The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

National Library of Canada

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche sheet contains the symbol \rightarrow (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol ∇ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

Bibliothèque nationale du Canada

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole \rightarrow signifie "À SUIVRE", le symbole ∇ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

PLAIN FACTS FOR LAYMEN OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND

“Now, I beseech you, brethren, mark them which cause divisions . . . and avoid them.”—Ro. 16. 17.

“Art thou he that troubleth Israel? And he answered, I have not . . . but thou, and thy father’s house, in that ye have forsaken the commandments of the Lord, and thou hast followed the Baalim.”—1 Ki. 18. 17. 18. R. V.

“In those days there was no king in Israel: every man did that which was right in his own eyes.”—Judges 21. 25.

For years before the Reformation the people took no audible part in the public services of the Church. The sole share of the congregation was fittingly described as having “heard mass.” Two of the leading principles of the reformers were (a) to restore to the people their legitimate share in public worship, and (b) to prepare a book purified from Romish error which should give a uniform service for all congregations of the Church, in their own tongue. To effect this object the compilation known as the Book of Common Prayer was prepared and has been for over three centuries and a half the priceless heritage of the Church of England. It was a book of Common Prayer—to be used by all. It became the right of all members of the Church to have the worship conducted in their own tongue and in the manner prescribed in the book thus authorized. It was the Magna Charta of the members of the Church of England. It put an end to the many “uses,” as the varied forms of worship which then distracted the Church were called, and it became the privilege of every worshipper to demand that according to this book the services should be held. The “novellers” and “new-fanglers,” as such men were then, and as they may be now truly called, ceased to have the right to disturb the peace of congregations by “innovations” and “new-fangleness,” and thereby to worry and drive from the Parish Churches the “sober, peaceable, and truly conscientious sons of the Church of England.”

It is of vital moment to the members of the Church of England that they should clearly understand the absolute strength of the position in which they stand. It is much to be regretted that the explanations of their work given by Archbishop Cranmer and his coadjutors, which so generally preceded the published Prayer Book, are now so frequently omitted. These dealt with the “service of the Church;” the “ceremonies” thereof, the objects sought to be accomplished, why some matters were excluded and others included. An invaluable key to the whole work is here found, which, being furnished by the compilers, nought can better explain the aim, object, and meaning of the book. We commend the diligent study of this key to our readers, from which meantime we make the following citations:—

This quotation “concerning the service of the Church” opens the door to the evil therein to be remedied and to the mode of accomplishing it.

“Whereas heretofore there hath been great diversity in saying and singing in Churches within the realm; some following Salisbury use, some Hereford use, and some the use of Bangor, some of Yor! some of Lincoln; now from henceforth all the whole realm shall have but one use.”

These words as to the true object of “ceremonies” are pertinent:

“Our excessive multitude of ceremonies was so great and many of them so dark that they did more confound and darken than declare and set forth Christ’s benefit unto us.”

And the exhortation that we should “be more studious of unity and concord than of innovations and new-fangleness, which (as much as may be with true setting forth of Christ’s religion) is always to be eschewed.”

The fundamental principle on which the compilers dealt with the work must be diligently noted.

“Some be so new-fangled, that they would innovate

Plain Facts for Laymen of the Church of England.

all things, and so despise the old, that nothing can like them, but that is new; it was thought expedient not so much to have respect how to please and satisfy either of these parties as how to please God and profit them both.’’

The strength of the position of the Church of England in its opposition to the Ritualistic sect should be well weighed.

“And although the keeping or omitting of a ceremony, in itself considered, is but a small thing; yet the wilful and contemptuous transgression and breaking of a common order and discipline is no small offence before God, let all things be done among you, saith St. Paul, in a seemly and due order: the appointment of the which order pertaineth not to private men; therefore no man ought to take in hand nor presume to appoint or alter any public or common order in Christ’s Church except he be lawfully called and authorized thereunto.’’

Observe that what is now sought to be done so frequently in many of our Churches in the way of interference with the “common order” in the service of our Church, is “no small offence before God.”

And then the sweet reasonableness of these saintly martyrs in their aspirations, and the pious hope displayed by them, should deter reasonable and truly godly men from seeking to render vain the noble work which they accomplished.

Plain Facts for Laymen of the Church of England.

“Our general aim, therefore, in this undertaking was not to gratify this or that party in any their unreasonable demands; but to do that, which to our best understandings we conceived might most tend to the preservation of peace and unity in the Church; the procuring of reverence and exciting of piety and devotion in the public worship of God, and the cutting off occasion from them that seek occasion of cavil or quarrel against the liturgy of the Church.”

