SUCCESS OF THE SERBS.

SALONIKA, Nov. 21. The official statement from the Serbian headquarters, issued to-day, reads: Despite the stubborn resistance of the enemy the Serbs advanced northward and occupied the village of Hapsh, north of Suhodol. The Serbs defeated the Germans, forcing them to beat a hasty retreat. A great number of prisoners, Germans and Bulgarians, and considerable booty was captured. In this retreat the enemy abandoned a quantity of stores, engineering and other materials.

STILL RETIRING.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 21. The Rumanian forces in south-western Rumania have retired in the face of Austro-German attacks to the region of Filischi, 48 miles northwest of Craiova, according to an official statement issued to-day.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, Nov. 21. The official communication on the French front given out by the war office this afternoon reads as follows: Artillery action was maintained last night to a notable degree in the regions of Salisiel and Douaumont. The night passed calm, relative calm everywhere also on the front. Troops of the Allies are pressing the Bulgarians rear guard detachments to the north of Monastir, according to an official announcement. This afternoon, Italian forces have repulsed counter attacks to west of Monastir. French troops have occupied the village of Kriani.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, Nov. 21. The official bulletin from British headquarters in France issued to-day, reads: During the day there was considerable hostile shelling against our front on both sides of the Ancre. Elsewhere nothing to report. Yesterday our airplanes operated successfully with our artillery. Two of our machines are missing.

BERLIN REPORT DENIED.

LONDON, Nov. 21. The following was issued by the British Admiralty to-night: In connection with the Berlin report of the sinking of the French guard vessel, the British Admiralty states on the authority of the French Minister of Marine, that no French war vessel was sunk on the 14th in the English Channel.

SERRAIL CONGRATULATED.

PARIS, Nov. 21. General Joffre sent a telegram to General Serrail, commanding in Macedonia, cordially congratulating him and his men for having taken Monastir. The message includes a special general army order addressed to officers and men of the army of the east, praising them for having driven the Germans and Bulgarians from Western Macedonia. In conclusion the message says, "You have deprived the enemy of Monastir; to-morrow you will end it by beating him."

ASKED FOR TIME FOR DEPARTURE.

ATHENS, Nov. 21. Diplomatic representatives of the Central Empires, who were ordered by the Entente authorities to leave Greece, asked that they be allowed till Saturday to take their departure. This morning the Secretary of the American Legation, Sledon Whitehouse, conferred with the Turkish, Bulgarian and Austrian Ministers with reference to the United States taking over the interests of their nations. The Dutch Minister will be charged with the care of the German interests.

MUST LEAVE ATHENS.

LONDON, Nov. 21. A despatch to Reuters' Telegram Co. from Athens says the delay demanded by the Austro-German diplomats for their departure from Athens has been refused. All of them will be asked to leave Athens on Wednesday morning.

ASKED TO MAKE RETURNS.

LONDON, Nov. 21. The Board of Trade has issued an order requiring all persons cultivating more than ten acres of land in the United Kingdom to make returns of their potato stock and contracts by December 7.

WILL BEAR SHARE OF BRITAIN'S WAR DEBT.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21. The British port of Hong Kong, China, under an arrangement just completed between the imperial and Colonial Governments, will bear its share of Britain's war debt. The Colony, according to a report to-day to the American Government, is planning a loan of $1,500,000 gold for the purpose.

MINNESOTA DAMAGED.

LONDON, Nov. 21. The British steamer Minnesota returned here to-day with several plates damaged; cause unknown. The Minnesota was on a voyage from London for Philadelphia.

WASHINGTON'S REFUSAL.

LONDON, Nov. 21. Washington's refusal to permit the publication of the reports of American officials on the prison camps in Germany, was the subject of a question to-day in the Commons. Lord Robert Cecil, replying to the interrogator, said he had some reason to believe that while the States' Government objected to the principle of publication of such reports, its consent might be obtained to the publication of individual reports.

AUSTRIAN EMPEROR VERY ILL.

BERLIN, Nov. 21. A Vienna despatch says the Overseas News Agency reports the condition of Emperor Francis Joseph has become worse to-day. His temperature increased in the afternoon.

BERLIN SAYS GRAVOVA CAPTURED.

BERLIN, Nov. 21. The capture of Gravoia in Western Wallachia, by German troops, was announced in a war official this evening. Regarding the fighting in Northern France, the evening statement reported thick fog in the Somme district with lessening activity along this front.

KING CONSTANTINE'S ATTITUDE.

LONDON, Nov. 21. Reuter's Athens correspondent telegraphing under yesterday's date, says: The main discussion at this morning's session of the Crown Council regarding the refusal of the Austro-German Minister to accept Vice-Admiral Du Fournet's notice to leave Greece, was the attitude to be taken by the King in the event of their demanding his protection. It is learned that Premier Briand, of France, in a letter to the King, suggested that in order to emerge from his present difficulties, he seek reconciliation with former Premier Venizelos and declare war on Bulgaria.

STATEMENT CONFIRMED.

