

NO BENEFIT TO HAMILTON.

Cannot Take Advantage of the Strathcona Fund,

Because Provincial Government Has Not Met Requirements.

Power Meeting Will Likely be Delayed Once More.

Hamilton will probably have to get along with twenty-one aldermen in addition to the Board of Control next year, unless some loophole can be found through which this year's council can reduce the number of aldermen. It was the intention that this should be done as soon as the ratepayers decided in favor of municipal administration by a Board of Control. City Solicitor Waddell says he sees only one way out of it. If the new district east of Sherman avenue is annexed the council could secure the permission of the Ontario Municipal Board to divide the city into any number of wards. The number would likely be five. This would mean that fifteen aldermen would be elected, three from each ward.

It is doubtful if the Power Committee will meet again on Monday, or Wednesday night either, as both Hon. Adam Beck, chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission, and the chief engineer, P. W. Soltman, are away. It is not thought that Hon. John S. Hendrie, the acting chairman, will take upon himself the responsibility of answering the questions submitted by the city.

Secretary Foster, of the Board of Education, this morning received word from Ottawa that none of the public schools in Ontario could share in any grants from the Lord Strathcona fund for cadets until the Provincial Government undertook to comply with certain requirements, something it has so far failed to do. The Hamilton Board of Education will likely take the matter up with the Ontario department.

The efforts of the Improvement Committee of the Greater Hamilton Association to make a city beautiful will likely result in some people who persist in throwing out grass, sweepings and all sorts of rubbish on the road, being hauled before the Magistrate. The penalty is a fine of $50. The Board of Works, through the district foremen, is distributing notices of this section of the by-law. Foreman Nelligan declared this morning that the offenders in his district will find themselves in trouble if they do not mend their ways.

The by-law to be considered by the Markets Committee on Monday afternoon, and which is intended to keep foreign fruit peddlers off the street, will likely meet with strong opposition in the Council. A lot of people in outlying districts find it convenient to purchase fruit from the peddlers.

The Board of Health will have a special meeting on Monday night to consider the matter of a garbage collection system for the east end mountain top and the eastern annex district. No appropriation was made for this work, and it will keep the board busy financing it.

The following building permits were issued to-day:

James McNeil, alterations to 216 John street for Mrs. H. D. Munro, $550.

Buscombe Bros, brick house on Sophia street, between King and Main streets, for J. Major, 1,800.

Buscombe Bros, brick house on Locke street, between Main and Jackson streets, for J. Allander, $1,500.

The health report for the week shows five cases of scarlet fever, two of chicken-pox, seven of measles, two of whooping cough and three of diphtheria.

Relief Officer McMenemy says it will be necessary to establish a branch relief office below Sherman avenue, if that district is annexed.

Mayor McLaren to-day declared he was in favor of taking 1,000 horse power from the Hydro Commission, despite the law suits that might follow, if it would settle the power question, and providing the city would not be bound to take any power unless it saw fit. Several of the aldermen take the same stand and the Hydro advocates intimated to-day that this concession would be made to Hamilton.

Rolling Mill Employees' Presentation to Jos. Race.

A very pleasant event occurred last evening at the Stuart street works of the Hamilton Steel & Iron Co., Limited. At the conclusion of the day's work Mr. Joseph Race, 282 Signby avenue, was presented by his fellow workmen in the big machine shop with a beautiful clock and vase. The occasion was the eve of his marriage, and the presentation and address were only a slight indication of the esteem in which the recipient, who has been in the employ of the company for several years, is held. Mr. Race, who, by the way, was totally surprised, was called to meet his shipmates, and informed as to their intention by Mr. David Hunter, after which the address was read by Mr. James McCaw, master mechanic, and the presentation made by Mr. J. Williams. Suitable thanks were offered by Mr. Race in a few words, after which Dr. Thompson said a few words in his own inimitable manner, expressing best wishes for a bright and prosperous future.

DISGRACEFUL DISTURBANCE

Bishop and Priests Driven From Village by Mob.

Were Insulted and Mobbed and Threatened With Violence.

Forced Out of a Rig and Compelled to Walk Out of Town.

Ulysses, Neb., June 19.—Right Rev. Bishop Bonacum, of the Catholic diocese of Lincoln, Father O'Brien, of Seward, and Father Kline, of Brainard, were driven from this village by an angry mob of some 200 persons, last night.

The bishop and his priests came to Ulysses to take possession of a church over which Father Murphy has had charge. Sympathizers of Father Murphy, both Catholics and others, joined the mob, and would have done violence to the bishop and the priests had it not been for the strenuous efforts of Father Murphy, who counselled the mob to do no violence, and requested that the visitors be left alone.

So threatening, however, was the crowd, that Father O'Brien got a lively rig, and with Bishop Bonacum and Father Kline, left in the direction of David City. The rig was followed by an automobile full of enemies of the bishop. The rig was overtaken three miles from the town, and the bishop and the priests were forced to get out and walk, while the liverman was made to drive back to Ulysses without his fare.

When last seen the bishop and priests were walking along the road toward David City. They were not harmed, but threats were made to "egg them," "mob them," and to treat them to various indignities.

AN OVERDOSE.

Prospector Who Registered From Hamilton Died Suddenly.

A silver prospector, about 60 years old, died suddenly in the American Hotel, corner of York and Wellington streets, Toronto, yesterday afternoon. He registered under the name of Henry A. Hamilton, of Hamilton, Ont., but when consulting his physician, Dr. Bruce Riordan, as to his physical condition, he named his headquarters as Hailbury. Yesterday evening, shortly after six he was found gasping in his room. Dr. Riordan was summoned, but the patient died a few minutes after his arrival. In his room was found a bottle of laudanum, and some other drugs. Presumably an overdose of laudanum had done the work, and it is surmised that the victim had taken this drug to relieve acute pain. The doctor in attendance had not prescribed these drugs. Chief Coroner Johnson was notified by Dr. Riordan and it is likely an inquest will be held. The man had been attended by Dr. Riordan for kidney trouble, and had been advised to undergo an operation.

$50,000 CAMPAIGN FOR THE YOUNG MEN AND BOYS

Will Open on Thursday Morning Next and be Completed on June 30—Why the Money Is Necessary.

Y.M.C.A. BUILDING CAMPAIGN. J. J. Greene, Chairman of the Boys' Department.

The Times to-day prints the portraits of a number of the men who are leading the campaign in the interest of the Young Men's Christian Association. For a number of years the work of this association has been hampered for lack of room. Twenty years ago, when the present building was erected, it was thought it would afford ample accommodation for a long time—and it has. The officers of those days had visions of expansion, and their expectations were so fully realized that the necessity of making further provision has long been felt. Not only has the work among the young men grown, but the boys had to be looked after. The welfare of a great army of young lads placed upon the shoulders of the directors a responsibility which they fully realized and cheerfully accepted, and they have been giving them the very best that the facilities of the present building could be made to afford. The building is no more than sufficient for the young men, and how the hundreds of boys crowded things only those who have had the handling of them can fully realize.

