CULTIVATING THE FARMERS.

At the Conservative convention in Prince Edward Island last week Hon. J. B. M. Baxter "declared he had received renewed inspiration through the length and breadth of the province leaving their farms at this busy season to devote a day to the interests of party and country."

The Sackville Post on Friday said: "Hon. J. B. M. Baxter of St. John arrived in Sackville yesterday from P. E. Island. He is a guest of Col. and Mrs. F. B. Black."

In an editorial on Friday the Sackville Post discovered that the Liberal had ridiculed the farmers and belittled the farmer movement. "On the other hand," says the Post, "it is well known that an entirely different feeling exists between the Farmers and the Conservatives. As a party the latter did nothing to embarrass the farmers last autumn and while they did not take an active part in the campaign, it is well known that the farmer candidates in this end of the county at least received considerable Conservative support. All this being true, the Post believes it would be possible for the Conservatives and the farmers of Westminister to get together before next election and agree upon a candidate. Such an agreement, if entered into sincerely and enthusiastically, should ensure the election of any man they might agree on."

This is the spirit in which the subject of the conference should be approached by all the participants. It would be a futile conference if those in attendance were actuated by a desire to gain an advantage over others. That they will not be so actuated we have faith to believe, and what their joint action may save for the world cannot be measured in the terms of the market place.

A GRACIOUS TRIBUTE.

That was a particularly happy thought of Mayor Schofield which enabled many representative citizens to meet at dinner last evening representatives of the Royal Navy and of the rowing associations of Halifax on the eve of the great regatta. The references to the navy were in particular of great interest, and it was a pleasure to listen to the brief address of Capt. Stewart in reply. Hon. Mr. Baxter's references to the benefits of association, whether in serious work or in sport, and especially in regard to the relations between St. John and Halifax, were timely and appropriate; and brought a most gratifying response from the gentlemen from the sister city, whose earnestness when they expressed their pleasure that St. John is again definitely interested in aquatic sports most favorably impressed every guest. They were assured, and with equal sincerity, that St. John wishes those with win in today's competitions most who most deserve to win. The reminiscences of Senator Thorne, Mr. J. A. Gregory and Commissioner Frink were most appropriate to the occasion, and the good feeling and good-fellowship of the evening were very marked. The whole affair was informal, and none the less interesting that there were no set speeches. It was a fitting prelude to the events of today, and also a fitting compliment to the men of the Royal Navy.

A STARTLING ASSERTION.

The professor of psychology at Columbia University told the members of the Kiwanis Club of Atlantic City last week that the intelligence of the average white citizen of the United States reached levels no higher than those of the schooling of a child of thirteen. "They understand only the simplest English," he asserted, "and do little or no thinking for themselves." The professor declared this had been proven by a series of mental tests which had been made under his direction.

Such an assertion, if accepted as correct, would leave small ground for self-complacency on the part of the American people. A democracy with so limited an average of intelligence would be very far from ideal. The professor's estimate would imply a very defective educational system, which failed to reach a large proportion of the population in an effective way. It is undoubtedly true that far too many people fail to do intelligent and purposeful thinking; and it is probably also true that immigration into the United States far too many illiterates of low intelligence, whose presence would tend to reduce the general average. To be properly effective, education must be made universal, and the period of contact with children with schools and continuation classes must be so extended as to ensure a better average training both for wage-earning and for citizenship.

The gay old birds who confess that they stole away to see a boat race fifty years ago will not be disposed to care any youth who manifests an interest in today's events at Renforth.

Baltimore Sun: London has chosen the softest midsummer of many years to return the silk hat to popularity. Now and then we think we thoroughly understand our British brother—and then something happens to persuade us that his reasoning is entirely alien.

WHAT WILL IT SAVE?

The Boston Globe is not disturbed by the preliminary estimate of $200,000,000 expense of the disarmament conference, and is able to present good reasons why there should be no worry, even if the cost went to a million. It says:

"What if the conference does cost a million? If we spend a million now to save a hundred million a year for some years to come, it would seem to be a good proposition, easy to sell to the country afterwards. If the conference is worth anything it is worth the chance of saving a hundred million on the original investment. We spend a hundred thousand right along on items of less importance. It represents not even the cost of one of the new destroyers. A dreadnought costs $30,000,000 to build, as much to maintain, and is obsolete in ten years. In scrutinizing the bill, Congressmen have not perhaps grasped the significance of the conference. But Europe last Premier Briand is coming. It is likely that France has set a pace which other countries will follow in the selection of their representatives. The Japanese government, pushed by people bending under a burden of military expenditures, will send an able commission. Senator Lodge has been definitely selected to assist Secretary of State Hughes. The question is not what the conference is going to cost, but what it is going to save?"