LONDON, Nov. 21. In the Commons to-day, Lord Robert Cecil confirmed the statement made that 25,000 Belgian men had been deported from various parts of Belgium to work in German coal, iron and steel industries in the Rhine Province and Westphalia; that after the surrender of Antwerp the military government gave Cardinal Mercier a written assurance that no Belgians would be deported; and that his assurance was confirmed by Field Marshal Von der Golz, now dead, who at the time was Governor-General of Belgium. Lord Robert added the German officer, under whose orders the first deportations from Flanders were carried out, was formerly Governor of Brussels, and was directly responsible for the execution of Nurse Cavell. The British Government, Lord Robert added, would support every Belgian protest, but the only way to solve the question was to prosecute the war with all our powers and make it a cardinal point to secure the liberation of Belgian territory and the Belgians.

THE "TANKS"

LONDON, Nov. 21. On being asked in the Commons to-day why English papers are not permitted to publish photos of the British armoured motor cars or Tanks, such as appeared in American papers, Lloyd George, the British War Secretary, said: "I have some of these photos. They bear absolutely no resemblance to the actual machines."

A DISASTROUS EXPLOSION.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 21. It was announced officially that 241 persons were killed and 667 wounded by an explosion on the Bakaritzza. The statement follows: According to supplementary information the number of persons killed by the explosion on the Bakaritzza found after clearing the debris and masonry was 241, while the number injured according to reports received from hospitals were 49 officers and officials, 437 soldiers, 121 civilians and 65 women. Of the crews of British merchant ships 27 were killed and 26 injured. The large number of victims was due to the fact that the explosion occurred during the dinner hour when the men were resting in huts which were wrecked by the explosion.

BERLIN SAYS:

BERLIN, Nov. 21. A German submarine sank in the English Channel on Nov. 14th a French guard-vegel and seven merchant ships, one of them a Norwegian, according to an official bulletin issued to-day.

TEUTON SUCCESS.

BERLIN, Nov. 21. The capture by General Von Falkenhayn's forces of the town of Craiova, apparently clinches the Austro-German hold upon a large section of Western Wallachia and probably means the cutting off of important Rumanian forces from their line of retreat by railroad. Craiova lies on the main line between Orsova and Bucharest, about 120 miles west of the capital. The Rumanian army retreating in the Jiu Valley and falling back towards this town, was defeated in the Petrograd official statement of Tuesday, to have reached the region of Filischi, about 40 miles northwest of Craiova. If General Falkenhayn's troops have beaten it to Craiova, as seems probable, its railway line retreat has been severed. Likewise it would appear that the Rumanian forces which have been operating in Orsova are seriously imperilled if not cut off by the new Teutonic successes. Craiova before the war had a population of 55,000, and was an active centre of Rumanian trade.

The credit system is a test of endurance which shows just how far a retail business will run on the proceeds of a 160-acre farm. One of the liveliest and most poignant experiences in this life is for a man to exchange a good farm dotted here and there with the sprightly pig and the introspective heifer for a grocery store in a town whose people do not believe in paying for anything until the bill has been admitted to probate. The mercantile agencies tell us in mournful numbers that the credit system is responsible for more deep-well failures than the habit of going fishing four times a week. Whenever a new merchant comes to town and opens up with a credit system which will stretch farther than a new stocking supporter, he will have much to trade that nobody else wants, that his petty ledger will choke to death inside of a week. One of the easiest things in the world is to sell a good patent, XXX flour to customers who have not paid for anything since James K. Polk was elected President. If it were not for the credit system the two-legged pest known as the month's-end debit would entirely disappear and be replaced by a class of trade which comes in before the tenth of the month following, and leaves a check along with an order

Sir James Watson's Opinion Considered Most Valuable.

He says that the commonest of all disorders, and one from which few escape is Catarrh. Sir James Watson believes in local treatment, which is best supplied by "Catarrhoxone." No case of Catarrh can exist where Catarrhoxone is used; it is a miracle worker, relieves almost instantly and cures after other remedies fail. Other treatments can't reach the diseased parts like Catarrhoxone because it goes to the source of the trouble along with the air you breathe. Catarrhoxone is free from cocaine, it leaves no bad after-effects, it is simply nature's own cure.

Beware of dangerous substitutes offered under misleading names and meant to deceive you for genuine Catarrhoxone which is sold everywhere, large size containing two months treatment costs $1.00; small size, 50c.; trial size, 25c.

Man Broke Leg.

At six o'clock last evening a man named John Terry, of Battery Road, met with a painful accident. He is a seaman on the barqet Alembic and was on his way to his supper. When about a hundred yards from home he slipped on the icy ground and fell heavily, breaking his leg below the knee. He was lifted into the house of a man named McCarthy and attended by Dr. Tait. Later he was driven to the General Hospital for treatment.

The Crescent Picture Palace presents Blanche Sweet in "The Blue Princess and the Poet." Life's drama told in a fairy tale, a beautiful spectacle of the icy ground and fell heavily, breaking his leg below the knee. He was lifted into the house of a man named McCarthy and attended by Dr. Tait. Later he was driven to the General Hospital for treatment.