After mature consideration the board decided to make separate provision for the boys, and it is for that purpose that the campaign is being undertaken. Some time ago Mrs. Nelson Mills made a present to the association, at a cost of about $3,600, of the land east of the present building, and when the present campaign was begun Mr. Robert Mills gave a subscription of $5,000 towards the building. The directors believe $50,000 can be raised in Hamilton in one week, and have set apart the last six days in June for the supreme effort. The campaign will open on Thursday morning next, and close on the night of June 30.

The erection of a boys' building has a double importance. At present about 350 boys are on the rolls. Chairman J. J. Greene and Boys' Secretary W. J. Robinson figure that there are 1,000 boys in Hamilton who would be glad, and whose parents would be delighted, if the association had accommodation for them. The new building will provide it. It will do more. It will free the present building of the great tax upon it and enable the association to put forth increased efforts on behalf of the young men. They feel that they must do something, for the membership is constantly growing, in spite of the fact that no great effort is being made to boom it while the accommodation is so limited.

Fifty thousand dollars is not a large sum for a city of 70,000 to contribute to its boys and young men. Other cities in Canada and the United States have had similar campaigns, and have raised much larger amounts. Montreal is in the thick of one now. Three hundred thousand dollars in two weeks was the objective there, and when the ninth day closed on Wednesday night last the total reached $213,280.

Mr. C. S. Ward, who is now directing the Montreal campaign, will be in Hamilton on Wednesday next, and will take charge here. On that evening the Campaign Committee, and the ten teams of ten men each which are to undertake the work will meet for dinner at the Royal, and plans, already well matured, will be completed and the work begun next morning. Hamilton will have a chance to show how much it thinks of its young men and boys, and the directors of the Y. M. C. A. believe that the whole amount asked for will be subscribed.

Of course when the Mayor attacks Ald. Wright in connection with his "Plain Talk on the Power Question," the latter may be able to prove an alibi.

Again the question arises and will not down. "Who Shot Constable Smith?" Do you think that a $500 reward would bring the culprit to justice?

TRILBY WHO WEIGHS 300.

Ray of Humor Lights Up Session of Gould Trial.

Had a Chuckle, Too, at the Expense of Cupid Howard.

Testimony Continued as to Alleged Inebriety of the Plaintiff.

New York, June 19.—A 300-pound gentleman Trilby was one of the diversions of Howard Gould and his wife on one of their trips to Europe, according to testimony yesterday at the trial of Mrs. Gould's suit for separation. The Trilby himself was there and when he told the story, his 300 pounds shook with emotion. Most everyone else in the courtroom shook too, and they shook even more when it was announced that Howard Gould had taken the part of Cupid. Mr. Gould blushed. He thought Trilby was a joke, and he had laughed heartily, but he saw no joke in Cupid. The Trilby was none other than Henry B. Knowles, the insurance man, who lives at No. 56 West 33d street. He met the Gould party in Paris, they motored to Nice and there a fancy-dress ball was held. "Were you in costume?" innocently asked De Lacey Nicoll, counsel for Mr. Gould. "Yes, we all were," Mr. Knowles answered. "What was your costume?" Mr. Knowles's 300 pounds twisted in his chair. He stammered and then he colored. "Trilby," he finally answered. EVERYBODY LAUGHED.

The courtroom broke loose at that, Judge, lawyers, plaintiff and defendant—everyone in the courtroom except the 300-pound man—laughed.

"Mr. Gould," suggested Clarence J. Shearn, counsel for Mrs. Gould. "No," answered the witness, "he was Cupid."

It was Mr. Gould's turn now to color up and Mr. Knowles' chance to escape the staring eyes of the courtroom. Then Mr. Gould was the only one who failed to laugh.

Mr. Knowles had met the Goulds at Nice, when they went there on the Niagara in the spring of 1906. The witness went down from Paris in an automobile to pay his respects to the Goulds. Asked to tell about Mrs. Gould's appearance under the influence of liquor, Mr. Knowles said:

"The first time I noticed anything of the kind was when I dined with them in their apartments at the Saint Regis. After drinking her whole manner seemed to be changed."

HOW LIQUOR CHANGED HER. The witness said that when she was sober she was charming, fascinating and agreeable, but intoxicated she became a nagging woman, saying disagreeable things, mostly to her husband. Describing a trip to Nice, the witness said Mrs. Gould complained all the time about the arrangements her husband had made. She gave her husband a severe scolding because he did not have a courier meet her when they were going to a masked ball.

WOULD NOT KILL MOUSE,

Ye! James Dyer's Family Said He Threatened to Kill Them.

Allowed to Go on Promising Not to Bother Them.

Drink the Cause of a Young Man's Downfall.

As Magistrate Jeffs is away on his vacation, Ald. T. H. Crerar was acting Magistrate at the Police Court this morning. The people of Hamilton are keeping up their good reputation and this morning only five cases were up.

James Dyer was charged by his wife with threatening to kill. She said Dyer was of a quarrelsome nature, and it was impossible to live with him. "When I left him he tried to find me, and said if he did he would kill me. All I want is for him not to molest me," she continued.

"Did he threaten you yesterday?" asked the court.

"Not to me, but he told others he would kill me. He met my daughter's husband, gave him a black eye, and said he would retaliate on the rest of us," said Mrs. Dyer.

Mr. Dyer asked her if she had not taken a $10 bill out of his pocket, and she replied that she had.

"Why did you go to the States about three weeks ago; you can't deny that?" was Mr. Dyer's next question.

Mrs. Dyer replied that she had been to the States.

The husband of the daughter said Dyer had hit him and threatened to kill the whole lot.

"I wouldn't kill a mouse," broke in the prisoner.

"Did you attach any importance to the threat; he was drunk, was he not?" asked the court.

"Yes, he was drunk," answered the witness.

Mr. Dyer asked if he had not ordered the witness out of the house at 12 o'clock at night at the time she was courted by the daughter.

The witness responded that he had. The daughter then gave evidence.

"Did he threaten to kill your mother?" asked the court.

"Yes, he threatened to kill all of us and put me to bed through mother first."

The prisoner swore he never threatened to kill anyone.

Mrs. Dyer said she would like him to be let off and given another chance.

"All I want is to be left alone. He can have his own wages."

"The charge is a very serious one, but if you undertake to leave her alone you can go," said the court.

"I'll not bother her, sir," answered the prisoner, as he took his departure.

Nicholas Haentes was charged with being drunk and doing wilful damage.

He admitted being drunk. Mary A. Ringo, said the prisoner had boarded at her place until about two weeks ago, when on account of his liking for drink she had to get rid of him. Yesterday he went to the house and pulled a sash off and she called the police.