This is the spirit in which the subject of the conference should be approached by all the participants. It would be a futile conference if those in attendance were actuated by a desire to gain an advantage over others. That they will not be so actuated we have faith to believe, and what their joint action may save for the world cannot be measured in the terms of the market place.

A REFORMED OUTLAW WHO RECENTLY INTERVIEWED THE LEUTENANT GOVERNOR OF MASSACHUSETTS IN ADVOCACY OF A MOVEMENT TO INDUCE THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT TO DEVOTE A VERY LARGE AMOUNT OF MONEY TO THE ESTABLISHMENT OF VOCATIONAL SCHOOLS, DECLARED THAT IF BOYS ARE PROVIDED WITH INSTRUCTION IN TRADES, IN ART AND IN THE SCIENCES IT WILL BE A GREAT ADVANCE FOR DEVELOPING THE BEST THAT IS IN THEM; AND HE SAID THAT IN HIS OPINION 75 PER CENT OF THE CRIME COMMITTED WOULD HAVE BEEN PREVENTED IF THE BOYS WERE TRAINED IN VOCATIONAL SCHOOLS. THE OTHER ASPECT OF THE CASE IS THAT SUCH TRAINING MAKES THE BOYS BETTER PRODUCING FACTORS IN THE COMMUNITY.

The authorities should run down any person who throws stones at a street car in which citizens are exercising their right to ride. The recent employes of the power company have entered into competition with it, and the whole dispute is now reduced to a business basis. The citizens have a right to choose their method of transportation, and they are entitled to protection. One or two very stiff sentences would serve a useful purpose. Even those who refuse to ride on the street cars will agree that public order must be maintained and property protected.

So serious has become the danger to children in the streets of Toronto, and so few are the neighborhood playgrounds in proportion to the need, that Coroner Crawford is of opinion that the city should follow the example of many cities in the United States and set aside certain side streets upon which no traffic would be allowed. Upon these streets children under school age could play in comparative safety. But, this, after all, would only be a makeshift solution of the problem. The street is not a desirable playground, and should only be regarded as a temporary provision until better could be provided.

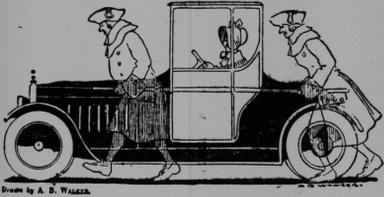

Last night's Ottawa despatches indicated that the elections will not be held before another parliamentary session. The announcement today that Sir George Foster has left the capital for two weeks may be an indication that the government has shelved the question of an appeal to the people. A despatch today says that leading members and supporters of the government yesterday urged the prime minister not to go to the country this fall, and that writes for several by-elections will be issued. The results of those by-elections may alter the situation to some extent.

If it be true that the Irish hierarchy has definitely intervened in the matter at issue its influence unquestionably will be great, although some hot-heads have at different times protested against any clerical interference in political affairs. A summary published today of the views of Australia and South Africa shows that the feeling is universal that De Valera should accept the terms offered by the British government.

The unemployment situation is now said to be receiving some attention at Ottawa. It is high time.

All roads in these parts today lead to Renforth.

AS OF OLD.

(Russia, 1920.)

The streets of the following poem is unknown. It was written in the Butyrka in Moscow, or in the Yaroslavl jail, according to the Russian newspaper, Volya Rossi ("The Will of Russia"), published in Prague, which printed it in the issue of July 31, 1921. The author is obviously some one who was in prison under the Czar for political offences.)

Have you not brought? Not seen in a claim by J. C. Watters, of Sydney (N. S. W.), that the congress, by its expenses, $1,217.45, incurred in his trip overseas to attend the labor peace conference, but the delegates' travel recommendations back and will bear the case tomorrow.

There was a good deal of discussion over the fair wage clause recognized by the labor unions in the various localities, in all contracts and sub-contracts for work given out by the federal or provincial governments whether they be direct by subsidies, or financially assisted in any manner.

Business Accomplished. When adjournment was made at 5:30 p. m., the following were among the items of business accomplished: The convention called upon the government to establish an eight-hour day and a forty-four hour week; The insertion of a fair wage clause in all works on which public money is spent was urged;

The federal government was asked to appoint a labor man on the Hydro-Electric commission; The opinion was expressed that the present cost of living did not justify any reduction in the wage rate on the Canadian National Railway.

