LORD MORDEN'S DAUGHTER —OR— THE TRAGEDY OF THE CEDARS.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

"I have already thought it out, and I am now going to suggest what ought to have been done at first. See your wife—Miss Deane, I mean—early to-morrow morning, and bring her to the city. Explain that the first marriage hardly satisfies me—that, being a lawyer, I am particular even to fastidiousness. Then procure an ordinary license, and have the ceremony performed at Sydenham, where you have lived with your father for years. The only objection to this is that you must swear on oath that there is no legal impediment to your marriage. It is perfectly simple, and I am at a loss to see why you, usually so full of life and courage, are so easily dismayed."

"I cannot tell why it is myself, Fred. I seem to be enveloped by an impenetrable cloud. Your advice is good and sound, and I will be here with my darling to-morrow—I will be here early. I can never sufficiently thank you. In the meantime, my father is causing me the greatest uneasiness. One would imagine that he were guilty of some terrible crime, and hiding away beyond the reach of the avenging arm of the law. See what his valet left at my club."

"And you have seen Peters since?" he asked.

"Yes, I have seen him, and arranged to meet him on Waterloo Bridge at ten o'clock."

"How absurd!" observed Fairfax. "Do you think your father's mind is affected?"

"Undoubtedly."

"Poor fellow! He imagines that he is Napoleon, and that he has escaped from St. Helena. I should think, by the way I was treated when I called to see you at 'The Cedars,' some months since. But this beats anything! You will meet Peters, of course?"

"Certainly, and will try to persuade my father to return home."

"Well, I am hungry, old man, and I expect that you have forgotten to dine. Come with me until it is time to keep your appointment with Peters," said Fairfax. "Hello! you left the outer door open. I wondered where the draught came from."

As he spoke, the figure of a little man glided downstairs, and away into the mazes of the cloistered court.

"I feel better already," Locksley said, when they had reached the open air.

"There is nothing like knowing the worst, and facing it," his friend told him. "Troubles are not half so formidable when run to earth. I dare to prophesy that you will be the happiest man in Christendom twenty-four hours hence!"

"I should not be unhappy now, if I could bear my darling's troubles as well as my own," replied Locksley.

Edmund parted from Fairfax at the end of Wellington street in the Strand. They had dined at Gatti's and laid plans for the future.

"You will tell me everything to-morrow concerning your eccentric pater," the barrister had said. "In the meantime, old man, be of good cheer."

The big clock at Westminster boomed a quarter to ten, and Locksley made his way slowly toward Waterloo Bridge.

There were not many people about now, for it was too early for the rush homeward of the frequenters of theatres and music halls, and too late for the employees who spend their toilsome days in the great city and their nights on the Surrey side of the river.

He passed in the centre of the bridge, fascinated by the weirdness of the scene below and beyond. Far away along the magnificent embankment a thousand lights, electric and gas mingled, flashed in a continuous line, until it reached Blackfriars' twisting like a livid serpent, whose head became a mass of fire on London Bridge.

Then his thoughts went back to Dora, and he pictured her lonely and tearful. She had been startled by his telegram; she had read it with frightened eyes, and would know no rest until the promised letter came to ease her fears.

Racked with these tantalizing thoughts, he did not know that every movement he made was being watched by a man on the other side of the bridge. A burly policeman passed him twice, but he did not hear his steady tramp. Then the officer paused, and touched him on the shoulder.

Edmund started around, expecting to see Peters at his elbow, and the policeman at once made an apology.

"Pardon me, sir, but we have to keep a sharp lookout here, and you were standing still, just like the chaps that meditate making a hole in the water!"

Locksley smiled.

"I am waiting for my man," he replied. "I don't think I shall disturb the water rats at present, officer!"

"No—no, sir; of course not; but you shook your fists once or twice, and that made me think you was a bit wild like."

"Ha! Did I? I was not aware of it. I must have been thinking of something which has troubled me lately. Good-night, officer!"

"Good-night, sir—good-night!" replied the policeman, continuing his beat. Then he added to himself: "It's just these swells who don't know what they are doing that go and do it. I'll keep my eye on him till he goes away."

His doubts were soon set at rest, however, by the appearance of a tall man, with whom the stranger went away toward the Surrey side of the river, and he sighed to think that he had lost a chance of promotion.

"I am here, master," said Peters, "and your father is overjoyed to know that you will soon be with him."

"Yes," replied Locksley. "I am almost prepared for anything now. Of course, Peters, my poor father's mind is deranged, and steps must be taken to have him properly cared for. His affairs, I suppose, are in the hands of Melville; but I am determined now to assert my rights."

The valet shook his head mournfully, but did not speak.

Having gained the Surrey side of the Thames, he turned into the New Cut, a locality famous for its silt and lawlessness. Many of the shops were open even at this late hour, and from the half-open doors of the brilliantly-illuminated saloons floated many a ribald song, mingled with the screeching of drunken women in search of recreant husbands.

At many of the corners were coffee-stalls on wheels, around which were gathered groups of ragged waiters, who sought the bright spots for warmth and a cheap supper.

From the New Cut proper, Peters turned into a narrow dark street, looked cautiously behind him, and then knocked at the door of a mean little house built of red brick originally, but now black with age and smoke.

"We are known here as Gooding and Wright, engravers," whispered the valet, while some one rumbled at the bolts of the door. "I am Gooding, and the master is Mr. Wright."

"Go on," laughed Edmund, with a contemptuous shrug, "and I will make it my business to break up the firm in short order—ridiculous nonsense that it is!"

The door opened, and a man inside acknowledged Peters with a gruff "Good-evening!"

"A customer," explained Peters, and passed up a dark stairway, with Edmund at his heels.

All at once the passage was flooded with light by the sudden opening of a door at the top and a man stood before them.

"My son! my son!" he half-sobbed. "Nay, do not shrink from me; it is Norman Locksley—your erring father! I am not mad, Edmund—I have been mad for nearly twenty years, but I am sane at last!"

Peters had closed the door, and the young surgeon listened at first in complete bewilderment. He felt his father's pulse, he turned him into the full light that came from a duplex lamp on the table, and had to confess that there was a marvelous change for the better in his appearance.

"I expected to find you ill," he said, at last, "raving in some wild delirium. I confess that I am disappointed, father, and now I begin to fear you have some terrible disclosure to make."

"I have sinned," groaned the father. "My wickedness is beyond pardon. Neither Heaven nor man will ever condone the offense of which I have been guilty. Sit still, Edmund, and hear my story. Do not interrupt me—do not too readily condemn, or I shall break down. If I lose your sympathy—your love—I lose all."

Then he told his son the pitiful story from beginning to end, leaving only the name of Lord Morden a blank, and Edmund listened, his face buried in his hands, and no sound escaping him, until the last word had been spoken.

"And this is the secret upon which Melville has traded?" he said, the words grating through his set teeth. "Father, you were sorely tempted, and you sinned deeply. It is now your duty to make all the reparation that lies in your power, and it is a relief to me to know that I have never touched one shilling of this money."

RELIGION.

When the talk turns on religion I have not one of my own, Have my version of the Bible and the things I think alone, And I've found them satisfying, found them comforting to me, But I'll never lose my temper if you chance to disagree; For religion, as I view it, is a pathway to the goal, And is something to be settled between each man and his soul.

Now I'm not a Roman Catholic, but I wouldn't go so far As to throw away the friendship of the folks I know who are; I have lived and neighbored with them and come to love them through and through; I've respect and admiration for the kindly things they do, And I've come to the conclusion, though the bigots think it odd, That it makes no difference to me, how a good man worships God.

I know Methodists and Baptists, Lutherans, Scientists and Jews, Whose friendship is a treasure which I wouldn't want to lose, And I honor and respect them and I wouldn't dare condemn The form of prayer and worship which is coming to them, So when bigots talk religion, I just settle back and see The helpful friends and loyal every church has given me.

Well Known Freighter Gone

The steamer Mapledawn, owned by Canada Steamships, Ltd., and formerly a freighter between Montreal, Charlottetown and St. John's, Nfld., has been given a thorough examination as she lies stranded on the rocks near Cleveland, Ohio, and where she remained all winter. She went ashore November 30th last, but efforts to refloat the vessel were without avail and she had to be abandoned until the ice broke up in the late spring. The survey revealed the Mapledawn was damaged greater than was expected. The forefoot was knocked off while the stern post, stern tube, tail shaft, propeller and rudder were carried away. She has settled on the rocks and bottom set up. In command of Captain J. P. Dufour, the Mapledawn was frequently in St. John's. She was in the Great Lakes trade at the time of her going ashore.

Shows New Wonders of Ultra-Violet Light

Professor R. W. Wood, of Johns Hopkins University, recently demonstrated the strange effects of invisible light before an audience in Baltimore, Md. Eyes, teeth, fingers, and shirt buttons of the audience glowed with a pale, phosphorescent light after electric lights had been extinguished and a powerful mercury arc light, rich in invisible ultra-violet rays, but visible only as a faint purple, was directed toward the assemblage.

This phosphorescent of various substances under the ultra-violet rays has already found application on the stage, Doctor Wood said; for by dressing the actors in costumes of material readily affected, they seem to glow. Scenery so treated also has been employed.

Doctor Wood revealed that ultra-violet rays were used secretly during the war for invisible signaling at night. The rays were directed in the same manner as ordinary light in a searchlight, but could be detected only through the use of special detecting apparatus.

