to Evening Telegram.
BONNE BAY, To-Day.
The people of Bonne Bay at a public meeting held here on Friday raised a strenuous protest against the continued neglect of their interests by the authorities. The meeting was held in the open air, was presided over by Mr. Geo. W. Wilton, J.P. The mail service, the new coastal boat arrangement, the lobster legislation and other affairs were strongly condemned by the meeting, which voiced the complaints in the following resolutions:—

1st.—This meeting hereby calls the attention of the Government to the disgraceful disorganization of the mail service in this section during the past winter, endorses the complaints published in the newspapers, and emphatically condemns the Post Office Department for its failure in this respect.

2nd.—The summer freight and passenger service on this coast is entirely inadequate to our needs, and far from mending matters, the new arrangements are likely to leave us in a worse state than ever.

3rd.—The Government should begin this summer to open up a main road down the coast and should provide substantial bridges for the main brooks and rivers.

4th.—The absolute lack of public works in a town of the size and importance of Bonne Bay is intolerable and should at once be remedied.

5th.—The interests of fifty lobster factories, whose products are worth close on forty thousand dollars each season, require the establishment of a special mail service on St. John's Bay during the summer months.

6th.—Objection is hereby made to the arrangement whereby the Customs Officer of this place is permitted to draw a yearly salary and take a vacation of five months each year, another official, being employed to keep the place warm. Mr. Cox, the winter substitute, should get the Bonne Bay permanency, and an appointment such as Flower's Cove be given the man at vacations.

7th.—The present Magistrate of Bonne Bay should be pensioned and a younger and more active man be appointed to satisfactorily fulfill the duties of this important office.

8th.—This meeting strongly protests against the injustice done Mr. J. R. Roberts, the Postmaster of this place. His extensive duties and 40 years' experience make his present salary of ninety dollars appear most ridiculous, and the claim is hereby made that the Post Office should pay him at least three hundred dollars a year.

The News "Plot."

We asked the Daily News what the Morison wing thought of Sir Edward Morris's bid for Reciprocity. We did not ask whether the admission of Newfoundland fish into the States would be a good thing for Newfoundland. That is regarded generally as a consummation devoutly to be wished. But the Daily News knows full well what Sir Edward Morris meant when he made his bid in Boston. He was making it clear that he was ready to discuss a Reciprocity Agreement. We have not forgotten the semi-official announcement, made two years ago, that the Hague Awards had cleared the way for a Reciprocity Deal. Any other construction of his words would be idle, and would be tantamount to a charge that Sir Edward was merely beating air in Boston.

Now the remarkable feature of the situation was that while Sir Edward was bidding for a Reciprocity Deal in Boston, the Morison organ was denouncing the dead and buried Canadian Reciprocity Agreement as a plot of President Taft to inveigle Canada into Annexation with America. We repeat then our query, which the Morison organ has not answered, but has deliberately evaded: If the Canadian-States deal was an annexation plot, what does the Morison organ think of Sir Edward Morris, after learning all the particulars of the so-called plot, making overtures to drag Newfoundland into the American spider's web?

Supreme Court.

Before the Chief Justice.

Eacret vs. Seeley.

Mr. Higgins for plaintiff, moves that a day be set for trial of this action, and that a special jury be summoned.

Mr. Foote, for defendant, opposes the motion and asks that the matter be transferred to the Northern Circuit.

Mr. Higgins opposes this and reads an affidavit to prove that the plaintiff is leaving the colony in a short time. It is ordered that the case be set for June 13th, with a special jury.

Eacret vs. Elliott.

Mr. Higgins for the plaintiff, moves for a day to be set, and a special jury. Mr. Squires for the defendant opposes the motion and asks that the case be transferred to the Northern Circuit.

Mr. Higgins opposes the transfer to Circuit on the grounds that the plaintiff is about to leave the colony. It was ordered that the case be set for June the 12th with a special jury.

These five actions taken by Dr. Eacret of Change Islands for alleged slanders uttered by the defendants against him in his professional capacity.

The Police Court.

A 23 year old fisherman, charged with desertion, was sent down for 14 days.

A 41 year old laborer, drunk, was ordered to pay the cost of cab hire.

A 34 year old seaman, drunk, was discharged.

In the Magistrate's Court several civil matters were disposed of.

Yesterday afternoon the enquiry into the matter of the Klug vs. Bishop for barratry was continued. The captain of the schooner, which it is alleged was cast away, was sworn and examined. The matter will be continued this afternoon.

Sealing Turnouts.

The Lloydson finished unloading her seals this morning and turned out 7,721. Her crew of 157 men shared $35.88. They will be paid off this afternoon.

The Erik finished landing her seals to-day. Her discharge was as follows: 14 young harps, 767 bedlamers, 984 old hoods, total 1,765. Net weight 65 tons, 1 cwt. 2 qrs., 8 lbs. Her crew will make about $8.

Died of Diphtheria.

There passed peacefully away at the Fever Hospital last night, Mrs. John Donovan, who had been ailing for some time from diphtheria. The body was taken to the home of the deceased this morning for burial. She was the wife of Mr. John Donovan, who is an employee of the Water Store on King's Road, and who himself has been laid off from work the past two months owing to ill-health. They were but married six months.

Particulars of Drowning.

From parties who arrived from that section recently, we learn, particulars of the sad drowning accident which occurred at Harbor Breton on Thursday evening last and of which Mr. Jacob Bartlett was the unfortunate victim. On the evening in question, Bartlett, accompanied by two other men, was loading his trading craft with provisions and was getting ready to go to another portion of the harbor. Suddenly a strong gale sprung up from the southeast and prevented him from going and fearing being drawn ashore on the beach, put to an anchor. There was a heavy sea running at the time and a double anchor was necessary to hold the vessel until the elements abated. Bartlett put out in his dory for the shore a couple of hundred yards distance to make fast another line leaving his companions behind. It was very dark and foggy and Bartlett evidently had not gone far when the dory capsized and he was drowned before the other two men got to him. Owing to the prevailing conditions of the wind and sea it was useless to search for the body which was found the next morning floating on the top of the water. Bartlett was a man about 35 years old, unmarried and was crippled. An enquiry is now going on into the affair, while the remains have been confined and buried.

AN OLD OFFICER.—Const. Chafe, of Cape Broyle, who arrived by the Portia yesterday, has given faithful and efficient service to the police force; he is now in the force 28 years.

LEFT TO-DAY.—The agents here have received a message stating that the S. S. Sinbad left Montreal to-day at noon for here direct.

Patent Medicine.