IN LIGHTER VEIN. After one attends the movies and sits in the neighborhood of a gump who reads the sub-titles aloud, he wonders if the value of education hasn't been stressed a little too much.

The Wrong Card. Calling upon a druggist, the nervous young commercial traveller on his first trip, put his hand in his pocket and drew out a card.

"I represent that concern," said the young man, "replicated the druggist. 'You are fortunate,'" replied the druggist. "The traveller was encouraged. 'I think so,' sir, he said, 'and the druggist who trades with us is even more so. My firm has the finest line of cosmetics in the world.' 'I shouldn't have asked it,' slowly responded the man of medicine; 'her complexion looks natural,' and he handed back the photograph which the young man had given him in mistake.

The traveller didn't wait for an order. Thirt. She was comely and a widow, and moreover she was Scotch. She mourned Macintosh, her late husband, for 18 months, and then from a crowd of suitors chose homely, honest McInstry for her second.

"I'm no good enough for ye, dear," he whispered. "What for did ye choose me out of me money?" "Ah, well, ye see, your name's MacIntyre."

"Yes, but—" began the bewildered suitor. "Ah, ye ken," finished the widow, "all my linen's marked 'MacIntyre'—that's why, Donald."

A Kind Boss. A wagon loaded with lamp globes had collided with a truck and many of the globes were smashed. Considerable sympathy was felt for the driver as he gazed at the shattered globe, benevolent-looking old man eyed him compassionately.

"My poor man," he said, "I suppose you will have to pay for them out of your own pocket." "Yes," was the meekly reply. "Well, well," said the old man, "here's a quarter for you. I dare say some of these other people will give you a helping hand too."

The driver held out his hat and several people dropped coins into it. At last when the contributions had ceased, he emptied the contents of his hat into the street. "Then, pointing to the retreating figure who had started the collision, he observed: 'Say, ain't he a smart man? That's my boss.'"

TRADES AND LABOR CONGRESS MEETING

"Jobless" Report Presented, Estimating 175,000 are Idle in Canada.

Winnipeg, Aug. 22.—Considerable progress was made today at the opening of the 87th annual meeting of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

There was considerable discussion of unemployment in the address of welcome, and Senator Robertson expressed the view that recent indications pointed to a resumption of buying by the public which might effect an improvement in the industrial situation within a couple of months.

The executive council submitted a long memorandum on the subject, consisting largely of the reports of its representatives to the federal and provincial governments and the action taken thereon.

The executive committee of the Canadian body made a special study of the necessity that the question of immigration be considered jointly with the question of unemployment so far as Canada is concerned, and recommended the preparation of a report on immigration coincidentally with the memorandum on unemployment. No further recommendations other than those already presented by the executive to the congress, but that body was urged to discuss the matter in full and come to definite conclusions.

Dealing with the extent and causes of unemployment in Canada, the memorandum reported as follows: "In the Dominion of Canada periods of unemployment are becoming a more frequent recurring period a more serious problem, and during the last year unemployment has existed to an extent degree with no relief yet in sight.

A conservative estimate would place the number of unemployed in Canada at approximately 175,000 people. The resolutions committee recommended that the congress take no action in a claim by J. C. Watters, of Sydney (N. S. W.), that the congress, by its expenses, $1,217.45, incurred in his trip overseas to attend the labor peace conference, but the delegates' travel recommendations back and will bear the case tomorrow.

REMARKABLE TALE REVEALED BY A BOSTON ARREST (Canadian Press Despatch.)

Boston, Aug. 22.—Harry Shanley, British war veteran, who has attracted attention by his ability to pass buttons and other small objects through his head—in one ear and out the other—has been arrested, charged with the theft of $150 in clothing from Frederick Adams, of New York City.

He says that he never heard of Adams and denies he ever stole from any one and that he will fight extradition to New York state. His arrest has revealed a remarkable story. His fifteen-year-old son, who is left heartbroken and without means with her young baby, married Shanley during the war at the age of ten and became a mother at thirteen. She is a Belgian by birth.

Shanley wears the Victoria Cross and says that he is a survivor of the British expeditionary force of 1914. He is almost a physical wreck. He has been badly shell shocked and the consequent cost him his hearing, broke his ear drums and made him a physical phenomenon by opening a passage clear through his head. He first came to the attention of the medical authorities when a button had been attempted to pass through his head and became caught and had to be probed out.

