A Leader Gone.

The passing away of Sir George Etienne Cartier has can sid much sorrow among all classes of his countrymen. He was not old in years, and still young in hone enthusiasm and noble auguroses.

He was not old in years, and still young in hope, enthusiasm and noble purposes. He was one of those men who stand between warring political and feligious factions and 'show them the middle ground of compromise. His political opponents, even the bitterest of them, were welcomed to his table and his parlors with as much cordiality as his friends. He was trusted by his coreligionists, whose intolerance he rebuked, and by the Protestants, whose consent he easily obtained to liberal concessions. If he had been in his old place as leader of the French Canadians he might have prevented their falling under the clerical guidance that has led them to attempt to overthrow the constitutional bulwarks that were raised.

led them to attempt to overthrow the constitutional bulwarks that were raised for their protection. His knowledge of the masses was never blinded by sectation zeal. He would never have led his party in pushing a policy that must lead to certain defeat at the polls. His political wisdom, and conciliatory councils will be much missed in Canada.

Trian zeal of the masses was never blinded by sectation zeal. He would never have led to be used to carry the women and children and their luggage. The roads, if passable at all, could very soon be improved. Indeed it could not have been expected that they would have been any better. To have attempted to make them so in the dead of winter, with such a great depth of snow would have been a useless waster.

We think, however, that it is very much advt.

On both sides of the river the land is all granted, and for the most part conall granted, and for the most part consists of well cultivated farms, on which the large barns and neat dwellings give evidence of considerable ease and comprort enjoyed by their possessors. From the river itself the view is not attractive, as the banks rise with quite a steep ascent, and the mere voyager would be disposed to shun the place as being rather a rocky mountainous country. The moment you ascend the bank of the river, however, a table land stretches out before you, in some parts of a gentle slope, in others being quite level.

That the soil here is capable of being successfully cultivated, two facts may be mentioned. First, the Kilburn farm, now divided into three parts, one part re

It is found a great promoter of health, when taken in the spring, to expel the humors that rankle in the system at this season of the year. Many complaints have their origin in the spring, and in the causes above mentioned, for which no better remedy has ever been devised. By its use multitudes can spare themselves from the endurance of foul eruptions and ulcerous sorce, through which the system strives to rid itself of corruptions, if not assisted to do this through the natural channels of the body by an alterative medicine. Cleanse out the vitiated blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in pimples, eruptions, or sores; cleanse it when you find it is obstracted and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it whenever it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. The man who has a life insurance exeeding $20,000 is hardly likely to die a natural death. The temptation to suicide Monday evening was the finest of the eason. The moon was full and clear, and its mellow radiance lighted up the earth with a glow that was beautiful beyond neasure, although it was not a good night

One of our citizens was passing thro New street on Saturday evening on his way home. Just behind him was a boy lugging something that was rather heavy.
At the street lamp he recognized the boy as the brother of a very sick friend, and enquired of his health. "He is very bad to-night," said the boy. "The doctor said, this noon, that he was dying." The mar passed on some distance in silence, and then suddenly realizing the boy was la then suddenly realizing the boy was ab-boring under a disadvantage in locomo-tion, and feeling that the load on his heart was of itself heavy enough, he turned around and said: "What have you got there, Johnny?" "Homer Peters' barber-pole," panted the boy. "Homer Peters' hearber-pole!" said the man—"why, what barber-pole!" said the man—"why, what on earth are you doing with that?" "I'm taking it home till itgets later," explained the brother of the dying man, "and then me and some other fellers are going to put it up in feart of the First Church."

De Cortez died in his office, 284 Dean street Brooklyn, from the effects of a powerfu opiate administered by himself. He was nmarried, and boarded with the family of Mrs. Hirsch, occupying the lower front room. On Thursday morning Mrs Hirsch offered to make him some coffee. He refused, saying, "Oh, no, don't make make me anything to drink. Please leave me alone." A half hour afterwards she again visited him. His lips were blue and his eyes were closed. Physicians were summoned and antidotes adans were summoned and antidotes administered, but without avail. He died at 5 o'clock. The following letter was at 5 o'clock. The following letter was found in his desk.

"If there is a future life, I hope to meet hereafter Mrs. Hirsch, whom I look upon as a mother; her daughter Florence, whom I dearly love; and Mr. Hirsch, the best of men. O Lord, if there is a life ordained by the Supreme will, will thy loving kindness permit me to associate with those I love? Madame Hirsch, you own all I have. Don't let me be dissected if you can.

at once and a new building erected. The Tribune has moved into temporary quarters and the work of demolition has already begun. The Tribune says:

The space we have formerly occupied being much too narrow for our uses, we have acquired property on every side of us, until our front extends upon Printing House Square over 90 feet, upon Spruce street 100 feet, thence north to Frankfort street 105 feet, with a frontage upon that street of nearly 29 feet. This liberal space is to be covered with a building nine stories high, surmounted by a lofty tower, which in beauty and elegance as well as in bulk will be the most considerable business edifice in the southern part of the island. Some of the most eminent architects of the day have competed in furnishing designs for the building, and the result is one upon which all who take pride in the architectural adornment of the great metropolis may justly congratulate themselves. It will be not only a superb and artistic monument; it will also be as perfect a business house as the skill and experience of the most competent builders can devise.