Ultra-violet rays are like those of ordinary light, Doctor Wood explained, except that the waves of which they consist are shorter than those of violet light, the shortest that we can see. Red light is the longest of the visible rays, and beyond them are the infra-red, also invisible, but with very different properties from the ultra-violet. They do not have the power of inducing phosphorescence, but they do have the peculiar property of passing through mist and water vapor, a property used to advantage last summer in making photographs of Mars.

When Smuggling Held Sway

LAWLESSNESS THAT APPEALED TO WOMEN AS WELL AS MEN.

Up to the early years of the last century wholesale smuggling was rife all along our eastern seaboard. There was a glamour about the smuggler's life that appealed to the "common people," and especially to the women.

According to Lord Tselgmouth and Charles G. Harper, joint authors of "The Smugglers," however, all but a small minority of these law-breakers were cruel, brutal ruffians.

As was only to be expected, they wasted no means war against the preventive men, and was batted any unlucky enough to fall alive into their hands.

Curlionly enough the first smugglers in England smuggled goods out and not in. In medieval times the wool trade was our staple industry, and the export of the raw material was either entirely prohibited, or very heavily taxed.

Hence there came into being the "owlers" of Kent and Sussex—men engaged in the illicit export of wool. They got their curious name from their practice of imitating the howling of owls, in order to signify their whereabouts by night to the crews of the boats waiting to carry away the bales of wool.

Later on, tea, silk and spirits began coming in, and continued to do so in ever increasing quantities, paid for sometimes in wool, sometimes in good English gold.

Not that the smugglers had it all their own way. In one year 54,000 lbs. of tea and 128,000 gallons of brandy were seized. Yet smuggling still paid.

One amuseur, who kept a public house near Falmouth, erected a battery of guns to defend his store of illicit goods, and when an armed revenue cutter exhibited what he considered a too inquisitive spirit, actually fired on her.

Her crew, however, landed in boats, attacked the house from the rear, and razed it to the ground.

Ultimately the old type of smuggler died out with the coming of the coast-guard and the telegraph. Cunning took the place of force, and many ingenious methods of defrauding the revenue were evolved. Our author tells us, for example, of the ruse adopted by the master of a small sailing ship trading between Newhaven and Dieppe.

He had long been suspected of smuggling, but the excise officers were unable to catch him. Time and again, whenever he returned from one of his trips, they searched his little vessel for contraband, but found none.

Then one day, one of them, gazing idly upwards, thought he detected something unusual in the appearance of the rigging.

He climbed up to investigate and found that a considerable portion of it was composed, not of good honest rope yarn, but of twist tobacco, tarred over.

When Bakeday Comes Depend on Carnation

Uncertainties ruin many a milk dish through absolutely no fault of your own.

You want whole milk—you have only the skimmed milk left after you took the cream from the top; you should have two cups—you just have a cup and a half. Milk you thought fresh is just on the turn.

Why take those risks? Insure with Carnation Milk.

Carnation is just pure, fresh milk, evaporated to double richness, kept safe by sterilization. Nothing is added. Some of the natural water is taken away—all the food value left in.

Get it from your grocer. Tall (16 oz.) cans or by the case of 48 cans.

THE LIGHT HAIRED GARAGE MAN.

"There are two men at that garage, and one is just as nice as he can be, and does all sorts of little things for me without charging a cent."

"The other's a perfect Shylock."

"What do you suppose makes them so different?" I asked.

"Oh, that light haired one probably has a more generous disposition," she answered. "I think that dark haired man is horrid."

A Generous Bank Cashier!

I wonder if she would call a bank cashier, who generally spent the money he had filched from the bank a man with a generous disposition.

The dark haired man, as I happened to know, is the owner of the garage. He is married and has two children.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps To Bring Back Normal Health

A great many letters similar to the following recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a wonderful medicine for bringing the new mother back to normal health and strength.

It is an excellent tonic, contains no harmful drugs and can be taken in safety by nursing mother.

Thousands of mothers who have regained their strength by taking it are its best recommendation. Why not take it yourself?

• Feels So Different Now

Montreal, Quebec.—"I am one of thousands who have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I can safely say it has relieved me of my troubles and I shall never be without a bottle of it in my house. Since my last baby was born I suffered from pains and backache and would feel so tired I could not do anything in my home. Since I have been taking the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine I feel so different. I recommend it to all my friends and hope it will help other women who are suffering from the troubles I have had."

—Mrs. THOS. H. GARDNER, 821 Evelyn Street, Verdun, Montreal.

• Weakness and Headaches

Port Greville, N.S.—"I took your medicine for a terrible pain in my side and for weakness and headaches. I seemed to blast all over, too, and my feet and hands were the worst. I am the mother of four children and I am nursing my baby, the first one of the four. I could nurse. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before the baby's birth so you can see how much it helped me. I cannot praise it too highly for what it has done for me. I took all kinds of medicines, but the Vegetable Compound is the only one that has helped me for any length of time. I recommend it to any one with troubles like mine and you may use my letter for a testimonial."

—Mrs. ROBERT McCULLY, Port Greville, N.S.

• A World of Good

Montreal, Quebec.—"After my third child came I had some trouble and the doctor said I would never have any more children. A book was thrown in at my door telling about the good results of taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I started with it. I was just about dead when I began. I used to be so weak that I could do hardly anything. But I have kept on getting stronger and stronger, and I am glad to say it has done me a world of good. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to other women if I am sure it will do them as much good as it has done me."

—Mrs. W. CANTWELL, 401 Wellington Street, Montreal, Quebec.

NEW YORK, May 6.—The truth of this story is vouched for by the best people, and then there is the receipt for $12 as additional evidence.

It will be recalled that when American advertising men went to England for the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the world the New York delegation carried flags which were presented to the City of Old New York. There was an American flag, and the flag of New York State and New York City.

The Duke of York and other dignitaries received the delegation with elaborate ceremony. There were some speeches and exchanges of felicitations. Hands played the national anthems and the visiting delegations rode in open-faced hacks to the Lord Mayor's residence, where a large time was had by all. The flags were accepted by the city of Old York and with reverence placed in the City Hall.

This year, the advertising men of the world are meeting at Houston, Texas. Desiring to return the courtesy of the Americans, a British delegation arrived, bringing a large British flag, to be presented to the city of Houston.

At this point any similarity between the arrivals ceases. Instead of reverent hands of grateful dignitaries receiving the gift flag, it was promptly seized by the customs officials.

Britishers bearing gifts meant nothing to the authorities whose recent success at confiscating an apple and an orange which a young miss of six summers from Des Moines was attempting to bring into the country, will be recalled.

With diligent courtesy, the British guests explained that the flag was to be a gift and was not for sale. With heated indignation their American hosts protested to the customs authorities.

The Britishers were advised that by paying $12 they could obtain possession of the flag, not otherwise. So the $12 was forthcoming and the visitors got their flag back.

When American advertising men awoke to a complete realization of the affront, they dashed down to the customs house and demanded that at least the Britishers be given back their $12.

The dispassionate reply was that the $12 was in the till, as duty paid on one British flag, and that only an act of Congress could get it out.

The British delegation has the flag, and is leaving to-night for Houston.

Opium and Ill Will

The Literary Digest's review of American opinion on the Opium Conference goes far to justify the insight of those who warned us that these rather acrimonious discussions might react harmfully on Anglo-Saxon relations. The most biting expressions are used against Great Britain, who is accused of being actuated by selfish and unworthy motives in standing out against the proposals of abolition. Phrases, such as "commercial greed," and "an ugly episode in modern history," liberally stud the comments of the less discriminating part of the Press. Happily the judgments are not all as one-sided, and the most reputable papers at least are fair-minded enough to state the arguments put forward in support of the British case, which in itself was reasonable and convincing. This is the more satisfactory because of the fact that the American delegation, as is well known, made no attempt to answer the British case. That delegation does not altogether escape censure for its withdrawal from the conference, though it is true that the bulk of American opinion approves its action.

Roads Blocked by Rats

It is estimated that there is a rat population of Britain at least as numerous as its human population. Two men, whose calling take them abroad before daybreak, have recently told rat tales which sound almost like fairy tales, although there is good reason to believe they are quite true.

The first, a country postman, stated that he met an army of rats on the road as he started on his rounds. A few days before another man a farm laborer, had related a similar incident, which had happened to him during the harvest season.

It was his custom to go from farm to farm during the threshing season, and on proceeding to his work in the very early morning, the moon shining at the time, he encountered hundreds of rats coming along the road. It took them several minutes to trail past him. Though he lifted his heavy stick with the purpose of killing some of them, he thought better of it, thinking they might turn upon him and attack him.

There is a story told by a great naturalist of a man flicking at a weasel with his whip, when, from out of the crannies of an ancient wall, came fifty of his kin. They attacked him savagely, and if help had not arrived he would possibly have been killed. Both rats and weasels are scurrying savagely, and in numbers they lack neither the desire nor the power to attack any enemy.

Where Skill Beats Strength

There are many examples in natural history of skill overcoming sheer brute strength, and there is one illustration of educated animal instinct which comes very near to human skill. This is the collie dog, which, by hereditary and acquired skill, is capable not only of controlling the movements of flocks of sheep and herds of cattle which, as regards brute strength, are infinitely superior to itself, but is further able to count the herd or flock and discover if one is missing from it.

Cases are on record in which collies, missing one out of a flock of sheep, have gone back and either hunted it up or found it dead. This is certainly the nearest approach to human skill exhibited in the animal kingdom.

In the jungles of India there are monkeys who are able by means of something like human skill to take hold of snakes which could easily kill or crush them. In such a fashion that the reptiles cannot strike with their fangs. The monkeys then hit the snakes' heads against stones or trees until they are dead or stunned.