Unknown At Ottawa. Ottawa, Aug. 22.—The name of Harry Shanley, British war veteran under arrest in Boston in connection with the alleged theft of $150 in clothing from a New York merchant, does not appear in the official list of Victoria Cross winners.

N. S. FIRE PROTECTION. (Amherst News.) Adequate forest protection, with a modern patrol of the timber areas—look out and signal stations, on prominent hills, and a complete programme of forest conservation, will be asked of the Nova Scotia governments. Foresters are willing to co-operate with the government in every possible respect, provided that their properties are safeguarded from the ravages that ensued this season. Forest closure, with a partial system, overseen by the patrol—during the dry and dangerous season, is the only means by which the vast natural resources of the province, as represented by the forests—can be protected from the ravages of forest fires.

FOR PURE MILK IN PARIS.

Law Now Makes It Obligatory to Deliver It in Sealed Cans.

(New York Times.)

Physicians in Paris are keenly aware that France has much to learn from the United States in matters of hygiene. "We are somewhat behind in this matter," we must admit," writes the Correspondent of the Journal of the American Medical Association. "And this is mainly due to our tendency to individualism."

The writer is dealing with the delivery of milk in the French metropolis. He says that no longer is a new hygienic measure proposed than the practice of delivering milk in open cans at the doors of milk shops. Between four and five o'clock in the morning, after the arrival of milk trains, the milk trucks deliver the retailer's supplies at his door, in one or several cans of ten, twenty, thirty or fifty liters whatever he may have ordered.

If the order calls for twenty liters or more, the cans are delivered full and are closed. When the order calls for another amount, the quantity exceeds twenty liters or the multiple is delivered in a partly filled open can.

Under such conditions, asks the physician, what guarantee has the public that some one may not take a certain amount of milk from the partly filled can and try to conceal his theft by adding a like amount of water, taken from whatever source is convenient? The dangers of such a system are obvious, he continues. Hygienists, and those concerned about young children feel that they have cause to be solicitous.

However, when Monsieur Joseph Denis, a member of the city council, requested the prefect of police to issue an order that no delivery of milk be made to retailers without being put in sealed cans, the prefect of police, as such a measure seemed to him, it is not to be discomfited by the regular practice of the wholesalers to deliver milk in twenty-liter cans only. Fortunately, says the physician, Denis was not to be discomfited by the argument and duty of public authorities to intervene in such grave matters, he induced the municipal council to pass a resolution requesting the government to pass a law forbidding, three months from the date of its enactment, that any quantity of milk whatsoever shall be brought into Paris and delivered to wholesalers and retailers except as it shall be in closed and sealed containers.

AGAINST BILLBOARDS.

(Bangor Commercial.)

Massachusetts has a new billboard law which is expected to have the effect of preventing the erection of signs that will mar the scenery. The party wishing to erect a billboard must make application to the State Highway commission which refers the request to the town in which the board is to be erected. If the town officials object then the highway commission is to order a hearing and decide the case. As town officials will probably be opposed to the billboards and as the highway commission will be likely to respect the wishes of the officials, it would seem that the sign nuisance will speedily be lessened on Massachusetts highways.

A. O. MacRAE
IN VICTORIA

Striking Addresses Before the Kiwian and Gyro Clubs.

Dr. A. O. MacRae, principal of West-Canadian College, Calgary, who is brother of R. J. MacRae of this city and son of the late Rev. Dr. MacRae, was in Victoria last month and addressed both the Kiwian and Gyro clubs. The following report of his addresses before the two clubs taken from "Victoria Times":

An able talk on citizenship, before the Kiwian Club at luncheon at Dominion Hotel today. Dr. A. O. MacRae, principal of the West-Canadian College, Calgary, had a strong call for greater realization of the ideal of co-operation and co-operation of effort and that progress would result for "unity, nation and Empire. In brief but forceful address, the speaker drew a strong contrast with attitude of Anglo-Saxons to those of Germans, who he stated had up their nation to the point it before the war by a unity of effort that came from close co-operation along lines of co-operation and social progress.

Without Faith.
As an Empire, prior to the late war failed to take cognizance of the ordinary co-operation of the industrial life in Germany. Germany led the pinnacle that it did, but as it was wrong in spirit. It through the co-operation in cities, cities and chambers of commerce that Germany reached the pitch of efficiency, and through a system of large loans at low rates of interest, fostered its commerce to its own state progress. It failed though, as spirit was wrong.