We observe that the Daily News takes exception to Dr. Wakefield's advertisement that "on no account should recourse be had to patent medicines advertised in the papers or otherwise, for these very often contain dangerous poisonous drugs, and may do a great deal of harm; in fact, they have caused a large number of deaths," which occurs in the A. P. C. notes, which we also publish to-day. We endorse most of the points made by the Daily News. We contend, further, that it is the duty of Dr. Wakefield to put the Government in possession of the names of the large number of persons whose death is directly due to death-dealing drugs in patent medicines advertised in the papers or otherwise.

If the charge is well founded, how comes it that our Vital Statistics do not record the large number of deaths caused by patent medicines? As these statistics are largely based on the certificates of death, signed by medical practitioners, it is strange, if Dr. Wakefield's indictment is well-founded, that figures recording a large number of deaths due to poisonous drugs in patent medicines are not given.

In spite of the fact that nearly 120 causes of death are specified in the Report of 1910, this death-dealing cause is not even mentioned, and not one of 3,673 deaths is attributed to it.

We do indeed find the sub-heading Chronic Poisoning, but strangely in view of this broad indictment, the number of deaths is given as none.

It would appear, therefore, that medical men were improperly diffident in registering deaths as due to poisonous drugs taken in patent medicine during that year or that the statement attributed to Dr. Wakefield is grossly overdrawn.

It is not, the sooner the authorities and the public are put in possession of the facts the better.

We have no doubt Dr. Wakefield is justified in issuing a warning against the indiscriminate use of medicine, patent or otherwise, but the statement attributed to him appears to overshoot the mark and thereby loses much of its use as a legitimate and wise warning.

In conclusion, we endorse what the Daily News stated this morning: "No newspaper would knowingly publish the advertisement of any medicine that would be injurious, let alone cause a large number of deaths."

The Search for Bodies.

Capt. Lardner's Story.

Of the 1735 souls who so gallantly went to their death in the early morning of that never to be forgotten fifteenth of April, 319 have so far been recovered by the two search expeditions sent out from Halifax. But the chances are that few will be added to the list of those already given up by the sea.

Captain Lardner of the cableship Mackay-Bennett, which returned yesterday after rescuing 306 bodies, stated to the Morning Chronicle that he feared but few would be added to the number already secured. Unless the Minia strikes a group or two of bodies, he did not think she would recover any more.

DOWN IN THE SHIP.
"I think the most of the Titanic's people are with the ship," said Captain Lardner in the course of an interview. "Many were undoubtedly below when she sank, and so had no chance while the tremendous rush of water which must have broken over her decks when she went down would have washed the greater number of those on deck down the companionways, hatches and skylights. Of course everyone thrown into the water without a life preserver would be carried down with the steamer to such a depth that they would never come to the surface, so I am afraid we must come to the conclusion that practically all these bodies not yet recovered will never be heard of."

THOROUGH SEARCH.
The cable steamer cruised over an area of about thirty miles square, lying roughly sixty miles north east of the scene of the wreck. Great quantities of floats cover the water for miles, but now under the influence of contrary currents this is beginning to separate, and the same thing will be true of bodies in which case groups which may possibly have been floating together will disperse. The search of the Mackay-Bennett was so thoroughly and diligently carried out, however, that it may be regarded as practically certain that all bodies floating within this area have been recovered.

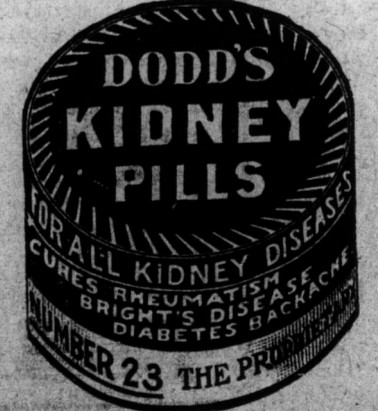

"Before beginning," said Captain Lardner, after the newspaper men had seated themselves around the saloon table with Canon Hind and the skipper in the centre, "I want to state that when we left Halifax for the scene of the disaster, our orders were to bring all the bodies recovered to port, but owing to the condition in which many of the bodies were and other causes, such as heavy weather, it was found impossible to carry this out to the letter, and some bodies were thereupon committed to the deep after services which were conducted by Rev. Canon Hind."

"We left Halifax at noon on Wednesday, April 17th, but fog and bad weather delayed our run and it was not until Saturday night at eight o'clock that we reached the scene of the disaster.

"In the middle watch the first wreckage and bodies were sighted. At daybreak the boats were ordered away and although a heavy sea was running, we succeeded in recovering 51 bodies, 24 of which were committed to the deep that same evening. Services were conducted by Rev. Canon Hind. All the crew were present, and while the burial was in progress the ship's bell was tolled."

"Here I should explain," said Capt. Lardner, "that when the steamer left Halifax all the embalming materials procurable had been taken, but this was only sufficient to deal with 70 bodies. It was not considered that these bodies would keep for more than two or three days, and as the undertaker could only deal with a certain number, it was decided best to give the remainder Christian burial at sea."

A DIFFICULT TASK.
"At daybreak Monday work was commenced again. Bad weather prevailed and we only succeeded in getting 26 bodies. We sailed in the afternoon along a line of wreckage fifteen miles in extent and at midnight streamed a marked buoy to keep pace with the drifting bodies. On Tuesday morning a large number were recovered. By noon ninety bodies had been got on board, then thick weather came up and we got only 29.

"All Wednesday we were ploughing into a heavy head sea and saw nothing all day. At midnight the weather eased up a bit and we shaped a course for where we expected to find them. At 4.30 Thursday morning we found a single body, and at daybreak commenced work with good results, getting 87. That day we got the news that the steamer Minia was coming to assist us in the search, and at 12.45 Friday morning the Minia, which had received our position by wireless, was alongside.

BOTH SHIPS SEARCHING.
"At daybreak both ships commenced the search together and at noon the Mackay-Bennett, having recovered 22 more bodies, left for Halifax, then having as many as she could handle. Bad weather was encountered on the way, delaying us for a day."

IDENTIFICATION SYSTEM.
"Reaching the steamer, the bodies would at once be hoisted on board and at once searched. A number would be given it and all personal effects would be placed in a bag numbered correspondingly. When night came and there was no chance of getting more bodies, the contents of these bags would be thoroughly examined, and the greater number of identifications came about in this way. All these bags were brought back to port, and in the case of the bodies buried at sea, practically all of which were much mutilated, will afford as much clue to their identification as if they had been taken to port."

"What did these bodies look like from a distance?" asked a New Yorker, intent on getting detail for a gruesome "thriller."

LIKE FLOCK OF SEA GULLS.
"Like nothing so much as a flock of sea gulls resting on the water," was the captain's answer. "All we could see at first would be the top of the life preserver. They were all floating face upwards, apparently standing in the water."