A still more curious fact is that the monkeys only do this when they know they are within reach of a herb which frequently proves an antidote to the bite of the particular snake they attack.

Of marine animals the whale is physically the most powerful. Its most determined enemy is the thrasher, a fish of much inferior strength, which, by superior skill in attack, frequently comes off the victor. There is also a kind of shark which arranges its attacks so skilfully that it will wound to death a whale which could kill it with a single stroke of its tail.

Short Shrift!

Kyrle Bellow, better known perhaps as Mrs. Arthur Bourchier, was chairman at a lecture given by the Labour Party at the Strand Theatre the other night. She told this story. When she received the invitation to preside, she said to her husband, who, of course, is the actor-manager, "Arthur, what shall I talk about?" Bourchier, reflected for a second, then retorted: "About two minutes, my dear!"

The Slaughter of the Innocents

May Day in America was observed for the first time last year as the Child's Health Day, and it was set aside again this year for the purpose of stirring up public interest in the welfare of the nation's most precious asset, its little citizens.

"Figures of infant mortality have a rather sinister place in the picture of American child health. The World War killed—in action or as a result of wounds received in action—ten or eleven thousand men in the American Army.

Another paper, in referring to the health of the children, remarks: "But there are other things almost as bad as death. There are children unfitted or not half fitted for life."

In the Report of the Registrar General for 1924 we find that there were 1220 births in the city of St. John's.

- (1) 616 babies were born in houses in which there were no water and sewerage connections; (2) 661 were born without a doctor in attendance; (3) 211 were born in what are described as "definitely overcrowded conditions."

Turning again to the Registrar General's Report we find that of the 1220 infants born, 173 died in the first year—a death rate of over 14 per thousand.

The New Zealand infant mortality is 1 in 20. The people of the United States, which is behind five other nations in its rate, are shocked because the deaths among infants are 1 in 13.

In St. John's we treat the matter philosophically, or are disposed to consider ourselves the unfortunate victims of circumstances while 1 child out of 7 born is snatched away by death in its first year.

It is true that in the figures quoted a comparison is made between the mortality rate which exists in St. John's and that which obtains in both city and country elsewhere, but when it is stated that the urban population of the United States is more than 51 per cent. of the total, the comparison is not as one sided as would at first appear.

It is useless to close our eyes to the fact that the rate of infant mortality in this city is shocking. It is useless also to protest that it is due to circumstances over which we have no control. St. John's possesses unequalled natural advantages to keep it clean and healthy, but we have not only neglected to make the most of those advantages, but by our disregard for the ordinary rules of hygiene, we have tended to render them nugatory.

Let us honestly ask ourselves if the facts emphasized by the Child Welfare Association cannot be considered material factors in the slaughter of the infants. Let us consider if the careless manner in which our foods are handled, the fetid clogging drains, the open ash cans and dust carts, the crude and reckless night cars, the deplorable conditions of many of the tenement buildings into which our citizens are herded are not each and all of them far more fatal in their effect than the baby killers' bombs or the poisonous fumes resorted to by a barbarous race in order to cause terror and demoralization.

We would advocate, certainly, greater facilities for dealing with children in need of medical treatment, but what is far more essential is to try to remove the main causes of sickness and death among them. Last week it was shown in an unmistakable manner how heartily the public supported the movement for better school accommodation. May it not be taken for granted that a movement as vigorously undertaken to preserve the life of the children would receive far greater support? The rate at which the children died in this city last year was 34.4 higher than it was in 1923. How long would it be, if that state of affairs were allowed to continue, before the school accommodation necessary became less instead of greater?

Passengers by Rosalind

The following passengers leave by S.S. Rosalind this evening for Halifax and New York:—Jim Sing, Fong Choo, Mrs. N. Parrot and baby, Miss G. Thorne, Miss J. Knight, Miss Sinnott, Mrs. J. A. Wiseman, H. A. Pike, Mr. Workman, Miss P. Clancy, Miss G. Brocklehurst, Mrs. C. S. Frost and baby, and 40 in second cabin.

Preliminary Enquiry

The preliminary enquiry into the charge of criminal assault, preferred by Mrs. Reid, Spread Eagle, against Wm. Day, of Old Shop, T.E., was begun yesterday afternoon, before His Honor Judge Morris. The evidence of Mrs. Reid and her husband was taken. Mr. C. E. Hunt appeared for the Crown, and A. G. King, for the accused. The depositions of the witnesses will be read over this evening.

Shipping

S.S. Sabam arrived at Liverpool at 7 o'clock Sunday evening. She leaves for here again on the 18th inst. S.S. Fanad Head will be leaving Barrow-in-Furness on Wednesday next with the second shipment of about 5,000 tons of rails to be used in re-railing the line to Clarenville. This cargo will be landed at Heart's Content and the third, a little later, at Clarenville. S.S. Lord Londonderry discharged 570 tons of rails yesterday. The unloading will finish next week after which the ship will proceed to Montreal. Scht. Jean McKay has arrived at Grand Bank from Sydney with a cargo flour to J. B. Patten.

Herring Package Inspection

Inspector Coyle of the Marine and Fisheries Dept. who was around Trinity Bay inspecting herring packages, returned to the city yesterday. There are quite a number of people in this vicinity putting up split herrings, and it is understood they will continue to pack until June 30th. The herring are of excellent quality, and in some sections are very plentiful. At St. Jones Without the fishermen secured 4 motor boat loads on Monday. The fish are being put up under the new regulations regarding packages, and according to the inspector there is a general inclination on the part of all to conform to the rules. He found that most of the packages had been made according to specifications, but in a couple of instances pork barrels and similar packages were being used. The department refuses to stamp any pack other than that in barrels made to specifications, and no doubt insistence on this rule will bring beneficial results to the industry.

Sign of Fish

Fresh fish was offered for sale in the city yesterday, and found ready purchasers at good prices. The fish were taken in traps at some of the eastern settlements, Bauline and Outer Cove fishermen report a sign of fish in their traps, and are predicting a successful season. As far as is known, the local fishermen have not yet made a trial with hook and line outside the harbor. Salmon have been on sale on the streets during the last day or two, and householders have been paying 25 cents a pound for it.

Careless Bicyclists

Complaint is made of careless driving of bicycles on the western portion of LeMarchant Road, and some narrow escapes from injury have been reported. On Monday an elderly lady was knocked down by one of these cyclists and had her eye glasses smashed. She fortunately escaped without injury to her optic, though she was somewhat shaken up. Yesterday in the same locality a young girl was the victim. She fared somewhat worse than the former by having several teeth knocked out. Last evening a similar accident occurred on Harvey Road, when a young lady was thrown to the ground and badly shaken up by being hit with one of these cyclists.

Government Boats

Argyle left Burin 8.30 p.m. yesterday, outward. Clyde arrived Lewisporte 3.50 a.m. to-day. Prospero left Change Islands 3.40 p.m. yesterday, going north. Glencoe left Ramea 1 p.m. yesterday coming east. Kyle arrived Port aux Basques 6.45 a.m. Malakoff left Greenspond 3.30 p.m. yesterday, inward. Sagona left Port aux Choix 3.15 p.m. yesterday, coming south. Fortia sailed for the westward at noon to-day.

Destruction by Dogs

Constable Pittman, who was at Pouch Cove investigating the destruction of sheep, returned last night. It was found that dogs had destroyed 24 sheep and injured several others. Although a closed area for dogs under the Sheep Preservation Act, there are more than forty dogs kept there. The owners have orders to have them done away with, failing which prosecution will follow. Pouch Cove is noted for its flocks of sheep, but with dogs allowed at large, sheep raising becomes an impossibility.

Magistrate's Court

Two drunks were each fined $1.00 or 3 days. A young man, charged with being a loose and disorderly person on the city streets, was convicted and fined $1.00 or 3 days. A resident of the Higher Levels for using threatening language towards his nephew, the complainant, was ordered to sign bonds on his own behalf in the sum of $100, to keep the peace, or in default, 30 days' imprisonment. A cotrap case, between two fishermen of Bauline, was heard, and ended in a dismissal.

Supreme Court

In the matter of the petition of Harold Macpherson, merchant, alleging that Chesley Kennedy and Stanley Kennedy, trading as William Kennedy & Sons, Western Bay, are insolvent, and praying that they be so declared. By consent of the parties the motion is adjourned until Friday, May 22nd, at 11 a.m.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

May 12—Much disturbed this morning, since my alarm clock did go off within a few inches of my head, yet I did hear it not, and I think am losing my hearing powers, or am getting sluggish, which is a sure sign of old age. Up and abroad, the weather might be fine, yet duste everywhere as there is always in this town in the warm weather. On Water Street, comes a fellow to speak with me, that I have never seen in all my life, and he calls me by name and tells me how he has known me these many years. Indeed, he do say "It is with pride I have watched you grow to the position of prominence you do now occupy, Mr. Pepsy, and if ever you should come to the East End of St. John's, we will elect you, sir, without a doubt." This making me suspicious, I was not left wondering for long, since the fellow do then ask me the price of a bottle of beer, which I do give him out of admiration for his impertinence. This night to the Star Theatre, and there do see the picture of R. Sabatin's books, "Captain Blood," which I did take much pleasure in reading some years ago, and the picture most admirably done, being well acted and follows the books closely. This day am sent programme of the concert which the Madrigal Singers will have on Thursday night, and what do please me mightily about it is that many of the songs that did give pleasure to my great ancestor are included in it. And indeed, such an array of concert artists I have never seen on any one programme in this town before, and needs must go to it before I shall think of doing aught else.

