JUNE WEDDING.

A Very Pretty and Stylish Wedding in

ST. JAMES' CHURCH.

Albert Edward Shaw and Carrie Barnes Russell Married.

St. James' Church was crowded last Wednesday evening, the occasion being the marriage of Mr. Albert Edward Shaw and Miss Carrie Barnes Russell. Long before the doors were opened crowds gathered and by nine o'clock there was not a vacant seat in the large edifice.

The pulpit and church were very tastefully decorated with creepers, moss, potted and cut flowers. Four rows of seats were reserved for the invited guests and Messrs. Geo. Dalton and Chas. Dickinson acted as ushers.

At nine o'clock, while the choir sang "The voice that breathed o'er Eden" the bride entered on the arm of her father, Wm. Russell, Esq., her sister, Miss Lizzie Russell acting as bridesmaid and a pretty niece, Miss Alice Johnston, was a flower girl. The groom was attended by Mr. A. E. G. McKenzie. Rev. Henry Arnot, pastor of St. James' Church, performed the ceremony, after which the happy couple left the church, Miss Davidson playing the wedding march. At the entrance they entered their carriage amid a shower of rice and were driven to their new home where a reception was held. The bride looked very pretty in a gown of elegant white silk with an overdress of embroidered organdie, elaborately trimmed with applique and chiffon, with a full skirt and orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of bride roses. The little flower girl wore pink silk, and carried a basket of pink and white roses.

The bride received many handsome tokens of esteem from friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Shaw left Thursday morning for St. John to visit Mr. Shaw's home. A large number of their friends went to the station to see them off and to wish them a happy and prosperous wedded life. As they entered the train they were showered with rice and good wishes from their friends.

The bride's going away gown was of blue broadcloth which was very stylish and pretty, and her hat was of blue silk.

The Advocate joins in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Shaw much happiness in their wedded life.

DEATH OF CANADA'S OLDEST MAN.

James Ross, of St. Martin's, N. B., the oldest man in Canada, died suddenly early on Saturday morning, June 6th, at the residence of his son. Mr. Ross retired as usual on Friday evening, and was, on Saturday, found dead in bed. The deceased was born in Scotland on June 18th, 1790, and was therefore 111 years, 10 months and 23 days old. He came to this country in 1812 in a vessel called the Rover, landing at Pictou, N. S., where he worked for about six and a half years, being at that place when the battle of Waterloo was fought. He lived a short time at Truro and Pictou, and finally about 1820, he went to St. Martins, where he has resided continually ever since.

In 1837 he married Phoebe Amelia Brown, who died in 1838. They had nine children. Of these four are still living, two sons and two daughters. There are twenty-three grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. Mr. Ross was a member of the Presbyterian church. He was a very active man until a year or two ago, and was a great smoker. A little over a year ago the Municipal Council of St. John county presented him with a chair. The deceased spoke Gaelic quite fluently, never having forgotten his native tongue.

GREAT SALMON CATCH.

Joseph Poirier, M. P. P., of Gloucester, Gets 167 in His Nets in One Day.

Hon. C. H. LaBrosse, of Dalhousie, told a Telegraph reporter last week that salmon fishing in tidal waters with net has so far been poor in Restigouche county but has been very successful in Gloucester county. The salmon run very large.

Joseph Poirier, M. P. P., of Grand Anse, Gloucester county, one day recently out of four stands of nets took 167 salmon, averaging 2½ pounds each.

FIVE BURNED.

Incendiary Fire in New York Tenement.

New York, June 13—Five persons were burned to death early to-day in a flat building at 347 E. 115th street. It is believed the fire was of incendiary origin.

The dead are: Theresa De Cicco, 4 years; Camille De Cicco, 2 years old; Alfredo De Cicco, 4 months; Francisca Samano 8 years, and Giuseppe Cipriano, 24 years.

It is asserted by the police that the hallways of the building had been covered with oil, and that bundles of rags saturated with the same substance also were found scattered about the place.

A PRETTY WEDDING.

Rev. D. Henderson, of St. Andrew's Church, Chatham, Married to Miss Ida Edgar.

The marriage of Ida Agnes, daughter of James Edgar, one of Chatham's most estimable and accomplished young ladies to Rev. Duncan Henderson, the popular and learned pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, was solemnized at Haverhill, the residence of the bride's parents, at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, June 9.

As the bridal party took their places in the drawing room which was profusely decorated with red carnations and roses, Miss C. Bertie Edgar, sister of the bride, a pianist of exceptional ability, played a selection. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Thomas G. Johnstone, of Newcastle, and Rev. J. M. MacLeod, of New Mills, clerk of the Presbytery of Miramichi, of which Mr. Henderson is a valued member, and Rev. D. MacIntosh, of Douglastown. The only witnesses were the members of the bride's family. None of the groom's relatives live nearer than Scotland, and owing to a recent bereavement in the family they were unavoidably absent. The bride was becomingly attired in an elegant cream silk gown, elaborately trimmed with richly embroidered chiffon and carried a shower bouquet of white and yellow bride roses. There were no bridesmaids, but little Misses Verne and Norma MacLachlan, nieces of the bride, who wore dainty frocks of white mull, gracefully performed the duties of maids of honor.

After the ceremony the party repaired to the dining room which was decorated with pink roses and carnations, where dinner was served after which Rev. and Mrs. Henderson left for a visit to Montreal and other Canadian cities.

Mrs. Henderson's going away gown was of cadet blue broadcloth which was very stylish and pretty, and her hair of coral colored straw. Very many friends went to the station to offer congratulations and see them off. Among the numerous gifts was a solid silver tea service from the bride's parents. A tangible expression of esteem from the congregation has been ordered, but has not yet arrived.

BASE BALL.

Probably one of the best games of base ball ever witnessed in Newcastle was played on Wednesday last in the Farrel Field between the M. A. A. of Moncton, and the Victors of Newcastle. May-Morrison pitched the first ball. The score was a tie up to the eleventh inning.

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11
Moncton, 0 1 0 0 0 4 3 3 0 0 4—12
Newcastle, 4 0 0 3 0 1 0 0 0 0—8

It will be seen by the above that up to the sixth inning the score was seven to two in favor of Newcastle. But in the Moncton team a fresh pitcher took the box and the Victors only scored one run during the remainder of the game. Had our team made a similar move the score would probably have been very different. The mistake was discovered too late and London was compelled to pitch the entire eleven innings which is too much to expect of one man. Graham or Keating should have been put in the pitcher's box in the sixth inning for it would have taken the waiting team three or four innings to find the new pitcher.

Mr. M. C. Russell umpired the game, and, while he undoubtedly decided as he considered was right, on three occasions he ruled Newcastle men out when they were safe and on another occasion said one of the Victors was out when he himself was doubtful and should have given the home team the benefit of the doubt. However the Newcastle boys have no kick coming and expect to play the M. A. A.'s a return game in Moncton on Saturday next.

The game in evening resulted in a score of five to four in favour of Moncton. There was a large crowd present at each of the games but the gate receipts were very small comparatively. A man who will jump the fence on such an occasion to get clear of paying twenty-five cents to see a game of ball that was worth double the amount asked is certainly a manly individual. It is a shame that the base ball team has to pay for so many of these. We wish the team better luck next time and suggest that they hire a couple of special police for the next base ball game. It will pay them.

JUNE WEDDINGS.

A very interesting event took place last week at the residence of Mr. Fred H. Moore, Lutz Street, Moncton, when Mr. Walter Appleton, of the I. C. R. General Superintendent's office, was united in marriage to Miss Amy Leighton. The house presented a very pretty appearance, being nicely decorated with flowers. Rev. D. Hutchinson performed the ceremony. Only the immediate friends of the contracting parties were in attendance. The bride looked very charming in a suit of white organdie and was unattended. Her going away gown was of navy blue cloth with hat to match. There was a very handsome array of costly presents, manifesting the high esteem in which the young couple are held by all of their acquaintances. A sumptuous luncheon was served at the close of the ceremony, and the happy couple left on the Maritime express for the West. They will visit Montreal, Toronto, Niagara Falls and other Upper Canadian cities.

Mr. and Mrs. Appleton are well known in Moncton and are very popular with their friends, who extend congratulations. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Leighton of this town.

CORNER STONE.

Of The L. O. L. Hall to be Laid.