Then the reporters turned their attention to the reported finding of G. D. Widener, the Philadelphia millionaire. "Why did you bury him at sea?" came the point blank question from several directions at once.
"I was never absolutely certain that the body which we found and at first thought to be Mr. Widener's was in reality his. In the tremendous upheaval when the Titanic went down it was badly damaged, so badly in fact that it was not considered advisable to take it to port."

MR. WIDENER'S VALET.

"Since reaching port it has been pretty definitely established that the body was in reality that of his valet, Edward Keating. The body was clad in some of Mr. Widener's clothing, but the cuff links and watch bore the initials E. K., and it is most highly probable that Mr. Widener would have any jewelry not his own. Then the underclothing was not of the texture which you would expect, and in fact when it first came on board I had very serious doubts that it was a cabin passenger. The identification of Keating was made practically complete by a pocket book containing a memo of certain details that Mr. Widener's son says the valet always attended to, and Mr. Widener is now satisfied that the body is not that of his father."

Capt. Lardner said three burial services had been held. On Sunday night, April 22, twenty-four bodies were re-consigned to the deep. The next night fifteen, and on Tuesday at noon, seventy-seven. It was thought that it would be necessary to bury more, and preparations for this were made, but all were carried to port. Those who were buried at sea were in a great many cases, in fact in nearly every instance, firemen, stewards or seamen, whom it was highly unlikely would have relatives on this side of the ocean.

$50,000 WAS FOUND.
Considerable jewelry was found on the bodies, and some large sums of money were also in the possession of the drowned. Capt. Lardner said they could not give any estimate of what these valuables amounted to, but the Morning Chronicle learned last night that they would total over fifteen thousand dollars. Col. Astor had $5,400 in his possession, and a number of the other bodies also had large amounts.

Cascarets Cure a Bilious Headache.

Gently, but thoroughly cleanse your Liver, Stomach and Bowels and you feel great by morning.
You're bilious, you have a throbbing sensation in your head, a bad taste in your mouth, your eyes burn, your skin is yellow, with dark rings under your eyes; your lips are parched. No wonder you feel ugly, mean and ill tempered. Your system is full of bile not properly passed off and what you need is a cleansing inside. Don't continue being a bilious nuisance to yourself and those who love you, and don't resort to harsh physics that irritate and injure. Remember that every disorder of the stomach, liver and intestines can be quickly cured by morning with gentle, thorough Cascarets—they work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you and the entire family feeling good for months. Children love to take Cascarets, because they taste good and never gripe or sicken.

To-Day's News.

Special to Evening Telegram.

NEW YORK, To-day.
The counsel for the family made public last night the will of John Jacob Astor, as drawn in this city in September last, a few days after his marriage to Miss Force, and approximately seven months before he perished with the sinking of the Titanic. Vincent Astor, his son, is the principal beneficiary. No hint of the value of the estate is given. By the creation of funds the testator followed as far as possible the custom of his forbears in keeping the vast Astor real estate holdings intact. The valuations of the estate run anywhere from $75,000,000 to $150,000,000.

HALIFAX, To-day.
The Minia's toll of dead when the cable ship came in yesterday showed 17 bodies found of which two were buried at sea. The first body the Minia picked up was that of C. M. Hays. The Mackay-Bennett brought 190 bodies and the Minia 15 making 205. Of this number 137 have been shipped abroad or buried at Halifax, leaving 88 still at the morgue. Relatives are in communication in regard to most of these and while the White Star people are not absolutely sure in regard to all of them, they are as respects by far the greater number. The body with the largest amounts funds was that of Colonel Bradie of Omaha and Nebraska, who had $16,500. The funds in the hands of the Provincial Government, taken from the Titanic bodies, held in safes at the Morgue, amounts to $70,000.

LONDON, To-day.
The House was very sparsely filled which is typical of waning public interest in speeches lacking the presence of novelty. The Home Rule debate was resumed yesterday by the Commons. James McCampbell, former Attorney-General for Ireland under a Unionist Administration, declared the Government might entrap the King and mutilate the constitution, might sell Ulster into bondage, but it would never be able to compel Ulsterites to wear the fetters. Sir Rufus Isaacs retorted that the Ulsterites with their "constitutional loyalty." He continued "they will be loyal as long as they can coerce the majority in Ireland." Isaacs argued that Unionist allegation of outrages and unrest in Ireland were the most damaging testimony of the failure of English rule, therefore they were strongest arguments in support of the Home Rule Bill.

VANCOUVER, To-day.
The Hindus of Vancouver have gone over the head of the Government and have petitioned the Secretary of State for India to set aside an order recently passed at Ottawa for the deportation of two Hindu women and their children who have been held by the authorities to be illegally in Canada. This action was taken at a mass meeting of Sikhs at the Sikh Temple, Second Avenue West. In the opinion of the Sikhs, Imperial unity is threatened by the action of Ottawa in ordering the enforcement of the immigration laws.

However in the early part of the voyage the ship struck the seals off St. Paul's Island and managed to get over 2,000. The captain had to engage in the killing himself as he only had a small complement of men, and had he a full crew might have got a load. Many enjoyable concerts were held on shipboard throughout the spring. His Injuries Proved Fatal

The accident to Mr. John Murphy, to which the Telegram referred yesterday, and wherein he was seriously hurt near Patrick Street by a street car colliding with the team which he drove, proved fatal about 7 o'clock at the General Hospital. It is believed Mr. Murphy tried to cut across the street car track just below Patrick Street, on Water Street, opposite Mr. Fred Callanan's grocery store, when the car came upon him. The street car was going east at a pretty good rate of speed and the unfortunate man was thrown from the flat car on which he sat when the tram collided with it. It is thought the front wheels of the street car passed over him as both legs were practically severed just above the knees when by-passers rushed to his aid. Dr. Patterson was called from the Reid Bldg. Co's offices and did everything possible for him. Mr. John Roach, of O'Mara's drug store, also did his best for the unfortunate man. After being removed to the hospital in the ambulance it was seen that Mr. Murphy was in a dangerous condition. He was there given the rites of his church by Rev. Joseph Pippy, of St. Patrick's Church, and a short while after expired. Two sons and two daughters survive the deceased who was well known and liked in the West End. To the bereaved family the Telegram extends its sympathy.

Shipwrecked Skipper Arrives

A Titanic Claim.

