THE PAPER COMBINE

nquiry Before the Commissioner-Messra. Barber and McFarlane on the Stana.

Montreal, July 3.-The investigation ordered by the Dominion Government into the paper industry, in view of the claims made by a number of newspapers that a combine exists among the manufactories to maintain prices, was resumed in this city today under the presidency of Judge Taschereau.

John R. Barber, of Georgetown, Ont., John R. Barber, of Georgetown, Ont., who owns two pulp mills, was the first witness. He stated that the advance in the price of paper was not proportionate to the advance in the cost of production. John McFarlane, president of the Canada Paper Company, was the only other witness of the session. He stated that a reduction in dity on paper would be a severe loss to the trade, in which twenty million dollars is invested, and that the removal of the duty would mean the extinction of the industry, in which between five and six thousand people are engaged, apart from those engaged in getting out the wood used for the purpose.

getting out the wood used for the purpose.

The commission held a session this afternoon, when John T. Woodruff, manager of the Lincoln paper mills, of St. Catharines, was examined. The witness declared that the price of newspaper print had been fixed at $2 50 per one hundred pounds on account of advance in raw material. The pricse, witness claimed, would have advanced independently of the Paper Makers' Association as a result of the increased demand, and he denied tht there was any combine among the paper makers.

When the first downpour of rain struck the city today it was accompanied by thunder and a fair speed gale, which soon reduced the temperature 15 degrees. The humidity made the air so sultry, however, that the great reduction was not perceptible to the extent which most people would imagine.

THE FALL IN TEMPERATURE. At 12:30 p.m. the temperature regisered 24 degrees, and half an hour later t had dropped 2 degrees. Then it continued to fall as the rain and wind appeared, and at 3 p.m. it registered only 76 degrees. By 4 o'clock, however, a rise of four degrees was noted. An hour later the temperature dropped back one point. Then it went forward again, and at 5 p.m. it was 77 degrees; at 6 o'clock 78, and at 7 p.m., 79.

DAMAGE DONE BY WIND. The wind and lightning which accompanied the rain did considerable damage in the city, especially out toward Harlem. Many trees, awnings and buildings were injured, but up to 10 o'clock no human casualties had been reported. WEDNESDAY'S FATALITIES. There were 89 deaths and 107 cases heat prostrations in the boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx during the hours between 2 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. A rainfall in Brooklyn this afternoon brought some relief to the inhabitants, but there was a noticeable increase today in deaths, due to heat. Since June 28, when the hot wave came, up to 1 p.m. today there were 150 fatal heat cases reported.

Five hundred employes of the street cleaning department are reported ill from the effects of the hot weather and almost the entire 500 men employed at the navy yard stopped work in less than an hour after they started this

Among the others present were the Earl of Derby and Mr. Burdett-Coutts.

Sir Louis Davies, in his speech at the Dominion Day banquet, saia: "Reciprocity of action is such that there is no distrust, fear or danger between the colonies and the empire today. Our tie may only be silken, but it is stronger than an iron chain. The empire's king is our king, the empire's flag is our flag, and we are as proud of both as you are.

"The Canada of today is not the Canada of fifteen years ago. Emigration is now flowing from the United States into Canada, instead of from Canada to the United States. There was a time when certain people thought Canada could be forced into relations with the United States; that time, thank God, has gone by, and the time to talk annexation has gone by.

"Today our faith is pinned to the flag, and our material prosperity lies that way also. We recognized the cause in South Africa was a righteous cause."

The Earls of Derby and Aberdeen also spoke.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Ottawa, Ont., July 4.-The militia department is making elaborate arrangements for the military celebration at Toronto on the occasion of the visit of the Duke of Cornwall and York. It has been practically settled that every city corps in Ontario will be mobilized for the occasion. It is understood that the governorgeneral has sent to the general officers commanding a statement of military requirements for the visit of the Duke of Cornwall, and that they involve the furnishing of a cavalry escort guard of horse and artillery salutes at all points where there are receptions to the royal party. This may involve considerable shifting of cavalry. It is stated that in Ontario and Quebec there may be only two large military demonstrations, one at each capital,

Early this (Wednesday) morning word was received in town that there was considerable shooting going on at Smuggler at 5 o'clock, and many rumors were afloat. The trouble is only a part of the strike trouble which has been brewing for some time. The first rumor to reach town was that eight or ten had been killed, but this proved not to be true. However, it is positive that Will Jordan was shot in the right hip; Charles Becker, super-intendent of the mine, had his right arm broken and badly shattered by a shot: J. Some time today one of the cabins near the postoffice building was blown up, but it is impossible to say what damage was done. The Liberty Bell miners have practically all gone out in sympathy, and this property is nearly idle in the way of active operations. Miners were seen coming over the range from the Ouray and Silverton sides, and it is reported that the Camp Bird and Revenue mines are also out in sympathy, but as to these proper-ties the reports cannot be verified. Why Beauty Fades

and Sufferings Come

Real beauty is rare. It belongs to perfect health. Just as soon as the blood gets thin and watery and the nerves become exhausted beauty fades, wrinkles show themselves, the beautiful curves give way to leanness and angles. Nervousness quickly destroys beauty of face and form. The female organism becomes deranged and there are sufferings almost unbearable at the monthly periods. Too often women come to believe these mysterious pains and aches a part of their existence. They fail to realize that by keeping the blood and nerves in perfect health they can preserve youth and beauty

The customs collections for the Port of Windsor show a marked increase for the fiscal year ending June 30 over the corresponding period last year. For the year ending June 30, 1901, the total receipts were $414,799 89, and for the previous year $367,861 90, an increase of $46,647 99. The receipts for the month of June, 1901, were $37,435 71.

Mr. John Frank, a well known resident of Onondaga, met death in a shocking manner on Monday. He and several other men were pitching hay in the field, and about midday the heat became excessive. At this time, Mr. Frank was on top of a load of hay, while the others were pitchig to him. Suddenly, overcome by the heat, he was seen to sway from side to side, drop his pitchfork, and slip from the load. In his descent he made a half-turn and alighted on his head, with fatal results. His comrades made every effort to catch him as he was falling, but in this they were unsucessful. Medical aid, was at once summoned, but the unfortunate man was dead, his neck having been broken.

The death occurred yesterday morning of B. J. Conway, sub-collector of inland revenue in Leamington. After an unremitting search for five days the body of Charles Malone, of Belle River, was found on Sunday afternoon by Capt. Conrod Branchette and a party of Belle River men, floating in Lake St. Clair three miles out from the Rourke line road. The body was free from marks, and as there is nothing to indicate foul play, the coroner does not consider an inquest necessary.

TRIMMING NAILS OF A LIONESS!

Fierce Struggle in the Park Zoo to Benefit Blind Alice.

Her Claws Had Grown Into Her Fore Feet and It Was Necessary to Clip Them-She Chewed the Iron Bars in Her Pain and Broke Her Teeth.

[New York Sun.] Alice, the blind lioness in the Central Park menagerie, had six ingrown toetails cut off yesterday afternoon. The operation was a painful one to everybody concerned, and incidentally it led to the breaking of the fangs in Alice's powerful lower jaw.

She is the oldest inhabitant in the rapid calculation. lion house, her probable age being reckoned at 25 years, which is very old for a member of the feline race in captivity. Collapse generally comes at 20. Kerr, She has belonged to the menagerie for ten years, and has been practically blind in both eyes for the greater part of that period. The keepers regard her as a "good" animal, which very relative idea implies little more than that she abstains from vain efforts to hurt any one she can reach.