The mercantile agencies tell us in mournful numbers that the credit system is responsible for more deep-well failures than the habit of going fishing four times a week. Whenever a new merchant comes to town and opens up with a credit system which will stretch farther than a new stocking supporter, he will have much to trade that nobody else wants, that his petty ledger will choke to death inside of a week. One of the easiest things in the world is to sell a good patent, XXX flour to customers who have not paid for anything since James K. Polk was elected President. If it were not for the credit system the two-legged pest known as the month's-end debit would entirely disappear and be replaced by a class of trade which comes in before the tenth of the month following, and leaves a check along with an order

High Blood Pressure

When your case becomes complicated and medicines fail, the doctor makes a test of the blood pressure, fearing that there may be something wrong with the condition of the kidneys and the action of the heart. He realizes that when the kidneys fail to filter the poisons from the blood that there will be a hardening of the arteries, and when the pressure of blood comes on they will snap like so much deteriorated rubber-tubing—the result is a clot of blood on the heart, or wherever the weak point may be. But why allow this condition to be reached when you can so readily regulate the action of the liver and kidneys by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Troubles of this nature have their beginning when, from over-eating or lack of exercise, the liver goes wrong, and throws an undue burden on the kidneys. Headaches, biliousness, constipation and indigestion give due warning, and by the timely use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills there need be no further trouble. The liver is awakened to action, the bowels regulated, and the kidneys strengthened in their all-important work by purifying the blood and thereby preventing pain and serious disease. This is the greatest of family medicines, because of the host of ills that are relieved and prevented by keeping the liver, kidneys and bowels healthy and active. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box. All dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations disappoint.

Roumania's Peril.

We do not need an intimate knowledge either of military tactics or of the local topography to realise how serious is the plight of Roumania at this hour. The most casual examination of the map will reveal her present danger. Like Serbia last year, though not in like measure, she is the unfortunate victim of geography, both her position relative to her enemies and her peculiar configuration making her particularly vulnerable to such an attack as that she is fighting desperately to ward off. Events have only followed the course which it has been feared for some time that they would take. In a country so poorly served with them, railways are more than ever vitally necessary, and the invaders are rapidly getting control of one of the most important. Falkenhayn's troops have got all the way to Craiova; next they will take Slatina. Thus they are actually behind, or to the east of, the considerable Roumanian army, which has no railway over which to retreat. Even when it does retreat it must run almost into the jaws of the northern army which is pressing south from the region of Kampulung. It is a desperate situation.

There would seem to be only one escape. It is to keep the jaws of the closing vise open, and this can only be done by the use of such reinforcements in men and artillery as our ally may not have at her command or may not be able to send quickly enough to the scene. As a direct result of the latest developments, we shall probably see the come-back in Dobruja, which was progressing so favourably, again checked. For the present Mackensen can do little harm, but if Falkenhayn can effect a junction with him the effect will be tremendous. It is impossible not to feel the deepest concern for Roumania, but the fact must always be borne in mind that nothing short of her complete elimination is likely to advantage Germany much. The latter is staking a lot on a throw which is obviously dictated in large part by moral and sentimental considerations. What she is losing by it is apparent elsewhere and the striking victories on the Ancre and at Monastir may be the prelude of events which will outweigh anything that she may achieve against Roumania.

An unhappy life ends with the death of the aged Austrian Emperor. He was born under a baneful star which increased its malign influence as the years passed. Murder, treachery, assassination and intrigue marked his royal career as one more fitting to Machiavellian times. It is too early yet to know how the news will be received in the different capitals, but whatever the ultimate effect of the change of sovereigns it can have little bearing upon the present military situation. Austria is too much a vassal of Prussia to-day to permit her ruler to assert himself even if he wishes to do so. In the personality of the new Emperor Charles, however, may lie the germs of much of the future history of the dual monarchy. For the present no one will envy him the greatness descended upon him.

Our readers will be interested to know that the Florizel has been suspected of entry into the ore-carrying business. We print elsewhere an item from the Sydney Record telling how it was at first thought she had collided with a "dock" at Bell Island and drifted helplessly out to sea. On second thoughts, however, our N. S. neighbour was convinced it was not the Florizel but the Company's steamer Flawyl. On third thoughts, it was not the Flawyl either and no one could say what it was. Our own first and last thought is that somebody here appears to derive much amusement, and possibly something more substantial, from retelling rubbish concerning matters local to foreign news agencies. This is not the first evidence of his imaginative powers.

Private Jensen at Portugal Cove.

Last evening the people of Portugal Cove were privileged to hear an address on the war from the veteran soldier and lecturer Private Phil Jensen, who, accompanied by the two Misses Johnson and Mr. W. W. Blackall, drove out to the Cove last night. On arrival at the historic and patriotic settlement the party were taken to the C. E. Parish Hall the spacious building being then filled to overflowing by a large and enthusiastic audience. The Rector of the Parish, Rev. Mr. Legge, acted as chairman and introduced Private Jensen, who for upwards of an hour related his experiences since leaving the shores of the Great Dominion until he left the hospital in England to return to his native land. The meeting was not held especially for the purpose of raising recruits as it is a well known fact that Portugal Cove has sent more men in proportion than any other place in Newfoundland. During the evening songs and violin selections were given by the Misses Johnson and Mr. Blackall, which were greatly enjoyed by all. A vote of thanks to Private Jensen and those who assisted in making the evening so enjoyable was proposed by Mr. Henry Hussey, C. E. teacher, seconded by Mr. G. A. Moulton and supported by Mr. W. D. Rose. A collection in aid of the Red Cross Fund was taken up and a handsome sum realized.

British Chaplain at Ancre

Searching for the Wounded Captured 400 Germans in Trench.