An Incident of the Recent Disaster.
Another incident in connection with the loss of the Titanic which will bring some degree of comfort to the afflicted widow, and bring home to many the wisdom of providing against the uncertain, is the fact that Mrs. Frank H. Mayberry, of Moose Jaw, Sask., whose husband lost his life on the Titanic, was totally unaware of her husband having taken out a ten thousand dollar policy prior to their going to England, and in her favor. It was only through the efforts of the company in locating Mrs. Mayberry that she was first made aware of the fact that ten thousand dollars was lying in her credit at the head office of the Railway Passengers' Assurance Company at 64 Cornhill, London, Eng. This is only one of the many losses now being paid by the company as a result of the above disaster. The fact that the Railway Passengers has paid out over thirty-two millions in claims, and that ample funds are provided for such catastrophes, aptly illustrates the importance of insuring in a company granting adequate security to meet such contingencies. HENRY C. DONNELLY, Agent for Newfoundland.—adv.

Well Known Family.

Mrs. Flynn, the aged mother of Patrick Flynn, whose body was found out near Donovan's yesterday, is one of the old representative families of the West End. Since her son has been missing she has been heart broken, though the fact of the body being found is a sad consolation. The deceased young man was well known and highly respected in the West End, and for many years acted as acolyte at St. Patrick's Church. His mother and sisters, Mesdames James Ryan, T. Graham and T. Shortall, are deeply sympathized with, as well as his wife who was formerly Miss Gaul, of the Topsall Road. The family are neighbours of Mr. John Murphy who was killed yesterday in a street car accident. Both families reside at the Cross Roads, and in that section of the city there is much mourning now.

OBITUARY.

At his residence Flower Hill last night the death occurred of a well known citizen in the person of Mr. Wm. Milley. Mr. Milley had been ill for some time and for a while was a patient in the General Hospital. He was a native of Western Bay and since coming to St. John's has been both known and liked especially in the West End. Mr. Milley was a comparatively young man and his many friends will read of his demise with sadness. Besides a wife and family he leaves two brothers, Messrs. Elijah (of C. F. Bennett's), and John of the Smith Co's premises. The Telegram tenders its sympathy to the sorrowing family.

The Grossmith Recital.

We have before us the programme for Mr. Leslie Grossmith's recital to-morrow. For vividness and intrinsic variety it would be difficult to imagine anything more comprehensive, containing as it does the names of Liszt, Wagner, Beethoven, Donizetti, etc., on the serious side, and Harry Fragson, Huntley Wright, Lyell Johnston, Leslie Grossmith, etc., on the humorous side. The programme opens with Liszt's transcription of an Adorn Melodrama.
After an Interlude he is to play Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata. Later on there is "Paper Bag Cookery"—a shift on the new method of cooking. "How Shakespeare first caught on in London," "Bebe Ribbons," "A Policeman's Story," and "Does this shop stock shot silk socks with spots." Other items include a grand operatic solo, performed with the left hand only; Annie Laurie with variations, and a musical illustration of an Adorn Melodrama.

Defends Bryce.

Special to Evening Telegram.
LONDON, To-day.
Mr. Croft declared he was not satisfied with the Premier's statement, and when the night session of the House began, Croft renewed his attack. He charged Ambassador Bryce and the British Government with supporting a policy which they were informed was bad and of neglect of Imperial interests. Sir Edward Grey, Foreign Minister, replying to Mr. Croft, warmly defended Mr. Bryce against what he termed an unfair attack. He reviewed the Reciprocity negotiations between Canada and the States, which he said Mr. Bryce neither initiated nor participated in. Sir Edward said he considered Mr. Bryce had rendered the highest Imperial services. As far as Croft's attack on the Government was concerned, it could safely be left to be fought out in the country.

A. P. C. NOTES.

Dr. Wakefield has just returned to St. John's from a lengthy lecturing trip right round the head of Placentia Bay. The ice in the bay occasioned a considerable amount of inconvenience, but in spite of this almost every settlement was visited. Lectures with magic lantern pictures of the germ causing the disease called consumption, or tuberculosis, was given in Harbour Buffet, Haystack, Woody Is., Sound Is., Clatice Harbour, St. Kyran's, Pique, Merasheen, Tack's Beach, Placentia and Argenta. In the course of these lectures a clear description was given of the manner in which the germs are conveyed from one person to another, and of the terrible results which are likely to follow such infection.

The different ways of preventing infection were then explained, far and away the most important being the stopping of all spitting except into the stove, the sea, or other suitable receptacles. It was carefully explained how this rule applied not only to persons known to have consumption, but even to those considered to be healthy. Sneezing and coughing also, when nothing is held in front of the mouth, were shown to carry infection in the same way.

The necessity for properly ventilated all living and sleeping rooms was then dwelt upon, and it was explained that the only satisfactory way of doing this was by keeping the windows constantly open at the top even though it was only a little way.

Other matters were then touched upon, and finally it was clearly explained how persons who were strong and hearty were in little danger of catching the disease compared to those who were sickly and run down.

A second lecture on "Good Health" was also given in each of the above settlements, and a number of practical points were explained on which many people go wrong, thus sacrificing their good health and laying themselves open to the attacks of disease, sometimes through ignorance, sometimes through carelessness. In these lectures it was pointed out that air and water are the two greatest necessities for life, both being good and plentiful in this country. It was also clearly explained that cold and fresh air are not the cause of "colds" in the head or on the chest, sore throats, gum boils, and poisoned fingers, as so many people think. Germs are the cause of all these troubles, and where the windows are constantly open any germs that may be about are likely to fly out of the window instead of being shut up in the room and being breathed in by those in the room. Those who live out all the time in the fresh air, even though it be very cold, do not get so-called "colds."

Food was also discussed, and the all-too-common diet of bread and tea was strongly condemned, more especially for growing children. The commonly used white flour by itself is not a wholesome food. Even the more nourishing whole wheat flour is not a proper food in itself. The men were therefore urged when laying in their stores of flour and meal to buy oatmeal or rolled oats, cornmeal, peas, and beans. In this way even those who cannot afford pork or beef can supply their families with very much more wholesome food at no increase of cost, for with oatmeal or cornmeal or peas or beans at every meal they will find that they do not use nearly so much flour.

Many other helps to "Good Health" were also touched upon, and it was explained that the body is a truly wonderful machine, which runs smooth and well unless badly mis-treated. And in most cases when it gets out of order the fault lies with the treatment which the machine has been given. What is necessary then in these cases to get it into good order again is only to correct the bad treatment it has been receiving, whether this has been in the matter of food, drink, air, rest, work, wet clothes, or any other condition. In such cases, and these according to the experience of most doctors comprise much the greatest part of the sickness in this country, all that is needed is to correct the fault, and the body will soon recover its good health. If the fault is not known, a doctor's advice should be sought, but on no account should recourse be had to patent medicines advertised in the papers or otherwise, for those very often contain dangerous poisonous drugs, and may do a great deal of harm; in fact they have caused a large number of deaths.

The following settlements were also visited, but only one lecture was given in each, Mussel Harbour, Spencer's Cove, Barhaven, Siblett's Cove, Davies' Cove and Chamber's Island.