10 NIGHT.

An Interesting Ceremony
Has been Prepared.
Society will Parade.

Work is progressing on the new Orange hall being erected on Pleasant street and the committee in charge of the work has decided to have appropriate ceremony in laying of the corner stone. This ceremony will take place this evening.

The members of the Newcastle, Chatham Blackville and Elnatree lodges are to meet at the Temperance Hall, Newcastle at 6.30 o'clock this evening from where they will march headed by the band to the new hall where the appropriate ceremony of laying the corner stone will be performed. A number of Grand Officers will be present among whom are R. W. G. Master Heine, of Moncton, and G. Treas., H. C. Wadman, Moncton and G. D. C., J. W. Clark of Moncton.

The programme will consist of speeches music and singing with the laying of the corner stone.

THE SWEETNESS OF REVENGE.

"It was a mean trick that we played on Jack Bliss and his bride," said the young married commuter, "but they both deserved it."

You see, Bliss and the girl had taken a prominent part in all of the tricks by which the first trips of blushing brides and grooms from our place were embarrassed.

So we planned to get even with them. When the time came for the train to leave about twenty of their friends, most of them young married people, not only went to the railway station, but announced their intention of riding to the next stop. I can't say Jack and his bride showed any hilarious delight at our friendly solicitude. Nor did they notice that among the rest of the crowd was a small, meek-looking stranger.

"Everything went smoothly until the long tunnel, not far from New York, was reached. Then something like this apparently right from the seat in which the young people were sitting was heard:

"Does co lub 'im? Truly, really truly lub him! Is he your real, ownest, ownest honey?"

"And it went on that way all through the tunnel. When the end of the tunnel every one in our party rose in her or his seat and stared in shocked silence at the bride and bridegroom. And the rest of the passengers in the car simply rocked in their seat and roared with laughter, while Jack and his bride looked as if the one thing they most wished was for the earth to open up and swallow them. Never have I seen two such deeply blushing and embarrassed young persons.

"When we reached the next station we all filed out of the car, not saying a word, but just staring at the unhappy ones.

The meek little man left the car at the same time. As the train pulled away everybody turned and congratulated him. He bore his honors meekly. Then he passed out a lot of cards. They read: Prof. Williams, Ventiloquist."

ATLANTIC'S GRAVEYARD.

Sable Island Turns Up Bones of More or Less Recently Wrecked Steamships.

HALIFAX, June 14—There may have been a big wreck on Sable Island, the graveyard of the Atlantic, within a month. The government steamer Lady Laurier, which arrived today, brings news that since her last visit, a month ago, fishermen off the island discovered a submerged camera. They touched a part of it with their oars. It was not possible for them to make the steamer out, and they could not say whether it was a new or an old wreck. It was found on the northwestern end and its existence was not known before. It may be that this is the hull of a steamer that disappeared last winter, or more recently, or it may have been there for years. When the Lady Laurier left on Saturday the superintendent of the island had not had time to make an investigation, and all that he had was the fishermen's story. No other wreckage has been found on the shore recently.

At a meeting held on Sunday evening last at Bathurst it was decided by the Parishioners of S. S. Hart church that the Bazaar to be held at Bathurst in aid of the new Cathedral to be built in Chatham will open on the 11th August next and continue for three days.

KING AND QUEEN SHOT.

How Servian Revolutionists Changed the Government.

People Seem Satisfied, Even Pleased With What Has Been Done.

BELGRADE, June 11.—A military revolution broke out here last night. The troops, who revolted under the leadership of Major Angkovich, surround the palace, assassinated King Alexander, Queen Draga, the latter's sister, the Queen's brother, Nojodenes, Premier Markovitch, Ministers Petrovich and Turdorevich, General Pavlovich, the former minister of war, and some of the members of the royal guard. Prince Karggeorgvitch was proclaimed king. A new government was formed and the following proclamation was issued:

To the Servian People:

Last night the king and Queen were shot. In this grave and fateful moment friends of the fatherland have combined to form a new government. While the government makes this announcement to the people, it is convinced that the Servian people will gather round it and lend it their aid to maintain order and security throughout the land. The government hereby makes known that from today the constitution of April 6, 1901, comes in force. A meeting of the national representatives dissolved by the proclamation of March is summoned to meet at Belgrade, June 15th.

(Signed)

Jovan Avakomovics, Premier.
Ljubonar Kalievics, Foreign Minister.
Stojan Protics, Minister of the Interior.
Georg Genshicks, Minister of Commerce.
General Jorvan Alanazkovics, Minister of War.
Vojislav Velovics, Minister of Finance.
Col. Alex. Machin, Minister of Public Works.
Lju-Bomir Schigkovics, Minister of Justice.

The streets are thronged with people, whose actions seem to approve the coup d'etat. M. Protics, the Minister of Interior, was cheered as he drove to the minister. The new premier belongs to the independent liberal party.

COLOGNE, June 11.—The career of the Obrenovitch dynasty was closed in the early hours of this morning, the same day of the year on which Prince Michael was murdered thirty-five years ago, in the park of Topshchider, near

THE PINKHAM CURES

ATTRACTING GREAT ATTENTION AMONG THINKING WOMEN.

Mrs. Frances Stafford of 243 E. 114th St., N.Y. City, adds her testimony to the hundreds of thousands on Mrs. Pinkham's files.

When Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies were first introduced skeptics all over the country frowned upon their curative claims, but as year after year has rolled by and the little group of women who had been cured by the new discovery has since grown into a vast army of hundreds of thousands, doubts and skepticisms have been swept away as by a mighty flood, until to-day the great good that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her other medicines are doing among the women of America is attracting the attention of many of our leading scientists, physicians and thinking people.

Merit alone could win such fame; wise, therefore, is the woman who for a cure relies upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

to the people. The universal anxiety of the governments of Europe for peace is advanced as a reason why the Servian situation is not likely to lead to complications. Should, however, these unexpectedly arise, official circles think, an Austrian-Hungarian army will immediately march into Servia and restore order. This eventuality, however, is considered improbable.

BELGRADE, June 11.—The people received the news of the assassinations, which were perpetrated between 10.30 o'clock last night and 2 o'clock this morning, quietly. The bodies of the King and Queen remain in the palace.

Servia is a small mountainous country of Eastern Europe, separated from Austro-Hungary by the Danube. The whole country embraces but 18,000 square miles, and has a population of about two and a half millions. The country formerly owed allegiance to Turkey, but became independent in 1878. The late King Alexander was born in August, 1876, and was the son of King Milan, the first ruler of independent Servia. In 1889 King Milan abdicated the throne in favor of Alexander, then a minor. Four years later Alexander took the power into his own hands. Three years ago he married Madame Draga. Servia is governed by the king, with the assistance of a council of eight ministers, who are responsible to the people. The legislature consists of the National Assembly and the Senate, both of which must assent to any measure to make it legal. The commerce of the country is backward, the chief trade being carried on with Austria.

NO EXCUSE FOR BUYING ANYTHING BUT OGILVIE'S.

The economy of using Ogilvie's flour should be well considered by every housekeeper. It pays to pay more for a flour that will make more loaves of bread to the barrel than ordinary flours. It would pay to pay more, even if the bread were just the same as in ordinary flours. How much stronger, therefore, is the claim of Ogilvie's flour, which not only makes more bread but also makes it of a higher quality.

Always pay as you go, said Uncle Dudley.
But, uncle, suppose I have nothing to pay with?
Then don't go.

A GUARANTEED CURE For All Forms of Kidney Disease.

We the undersigned Druggists, are fully prepared to give the following guarantee with every 50 cent bottle of Dr. Pettigill's Kidney-Wort Tablets, the only remedy in the world that positively cures all troubles arising from weak or diseased kidneys:

"Money cheerfully returned if the sufferer is not relieved and improved after use of one bottle. Three or six bottles effect astonishing and permanent cures. If not relieved and cured, you waste no money."—F. R. Dalton, Newcastle, N. B.

Mrs. Bargain—Oh, Ethel! I have just talked Edward into giving me the money for a new hat.

NEWS TO GOOD TO KEEP

Persons who have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are usually so well pleased with the benefits derived that they tell the good news to their neighbors. There is no medicine which so promptly awakens the action of the liver, invigorates the kidneys and regulates the bowels as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and for this reason they are unapproached as a family medicine. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers.