Wesley Young Men's Literary Class

The annual dinner of the Wesley Young Men's Literary Class, which was held at the Sterling Restaurant last night, proved to be a tremendous success. During the evening songs were rendered by Messrs. Green and Neville, and an instrumental solo was also given by Mr. Robert Morgan. The toast list was given through in a very enthusiastic manner and the speeches made were of a very high order, which showed the result of the training received in the Literary Class. The following is the toast list:— THE KING—Prop, the Chairman; Resp., "God Save The King." THE EMPIRE—Prop, E. Bureay; Resp., W. Whitemarsh. Solo—Mr. O. Green. NEWFOUNDLAND—Prop, H. H. TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

LORD MILNER DEAD. LONDON, May 13. Lord Milner, former Secretary of War, who has been ill for some time with sleeping sickness, died to-day at his residence, Sturry Court, near Canterbury.

THE POPE CELEBRATES HIS NAME DAY.

ROME, May 13. Pope Pius to-day celebrated his Name Day. He received greetings from members of his official family and the members of the College of Cardinals, at present in Rome. Hundreds of telegrams also were received from the heads of States and Ecclesiastical authorities throughout the world. The Pope appeared to be in the best of health notwithstanding his fatiguing task of daily receiving pilgrims from all parts of the world for the Holy Year reception.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE IN JAPANESE SILK CENTRE.

W. T. R. PRESTON'S METHODS CRITICIZED.

OTTAWA, May 13. In the evidence given before the House of Commons Committee on ocean rates to-night, W. T. R. Preston, whose report found that there was an Atlantic shipping combine in restraint of Trade, firmly declined to give the names of persons in England who ascertained for him the unwillingness of several large shipping companies to withdraw from the North Atlantic conference. G. H. Montgomery, Counsel for the steamship companies, presented Mr. Preston for the sources of his information in the interests of his clients, whose interests are in jeopardy" he said. Mr. Preston assumed the full responsibility for the accuracy of the statement himself, but refused to divulge the names. The counsel for the steamship companies said "I don't know how we are to judge the value of Mr. Preston's report, until we know where the information came from." A. R. McMaster, the Chairman, ruled that the names of the men in question were pertinent to the enquiry, and unless the information was secured under a seal of secrecy, they should be divulged, but Mr. Preston declined to say anything except that his informants were men of high standing who had pledged their personalities. The counsel for the companies asked Mr. Preston if it would not have been a more simple method to go directly to the companies to secure information regarding their willingness to withdraw from the conference, rather than to take an indirect method. Mr. Preston could not agree, but stated he had gone about the getting of the information in the proper manner.

GERMAN DUPLICITY CONFIRMED.

TANGIER, May 13. Confirmation has been received here of reports that Germans are engaged in directing the Rifian operations against the French and Spanish. The Germans are said to have become experts in the Moorish language. They dress like Moors and even use Oriental names to hide their identity. I feel, sir, that ventilation should be given this matter, as the advertising is somewhat misleading. I feel quite confident that the Nickel Management will be only too pleased to clear the matter up, and will not suffer any one individual to entertain the delusion that they are witnessing the Dumbbells when they are in fact seeing the "Originals." Before closing I should like to ask one more pertinent query. Is it not a fact that the Dumbbells were all members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, and that their names is taken from a divisional emblem? Are all the members of the Originals members of the C.E.F.? Thanking you for space sir, I remain, Sincerely yours, DON Q. [We are unable to read in the articles which describe the Dumbbells any suggestion that the personnel is the same as that of the original cast. In fact the "reader" in the "News" to-day distinctly mentions the names of those who are new to the various parts.—Ed.]

Blocking Run Runners Will Soon Be a Real War.

KANSAS CITY, May 12. "The present blockade of run runners off the Atlantic Coast, is only a minor engagement," and will be followed by a "real naval liquor warfare," when the tests are completed, Colonel Lincoln C. Andrews, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, said here to-day. Colonel Andrews, who is head of the "Dry Navy," was on his way to an international conference at El Paso, on May 15. "The warfare going on now is not in any sense a 'big drive,'" said the Colonel. "If it is a test, we want to see how the run runners will defend themselves against this armament. Then we will take the offensive against what ever move they make, and soon, until it seems that we can operate against them in a really successful way."

OTTAWA, Ont., May 13. Addressing a military gathering here last night, General J. H. MacBrien, the Canadian Chief of Staff, said extolling peace would not prevent war. He said sooner or later there must be a grave danger of war and urged the necessity for maintaining the efficiency of the militia units.

Savinkoff Commits Suicide.

MOSCOW, May 13. General Boris Savinkoff, the notorious anti-Bolshevik leader, a former military Governor of Petrograd and Assistant Minister of War during Kerensky's regime, has committed suicide by throwing himself from the window of his cell in a "state political department" prison in Moscow, where he was serving a long prison term for participation in a counter revolution.

Here and There.

TRAIN NOTES.—Tuesday's west bound train is due at Port aux Basques 8 o'clock this evening. The express with Kyle's mail and passengers is due to-morrow afternoon. The Carbonne train arrived at 1.30 p.m.

Clyde Off Schedule.

—Owing to the schedule of S.S. Clyde being interrupted on account of ice conditions north, it has been decided to send the ship south again from Lewisporte, leaving there on Friday next. Passengers leaving town by Sunday's train can connect with the Clyde at Lewisporte, in time for points going north.

Tenders for Cement.

Up to this morning the Railway Commission had received nine tenders from local agents for the supplying of cement in connection with the work at the Dry Dock. The specifications will be submitted to Government Engineer Hall to-day.

FINED $200.—The youth who appeared before court yesterday morning, charged with a breach of the Alcoholic Liquors Act, came up for sentence in the afternoon, when a fine of $200 or thirty days' imprisonment was imposed. The accused, in his evidence, told the court the name of the party whom he had received the liquor from. It is likely that an arrest will shortly follow.

WARRIED.

At Toronto, on April 21st, at Westmoorland Methodist Church by the Rev. Capt. Robb, Isabelle Gruchy of St. John's to Arthur F. Bickford of Toronto.

Complains of Post Office Management

Dear Sir,—I would like through the columns of your paper to ask a few questions concerning the Post Office here. I would like to know the reason why when a message was sent from Mr. Buffett at 5.15 p.m. and not delivered in St. John's until 10 a.m. next day. It took about 17 hours to send a message and you can travel from Mr. Buffett to St. John's in 10 hours. Then there is another queer piece of business: The only way the people of Mr. Buffett can get the news from the outside world daily is through the telegraph lines, and from April 22nd to April 28th there was no daily news whatever. Why all these days without any news? Surely someone is not doing his duty. Where is the trouble? Then the Post Office closed at 6 p.m. I think it would be only right to have the office open until 8 p.m. And then, is anyone but an official allowed inside of any post office. If not, you will find it is the case in Mr. Buffett. Is this person sworn in, and if not why not? Several prominent men of Mr. Buffett sent in a petition concerning the way the Post Office was being run, but it must have been lost as nothing was heard of it afterwards. It is time for someone to enquire into this state of affairs and have things up-to-date in such a busy place as Mr. Buffett. Thank you, Mr. Editor, if you will publish that list of complaints. Yours truly, INCONVENIENCE.

ACTIVE MEASURES IN BRITAIN AGAINST REDS.

LONDON, May 13. The Daily Chronicle says police are taking strong measures against the Bolsheviks in London. Permits of numerous persons to remain in England have been cancelled and the renewal of others refused. The number thus deal with mounting into hundreds and qualities of literature have been seized. In consequence of these measures, the paper declares, a Bolshevik book shop here where the newspapers Pravda, Izvestia, and other publications were sold, has been closed and the official Bolshevik paper in England, the Soviet Union Review, has ceased publication. The staffs of Russian commercial establishments are being reduced, but it is unknown whether this is due to the police campaign or merely to economy.

FRENCH MOVE TO RELIEVE OUTPOSTS.

RABAT, May 13. French troops began a movement last night for the relief of the besieged outposts surrounded by Abd-el-Krim's Rifian tribesmen, says an official communication issued to-day. The Paris censorship decreased by means in the Rifian tribesmen's invasion of French Morocco appears to have become effective and the newspapers this morning contained no news of troop movements.

"Dumbbells" or "Originals"?

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.—Recently much publicity has been given the "Originals," a revue troupe that purposes playing here next week. In view of this, would the Nickel management inform the public is it not strange that Capt. M. W. Plunkett is presenting the "Dumbbells" in "Oh Yes!" in Toronto this week. If the leaders in the original Dumbbells were not Al Plunkett, Stan Bennett, Red Newman, and Ross Hamilton? Why are these playing in Toronto? Is it not a fact, sir, that the Originals as they so term themselves are not the actual Dumbbells, but merely a break away from that troupe? Many people who have seen the Dumbbells will remember the wonderful acting of Ross Hamilton, as the female impersonator, and yet one would be led to believe from the advertising that Gene Pearson is the actual "Marjorie." In fact, they have stated in their ads. that Pearson has a last year's find. I feel, sir, that ventilation should be given this matter, as the advertising is somewhat misleading. I feel quite confident that the Nickel Management will be only too pleased to clear the matter up, and will not suffer any one individual to entertain the delusion that they are witnessing the Dumbbells when they are in fact seeing the "Originals." Before closing I should like to ask one more pertinent query. Is it not a fact that the Dumbbells were all members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, and that their names is taken from a divisional emblem? Are all the members of the Originals members of the C.E.F.? Thanking you for space sir, I remain, Sincerely yours, DON Q. [We are unable to read in the articles which describe the Dumbbells any suggestion that the personnel is the same as that of the original cast. In fact the "reader" in the "News" to-day distinctly mentions the names of those who are new to the various parts.—Ed.]