In no part of the Colony have the people been found more alive to the urgent need for fighting this most dreadful scourge of our land, nowhere have they been found more anxious to learn the right way to set about this, and nowhere have they been more responsive to what they have been told. Spitting has been altered, and it may confidently be anticipated that consumption will steadily decrease in this part of the country. The chief credit for this readiness to learn is undoubtedly due to the earnest efforts, which are beyond all praise, of the clergy and school teachers of all denominations, also to the work of some of the magistrates, J. P.'s, and certain other prominent persons. Nearly all of those realize the profound importance of consumption in this country and have been working hard to combat it for years. Their work has already begun to reap its reward.

The work done by previous visits of A. P. C. representatives has also borne excellent fruit.

In conclusion the lecturer desires to express his sincerest thanks for all the very great kindness received by him on this trip. It is impossible for him to express his appreciation and thanks to each personally of all the many persons who showed very great kindness to him by entertaining him, transporting him, or helping him in a variety of ways too numerous to mention. But he would assure each and all of these of his deep appreciation of their kindness, and the sum total of all this has been such a kindly impression on his mind of Placentia Bay as time can never wipe out.

Costly Canaries.

Good canaries are often worth their weight—and sometimes twice their weight—in gold. The Lancashire Copy and the London Fancy are the two most valuable birds; the first being the giant and the second the dwarf of canaries.

In their native state they are of a dull and uniform green, but the richness and variety of color has been obtained by crossing these birds with at least nine other finches.

A good Copy has been known to fetch as much as thirty guineas; and in Germany, whence the rest of Europe is largely supplied, the apparatus for rearing these canaries is amazingly large and expensive.

A huge building is erected for them, possessing a square space at each end and holes communicating with the spaces. In these outlets are planted the favourite trees of the canary, so that it shall have an abundance of natural life and freedom. The floor of the building is strewn with sand, on which are cast quantities of rapeseed, chickweed and other foods which they are allowed. The lower compartment is kept dark, and supplied with ample facilities for nest-building.

The Belgians rear canaries, but to a much smaller extent. In this country special attention is paid to the musical abilities of the bird, instead of the colour and markings, as is the case in Germany. Like the rest of the finch tribe, they have a high piercing note, which they often continue for some minutes in one key and then raise it higher and higher by degrees. These notes, however, may be greatly improved upon by education, and no pains are spared to teach the canary to use its musical powers to the greatest advantage.

In some cases it is possible to produce a melodious little tune, and these birds become so tame and docile that they may often be taught a variety of amusing tricks.—Tit-Bits.

Short Kings and Tall Queens.

Many European monarchs, are of shorter stature than their queens. George V. is several inches shorter than Queen Mary. The German Empress is slightly taller than the Kaiser; and it is alleged that when they are being photographed together William sees that the Queen takes a seat while he himself stands.

The Czar of all the Russias is by no means as tall as his consort, and Alfonso of Spain is said to be a head shorter than Queen Victoria Eugenie. The King of Italy hardly reaches to the shoulders of his Montenegrin wife. The Queen of Denmark, too, is taller than her husband.

Exceptions are the King of Norway and the King of the Belgians. The latter, six feet two inches in height, is the tallest ruler in Europe.

Mule Seized Child AND RAN AWAY.

Emmence, Ky., April 27.—The thud of galloping hoofs on the turf and shrill screams brought Mrs. Newton Roberts, owner of a stock farm here, out of her house yesterday afternoon to see a mule charging across a field in front of the house with Mrs. Roberts' three year old son dangling from its mouth. When Mr. Roberts and a field hand cornered the mule it required their united efforts to make the animal release its teeth from the child's foot. The child will die.

In Bad Company.

"You are accused, sir," said the magistrate, "of being drunk and disorderly. Any defence?"

"This would never have happened only I travelled from Pittsburg to New York with the Sons of Temperance."

"Sons of Temperance? Why, they are the salt of the earth. I should think they'd be the best company a man like you could ask for."

"No, sir. Excuse me, sir. You're wrong," said the prisoner huskily. "You see, I'd brought a quart of whisky for the journey and on account of the company I had to drink it all myself."

Automobile Bandits.

The automobile bandits that have been robbing and murdering in France are still at work. Four of them on the morning of April 4th leaped into an expressman's wagon in the vicinity of Choisy-le-Roi, about six miles from Paris, killed the driver by strangling him, looted the wagon of a large quantity of valuables, and tossed the body into the roadside. An arrest has been made in Paris of a suspect.

Molly & Co. Settle an Important Question.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

Why then she should ask the same question as to whether engaged people should have anything to do with any member of the opposite sex other than their fiancés, has again come to the surface in my correspondence.

Now I have done my best before to settle this matter out of my own wisdom, and my settlement has evidently been unsatisfactory, so this time I referred the matter to the Council.

The author's wife was the first to pass on the question. "Why, of course not," she said promptly and decisively: "it isn't the thing at all."

Apparently, she thought that entirely settled the matter, for she looked quite surprised when the man-who-thinks began to speak.

Said the man-who-thinks meditatively, "It's foolish to try to give any general answer to a question like that. That's a thing each couple ought to settle for themselves. It seems to me that the best test for any engaged man or girl, is to put himself or herself in the other's place. If a girl wants to entertain one of her old friends an evening when 'himself' can't come, she ought to ask herself if she would be willing to have her fiancé take one of the girls he used to like to the theatre on a night when she couldn't go with him. And if she honestly thinks she would be willing,

"I'll tell you what I think," said Molly, the little stenographer lady. "It all depends on how much you want to see other people."

"Hmph!" interrupted the wants-to-be-cynic, "that's just like you, Molly. I say that's the very last thing to go by."

"I was going to say," went on Molly serenely, "when I was interrupted, that if you don't care anything about seeing the person in question, you should see him all you want. But if you do care, you shouldn't see him at all."

The wants-to-be-cynic's expression reminded one of a sloop that has suddenly tacked and lost the wind. "I reckon," said the man-who-thinks, "that the only safe thing you can say, Ruth is, 'It all depends.' Of course, anyone ought to be square and kind about it, and try to put himself in the other fellow's place, but beyond that, it just depends on circumstances."

On the whole, I think that's a pretty good summing up of the case.

Don't you?

HOT FLASHES.