“Yet we have good hope that what is here presented and hath been by the convocation of both Provinces with great diligence examined and approved, will be also well accepted and approved by all sober, peaceable, and truly conscientious sons of the Church of England.”

What a cause of rejoicing would there be in our beloved Church if the innovators, who now endeavour to rend her asunder, would seek to come under the Divine benediction—“Blessed are the peacemakers for they shall be called the children of God”—and drop their weapons of rebellion and conform to lawful authority!

Let them cease this treason against our Church—put aside the lawlessness whereby “every man did that which was right in his own eyes”—conform to the regulations laid down and obeyed for centuries—and the peace which they drive away will return. Remember that these divisions are displeasing to our God. That the Holy Spirit is thereby grieved. His gracious presence is withdrawn, and the spiritual—the true work—of the Church fails to be carried on.

This evil springs from unwarranted acts and must be charged now, and when the final reckoning comes, to the account of those who occasion it.

It may well cause righteous indignation to hear such innovators coolly saying to the “sober, peaceable, and truly conscientious sons of the Church of England” who are seeking “peace and unity in the Church” and who are hearkening to the command,—“Thus saith the Lord, stand ye in the ways and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls,” “Oh, you must really not cause a division in our Church. We cannot have any “troublers of Israel” in our midst.” Let no member of the Church of England submit to be thus cajoled. As well might a band of conspirators, when the arm of the law reaches them—caught in the very act of treason—complain of a wrong being done them by the magistrate because he breaks up their unlawful meeting and exposes their treason to the public.

We have too long stood by and permitted without remonstrance the Ritualists to follow out the advice of Dr. Pusey to proceed quietly so as not to alarm—to let the innovations be steady but so gradual as not to arouse notice—until the education has so far proceeded that the conspirators are prepared to make an onward movement and possess the stronghold. We must see that this now ends.

It is well that our laymen should know the strength of their position and the reasonableness of the law in this matter. I therefore venture to give the following quotations from the judgment of the late Sir Alexander Cockburn when Chief Justice of England in the celebrated Clewer case:—

“It is the undoubted right of every inhabitant of every parish in the kingdom, desirous of frequenting the parish church, to have the services of the Church performed according to the ritual of the Church, as established by law, without having his religious sense shocked and outraged by the introduction of innovations not sanctioned by law or usage, and which may appear to him to be inconsistent with the simplicity of the Protestant worship and to pertain to a religion which he believes to be erroneous, and the ritual of which is not that of the Church of England.”

“In these questions of doctrine or ritual the laity are interested, and deeply interested, as well as the clergy.”

“It is the right of the laity, being members of the Church, to take part, under the ministration of the clergy, in the public worship, as well as to have the benefit of the various rites and services of the Church according to the ritual of the Church as by law ascertained and established. One of their most sacred and valued rights is infringed when they are driven to abandon their churches by the introduction of a ritual which is not that of the Church, and which appears to them to be an advance towards a religion which is not that of the Reformation."

Our rights being thus clearly defined; it then becomes our duty to see that they are religiously upheld. The onus of so doing is cast upon each member of the Church in each parish.

With that economy of truth which is one of the most striking and disgraceful features which mark the Ritualistic "plan of the campaign," we find many and diverse answers sought to be made to the truths set forth in the four preceding numbers of the "Anti-Ritualistic Series." These may be divided into three classes. One class affirms, notwithstanding the care taken, to demonstrate the existence of what is complained of—(a) that these innovations do not exist. Another—(b)—that they do exist and that it is right and proper that they should do so and that they will be continued. Another—(c)—goes further and states that they are found everywhere—that it is now too late to oppose, for virtually all adopt and like them, and that we cannot find even "seven thousand" that "have not bowed unto Baal."

Let us then proceed to deal with facts additional to those contained in Papers 1, 2, 3, and 4.

Plain Facts for Laymen of the Church of England.

We simply propose at present to call attention to two additional matters, the one, a circular distributed to the parishioners of St. Thomas Church, Toronto, and the other, a book presented by the then Rector, the now Provost of Trinity College, to the confirmation class of the Church of St. Simon, Toronto. In a future paper we shall deal more at large with the subject matter of these papers, and the reasons that members of the Church of England should earnestly object thereto. The St. Thomas circular is printed in full, and special attention is called to the following matters not warranted by our Book of Common Prayer—innovations which the members of this congregation are not bound to tolerate. It is sufficient for all law-abiding members of our Church to know that the Privy Council—our highest court of appeal in this matter—pronounces them “illegal.”