With the British Armies in France, Nov. 16—A British chaplain, while searching the battlefield of the Ancre for wounded hidden in the shell craters during the British advance, accompanied by a few soldiers, came upon an isolated trench containing nearly four hundred Germans, who promptly surrendered. The chaplain ordered the men to file out upon the open ground, preparatory to passing them back to an escort, when the German officer, seeing the small size of the force to which he was surrendering, tried to rally his men and overpower it. He was about to kill the chaplain when a British infantryman shot him dead, whereupon the other Germans again held up their hands and shouted their eagerness to be made prisoners.

Who'll Take His Place?

With smiles on his face he heard the call.
He was not slow to reply;
Smiling, cheerful, he was seen to fall,
His face upturned to the sky.
Many will miss him, many will weep
For the soldier now at rest.
In France he's sleeping his last long sleep,
His memory is ever blest.

Only a private, only a youth.
But he did his duty well,
Fighting for liberty, right, and truth—
His comrades the story tell.
He was so cheerful 'tho' things looked blue,
His friends around him he cheered;
He was a Britisher tried and true,
One who of Death, was not "skereed."

On the field of honour where he fell
He's buried, and o'er his grave
A wooden cross, name and number tell
His young life, his all, he gave.
He fought, he died, to the end, was true.
He died with a smiling face;
And dying, this was his call to you,
"Sonny, come and take my place."

Germans Are Not Inventors.

London Chronicle: "Let us get rid of the superstition that the Germans excel in inventiveness," says Colonel Gabonsky, the Swiss military critic. It should not be difficult. The difficulty would be to discover what really great thing the Germans have done for the enlightenment of the world and the progress of civilization. A German professor, Beckmann, wrote, a "History of Inventions," but his own country makes a poor show in its pages, and, coming beyond the period it covers, the Teutonic record is a sorry one. To take some of the great familiar things Germans did not invent, there is the steam engine and steamboat, the telegraph, the telephone, wireless telegraphy, the aeroplane, even the balloon, of which the Zeppelin is a monstrous perversion. An English Bishop devised the first universal language, and a German professor stole the idea.

Many Narrow Escapes in the Somme.

In the fighting on the Somme where legions of men face death daily, narrow escapes from sudden extermination become trifling incidents to be joked about at the end of the day. A sergeant in a Yorkshire regiment declares nothing a man may do seems to affect his chances of becoming a "casualty."

"I've seen careful men get winged before the daybreak," said the sergeant, "and I've seen the careless man get hit when the cautious one escapes. Recently one of the men in my platoon was hit in the mouth. The bullet came from an angle, broke one of his teeth and glanced off; just grazing his lip. Ten minutes later, a bullet dented his identity disc and later still a bomb exploded in his pocket, bursting outwards and badly bruising his side."

Doctors tell of one man in the fighting near Le Sars, who went thru the experience of having three bombs explode in his pocket without hurting him. A corporal, wearing a steel helmet, was hit by a bullet which went in at the front of the headgear, passed around his head, and went out the back, smashing the steel of the helmet. His head showed no marks.

Three soldiers were standing together when a bomb burst at their feet. A sergeant was blown into the air and badly wounded while the others were unscathed.

The Scots do abhor waste. There is the story of the aged Saunders Carlyle, who always drank off his whiskey to the last drop the very instant it was poured out for him. WAR REVIEW.
LONDON.—The Austro-German forces eastward through south-western Romania have captured the town of Craiova, and the Roumanians retreating down the Jiu River to other points from the Alpine region apparently are being cut off. The troops of Ferdinand in the Jiu Valley reached Filiasi, but here they were flanked by the Teutonic troops of Craiova, and without the railway to convey them, they seemingly must be caught in the plains of Wallachia in the advance of the Teutonic Army. An added peril to the Roumanians in this region is noted in the advance of the Teutonic Army. The Alt Valley south of the Jiu River, where Petrosani and Roumanians are retiring, is a narrow strip of land, and an advance along the railway 25 miles would give the Austro-German forces a direct line to the important railroad town of the retreating Roumanians. Valley also to take to the north in an effort to escape into the region of Bucharest. Little is reported from any of the front in the Somme region in heavy fog has hung over the battlefield and on Tuesday night artillery duels took place. Moments and minor infantry attacks occurred in the Italian front in Macedonia, and according to Entente troops north of Macedonia pressing the German forces. West of Monastir the have repulsed counter attacks by the Teutonic Allies.

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, October 30th, 1916.
PRINCESS PATS PUPPY.

Princess Patricia, always fond of pets, has brought home with her a little fluffy puppy of a Canadian breed. There was a doubt whether the puppy would survive the voyage, but he proved himself a fine sea-dog, and is now as frisky as ever, and is greatly attached to his young mistress, whom he will rejoin after the statutory period of quarantine.

SIR JOSEPH BEECHAM.