Yet there are many things we could learn from that country and its fall. Germany at the time of the war percentage of people in cities to the land was so nicely balanced that 32 per cent. were in the land and 68 per cent. in the cities. In land 80 per cent. were in land cities every 20 per cent. on the land. In cities today 60 per cent. are in the land and only 40 per cent. in the cities that is too much; it will not work.

The Anglo-Saxon too long has followed the training of the intensely individualistic to the exclusion of co-operation. Every man for himself, the cry, and it will not do. Clubs as yours are trying to break down intensely individualistic strain to the co-operation in civic affairs, in-wide and Empire matters may. The old petty jealousies must away, and we must get down to co-operation.

Dr. MacRae spoke of the great expansion in educational matters which was stirring reading and thinking, and issued a warning that unless there was some ideal there would be trouble ahead. "Will the proletariat, on getting more education, break out into class wars?" asked the doctor.

The speaker then referred to the great efforts of the medical profession in curing men of tuberculosis and other diseases, but wondered whether the man on securing a clean body had his aspirations satisfied.

Dr. MacRae wondered whether or not there was any definite ideal in the world. "What does it mean?" asked Dr. MacRae. "What do we mean? For what purpose are we increasing production? These are questions which the Bolsheviks are asking, and while you and I may detest Bolshevism we know that it has very definite aims, and the question comes back, have the young men of today any definite purposes?"

without, but ever from the lack of force or co-operation within. There is a great call for such clubs as Kiwanis. We have to bind ourselves together to progress, we must unite to promote the welfare of the Empire.

Amazing Daring.
"The spirit of fair play and the amazing daring is what made the Anglo-Saxons as powerful as they are today. The name and fame for fair play won by the servants of the Empire in every colony and dependency under the flag was of infinite value when the day of trial came. An Englishman's word is good in Arabia, and that came from the fair play and truth to their word of the Britishers there. The speaker here related how the Arabs had stayed with the British during the late war in spite of money bribes offered by the Germans to induce the natives to oppose the British advance into Arabia. The word of an Englishman lived in Arabia, when it came to a question of that or German money," continued the speaker, "that is the spirit we must have. We must organize to quicken up citizenship, and to link education up with the needs of the day. Our mines and mills are not the resources of our Empire, but the people. Historians are not interested in our bank accounts, nor in our business, they ask what kind of men did you turn out and that is the test."

Solid Rock of Character.
"We need leaders, men in public life who will do something for the people. It is time we quit playing at politics, we need leaders to solve our problems—and our problems are only to be remedied by the application of the primary decisions of justice to each individual case. We must base our possessions on the solid rock of character and if not our ideals will have a harder fall than the old ones. We need today more than ever before to face the problems of civilization from the broad viewpoint of citizenship."

At the close of his address Dr. MacRae was accorded an appreciative ovation.

New Ideal Needed.
That there must be a new ideal, something which will satisfy brotherhood and fatherhood, if nationhood is to be successful, was the text of a very inspiring address delivered before the Gyro Club at its weekly luncheon today at the Coliseum by Dr. A. O. MacRae, president of Western Canada College, Dr. MacRae, who is a Kiwanian, is in this city on his annual visit. He has been visiting here for the past fifteen years.

The speaker announced that he would talk briefly on the wide subject of Nationalism, and asked the question as to whether or not nationhood had not been weighed in the balance and whether it had any definite ideal. He wondered whether or not the British people had really faced the matter in regard to nationhood.

"What is all this business and commercial enterprise about?" asked Dr. MacRae. "What do we mean? For what purpose are we increasing production? These are questions which the Bolsheviks are asking, and while you and I may detest Bolshevism we know that it has very definite aims, and the question comes back, have the young men of today any definite purposes?"

Dr. MacRae spoke of the great expansion in educational matters which was stirring reading and thinking, and issued a warning that unless there was some ideal there would be trouble ahead. "Will the proletariat, on getting more education, break out into class wars?" asked the doctor.

The speaker then referred to the great efforts of the medical profession in curing men of tuberculosis and other diseases, but wondered whether the man on securing a clean body had his aspirations satisfied.

MISSING ADA TOWER SAFE

Boston, Aug. 22.—Short of provisions and with her bottom so foul with marine growth that she made slow progress, the overdue four-masted schooner Ada Tower, of Parrboro (N.S.), was towed to an anchorage in the harbor yesterday afternoon, and her commander, Captain John Pratt, came ashore to meet his family, whom he had not seen in months. There was considerable anxiety felt for the safety of the vessel because of her protracted passage, and many believed she had been lost.