He—I thought you looked charming last night.
She—Oh, now! Did you really?
He—Yes. Why, I could hardly believe it was you.

ONE IN FOUR PERSONS

One person in every four suffers more or less from itching piles. Some do not know the nature of their ailment, and others have not heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment as the only absolute and guaranteed cure for this distressing disease. If you are a sufferer ask your neighbor about this great preparation. It has grown popular as a result of the news of its merits being passed from friend to friend.

The Musician's Choice

Lovers of music who have hitherto scorned talking-machines because of their wheezy, Punch-and-Judy sound, have given Berliner Gram-o-phone a place of honor in their homes. This is because of its absolute perfection in sound reproduction—clear, true and distinct.

The Berliner Gram-o-phone is made in Canada, so are the records, you don't have to pay duty on them. It is guaranteed for five years and we are here to look after that guarantee. Prices $15 to $45. Stomach Disorders and Backache

A sufferer for years entirely cured of old troubles by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

MR. HUBERT BERNHARDT, George St., Calt, Ont., states:—"I was troubled for years with kidney and liver derangements and stomach disorders, and suffered a great deal from pains in the back. My digestion was very poor, gas would form on my stomach, and I would often feel great distress after meals.

Ordinary medicine did not seem to suit my case at all, but I found Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills both prompt and thorough in their action. They have entirely cured me of my old troubles, my digestion is excellent, and I do not know what it is to have a pain in my back now. I can heartily recommend these pills as a splendid medicine for kidney and liver troubles and indigestion."

Because of their direct and combined action on kidneys, liver and bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cure where ordinary medicines fail, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase on every box.

True and Unfailing Help For Suffering Women.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

The World's Medicine for the Cure of Female Troubles.

A large share of the evils and sufferings which women are liable to, result from special female weakness and diseases. From the girl entering womanhood to the woman who arrives at the Grand Climacteric or "Change of Life," there are troubles, ailments are irregularities—too often borne in silence—which undermine the health and result in disease. Where such conditions exist, Heaven help the poor sufferers to fully realize their perils and dangers! It is well known that ordinary medical treatment too often fails to build up the delicate nervous system of woman, and give necessary tone and strength to the important female organs. The experience of years, medical testimony and letters from tens of thousands of cured women, point to Paine's Celery Compound as woman's friend and life giver. Jessie M. Rose, Quyon, P. B., says:—

"It affords me much pleasure to testify to the great good that Paine's Celery Compound has done for me. I was completely run-down in health and a victim of female weakness, and after using three bottles of Paine's Celery Compound I was completely cured. It is the best blood purifier I know of, and I recommend it to all who are troubled as I was."

A FORTUNE IN FRENCH.

Valuable Hint for Ambitious and Earnest Young Canadians.

How many of the younger men know that, if they will only grasp it, there is awaiting them a golden prize? It can be attained only by study; the study of French. The big wholesale of Toronto are pushing their trade into Quebec, says the Toronto News. The manufacturers are doing the same thing. And the representatives of these firms, if they are to be successful in the French Province, must speak the language. Toronto employers have had great difficulty in obtaining traveling salesmen who would be able to talk to the French-Canadian merchant in his own tongue. They had plenty of bright, alert, pushing young fellows, but they had only the language that their fathers taught them. All the things being equal, the young man who knows French will stand a much better chance of doing business in Quebec than will his competitor, who compels his customer to speak an English language that is alien to his lips. The French-Canadian merchant in a small town does not attempt to speak English more than once a month. So, it is gratifying to find an English-speaking salesman acquainted with his own tongue; so that the French-speaking man from Ontario stands in with a manifest advantage. So far, many of the Ontario firms have been forced to engage French-Canadian travelers to cover the territory. The result is usually earnest and enthusiastic, but he is not so efficient as the man who has been brought up in his employer's business, and several years at his apprenticeship before being sent out on the road.

Then, everybody knows that Quebec is full of water powers that will make her, in the near future, a quantity to be reckoned with when it comes to manufacturing. Where water powers are, there will be electrical development, and electrical development means positions for many young men who know something of that branch of engineering. Toronto is full of its students. Many of them will get posts in Quebec, and under them will be hundreds of French-Canadians. Will it not be easier for them to manage the business when they know the tongue of their employers? The man who has nothing but English at his command, will have to depend largely on his French-Canadian assistants or foremen. He will often have to pay salaries that he could save if he had both languages to work on. The electrical engineer of the future, who is now studying in Ontario, had better have a try at French. The younger he is, the better. Still, a man who has attained middle age can "pick it up." Many a politician has gone to Ottawa knowing no word of the alien tongue. He has found that a knowledge of it would help him in Parliament, and, has commenced its study. People of our blood are notoriously timid about learning foreign languages, but there is nothing very difficult in the task of acquiring a working knowledge of French. It is something that pretty nearly any man possessing a High School education should be able to achieve in six months. If he knows his Latin grammar pretty well, he will be immeasurably helped. But even if he has no Latin, he will do well to take up French. He will be richer financially and mentally.

PRESENCE OF MIND.

The Duke of Wellington's Experience With a Marvellous Masque.

One day as the Duke of Wellington sat writing at his library table quite alone his door was suddenly opened without a knock or announcement of any sort, and in stalked a gaunt man, who stood before the commander in chief with his hat on and a savage expression of countenance. The duke was of course a little annoyed at such an unceremonious interruption, and, looking up, he asked, "Who are you?" "I am Dionysius," was the singular answer. "Well, what do you want?" "Your life," "My life?" "Yes; I am sent to kill you." "Very odd," said the duke, sitting back and calmly gazing at the intruder. "Not at all, for I am Dionysius," said the stranger, "and I must put you to death." "Are you obliged to perform this duty today?" asked the commander in chief. "I am very busy just now and have a large number of letters to write. It would be very inconvenient today." The visitor looked hard during a moment's pause. "Call again," continued the duke, "or write and make an appointment." "You'll be ready?" "Without hesitation a schooner and made a voyage to Fortress Monroe and Norfolk for them. There are about 200 bushels. Where do you want 'em?"

Bailey did really make the trip, hired his men and sold oysters enough in Georgetown before "reporting" to pay all expenses and leave him a profit of about $100. The 200 bushels were divided among the members of the regiment, and Bailey returned to his duty.

CARIGNAN SALIERES.

French Fighting Men Sent Over to Canada in 1665.

Mr. F. D. Monk, K. C., M. P., recently delivered the closing lecture of this year's series of the Lindsay Collegiate Institute lecture course. His subject was "A Page of Old French-Canadian History," the story of the regiment of Carignan Salieres. After a graphic description of the Champlain and Richelieu valley, Mr. Monk sketched the origin of the regiment of Carignan Salieres in France about 1650, noted their many deeds of daring and their last fight in Europe against the Turks in 1694. The danger of the French colony from the Iroquois was so great that Louis XIV. sent out a regiment of regulars for protection in 1665, and the Carignan Salieres were chosen. Their work was to fortify the Richelieu valley, drive back the hated Iroquois and hunt them away from the borders of New France. This they did at great cost to themselves. Their work done, the regiment was disbanded, and the majority of surviving officers and men settled in the Richelieu. Their descendants are there and throughout Quebec still, farmers most of them, but with a military spirit that flamed out on the Plains of Abraham and has since 1763 shown itself many times in Britain's cause.

A Very Old Staff.

A large employer of labor in this city, says the Montreal Star, who has in his service many hands past the age of usefulness told this joke to a circle of amused friends. A gentleman from Chicago or somewhere else came to one of my deputies and said, "I can save you from a strike if you will get me $500."

I said: "That seems a very business-like proposition," and I led him on. Finally I said: "I will tell you what I will do—I will tell you

There is one thing to be said in favor of our style of government, said the South American dictator. What is that?

It promotes veracity. When some one starts a rumor that a high official is going to resign his office, you can pretty near depend on its coming true.

She—And were you successful with your first case, doctor? He—Yes—yes. The—er—widow paid the bill.

Q—Why are regular travellers by the shepherd's Bush and City Railway like certain vegetables? A—Because they're Tubers.

Reporter—Here is the notice of two chums marrying two sisters. Editor—Head it, Putting Two and Two Together.