Though one of the greatest advertisers of the time, Sir Joseph Beecham preferred to keep himself out of the limelight, as he truly told the Royal Commission on Advertisements some time ago. Though he had a house in London and stayed there some days every week, he was totally unknown to the vast majority of Londoners till the public musical activities of his son, Sir Thomas, directed attention to him. In the last few years he was a familiar figure at the opera, especially during the performances of the famous Russians. He was himself in his youth more than a fair organist and was a shrewd judge of music. He was typical of all that is best in the North-country industrial magnate. I remember that once he purposely shocked a very superior young musical amateur, who was rhapsodising with futile superlatives about the Russian opera, by saying that in music as in everything else, the thing is "to deliver the goods." Another typical remark of his was when a musician kept him waiting for an appointment. He said, "I have never been late for an appointment in my life, even when it was with an office boy to sack him." He was methodical in small things. On the Underground he did not have a ticket, but travelled without one in virtue of the railway director's golden key which he carried. Sir Joseph Beecham was an extensive picture collector of nineteenth century English pictures. So far as I recollect he had a dozen of Turner's late Italian water colours, and his chief treasure was Turner's famous picture of the St. Gothard diligence overturned in the snow. My impression of his oil pictures was that the quality varied sharply, and that while a number of his Constables and masters of the Norwich school would do credit to any collection, many of them would have been weeded out by a careful collector. I remarked to him that he seemed to have come through many stages in his art interest, and in reply he told me how he began to collect. He said, with a frankness that characterized all his doings, that the first picture he bought was a plate issued by a sporting paper of the redoubtable Tom Sayer, who met Heenan in the famous fight in 1860. He was a boy then, very keen about boxing. He had it framed and hung in his bedroom, and he added to it plates of other fistic champions. His art interests enlarged, and by and by he gave up sporting plates and collected pictures.

TRADE AFTER THE WAR.

A correspondent—the managing director of an engineering concern—writes to emphasise the significance of the German scheme of linking up the Krupp firm with the North German Lloyd Steamship lines. The Essen firm has now purchased an interest in the steamship company, and one of its directors is to have a seat on the board. In view of the correspondent this adroit move of forging a new link between the Essen works and the Bremen ships is not a mere private commercial transaction, but another

A Child Gets Cross, Sick and Feverish When Constipated

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated clean little liver and bowels.

If your little one's tongue is coated, it is a sure sign the stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When your child is cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, system full of cold, throat sore, or if feverish, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. They also know a little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here. Get the genuine made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

step in a well-matured plan to realize the ambition of Germany to become the first shipping Power of the world. "When war broke out official Germany had so organised its machine shops that only the presence of a button was required to switch all the works on to munition making. All that is happening now shows that at the psychological moment, the same procedure will be adopted, with this difference—that Germany machinery will make wares for the world's marts instead of munitions for the Fatherland." It is not presumably intended to ignore the fact that at the end of the war we are likely to have a considerable number of machine shops to "switch on" to the world's marts, too. The point urged is the necessity of perfecting without delay the organization for a co-operative commercial campaign upon at least as large a scale.

ZEPPELIN WRECKER WOUNDED.

One of the first British airmen who wrecked a Zeppelin was in the casualty list of October 23rd. Squadron Commander Reginald Marx, D.S.O., who has been severely injured, was leader in the successful attack on the Dusseldorf airship shed in October, 1914. It was one of his bombs, dropped from 500 feet, which hit the shed, went through the roof, and destroyed a Zeppelin. Nothing remained of the airship but ruins and ashes, and even German papers had to go as far as to report next day—"Zeppelin shed slightly damaged." It was the first airship ever destroyed single-handed by an aeroplane. The machine driven by Marx was only one of those little Sopwith biplane scouts known among aviators as "Tabloids." After their work was done Marx and his two companions had to abandon their machines outside Antwerp, where they saw them smashed by German artillery. Reginald Marx was a well-known aviator before the war. He joined the Naval Air Service in November, 1912. After his Dusseldorf exploit he worried the Germans in Flanders a lot with a powerful armoured motor-car.

SYNTHETIC MILK.

On the invitation of Mr. William Lawton, the cookery and dietetic expert, a large company visited on October 24th the rooms of the Society of Medical Officers of Health, where a new synthetic milk for household purposes was exhibited. The substance may be prepared at home with half the usual amount of cow's milk, thereby reducing the outlay to 4d. per quart. Allegations have been made against the farmers and dairymen "Let the consumers put their heads together," Mr. Lawton says, "and milk prices will come down with a run." His "synthetic milk improver" is a sweet smelling powder, "redolent of the meadows," which was mixed with water and boiled for a few minutes before being added to an equal amount of cow's milk. After being strained and cooled the mixture is found to be practically indistinguishable from new milk. The powder is stated to be composed solely of bone-forming and body-building constituents. It is partly composed of cow's milk, but the rest is Mr. Lawton's secret. A dozen ingredients are employed, requiring careful mixing. Mr. Lawton assured me that the object of his crusade was to force the hand of the milk dealers and that there was no commercial purpose in view. Apart from the immediate controversy, he appears to have evolved a milk substitute free from peculiarity of taste, which should be as useful to the milk drinker as it appears to be for the making of the varied dishes that were submitted for tasting.

CHRISTMAS TOYS.

As the Christmas toy season draws nearer the big wholesale London distributing firms have been able to estimate more clearly what toys will be available. Generally speaking, toys will be dearer, and some of the cheaper kinds for which we look to Germany in peace time will be practically unobtainable. The toy trade, I am told by an expert, centers round the supplies of cloth, metal, wood and labor. Since the war commenced the price of wood has gone up three times that of metal two or three times, while plush, of which the quaint animal toys are made, has increased enormously in cost. British manufacturers have come to the rescue so far as the boxes of metal soldiers beloved of the small boy are concerned. On the other hand, though there is a fairly plentiful supply of clock-work mechanical toys, the small working steam engine is practically extinct. High-class engineering toys of this description are still made in this country, but the cheaper varieties, which varied in price from a shilling to a guinea were made in Germany. So the child with an engineering bent may have to content himself with constructive engineering sets. Cheap magic lanterns and cinematographs will not be displayed in anything like the usual number, and the cheap doll, on the manufacture of which Germany had scientifically concentrated, appears to be still one of the problems of British toy-makers. The supplies of dolls, though ample in number, are said to be not so good in quality while dearer in price.