For some time Alice has displayed a restiveness uncommon in her and has also limped so much as to make the keepers think that she had hurt one of her fore feet. But when a lioness gets into some kind of trouble she is not like a human being. Medicine and doctors form no part of her limited stock of ideas, and the worse her pain grows the more she hates to have any one come near her. Nor is the examination of a distressed lioness such an easy matter that those in charge of her undertake it unnecessarily. Alice might have had to suffer without relief for a ong time to come had not one of the ingrown nails caused a festering wound. That gave Director Smith, of he menagerie, the excuse he needed. The lion house was closed at 4:30 clock yesterday afternoon. Director Smith acted as superintendent; Keepers Snyder and Shannon performed the actual operation, and the main force needed to make Alice submit to it was furnished by two more keepers and as many policemen. Snyder crawled up on top of the cage to begin with, armed with a noose made of a rope an inch thick. Alice could not see the noose, but her sense of touch was fine. The slightest contact with the rope made her jump as if it had been fire. Fin-ally, however, while trying to dodge under the noose, she poked her head right into it. But that was not enough. The noose had to be put over one of her shoulders and behind the corresponding foreleg, or the animal would have strangled to death when they tried to pull her off her feet. Alice was pretty well aroused by that time. Her efforts to get free from the noose included every kind of movement from a circular run around the tree trunk in the middle of the cage up to regular somersaults. Her incessant, angry growling, which grew louder as her temper went up, sent some of the other animals into a fury. They seemed to know that something was up the moment the doors were closed at that early hour, and it was interesting before the struggle to capture Alice began to see every one of them sitting down as close to the front of the cares as possible, with craned necks and eyes that blazed questions. When Alice's voice began to rise in angry protest the tigers, the puma and the black panthers at once lost all interest in the proceedings. They went about their usual business of doing nothing, just as if they wanted to say: What's that to us? It isn't one of ours." The other lions, on the other hand, began to run up and down their cages, lashing their flanks with their tails and roaring until the house quivered and it became difficult for the little groups of men on the inside to believe that they were not in danger

There was just the same fuss in the

niddle of the night a few weeks ago,

when another lioness bore three cubs. The first faint cry of the cubs turned every lion in the house crazy, and they kept it up till the night watchman lost his wits and ran into the Arsenal police station screaming, "Help! Help! All the bastes ar-re after me!' By stirring it with a long rake Sny der finally got the noose over Alice's left foreleg in the position he wanted. A long pull and a strong pull and a pull altogether followed. It took the whole strength of the seven men, including Snyder, who had come down from the cage, to drag the lioness against the front bars of the cage. More than once it looked as if she would break away again. The claws of her hind feet cut deep grooves in the wooden floor. The rope cracked ominously, but did not break, and at last the animal lay prostrate just inside the bars Not that she gave up her struggles for a moment, but she was so tied down hat it became impossible for her to her full strength. The next move was to get her front paws out through the narrow opening below the bars on the front of the cage. Each paw was then secured with a lighter rope.

Even then Alice was strong enough at times almost to pull the men who held the ropes across the railing running along the front of the cages. When Director Smith finally was able to examine Alice's paws he discovered that three nails on each forefoot had grown so long that they had turned, and the points were growing into the pads, two of them so far that it was difficult to tell where the root of the claw was and where its point. The animal must have suffered terribly for a long time. Mr. Smith estimated that the trouble must have begun years ago and that for years the lioness had been unable to draw the claws back into their sheaths. A whole inch or more had to be cut off on each of the six nails. A pair of shears such as tinsmiths use were applied by Snyder with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and all possible precaution, but the convulit hurt very much. Pain and anger and fear maddened her until she actually tried to bite the solid iron bars against which her head was pressed. Her teeth closed about them time and again and wrenched and chewed until the ivory, but not the steel, cracked and broke into fragments, and blood began to

The men who had held the ropes looked as if they had been dipped in hot water. The insides of their hands were blistered and in-flamed. Everyone, and Director Smith not the least, felt happy that it was

We have just received from the principal of the above institution a report of the regular yearly examinations for gold and silver medals, which have just been completed, and the following is the result: Wm. C. Campbell, of Wingham, is the winner of the gold medal for general proficiency in the business department. He is also winner of the gold medal for mathematics. Herman Jenner, of Charing Cross, wins the silver medal for second highest standing for general proficiency in this department. Ed. Wells wins the silver medal for the best penmanship, and also wins another silver medal for the best set of books. T. S. Parkinson, of Thedford, wins the silver medal given for

In the shorthand department Miss Ella White, of Blenheim, was successful in carrying off the gold medal for general proficiency. Miss Margaret M. Kerr, of Chatham, won the silver medal for second highest standing, also the silver medal given for the highest speed in typewriting from dictation. Miss Kerr's speed was at the rate of nearly 70 words per minute, and when it is taken into account that the test lasted for five minutes, and that it was continuous matter with words occurring in it, the test was certainly a creditable one. Another feature in connection with Miss Kerr's work worthy of special mention is the fact that on one of her tests she made a transcription of her notes at the rate of 30 words per minute. The gold medal for touch typewriting was won by Miss Flo. Surby, of Chatham. The contest for the medals this year was one of the best in the history of the college. In no case was there any certainty as to who would be the winner until the last examination was taken and the results known. Special mention should be made of the many fine penmen in the senior class, and it is felt that their work would compare with that of the pupils of any other school of the kind on the continent. The principal has always prided himself on the work of this subject, but he feels that this year's class, as a whole, has done the school more credit than any previous class. The mail course work in shorthand, bookkeeping and penmanship has now become a marked feature in the work of the institution, and is meeting with excellent success. Many students have been carried over the entire theory course without ever being inside of the institution, until after that part of the course was completed. Speed and accuracy in figures is another feature which holds a high place in the work of the institution. R. A. Scott, of Preston, gave some results in rapid addition which are worthy of special mention. He added 27 columns of 20 figures each in five minutes, and without an error. T. S. Parkinson, who won the medal on the combined subjects in rapid calculation, added a greater number of columns than Mr. Scott, but had only an equal number

This school has always had an excellent reputation for superior work, of the severity of the tests to which the students are put when it is known that in the business department there are 20 different examination papers to write on, and in the shorthand department 14, and in no case is the student allowed to take less than 75 per cent. while in some subjects as high as 90 per cent is required.

The principal states that many of the pupils who are finishing their work and a number who have not yet finished, have already secured positions. Three have already made arrangements for taking positions in business schools for the September opening, and no doubt many other positions of this kind will be filled during the next two months. The Canada Business College has won an enviable reputation for supplying teachers for other business schools, and the supply is not at all equal to the demand made upon the college yearly for this kind of

The principal reports that the past year has been in every way one of the most successful and satisfactory in the history of the institution, and the prospects for the September opening are brighter than ever. The school has just completed its 25th scholastic year without change of management during serving of the best patronage.

All for Love.

From Tit-Bits.

It was a runaway match. The oung couple had nothing to live on but love, and they grew thin on it, for the butcher, baker, etc., heartlessly refused to barter any of the necessaries of life for a bit of love; and the landlady wouldn't even accept a large slice of it for rent. At last they were reduced to such extremities that starvation stared them in the face. When starvation does this it, so to say, "puts you out of countenance."

Horses and the Grip.

[Chicago Tribune.]