The Ada Tower lost 900 tons of salt at Torrevieja, Spain, and left there ninety-two days ago. She was a full month overdue when she reached port. Experience teaches people lots of things they would rather not know.

CHANGE OF WATER WAS THE CAUSE OF DIARRHOEA

People moving from place to place are very much subject to diarrhoea, on account of the change of water, climatic diet, etc. Prompt treatment with

DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY

In such cases relieves the pain, checks the diarrhoea, and thus does away with the suffering, the weakness and often-times collapse associated with an attack of this kind. It does this by checking the too frequent and irritating stools, settling the stomach and bracing up the weakened system, thus rendering it without a peer for the treatment of all bowel complaints of both old and young.

Mrs. Ernest S. Beaton, Grayburn, Sask., writes: "Coming out here from the East, my two little girls took very sick, the change of water, etc., giving them diarrhoea. They were so pale and used to vomit everything they would take, so I finally got a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and I must say it certainly helped them. I have also used it when my children were teething and it is all I claim for it."

Seventy-six years' reputation stands behind this remedy. Price, 50c a bottle. Put up only by The T. Millburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

TWENTY-TWO STATES NOW ON THE LIST

They Have Daytime Continuation Schools for Working Girls and Boys.

In order to compare the present constitutional school law in New York State with those in force in other states, the Industrial Bureau of the Merchants' Association recently made a study of the laws now in operation in the various states of the Union.

The continuation school movement in the United States started in Wisconsin as early as 1909, when a project adequate industrial and agricultural training for working boys and girls was developed by Dr. Charles McCarthy and others as the result of a study in Europe at that time. In that year the Wisconsin Legislature appointed a committee of which Dr. McCarthy was a member, to study the ways and means of providing instruction for young people who were not able to attend regular day schools. In accordance with the recommendations of this Commission on industrial and agricultural education, the Wisconsin Legislature in 1911 passed the first compulsory part-time continuation school law enacted in this country. Some of the forward-looking merchants helped in the session of 1909 to secure the resolution authorizing the original investigation, and a number of manufacturers assisted in the passage of the 1911 law.

At first the continuation school idea did not spread rapidly. During the seven years between 1911 and 1918, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania were the only states which followed Wisconsin's example. In 1919, however, a wave of continuation school legislation passed over the country. In that year no less than seventeen states enacted part-time continuation school laws.

At the present time at least twenty-two states have laws establishing day-time continuation schools for certain working boys and girls. These states are New York, Arizona, California, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Nebraska, Montana, Nevada, New Jersey, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Utah, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

This list does not include Connecticut which has established compulsory evening schools for working children between fourteen and sixteen years of age for such states as New Hampshire, Rhode Island and South Dakota, which require that persons between sixteen and twenty-one years, who do possess a knowledge of English, shall attend evening or day schools until they have completed certain minimum educational requirements.

None of the states require that children shall go to continuation schools before they are fourteen years of age, since all of them compel boys and girls who have not reached the age regularly to attend day schools. In ten of the twenty-two States having continuation school laws only young people between the ages of fourteen and sixteen need attend part-time schools.

In Wisconsin children below the age of seventeen are required to go, but in the eleven other states the law holds that working children under sixteen must attend. As is the case in New York, however, certain states are enforcing this provision of the law gradually. For example, in Michigan, the only chil-

LESS TIME SPENT AT MEALS IN PARIS

Chefs Complain That Patrons Want Food Ready When They Begin.

Paris, Aug. 23.—Among the unexpected results of the war is the disinclination of people to spend the same amount of time they used to on meals. This is bitterly deplored by culinary authorities. Famous Paris chefs say that a decided decadence has set in their art.

"Where are the days when clients who were real gourmets used to spend several hours over lunch and dinner, giving us time to prepare savant dishes with proper attention?" asks the chef of a famous boulevard restaurant. "Today there is the eternal car outside waiting to hurry off with guests who cry for fish before they have finished their hors d'oeuvres. They want meat dishes in five minutes which require half an hour of patient labor. The result is, we are obliged to cook a number of dishes which can be kept warm without too much spoiling. If the French cuisine isn't what it was in the days of the Cafe Anglais it is the fault of the guests, not the fault of the chefs. If, besides spending his money, a guest would spend a little more time, we would again be able to eat as in the other days."

ADMITS HE'S DEAD; REFUSES TO TALK

Bertrand Russell Twits Japanese Papers Which Reported His Demise.