Our Seal Fishery

A Comprehensive Survey in Facts and Figures

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I have been reading with interest the letters on the subjects of the Seal fishery which have been appearing lately in the press; and it has struck me that some figures which I have might be of interest. Please understand that I am not an amateur seal fishery expert attempting to rush in between giants such as the Captains, Kean and others who speak from lifetimes of practical experience. I do not pretend to any practical sealing experience. As a lawyer I deal with figures and arguments only, leaving it to the practical sealers to comment on them.

It seems to be clear that the fishery ought in theory to be diminishing. When man first interfered with the Seals there must have been a balance of birth and death out there; for the seals have doubtless been there for thousands or tens of thousands of years, and if birth had predominated there should by then have been innumerable millions of them, whereas it death had predominated they should have been extinct. Now if there was such a balance, surely the killing of some hundreds of thousands every year for a century must have overthrown that balance; (unless we suppose that when man first attacked them their numbers were right up to the available food supply, and that when man had made his broad the herd was able rapidly to breed right up to the food supply again and fill the places of those killed. But seeing that the Seal produces so few young and that the ocean food supply is apparently unlimited, this hypothesis seems very unlikely.)

The difficulty in making a comparison of results in this fishery arises from the lack of a standard. The number of the fleet, the power of the ships, the number of men carried, all vary. Total catches are therefore of little use as a basis of argument. Moreover weather conditions vary so much that a short period is equally useless. I have therefore taken as a basis the average catch per wooden steamer for one trip only, over a period of 50 years, 1875 to 1924 inclusive. This ought to give us a fairly good basis, because the general type of wooden ship has remained the same, (one at least of the steamers figuring in the form of a graph or diagram) and over the long period covered any differences which may have existed in weather and ice conditions, arising out of changes in the date of sailing, or out of the number of men carried, are more or less "averaged out." We are brought down to the simple question: What catch has the average wooden steamer obtained on one trip under average conditions. This affords a fairly uniform basis of comparison. The answer to this is much clearer in the form of a graph or diagram than in figures, but as you can hardly print a diagram the figures will have to serve. The following is the average catch per wooden steamer for one trip for fifty years, and for the sake of comparison is added the average catch per man carried out in those steamers. If this latter is laid out on graph paper the curve will be found to follow fairly closely that of catch per ship.

These annual figures go up and down the scale too rapidly to convey much by themselves. For example, it will be noticed that 1915 is the worst, and 1826 the best, average on record. Therefore let us reduce these annual averages to five-year averages; we get the following result:—

Year	Per Ship	Per Man
1875-79	10858	55.23
1880-84	8551	37.22
1885-89	11293	53.85
1890-94	11812	52.39
1895-99	11620	54.52
1900-1904	15688	36.45
1905-09	10222	32.55
1910-14	10114	60.77
1915-19	5129	47.29
1920-24	11662

It will be noticed that during the period 1875 to 1904 there was a fairly consistent increase; in fact 1900-1904 seems to have been the golden time for Sealing, with an average of nearly 15700 per wooden ship. Since that there has been a marked decline, broken only by the extraordinary year 1916. The year 1921 came back exactly to the general average per wooden ship for the whole 50 years, i.e. about 11,200 per ship, and since that there has been a better period.

Now these are the facts, derived from statistics given in Chafe's Sealing Record. What is to be deduced from them is a much more difficult question. Let us take this as working hypothesis:—

In the days before the steamers the total catch by sailing vessels, etc., is said to have been often much bigger than that of the present day. I believe it went sometimes as high as 600,000. Now suppose, when that state of affairs had been going in for half a century, the herd was badly depleted. The sailing fleet died out, and the steam fleet, with a catch smaller in total, (though bigger per vessel) took its place. For ten years after 1875 we have catches per ship below the average. From 1885 to 1905 we may suppose the seals were recovering; and the catches per ship increased again until 1900, the peak. After 1904 for 17 years the wooden-ship catches steadily decreased again; the steel ships came, and went, between 1906 and 1916 and did heavy damage to the herd. Apart from 1916, a year standing alone, and so utterly out of line with the trend of the figures that it must have been a case of pure luck or chance, there is nothing to compare with the 1898-1904 peak.

But now, since 1919, the big steamers having been off the scene for several years, the catch recovers again. Have the herd is able to maintain itself? Or is this merely a temporary spurt? Such are the difficult questions which, in the interest of the country ought to be discussed and considered. I hope these calculations may help a little towards that discussion. What have the old sealers to say about the above tentative theory? Perhaps some other enquirer will supply figures for the period before 1875 and let us see if they bear out the theory.

It would be interesting to hear the views of some of the practical men on the question whether the steel steamers, 1906-1916, increased the catch of the wooden ships by helping them to the seals, or decreased the catch by taking seals from them. It will be noticed that the average per wooden ship for 1915-19, is actually less than that of 1910-14, when the steel fleet was in its prime. If the steel steamers hindered the wooden steamers, the situation is better than the above figures indicate but if they actually helped them, then the situation from 1906 to 1915 is worse than the above figures indicate, and the improvement since 1919 is more marked. The whole subject should repay much fuller investigation and analysis than I have been able to give it here. Perhaps others will join the discussion.

Yours truly,
BRIAN DUNFIELD.

Rotation in Guano Islands

Everyone knows that guano is the most valuable fertilizer in the world. It is said to be thirty-three times as effective as farmyard manure. This is partly because it is so rich in nitrogenous compounds, and partly because they are in a form that makes them very readily absorbed as food by the roots of plants. The best guano comes from the islands off the Peruvian coast that are washed by Humboldt's Current; and it has been calculated that this population requires a daily consumption of a thousand tons of fish. There is no difficulty in regard to the supply of food, but the difficulty in years gone by has been the greedy and unscientific exploitation. If the removal of the guano and the disturbance of the nests is unsystematic and ruthless, the consequence must be a dwindling of the colonies to mere remnants and a stoppage in the supply of guano. It is gratifying to learn that the enforcement of a well-thought-out system of rotation—from island to island—has put an end to the shortsighted folly. Thus, if scientific counsel is obeyed, there will be no end to the production of guano.—The Empire Review.

A Bishop on "Too Mild Preaching"

"In little more than a re-creation the Christian pulpit has very largely lost the note of severity," says the Bishop of Lincoln in the Evening News.

"It was about forty years ago that Canon Liddon warned us that we were in danger of treating God as though He were merely 'an active and energetic neighbour in the next street' and it was about the same time that Dr. Dale, of Birmingham, walking with a young friend, said to him, 'Tell me, tell me this. Why is it nobody fears God nowadays?'"

"The men of the old guard, who were great men and even prophets in their day, felt the change which was coming over the popular presentment of religion and it alarmed them. It had not been so with the leaders either of the Evangelical Revival or of the Oxford Movement.

"In either case the accent of severity had not been wanting from their teaching. They lived and taught in awful apprehension of Judgment to come. They spoke to men as those who would one day, and in no long period, have to give an account of the deeds done in the body. For good or for ill, preaching of this kind to-day is uncommon.

"It is worthy of consideration whether the milder message of our own generation is not out of harmony with the actual world in which we live and the facts of human experience. In what we sometimes describe as the lower world of nature, below the level of fully-conscious and deliberate life, consequence reigns supreme.

"Here there is no such thing as forgiveness. It is always a grave matter to infringe a law of nature, for you will pay the penalty to the utmost farthing with unflinching certainty. Nature, in the sense in which we ordinarily use the term, knows nothing of forgiveness.

"The Christian Doctrine of hell is not so much an article of faith as a fact of experience. Whether the misery which is the outcome of an evil will is endless is another question, but it would certainly seem to be the case that if the same moral law prevails in the world beyond the grave as prevails here and now, and it is unthinkable that there can be two moral laws, then as here and now, so there and then, sin unrepented of must bring misery.

"There is much in Holy Scripture which seems to indicate that the punishment of sin is no clumsy super-added penalty, but comes by way of quite inevitable consequence. "It would, perhaps, hardly be urged that teaching which suggests, either expressly or by constant omission of any contrary message, that somehow or another, whatever we do or fail to do, all will ultimately be well, was exactly in accord with the scriptural standard. It is worth while also to consider whether it bears any kind of relation to the facts of human life and experience, whether it does not suggest a world perhaps pleasing to those who are not at pains to think seriously, but not the world in which we live.

"After all, human life for most of us is a somewhat difficult and perplexing business, and though for a while we may pause to hearken to a pleasant voice telling fairy-tales, we must soon pass on our way, for we have serious business in hand."

Mushrooms seem essential to the success of creamed asparagus.

Disappointed He Was an Ex-Premier

Having represented the City of Halifax in the Commons for many years, Sir Robert Borden for a time believed he was no stranger to the good people of the eastern gateway to the Dominion. He was sadly deceived, however, shortly after he laid down the onerous duties of premier.

Included among the large number who pressed forward to greet him at an informal reception in Halifax was a middle-aged lady well known for her interest in child welfare.

After the manner of so many other one-ideal enthusiasts, this lady imagined everybody else must necessarily be particularly interested in her particular field, and when she got the chance to talk to the guest of honor launched forth into her favorite topic.

Sir Robert was bored, but he did his best to stimulate a polite interest, though listening with only half an ear.