More than fifty thousand horses in New York City are disabled by a disease which the veterinary surgeons say is the grip. The symptoms are the same as those shown by human beings with that disease, including the sud-denness of the attack and the subsequent weakness and collapse. The percentage of deaths among the horses also appears to be about the same as that among people when the grip first appeared in its virulent form. The greatest loss to the owners of horses is caused by the inability of the animals to work during the week or two in which the disease runs its

The epidemic has now spread to the horses of Long Island, and it is believed that within a week it will be all over New Jersey and New York State. There is reason to expect that it will work its way westward and southward until it has swept over the whole country, as was the case with the epi-zootic in 1872. If it do s it will bring some loss to people with horses in Chicago, but it cannot create the widespread inconvenience inflicted by epidemic twenty - nine years ago. At that time Chicago was a city of horse cars. Now its traction system except for a few blocks in the business district. An epidemic of equine grip might come and go without troubling the patrons of the street cars. teamsters, delivery men, and cab drivers would be most seriously affected. Such an epidemic would create great demand for automobiles and would do more to introduce such vehicles than almost anything else that could happen. Automobile manufac-turers, as well as horse-owners may well watch the westward progress of the Manhattan epidemic with lively interest. The former should be prepared for a sharp demand for their goods. The latter should be ready to ment to anyone on receipt of two stamps. All correspondence strictly confidential.

THE GERM OF TETANUS

Scientists Say It Is the Deadliest of All Microbes.

Live for Centuries in Soil and Old Buildings-No Cure for Lockjaw-New York's Health Board Campaign.

[Washington Evening Star.] The New York health board is engaged in a siege of what it states officially to be the most deadly disease known to man, i. e., lockjaw. The public attitude toward this disease is that it is a dreaded bugaboo, the realization of which is seldom manifested in real life. But it is not generally known that one department of the health board directs its energy nothing else than the prevention of the malady in animals; that Bellevue Hospital always has at least one human patient doomed to death because of the disease; that no animal ever got well of it; that no human being ever got well of its acute form; that there is no cure for it once its symptoms have strongly manifested themselves; that the microbe of tetanus lurks liter ally everywhere and that any person may contract the disease and have it some time without knowing it. For the peculiarity of this deadliest germs is that, having once entered the body on the point of a rusty nail or otherwise, it will incubate and quietly poison the whole blood and nervous system before it is even felt by its unfortunate host, and that the symptoms which then suddenly manifest themselves are really not the beginning of the disease, but the beginning of the death struggle of the sufferer The lockjaw microbe is the microbe of dirt, and hence with the disappearance of snow from the ground and throughout the spring of the year, every person is liable to take it into the system with any accidental cut or bruise It is a disease of the spring and summer, the mortality of which is greatest about the fourth of July, hence the present activity of the health board. In view of the facts, therefore, one of the leading physicians of the department was asked to describe the malady, to tell how it was contracted, where it is found most prevalent and what is being done to offset its terrible effects. In reply, he wrote the following graphic, not to say appalling, account: NO PERSON IMMUNE. "Of all the dangers that lurk unseen in the pathways of mankind, tetanus or lockjaw is the most to be dreaded. For late investigations show that no person is immune from it; that the prince or the pauper; the stay-at-home, or the gad-about, may become suddenly inocculated with equal facility; that it lurks in the dust of cities, in the soil on the farm, in the mortar of ancestral homes, in hay dust, in barracks and hospitals, in spider webs, in the water of the Dead Sea; that age does not kill it, cold does not destroy it, and even from heat that will kill most germs it emerges phoenix-like to continue its work of destruction. Unlike diphtheria and other forms of toxic poisoning, the symptoms of which become apparent immediately the disease is acquired, the bacillus of lockjaw propagates un detected in the body until the original wound through which it entered has entirely healed, and perhaps has been forgotten; after which it suddenly reveals its presence and the horrible result of its toxic propensity with viruience that will be appreciated when it is pointed out that compared with the dry venom of the cobra (the deadliest of snakes) the tetanus bacillus is over 175 times more poisonous; that it is 2,000 times more poisonous of the earth inhabited by man.

than prussic acid, 2,500 times more poisonous that strychnine and 5,000 times more poisonous than atrophine. "That geographical distribution of tetanus is limited only to those parts other words, it is found everywhere. But there are some spots where lurks with particular persistence. New York city seems to be the center of the lockjaw district. The bacilli have been found in the street dirt of Manhattan and also in the dust from Long Island and New Jersey. Dr. Williams, of the New York health department, twice obtained them from the air of the city. Yet this is not startling in view of its prevalence in other parts of the world. The Hudson River Valley is full of it. That is to say, the microbe lurks in the soil. The same condition pertains to southern Pennsylvania, to Virginia in and the wear of motherhood with duties superadded which were never dreamed of in Grandma's day. As a natural result she's worn out when she ought to be in the full beauty of mature womanhood Women who would preserve their health and strength should guard the delicate womanly organs. When these are diseased the whole body suffers loss of strength and beauty. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the diseases that weaken women. Inflammation, ulceration and female weakness promptly yield to the power of this great remedy. "I had been a great sufferer from female weak-ness for about two years," writes Mrs. Emma Richardson, of Goss. Wayne Co., Ky., "Could not do my work part of the time. I took four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and felt as well as I ever did."

gia around Savannah, which had a reputation for lockjaw as long ago as 1776, to Southern Louisiana, to Illinois and southern California. As a globe trotter the germs have followed in the wake of the armies of the world, and after all great battles there have been outbreak. Following Napoleon's campaigns in Italy and France there was great mortality from lockjaw; there were scores of cases after the battle of Waterloo. The retreat from Moscow, however, was followed by very few cases. Perhaps because in the winter, the snow-covered ground did not give the opportunity for the wounds to be infected with the soil. Our own Gettysburg was followed by an outbreak of the disease. So all battlefields are sure to hold the germ waiting to spring into active life. All tropical countries are ridden with the germs. India is particularly notable. One physician in Bombay personally witnessed 1,955 cases in five years. Our acquisition of Cuba has brought us a new heritage of the poison, for hundreds of cases of tetanus occur in Havana every year.

"All parts of the world harbor the microbe of tetanus, and this microbe exists under all conditions waiting for a lodgment in the human body. As it is in the air, you may swallow it. But fortunately for mankind the digestive process of the alimentary tract will overcome it. A wound on any part of the body may give entrance to the bacilli if the wounded part be allowed to come in contact with the earth. This pertains to deep earth cuttings as well as surface cuttings, for the bacillus is a common inhabitant of the soil even at depths of seven feet. Hence the countrymen who receive any kind of a cut in which dirt has entered will do well to have it attended to at once, for once allow the germ to grow, the rapidity with which operates is remarkable. the poison Roux and Vaillard injected a fatal dose of tetanus poison into the middle part of the tails of several rats. After varying lengths of time the tails of the rats were cut off. In every case where the cutting off of the tail was delayed longer than 40 minutes the animal died. Edmund Rose says that no one ought to eat fruit picked from the ground in an orchard without thoroughly washing it, because the earth clinging to such fruit may contain tetanus germs which might find lodgment in some unhealed tooth socket in the jaw. "The savages of the New Hebrides were familiar with the operation of lockjaw poison, for this is the poison they used on their arrow points, obtaining it from the slime that lined the crab-holes in swamps. Probably these savages knew that the poison might be swallowed with more or less impunity, but its presence in a festering opening, such as an arrow wound leaves, would cause horrible death in a few days. The curious property of the poison is that it needs germs themselves, that cause fatal results. You might inject into the body fact, this was done to guinea pigs and it proved harmless, because the white blood cells-the policemen of the circulatory system—rapidly absorbed them, ate them bodily, and so prevented them generating more poison. But when even non-pathogenic organisms were injected with the tetanus bacilli. or when there was a previous bruise of the tissues or when the bacilli were protected by an injection of agar jelly or any other substance which prevented the white blood cells from attacking them, then the injection always proved fatal. So it will be seen that a mixed infection is necessary for tetanus to develop.