"I was not drunk," faltered Haentes. He was reminded that he had already pleaded guilty to that charge.

"But I was not drunk, I swear to that," he replied.

He was fined $2 for being drunk and $3 for doing wilful damage. The $3 will be paid to the complainant.

George Jennings was up on a charge of being a vagrant. Constable Cameron was the complainant and said that on numerous occasions the prisoner had been warned. Only last April he was sent to jail for a month.

"What makes you look like that?" asked the Chief.

"Drunk," responded the prisoner.

He was found guilty of the vagrancy charge and fined $10.

Martin Lynch, drunk, was fined $2.

SUICIDE OF A REPORTER.

Popular Former Hamilton Young Man Dead at Buffalo.

Buffalo, June 19.—A man who registered at the Genesee Hotel last night as A. S. Beaton, of Toronto, shot himself through the head while lying in bed in his room on the fourth floor of the hotel about 9 o'clock this morning, and died half an hour later, while he was being taken to the General Hospital in an ambulance. While a porter of the hotel was walking through the hall on the fourth floor of the hotel he heard the sound of a shot from the direction of Beaton's room. The door was forced open and Beaton was found unconscious in bed with a 32-calibre revolver clutched in his right hand. Surgeons from the General Hospital tried for some time to revive him, but failed.

In the pockets of Beaton's clothes were found several cards, all of which bore the name of Donald G. Beaton. One of the cards was a membership card of the Toronto Press Club, with the name of the Toronto Daily Star printed at the bottom of it.

On the inside of a gold watch was engraved "Mother to Gordon, 1897." Beaton wore glasses and appeared to be about 35 years old. No reason is given for the suicide.

"Gordon" Beaton, as his friends knew him, was a popular member of the Star staff. He was one of that paper's representatives at the Kinrade trial here, and also reported the Perkins trial at Cayuga. He was a sober, steady and popular young man. Some years ago his mother, a widow, resided here, on Catharine street south. Beaton was to be married soon, and had arranged to go North Bay to edit a paper.

Love Finds the Way

There was a moment's silence as he finished. Then the Jew, rubbing his two hands together, looked toward the door.

"What about the lad—does he know?" "Leave him to me," said Melchior. Gentleman Charles looked up with a frown.

"I'm half afraid of that chap," he said, with a sudden shake of his head. "He's too quiet by half; your quiet ones are always the most knowing. Perhaps he's the best out of the way."

Before he could finish, a sudden exclamation from the Jew, who had been looking at Melchior, stopped him, and caused him to look up. What he saw in Melchior's face made him wish he had held his tongue.

"You run on too fast, my friend," came slowly, but with terrible intensity, from the compressed, thin lips. "By heavens! I'd lay the man dead, if he had a thousand lives, who touched a hair of the boy's head."

At the hour appointed, a neat cabriolet drew up at the Baron de Montipore's mansion, and the chevalier, exquisitely, but quietly, attired in morning costume, alighted.

"Take a chair," said the baron, sweeping a pile of documents from one and jerking it forward. "You are punctual—nothing like it. Punctuality is the shoal of business. I hope I see you well, my lord."

"The chevalier was well, and returned the compliment. They talked a little of the duchess's soiree—the chevalier condoling the baron on the loss of his valuable gem, and then, with definite fact, guided into the business of the interview.

"Not at all, my lord," eagerly corrected the baron, who snatched at this hint of something beyond the exorbitant interest. "Not at all. I shall be only too proud of any mark of the shate's esteem. Hem! what do you want the moush?"

"Not for some weeks yet, my dear baron. Meanwhile, I must impress upon your mind the importance of profound secrecy in respect to the negotiation. I should the fact of our requesting a loan get wind—may, indeed, the mere rumor that I am here in London as the representative of the state—I would not answer for the consequences."

"What? No! Why, all the world is going. The great Gregori is to appear to-night, and the house will be crammed. I am going with my Lady Melville—a superb woman, chevalier, eh?"—ad the baron smacked his full lips with unctuousness.

"Heaven bless me!" muttered the baron. "What do you say?" "To a practical eye," continued the chevalier, with the same slow composure and distinct utterance, "it is easy to detect the signs of the fell disease—con-

COL. RENNIE IN COMMAND

Of Trek From the Niagara Camp Last Night.

The Inspection of Artillery Was Begun Yesterday.

Camp Hospital Practically Empty—Sanitary Arrangements Good.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, June 19.—Yesterday was a cool and bright day, and everyone was busy in the camp. It was an especially important day for the Army Medical Corps, who were inspected by Lieut.-Col. Jones, D.G., M.S., of Ottawa, and later ordered out at short notice, just as it in active service, and sent to follow up an imaginary army who were fighting an imaginary enemy somewhere in the direction of St. Catharines.

It was the intention of the commanding officer to follow the imaginary army for a distance of about twenty miles, and to arrive back to the main camp by about noon. It was the first occasion for the firing of the new rapid-firing field guns, with which the Fourth and Seventh Batteries have recently been armed.

Both artillery and cavalry horses behaved well while the firing lasted. Last year at the sound of the opening volley, a regiment of cavalry in an adjoining meadow were promptly unhorsed. Yesterday they were warned in time and suffered no indignity.

On Thursday next, the Field Day will be held, with a tattoo at night and on Friday a march past of the entire brigade will be held.

When the driver saw the brain oozing, he fainted. The lad's mother was a few yards away, and is not likely to survive the shock.

Recipes

Rhubarb Marmalade. Boil for twenty minutes four pounds of rhubarb, cut into small pieces, leaving the skin on. Add the juice of five lemons and the rind, which has been sliced off thinly, boiled in a little water for about twenty minutes, or until soft, then chopped fine.

Sour Milk Cake. One cup sugar, one-half cup butter creamed together, add two well beaten eggs, one cup of sour milk, one-half a teaspoonful of soda, dissolved in a tablespoonful of hot water, quarter of a nutmeg grated, two rounded cups of flour.

Stuffed Steak. Take about two pounds of fresh, tender round steak, sprinkle with a teaspoonful of salt and a tablespoonful of pepper; spread with a chopped onion and a half cup each of seasoned tomatoes and bread crumbs, mixed; roll and tie in a shape with a cord. Place in roaster and bake for 40 minutes, basting often. When done, cut the cord and serve.

Fruit Bouillon. Add to one quart of cold water one dozen washed prunes, one-half cup of seedless raisins and one-fourth cup of cleaned rice. Cook slowly. When about half done, add one tablespoonful of sugar, one large diced apple and juice of one small lemon. When done, thicken with one teaspoonful of corn starch, dissolved in cold water. Serve at once with hot buttered wafers.