Suddenly he became all attention when he realized the lady was thanking him profusely for what he had done to make the lives of little babes healthier and happier. He was particularly puzzled when he heard himself referred to as "the greatest benefactor of future generations this country has ever known."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier would have carried off such a situation with graceful ease. Hon. Arthur Meighen would have looked wise and maintained a discreet silence. Premier Mackenzie King would have tactfully changed the conversation.

But however great may have been his ability in other lines, Sir Robert Borden never was a nimble-witted politician.

Try as he would, the ex-premier could not recall any child legislation of his that deserved such extravagant praise, and said something to this effect to his fulsome admirer.

"Legislation? Legislation?" said the lady, with a look of extreme surprise. "What has legislation to do with your business?"

"As member of parliament and former premier, I am naturally supposed to have something to do with legislation," explained Sir Robert, his brows compressed in perplexity.

The lady gasped with dismay, then said: "Oh! Are you a member of parliament? I am so disappointed! I thought you were the man who condenses milk for babies!"

Great Britain's Food Commission Reports Findings

London May 8.—The Royal Food Commission which for many weeks has been hearing evidence regarding food prices, to-day issued its reports—one majority and two minority.

The chief feature of interest of the majority reports from the Canadian point of view is probably a suggestion which it contains for co-operation with the governments of the dominions regarding inter-empire commerce in food supplies. It may be desirable, the report declares, to discuss with the dominion governments the possibility of encouraging the flow of food to the markets of Great Britain in the interests of both the producer and the consumer. The suggestion is also made that the port authorities of the old country give careful consideration to the port charges on wheat with a view, if possible, to making reductions in the near future. The principal recommendations from the British consumers point of view is the establishment of a food council to maintain supervision over the staple food trades.

The majority report is signed with various reservations by Sir Auckland Geddes, the chairman, and other members of the commission. Two commissioners, T. H. Ryland and Walter Smith, submit minority reports.

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With Othine—Double Strength.

This preparation for the removal of freckles is so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by all drug and department stores with a guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil or waste time on lemon juice or cucumbers; get an ounce of Othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine; it is this that is sold on money-back guarantee. P. O. Box 2618, Montreal, Canada.

Col. Montgomerie Enters Political Arena

HALIFAX, May 8th.—The largest and most enthusiastic convention in the history of Halifax County last night selected as Conservative standard bearer for this constituency in the forthcoming provincial general elections—Colonel Alexander Montgomerie, J. Frederick Fraser, William Piercy, John A. Walker, John F. Mahoney.

Following closely upon the nomination of such outstanding business men as Frank Stanfield, in Colchester, and Hon. E. N. Rhodes, in Hants, the selection of the Halifax ticket is a further earnest of the determination of the opposition forces in this city and Province to ensure business government for Nova Scotia.

Colonel Montgomerie is one of the best known business men in Eastern Canada. He is Manager of the Furness Withy Company for Nova Scotia and Newfoundland, and his rise to his present responsible position with that world-famous steamship company is a record of which Nova Scotians are justly proud. Colonel Montgomerie for a number of years has been actively identified with the business organizations of Halifax and Nova Scotia. He was for two years president of the Board of Trade of this city, and was the first Chairman of the Nova Scotia Publicity Bureau.

A Valuable Missle

To have a book worth considerably more than a thousand pounds thrown at one's head is an experience which does not fall to the lot of many. It happened, however, to Dr. Adolf Ehrenfeld.

It has just been announced that the Hungarian National Museum has acquired this book by private treaty. Although it was on Sotheby's catalogue at a reserve price of £1,000, it is stated that the price actually paid is much in excess of that sum.

The book is the first printed in the Magyar tongue, and is known to collectors as the Codex Ehrenfeld. It contains 81 pages and dates from the year 1480.

Its former owner, Dr. Ehrenfeld, a Viennese lawyer, came into possession of the book in an unusual way. In 1851 he was a student at Nyitra, in what was then Northern Hungary. One day, while he was wrestling with a companion, this book was hurled playfully at his head and he pocketed it. It was only many years later that he rediscovered it, examined it, and became aware of its unique character and great value.

Shot by a Candle

A remarkable inscription cut into the stone wall of the lower ramparts of the Round Tower at Windsor Castle has excited the curiosity of many visitors. No date is attached, and there is no explanation of its meaning beyond the actual words: "C. Horne—Shot by a Candle."

Curiously enough, however, an old Windsor diary has come to light which contains, under the date June 8th, 1338, this remarkable entry: "Chas. Horne, Clover Lane, was killed by a man shooting a rush-light at him from a gun. Buried at Eton, June 11th."

There is no evidence that the inscription on the castle wall and this entry in a diary refer to the same incident, but the probability is that they do. In reference to the event itself, it was probably the tragic end of what was meant for a joke, the offender thinking a tallow candle would merely fatten out against the poor fellow's body and do him no injury, whereas

A Secondary or Grid Circuit

EDITED BY JOHN M. CLAYTON.

Reference in current radio literature is often made to the secondary or grid circuit of a receiver. Let's see what this circuit is. In heavy lines in the diagram above we show this secondary circuit in a standard three-circuit tuner.

You will note that the antenna is connected to one end of a coil (the primary or antenna coil) and that this coil is coupled or placed in a close position to the secondary coil. The other end of the antenna coil is connected to ground. Across the terminals of the secondary coil is connected the variable condenser. It is customary to indicate the rotary plate connection of the variable condenser by means of the curved line. It is always important that the rotary plates in any receiving set be connected to the ground whenever it is possible to do so.

The top end of the secondary coil is connected to the grid condenser and the grid condenser to the grid of the detector tube.

This end of the coil is called the high potential end, it being at higher electrical potential than is the grounded end of the coil. The grid circuit is completed through the vacuum tube itself to the filament of the tube and thence to the positive terminal of the A (storage) battery. The low potential end of the secondary coil is connected to this same A battery terminal.

This portion of the radio circuit is the most sensitive and should have the lowest losses possible. This means good air core secondary coils, low-loss condensers with a minimum of solid dielectric material in the field of the condenser, a grid condenser which is not made of paper and fiber and last of all a good socket which is not moulded from cheap and leaky mud. The goodness of a regenerative receiver is largely dependent on the low-loss construction in this secondary circuit.

A Great Programme at the Nickel Theatre

VOCAL AND FEATURE TREAT OF HIGH QUALITY.

Last night's audience at the Nickel Theatre were very enthusiastic in their ovation to Adrian DaSilva, that noted Tenor soloist who has delighted so many of our music enthusiasts since his appearance at this theatre. Mr. DaSilva possesses a well trained voice which he uses to good advantage in his songs.

On to-morrow the Nickel presents Commo Hamilton's latest picturization of his famous story "Another Scandal."

It's a rare husband who knows when his wife means the opposite of what she says. When Beatrice meant "stay," she said "go." Pelham didn't want to, but he went because he loved her and she punished him by flirting with Alec Greenwood.

By her feminine perversity Bee broke the thread of her perfect marriage. Pelham left, and "see friend May," who had been angling for him for a long time, stood ready to take advantage of the rift in the lute.

When a woman makes up her mind to get a man, only another woman can save him. Beatrice came to her senses when it was almost too late. How was she to save her husband who was walking blind-folded into May's neat trap?

Here's one of the greatest battles of wits between two women ever shown on the screen. "Another Scandal" deals with the marriage question from a new angle. It throws new light on many vital problems. You can't afford to miss it!

Know Your Car

One cause of motor overheating lies in neglect of the air circulation equipment, especially the fan and fan belt.

If the belt becomes saturated with oil and grease, it will fail to drive the fan properly. At low speeds this failure may not be evident, but at moderate or high speeds the belt simply slides around the fan pulley without driving it.

To eliminate this slippage, first wash the belt in kerosene to remove oil. Then wash it in soap and water, dry, and dust with talc, Fuller's earth, or talcum powder. Finally, adjust the belt so that the fan will not spin after the motor is cut off. Reverse the fan belt each time it is cleaned.

To prevent the fan bearings from wearing and so causing friction and retarded rotation, fit the bearing with a pressure greasing nipple, and apply the grease gun every 500 miles. Keep the fan bracket bolts tight and adjust the bearings in the fan hub so that no lost motion exists.

One busy week! Sunday's Church Parade, 507 strong; Monday night, our Band's broadcasting programme, thru the courtesy of J. J. Collins, of the Marconi Wireless Co., Station S.J.C. We hear from listeners-in that the programme "went through" to destinations in professional shape. The Bandmaster, Lieut. Vavasour, hopes to again broadcast another programme Monday week.

We are glad to hear that the Rev. Frank Severn, Rector of Petty Harbor, is considering organizing a detachment in his parish. The Colonel and staff will give him all possible information and assistance.

"Overseas News" this week brings a letter from Sergeant Gunner Wm. Groves, Jr., who recently passed his exams after a course at the Gunners School, Toronto.

Bonavista L. Co., No. 3277, reports for April with 21 on the strength. Captain I. J. Bishop, O.C., reports six parades held during the month and all lads keen and going strong. Canon Bayly, Rector, is away in New York, and his curate, the Rev. W. Sheppard, is now taking over the responsibility of Chaplain for the Company. Headquarters expect a good year's progress from Bonavista as they have lots of grit at the northern city.