Clevertown—Since you have been calling on Miss Pinkerly, how has her father and mother treated you? Dashaway—Splendidly. I haven't even met them.

The Kentucky Husband—What do you suppose a man would do if the time should ever come when he'd have as much trouble finding his pocket as a woman does? The Kentucky Wife—Carry his flask in his boot.

Mrs. A.—I sent my daughter to a cooking school to fit her for marriage. Mrs. B.—Was the experiment a success?

Mrs. A.—No; the man she was engaged to found it out.

Whatever became of Lamb? Oh! He played the markets and went broke.

And Wolff—what became of him? Oh! He worked the markets and got rich.

Taking Life Too Seriously.
Taking life too seriously is said to be an especially American failing. This may be true; but, judging from appearances, it would seem to be worldwide, for, go where you may, you will find the proportion of serious, not to say anxious, faces tend to one as compared with the merry or happy ones. If "the outer is always the form and shadow of the inner" and if "the present is the fullness of the past and the herald of the future" (and how can we doubt it?), how many sad histories can be read in the faces of those we meet every day! The pity of it is, too, that the sadness is a self-worn garment, even as is the joy with which it might be replaced. Ruskin says: "Girls should be sunbeams not only to members of their own circle, but to everybody with whom they come in contact. Every room they enter should be brighter for their presence." Why shouldn't all of us be sunbeams, boys as well as girls, all along the way from twenty-five years and under to eighty-five years and over?

A Cheerful Expression.
"I wish I could always look as cheerful as you do," said the sweet young thing as she dropped down beside the attractive widow. "There are times when it is embarrassing, that cheerful expression of mine," said the widow. "Let me tell you. When my husband died, I was journeying alone to his home, where he was to be buried. I was much annoyed at the persistence with which men across the aisle attempted to flirt with me. Finally he took a seat in front of me and said, 'I beg pardon, but I thought I'd like to talk with you awhile because you have such a cheerful expression.' "And there I'd been weeping my eyes out for two days. So don't cultivate that cheerful look too much or you'll find some one accusing you of looking happy at a funeral."

A Medieval Survival.
It may interest some of your readers to know that the archaic method of reckoning by tallies is still in vogue in 'au. While there I saw a bundle of tally sticks (these called tallies) suspended in a baker's shop, and on inquiry I found that most of the poorer untried people thus registered their purchases until they were able to pay. The tally stick is cut down the center, the baker and purchaser each retaining half, and when a loaf is sold the two ends are fitted together, and a notch, giving an exact check upon the baker's score. Upon any payment being made a corresponding number of notches are shaved off.

Harriet—Have you read the magazine, Charles?

Charles—Everything but the matter that's inserted between the front and back advertising pages; but I guess I've got the cream of the number.

A woman has acted as Speaker of the Colorado House of Representatives, said Kilduff.

Mrs. Tiff acts constantly as speaker of my house, added Mr. Tiff.

McJigger—What's the matter with your neck?

Thingumbob—Bile.

McJigger—Boil, eh?

Thingumbob—No, bill. Automo.

Smith—Has Brown any capital?

Jones—No. But he gives employment to a great many men.

Smith—What do they do?

Jones—Try to collect money due his creditors.

WANTED—SEVERAL INDUSTRIOUS PERSONS in each state to travel for house established eleven years for and with a large capital to call upon merchants agents for successful and profitable line. Permanent engagement. Weekly cash salary of $18 and all travelling expenses and hotel bills advanced in cash each week. Experience not essential. Mention reference and enclosed self addressed envelope. THE NATIONAL, 334 Dearborn St. Chicago.

Good Stationery

is equivalent to

Good Clothes.

The old saying that a man must not be judged by his clothes is perhaps true, but how many business men live up to this?

If a man in ragged clothes and ancient appearance endeavored to sell you goods or asks for credit, would he have as good a chance as a well dressed man of good appearance?

It is the same with your stationery. It goes direct to your customers and wholesale firms and by it you either impress or fail to impress them.

We make a specialty of the good clothing sort of stationery and do not charge exorbitant prices for it either.

If you are interested let us know your wants and we will endeavor to please you.

KENDALL'S SPAININ—CURE

The old reliable remedy for Spavin, Ringbone, Splints, Curbs, etc., and all forms of Lameness. It cures, thousands of cures annually. Cures without a lancet, as it does not bleed.

Complete Cure for Bone Spavin.

Dr. B. J. Kendall Co., Gentlemen: I had to treat a young horse of mine some years ago which had a Bone Spavin and got locked on the same leg and was very badly crippled. I had tried all the remedies I could find, but nothing would cure him. I then got your Kendall's Spavin Cure. I had the horse bleed the same water and only gave the Kendall's Spavin Cure half a ounce, and he was cured. I have a half bottle to cure his leg with very little treatment, and I did so completely that you would never know that he had a spavin; he never has gone lame since. GEO. S. HARRIS.

Such endorsements as the above are a guarantee of merit. Price $1.50 per box. As a present for family use it has no equal. Ask your druggist for Kendall's Spavin Cure. Also "A Treatise on the Horse," the book free, or address

SAWDUST FUEL.

For some time no other fuel has been used at the power house except refuse sawdust from Mr. Hickson's mill and it has proved beyond doubt that this fuel is capable of taking the place of coal. At present only from four to six loads are consumed each night. This is only a small portion of the quantity that this mill has no use for and, as it is only available for five or six months of each year, we would suggest that some provision be made for storing it up for winter use. If it is allowed to remain in the dump as in former years it will become useless for fuel by being subject to the weather.

In our opinion a large shed should be rented or built for this purpose and this fuel, which is now such a saving to the town and consequently worth much, stored up for the winter when a very large amount will be required.

TALKED WITH PRESIDENT.

Russian Ambassador's long interview with Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, was at an hour's talk with President Friday afternoon. He called at the White House at 3 o'clock by appointment and was received by the President in the latter's private office adjoining the cabinet room. Apparently the purpose of the ambassador's call was to take his formal farewell of the President, as he is leaving for Russia on the 23rd in accordance with his annual custom of spending his vacation at home. The ambassador's call, however, lasted over forty minutes and it is known that practically the whole time was consumed in review of the situation in Russia, growing out of the recent Jewish atrocities at Kishinev, though no statement concerning the conference was given out.

Death of Allan Farrell.

On Saturday, May 30, 1903, at St. Eugene Hospital, Cranbrook, Allan Farrell, of stomach complications, Mr. Farrell came to Morrissey from Billings, Montana several months ago on a tour of inspection and recreation.

Being greatly impressed with the business possibilities of this district he concluded to remain until spring with the possible idea of locating permanently. Possessing a genial nature and being intelligent and of a most companionable disposition he made many friends. A few weeks ago he became ill and came to Cranbrook to place himself under the care of Drs. King and Green. He never rallied, but gradually failed until death came. His brother, James W. Farrell, a merchant of Berkeley, Cal., arrived a few days before his death and was able to do for him all a brother can do in the last hours of life. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at St. Mary's church, Father Oulette officiating. The remains were interred in the Cranbrook cemetery. H. Stephens, J. Lawson, M. Gillis, M. Billings, F. E. Haines and F. Simpson were the pall-bearers.

The deceased leaves one brother and one sister, Mrs. Joseph Savoy at Newcastle, N. B., where he was born.

Mr. J. W. Miller, Millerton, accompanied by Mr. Byron Call, Newcastle, arrived in town this morning about nine o'clock on his new automobile, having come from Dalhousie this morning. Their trip up in coming around by Caraquet has been over 200 miles without accident attending then, and the machine made a success of all the hills although the ascent at New Mills made it grunt a little. Mr. Miller is greatly pleased with our roads except for the culverts which are in bad condition although that is very general with country roads.—Campbellton Events, June 11th.

Quite a number of ladies and gentlemen from this vicinity attended the ball at Indian town Wednesday.

Miss L. Eason of Barrow River has been visiting her cousin Miss Annie Donaghue.

CARAQUET.

We are still enjoying lovely weather but rain is badly needed for the crops and also to extinguish the forest fires which seem to be raging all over the country, the air is very smoky but we have escaped fire in our vicinity so far.