LIKES EXTRAORDINARY HEAT. "The bacillus of tetanus is a slender rod usually occurring singly. It will not grow at a temperature below 14 degrees centigrade. It will thrive at 20 degrees centigrade, and likes best the ordinary temperature of the human body. It will not live in the presence of oxygen, which, by the way, is an important fact, from a medical standpoint. Unlike some other germs t does not speed through the body after having once entered it, but remains in the wound through which it entered. The poison it makes, however, rapidly traverses the blood and even the nervous system, those muscles nearest the wound, however, being soonest affected. It affects the body in a manner similar to strychnine, but beyond this general declaration there is very little to be said concerning its action. Whatever it is there can be no doubt of the terrible virulence of the germ. Henrijean owned a splinter of wood which had caused lockjaw, and eleven years after the first accident he was able again to cause the disease by inoculating an animal with the same splinter. THE PREVENTIVES.

"Knockout drops, that is to say chloral, is one of the leading remedies for tetanus. Morphine and certain comides may also be used with good effect, but the anti-toxine treatment is the best preventive. Remember, I say preventive; there is no cure for the acute form of the disease. This is because the microbe usually gives sign of its presence in the body until the sufferer is thoroughly poisoned Suppose you tread upon a rusty nail or cut your foot, and dirt containing lockjaw microbes gets into the wound The wound, which may be slight, may heal up and even be forgotten, for the microbes must go through a period of incubation in itself, apparently puts the body to no inconvenience. This period of incubation may be short or long; it may be one day or one month. depending on the virulence of the microbes. If the period is long, say two weeks or a month, there is a chance for recovery, but woe to the man whose symptoms show themselves within a week after the accidental cut was which allowed the germs to enter his bedy. Nothing can save him. "His system is already poisoned and the twiching of his muscles is really the beginning of his death struggle. His face and neck muscles will presently stiffen and his features will take on the terrible 'sardonic grin.' He should be watched, for the spasm that will take him off may come so suddenly that big bedhim off may come so suddenly that there will not be time to reach his bedside from across the room before he will be dead. I had such a case recently in Bellevue. I was called to see a colored man who seemed to be suffer-ing from some malady. There was a cut in process of healing on his left examined the wound and heel. I found it literally alive with tetanus microbes. They had entered with the dirt that had got into the wound. I knew then that the man was doomed, and that in spite of his healthy appearance he might die at any moment. He was given chloral and other drugs and was made to sleep. I told the nurse to watch him constantly, for if he awakened during the night the mere act of swallowing might bring on the spasm. Well, during the night a noise awakened him. He looked around; the

"In fact, the chances of recovery are directly as the result of the incubation period. Speaking approximately, it may be said that a four-day incuba tion period is deadly; for eight days the mortality will be 96 per cent; for ten days, 80 per cent; fourteen days, 40 per cent, and so on. An ounce of prevention in this case is worth thousandth-weight of cure. If you receive an infected wound have antitoxine injected at once. Don't wait an instant. Here in the New York health department we have two horses which could not contract tetanus in the ordin ary manner. They furnish the anti-toxine serum. They are made immune by injecting into them small, harmless amounts of lockiaw poison, then gradually increasing the amount as the days go by until finally they can take a quart of the poison with impunity. From their blood, redrawn after they have become immune, we get the antitoxine serum, which is sent out in bottles and has a protective strength of one to several millions. "That is, one cubic contimeter of the serum will protect so many million grammes of animal against a fatal so that doctors have no trouble in ad- My bowels were very costive. serum is gradually gaining greater many doctors in tetanus localities administer serum to their patients in every case where wounds are even suspected of being infected. This should be done in this country, for after all the mortality of tetanus is frightful. Out of 1,222 war cases, 88.6 per cent prove fatal. Of 280 cases in time of peace 76 per cent prove fatal and it is a conservative estimate that at least 60 per cent of all cases result fatally. Many of the unfortunates die in from 24 to 36 hours after the first symptoms are noticed, so that the need vigorous measures, even the amputation of the wounded member if i

The Old Parent Land Is All Right.

We have heard a great deal of late about the immense strides, industrially and financially, that are being made by the United States. Happily, we are not interested to deny that the great republic is doing well; we regard it as of immense advantage alike to Great Britain and Canada that such is the case. With every ounce of added prosperity in the United States, a percentage of advantage to the rest of the world, particularly to the august mother of commerce, and to Canada as the nearest neigh-

This preamble grows out of a remarkable article by a scholarly English journalist, Mr. Harold Cox, in the North American Review for July. It is entitled "American Progress and British Commerce," and is in the way of reply to a rather spread-eagle paper by Mr. Charles R. Flint in a previous number of the magazine, on the industrial progress of the United States. "With that pride," says Mr. Harold Cox." no level-headed Englishman is likely to quarrel, even though the expression of it is, perhaps, a trifle overdone." To most people in England, the industrial development of the United States causes no surprise; the only wonder being that it was not sooner attained.

Consider for a moment, says Mr. Cox, the enormous advantages the United States has possessed. It has had control of a practically unlimited area of virgin soil, intersected by magnificent waterways. Its mineral wealth is of fabulous value, and is, for the most part, easily accessible. Its people, by the mere fact that they live in a new country, are largely freed from the tyranny of custom that in old countries everywhere impedes progress." Moreover, the American population is constantly recruited from the most alert elements of the various populations of Europe. They get some European ne'er-do-wells, but they also get the men of enterprise and ambition, who are willing to leave their homes on the chance of bettering their condition. "Thus the human conditions have conspired with the physical conditions to give the United States opportunities of progress such as no nation of the world ever enjoyed before;" and, in Mr. Cox's opinion, the United States would have overtaken England twenty years ago, if she had not deliberately hampered herself by an absurd fiscal system.

However, the United States has advanced and prospered, and prospered greatly. Are Englishmen appalled at American progress? "So far from be-Ing appalled at American progress, we are only pleased. The richer you grow, the more profitable will our trade with you become. The more you develop your industries, the better market will you offer to ours."

Mr. Cox says the leading men in the British iron and steel trade are not very seriously alarmed by the threats of the over-capitalized United States trusts. "During the past two years," he says, "British and German workshops have had more orders than they could dispose of. After all, there are only 24 hours in the day; and on this side of the Atlantic we have learnt that, in the long run, it pays best to keep the largest number of At your head, you bad old Hicks, these hours for sleep and recreation. British and German firms were, therefore, quite content that you should | Vote for the Colonel on Tuesday | elimination of the middleman, economies in production and distribution, take some of the orders they could not fulfill. It will not be so when business slackens. Competition will again become keen, and as far as can be gathered from the public utterances of British iron-masters, they are quite confident of the result."

Mr. Cox deals with the so-called balance of international trade. The balance of trade is almost always, in appearance, against Great Britain; that is, she seems to be buying more than she sells; therefore, cry the alarmists, she is becoming impoverished. But it is only in appearance. Within the last 50 years, the wealth of Great Britain has increased almost beyond computation; and yet "the balance of trade" appearance has been overwhelmingly against her.