For 1925 we note the following officers of the W. and N.C.O.'s Mess and congratulate the Executive on their election:

- President—Regt. Sergt. Major E. W. Best.
- Vice-Chairman—Sergt. Major Bursell.
- Secretary—Regt. Q.M.S. Sidney Bursell.
- Treasurer—Corporal W. Rees.
- Asst. Treasurer—C.S.M. B. Rees.
- Committee—C.S.M. N. Adams, Sergt. L. Hookey, Sergt. C. Keats and Sergt. F. Martin.

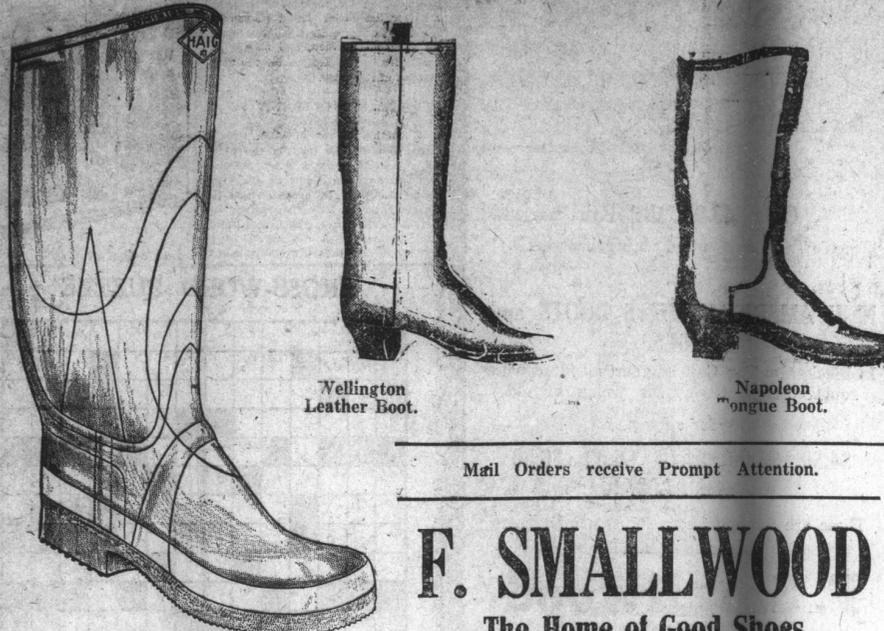

Orders this week announce Lt. A. B. Perlin, Orderly Officer, with Lieut. B. Jerritt next for duty. Rev. E. J. R. Nicholas is Duty Chaplain; Armourer Sergt. Adams is promoted Armourer Staff Sergt., with grade of Company Quartermaster Sergt. from this date.

The Colonel and staff are now considering the spring and summer routine. Captain Stick, radio officer, wishes to thank all those who kindly phoned and sent in their appreciation of the Band's broadcasting programme on Monday evening. Headquarters staff are pleased to have a note of thanks from Old Comrade ex-Sergt. Arch. Gooby, who is at home ill and who enjoyed the privilege of hearing the Band's excellent music. Well done Bandsmen, keep up the good work, cheering up those who are on the sick list with your inspiring music.

Fifteen recruits passed their exams last night under our energetic Adjutant, Capt. Stick, who next week will hold an exam for all lads wishing to secure their Corporal's stripes. All lads with rank of Lance Corporal are asked to parade at 7.45 sharp next Tuesday.

IN THE REALMS OF SPORT

INDIAN RUNNER IS NOW A MECHANIST.

Tom Longboat Wishes That He Had The Chance To Match Strides With Paavo Nurmi.

The Montreal Star Says:—Those who used to know Longboat in Montreal and elsewhere will be greatly interested in what Ford C. Frick, a noted New York sport writer, says about him:

"Paavo Nurmi's racing accomplishments bring back memories of those other speedsters of a past generation—and of all the distance runners who trod the boards to records, none was more like the Finn in many ways, and more unlike him in others, than Tom Longboat, the famous Indian.

"Longboat, like Nurmi, was tireless. He glided through the weary miles as though they were but yards in the span of a sprint. Like Nurmi, too, he had a stride that was half glided half flying—and for years he ruled the roost of all marathon runners.

"But, unlike Nurmi, Longboat had no ideas of training. He lived a full life and a fast one. And he paid the penalty. The ions, supple muscles that promised to endure forever, lost their elasticity. The barrel chest that was the centre of his great endurance, weakened and gave way. And Tom Longboat was forced to quit the competition.

"To-day, at 37, fat and muscle-bound, the once great Indian is working seven days a week as a machinist in Buffalo. He weighs 180 pounds now—the one-time slim, tall form, covered with bulging muscles and flesh. But he follows the game closely. News was brought to him of Nurmi's accomplishments a few days ago. He listened quietly, shook his head and sighed.

"I might," he stammered, then he stopped. "He's a great runner," he added quietly. "I wish I might have met him."

SARAZEN CARRIED LOT OF WEIGHT IN DIXIE HANDICAP.

When Sarazen shouldered 130 lbs. last Friday and won the Dixie Handicap at Pimlico, he did something that no other American thoroughbred of his age accomplished. Four year olds have carried heavy imposts over a distance of ground, but never so early in the season. Sir Barton, when a four-year-old, won the mile and three-sixteenths of the Merchants' and Citizens' Handicap, but that was well on in the season. Lucullite successfully carried 133 pounds in the Aqueduct Handicap, while Cudgel, when a four-year-old, was winner of the Grainger Memorial under 132 pounds and the Brooklyn Handicap under 129 pounds. Grey Lag was winner of the Empire City Handicap, under 132 pounds, and Zev won the mile and a sixteenth of the King's County handicap under 130 pounds. Then of the older stars, Whisk Broom II took up 130 pounds in the Suburban and Grey Lag won the same race under 135 pounds. Exterminator won the Brooklyn under 135 pounds and the Grainger Memorial under 138 pounds, but these big weights came long after May 1, and

If the necessary improvements are not soon made, the footballers will lose heart, while the citizens, to help to play the game, will become disinterested.

To bring back football to what it was a few years ago, one of the most important matters that the League must deal with, is the making of every provision for the comfort of the spectators. The children, allowed to roam all over the field, taking charge of the Grandstand, etc., is another matter for consideration, and should be dealt with by the League, for the best interest of the game.

M.G.C.A. SPORTS COMMITTEE MEETING.

A meeting of the M.G.C.A. Sports Committee will be held in the club rooms at 815 to-night, when preliminary arrangements will be made in connection with the proposed trip to Grand Falls in July. According to letters received from the Grand Falls Athletic Association, the athletes, and the people in general, are very much taken up with the movement, and its success is already assured. All those interested in the Grand Falls trip are cordially invited to attend the meeting to-night.

"Temple of Venus" Beautiful Picture With Strong Story

ADAMS & CHENEY PLEASES BIG AUDIENCE LAST NIGHT AT MAJESTIC.

Combining the beauty of Santa Cruz Island in the west coast bathing girls, the William Fox production of "The Temple of Venus" as played at the Majestic Theatre, seemed to please a large house last night. The story relates to two girls, one an island native, the other a New York society debutante, who love the same man. The happy ending is there and the action up to that point is plentiful. Phyllis Haver, Mary Philbin and David Butler have the leading roles, with the support of an excellent cast. Henry Otto directed the picture and succeeded in obtaining remarkable effects from the splendors of Santa Cruz. He was equally as successful in his choice of bathing girls and costumes.

Adams and Cheney added to their laurels last night. As entertainers they stand supreme and it is admitted everywhere that they are the best team of their kind to come here for many years. It is very seldom that musical artists please the entire community or win the unanimous approval of all, which is admittedly a difficult problem, but in this case it is a fact that Adams and Cheney have won the admiration of everyone who has had the pleasure of hearing them, and the popular expressions from patrons on leaving the Theatre, are: "They certainly are great." These are the artists, the best we've ever had. Already they have received numerous requests for various popular tunes and we understand that in the course of time, each and everyone of the requests will be considered in the programmes. Last night's receipts were indeed very encouraging, and it is said that patrons are promised some big things in the very near future.

To-night is the last night "The Temple of Venus" will be repeated, and tomorrow a complete change of programme will be advertised.

Western Civilization's Destruction Aim of Greatest "Red" Plot Ever Known, News Correspondent Says

Conspiracy Reaching Throughout World
for Forcible Seizure of Power is Being Organized, Paul Scott Mowrer Finds.

PAUL SCOTT MOWRER, Special Correspondent Albany Evening
News.

"This is a conspiracy . . .
in which millions participate,
which is supported by tens of millions.—Kameney.

PARIS, May 1.—From Moscow is being organized and directed the greatest conspiracy ever known.
There have been plots before, plots against authority, plots against society, plenty of them. But never before has any sane individual or any group plotted deliberately to achieve the overthrow of the existing order, literally everywhere, nor has there been concerted effort of realizing a perfect so generally malevolent, by the deliberate support and coordination of every element of rivalry, national disturbance and corruption that exists among men.

The direct agents of this conspiracy are members of the secret and fanat-ic Communist brotherhood that is extending its ramifications throughout the world. Its heads are the triumvirate of Red dictators in Moscow—Stalin, Zinoviev—cruel, cunning, utterly unscrupulous, the very embodiment of philosophic materialism carried to the utmost refinement of the human dialectic. Its organs are the treasonable and corruptive groups, societies and associations known collectively as the third international.

The exposure of the organization, and the immediate tactical objectives of the third international are so fantastic that it seems unbelievable. Some readers no doubt will be apt to comment knowingly upon the sensational exaggerations of the press. Unfortunately, however, the great conspiracy is not a phantasma-goria but a living reality. Its perpetrators admit it; boast of it. Nor are its boasts unfounded, for it is already powerful, and, contrary to common belief, it seems even to be progressing. In any case, its sanguinary aims are being executed.