Cereal Coffee. One cup oatmeal, one cup bran, half-cup cornmeal, half-cup of pearl barley, half-cup of brown sugar. Mix all together and brown slowly in oven. For serving use one tablespoonful of each person and boil 20 minutes. The leftovers of oatmeal, prunes, chicken and rice used as follows:

Chicken Puffs. Two cups of finely chopped cold chicken, four egg yolks well beaten, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a saltspoonful of paprika and one of celery salt. Mix well, beat the whites of the eggs very stiff, fold in lightly and drop by the teaspoonful in a kettle of boiling fat. Fry a light brown. Drain on paper and serve at once.

Rhubarb Jelly. Cut cleaned stalks in short pieces, put into preserving kettles, allowing a cup of water to two pounds of rhubarb. Boil till it is a soft pulp, put into jelly bag and drip without pressing. Return juice to kettle, allowing one pound of sugar to one pint of juice, stir till the sugar dissolves, and boil rapidly until it jellies when tried on a cold saucer; skim when necessary. While hot turn into tumbler; when firm and cold cover with paper or paraffin.

Summer Drinks. (By Cornelia C. Bedford.) Ginger Beer—Dissolve two pounds of granulated sugar in two quarts of boiling water; add two ounces of ginger root, chopped fine, one ounce of cream of tartar, two lemons thinly sliced and let stand until almost cold. Then add four quarts of cold water, one yeast cake and the beaten whites of two eggs. Stand in a moderately warm place for twenty-four hours, then strain, bottle and tie down. Ready for use in about three days. Spruce Beer—Dissolve one pound of sugar in two quarts of boiling water; add one cupful of molasses, thirty drops of oil of sassafras and the same quantity of oil of spruce, six quarts of water and one yeast cake. Let stand overnight, bottle and cork. Ready in two days.

Welsh Nectar—Peel the yellow rind from three lemons, add two quarts of boiling water and two pounds of granulated sugar. When cold, add the strained juice of the lemons, one pound of seed-cake raisins chopped fine and six quarts of water. Let stand five days, stirring twice a day, then strain and bottle.

Pineapple Lemonade—Peel, eye and grate a large ripe pineapple; add the strained juice of four lemons and one pound of sugar and one pint of water boiled together for three minutes. When cold add one quart of water, strain and ice.

Mead—Ten gallons of water, two gallons of honey, one-half a pound of ginger root, two lemons thinly sliced. Boil for two hours, skimming well; let stand overnight, add one half of a yeast cake and barrel. Ready for bottling in three weeks.

Mead quickly made—Two pounds of sugar, one pint of strained honey, one-quarter of a pound of tartaric acid, two quarts of boiling water. When cold, add if flavor is liked, one-half ounce of essence of sassafras. In using put three tablespoonfuls of the mixture in half a glassful of ice water, add one-quarter of a teaspoonful of baking soda and drink at once.

Strawberry Acid—Dissolve two and a half ounces of tartaric acid in one quart of cold water, then pour over six pounds of hulled fruit. Let stand for two days then strain, taking care not to bruise the fruit. To each pint of liquid add one pound of granulated sugar and stir until dissolved; the entire process is cold. Put in bottles, set in the cork, but do not tighten for two weeks. Fruit acid may be prepared in this way.

It will be noticed that more material is being used—a greater freedom and buoyancy in the skirts, which will be welcomed by all.

"Yah!" "What's the matter, boy?" "I hate to turn this darned old grid stone!" "You ain't turned this darned old gridstone, son; you're just cranking it up."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE HAMILTON TIMES

SATURDAY, JUNE 19, 1909.

THE POWER MEETING.

The meeting of the new Electric Power Committee held last night was marked by no pyrotechnics, the members devoting themselves to the preliminaries of obtaining some definite information from the Commission, and exchanging views upon the situation.

Some of the members of the committee are apparently not seized of the fact that the Commission is strictly limited in its actions by the Provincial statute, and that it is not in its power to make an exceptional contract to meet the views of the city of Hamilton.

The aldermen will do well to bear in mind that the statute, chapter 19, 7 Edw. VII. (1908) sets forth very clearly the Commission's powers. No promise made by the Commission or by any one on its behalf can change the terms of that statute.

THE BLYTHE CASE.

The discussion of the case of Blythe, sentenced to death for wife murder and respited to permit of the hearing of an appeal in which his counsel contends that his offence should have been classed as manslaughter, shows that a great deal of confusion exists in the public mind as to the legal distinction between these offences.

Culpable homicide is murder. If the offender meant to cause the death of the person killed; or if he meant to cause the person killed any bodily injury which is known to the offender to be likely to cause death, and is reckless whether death ensues or not.

There are also a number of cases in which culpable homicide is held to be murder, whether the offender means death to ensue, or not, or whether he knows that death is likely to ensue.

ences under part IV. of the Code, piracy, escape or rescue from prison, or lawful custody, resisting lawful apprehension, burglary, arson, and sundry other felonies.

It will be seen that murder covers other cases of homicide than those in which the perpetrator studiously plots to take the life of his victim.

As contra distinguished to murder, manslaughter is defined as "culpable homicide not amounting to murder."

In the case of Blythe there would appear to be only two arguments that would tend to serve the purpose of those who seek to have his offence be manslaughter instead of murder.

WEALTH AND HAPPINESS.

Pity the sorrows of the rich! Poverty has no monopoly of the inconveniences of life. Noblesse oblige, and the possession of great wealth, too, appears to breed obligations, conventionalities, restrictions.

Mrs. Howard Gould moved in this atmosphere of artificiality, unreality and self-deception. She was rich enough in all conscience. In the divorce suit it was shown that her husband's income was between $700,000 and $1,000,000 a year, and he does not appear to have been necessarily in catering to her tastes.

It is said that a special amendment, aimed at Canada, will be drafted for introduction into the Aldrich tariff now under consideration by the United States Senate.

As we glance over the inventory, and reflect that she required a new outfit daily, and that there were sundry other items to provide, $100 worth of hose, gloves, etc., being her ordinary purchase, we cannot but think that if Abdul Hamid had had a few ladies like Mrs. Gould in his harem he would not have been forced to hunt abroad for his troubles.

she did not beggar her husband. Perish the thought! The $40,000 a year which she spent on dress was perhaps no larger a proportion of his income than other wives' expenditure was of that of their husbands.

And saddest of all reflections, even at the cost of so much money and slavery to fashion neither the woman nor her husband seem to have been specially happy!

And still the world treats her as extravagant! Alas, how people are misjudged! What so rare as a warm day in June this year?

There has been great loss of life and damage to property in the Sanok district in Austria, by thunder storms. Many houses have been struck by lightning, and the occupants killed. In one case a barn in which fifty people had sought shelter from a deluge of rain was struck and ten men killed.

again under the influence of liquor, and very disagreeable. She was particularly sore about the way the lettuce in the salad was headed.

The flow of testimony adduced by the defence in the suit for separation brought by Katherine Clemons Gould against her husband, Howard Gould, kept edging more and more today toward Dustin Farnum, the actor, whose broad shoulders and mop of curly hair have become a familiar figure in the case.