"In the 47 years that have since elapsed, the gross, aggregate value of the imports into the United Kingdom has amounted to $75,220,000,000. That is what the world has sent us in the shape of corn and cotton and wine, wool and hides, butter and bacon and eggs, sugar and tea and coffee, tobacco and spirits, timber and metals, oils and petroleum, and a thousand other things, to feed our industries or to give pleasure to ourselves. What have we given in exchange? During the same period the gross aggregate exports from the United Kingdom have amounted to $58,650,000,000. Thus here is an apparent deficiency of $16,-570,000,000. If this were really a balance on the wrong side, even of Great Britain could not stand the strain. As for the idea that we pay for our imports in gold, ought to be sufficient to remark that years considerably more gold than we export. During the period from 1858 to 1900, our aggregate net imports of gold amounted to $780,000,000. That is the sum in solid gold which in 43 years dition to the enormous excess value of imported commodities. Adding the two figures together (although they do not cover quite the same period) we get a total of $17,350,000,000. explanation of this stupendous figure has already been given in advance. It represents, first, the profits made by merchants; secondly. freight earned, and insurance fees collected by British shipowners and underwriters; and, thirdly, the interest we receive for our abroad, after deduction has been made for the capital which we still continue to export.

The old parent land is all right! Within less than half a century, in spite of frequent reductions of taxation, the national revenue has enormously expanded, and the national debt has been greatly reduced. Within 40 years the incomes of the wellto-do classes have more than doubled, while the savings of the working classes have increased five-fold. The consumption of tea and sugar in a country is a fair criterion of the comfort of the masses. In Great Britain 40 years ago, the amount of tea consumed, per head of population, was a of sugar per head, 40 years ago, was 35 pounds; it is now 91 pounds!

Mr. Cox concludes his brilliant and reassuring article with a point of view that is both new and striking. One hears so much about old countries, as if the people also were all old, forgetting the perennial stream of youth that comes in carrying fresh energy for the battle: just as the visitor goes to old Rome, to see the relics of buildings famous thousands of years ago, but is astonished to observe, side by side with these, all the evidence of a modern go-ahead city. Great Britain is all right! Let us quote Mr. Cox's eloquent conclusion in full:

"One word in conclusion. In what is above written, England has been tries. Both in literary and typographic compared to the mature man, America to a sturdy youth. The analogy is useful from many aspects; but it is as anything of the kind ever issued apt to be misleading, if pressed too from a Canadian press. grown so accustomed to this analogy; was so much their habit to speak of England as the "old country," that they had worked themselves into the belief that England was beginning to suffer from senile decay. When, in 1897, Australians visited the old country in large numbers for the late Queen's jubilee, they expressed their astonishment at seeing on every hand the signs of eager enterprise and manly vigor. The truth is that, though a nation as an organism may grow old in years and rich in comfort, its tality will suffer no abatement, its mind will not falter, nor its hand tremble, so long as every year a new group of active youths and smiling maidens step upon the stage, to replace the old men and matrons who have done their day. There is no evidence that this perennial succession of eager adolescence to declining years is yet interrupted, or soon likely to be, either in which will never be forgotten. England or in the States. You may call us old, we may soon begin to retort that you are middle-aged; but, a thousand years ahead, there will still be boys and girls in both our countries, to fight new industrial battles. to face the new scientific problems, to carry on the race, and to laugh at the talk of decrepitude."

Our Socialist friend, Mr. Ashplant, at a recent meeting, referring to the fact that the Socialists had a candidate in the field, said, "If you want to develop your muscles, you must exercise them"; meaning that the Socialconsidered they had little chance of winning, but would cause the trouble of a poll anyway, as a bit of exercise. A high authority says there is a time for all things; and with the thermometer sizzling for all it is worth, the making of a purely unnecessary polling, solely as a bit of exercise, seems hardly in accord with the season for iced lemonades and orange phosphates. However, our Socialist friends may be merely assuming all this quietness of expectation; and it can do no harm, as a matter of ordinary prudence, for all Col. The Chicago Sunday Tribune devotes half a page to a symposium on Fourth of July celebrations, past and present: some people appear to entertain, that and the concensus of opinion, as expressed by its contributors, is that Two Hundred Central Illinois Em-England does not produce gold. As a moise is not essential to a display of a matter of fact we import in most patriotism. Prof. Francis W. Shepardson, of Chicago University, one of the writers in the symposium, admirably sums up the matter thus: "The we have acquired and absorbed, in ad- 'good days,' however, will not be the days of old, but rather those of the future, when patriotism will express itself in lofty thought, and when the narrow and the provincial will be forgotten in a more noble conception of the true grandeur of nations."

Catherine Waugh McCulloch, president of the Illinois Equal Suffrage Association, thinks the prevailing method of celebrating great national anniversaries is most injurious to the youth of the land. "Such a celebration as we have had in the past," she says, "and as we will have this year, teaches the boy that noise is patriotism. It teaches him a wrong idea of love for country. It teaches him that the one way to display love of country is to make a noise.

The patriotism that must be bolstered up by noise is but a poor variety at best. It savors more of the jingoism so often mistaken for patriotism. The problem of supplying city boys with an adequate substitute for firecrackers should not be a difficult one. In most instances a day in the country among the birds and flowers would cost less little over two and a half pounds; it than fireworks, and would be producis now nearly six pounds; the amount tice of far more healthful pleasure. It is on record that the boys who never saw firecrackers made less patriotic men than those who did. Bellamy vs. Trusts. [New York Journal.]

The vigorous opponents of Mr. Bellamy's plan of social regenerationamong whom, no doubt, the chief figures in the coal trust can be rankedcharge as one of the counts in their indictment of socialism that it would destroy individual enterprise; that by taking away from the individual the incentive which the hope of profit, power or advancement brings, all progress would be checked and race de-

But this is exactly what the trusts are doing—destroying individual enterprise by refusing it either opportunity or incentive. They are bringing upon the people all the possible evils of so-cialism while denying them any of its probable benefits. Important Ruling in Regard to G. T. R. Employes, Members of Provident Society.

On Tuesday, while the M. C. R. ticket agent, at Welland, was at dinner, some one pried open the till with an iron bar and stole $38 50 in cash and some blank coupon tickets, besides a letter to A. M. Ferguson, containing his pass on the T. H. and B. Newsboys are barred from the trains of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy. All other lines in Chicago are to follow this example. An official of the road said today: "The festive vender of said today: "The festive vender of peanuts, candies, and machine-mad books is henceforth shut out from the Burlington road. The contract with Riley D. Cronk, (who held the privilege for years, expired June 1, but he was given thirty days to close up

Two hundred employes of the Illinois Central Railway have been retired upon pensions. Their pensions will be based on their average monthly pay during the last ten years of their service, they being allowed monthly 1 per cent of this amount for each year of their total service. For example, if one of the men retired has been employed by the road for 40 years and his average pay for the last ten years has been $100 a month, his pension will be 40 per cent of $100, or $40 a month. The test of right to a pension is service with the company for least ten years. The age limit is fixed at 70 years, at which age all officers and employes must be retired. To carry out the pension scheme the company has provided a fund of $250, 000, and each year a sum not to exceed $100,000 will be set apart for the payment of the pension allowances for the year.

An important judgment has just been rendered by the court of review, sitting at Montreal, in the case of Ferguson vs. the Grand Trunk Railway Company. The plaintiff, who was an engineer in the employ of the defendant company, was injured at Richmond, while employed about his engine, and sued the company for $15,000 damages. A jury awarded the plaintiff $4,000 damages. The defendant pleaded, besides denying any fault on the part of the company, that, under the authority of certain statutes of the Dominion, 41 Vict., ch. 25, a fund or society had been established, known as the Grand Trunk Railway Insurance and Provident Society, the object of which was to provide for the payment of sick benefits or allowances to their employes, members of such society, in case of sickness or accident, and also an insurance payable to the legal representatives of any member in the event of death. It further pleaded that the plaintiff was member of that society at the date

The Resilia insole expands from outsole when foot is lifted.