TO HAVE A PRETTY ARM.

To have a pretty arm is a boon craved by most women. But arms are not all pretty, and to make them so will require treatment and lots of patience. One must remember that it is harder to build up than to tear down. However, there are simple treatments that will work wonderful improvement, if not entirely correct the faults. Exercise may be adopted, that will perfect the circulation and take away from or add to any part of the arm. Should the arm be thin the exercise should be mild, but if there is too much flesh the exercise should be vigorous.

An ideal method of plumping the arms is to wrap them with oiled bandages to be worn at night. Before applying the bandages, the entire arm should be bathed with warm water for eight or ten minutes. In addition to cleansing the skin it opens the pores and better prepares the skin to absorb the oil.

The bandages should be strips of linen about two inches wide, which are first soaked in olive oil and then applied. Begin at the wrist by winding the bandage around the arm, working upward until the whole arm is encased. The bandage should be put on firmly, but not so tight as to retard circulation. To prevent one's clothing or bed clothes from becoming soiled, oiled silk may be used to cover the bandages.

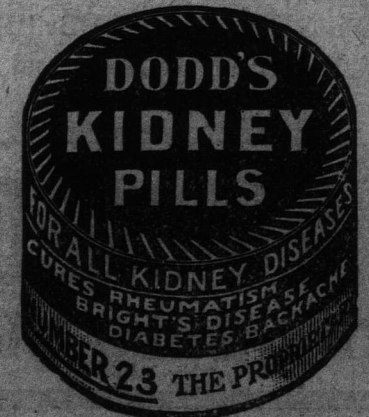

The oil may be applied by massaging the arms but the bandages are better. The arms should be bathed again in the morning and after being thoroughly dried a small amount of oil again rubbed into the skin by friction, after which the arms should be wiped with a soft cloth and then powdered.

PROBLEMS.

Our problems ever face us, however elections go, and in our dreams they chase us, and fill our sleep with woe. No matter who may guide us, and sail our ship of state, our problems still will ride us, we still must pay the freight. Oh, not the politician, whose larynx works "on high," will better our condition, or feed our children pie. No platform ever written will bring you window glass, or cat meat for the kitten, or pay for coal and gas. No politician's pledges, no whiskered campaign wheeze, will bring us goodly wedges of bread and Limburg cheese. And now the trouble's ended; the long campaign is done; and after efforts splendid the right (or wrong) men won. We, having whooped and hollered until our throats are sore, will hew the stately pollard, and balm our hay once more. To keep the kettle boiling, and buy the children bran, we now resume our toiling, as bravely as we can.

State Agents and Wheat Crops.

Chicago Wheat Advanced Twenty-Five Cents Bushel Since British Government Began Buying on Oct. 9th.

The remarkable rise in the price of wheat which has recently taken place happens to have followed very closely upon the action of the Government in undertaking the control of the wheat supplies of this country. Whether there is any connection at all between the two facts is a somewhat doubtful point, but it is certain that the main factors in the increased cost of food are independent of the agency by which the public is provided with its daily bread. From one point of view it is a fortunate fact that the present extraordinary rise, which has brought the price of wheat up to a higher level than it has reached since the Napoleonic Wars, should have followed instead of preceding the recent drastic action of the Government. The mentality of the majority of the people, and probably of every people, with regard to food prices is somewhat curious. As far as can be ascertained, public indignation at high prices is due less to the actual inconvenience which the high prices cause than to the suspicion that somebody is making an illegitimate profit. In the final resort this feeling probably arises from the reflection that evils which are inevitable must be borne, whereas evils which are the result of unfairness or selfishness ought to be combated. If the present range of prices had come into operation while the "profters" were still doing the main work of supplying this country with wheat, there might have been dangerous political agitation against these "enemies of mankind." That evil, at any rate, has been avoided by the recent action of the Government.

When the full story of the Government proceedings in connection with the supply of wheat comes to be told, the country will probably learn some very useful lessons in political economy. It will also learn, we have good reason for believing, that on the whole the Government have done their best in very difficult circumstances, and have prevented certain definite evils, while possibly and almost inevitably creating new ones. Very wisely the Board of Trade from the outset took the view that the essential problem to be solved was not the reduction of price but the maintenance of supply. About a year ago the Government realized the importance of accumulating some reserve of wheat in this country with a view to contingencies, and took steps with the full knowledge of the corn trade to purchase an appreciable reserve. The actual amount of the reserve has not been made public. It was never intended to be very large, and the trade was specifically informed of the amount which would be purchased, and was assured that the Government would use this hoard to knock down the market arbitrarily. Needless to say, the Government had not only to acquire the wheat, but had also to make provision for bringing it to our shores. Very wisely, again, the Board of Trade decided that they would buy in North America rather than in South America or Australia because of the rapidity of delivery. The round voyage to Australia takes about five months, and within that period something like half-a-dozen voyages can be made from Liverpool to New York. Consequently in view of the shortage of tonnage, it was obviously wise to go to the nearest source of supply.