We have heard several parties who have visited our little town make this remark, "oh this is a pretty place but it is very slow, there seems to be no amusement in it whatever," well we hope that things will be a little more lively this summer as we believe that a Tennis Club has been organized. A meeting was held at the residence of Mr. P. Rive, Saturday evening when the club was organized and the officers elected. Another meeting is to be held at Mrs. C. Hubbard's on Wednesday evening when the site for the Court and also all arrangements as to net, etc. shall be decided upon.

Mr. Burpee and his bride arrived on Saturday evening accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Blackberry.

Mr. Simon left last Monday by sch. for Paapebiac. He is missed by his friends here.

Mr. Stead spent a few days here last week.

Miss M. Blackhall went to Lunenburg last week to spend a couple of weeks with her cousin Mrs. LeRiche.

Mr. Pickles, agent for the Union Advocate of Newcastle, spent a couple of days at the Blanchard House last week.

Dr. Meahar of Bathurst was registered at Foley's Hotel today.

Mr. B. Mullins was here a couple of days last week.

The wharf is progressing rapidly. When it is finished it will be quite an acquisition to our little town.

Wedding bells will ring in the near future.—Events.

BAY DU VIN.

BAY DU VIN, June 8.—The weather for the past week has been very dry.

The farmers are all nearly done their spring work; all having got lots of seed in the ground, expect good crops.

BATHURST.

The blessed rain so long wished for by the farmers of the North Shore has come at last. All Saturday night, and throughout Sunday and Sunday night it has steadily fallen, and the difference in the appearance of the fields and gardens is already to be seen. The change of weather will be worth thousands of dollars to our farmers and the success of this season's crop may be assured now. The hay crop particularly needed the rain as otherwise it must have been a very light one, but coming as it does now, just in the right time, we may confidently look for rather a better crop than last season, when there was rather too much rainfall in June and July.

The Bathurst mills are sawing night and day, and appear to be piling up the deals on the wharves, as owing to the delay in the appearance of expected vessels, shipments have not yet commenced. One or two steamers should have arrived early last week, but have not yet.

Business generally among the merchants appears to be fair, and the building operations are proceeding satisfactorily. Messrs Lonsdaley Co. are already occupying their new warehouse and office, which presents quite a showy appearance with its plate glass windows and attractive front. This latter firm, and the firm of MacKenzie & Boss are showing some very handsome carriages this season many with rubber tires, and splendidly finished. The usual large quantity of agricultural implements are continually going out into the country and being distributed among our farmers, showing that Gloucester county is fully in line with any other part of the Province in the use of all improvements of this kind. Mr. A. J. W. MacKenzie is showing the latest thing in the shape of a cream separator being the Tubular separator manufactured by the Sharples firm of West Chester, Penn. As a guarantee of the popularity of this new machine it may be said that the firm shipped a full train load of twenty four cars of separators to one district in the United States on the 24th of February last. The first farmers in Gloucester to purchase a machine from Mr. MacKenzie were Messrs Mark and Alexander Ellis of Janville who tested it by separating the cream from three full pails of milk in eight minutes, and pronounced it far the best separator they had ever seen.

It would be well for our farmers to examine this machine as its introduction into Gloucester by Mr. MacKenzie, who has the agency for the three Northern countries means much toward the development of the dairy business which is growing to an enormous extent on the North shore of late years.

As far as we can learn the forest fires, which at one time threatened large areas in the rear of Bathurst were pretty well burned out even before the recent rainfall which will of course put out any small fires which may have been burning up to Sunday. A cruiser who came down the Nepisiguit and across from the Tobique River last week reported that he had seen no fires on his route so fortunately none of our valuable timber limits have suffered. It is hoped that the same applies to the headwaters of the Miramichi.

The petition from the island of Massou that the local government provide roads in the island has been considered. Massou is an important place, and is improving. It has quite a large population of fishing and farmer folk, has two churches—one Catholic and one Protestant. The Gloucester members pressed strongly to have the improvements asked for made, and it was decided to make a beginning and that every year the public works department give a reasonable grant to help make roads in the island.

The members also pressed the demand made during the session for a ferry subsidy for a steam ferry between the island of Shippegan and the mainland. Shippegan has about 2,000 people, and there are three churches on the island. To this demand the chief commissioner replied that it would be referred to the executive council. An investigation was now being made into the ferry services of the province, and at the next meeting of the executive he would be in a position to report on what services deserved financial aid from the government.

It is feared that the pulp scheme, which looked so promising a few months ago, has again evaporated. The Harmsworths going to Newfoundland for their supply. Sooner or later, however, the magnificent water powers of the Nepisiguit will be harnessed for this purpose or some other of a manufacturing kind.

In connection with water powers, and reverting to our remarks on this subject and the enterprise of the Americans, as opposed to the spathy of Englishmen in investing in Canada's resources, it is reported that the great American Steel Trust is invading Canada by purchasing the right of erecting an immense plant at Port Colborne on the Welland Canal, and have arranged with one of the Niagara Power Companies for 6,000 (six thousand) horse power at the Falls. It is said they aim at controlling the iron and steel trade of Canada and will also do a large export trade from Ontario. This may or may not be true, the report may be intended as a bluff to force the Dominion Government in the Protection scheme which the Sydney people are looking for, or it may be that the Americans are anxious to get their feet in before the Chamberlain scheme comes to a head. They are astute enough to see the magnificent advantage of controlling our water powers which are so much cheaper than steam for manufacturing purposes, and as we said before, if English Capitalists do not wake up they will find us completely in the hands of the Americans before another generation arrives. Concerning the action of the Sydney people in seeking more protection from the government, the general impression seems to be that what is the matter with the Sydney concern is over capitalization. Mr. Whitney and his friends capitalized the works for all they could rightly stand before they let them go, and

The Canadian investors added considerably to the capital after they had purchased. Now it seems to be difficult to make the plant pay interest on a fictitious value. The present owners told a different story a year or so ago when they forced the stock which is now selling for about seventy up to nearly one hundred and fifty, and the directors must have made millions out of it. What is required in all their big enterprises, is that the government should control the issue of stock and bonds, and be careful not to allow too much indebtedness to be piled on the property. Protection is one thing but asking the people to put their hands in their pockets to help an industry, where capitalists probably never gone into the works is another thing, and the Canadian people are wisely waking up to the difference.

THE MYSTERY OF GRASLOV

By Ashley Towne

Copyright, 1901, by Charles D. Kibben

"Oh, is it not?" said Vladimir. "When one has a powerful friend to send the ironwork to him, it is easy to get along. We shall have a fine shop and ten men employed in the work. Instead of this, I have my father and mother shall live in a fine house, and my father shall work no more. I shall make money for all."

"Ah! Then I suppose you will be getting married?"

"That is something I have not thought of. I do not know."

"Somebody else knows," chuckled the stout Papa Paulpoff. "There is an American girl who thinks well of you."

"Hush!" exclaimed Vladimir impatiently. "You are speaking of some one whose name must be sacred."

His face was flushed, and Neslerov looked at it searchingly.

"You are very fortunate," said Neslerov jokingly. "I can get no one to marry me."

"You but jest. Any one would be pleased to marry one of Russia's wealthiest princes."

"But such a one!" continued the indiscreet old man. "She is beautiful, she is rich, and she sends him books."

"Good! She is educating you. She must love you," said Neslerov.

"Oh, as to love, that is different. Her acts are kind, and I feel grateful. But for marrying—it will require a fine man to make her happy."

"He will make any one happy," put in the old woman, with a glance of pride at the young giant. "Any girl, even though she might be a princess, would get no better for a husband. Look at those arms! Can they not protect?"

"They could fell a bull!" said Neslerov. "How do you pass the time here? Do you go to the nearest village or to Perm and play?"

"Not he!" said the old man, pausing long enough in his work to add his tribute to this son they loved so well. "That young man spending his time at a village! I think not, your excellency. With his books he spends his nights. He studies or he paints."

"What's that? Paints?"

"Aye, indeed yes. He is a born painter."

"And shoeing horses?"

"One gets a kopeck or two for shoeing horses. One must paint for the pleasure of it, unless one is well known. It will come in time," said Vladimir.

"See, he is not so simple as he looks," said Papa Paulpoff, nodding his head toward the big boy.

"Very far from simple, I should say," answered Neslerov.

"Old woman!" shouted Papa Paulpoff suddenly, so suddenly that she jumped in alarm. "Go get the picture. Let the prince see the face of her who is so kind to Vladimir."

