W. H. DUNBAR,
Wolfville, Nov. 14th, 1896.

"Be sure and get back before dark, Miry!" admonished her husband, leaning meditatively against the woodpile as he watched her kiss the children for good-bye.

"Shoo! Steve, I reckon you can put the babies to bed at right for once, can't you? It ain't often I get off, and when I do, I like to make a good day of it!"

"It ain't looking after the children that I'm thinking of, Miry, as you know right well!" replied Steve Buckler, earnestly. "But you know how thick the bears are on the mountain this year; and there is no manner of doubt that was a wolf brushed by me in the pasture night before last. It ain't safe for you to be coming up through the woods after dark all alone that way. Stay all night, if you find it getting late!"

"Oh, I ain't afraid!" averred Mrs. Buckler, stoutly. "I may get back afore dark; but if I don't I'll be careful to carry a light with me."

These confident words she flung back over her shoulder, as she started gaily down the rough woodland way.

Arriving in due time at the settlement in the valley, she did her errands, picked up the news, and richly enjoyed the rare luxury of a gossip. Time went all too quickly; and it was on the edge of dark ere she thought of starting for home. Then, of course, there were vehement protests. Her friends urged her to stay all night, picturing the perils of the journey, and representing that her husband would never dream of expecting her. But Mrs. Buckler, as her friends always said, was very "set." Putting aside all arguments, she started out on her long and lonely tramp.

She had little to carry, but that little was somewhat troublesome to a woman of her age.

But the torch, meanwhile, was burning low; and Mrs. Buckler, in her excitement, failed at first to notice this. She was holding the pine knot over her shoulder, as a sort of shield against her pursuer. When, with a shaking at the knee, she realized that it was on the point of flickering out, she tried hastily to light the other; and in the effort some of her treasured apples fell out of her apron and rolled behind her on the path.

As soon as the bear came to these apples he stopped and began devouring them with the keenest relish.

"Why!" thought Mrs. Buckler, with a great lightning of her head of terror; "it's not me he's after, but the sweet apples!" and straightway all her courage returned.

She paused and took time to light her new pine knot deliberately and well, then she hurried on, and it was some minutes before her pursuer was again at her heels.

And now, so sudden are the reversions of a woman's feelings, she was concerned only for the sweet apples. They were the children's apples; and it went sorely against her grain to let a bear have any of them. Not until she had some most uncomfortably close could she bring herself to again permit him; and then she doled out but three of the precious green globes, dropping them on the path behind her with slow reluctance.

"No!" declared Mrs. Buckler, firmly, "you ain't goin' to have another one!" and she fairly broke into a run. But when that heavy shambling gallop sounded close at her back, her resolution weakened, and she dropped a couple more out of her apron. While the moon glarified bear delayed to eat these, she rounded a turn of the road, and was gladdened by the sight of her own window glimmering some 200 yards in front.

Calling her husband's name two or three times at the top of her voice, till she saw him fling open the door and rush out to meet her, she hugged the remnant of the apples to her breast, flung her torch at the bear, and sped like a deer toward the house. Whether the bear followed her further or not she never knew. It certainly did not come near enough to the house for her husband to catch sight of it, for, as she flung herself into his arms, panting triumphantly, half-way between laughter and tears, he asked her what was the matter.

"Matter!" she cried indignantly. "That's just like a man, after all I've her journey. The sleepy neighbors were astonished at her appearance. They threatened to detain her by force when she refused their invitation to stay all night with them. But Mrs. Buckler was by this time a good deal "worked up" as the afterward expressed herself; and she treated their kind persuasions with scant courtesy. She almost ran from the house; but in her apron among the sweet apples she carried the extra pine torch, all the same.

To ward off unpleasant thoughts, she kept picturing in her mind the way the children would enjoy the apples in the morning. She also thought of the remonstrances, tempered with ill-concealed admiration, with which her husband would greet her return. Her blood quite glowed again as she thought of the lofty fashion in which she would make light of it all. Just at this moment she saw, in the middle of the path before her a large black bear, watching her curiously.

Her heart stood still, and she herself instantly followed this example. Then she reflected that she must appear calmly indifferent, if she would hope to escape. Slowly she moved forward again, waving her torch; and the bear, stopping out of the path, watched her steadily from among the underbrush as she went by. Then he stepped back into the path and followed her.