Montreal, Aug. 23.—When the C. P. R. steamship Metagama sailed from Montreal for Liverpool the passenger list contained a celebrity who chose to pass through the city unknown and to be known merely as "Mr. B. Russell, London, Eng." This probably was due to the rush of interviewers and visitors when "Mr. B. Russell" landed at Vancouver from the Empress of Asia, from the Orient.

Mr. Russell is a noted English socialist. Bertrand Russell, who was reported dead at Peking some months ago. This news first appeared in the Japanese newspapers and then was cabled throughout the world.

A fellow passenger of Mr. Russell's tells an amusing story of the arrival in Japan of Mr. Russell. The usual horde of Japanese reporters swarmed aboard the ship, seeking an interview with him. As Mr. Russell had been in ill-health and was accompanied on the Empress of Asia by a nurse as well as his valet, he was not equal to the ordeal.

So, in view of the Japanese reports, the Japanese reporters could hardly be expected to express indignation when they were handed cards on which was neatly written in English: "Mr. Bertrand Russell, having died three months ago, is unable to issue any interviews to the press."

RANG FIRE ALARM AND QUICKLY GOT RESULTS

Quincy, Aug. 23.—Three little shavers at Quincy Point know how to get results. They didn't think the crowd at a concert of the Fore River Band at the Fore River field was big enough, although the concert was very largely attended.

Three boys sneaked outside the grounds and pulled the hook in fire alarm box 174. In a moment or two the results were apparent between the apparatus, automobiles and thousands of foot passengers who flocked to the field and the hundreds inside the field who tried to get out. It was some largely attended party.

The offenders got results all right, but they'll get more than that if the firemen find out who they are.

Self-Evident.

"Do you think I'd be scrubbing the porch if she wasn't?" was the rather curt reply.—O. E. R. Bulletin.

den attending such schools this year are those who did not reach the age of sixteen before Sept. 1, 1920. Next year, however, all children under eighteen will be included. The same situation prevails in California.

The number of required hours per week that working boys and girls must attend part-time classes varies from four to eight. In nine states they must go for at least four hours per week, in three states for five and in two and in two for six hours per week. In five states children are compelled to attend for eight hours. In New York state the law sets a minimum of eight hours and a maximum of four. On the other hand, the Oklahoma law does not specify any definite weekly period of attendance.

As to the length of the school year in thirteen out of the twenty-two states it is the same as in the public schools. Two states require 150 hours of instruction a year and four others 14. The West Virginia law calls for a twenty-week year, the New Jersey for thirty-six weeks and Wisconsin for eight months.

The minimum number of minors that is required to establish continuation school classes varies greatly from state to state. Three states—Indiana, Ohio, and West Virginia—do not specify and do not fix a number. Then require that there must be at least fifteen gainfully employed children in the district before starting a part-time school, and five others, a minimum of twenty. In California, the number must be at least twelve; in Missouri, twenty-five; in Michigan, fifty and in Massachusetts 200.

In many cases the minimum number of minors required to establish continuation schools is limited by a number of qualifying provisions. For example, in New York state part-time schools need only be established in cities of 5,000 or over. These modifying provisions in most of the States will be found in a summary of the state laws on continuation schools published in School Life for Dec. 15, 1919.

The funeral of Emma Hanford was held this morning from St. John's (Stone) church to Fernhill. Very Rev. Archdeacon Crowfoot conducted service. The funeral of Mary Ida Hogan took place this morning from her parents' residence, 15 Long wharf, to Holy Trinity church for high mass of requiem by Right Rev. J. J. Walsh, V. G. Interment was in the new Catholic cemetery.

The body of Captain H. H. Lawson, who died at New York on Friday, was taken to Hatfield's Point this morning for interment this afternoon.

HAY STOLEN

Property owners will do well to guard their property carefully. The following incident is illustrative of the need. Madill, a farmer on the French Village road recently bought some standing grass near the old Ford factory on Market road. On Tuesday of last week he had it cured and ready to be hauled away the next day. On Tuesday evening two men with a team of horses and a large hayrack visited his field and took away a quantity estimated at one and a half tons, while scores of automobiles were passing to and fro within a few feet of them. Besides being out of getting satisfaction as he has no trace whatever of the perpetrators of the theft.

THE BASEBALL DISPUTE.

A citizen who follows baseball in the south called on the Times this morning in behalf of himself and a number of other well known citizens whom he named to protest against a report of last night's game which appeared to make the Royals responsible for the trouble which occurred. He said the Royals had won the game on their merits, and that if they had been disposed to make trouble there were two decisions against them which he and his friends were satisfied would have given them some cause. They accepted both and played the game. This citizen added that he had seen the Royals play many times and that he was sure they and he and his friends felt that an unwarranted reflection had been made on their conduct.