The old woman obeyed and ran out. "Her picture! You have her picture painted!" stammered Neslerov.

"Yes, I, and the good part of it is that she knows nothing of it. I shall give it to her when she comes again to see us," said Vladimir.

"But I do not understand. How could you draw a face without having it before you?" asked the prince.

"Ha! It is never from my sight. The most beautiful face! A face that one could not forget. I drew it—I painted it—two—three and four times from aim famous if it ever got a chance; second, that he must have the picture of the girl indelibly in his mind to paint so true a picture from memory. And, knowing Frances Gordon, Neslerov knew that this man was a most dangerous rival for her hand.

"But that is not all he has done," said the old woman exultingly.

"Fshaw!" exclaimed Papa Paulpoff. "He has done nothing else worth mentioning."

Vladimir looked up in surprise and caught a swift look of warning flashed from Michael's eyes to those of his wife. The warning flash was also seen by Neslerov, and his curiosity was whetted.

"Surely this cannot be all," he said. "Such a talent must have an outlet. There must be something else. Come! I will look at all you have and buy what I want."

"But not that," replied Vladimir. "I could not sell that."

"But another of the same face?"

"No, I could not sell that face."

"Then let me see something else—something as good as this—and I will buy it."

"There is another woman's face"—began Mamma Paulpoff.

"Yes, and as beautiful a face as this, but a Russian," added Vladimir. "It was a picture. Papa Paulpoff had it. I found it one day and painted one from it."

"Show it to me," said Neslerov.

His eyes were fixed on the face of Vladimir with something like fear in them now. He glanced from one to another of the group.

Papa Paulpoff showed evidences of nervousness, but Vladimir was eager to satisfy the prince. He sent the old woman for the other portrait.

She brought it and placed it in the hands of the prince. At the first glance his face went white to the very lips. His hands shook. His frame trembled.

"Good heavens!" was breathed under his mustache. The words were not heard, but the manner of the man did not escape Papa Paulpoff.

"Who is this—it is a beautiful woman—but her name?" asked Neslerov, and his voice had turned suddenly hoarse in spite of the effort to control himself.

"I found a small picture one day after a party of nobles passed by," answered Papa Paulpoff.

A swift glance of suspicion shot from the eyes of Neslerov to the face of Papa Paulpoff. But the old man's face was perfectly impassive.

"I will buy this. Name your price," said the prince. "And I will buy the other, the one you found."

"Alas, it is lost!" exclaimed Papa Paulpoff. "It was in a small house we had years ago, and it burned down."

"And the picture destroyed?"

"Alas, yes. It was so pretty, a noble woman, perhaps even a princess," said Papa Paulpoff. "I wept like a child when it was lost."

Tears came into his eyes now at the remembrance of it.

"I will buy this. How much do you ask for it?" he asked of Vladimir.

"On second thoughts, it is not for sale," Vladimir answered.

"I do not wonder," he said. "It is a beautiful face. We do not have them in this part of Russia. In St. Petersburg, perhaps."

He

speaks to me to disturb me eating. I will use my foot."

Once at the table, Papa Paulpoff attacked the meal with the rude manners of the uneducated Russian, and the old woman sat with downcast eyes eating her own meal.

Vladimir, though devoured by curiosity, knew the peculiarities of the old man and ate in silence.

CHAPTER III.

VLADIMIR SENT TO SIBERIA.

ATTACHED to the police of the government of Perm was an inspector named Ignatz Jansky. He was ambitious to rise and was of that mental and physical caliber that makes a man successful when he bends all his energies, regardless of all scruples, to the attainment of his goal.

Inspector Jansky, having received a message from Prince Neslerov, hastened to obey, for he knew the power of Neslerov, and if there should chance to be promotion in his path at any time Neslerov, as a wealthy noble of Graslov, could further his possibilities.

Inspector Jansky entered the palace of the prince with a humility that would have earned the poor devil whom his eagerness had sent to Siberia.

"Sit down," said the prince, and the inspector sat down with a suddenness that proved his desire to please his sponsor. "I sent for you."

"You did, your excellency. I received your message and made all haste to obey."

"I trust it did not inconvenience you to a great extent," said the prince, who was quite familiar with the peculiarities of the inspector's nature.

"Not at all, your excellency—that is, not so much but what it gave me pleasure to obey. I am always busy, as you know."

"Yes, you are assiduous. Well, I have news for you. But first I should be pleased to receive from you an answer to a question. What do you wish for the most?"

Jansky hesitated. His servile mind saw far into the future, as a rule, but it could not fathom the meaning of this strange question. What did it matter to the prince what he wanted most unless the prince was disposed to grant it?

"I should like promotion, your excellency. Of course, I make no claim. You have befriended me. You have made me what I am. I have in my humble way endeavored to so acquit myself that you would not be displeased. I would not ask you for more. But, since you ask my dearest wish, it is promotion."

"It is a possibility," the prince replied.

Having said this, he deliberately lighted a cigar, leaving the inspector on nettles, wondering if the possibility were to materialize into a fact.

"As I said before, it is a possibility," said Neslerov and relapsed into silence.

"I suppose it is always a possibility to one so powerful as your excellency," said Jansky, who had a fine talent for flattery.

"At this particular moment it is more easily accomplished than at any other time."

"If your excellency will explain—if anything is expected of me, I would—"

"Duty, only duty," broke in the prince. "But I will explain. You are already aware that when you were made inspector of police in Perm the field of police activity extended but little farther east. The Cossack guards and the Tartar cavalry composed the police over the border. But this new railway is revolutionizing all that. In each government through which this line of travel passes or is to pass a department of police is to be established. There will be new cities develop. There will be railway stations. The population of Siberia will increase and, though complex enough at all times, will now present a far greater variety than ever

"And, your excellency, in the goodness of your heart you have thought of me?"

"I have been thinking—of several. I have befriended you. I desire to do so again. But there are difficulties which we must consider. Your present position, while not a low one, still is so low that the leap from it to the position of superintendent of police of the government of Tomsk would excite the imaginations of certain people at St. Petersburg."

"Superintendent of police of Tomsk?" Jansky cried.

"Certainly. That is the position for which I intend you. I have watched your career. You are eager, ambitious and resourceful. What better man could I have in such a position? It is upon you whom I must rely to prevent the encroachments of our enemies. It will be the superintendent of my police who will be my closest confidant. Who could be more acceptable to me than you?"

"I thank you, your excellency. Thank!"

"Wait. Thank me with deeds when we succeed. As I said before, there are difficulties. One cannot leap too great a distance at once without a cause. We must find a cause."

"A cause, your excellency?"

"What I mean is some potent reason for this great promotion. The chief of the Tomsk police will have a palace, a large income and will be second only to myself in power. To obtain that one must do something worthy."

"Oh, if I could but win that distinction!"

"I think it even now within your power."

"You have discovered something?"

"Yes—a very nesting place for nihilists."

"Good! Give me an idea where this place is, your excellency. There will be no more nesting."

"Do you know a forge on the forest road leading out of Perm to the south?"

"A forge? A horseshoeing place?"

"Well, that and all ironworking. It is kept by a man named Paulpoff."

"Paulpoff, the giant who breaks horses' shoes with his thumbs and forefingers? The simple minded son of old Michael? What has he to do with nihilists?"

"He is their leader," Neslerov said quietly.

Jansky turned white, whether from surprise or horror at the devilish plot he sensed we do not know. But he sat there waiting. The police of Tomsk needed a chief. The chief would have a palace and a large salary.

"Yes," continued Neslerov, "this Paulpoff, as I accidentally discovered, is the leader of a band of nihilists who meet there in the shops. I chanced to pass there yesterday and overheard a bit of conversation between the son and the old man. It seems there is to be a meeting in a few nights."

"A meeting of nihilists in the shops of Paulpoff?"

"Yes. Now, it has long been suspected that there were many nihilists at Perm, but the police have not been able to uncover them. Let me advise you. Keep this to yourself—a secret between you and me. We will go to the forge and arrest these Paulpoffs. If we find proof that they are nihilists, they will go across the border and you will be mentioned for promotion. Then the opportunity will come to me to speak to the minister of justice for you, and undoubtedly you will be given to me as the chief of the Tomsk police."

Jansky nodded. It was not for him to ask questions now.

"I am ready," he said.