Her first and most natural impulse was to run like the wind for home, but this after one started leap forward, she checked with a mighty effort of her will. She walked on with swift but steady steps, watching the bear out of the corner of her eyes, but all the time clutched obstinately at her apronful of apples. The bear, very slowly, kept drawing closer and closer, bent upon attacking, but evidently deterred by dread of the torch.

But the torch, meanwhile, was burning low; and Mrs. Buckler, in her excitement, failed at first to notice this. She was holding the pine knot over her shoulder, as a sort of shield against her pursuer. When, with a shaking at the knee, she realized that it was on the point of flickering out, she tried hastily to light the other; and in the effort some of her treasured apples fell out of her apron and rolled behind her on the path.

"Matter!" she cried indignantly. "That's just like a man, after all I've gone through to get home!" And she pulled him violently into the house and slammed the door.

Steve Buckler was quite too judicious to remind her of the fact that he had urged her either to come home before dark, or else stay all night. He did not even let it appear in his face for an instant that he thought of such a thing. He listened to the story with all the breathless excitement he had anticipated, praised her bravery and resource, vowed to shoot the bear the next day, ate one of the sweet apples, and then being very sleepy, went to bed. But Mrs. Buckler, before she followed his example, proudly sucked several of the apples under the children's pillows.

Nervous Children.

Intelligent people are beginning to understand the importance of protecting the nervous system in infancy and the danger of a shock to childish nerves. As a rule, the more quiet a baby is kept during the first year of its life the better chance it has for a life of health and happiness. The fact that so large a proportion of the human family die in infancy is due largely to the folly of nurses and the ignorance of mothers. Overbright babies do not commend themselves to physicians, who know that the first year of a child's life should be spent largely in sleep. All efforts to arouse the dormant mind of the child at this period is attended with danger. The foolish practice of tossing a helpless baby in the air, while it screams both with affright and delight, is a most dangerous one. A physician with a large practice tells the story of a precociously bright child which showed evident delight when tossed in this way by a doting grandfather, who was accustomed to play with it in this way every evening. The child, combined with delight when the night's frolic was over, but one evening from this trembling it passed into a spasm, the first indication of one of those fatal brain diseases against which medical science is helpless. Nothing could be done but to wait until the little life had flown to a happier land.

Dwarf Trees.

The art of dwarfing trees, as practiced in Japan, is in reality simple and very easily understood, as it is based on one of the commonest principles of vegetable physiology. Anything which has a tendency to check or retard the flow of sap in trees naturally prevents the formation of new wood. This process of retarding wood growth is done in many ways. By pruning, to prevent leaves from forming and giving the tree health and vigor; by confining the roots in a small space, by withholding water, and by twisting the branches and by a half hundred other processes, all of which proceed from the same principle. When a tree has been chosen which is usually one that is naturally stunted, its main stem and roots are twisted in zigzag form, which process is intended to check the flow of sap. The pots in which they are planted are narrow and shallow, so that they hold a comparatively small quantity of soil compared with the wants of the plant, and so more water is given them than is necessary to sustain life. Nature generally struggles against this treatment, but eventually adapts itself to the new condition, and ere long the beautiful and curious dwarf tree of the Orient is produced.

Rheumatism Cured.

Eighteen Months Trying to Get Cured—Had the Best Doctors—He Found What He Wanted in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Goderich, Mar. 15 (Special)—A case of great interest here just now is that of Alexander J. Shackley who for some time has been an extreme sufferer from Rheumatism. His statement to the correspondent is as follows:

"For eighteen months I was a victim of Rheumatism and during the whole of that time was trying every means to cure it. I had the best doctors in Canada and took their prescriptions with faith and patience."

"I got tired at last for I found the disappointment nearly as killing as the disease."

"But one friend wiser than the others convinced me that my disease must be cured by way of the kidneys and recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills."

"I have used two boxes of these pills to effect a perfect cure and I don't care who knows it."

Like Pots in the Poultry Yard.

Bacteriology is a science that gives the greatest pleasure to students, and they are invariably keenly enthusiastic, says an English journal. To have a fine colony of diphtheria or cholera germs in a flourishing condition is a source of great pride to experts, and they inspect the various germ families in their possession with more than the pride of a poultry fancier making a round of his yard. Just now it is a very distinguished thing among bacteriologists to have specimens of the bubonic plague bacillus. Of course, they are expensive, and difficult—at present to obtain in England at all, while in the United States there is said to be only one man who has the bacilli. They may, of course, become as easily procurable as cholera or typhoid microbes, but that will not be yet; and many people will pray—never. It is not pleasant to think that a slight accident may result in the implanting of the bacteriologist's germs in the most fruitful soil, instead of their remaining in his laboratory to work out their destiny in the case of experimental diseases.