The pursuance of this policy had a peculiar effect upon those newspapers which devote their energies to trying to find every day some new popular cry. In consequence of the relative restriction of the tonnage employed in the South American trade, freight Incandescent Gas Lighting.

The remarkable economy of the incandescent gas lamp is by no means either its chief—or even an important—claim for popularity. It meets better than any other source of artificial light the requirements of ideal light.

In the color of the light produced it is far superior to any other illuminant in general and universal use. The investigations of acknowledged authorities indicate that for the approximation of daylight color values is important. For lighting shops, display cases, haberdashery, suitings, gowns, millinery, etc., the incandescent gas lamp is not even remotely approached by any other incandescent lamp.

Its quality is highly desirable, indeed absolutely essential where the approximation of daylight color values is important. For lighting shops, display cases, haberdashery, suitings, gowns, millinery, etc., the incandescent gas lamp is not even remotely approached by any other incandescent lamp.

All the manifold advantages of gas light, perhaps the most important, is its favorable effect upon the eyes. The development of the incandescent electric lamp with its intense brilliant and glaring filament has been accompanied by hitherto unheard of prevalence of eye troubles and diseases which are forcing themselves upon the attention of the medical fraternity. This is resulting in a greater appreciation of the soft mellow quality of gas light and is rapidly enlarging its field of use.—July 23, 1901.

from the Argentine to this country rose to a stupendous figure. Ingenious writers worked out that the price paid for carrying a quarter of wheat from the River Plate to the River Thames was equivalent to something like twopenny on the loaf, and a scream was raised that the poor were being starved because the Government preferred to put money into the pockets of the shipowners rather than to bring the country with bread at a reasonable price. As a matter of fact, so far as the price of bread was concerned, the high freights from the Argentine were absolutely without effect; for the bulk of our wheat supply was all the time coming from North America, and the effect of the high freights from the Plate to the Thames was to diminish the price which the Argentine wheat-grower was able to pocket, not to increase the price which the English consumer had to pay. If the contrary policy had been adopted, and the ships had been freighted from North America to South America, there would have been less economical use of our tonnage, and a consequent inevitable increase in the price of wheat as of other commodities.

Meanwhile another curious thing happened, which shows how unexpected are the results of Government interference with the work of commerce. As stated above, the Government agreed to buy wheat only to acquire a limited number of quarters of wheat as a reserve against contingencies, and as soon as they had acquired that number they ceased to make any further purchases. But the fact that this reserve existed seems to have terrorized a section of the market. At the same time rumours of the possible opening of the Dardanelles or of the possible conquest of Bulgaria frightened dealers in wheat and made them hesitate to speculate heavily. It is easy enough to denounce the "profters," but it is just as well to remember that a man who risks his whole fortune in bringing wheat to this country on the chance of being able to make a profit out of the transaction is really doing a public service. If he is to be denounced whenever he succeeds in making a profit, it is certain that he will not take the risk of a loss.

The result of these various causes was that in June and July last wheat in North America dropped to a comparatively low price. It would obviously have been to the interest of this country as a whole to buy as much of this cheap wheat as possible, and tonnage had actually been reserved for carrying it; but the Government could not buy because they were pledged to the trade to limit their hoard to a figure already reached, and the trade would not buy, except from hand to mouth, because they were afraid, for the reasons above given, of a possible heavy fall of prices later on. It even became necessary to liberate tonnage which had been reserved for the wheat trade and to allow shipowners to load up with other things for this country or for our allies. If the situation had continued, we might have fallen really short of a supply of wheat.

These are some of the grounds which induced the Government to plunge still further into the wheat business, and to undertake the responsibility for keeping the country supplied. As has already been made public, one of the steps taken was the purchase from the Australian Government of the large stock of wheat which Mr. Hughes had previously bought from the Australian farmers. Mr. Hughes had long been anxious to sell this wheat, but the policy pursued by the Australian Government in commandeering ships at unprofitable freights had frightened independent shipowners away from Australia, with the result that the wheat had been left on his hands. The Home Government have been able to help the Australian Government out of this difficulty through the control which they have exercised on the whole very tactfully over the shipping trade. Shipowners, like other "profters," have served as a butt for writers who are content to pick out a few striking facts and to evolve a theory from them; but there is good reason to believe that though shipowners have undoubtedly made large profits in the last year, they have also been patriotically willing to adapt themselves to the exigencies of the situation, and to carry necessities such as wheat at very low rates when they could have obtained fancy freights for carrying luxuries. The Government in turn are entitled to claim that through their intervention they secured a large reduction of the freights which were beginning to rule in the Transatlantic trade.

The position now is that owing to the appearance of rust in the North American wheat crop, owing in a lesser degree to the reduction in our home-grown wheat supply, and owing much more to the increased consumption of all the Allied countries—because a soldier under arms eats more heartily than the same man in civilian life can generally afford to do—the supply of wheat has not kept pace with the demand, and the price has inevitably risen. Is this rise in price which justifies the expensive procedure of sending ships on the long voyage to the Antipodes to fetch Mr. Hughes' stock of Australian wheat.