Women in middle age often complain of hot flashes. They are at that stage of life when their delicate organism needs a tonic and helping-hand which only Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription can give them. Many women suffer needlessly from girlhood to womanhood and from motherhood to old age—with backache, dizziness or headache. A woman often becomes sleepless, nervous, "broken-down," irritable and often tired from morning to night. When pains and aches rack the woman's system at frequent intervals, ask your neighbor about Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Mrs. J. Insoff, of 321 S. Benton Street, Baltimore, Md., says: "I wrote you about nine months ago telling you of my condition. I have a fine baby girl—she weighed nine pounds when born. She is my third child and the youngest of them all. My suffering was only for two hours. I took several bottles of your Favorite Prescription and one of Dr. Pierce's Smart-Weed. I never had a well day before I took your medicines. I was surprised how well I felt—could eat—was always hungry; never had a sick stomach. The nurse who was with me said the medicine was wonderful because I got along so nicely after having had a very bad time before. She intends to recommend it to all her suffering patients. Every body is astonished at me because I only weighed 102 pounds before and now I weigh 135. I have had several ladies come to me and ask about Dr. Pierce's medicine. I am willing to recommend it to all who suffer and want help. I have written before and I will be glad to do so again."

Household Notes.

Garnish macaroni and cheese with slices of hard-boiled eggs.

To potato soup add half a cup of blanched almonds, finely chopped.

Stains may be removed from the zinc tops of kitchen tables with vinegar.

A slice of tomato is good on individual casseroles of baked spaghetti and cheese.

Pineapple is good for indigestion, the juice containing a digestive fluid similar to pepsin.

Almond oil and lanolin in equal parts rubbed into the eyebrows will stimulate their growth.

Insects like neither salt nor alum, and a small quantity sprinkled on the carpet will keep them away.

For a greasy, oily skin, put some astringent, a little alcohol or toilet vinegar into the wash water.

Instead of wasting scraps of meat or fish, cut up fine and put in your potato puffs. It improves them.

Delicious sandwiches may be made by using homemade currant bread filled with cream cheese and chopped peppers.

To clean silver and gold laces or braids when they have become tarnished, apply spirits of wine with a soft flannel cloth.

To remove ink spots cover with tallo before sending to the laundry. This can be used on colored materials where lemon and salt cannot.

Save your lemon rinds, dry them in the oven and store them in an airtight tin. A little of this added to an apple pie gives it a delicious flavouring.

A thing worth knowing when one has to take bitter medicine is this: A small pinch of salt will remove all taste of bitterness from the mouth.

Use paper bags for cooking. This saves pot washing, is most clean and sanitary and not expensive. When ever pots and pans are used, wash them at once.

Keep kerosene oil handy. With a little whitening it makes an excellent silver polish; a cloth moistened with it will be useful in cleaning the bathtub in a jiffy.

If the cane chair seats are sagging, turn the chairs upside down and soak them in cold, strong soap suds. In drying they will stiffen to their normal condition.

While washing the dishes from the evening meals put the cereal on and cook it. All that need be done to it the following morning is to add a little water to it and heat.

When making baked or boiled custard, the milk to be used should be scalded and set aside to cool. Then make the custard in the ordinary way, and it will be perfectly smooth.

If one cupful of vinegar is put with the water in which colored table cloths are washed, it will prevent the color from running. Iron when still damp and they will look equal to new.

Freshness of eggs may be tested by putting them into water. A fresh egg will remain at the bottom, one not so fresh will float a little higher, and a bad one will rise to the surface.

Art muslin curtains should never be washed in warm water. Make a lather with hot water and when it is nearly cold wash the curtains. If these are green, add vinegar; if lilac or pink, ammonia.

Do not take time to grate chocolate. Put the desired amount in a saucepan and place over the top of a tea kettle until melted. Two squares of unsweetened chocolate are equal to a cupful of grated.

If the table is not used for other purposes set it when you are drying the dishes. It is then ready for the next meal, and, as most girls with the housekeeping instinct are artistic, this gives a hospitable touch to the room.

Gold lace trimmings tarnish very quickly. They may be cleaned by using powdered cork ammonia. Apply this with a flannel cloth or soft brush. If badly tarnished, the lace should be wrapped in the powder for several days.

It is worth while to let a pint of milk sour from one day to another for the breakfast griddle cakes, because cakes made from sour milk and soda are so much superior in lightness and texture to those made of sweet milk and baking powder.

Their Popularity.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—In scanning over the debates of the house now appearing in the columns of the Daily News we find that the Premier is quoted as saying that his Government is the most popular we ever had, and poor deluded John Alexander must have swallowed that restorative at one draught, and having done so, found it so effective and exhilarating that his erstwhile despondency has left him and now the words of the Premier keep ringing in his ears—Most popular Government! Most popular Government! so that he believes that Sir Edward meant what he said and was not kidding him. The proof of this is to be found in the Daily News a day or two ago when he says that the appointment of Capt. Fitzpatrick to the sub-collectorship of Placentia was a popular one. So you see, Mr. Editor, he is not really responsible for his utterances since he swallowed that dose of Sir Edward's. Of course we don't know how many more of the rank and file are affected in the same way, and it would be a pity to disturb them now.

The only test of the truth of Sir Edward's remarks about the Government's popularity would be for him to send a man to any district in the island as a candidate for his most popular Government, and if he is returned why we will be very cautious about disbelieving anything he may say in the future; but if not, we will be certain that we have gauged public opinion rightly, and that is that there would not be a man returned to support his Government from any district in the island at the present moment. Thanking you in anticipation for space and for more anon, I remain,

Yours truly,
FISHERMAN.

GREENS.

By WALT MASON.

The pampered gourmet wishes for fancy kinds of dishes, kinds fit for kings and queens; but to the humble diner there's naught on earth that's finer than good old-fashioned greens. For months my soul was sighing for spinach, dandelion and other wholesome yarks; they are the sign and token that winter's back is broken—the harbinger that harbors Oh, greens! There's nothing beats 'em! The man who daily eats 'em has better grub, by jing, to still his stomach's groaning than ever yet was known in the palace of a king! Oh, greens! Our mothers stewed 'em, our fathers gladly chewed 'em, and hence those rugged sires who cleared the woods and prairie and scrapped with wild beasts hairy to guard their fires. Note all those famous creatures whose proud and handsome features appear in magazines; if you but knew their story, you'd find they rose to glory through having eaten greens. All garden sals is splendid, and never may be ended the fame of peas and beans; may naught decrease the numbers of squashes and cucumbers—but best of all are greens!

OBJECTS.—To take over as a going concern the business of manufacturing carriages and motor cars of the Nova Scotia Carriage Co., first established in 1868 at Kentville, and transfer same to Amherst as a better distributing and manufacturing centre and erect a modern plant at the latter place to be ready for occupation Jan. 1, 1913. Meanwhile the manufacturing operations will continue without interruption at the Kentville plant where the output this year will be in the vicinity of $475,000 against $292,000 in 1911. The estimated output for the first year in the new plant is $1,098,500.

MARKET.—This is the only concern manufacturing fine carriages and motor cars in the Maritime Provinces. The company has an established market in the Maritime Provinces, West Indies, Newfoundland, Quebec and Western Canada, with a promising field in British Columbia and overseas.