Household Hints.

Potted ferns will soon die if dirt is allowed to accumulate on them. An occasional syringing will keep them clean.

The oval table is generally better suited for decoration than the square. Three handled loving cups in cut glass afford a very effective receptacle for flowers.

China in white and gold always looks well. A variety of colors destroys the harmonious effect and renders the scheme undesirable.

Many removes from the primitive biscuit jars are luxurious modern affairs in cut glass, with silver gilt tops set with a miniature framed in jewels.

Old potatoes are greatly improved by being soaked in cold water over night, or at least several hours after peeling. The water should be changed once or twice.

With the growing demand for Marie Antoinette fashions those cloaks side pieces, said to be exact reproductions.

It is an unfortunate phase of human nature that a derogatory observation makes more impression than a word of praise, but a kind remark aptly spoken sometimes does a world of good at a critical juncture. And it is a pity it is not offered freely given.

On Friday evening Rev. J. S. Black, D. D., delivered a lecture in the Presbyterian church. His subject was "American Humor." He found that among our Southern cousins there has been and now is a spirit of true humor. The writings of Irving, Artemus Ward and Mark Twain gave examples of the points made by the lecturer. The lecture was much appreciated by a fair audience.

Mr John E. Palmer, of this town, has sold his farm to Mr S. S. Forrest, of Halifax. Mr Forrest's son will occupy the place, and will take possession shortly. He saw Mr Palmer's adv., and then went and purchased the farm. Does advertisement pay!

MURDER AT AVONPORT.

The intelligence that a murder had been committed at our very door startled the inhabitants of this town on Sunday evening last. Investigation of the rumor proved that it was only too true. Mr Oliver Fuller, an aged and respected citizen living alone on the back road leading from Wallbrook to Avonport, about five miles from Wolfville, was discovered on Sunday morning about nine o'clock to have been brutally murdered.

The crime was discovered by his nephew, Mr John R. Stewart, who was summoned by a neighbor of the old man who finding the door of the house locked and the blinds down became suspicious that something was wrong. They waited the dwelling and effecting an entrance through a window found the old man lying on the floor of his kitchen where he had been struck down with an axe while apparently in the act of kindling his fire to prepare dinner, on Saturday.

Coroner Hamilton summoned a jury and held an inquest in the afternoon when a verdict of wilful murder against persons unknown was rendered. Warrants were issued and a tramp named Miller was arrested on Monday by Policeman Toye and Constable Salfridge at New Minas and placed in Kentville jail.

Detective Power was summoned from Halifax and reached Avonport on Monday evening. On Tuesday Milton Connolly, a young man staying near the scene of the tragedy was arrested. He was seen near Fuller's place on the day of the murder.

The greatest excitement exists throughout the county and the news that the guilty party has been brought to justice would be gladly heard. No motive can be assigned for the horrible act as Mr Fuller was a genial and highly respected old gentleman and had not an enemy so far as is known in the world. The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon, the remains being interred in the old Presbyterian churchyard at Grand Pre. The people generally are shocked and horrified that such a cold-blooded murder could have been committed in the neighborhood.

The junior Wolfville hockey team will play a match with their Canning rivals in the Aberdeen rink on Saturday evening. A mile race between Arthur Hale, of Horton Academy, and Paul Grosno, the Canning flier, will be had.

"Any person who violates any provision of this Act shall, unless it is otherwise specially provided, be liable for every such offence to a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars, in the discretion of the convicting jury, besides costs."

AN IMPORTANT LETTER.

Showing How a Sufferer From Sciatica was Cured.

A Correspondent of the Orlia News-Letter With Permission From the Author Makes the Letter Public...

A few weeks ago I became very unwell from an attack of sciatica, and remembering that a while ago a well known friend of mine, Mr. C. T. Hopson, of Fesserton, a few miles from here...

It is with the greatest pleasure that I testify to the marvellous benefit and cure that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills effected in my case. In the year 1892 I was taken very bad with sciatica. I was treated at different times by two doctors but dismissed with their services as I found I was not getting the hoped for relief.