It must be added that the proceedings of our Government have been complicated by the necessity of considering the interests of our Allies. At a very early stage both Italy and France asked the British Government to help them in maintaining their supplies of wheat, just as they had previously asked that we should help them with their meat supply. Our Government agreed subject to the very reasonable condition, which was at once accepted, that the three Governments should not compete with one another either in the wheat market or in the tonnage market. The Board of Trade, as far as can be learnt, have done their best to hold the balance with absolute fairness between the interests of the three countries concerned, but each has had its own difficulties to contend with. At an early stage the Italians were very remiss in unloading ships, largely, it appears, through the action of the "dockers' Unions." Similar difficulties seem still to be experienced in France, possibly through the deficiency of dock labour. We may assume that the same kind of Departmental difficulties which are constantly befalling our own Government are not absent in either France or Italy. Even a war for national existence will not prevent Government Departments from fighting with one another regardless of the public interest. More serious still is the possibility, which we must certainly face, that the new Government organization for wheat purchase, however energetic and patriotic its members may be, will not be able to secure such good results as a multitude of private traders competing with one another for the chance of a high profit. We may even find our halfpenny Press a few months hence clamouring for the reinstatement of the "profters."—The Spectator, Nov. 4, 1916.

Comforts to the Regiment.

Positive Statement by Mr. E. R. Morris, Editor Evening Telegram.

The following letter from Mr. E. R. Morris on behalf of the Newfoundland War Contingent Association, should be set at rest once and for all any doubts that may yet remain as to the distribution and other handling of comforts sent from here by the W.P.A. It is a pity that rumours which reflect so seriously upon the unselfish men and women who are doing so much for our men on the other side, should be given such easy credence, and that such a letter as this should be necessary. Our readers will now know that if at any time comforts or other parcels fail to reach their destination (and such failure is now and then unavoidable), the fault does not lie with this Association or with the Pay and Record Office.

53 Victoria Street, Westminister, 3rd November, 1916.

Dear Sir,

As a member of the Executive Committee of the Newfoundland War Contingent Association which has charge of all the comforts sent over by the Women's Patriotic Association for Active Service, I beg to state that the rumour which has come to my ears and I understand is being circulated in St. John's, to the effect that some of these comforts are sent elsewhere than to the men of the Newfoundland Regiment, it is utterly without foundation; equally untrue is the rumour that any of the socks or shirts are sold to men returning from the Front by the Pay and Record Office.

Everything that is sent by the Women's Patriotic Association is distributed freely to Newfoundland men, in addition to many other comforts which are given to them in hospital and at the Front.

Since such rumours can only cause pain to relatives in Newfoundland, I think it my duty absolutely to contradict them, and I feel sure you, Sir, would be glad to give this letter the benefit of the large circulation of your paper.

I am, Sir, Yours faithfully,

E. R. MORRIS, Member of the Executive Committee of the Newfoundland War Contingent Association and Chairman of the Visiting Committee.

London club gossip has it that in consequence of so many titled ladies becoming widows, a secret society has been formed, the members of which have pledged themselves, if they should contemplate marrying again, to accept only men who have been wounded severely.

As an indication of the stringency of the examination which neutrals leaving Germany now undergo, a lady who recently arrived in Holland had her back rubbed with a lemon in order to wash off anything that might be written on it. All women have to undress and take down their hair, and all children, even infants in arms, are undressed and examined with the utmost thoroughness.

Several cases of blackmailing have been brought to the notice of the London authorities, in which the victims have been young army officers. The latter have been lured by beautiful young women to their flats, and then threatened with exposure by male accomplices. Rather than that their friends and relatives should be informed they have paid up. The blackmailers are said to form a gang and work hotels and music halls.

Thomas Bodkins of the counting-room force of the Asbestos Wood Company, Nashua, N.H., is now wearing a shaved head on account of paying an election forfeit prematurely. He backed Wilson with H. L. Manning, a fellow-clerk, who was to sacrifice his hair if Hughes was defeated. Bodkins was persuaded Wednesday morning, after reading the election headlines in a paper to pay the wager. He was soon sorry he did so and has since been growing more regretful of his haste. He is now drawing consolation from the hope that Manning will join him in the bald-headed state in a few hours.

A diplomat just returned from Norway states that the country, hitherto always poor, is enjoying unthought-of prosperity on account of fortunes made out of the war. He says that people formerly accustomed to tram cars are now falling over one another in their anxiety to buy expensive motor cars. No person, however, wishing to shine in the ranks of the real well-to-do class will adopt as the number of his car anything above 500, and is ready to pay a large sum of money to be given a registration number below this figure. Otherwise the appearance of his car in the street is met by the cry of "Parvenu!" from the street urchins around.

What Stirred the Premier.

(From the Montreal Herald.)
The correspondence which preceded the resignation of Sir Sam Hughes makes it quite clear that it was Sir Sam Hughes himself who brought matters to a climax. What we said yesterday is more than ever apparent from the correspondence now published—that it was only by personal affront to himself and to his own authority that the Premier was stirred to action. The small arms ammunition deal, the fuse contract revelations, the Camp Borden episode, and many other incidentals in connection with Sir Sam's administration were condoned by the Premier and action was only taken at last when Sir Sam practically put a pistol to Sir Robert Borden's head and demanded the appointment "within an hour" of Sir Max Aitken as "Minister of Overseas Forces," with Privy Council rank, in order that the said Sir Max should not be "humiliated and insulted" by the appointment, since gazetted, of Sir George Perley as Overseas Minister of Militia!