THINKS HE HAS THE MURDERER

Detectives Leave on Call from P. E. Island.

Informant Says He is Sure He Has Slayer of Sadie McAuley and Asks That Man be Sent at Once to Get Him.

Two local detectives left this morning for a place in Prince Edward Island, where a man is being held on suspicion of being the murderer of little Sadie McAuley. The information was received last night and Sergeant Detective Power immediately answered asking that photographs of the man be taken and forwarded. He received a reply saying that the sender was sure he had the right man and feared he might slip away and advised sending a detective immediately.

After a consultation with Commissioner Thornton and Chief of Police Smith, Sergeant Detective Power sent two of his men, as he feels the information received was sufficient to warrant this action.

Photographs of the man being detained in Chandler, Quebec, were being developed this morning and will be taken of the three little girls this afternoon for identification.

Ideal Conditions for Renforth Regatta.

People Astir All Morning in Preparation for Great Afternoon — A Visitor Who Saw the 1871 Race.

With ideal weather conditions prevailing, the indications are that the big regatta at Renforth this afternoon will be a gala affair and one of the best ever held in these parts. During the morning people began to wend their way to the scene and had selected points of vantage to spend the day and be in a position to witness the various events. From indications thousands of citizens will attend the regatta, and the chief worry seems to be where they can get in order to get a good view of the course and the finish.

The committee in charge of the events were on hand early this morning, seeing that everything was in readiness for the convenience of the participants in the rowing and other races, and making sure that there would be no hitch in the programme.

Oarsmen from Halifax took a spin over the course this morning and then retired to rest up for their races. Local rowers also had a warm up, but did not exert themselves, as they likewise were saving themselves for the crucial test. There was very little betting on the races, many taking for granted that St. Mary's Club of Halifax have the best chance to win the four-oared scull event, and the North West Arm Club, also of Halifax, the junior four-oared event.

The big event from a local standpoint is the senior singles, and it is already conceded that Hilton Beyer will uphold the honor of his native city and carry off the honors, unless some unforeseen accident intervenes.

At Renforth the club is artistically decorated with flags and bunting, and many of the regatta have flags prominently displayed. The various booths are also decorated and present an attractive appearance.

The morning was a busy one. The contestants were early on the course in trial spins and found the water beautifully smooth. All was interest at the headquarters of the various crews. Exciting boat cup races and crews at In-diantown, motor boat owners, jitney drivers and owners of private automobiles in the city and near by were completing plans and preparations for the run out to the scene of the big meet and return after the anticipated hours of enjoyment on the waters or banks of the Kennebecasis. In many homes lunch baskets were being filled, for one must not forget that the races continue all day long and there was always the chance of a war in the rush to the amusement depots at the scene of the races.

There were indications of a general observance of Mayor Schofield's invitation to the city to shut up shop for the afternoon and make it a half holiday in memory of the notable sporting event of this day fifty years ago. Flags were flying in honor of the occasion, and a general air of freedom, with business cares laid aside for a while, pervaded the city. And over all shone the sun brightly, doing well its share to make the celebration a pronounced success.

Saw the Great Race.

The Moncton Times of yesterday announced the departure of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Killam, accompanied by guests, for Renforth to attend the regatta. Mr. Killam in company with the late Sir Albert J. Smith, attended the great boat race of the Paris and Tyne crews 50 years ago. He recalls many of the incidents that took place on that day. Mr. Killam will on Thursday, August 25th celebrate his 87th birthday. That he retains such a bright memory and takes such lively interest in the events of the day is remarkable in a man of his years. While at Renforth Mr. and Mrs. Killam will be the guests of Mrs. Killam's sister, Mrs. Stammers.

The sad circumstances of the death of one of its officers, Urban J. Sweeney, caused the Knights of Columbus to cancel the entertainment which they had planned for regatta visitors in their home this evening. Last evening, however, a party of 125, mostly St. Mary's people, were guests of the Knights at a motor drive and informal entertainment at Gondola Point.

A number of the St. Mary's members also attended an entertainment given by the A. O. H. in their rooms in Union street.

A large number of members of the St. John Law Society met in the Equity Court rooms this morning at ten o'clock, the president, J. H. A. L. Fairweather in the chair. The purpose of the meeting was to express the feelings of the members of the society upon the death of Urban J. Sweeney. A resolution of sympathy was moved by Judge H. O.