Our correspondent adds that this letter is from a much respected resident of Fesserton, whose word is generally considered as good as his bond.

Mexico's Unfortunate Indians.

Though there is now no legal slavery in Mexico, the Indians are still kept in a state of servitude by the superior wit and finesse of their masters. For example, it is the common law everywhere in Mexico that when a laborer is indebted to his master he must stay with him and work off the debt.

The sooner you begin to fight the fire, the more easily it may be extinguished. The sooner you begin taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for your blood-disease, the easier will be the cure.

For You! For All! The Great Life-Giver.

Paine's Celery Compound Removes Every Load and Burden. It is Foremost as a Spring Medicine. IT MAKES WONDROUS CURES.

The winter months have brought bereavement and dark clouds of sorrow to many homes in Canada. Fathers, mothers, sisters and brothers have been removed by the grim reaper...

In many families a too slavish obedience to medical dictation kept the true agent of life from the sick and dying ones. Past records of victory achieved by Paine's Celery Compound were set aside; it was unprofessional to introduce the life-saving Compound in any way!

Will you, reader, allow some dear relative or friend to pass from life without making an effort to save the perishable one by Paine's Celery Compound? The chance for life-saving by Paine's Celery Compound are great and mighty.

The life-saving work, the desperate cases overcome in the past, is the bright and living proof that Paine's Celery Compound makes sick people well. The truly honest physicians of the day are quietly and unceasingly recommending Paine's Celery Compound as the best spring medicine that ailing men or women can use.

Speaking at a public meeting in Yarmouth, N. B., recently, Rev. E. D. Miller, said, as reported in the Light, "he had read in papers friendly to the liquor interest that this temperance agitation was killing trade. He had investigated a little in Yarmouth and he was sure for this was true. The first merchant he approached was not known in the town as a temperance man. He was asked if he had any bad debts. "Yes," was the reply, "I could retire from business if I could collect them all." To the question, "What percentage of these bad debts is due to drink, the answer was, "About 60 per cent. But I do not mean to treat the fellows." He was then asked, "What percentage of these bad debts is due to drink, the answer was, "About 40 per cent of bad debts was divided between those who were continually unfortunate and unable to meet their liabilities, and those whose youth had frittered away their means in drinking and other expensive habits, and as a consequence suffered in after years from lack of capital. The speaker had interviewed three merchants and their experiences were substantially the same. He had come to the conclusion that the traffic in strong drink was not an advantage to trade."

Smart Sayings.

How to take care of your eyes—keep a civil tongue in your head. There is no box equal to the undertaker, after all. He is able to lay any man out. The lay of the land—a national hymn. Close quarters—25 cent pieces held by miser. A live man should not want the earth—he should be above it. The man carried away by enthusiasm is frequently brought back by disgust. When a tramp insolently demands a meal of a Texas woman she shoves a pistol against his breast-banket, and proposes to give it to him by the barrel.

Happy Men.

Happy, contented men, on whose faces no frown ever appears, are they whose mothers, wives and daughters use the Diamond Dyes for domestic dyeing. The coloring over of old, faded and dingy looking garments is so easy, and the results so magnificent, that the joy of the woman is always shared by the men. Happy, well-regulated homes, presided over by wise women, are the homes where Diamond Dyes are prized. Rich, bright, pure and fast colors are always obtained when Diamond Dyes are used. When buying from your dealer see that he gives you the "Diamond," they are first and best.

From a book of Scotch reminiscences has been taken the following bit of Scotch humor: The gravedigger of a county parish made up his mind to propose to the minister's servant girl, and he proceeded to do it in the most businesslike way. He asked her to take a walk with him and she consented. Leading her into the scene of his labors, he walked by her side in silence until he reached a particular spot in the burying-ground. Then, becoming very much affected, he said: Look there, Jennie, there's whaur a' my folk lie, and whaur'll I lie myself—if I'm spared. Wad you like to lie there, Jennie? She said that she would have no objection, and so the matter was settled. He bent to take her ankle and Remove her loosened shoe. There was a sound of breaking bones, and something skinned flew! Kind reader, he was called a man, but was indeed a fool. For she that had the ankle was a meek and lowly mule. A school inspector, having a few minutes to spare after examining the school, put a few questions to the lower form boys on the common objects of the school-room. What is the use of that map? He asked pointing to one stretched across a corner of the room; and half a dozen shrill voices answered: Please, sir, it's to hide teachers' bicycles!