"Then tomorrow. I will make still further investigations in my own way, and we shall be ready to act. We must both go to Perm from here."

Jansky, not being asked to remain longer, took his departure. And then suddenly from his repose the prince became a man of quick action. He called from his estate four men in whom he knew he could place the most implicit confidence. He spent some time at his last meeting. To each of the four he know one another, and each growled continually at the others for being there.

Neslerov, upon arriving at the shop, whispered to the inspector, and both leaped from their horses.

"Seize the old man and the son!" said Neslerov. "I will search these fellows."

Poor old Papa Paulpoff turned white and sank in horror to the ground, suspecting what was coming, but Vladimir, in whose innocent mind there was no suspicion, stood gaping at the newcomers.

"It is the prince!" he exclaimed.

"What have these poor men done, your excellency?"

Neslerov did not answer him. He turned to the nearest of the four, wrestled with him a short time, while the others showed evidences of terror, and then pulled from his pocket a letter.

"See!" he cried, waving it in the air and then showing it to the inspector. "It is a message to 'Number Three'! We have here the five constituting the circle."

"Let me read," said the inspector, while Vladimir still looked on unconscious of the tragedy that was being played with himself as its center.

The letter simply commanded "Number Three" to attend a meeting of the circle at the shops at that hour.

The name of Vladimir Paulpoff was signed.

"It is enough!" cried Jansky. Paulpoff, I make you my prisoner in the name of the czar!"

The young ironworker could, had he exerted his strength, have thrust the entire shameless crew from the place and crashed their skulls together. But even now he did not realize the enormity of the thing with which he was charged.

"Attend, Paulpoffs!" commanded Jansky, while the prince went through the pockets of the other three of the circle.

"Oh, have mercy!" cried Papa Paulpoff, falling upon his knees and clasping the legs of the prince. "We are innocent, I swear it! Some enemy has done this thing! The name is not in the writing of my son, I am certain! Oh, let me see the letters!"

A PAGE OF INTEREST TO FARMERS.

GROWING FORAGE CROPS.

Feeders of Live Stock Should Prepare for the Summer Droughts.

Nearly every summer we hear the same old story of midsummer droughts and consequently scanty pastures. Many of our best farmers have learned to guard against loss by having a supply of succulent feed to fall back upon in case the pasture fails. A small silo, filled especially for summer use, will go a long way to meet the difficulty and a partial system of soiling has also found favor among progressive stockmen. The Live Stock Commissioner, Mr. F. W. Hudson has frequently drawn attention to the advisability of growing some green crops for summer feeding, and has recommended a number of such crops as suitable for general growth but only personal experience will enable a farmer to select the varieties of fodder plants best suited to his requirements. It will be necessary to consider the most suitable crops to grow and the periods during which each will be available. Rye, clover, rape, peas, oats, vetches, millet, sorghum and corn will afford a satisfactory supply of green feed all through the summer if sowings are made at suitable intervals.

Rye sown in the fall will furnish the earliest feed in the spring, but as grass is usually abundant at that time, this crop is not likely to be needed unless a complete system of soiling be practised. The clovers where they grow well come next on the list and will provide an abundance of good feed during the latter half of June. Where it is possible to grow lucerne or alfalfa, it will be found the best of all soiling crops. It can be cut in the spring almost as early as rye, and yields, at least three crops per season of rich feed. It is readily eaten by all kinds of live stock, but like other clovers it is apt to cause bloating if carelessly pastured. In Southern Ontario it usually stands the winter well and lasts for years without reseeded. It should be sown in the spring, either alone or with a light nurse crop of barley, wheat or oats and at least twenty pounds of fresh good seed per acre. It is a little slow to gain a foothold and should not be pastured the first year, but after that is very tenacious of life, and withstands droughts particularly well.

Rape may be sown about the first of May for early feeding, and additional sowings may be made at intervals as desired. It is advisable to sow rape in drill about two feet apart on rich, well prepared land, and to cultivate as for turnips. If drilled in, one to two pounds of seed should be sown to the acre; if sown broadcast, double the amount. Dwarf Essex is the best variety. Rape produces large quantities of green feed, and it is one of the best foods for keeping pigs, sheep and calves in good condition. It is not satisfactory for milch cows, owing to its tendency to injure the flavor of the milk.

Oats and peas make one of the very best soiling crops for general growth, particularly for feeding dairy cows. They should be sown as early as possible in the spring, and at intervals thereafter, at the rate of about three bushels per acre, (equal parts, or two bushels oats to one of peas.)

Vetches or tares are now grown in Canada to a considerable extent particularly by dairymen. They are likely to prove of value in nearly all the province. The common spring vetch has been most generally grown, but recent experiments have shown that the hairy vetch will yield a much larger amount of green fodder per acre in Ontario. The latter is very desirable for soiling especially in dry districts, and appears to be relished by all classes of farm stock. Owing to the high price of the seed, it will probably be found best to sow vetches along with peas at the rate of one bushel vetches, one bushel peas and two bushels of oats per acre. This mixture will produce an excellent crop for July and August feeding, and if cut early will afford good pastures afterwards.

Millet is a nother plant that particularly excels as a cutch crop. can sometimes be sown after a forage crop of peas and oats has been taken off the ground, and if there is moisture enough to start it, will yield a fair crop. If sown early in June, at the rate of about thirty pounds per acre, it will furnish a large crop of good fodder by the middle of August. The Japanese barnyard and Japanese panic are the best varieties, the former preferring a moist soil.

Corn is, in most localities, the great standby for fall feeding. Another very valuable fall fodder plant for the Southern parts of Canada is sorghum. The early amber is the variety best suited to our latitude. It should not be sown until the weather has become settled and warm on land that has been prepared in the same way as for corn. If sown in drills, three pecks of seed will be ample for an acre, but if broadcasted, more will be required. It is slow in starting but after it has attained a height of a few inches growth is very rapid and the crop heavy. It is greedily eaten by stock, but like corn it is carbonaceous in its nature and some additional feed such as clover or oilcake should be added to balance the ration.

Soja or soy beans are also likely to prove valuable in the southern districts. They produce a large amount of forage of excellent character if sown on land prepared as for corn at the rate of two to four peck per acre. The yellow soja is the best variety for Canada and is worthy of trial.

F. A. MacKinnon, Esq.,
Chief of Fruit Division.

Dear Sir—By your instructions I attended orchard meetings in cities and towns in New Brunswick, and at nearly all points an evening meeting was held, at which the audience was usually larger than in the afternoon, except in the larger places. It is gratifying to report that the interest in the subjects was well maintained throughout. Mr. Thos. A. Peters, Deputy Commissioner of Agriculture for New Brunswick attended nearly all the meetings, explaining the nature of the work and by carefully attending to all the details connected with the meetings contributed materially to success.

Mr. G. H. Vroom, Dominion Fruit Inspector, addressed each meeting on the subject of pruning and grafting, giving practical illustrations in each orchard. This feature of the work cannot be too highly commended. The principles of pruning are few and comparatively simple, but each operation is determined by a much too intricate to be accurately described in words. Under these circumstances a demonstrator can go into an orchard, and by selecting a few typical trees, give a much clearer idea in an hour of the practice of pruning than could possibly be gained from either reading or lectures.

Permit me also to say that not a little of the success of the meetings was due to the work of Mr. W. W. Hubbard, representing the agricultural interests of the Canadian Pacific Railway. His intimate knowledge of the people and of the district enabled us to adapt our work more particularly to the needs of the neighborhood in which the meetings were held. Through his efforts too, the meetings were much better advertised than usual. This was a splendid illustration of how much can be done by a man who is personally acquainted along the route of the meetings, and who is willing to give his best efforts to the work.

The demonstrations in spraying and orchard repairs, illustrated from the orchard in which we happened to be located was the work assigned to me at these meetings.

Our meetings covered the St. John Valley from Andover South, as well as the points between St. John, Hillsboro and Shediac. This wide range of country may be conveniently divided into two districts the one lying North of Woodstock, and the other South. The Northern Division is growing the hardier varieties of apples, and in certain favored spots the Ben Davis and some of the winter varieties succeed. The Southern districts are growing all the commercial varieties but the Duchess (New Brunswick) is the commonest variety and in many places is grown to the exclusion of all other varieties.