Endearing epithets twice embellished the testimony. John H. Kimball, an oil and paint dealer who said he had known Mr. Gould for eighteen years, testified that he went to a performance of the Virginian in August, 1906, with Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Sells and the Goulds, and that Dustin Farnum, the star of the play, joined the party outside the playhouse after the performance.

John Flynn, who said he had been employed by Mrs. Gould as a chauffeur, and had often driven her to meet Farnum after the play, testified that on one occasion when the automobile, with Mrs. Gould in it, was waiting for Farnum at the Hotel Somerset, two men entered the door and asked him whose automobile was waiting.

At another time, Flynn swore, when he rapped on Mrs. Gould's chamber door at the Saint Regis, she called out: "All right, dear," and then, when she saw who it was, excused herself with: "I thought it was Dustin Farnum."

Mary Elizabeth Harrison, a fresh-cheeked, good-looking girl, who said she was a floor clerk in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia, prefaced her testimony with the explanation that it was her first appearance in court. She had been employed in her conscience, she said, to tell what she had seen at the hotel. Finally she wrote a letter to Mr. Gould.

"I said in the letter," she testified, "in obedience to the Golden Rule, I wrote to you to help you if you are in trouble, or something like that."

Mrs. Gould occupied apartments on the floor where she was stationed in September, 1906, the witness went on, and one morning she saw a man come out of Mrs. Gould's rooms about 7:30 o'clock, and take the elevator. She noticed that he was the same man who was in the car and that the dial registered fourteenth floor when the car stopped.

The defence contends that Dustin Farnum was staying on the fourteenth floor of the hotel at that time, and attempted to show by the next witness, Florence Garner, who said she was also employed in September, 1906, as a floor clerk in the Bellevue-Stratford, on the fourteenth floor, when Dustin Farnum was playing in the Virginian at Philadelphia.

A few observations on life as he has found it, by young Mr. Sprackels, are of interest at this time. It will be recalled that the other day when Mr. Sprackels came sailing up the bay on the same ship with a lady of the stage, whom rumor said he intended to marry, a wireless interposed the cruel mandate from father, "Come to me at once" to that effect.

Howard Gould did not take the stand, as had been expected. Court adjourned at 6 o'clock until Monday morning. None of the plaintiff's witnesses has been heard in rebuttal and the prospect is that the case has more than a week to go.

There has been great loss of life and damage to property in the Sanok district in Austria, by thunder storms. Many houses have been struck by lightning, and the occupants killed. In one case a barn in which fifty people had sought shelter from a deluge of rain was struck and ten men killed.

"What looks have helped you most?" asked the serious young woman. "I don't remember their names," answered Senator Sorghum. "But they're Government publications I am permitted to pre-

USURY CASE.

Mary Glenn, Tolman's Agent, Convicted at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, June 18.—Mary Glenn, agent and secretary of Tolman, the American money lender, who came within the meshes of the law here recently, appeared in court today to answer to charges of infractions of the money lenders' act, for which she was recently committed for trial.

As the case will be fought out in the Court of Appeal, an arrangement was arrived at whereunder the accused admits all the facts necessary to the conviction of herself in this case, if she is liable for having done what is charged as an offence, acting as manager of the business of D. H. Tolman, carried on by him in the city of Winnipeg, through her and other employees, Tolman being a resident of the United States.

The Crown admits that the accused in lending money as charged in the indictment, was acting only as manager of Tolman's business in Winnipeg, under salary, and did not share in the excessive interest charged, by way of commission or otherwise. The case will, therefore, go direct to the higher court.

Plans are under way, it is semi-officially announced, for an immense new roundhouse to be built at London, Ont., by the C. P. R. The trains have been so increased of late that the present accommodation is quite inadequate. Fines amounting to $3,024 were imposed by the Toronto Police Magistrate during May.

Morrison; song, Braw, Braw Lads, Miss Maggie Sim; recitation, He Couldn't Catch On, D. Croxford; song, I Dreamt that I Dwelt in Marble Halls, Mrs. R. Slade; recitation, Mandalay, J. Rossie; International Lodge will celebrate its twenty-sixth anniversary by holding an ice cream social next Friday evening.

Lord Charles Bessford is coming to open the Toronto Exhibition. Temporary repairs to the Soo Canal are so far advanced that it is hoped to open the locks to vessels to-day.

Thursday, June 17th, was planned for a garden party under the auspices of Union Mission department of Hamilton. The weather, however, proved a barrier and the meeting was held in the comfortable parlors of the hostess, Mrs. Woodruff, 186 George street, where a good programme on the mission of flowers was conducted by Mrs. Byron Smith, county president. Flowers are welcome visitors both in health and sickness, especially in the latter; what so comforting and cheering to the shut-ins as the lilies and roses, telling in their own way of their fragrance and beauty of the sympathy of friends. The superintendent reported sending bouquets, with scripture text attached, which will gladden the hearts of the sufferers in the City Hospital. Ice cream and cake were served and a vote of thanks to the generous hostess and all taking part in the programme was unanimously carried, thus bringing to a close a most encouraging meeting; the next meeting to be held on the first Thursday in September.

A Mistake. Many of Hamilton's public never take the advantage of the great opportunity they have from day to day, learning of the great sales that are taking place during the week at the Right House, a store of keen prices, not forgetting the good quality of hot goods and the great variety one has to select from. It is a great mistake, for you would save many dollars in a year by taking advantage of these special sales. On page 10 of this issue a great price saving advertisement respecting our carpet and house-furnishing departments. Being in a position to buy such large quantities enables us to purchase direct from the best manufacturers at low prices. Come and see for yourself after reading our advertisement. We feel sure you will be pleased with your visit. When an artist goes to a prize fight it always results in a draw.

An Unsolicited Letter

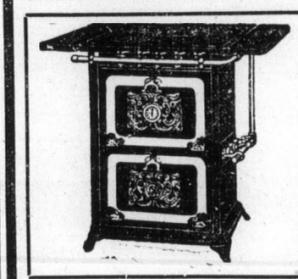

Globe Laundry Amherst, N.Y., June 8, 1909.

A. P. Connolly, Esq., Woodstock, N. B. Dear Sir,—I have been using ASEPITO SOAP POWDER since January last, and after careful test, I find I am now saving 25 per cent. on my former bill. And Asepto does the washing better (without the least injury to the goods washed in it) than any soap I have ever used. I have tried all the best Canadian and American soaps on the market during the last ten years, but Asepto has proved itself ahead of them all, as I have stated above. And it is a pleasure for me to advise every Canadian laundryman to give your soap a fair trial, for it means "money to them." Yours very truly, F. A. CAIN.

N.B.—The above unsolicited letter was received by Mr. Connolly, who is the representative of Asepto Manufacturing Co., of St. John, N.B., and it speaks for itself.

UNITY PRAYER.