It thus draws in fresh air, through a tiny valve in the heel, which locks it in.

When insole is borne upon, the air contained in the cross channels is then forced up around the stocking, through a row of perforations, under the hollow of the foot.

The valve works one way only.

It thus locks the air in, when foot is lifted, compelling it to circulate uparound the stocking, and out at the boot top.

Seventeen Hundred Freight-Handlers on Strike at St. Louis, Mo.

MEN'S DEMANDS ACCEDED TO. Trenton, N. J., July 3 .- The striking machinists today practically decided to call off the strike in this city, the American Bridge Company acceding to the men's demands, and the Mc-Kenzie machine works granting the men a nine-hour day. The bridge company men accepted all the propositions, and they are to resume work the first of the week. The Trenton Iron Company refused the demands of the machinist's union yesterday, and a strike was inaugurated there today. 1,700 MEN OUT.

St. Louis, Mo., July 3.—Striking freight handlers in the railroad yards at St. Louis now number 1,700 men. Of this number 600 are drivers of transfer wagons, who went out in sympathy with their fellow workmen. Not a wheel is moving around the freight sheds, and 3,000 freight cars are in position to be unloaded. Many of them are loaded with fruit, vegetables and other perishable goods.

Panic-Stricken Passengers Leap From the Deck of a Steamer—Rescued Later On.

New York, July 4.-In a squall, just as she was entering the harbor of South Norwalk, the Sound steamer Harlem was blown on the beach, her smoke-stack carried away, and her passengers thrown into such a panic that a number jumped overboard. The boat was coming up from New York, with Capt. Moses Wilson at the wheel. She carried a large number of Norwalk persons who were returning from a day in New York. The storm, which came up swiftly, drove the vessel broadside before the wind. All the passengers rushed out on deck in the pouring rain, and made a grab for lifepreservers. Capt. Wilson was powerless to control the vessel, and it was driven upon the Sound beach. minute after the vessel grounded bolt of lightning hit the smoke-stack and shivered it to pieces. Over 700 Nurses Presented With Decorations by the Queen-Sultan of Morocco's Costly Cameras.

London, July 4.- The split in the Liberal party is the one subject of discussion in political circles. Everyone recognizes that next Tuesday's meeting at the Reform Club will be charged with destiny. The fact that the meeting has been fixed for a date ten days earlier than that of the banquet to Mr. Asquith gives ground for the supposition that it has been carefully designed either to make the latter function impossible or else deprive it of any importance. In any case it is perfectly certain the meeting has not been called in the interests of the imperial

THE BRITISH NAVY.

During the debate today in the British House of Commons on the naval estimates, the cabinet ministers were heckled on all sides regarding the condition of the navy. Members asserted that the British Mediterranean fleet was specially inadequate to meet the ing that it was undermanned and un-especially with modern guns; that it lacked colliers, and the coal depots were all exposed to an enemy's fire. The members generally predicted that in case of war the admiralty would break down as completely as the war office did. H. O. Arnoid-Foster, secretary of the admiralty, in replying, referred to the great demand on the admiralty for services in South Africa and and promised to strengthen the Mediterranean fleet when new battleships were available and to add to the fleet cruisers and torpedo boat destrovers. It is stated that Rear Admiral Lord Charles Beresford is desirous of resigning command of the Mediterranean squadron next February, in order to be free to criticise the government's naval and military policy and its administration of affairs in general.

THIS WEEK'S BILL AT SPRINGBANK.

Excellence of the Entertainment and Delights of the Trip Tempt Many Londoners to Riverside Park

The delights of Springbank ten many of London's citizens to comfort these hot afternoons evenings at the beautiful rive Not only have they the pleasure of the trolley ride along the river and through cool, odorous stretches of woodland, but at the park itself they have the opportunity of seeing as goo a vaudeville entertainment as is pro vided at any summer park in the country. The amusement stand and seats erected by the street railway company furnish the means of wit nessing the performances without any of the fatigue and discomfort which was necessary last year. This week the bill is an exceptionally good one. It is opened by Daly, the Irish comedian, in comic songs and jigs. Winchester follows, in an amusing monlogue, being joined later by Winchester in a laughable sketch. They then give an exhibition of expert snare drumming, and Mrs. Win-chester closes their act by the pleasing rendition of several sacred and sen timental songs. The last act on the bill is that of Winton, the English ventriloquist, who, with the assistance of his five dummies, keeps his audience roaring with laughter for over half an hour. The Musical Society orchestra furnishes music. Altogether the excellence of the entertainment makes the trip to Springbank w worth taking. The performance continue every night this week, w Saturday matinee.

SOCIALIST MEETING.

A meeting was held at Queen's Park last evening by the Socialist Labor Party, in the interests of Mr. Fred J. Darch, the Socialist candidate in the coming bye-election. The chair was occupied by Mr. Zacariah Pickworth, and among the speakers were Messrs. Fred Hazelgrove, H. B. Ashplant, Fred Appleton and Darch. The objects of the party were outlined as the "Emancipation of the workers from existing conditions brought about by capitalist administration of public affairs." The various speakers attacked Col. Leys as an enemy of the work-ingman. In dealing with the question as to why the Socialists had a candidate in the field, Mr. Ashplant referred to the truism that "if you want of the marked that is a defended and proving splendidly, were loudly applauded along the course, But their reception was quite eclipsed by that given to the Americans, as, a few minutes later, they followed. The courses limit he style of the two crews, whom every-body expected to see fight out in the final heats, was more marked than ever. There was only five minutes 'difference between the two races, and no sooner had Umpire Willan sent the Leanders and Belgians off, than Umpire Pitman's launch took its place to start the Americans and the Thames crew.

There was a capital start, and the Pennsylvanians had three-fourths of a length lead before the top of the island was reached. They rowed eleven strokes in the first quarter, 22 in the first half, and 41 during the first minute. A PATRIOTIC ADDRESS.

The sixteenth triennial convention of the American Instructors of the Deaf was held at Buffalo on Tuesday last. Mr. Robert Mathison, superintendent of the Belleville Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, and formerly bursar of the London Insane Asylum, responded to Canada in the following wants. No nation in Christendom can boast more evenly balanced governmental institutions than Canada. We are endowed with absolute freedom and legislative independence, and are the heirs of a constitution so workable adjusted, so democratic, being adjusted, so democratic, ter time. On one point they all agreed, and that was that tomorrow's meeting between the Leanders and the Americans will be a desperate race. The Leanders have greatly improved. They now pull well together, and today's race will do them further good. Well-Known Florists Change Their Place of Business.

Messrs. J. Gammage & Sons, the well-known Dundas street florists, have just moved into more commodious premises at 207 Dundas street, four doors west of their former stand. Their new store will be found to rank as one of the best-fitted and most convenient florist, stands in Canada, it being furnished with a fine conservatory at the rear. Messrs, Gammage & Sons have been making for themselves an enviable reputation as growers of choice blooms, as was evidenced by the successful showing made by them at the carnation show at the Pan-American Exposition. Their moving into larger and more suitable quarters is but another evidence of the progressive spirit which has contributed so largely to their past success, and they will be found in the future, as heretofore, ready to cater to the most exacting demands of the floral trade.

Another New Steamer-Comforts for Passengers.