ADVANTAGES.—The combination of carriages and motor cars gives a busy season the year round. The company enjoys the benefit of a good labor supply, cheap hardwood and water transportation. Ample capital will now be available.

MANAGEMENT.—Messrs. J. W. McKay and D. C. McKay, two practical carriage builders, who built up the old company, are large shareholders in the present company and have entered into service contracts for five years from Dec. 1, 1912. Mr. N. Curry writes:—

"There is a great future in Canada for the automobile, also the motor truck for freight purposes. I understand that the company has excellent management and I see no reason why this industry should not in a few years be one of the largest and most prosperous in the Maritime Provinces."

NET EARNINGS.—As certified by Mr. R. Carter, chartered accountant, for three years, the net earnings were: 1909, $87,049.25; 1910, $22,860.45; 1911, $51,848.07. Total for three years, $116,657.87, an average of $38,552.62. Heavy expense was incurred in 1910 in introducing the manufacture and sale of automobiles.

J. W. McKay, managing director of the company, estimates net profits for the current year, Nov. 30, 1911 to Nov. 30, 1912 at $90,650, and for the following year 1912-1913 at $166,500.

The net earnings for 1911 were sufficient to pay bond interest and sinking fund charges and dividend on preferred and leave a surplus. The net earnings last year were over six times the bond interest. The estimated net earnings this year are ten times the bond interest, or sufficient to show 6 per cent. on common stock after paying bond interest and dividend on preferred for past year. According to Mr. McKay the surplus next year (1913) will exceed 12 per cent. on common stock. Some of the successful motor car companies are making even more than this.

The fixed and current assets (including proceeds of present stock and bond issue) exceeded $600,000—more than four times the issued bonds.

SAMPLE PURCHASES.

- $400 will buy—Four 7 per cent. preference and two common shares—total $600 par value.
- $500 will buy—One $500 bond and one common share—total $600 par value.

- $5000 will buy—Fifty preference and twenty-five common shares—total $7500 par value; or $5000 will buy two $1000 bonds, thirty preference and nineteen common shares, total $6900 par value.

Why Men Want Higher Wages.

It Costs To-Day 25c. to Buy as Much Food as 20c. Would Have Bought Ten Years Ago — A Well-Known Professor Throws Light on a Difficult Problem.

At a first glance it seems rather absurd that the more gold John Bull has in his purse the more he has to pay his tradesmen for the goods they supply. And yet a very little reflection makes this seeming absurdity quite intelligible. Gold, after all, is a commodity just as bread and sugar are; and the more plentiful the supply of any commodity the cheaper it naturally becomes. Thus, as the gold increases in amount it depreciates in value; its purchasing power becomes less; and a sovereign will no longer go as far towards paying the house-keeping bills.

It is this fact, the glut of gold (if one may so put it), that accounts largely for the deplorable increase in recent years of the cost of living, and the growing difficulty in poor homes of "making ends meet."

The Glut of Gold.

Let us look at the matter a little more closely. In 1910 (the last year for which complete returns are available), the world's gold-mines produced £179 for every £100 produced ten years earlier. In the previous decade the world's supply of gold was more than doubled—it actually increased 114 per cent.; whereas between 1860 and 1890 the output remained practically stationary. In fact, more gold was produced in the former year than in the latter.

Thus it is only during the last twenty years that the world has been literally flooded with gold. It has become plentiful and cheap; and as a consequence the cost of living has increased quite alarmingly.

We need not go back more than a few years to see how true this statement is. In 1910 the general price of food was approximately 10 per cent. greater than in 1900. Thus, at the present day, 22s. would be required to purchase what £1 would have paid for ten years earlier. In the most important articles of food, the increase in cost is much greater. Bread, for instance, is nearly 15 per cent. dearer; sugar, 24 per cent., and bacon, 39 per cent.

To understand clearly what this growth in cost of such important articles of food really means, it is only necessary to say that in 1900 a sovereign would purchase as much bread, sugar and bacon as would cost a few pence over 25c. in 1910. An insignificant matter, therefore, for the housekeeper with a well-fined purse; but a very serious matter for the millions of workmen's homes, where the income is measured in shillings a week.

Food Higher, Wages Lower.

And not only has food become dearer with the greater influx of gold, but other human necessities, such as rent, clothing, and manufactured articles generally, have similarly increased in cost. Rents have grown with the increase in taxes, and rates and the greater demand for comfort and sanitary conditions in our houses. The price of manufactured articles has increased through the greater cost of raw materials and the bigger wages paid in the producing

DANGER PERIOD OF WOMAN'S LIFE FROM 45 to 50

Interesting Experience of Two Women—Their Statements Worth Reading.

White Oak, Ont.—"At Change of Life when doctors could do no more and I was given up by my friends, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound came to the front and did wonders for me. I had been having female troubles for years, my head troubled me severely at times, I had bearing down pains and backache and I was very anaemic from excessive flowing. I recommend your Compound highly and do all I can to advertise it as a genuine woman's medicine." — Mrs. SYLVESTER MANNING, White Oak, Ontario.

The Case of Mrs. Kirlin.
Circleville, Ohio.—"I can truthfully say that I never had anything do me so much good during Change of Life as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." "Before I had taken one half a bottle of it I began to feel better, and I have continued taking it. My health is better than it has been for several years. If all women would take it they would escape untold pain and misery at this time of life." — Mrs. ALICE KIRLIN, 358 W. Mill St., Circleville, Ohio.

The Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. At such times women may rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

countries. All round, John Bull's expenses have gone up alarmingly during these ten years (to confine ourselves to this period), while (and this is the tragedy) his income has remained practically stationary. He has more to pay than ten years ago, and he has only the same income to pay it with.

As a matter of fact, the British workman's wages are to-day less in some fields of labour than they were in 1900. For every sovereign earned by the coal-miners (more than a million of them) ten years ago, less than 18s. is earned to-day. In other branches of labour there is an increase, but so small as to be negligible. In engineering and agriculture it does not amount to 6d. in the pound; while in the building trade the wages remain exactly the same. Taking all industries—including the textile, in which there has been an increase of 1s. 5d. in the pound—the average workman does not receive a penny a week to-day more than he drew in 1900.

Here, then, we have the matter in a nutshell. Wages are unchanged in the ten years; necessary expenses have grown considerably; and to this extent the British workman of 1910 is poorer than he was in 1900.

Naturally, a growth in the cost of living should be met by increased wages. And this has been the case in practically every country but our own. John Bull alone adds to his workers' bills without putting a coin more into their purses. It is, of course, all very wrong and strange; but it is a fact. In practically every other country, from Japan to France, the labourer is a richer man than he was a few years since; he has more money to pay his increased bills, and he can smile at the grocer's and baker's charges.