The prospect for orcharding in New Brunswick appear to me to be good. There is however a lot of educational work to be done

SUNLIGHT SOAP REDUCES EXPENSE

There is scarcely a farm upon which there is not at least five acres suitable for orchard purposes: presuming that fifty trees were put upon an acre we should have 250 trees in each orchard of five acres. It would not be too much to say that at the age of eight years when these trees are coming into bearing each tree would be at least worth $10.00 so that practically the value of the farm could be doubled in eight years by placing an orchard there would furnish remunerative employment for a large number of people and thus prove itself a benefit to every other industry in the country.

In conclusion permit me to say that the arrangements for this series of meetings made by the Department of Agriculture for New Brunswick were in every respect satisfactory.

Yours very truly
Dominion Fruit Inspector.

The quantity of early apples is about sufficient for home consumption and it is doubtful whether large plantations of such varieties as Duchess, Red Astrachan, or even such good Fall varieties as the Graevenstein and Yellow Bell Flower should be made. The European market at present is the only one that can be said to be unlimited hence only such varieties as will carry successfully can be recommended for large plantations of commercial fruit. In Northern districts there is still room, for experiments in the matter of winter varieties. Although many of these have been planted, the results as reported by the growers are somewhat conflicting. The are however, given to orchards carries so much that it renders an conclusion impossible. It is therefore highly desirable that experimental orchards, not necessarily large, should be planted in different sections of the country under condition as uniform as possible. Such orchards would not only be an example of the best methods in orcharding, but would give reliable data with reference to varieties. Although I am not in a position to speak absolutely upon the subject, I am of the opinion that the varieties most in demand in the European markets can be grown in this district, though it would be no doubt better to top-graft on some such stock as McMahros White on, Tolman Sweet. It may be taken for granted that with ordinary precautions all the commercial varieties can be grown in the Southern district.

The orchardists of New Brunswick are making one or two serious mistakes in orchard practice. In most of the orchards the trees are planted from 12 to 16 feet apart. This is altogether too close much better results could be obtained even with the Duchess, a small growing tree, if it were planted 25 to 30 feet apart. Large growing varieties such as the Rhode Island Greening and Northern Spy should not be planted closer than 35 or 40 feet apart. The saving in close planting is only in the rent of the land; there is a serious loss in the difficulties of performing all orchard operations. The rent on the land occupied by a tree, even at the greatest distance, should not be more than ten cents per tree, a sum that is soon gained by the ease with which spraying, pruning and gathering of the fruit may be done. This close planting practically leads to letting the orchard run to seed, and to this fact I feel sure we can attribute much of the want of success that has been reported in individual cases. I take it for granted in recommending orchards in any particular place that clean culture is to be the rule. Visited, in Fredericton, the orchard of Mr. Gillman, where we saw splendid example of comparatively wide planting and clean culture. The vigor of his trees was so much greater than that of the orchards in the neighborhood grown in sod, that all who have carefully studied the conditions must agree that clean culture must be the general rule for orchards. In nearly every orchard visited we found the tree badly infested with oyster shell bark louse and sun-scalded was also quite prevalent. For the former it was recommended that when the trees were dormant they should be sprayed with a lime whitewash made just as it would be made to use with a brush, strained carefully and applied with a spray pump. In addition spray carefully with a kerosene emulsion when the bark lice are moving in June. For sun-scald it was pointed out that if the tree were lashed a little toward the south-East, so that the limbs would shade the trunk and if the pruning were not too severe, this injury might be prevented. There appears to be some difficulty in getting suitable nursery stock though it is likely that the Department of Agriculture working through the agricultural societies will make an improvement in this matter.

The necessity for thoroughly under-draining orchards is not appreciated as it should be. Much of the land, especially along the banks of the St. John river appears to be admirably in situation and cost for orcharding, but much of it requires very careful under-draining before successful orchards can be obtained. There are so many springy places even on high land that uniformity in the orchard cannot be hoped for except by under-draining.

The Only Disagreeable Part.
It is only the first half of any job that is disagreeable. The second half is worse.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Body and Soul.
It is an ever increasing pity that the average doctor who tries to heal the body cares nothing for the soul. On the other hand, the parson who tries to heal the soul cares nothing for the body. The body and soul cannot be separated in such a manner. The diseases that afflict the body also affect the soul, and vice versa. No one who is ignorant of the laws that govern either the soul or the body is fit to attempt to heal the diseases of either the one or the other.

A bad man may preach a good sermon. A bad man may prescribe a good medicine. But both the sermon and the medicine would have had a greatly increased efficacy had they been delivered by a good man.

Chickamauga and Chattanooga.
The word Chickamauga means "dull, sluggish stream" says the Chattanooga Times, and it is from the waters of the creek that the Indians, who were among the most daring and warlike of all the tribes in east Tennessee, got their name. The original interpretation of Chattanooga has long been lost. The general acceptance of the meaning of the word is "hawk's nest," said to have been suggested by the valley nestling in the shadow of the ridges and mountain. Others say that the word is derived from the name Chasawah, given by the Cherokees to small, warlike hawks that made their nests in the cliffs of Lookout mountain.

"Real Indian."
A young woman recently received instruction in the art of Indian basketry and had made several copies of Indian baskets of which she was very proud. A friend who had been living in America, called upon the young woman, who showed the baskets with considerable pride. "They are really very well done," commented the visitor, "but of course they are not the real Indian baskets." "Why, Mrs. Sawyer," indignantly exclaimed the maker, "how can you say that when I just told you that I made them myself?"

Woman's Narrowness.
Mrs. Buttercup—I wish I had a million dollars.
Mr. Buttercup—Thunderation, woman, haven't you any business acumen? What do you want to stop at a paltry million for when you can wish for a hundred million just as easily and with just as much prospect of getting it? No wonder we are poor!

Why She Stood.
"Madam," said the conductor to the plain and somewhat elderly woman standing up in the street car, "why don't you ask one of these men to give you a seat?"
"Because," she answered, grimly sarcastic, "I haven't the face to do it."

Costly to Admire.
"Why is it that wealthy people become so cold and cynical?"
"They don't necessarily," answered Mr. Currox. "They have their cathysms. The trouble is that a rich man can't admire anything without being solicited to buy it."

Postprandial Effulgence.
"He's quite a star as an after dinner speaker, isn't he?"

THE TOWN OF NOGOOD.

My friend, have you heard of the town of Nogoood,
On the banks of the River slow,
Where blooms the Waitwhile flower,
Fair,
Where the Sometimes-otherwise scents the air,
And the soft Gossamers grow?

It lies in the valley of Whatatthehouse,
In the Province of Lettarelidie,
That Tiredfeeling is native there,
It's the home of the reckless Idontcare,
Where the Giveitup abide.

A Staying Trade.

In the drug business, more than any other, success depends on public confidence. The career of a store depends not so much on the occasional customer as on those whose continuous trade it holds. It must hold them by meriting and securing confidence.

Our Trade

has grown steadily since we began business here three years ago. It has grown because customers have come once come again, sent their friends and all have stayed. They have stayed because they were careful in their drug buying; they wanted the best goods at just prices, and they never had reason to go elsewhere.

Blenders and Packers of Tiger Indo Ceylon Teas.

DEAR SIR: Our choice at home of Tiger Tea is grade.....at.....c. per lb. It is true that the tiny dried, whitish buds in Tiger Tea give it that fine delicate flavor? We used to drink china tea years ago, but prefer the Tiger Tea in 1 lb. packets, as it looks cleaner, and because Tiger Teas are prepared and packed by machinery instead of by the nasty, sweaty hand treatment as in China. The pretty blue and white label is enough to make one wish to taste a cup of Tiger Tea. The Tiger Tea saw on the label show how strong the Tiger Tea is.

I am very glad to send you this letter about Tiger Tea, and if you wish I might send a sketch of a tiger which would perhaps be finer than the tiger on your label. The rich cherry color of Tiger Tea pleases everyone, and I hope that you will always keep the quality of it as good as it is now. I enclose the 12 cards required and tell you truly this is my own hand writing.

Every Canadian should buy a 1 lb. packet of tiger tea for besides the good quality, we know that the work of blending, labelling, boxing, packing, etc., is all done by Canadians in St. John.

My age is.....; my last school teacher was.....

Hoping that this letter will win a Tiger Tea prize,

I am respectfully yours,

Be sure and sign letter, giving full address.