Anglicans Decide to Omit Use of Well-Known Prayer.

The Prayer Grated on Hon. S. H. Blake, He Said.

Toronto, June 19.—"Every time that prayer is read it grates on me. I do not think it is at all applicable for the use of this Synod, where we shake hands and meet each other in a friendly manner. If we were speaking of the business of nations it might be all right; but why talk of the 'great dangers' from 'unhappy divisions,' and of taking away hatred and prejudice' from our little body?" Rising in his well-known place in the front row of the floor of the house at the Anglican Synod, that most outspoken member, Hon. S. H. Blake, made the foregoing protest immediately after the saying, at yesterday morning's session, of the opening prayer. "The prayer is the well-known 'Prayer for Unity,' as follows: 'O God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, our only Saviour, the Prince of Peace; give us grace seriously to lay to heart the great dangers we are in by our unhappy divisions, take away all hatred and prejudice, and whatever else may hinder us from Godly union and concord; that as there is but one body, and one spirit, and one hope of our calling, one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of us all, so we may likewise be all of one heart and of one mind and peace, of faith and charity, and may with one mind and one mouth glorify Thee, through Jesus Christ our Lord, Amen.'" "I should be exceedingly glad to have that prayer omitted and another substituted for it," said Bishop Sweeney. "I have protested against it repeatedly, but we always go back to it." "It is unfortunate whichever way it is looked at." "I intended to bring a resolution before the Synod this session to deal with that prayer." "Why did not the late Archbishop omit or change it?" one member asked. "Because he was powerless to do so," said Bishop Sweeney. "It was appointed by Synod. But if it is the wish of Synod I will substitute a prayer which I will submit to you." The Synod decided to have that done.

DUNDAS.

Liberal Gift to Citizens' Committee—Log House Picnic.

Dundas, June 19.—The picnic given by the Ladies' Aid of the Citizens' Committee in the log cabin in the park yesterday evening was a successful affair, the attendance being large, the programme enjoyable, and the proceeds sufficient to hand the Citizens' Committee a snug sum.

The annual union excursion of the West Flamboro and Glenwood Sunday schools was held yesterday. The excursion was to Brantford via H. & D. Railway, and the Hamilton & Brantford trolley lines. There was a good attendance, and the outing was a very enjoyable one. The other day, in discussing some proposed improvements in the park with Councillor Pennington, it was stated that Mrs. Pennington's contribution to park improvements would be twenty-five or more church seats—just the things that were most wanted, owing to many that the park before possessed being destroyed by the vandalism of some town youths. Miss Annie Walker, of Nanticoke, is visiting Principal Saunders and other friends in town.

MUST REFUND $300.

Mr. Justice Latchford, at Toronto yesterday, gave judgment in Gilmour vs. Dalton. In April, 1907, defendant, at that time managing director and secretary-treasurer of the Niagara Falls Heating and Supply Co., induced the plaintiff to purchase six shares of stock of the company, each of par value, of $50. The judge found that defendant had used misrepresentation and thereby induced the plaintiff to pay the $300. For this amount the defendant is liable to the plaintiff with interest from May 1, 1907, and full costs. If the certificates issued to the plaintiff are desired by the defendant, the plaintiff should transfer them. F. W. Griffiths (Niagara Falls), for plaintiff. G. Lynch-Staunton, K. C., and H. R. Morwood (Welland), for defendant. Judgment (H.).

A. O. F. Excursion.

On Dominion Day, July 1st, one of the best excursions of the season will be run to Niagara Falls and Buffalo by the A. O. F. of this city. This excursion is always a big success, and each year the officers have put forth special efforts to make it more enjoyable than the previous one. As usual it will be over the T. H. & B. railway, and the tickets give passengers a chance to stay a couple of days if they desire. The tickets are on sale at various stores in the city. Read advertisement on back page for full information.

MONEY PAID.

Testimony in Montreal Inquiry Re Ex-Fire Chief.

Montreal, Que., June 18.—Money was paid directly to ex-Chief Benoit of the Montreal Fire Brigade for appointments and promotions while he was at the head of the department, according to reluctant answers made by J. O. Munday, an important witness before the Royal Commission, to-day. Munday is alleged to have been a middleman, who conducted a regular placing bureau for aspiring firemen, and who is said to have handled about $700 in this connection. On oath to-day he admitted receiving $500, but says he paid it to ex-Aid Marsolais, who is now dead. Closely questioned by Mr. Perron, the witness finally said he did not swear that he had never paid or sent money to Chief Benoit for promotions. He could not tell the approximate amounts, however. No checks had been sent, but always direct cash.

duan wool season, it may interest those in the trade to know that by a recent decision of the Customs appraiser at the Port of Philadelphia, the duty on Canadian washed combing wool has been declared to be 22c per pound, and under this ruling two carloads of Canadian wool are being returned to Canada, the importer declining to pay the increased duty, as this wool has hitherto been admitted into the United States at a duty of 12c per pound.

Should this ruling be approved by the Board of Appraisers for the United States, it will put an end to the large exportation of Canadian wool to that country, which has been going on for years.

This would force us to find a market in Britain for our surplus wool, which, owing to distance and other causes, would not be such a desirable market as the United States.

PIUTE GREAT MUDDER.

Ethelbert Colt Repeated at Montreal. Hammond Rode a Long Shot In Second. Trouble Over the Fort Erie License.

Montreal, June 19.—Yesterday's races were run over a heavy track. The weather was very disagreeable, though the crowd was large. The two-year-old race at five furlongs had two starters, but it proved to be a good contest. Busy, the favorite, won by a little over a length.

The mile condition race proved an easy thing for Piute. This good-looking son of Ethelbert is a mudder of the first order. He simply rolled in the going, and set the field a terrific pace. Goldsmith had him well in hand all the way, and at no time during the running was the result in doubt, the finish finding Piute with three lengths to spare, and winning with his ears pricked. Chinn seems to have the faculty of placing his horses well, and better still, he has them in excellent condition. In yesterday's race Piute assumed an easy lead soon after the start, drew away from his field in the run around the turn, and won hard held from Light Wool. The pace was very fast, the first quarter being run in 24.5, and the half mile in 49.45. Light Wool was hard ridden in the stretch run, but was unable to improve his position.

Setback was run in blinkers in the opening dash, and he acted much better at the post, leaving the barrier with the leaders, and getting on his stride much quicker than he did in his previous races. He won with ridiculous ease. Busy, who was starting for the first time in the colors of his new owner, D. Lorne McGibbon, found no trouble in beating the speedy Flying Squirrel. The latter showed in front for about three furlongs, but in the stretch run Busy moved up and assumed an easy lead, and won going away at the end.