Address of the Retiring President Mrs R. V. Jones. GIVEN BY THE UNION ON MARCH 11.

In glancing over the record of the past two years, there is cause for thankfulness, not so much for the work accomplished in our local "Union," as in the fact that temperance and other reforms have been steadily gaining ground, and the eyes of the public here and elsewhere have been opened as never before, to the liquor traffic and its abundant evils. Never in the history of the world has there been so much agitation, so much said and written upon prohibition, and churches and temperance societies are united in the effort to get a prohibitory liquor law enacted. With respect to this subject I have read with much interest the communications which have appeared of late in the leading Halifax papers. There is by no means unanimity of view. Sad to say there are some not in favor of this movement to rid our Dominion of the liquor traffic. Some who even advocate the use of the wine cup, and who seem to forget that what may be harmless for the few, is full of deadly peril for the masses. Do they fail to recognize the fact that tempering with the wine which gives it color in the cup, has wrecked thousands of lives. Such advocacy we deem disreputable and adapted to do much harm. We have cause for joy in the fact that at the present time no liquor is being sold in our town, a thing never known before in the history of Wolfville. This happy state was brought about by the rigid enforcement of the "Scott Act" law, and by the united efforts of the temperance organizations and the municipal Council. In our "Union" there has been steady growth seen in the increasing membership, and in the doing of good, effective work. Nor must it be forgotten that we have sown seed which will doubtless spring up and bear fruit even a hundred fold to the glory of the "Lord of the harvest." We humbly pray that this growth may meet the approval of Him whose servants we are, and whom "having not seen, we love."

Our departments, eleven in number are closely connected, so much so that if one languishes, the others feel its enfeebling influence. It has been a great satisfaction to me that we have had at the head of these departments broad-minded, true-hearted women who are carrying on their work with efficiency and ability. The "Women's Christian Temperance Union" having been founded by prayer, we consider the evangelistic department the basis of all our work. We aim to keep therefore burning brightly the sacred fires, kindled at the crusade, to train the individual worker, and to permeate by devotional exercises, all other departments with the evangelistic spirit, without which no "Union" can be successful. In the words of Miss Willard, "If the White Ribbon movement had gained a foothold in all civilized countries within the sixteen years of its inception, every all to the prayer impulse of the Crusade." Although conducted along somewhat different lines than formerly, we believe the work has not been less effective. Much good has been accomplished by visitations to the sick and the suffering, not only by our superintendent but by other members as well. The hymn sung, the Bible reading, the word of cheer, and earnest prayer have all been noted by Him, "Who came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give His life for many."

The "Press" and "Literature" departments have been successfully conducted a column being reserved for our local paper, giving the latest intelligence with regard to temperance. This intelligence is adapted to educate the public mind and conscience along this, as well as other reforms, connected with our organization. Many papers, pamphlets and leaflets have been distributed bearing on the different phases of the work, thus sowing the seed of truth. Superintendent should avail themselves of this opportunity to get information helpful in their respective spheres of work. The work of Health and Heredity must necessarily be almost entirely of an educative character. Very interesting addresses have been given in our meetings by the superintendents and others, upon themes connected with this department, besides a good deal has been done in other directions, tending to improve and instruct. We regret that so little has been accomplished in the department of "Narcotics," probably because it is so very difficult to know just who to do. Just now, however, a plan of work has come to hand issued by the "Dominion Union" full of suggestions and help, which will I trust, be very useful in the future. We feel this "Narcotics" department is often visited. It is somewhat encouraging, however, that in some places cigars and cigarettes are not so temptingly displayed in the shop windows as formerly, but are relegated to the back shelves. Let us hope that the consciences of all may be aroused, as some have been, to the evil influence they are exerting in the community.

MESSRS C. C. RICHARDS & CO.

YARMOUTH, N. S. GENTLEMEN,—In January last, Francis Esclair, one of the men employed by me, working in the lumber woods, had a tree fall on him, crushing him fearfully. He was when found, placed on a sled and taken home, where grave fears were entertained for his recovery, his lips being badly bruised and his body turned purple from his ribs to his feet. We used MINARD'S LINIMENT on him freely to loosen the pain, and with the use of three bottles he was completely cured and able to return to his work. SAUVAGE DUVAL. Elgin Road, L'Isle, Co., Que. May 26th, 1893.