The Franco-Canadian Line have secured the S.S. Garth Castle for their new service between Canada and France, and intend making the line second to none in the trans-Atlantic

Owing to the shortest sea route from Canada to Havre, the time occupied on the voyage will be the same as the fastest boats from New York. Next year the company will own a magnificent fleet of fast passenger and freight boats, which will reduce the actual time of the sea voyage to five days. These new boats will be equal in speed and capacity to the latest and best of any of the trans-Atlantic liners. Special attention will be given to supply all comforts that the most fastidious can desire, and the most luxurious furnishings that can be devised will be employed to make the sea voyage a genuine pleasure trip. The rates of passage are very low; in fact, a round trip to either Paris or fact, a round trip to either Paris or London can be made for $92 and $94 respectively, including wine served at all meals. TRAIN ROBBERS TOOK MUCH BOOTY

Hold-Up on the Great Northern Brough Them $83,000-$5,000 Reward Offered for Capture of Thieves.

Great Falls, Mont., July 3.-Train No. 3, westbound, on the Great Northern, was held up about 2 o'clock this afternoon at Wagner station, 196 miles east of this place, by three masked men, who blew open the express car, using dynamite, and secured the entire contents of the through express safe, estimated at $83,000.

"One of the robbers boarded the train a few miles from the scene of the hold-up. When the train reached the place where his confederates were lying in wait in a ravine alongside the track, he pulled the bell cord, and as the train slowed down jumped onto the engine and, presenting a rifle forced the fireman and engineer to abandon their engine.

As the passengers began to look out of the windows, a fusillade of shots swept alongside of the coaches and was continued for several minutes. Dynamite was quickly exploded in the express car, tearing the car to pieces, and the through safe was blasted open and its contents removed, after which and the robbers mounted good horses and rode away to the Bad Lands. A posse is in pursuit, but capture is improbable.

THE INJURED. Three passengers who ventured to look out of the windows in the day coach were struck by bullets, but not seriously Gertrude M. Smith, of Tomah, Wis., Gertrude M. LOCKED IN ICE BOX.

Hamilton, Ont., July 4.—Thomas Powers, proprietor of the Mansion Hotel, accidentally locked himself in a big refrigerator in the cellar of his hotel and nearly froze to death. The refrigerator was a new one, holding nearly a ton of ice, and he went inside to see if the door fitted tightly, and a spring lock fastened it. He kicked on the door for a long time, but no one heard him. Finally he got an oak strip in front of the ice box and forced the chor. He then fell in a faint and did not recover for several hours. CHAPTER I It was New Year's Eve; a blowing, blustering night with snow on the ground and snow falling—a regular old-fashioned New Year's Eve which some people wish would go out of fashion altogether. The whole county of Stalwartshire was clothed with the soft white mantle which made it beautiful though it greatly hindered any conveyances which might be trying to find landmarks in the glittering waste.

The avenue leading to Marchmont House, in the neighborhood of Goodborough, one of the largest and wealthiest manufacturing and commercial cities in England, was illuminated with Chinese lanterns, which, firmly fixed among the trees, shed an odd, variegated light upon the drive. Only for that distressing snow which would so provokingly spoil the effect, one might have imagined oneself in some strange land. A long string of carriages still lined the avenue, for Sir Edward Marchmont was giving a ball, and prouder (even his friends said) in the country, he was prouder of one great treasure he possessed than of all others, and looking at Andree Marchmont, his only daughter, we think there was some justice in that pride. It was hardly perhaps, her beauty which was so remarkable although she had more than a fair share of physical charms, but there was a wonderful charm and distinction about her which would have been attractive, and would have been

idea that Andree Marchmont was one of the loveliest creatures on earth. She wore a sweeping dress of maroon velvet, cut square, and made with an old-world simplicity and quaint fashion, which made her look as if she had stepped out of one of the old pictures lining the gallery through which the guests passed. Her ornaments consisted of a single diamond star gleaming at her throat, and one creamy rose lingering in the masses of her dark brown hair.

She was perfectly composed and gracethe masses of her dark brown hair.

She was perfectly composed and graceful, receiving her guests with a quiet dignity and high breeding, a calm and sangfroid unusual in a young girl; but at two-and-twenty Miss Marchmont had been the mistress of her father's house for four years, and no stately lady of twice her years could have surpassed her in courteous grace of manner. The guests filed in, pretty, fresh-looking girls, some debutantes in their blushing timidity, in all the flurry of the first ball-dress; hight-born maidens, with aquiline features and exquisite Parisian toilettes, some a little faded, perhaps—the ladies, features and exquisite Parisian toilettes, some a little faded, perhaps—the ladies, not dresses—all brilliant and sparkling; stately chaperones, in their darker costumes and gleaming jewels; bluff, country squires; officers from Goodborough, alert military, and dancing men—what a charming combination!—peers of the realm, judges, magistrates, barristers and a few of the rich merchant princes who evened fabulous fortunes and gargewho owned fabulous fortunes, and gorge-ous stuccoed mansions in the environs. They filed, through' the dainty ante-chamber, receiving a few words, a smile, an inclination of her graceful head from their hostess, and settled them-selves as they thought best among the cushioned fauteuils and seats. And the ladies fluttered their fans, and

"Yes, ma'am."

Andree ran lightly up the stairs to her dressing-room, and at the sight of the dainty costumes laid out for her the little shade which had gathered on her brow dispersed, and she set herself to the important business in hand with an alacrity which satisfied even that exacting personage, Madame Camile, herself.

"Come, then, mademoiselle must, in truth, hurry herself; she has given me but one little quarter of an hour, while Madame Clarence has been quite one hour and a half at her toilet, and she looks as charming as—as—as if I had dressed her myself," ended Camille, with characteristic vanity.

Andree laughed.

Andree laughed.

"See, I am quite at your orders, and hurry, Camille, Monsieur Hugh may come at any moment."

At this the maid swiftly and deftly took off the velvet dress, and laid the diamond star gleaming on their velvet and satin beds in Andree's jewel-case, and attired her mistress in a simple, gray dress, made in the Puritan style, crossed the little white handkerchief modestly over her bosom, gathered up the rich hair under the Puritan cap, and replaced the little satin slippers with neat black shoes. Surveying herself before the cheval-glass, Andree laughed merrily at the alteration the change of dress had made.

"For a number of years I have had kidney trouble and backache, so bad that in the morning I could hardly raise myself. A severe dragging pain would ratch me in the small of my back, and I had no apportise, and often suffered from severe etaches, and a general breaking down of the entire system was the result. thanks to Or. when a tap came at her door.

"Perhaps it is Hugh," she said, eagerly, turning from the mirror. "Open quickly, Camille."

Camille did so, and returned to say that Monsieur Hugh had come, and that he was waiting to see mademoiselle in the summer parlor at the foot of the secret stairs, as a second staircase, which led to the rooms chiefly used in summer, was called. At the foot were two tall figures, and for a moment Andree hesitated, and then her brother, a handsome young fellow three or four years her senior, with an exclamation, held out his arms.

"Is this Andree? I beg your pardon! Will Puritan maidens allow Cavaliers to kiss them. I am a staunch Royalist, Madame Priscilla!"

But Andree was in his arms greeting the prisoned adelight and a faction. granted.

Madame Priscilla!"
But Andree was in his arms greeting him with unfeigned delight and affection, and it was almost a minute before she recollected the other tall figure, who stood quietly with one arm leaning against the bannister.