Willie Hammond, the Hamilton apprentice, had one mount—Detroit, a long shot. He put up a good ride and finished second. Detroit was 15, 4 and 2. Following is the summary:

First race—$400 added; two-year-olds; 5 furlongs—Setback, 115 (Rettig), 7 to 10, 1 to 3 and out, won by four lengths; Detroit, 105 (Hammond), 15 to 1, 4 to 1, 2; Phoronis, 102 (Reid), 12 to 1, 4 to 1, 2; Denier, 149 (L.M. 25). Etta May, Puritan Lad and Chief Kee also ran.

Second race—$400 added; two-year-olds; 5 furlongs—Busy, 111 (Goldstein), 4 to 5 and out, won by 2 1/2 lengths; Flying Squirrel, 111 (Rettig), 6 to 5 and out, 2; Time, 104 (Only two starters).

Fourth race—$400 added; for Province-owned three-year-olds and up; one mile—Silk Hose, 105 (Goldstein), 6 to 5, 2 to 5 and out, won by a length; Sally Cohen, 99 (Chandler), 6 to 1, 2 to 1, even; 2; Autumn King, 111 (Hart), 3 to 1, 6 to 5, 1, 4, 2, 3. Time, 1.48-4.5.

Fifth race—$400 added; steeplechase; four-year-olds and up; about two miles—Braggadocio, 138 (Hughes), 8 to 1, 1 to 5 and out, won by two lengths; Student King, 138 (Edwards), 4 to 1 and out, 2; Denier, 149 (Keller), 8 to 5 and out, 3. Time, 4.19-4.5. Long Service fell.

Sixth race—$400 added; three-year-olds and up; 6 furlongs—Mozart, 100 (Clark), 12 to 1, 5 to 1, 2 to 1, won by half a length; Blue Coat, 105 (Edwards), 8 to 5, 7 to 10 and out, 2; Edgely, 107 (Deverich), 5 to 2, even and out, 3. Time, 1.19-1.5. Al Busch, Irish Duke and Be Thankful also ran.

HEARD AT BLUE BONNETS. Montreal, June 19.—Long Service, who started in the jumping race yesterday, is one of the biggest horses in training. He measures 17 1/2, and is a horse of excellent conformation.

The Valley Farm Stable left for Hamilton last night. Mrs. L. A. Livingston's string was shipped to Sheepshead Bay, while Adam Beck and J. H. Madigan sent their horses on to Hamilton.

Jockey Jimmy McIntyre has signed a contract with the Kirkfield Stable, and will ride Direct in the Hamilton Derby. MADIGAN IS OPTIMISTIC.

Buffalo, June 19.—John H. Madigin, president of the Niagara Racing Association, returned yesterday from Montreal, where he attended the meeting of the Canadian Racing Associations.

"Everything harmonious," said he yesterday, "and the turf in Canada in better condition than ever."

While the associations never inflicted an outlaw sentence on horsemen who participated in the Dufferin Park meeting in Toronto, it is understood that those who did so were not in the good graces of the associations, so that it is of interest to note that entries will be received at the big Canadian tracks from E. Whelan, the Buffalo horseman; McKay, of Hamilton and Jockey E. Stone, who participated in last fall's meeting at Dufferin, and who are now in good standing.

OLD COUNTRY RACING. London, June 19.—The Alexandra Plate, run yesterday, was won by Pure Gem at 6 to 1. Hammerkap, 8 to 1, third. Hayter, Bushranger, Bardolph, Aquarille and La Belle also ran.

The Windsor Castle Stakes of fifteen sovereigns each, with 300 sovereigns added, for two-year-olds, distance five furlongs, was won by Charles O'Malley. Lawrence McCreevy's Hackle was second, and San Antonio third. Seventeen starters.

The King's Stand Stakes of 800 sovereigns, added to a sweepstakes of ten sovereigns each, for two-year-olds and up, distance five furlongs, was won by Foresight. H. P. Whitney's Hillside III. was second, and Hallaton third. Five horses ran.

W. K. Vanderbilt's Ramapo ran in the Prix Porte Marty at Maisons Laffitte today, but did not get a place.

FORT ERIE LICENSE. Welland, June 19.—Before Judge Wells yesterday the application to cancel the liquor license, granted to T. & J. Crooks, Hamilton, for the Fort Erie race track, was heard. Mr. W. J. M. German, K. C., appeared for the plaintiffs; T. D. Cowper, Crown Attorney, for the Crown; E. T. Malone, K. C., Toronto, and Jas. Haverson, Toronto, appeared for the defendants, the Niagara Racing Association, and claimed the race-track premises is not a tavern within the meaning of sec. one, sub-sec. A. of the act of 1906. They said they were only notified a few days ago, and were unprepared for trial, not knowing the nature of the charge, and having no witnesses.

Mr. German, for the prosecution, urged that the case go on. The prosecutor's witnesses were present and ready for trial. The Judge granted an adjournment until Saturday, June 26, on account of insufficient time given the defendants to prepare their case.

SMASHING TARGETS IS EASY FOR HER. Chicago, June 19.—Mrs. Adolph Topperwein, who will participate in the grand American tourney in Chicago next month, is the most noted woman shot in the world. She is an expert with shotgun, rifle or revolver, and has a record of 99 targets out of 100 thrown from unknown angles. She also smashed 455 out of 500 targets, but her best feat which required four hours and 35 minutes. Although barred from the grand American handicap, she will participate in several matches where the line is not drawn against women, during the tournament.

RUGBY TALK. Jack Corkery Will Play With Toronto University. Ottawa, June 19.—Jack Corkery, the sensational half-back of the Ottawa University football team, graduated this week, and will take a course in medicine at Toronto University. Corkery intends trying for a place on the Varsity back division. He was the best of the Ottawa College backs last fall.

The University team loses its entire back division through graduation, viz., Nick Bawlf, Corkery, Whelan, McCarthy and Dean. Richards is also through, likewise Higerty, the fast middle wing.

GRIMSBY BOWLERS BEATEN HERE.

Most interesting game was played on the excellent golf of the Hospital for the Insane, between three rinks from the Grimsby Bowling Club and the Asylum. The latter won by 21 shots.

H. Asylum Grimsby. The score was: H. Asylum M. Grimsby; W. Harper Dr. Smith; J. Ironside F. W. Maddox; Dr. English Rev. J. Muir; Skip 22 Skip 18; W. Kraft Rev. Terryberry; E. T. Eade L. W. Pottinger; L. Edmonds E. H. Mikell; J. Denier Rev. J. A. Ballard; Skip 26 Skip 12; D. McLaren E. J. Palmer; H. Pierce A. H. Pettit; A. Rankin S. B. McConachie; W. Ewanck A. G. Pettit; Skip 26 Skip 53; Total 74 Total 53.

From the Scrap Heap

News comes from Baltimore this morning that Joe Gans, the colored boy, who so decisively defeated Frank Erne, of this city, for the championship of the world, knocking out the Buffalo boy in one round at Fort Erie, is down with consumption, and cannot possibly last much longer, says the Buffalo Enquirer.