For every sovereign in wages the Russian bricklayer drew in 1900 he receives a little over 22s. to-day; the agricultural labourer of Sweden is 20 per cent. better off; the French iron-miner, roughly the same; the Austrian cigar-worker, 30 per cent.; the United States railway fireman, 23 per cent.; the Japanese bricklayer, over 60 per cent.; and so on through the long list, ranging almost all over the world. The average increase in the wages of the foreign worker is well over 10 per cent., and thus his income has kept pace approximately with the cost of living.

Better Pay Abroad.

It is unpleasant enough for the British workman to see his fellow-trothers abroad thus more fortunate than himself. If he is jealous and dissatisfied, who shall blame him? But the worst part of his fate is that the foreign workman draws his better pay at his expense. He is a loser by the other man's good fortune.

A large proportion of John Bull's food comes to him from across the seas. The bulk of his meat and wheat is supplied by America and Australia; and the increased payment for the labour spent in producing it naturally adds to its cost when it arrives here. In the United States, for example, the agricultural labourer, who was content to draw £4 monthly (with free board and lodging) in 1900, is earning his £6 or £7 a month now. His wages have grown more than 50 per cent. in these few years; and his less fortunate rival, the British workman, thus has more to pay for his American meat and wheat.

And it is precisely the same with all imported commodities. The larger cost of foreign labour adds to the price of its produce, whether it be raw materials or manufactured goods—especially the latter, in which materials usually cost much less than the work spent on them. Thus it is that the home workman, whose purse is just as poorly supplied as it was some years ago, finds his weekly bills heavier because, forsooth, his fellow-worker abroad is a better-paid man than himself.

When Gold Becomes Scarce.

Can one wonder, in the light of these facts, that discontent is rife and general among our workers at such an unfair condition of things, or that this dissatisfaction finds its expression in strikes for higher wages, with all their paralyzing effects on the country at large?

In this state of things the glut of gold—although it is but one of many contributing factors—plays a conspicuous part, as no doubt it will continue to do for many years. As the output increases, the purchasing power of gold will diminish; the price of gold will rise still higher; and in this respect the lot of our workmen will become worse. The day will inevitably dawn, however, when the last ounce of gold will be extracted from the last tone of ore. What will happen then?

This is too far a day to contemplate now. The youngest workman now alive will then have ceased to require his old-age pension. But meanwhile it is a matter of vital importance to him that some means should be devised of making his income more nearly meet his expenditure. — Tit-Bits.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Mr. Editor.—Allow me space in your paper to reply to a statement made in a recent issue of the Plain Dealer. It stated that hundreds of the members were leaving the F. P. U. in Trinity and Bonavista Districts. As Chairman of Bonavista District I say that statement and proclaim it to be as false as some more of its statements already made. If it was not for taking too much room in your paper I would publish some of the letters I have received from different branches showing how they are progressing. There may be a few leaving the Union—those that had Tory ideas and selfish purposes and found they could not live in Union atmosphere and had to get out or die, and the quicker we get clear of all that quality the stronger the Union will be.

Notes From Burnt Head.

A very enjoyable concert was held here recently under the supervision of our energetic teacher, Mr. J. Marks. A number of very funny dialogues were acted and several good songs were sung. From 7.30 until 10 p.m. the audience was kept highly amused by the actors. The concert met with such success during the first and second nights that it had to be repeated the third night. Much credit is due to the young folks who took part, it being the first time that many of them made their appearance on the stage.

The fences are being repaired and the land is being made ready for another season's crop—a sure sign that old winter has taken his departure. The old fellow had a good, hard, merry time of it, but it is all over now. Very pleasant and sweet to the songs of the birds sound when listening to them in the early morning.

Coal is very scarce here now and almost everybody has his winter's stock burned, and none to get anywhere. If some charitably disposed person would send a cargo he would have no difficulty in getting clear of it.

Mr. H. J. Bishop, Principal of Bay Roberts Academy, and one of our very best teachers, arrived home this evening to spend his week-end holiday.

His Lordship Bishop Jones intends paying us a visit to-morrow in order to administer the rite of Confirmation. Many of the young people and a few of the older ones are going to be confirmed.

Ever since Tuesday night the F. P. U. members have been going around wearing the brightest of smiles on their countenances. On asking the reason of so much merriment, the only answer vouchsafed is "Tea." On further enquiry we find that a chest of 31c. per lb. tea was distributed among them, and the flavour of the tea combined with the low price has illuminated their features ever since. Long live Mr. Coaker and the Union! May 3rd, 1912. VIZ.

Light, Warmth and Food.

These three words embrace the most urgent necessities of life, and it is an extraordinary thing that in each case our thoughts turn to Gas; this, after all, is but natural. We want Light, gas gives us the best, cheapest and healthiest artificial light known. Again, we want Warmth, and the gas fire is at hand to give it in its best form; and, lastly, we must have Food, and here the gas cooker never fails us. All this is absolutely true, as we have shown over and over again.

If, however, any of our customers are in the least doubtful on any of these points, we cordially invite them to consult us. In the meantime, our advice is to get good burners and buy mantles of well-known makes, to use modern gas fires and cookers, and, above all, to keep your gas appliances (whether old or new) in good order, for in this is the true secret of efficiency and complete satisfaction.

Maxims of a Leap Year Girl.

Handsome is as handsome does. You can live on a handsome income, but not on a handsome face.

Also — marry for love, but for heaven's sake love a rich man.

The best wine buyer is not always the best food provider.

She who courts and runs away may live to court another day.

But she who courts and won't be a wife, may be alone for all her life.

The man who looks like ready money may act like a financial stringency.

Don't judge a man by the size of the tips he gives the waiter. He may take them out of your household allowance.

Tell him he is the only man you ever loved. He won't believe it any more than you believe it, but it may please him.

On the other hand, he may tell you to get a reputation.

Having received all this advice, you will doubtless proceed to propose in the same old way.

Which consists in making the man think he is doing it.

Japanese Hold on the Mexican Coast.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 27.—The expedition sent unofficially to investigate the conditions at Magdalena Bay returned last night and reported as follows:—

The Japanese syndicate has secured from the Mexican Government a fisheries concession covering seven hundred miles of coast between Manzanillo and Selinas Cruz, and extensive agricultural and timber land grants.

Thirty Japanese scientists and experts are in the field making a survey of the concession under the direction of Itey Yokayama, of the Japanese Parliament.

A Japanese fisheries expert, retained by the Japanese Government, is in charge of the new Sanchoa cannery at Magdalena Bay.

The expert will report to Japan on the character of both fisheries and the adjacent agricultural lands. The concession was secured through the Japanese ambassador.