- (1) “The Procession of Palms.”
- (2) “High Celebration.”
- (3) “Corporate Communion of Altar Guild.”
- (4) “Confessions.”

As to the first, there is no warrant in the Church of England for this palm mummary. There is no liberty to outrage the feelings of Church people by the childish and ridiculous spectacle of the distribution of palms in the Churches. The whole of the beauty and solemnity of the events of the Sunday before Easter with their lofty lessons are made ridiculous by this apeing of the Church of Rome in the blessing and distribution of palm fans in the Church on this sacred day. Why not complete the picture and make it absolutely appropriate by placing the Parish Priest on a donkey and leading him at the head of the fan procession through the Church. Second: There is no permission for a "high celebration" in the Church of England. It is an unknown ceremony and again an apeing of the Church of Rome. Third: There is no warrant for "corporate communion of Altar Guild." No such ceremony is found in the Book of Common Prayer and no "Altar" as the centre of the service, and therefore it is excluded. Fourth: There is no warrant for "confessions" as a stated portion of the services of the Church of England. Such a public transgression of the rules of our Prayer Book, and such an unauthorized general invitation without the protection awarded to the penitent by the Church of Rome should be sternly resented, especially by all the respectable and modest female members of the Church.

I propose to deal more fully with these questions in a subsequent paper. I cannot, however, forbear inserting here some passages from an address delivered by the late Bishop Wilberforce—the typical High Churchman—to his Rural-Deans at Winchester House as to the doctrine which he said it is now sought to establish, viz.:

Plain Facts for Laymen of the Church of England.

“That private Confession of Sin before the Great High Priest is insufficient, and that without Confession to a Priest a man cannot be sure of pardon, and especially cannot draw near to God in the Holy Sacrament.”

“Now of this I will say this system of confession is one of the worst developments of Popery. In the first place, as regards the penitent, it is a system of unnatural excitement, a sort of spiritual dram-drinking, fraught with evil to the whole spiritual constitution. It is nothing short of the renunciation of a great charge of a conscience which God has committed to every man—the substitution of confession to man for the opening of the heart to God—the adopting in every case of a remedy only adapted to extreme cases which can find relief in no other way.”

“Then in families, it introduces untold mischief. It supersedes God’s appointment of intimacy between husband and wife; father and children; substituting another influence for that which ought to be the nearest and closest, and producing reserve and estrangement where there ought to be perfect freedom and openness.

“And lastly, as regards the person to whom confession is made, it brings in a wretched system of casuistry. But far worse than this, it necessitates the terrible evil of familiar dealing with sin, especially with sins of uncleanness, thereby sometimes extending to their growth by making the horrible particulars known to those who have hitherto been innocent of such fatal knowledge, and so poisoning the minds of priest and people alike. A letter which has of late been very painfully brought home to me."

In the meantime let us turn to

"Before the Throne."

This is a book which insidiously introduces the child to the "Altar"—the Real Presence of Christ in the elements—the worship to be accorded to it—the sacrificing priest—confession—penance—absolution by the Priest—prayers for the dead. What an admirable primer for Roman Catholic children! What an outrage to present it to the children of our reformed Church!

Mark well the pernicious "steps," "guides," "instructions," which these Jesuits in disguise use as the means of leading astray our children and whereby they seek to undermine the Church of England in order that it may fall into the arms of Rome. Under these circumstances it will be gratifying to all true members of our Church to find from the "Trinity University Year Book" for this year (1908), at page 61, that "the Divinity Class, however, numbers only sixteen, although there are many men both in the Arts Classes and the L. Th. course who will be coming up into it in the next few years."

“ fession) [at such a time] I have . . . (here “ follows the detailed confession), for these
“ and all my sins which I cannot now remember
“ and for those I know not of I am heartily
“ sorry, most humbly implore pardon of God,
“ and grace to amend, and of you my father I
“ ask for penance, counsel and absolution.”

Our people do not desire this teaching. It is treason to our Church. Its progress must be arrested. Let us pray and work. Let all members of the Church, men and women, young men and maidens, hear and obey the call of God, as good soldiers, to fight against these devices of Satan, which, if permitted, are fatal to our Church and dishonoring to our Lord and Master. May He make us “more than conquerors” in this Holy War.

Your faithful brother,

Vigil of St. Didymus, the Confessor.

CHURCHMAN.