Then she looked up, blushing a little, to meet the half amused, half admiring glance of a pair of keen, gray eyes, belonging to a singularly handsome man of about thirty, tall and well-built, with a stately presence, handsome features, longing to a singularly handsome man of about thirty, tall and well-built, with a stately presence, handsome features, and a heavy, silken, drooping moustache, which did considerable execution among the young ladies of the garrison towns where his regiment had been quartered. He, looking down, saw a face which by no means belied her brother's praises, or contradicted the likenesses Hugh Marchmont had shown him of his sister—a face far more charming even than he had expected to see, and one which once seen it would be very difficult to forget—a face full of wonderful posibilities of love and passion, happiness and sorrow, which would linger long in the memory—a face to haunt a man's life with endless regrets if he should love and lose it.

We, in this matter-of-fact nineteenth century, don't believe in love at first sight (even if we believe in love at all, which is doubtful), or we might be inclined to the belief that Douglass Lancaster fell in love with Andree Marchmont at first sight—that the old story was repeated:

"She looked up, and he looked down, And so they fell in love."

was repeated:

Whether that be so or not, I can vouch for one thing—that when these keen, gray eyes, shaded by thick, dark lashes, met those lustrous, velvety dark ones, Douglass Lancasted turned a shade paler, while Miss Marchmont crimsoned like a red, red rose, under her prim white cap.
"Andree," said her brother, "this is my friend, Douglass Lancaster; Douglass, my sister Andree."

The game was won by Struthers' team, by a score of 8 to 7, which makes the sixth victory, without a single defeat, for the wholesale team this season, a record which is certainly to be proud of as the wholesale team this season, a record which is certainly to be proud of, as they have competed against some of the strongest amateur teams in the city. The features of last night's game were the pitching of Glover for the St. John's A. C., and the brilliant fielding of the Woolley brothers for the same club. Struthers' team played a steady, uphill game, and won out by scientific batting in the last inning. Everybody present expected the St. John's team to win in the early part of the game, but the finish proved the great uncertainty of the game. Springbank will be the scene of the next game, when Struthers' team will meet D. S. Petrin & Co. next Saturday afternoon at Perrin & Co. next Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. YACHTING. THE INVADOR IS FAST.

Toronto, July 4.—The Canada Cup challengers, Invador, Beaver and Canadian, sailed the first two races for the cup trial series yesterday in a very light, three-mile wind from the southwest. The Invador so thoroughly outfooted her rivals that the judges decided that there was no use in again pitting the boats against each other, except in a wind of over twelve miles an hour. The course was one that the Invador was well adapted for, containing two reaches and a spinnaker run. In reaching Invador is believed by yachtsmen here to be the fastest boat ever seen on the lakes. On the run before the wind, however, the Beaver held her own pretty well against the new lenger. The wind today was too light to show the Canadian at her best, she drives through the water with the least sea on, and would probably do better in a stiff breeze. The work with the spinnakers was rather badly done by both the Invador and Canadian, and the crew of the challenger will have to be constantly drilled before they face the Americans. In the first race V. I. Hughes was skipper of the Invador, Dr. Garrate of the Beaver, and J. H. Fearneside of the Canadian. The course was a three-mile triangle. In the second race Invador led Canadian fifty-two seconds more astern. On the reach Invador gained fifty-five seconds more, and on the run home she took 19:01, to Beaver's 20:03 and Canadian's 25:00.

This afternoon the Capitols beat the Torontos of Toronto. The score was 3 to 2.

THE OAR. OPENING OF HENLEY REGATTA. Henley-on-Thames, July 4.-The Henley royal regatta opened yesterday formally, although, owing to the large number of entries for the Thames Challenge Cup, three heats in the contest for that trophy were rowed Tuesday afternoon, and were won by Trinity Hall, Cambridge; the School of Mines Rowing Club, and the Kingston Rowing Club. The regatta began under favorable conditions. The sun was bright and warm, and a cool breeze was blowing off the tow path. The attendance, however, does not equal expectations. Comparatively few American flags or prominent Americans were visible. The Pennsylvanians came down to the boathouse at 11:30 a.m. They all declared them-selves fit and confident. Leander, which was to meet New College at 12:35 p.m., went out for a spin, but Pennsylvanians did not embark the till they went to the starting point. "Bob" Cook, in his final summary of the Pennsylvanians' prospects, said: "No American crew was ever at Henley with better prospects. They are in splendid condition and confident. They will, in my opinion, meet Leander in the finals, when, I fear, the Englishmen will beat them." Stratford, July 4.—The crowd at the third and final day of the face meet here was very Small, notwithstanding that Wednesday afternoon is a half-holiday, and that there were no less than three local horses "going," which usually has a tendency to draw a good; attendance here. There were not more than 500 at the track yesterday, but they certainly saw some good horse racing. In the 2:27 pace, Westland won in three straights. This is the same horse that won the first race on the opening day under the name of Wesson, which was an error. Ray Golddust, a local horse, owned by Easson, of Stratford, developed good staying powers, getting second money. Cronje, another local horse, owned by Richard Alcheson, got third place, while Nellie Wilkes got fourth money. In the 2:20 trot Harry Wilkes, who was first choice with the bookies, won in three straights, Inferior Lily, second choice with the bookmakers, got third place, while Vivo, the unknown, got second place. In the half-mile run Fusiana, a badactor, which caused no end of trouble Tuesday, was drawn, which caused Starter Smith to heave a sigh of relief. Mamie Callin was a hot favorite with the crowd. She did too well the day before to run again yesterday. Abenita, a chestnut mare, owned by John Campbell, Cedar Springs, was the winner. The time for the half-mile was very fast, 560/2. Summaries:

CRICKET.

CANADIANS AT PHILADELPHIA Philadelphia, Pa., July 4.-The third of the four cricket matches arranged for the Canadians' tour opened here at noon yesterday on the Merion grounds against the Merion club, with teams of 12 men a side. The Quakers won the toss and decided to bat, and so good was their display that at 5:40 p.m., when play was stopped for the day by rain, they had scored 264 for the loss of only four wickets. TORONTO AT KINGSTON.

Kingston, July 4.—Toronto league team won yesterday from the Kingston Ponies by 9 to 5. Sullivan was in the box for the Ponies, and Bruce and around the first leg by a minute and Bannon for the visitors. ROADMASTER ROSE

Claims That There is Perfect Harmony Along His Division

"I claim now that there is no strike on my division," Roadmaster Rose, of the C. P. R., said to The Advertiser this morning. "Along my line, which extends from Woodstock to Windsor. there are 24 sections and each one has a foreman and three men. In some places where it is always a difficult matter to get men, we have not this number, but in other places we have extra trackmen. The work is being done in perfect harmony."

In reply to an inquiry, he said nearly all the old men have gone back, and others have been employed in places of the few who are still out. Of course, at this time of the year a man can easily get work and that made it a little difficult to supply all the places,

A New York paper says fewer brown straw hats are worn there than in almost any other city, and adds: "Absence of soft coal smoke is one suggested explanation of the prevalence of white straw." But New York people need not plume themselves on the supposition that they are the only ones who have ceased to wear the old-fashioned brown and black and spotted straw hats. Those hats have almost been forgotten, save in such cities as St. Louis and Cincinnati and a few small towns in Arkansas, where they are still worn by people who chew tobacco and expectorate in the Here in Chicago, for instance

The People Give Evidence.

HE wide-spread popularity and ever-increasing patronage accorded this store is evidence that the people appreciate our efforts to accommodate and to serve them-whether it be in the high noontide or in the cool of the evening. We are not here to dictate the time or hour to buy, we are here to serve the people when it is their pleasure to call on us. Our progressive business methods have commended us to the people and have earned for us a reputation that is a "Gibraltar" against onslaught. In all this we recognize the people's intelligence and shrewdness. When some people are "wandering aimlessly," this store is crowded with enthusiastic buyers. The center of attraction. The emporium of business activity. The people say yes.