Already it has cost many thousand lives in various parts of the world.
There is every reason to fear it will cost still more. Statesmen in power, sympathetic by profession, do not like to speak of it, but they are aware of it.
The police almost everywhere have been obliged to assign specialists exclusively to the work of unraveling and following its designs. In some countries an obscure but dramatic struggle is going on night and day between the agents of the revolutionary brotherhood, on the one hand, and the agents of the law, on the other.

I do not wish to be understood as implying that the conspiracy will succeed. On the contrary, I am convinced that it cannot. I desire merely to emphasize that it exists, that it may constantly be expected to provoke further outbreaks and that we shall be obliged to assign specialists to combat something like another war.
The great conspiracy affects everywhere, its aim, everywhere, is the forcible seizure of power, by any and all means: the enslavement, in the name of "revolutionary discipline" of the workers and farmers; the immediate execution or imprisonment of all conservative and liberal leaders, including moderate Socialists and moderate labor leaders; the expropriation, eviction and slow extinction of the upper and middle classes; internally, the basement of all the more successful individuals, of whatever class, to the profit of the less successful; the dissolution of the family; the forcible moral and intellectual corruption of all children, male and female, in the name of materialistic philosophy and Communist theory; the destruction of religion and the church; in short, the extinction of western civilization and all its traditions, and the formation, at the ruin of all that now makes living worth the while, of a new materialistic, Communist world order, under the iron dictatorship of the immediate heirs and followers of Nicolai Lenin.

Even this diabolical programme is not a phantasmagoria for it has been partly executed wherever Communism has had a temporary success, and it is being carried out rigidly in the unhappy land which used to be called Russia.

The means by which the arch conspirators hope to attain success are:
The enrollment in the Communist brotherhood, in all countries, of cerps of fighting rebels and fanatics, sworn to secrecy and to blind obedience, the antitheticalizing of the kindly careless masses and the so-called "idealists" and "liberals" by hypocritical pacifist and humanitarian propaganda—"help Russia," "hands off Russia," "down with the white terror," etc.; the formulation of social and political troubles; the distribution of money subsidies and bribes; encouragement of disaffected minorities; incitations to class and race war; the stimulation of international rivalries and susceptibilities; the corruption of "capitalist" soldiers and sailors; the sabotage, when the right moment comes, of "capitalist" arsenals and key industries; and, finally, if it be the direct intervention of the Red army and navy.

Any one who cares to look about him may easily perceive some features of the vast program in actual process of development, some concrete application which is being attempted locally of these manifold means of perturbation. Wherever in the world to-day there is a disorder or disaster, there, it may safely be hazarded, will be found a Communist agent, not necessarily instigating the evil, but exploiting it.
And nothing is more propitious for the designs of the conspirators than the present popular tendency to treat the danger lightly or indifferently.

"But what," it may well be asked,
after all these assertions, "are your sources of information? Have you been to Russia? Have the Bolsheviks taken you into their confidence?"
No, I have not been to Russia. The great conspiracy is not, strictly speaking, a Russian conspiracy, but it is literally worldwide. Its headquarters are in Moscow but it is far from certain that Moscow is the best place to study the workings. The activities of the third international are to be perceived most clearly, not in Russia, which has already been fettered by Communism, but in countries that are still sound and sane, particularly in states that have a common frontier with Russia, and, consequently, are exposed to external, as well as to revolutionary attack.

"The border states, from Finland to Rumania," says a recent editorial in the Liberal Digest Nyheter of Stockholm, "feel the Bolshevik pressure more than do other countries, and thereby become the best observation post for those who wish to obtain a really true conception of what is generally called the Red danger."

In recent weeks from Finland to Rumania, by way of Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania and Poland, I have travelled the length of the Red frontier. In each country I visited I have had a long consultation—not for publication, but confidential and accurately informative—with the minister of foreign affairs. I have talked with the heads of the Russian sections of the various foreign offices. I have interviewed political leaders, eminent editors, and experts on Russian affairs. I have conversed with travellers and with government agents who have just come from Moscow. Diplomats and military attaches, both foreign and American, have aided my researches. Private files have been opened to me and I have had the privilege of reading a number of unpublished reports. I have completed my inquiries in London, Paris and Berlin, and especially, I have passed many hours in the perusal of the official Soviet press and official Soviet documents.

The affront with which the Bolshevists make public even the details of their doctrine and plans is nothing short of amazing. And the significant point is that, except possibly in one or two minor matters of interpretation, all sources agree. When the disinterested experts of countries as widely separated as Finland and Poland, France and Latvia, Germany and the United States, arrive at conclusions that are corroborated, in one way or another, by the Red dictators themselves, there can be little doubt, I think, with regards to the main facts.

An Energetic Man

It is a little startling to hear of a man who laid 875 bricks in an hour, when we know that less than that number are usually laid in a day!
It appears, however, that the thing is just possible for a very strong man
for a single hour.
To lay 875 bricks in an hour a man would have to lift three tons of bricks and mortar, and one has only to imagine the motions of lifting each brick with one hand, taking the mortar on to the trowel with the other, and laying and adjusting the brick and the mortar, to see what a terrifically exhausting thing it must be to work at such a speed.

Clipperty, clop, clipperty clop.
My, how Little Jack Rabbit can hop;
As he knapsack bounces upon his back
As he merrily hops up the Forest Track.

All of a sudden he saw Billy Coon
at the edge of the Shady Forest Pool.
Yes, there he sat in his crispish-yellow fur coat, his tail ringed with black and white, and a patch of black on each gray cheek.

"I wonder what he is doing,"
thought the little bunny, hiding behind a bush to watch more closely what might happen.
Billy Coon, as you know, is a little cousin of the bear. He is nearly three feet long, and stout, with slender, short legs. All of a sudden with his strongly clawed right fore foot he dipped something in the water; after which he began to eat with a good appetite.

"Hello, Billy Coon," whispered the bunny boy, peeping out from his hiding place. If Billy Coon had not recognized the little rabbit's voice I guess he would have scurried away to some sheltering cave or hollow tree.
"Oh, it's you!" I thought so," exclaimed Billy Coon. "Just eating my breakfast. We coons always wash our food before meals. My, but I'm glad I'm growing fatter. I was mighty thin when I came out of my winter quarters in an old tree in the early spring.
And mighty hungry, too."

"Are you particular about what you eat?" asked the little rabbit. But before Bill Coon could answer, the bunny boy exclaimed, with a laugh:
"Do you know, your face looks something like Danny Fox's."
"That's because my muzzle and ears are sharp," answered Billy Coon.
"Now, to answer your question. In the early spring I eat anything I can find, although later on nuts, fruits and wild honey; even bugs, fish and times eat hornets and bees; especially if the bees are mixed up with their honey comb."

"Goodness me," almost shouted the little rabbit, quite amazed at such a bill of fare.
"Well, I'll tell you something more," went on Billy Coon. "At night when I wish to call on Mrs. Coon I sit up on my haunches and turn my head up sideways. Then I blow through my half-closed lips into the upper air. It sounds as if it came from the treetop.
No one would think then that I was on the ground. Yes, I'm a sort of a ventriloquist. Do you know the meaning of the word?"

"Well, you look it up in the dictionary when you go home," advised Billy Coon, with a wink. "I must be going,"
and making a cry something like that of a little owl, he walked away.
"Dearest me," sighed the bunny
boy. "I certainly have learned a lot of things about Billy Coon. I must try to remember them so as to tell Mother to-night when I get home for supper." And away he went, clipperty

It's Chilly on Mars

During the past year investigations to determine, as nearly as possible,
the temperatures on the planet Mars,
were conducted both at the Mount Wilson Observatory in California and at the Observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz.
The observers at Mount Wilson calculated the afternoon temperature along the equator of Mars to be approximately 10 degrees above freezing, while those at Flagstaff estimate the temperature at 20 above freezing.

These calculations would indicate that Mars would be more tempting as a summer than a winter resort. In the Martian polar regions the temperature must be extremely low.

Neuritis

Neuralgia—Sciatica—Rheumatism

NEURITIS is inflammation of a nerve. The pain is burning and tearing, not darting as in neuralgia, and is increased by movement.
There may be swelling and sensitiveness to touch, and sometimes redness of the skin.
Your experience will tell you that neuritis, like neuralgia and sciatica, only bothers you when your nervous system gets run down.
Restore energy and vigor to the nerves and you remove the cause of these torturing ailments.
The nerves must be nourished back to health and vigor by the use of such restorative treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mr. John Woodward, Lucas, Ontario, writes:—

"I was a sufferer from neuritis for several years, and tried all kinds of remedies, yet never seemed to get any better. At last my nerves and whole system seemed to give way, through not being able to get any rest or sleep at nights for pain which mostly used to take me in all parts of the limbs and feet. Almost at the point of despair I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I feel it my duty to tell you of the benefit I derived. I am more than proud to say that after believing over twenty boxes I believe myself almost normal again, and for the past year I seem to enjoy my usual health."

Mrs. Wm. Mapletto, Mount
Forest, Ont., writes:—

"For about three years I suffered from neuritis in my right side. I had pains throughout my back and twitching of the nerves and muscles. I had also been operated on for appendicitis,
and it left me a nervous wreck.
I was very restless and uneasy,
and bothered with frequent neuritic headaches. My appetite was poor and I sometimes took weak spells. I commenced a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and in a very short time I found relief. This medicine has done me the world of good and I can recommend it to all suffering
as I was."