Gans was one of the greatest fighters who ever drew on a glove. His only slady transactions in the ring were engineered and forced upon him by white men, who posed as his managers and who did more to hurt the boxing game while they were prominently connected with the sport than all of the knockers of the reform brand have been able to do in fifty years.

Gans, when he took charge of his own affairs, showed the world that he was a square, honest, upright boxer, and a man who could fight from the drop of the hat.

From a humble opener of oysters to the championship of the world, with all that went with it in the way of homage and money was the rapid uphill fight of this black boy. Huzzah on account of his color and shunned by many who would have done anything in the world for him had he been of the white race, Gans fought his way to the top. He lost the championship fighting manfully to retain it, and has never whimpered since.

With the passing of Gans will go the third and the last of the three greatest fighters of his race of a few years ago. The first to answer the call of the final gong was Peter Jackson, big and brave and manly; the most popular little fighter who ever drew on a glove and the greatest champion the world ever knew outside of Bob Fitzsimmons, I mean George Dixon; and Gans, according to the Baltimore despatch, will soon be with them. It is a hard game at the best, this fighting life.

Bridgeport, Conn., June 19.—J. J. Jeffries, retired heavyweight champion, boxed six short exhibition rounds with Sam Berger, his sparring partner, in a local theatre last night. Jeffries showed much speed. In a short speech he said: "After several weeks of training I am satisfied that I can get into the best condition I ever was in my life, and when the right time comes I'll be there to deliver the goods."

Jack Johnson, the present heavyweight champion, who had said he would be here last night to watch Jeffries spar and observe his condition, did not appear.

New York, June 19.—Charles Harvey has fond hopes of getting Jack Johnson into the ring with Al Kaufman for fifty-five rounds of fight starting the black champion in the face. Harvey said yesterday that Jim May, of Nevada, had written him concerning a Labor Day fight in the sagbrush section, and though no definite terms have been offered as yet, it seemed certain that the Berlin, Ont., June 19.—Stratford stopped the Rangers' winning streak last night, but if the homesters have not won all they are able to, as to-night's game was a draw, neither team scoring. It was a senior W. F. A. fixture.

In the first half Berlin missed several good chances to score, and were on the aggressive during the greater part of the game, but Stratford played a superb defence game. Harry Brown retired satisfactorily. The teams were: Stratford—Goal, Rose; backs, Height, Clarke; halves, Joyce, Theodor and Carter; forwards, Preston, Round, Martin, Morgan and B. Glas; Brown; backs, Mitchell, Burns, Hayes, Wilhelm, Jansen, Bitzer; forwards, Weber, Eager, Bowyer, Arno and Holmes. The Rangers go to Woodstock on Monday.

Gossip and Comment

During the Hamilton race meet special trains will be run from Toronto on the G. T. R., and special cars will be run from Brantford on the electric railway. Four special trains will be run from Buffalo, and the regular trains from that city will stop at the track every day.

I suppose something must be discounted for professional enthusiasm when Jeffries says he "hopes Ketchell will kill Jack Johnson." Of course if Ketchell performed that service for humanity, Jeff himself would be deprived of the privilege which he professes to hold above price. Besides, it would be morally wrong, according to the standards of some purists. On the other hand, two prize fighters would thus be disposed of neatly and with despatch.

It is claimed some race tracks, like Dufferin Park, are run to give the poor man's horse a chance, but our observation of racing amounts to this, that it is no game for a poor man. Try work.

Apparently the Fourth Field Battery has first call on the Inter-City League batteries. No mention of this was made in the contracts.

The Toronto Star says about our fellow citizen, Bobby Kerr: If Hamilton wants to claim Kerr as a citizen if he wins in England some steps must be taken to see that he is not lured to some other city. Three other cities in Canada would like to get him, and he has several good situations that he can step into by saying the word. One particularly good offer has been made to him and one of his closest friends admitted this morning that there was a chance of his leaving Hamilton upon his return from England.

Chicago Tribune: We are having a bit of hard luck with our Harset selections, but we shall meet presently, never fear. Sir Martin we never regard a duffer, or as they say in America, a gold brick. We notice now that he is squiffy, fearfully so.

Detroit has lost a few games, and though leading the American League the fans are yelling murder. The Detroit News quotes some of the fans: "What in the world is ailing those 'Tigers again'?"

"Well, I expected as much. Like the rest of them, go good for a while and then blow up."

"I knew they'd do that very thing. Remember, I told you about a month ago that this would happen. I wouldn't give ten cents for their chances."

Our old friend "The Dutch Uncle" of the Minneapolis Tribune, is out with a little advice to Doc Roller, the big heavyweight wrestler, who Frank Gotch claims is the best man in the world on the wrestling mat outside himself, and the man who is sure to be champion some day—the day that Gotch himself retires. Here is the Minneapolis scribe's advice as to the prize ring bug to the doctor:

"That prize ring wasp has thrust the stinger into the ambition of Dr. Roller, the Seattle wrestler, according to the Kansas City Star. The Kaw periodical says Roller has expressed a belief that he can hang the bells on Jack Johnson.

Forget it, Benjamin Franklin Roller, forget it.

Once upon a time there was a certain lousy lad from the corn belt of Elysian lousy who gained some distinction as a wrestler. He was about the best mat tumbler in the game—and is yet for that matter. He had cleaned up about the whole mess of kindergarten wrestlers, and then he, too, turned his attention to the ring game. Before tackling Jeffries or Corbett or even old Red Robert Fitz, this wrestler decided to demonstrate his ring ability by taking on one meek and lowly "Boomer" West out on the coast.

Old Boomer had never aspired to do anything but snatch off a few sandwiches in the heavy class, so he agreed to go with the aspirant. On the night of the battle Boomer thought to make a good showing at least, and sailed in for the large clean-up. He got along so famously in the first round, he sailed in harder than ever in the second and gave the man from Iowa such a cleaning as he could get nowhere else on earth outside of a Turkish bath parlor.

It served its purpose and taught the wrestler that the fighting game is not for the royalty of the hemlock clan. It also furnished the wrestler man a corking good story to tell in his theatrical monologue, and he has made some profit out of the encounter in that way.

Keeping this in mind and ever remembering that this Iowa lad is his superior, physically, the rolling Roller had best be a course a bit so-so-east on the fighting game. Old Ed Dunkhorst or Denver Ed Smith might get used, and he slip the last out of his mouth if he ever crawls into a real prize ring.—Buffalo Enquirer.

The Quiet Hour

FOR THOUGHTFUL PEOPLE

FOLDED HANDS

I toil no more—my day is done;
How much I wrought I may not know,
I watch the light descending sun,
And see the night approaching, slow.
My day's work as it is must stand,
For labor's joy no more is mine;
The tools drop from my nerveless hand,
My dim eyes see no mark or line.

I little thought to leave it so—
Unfinished, to the plan untrue;
Another day I thought to know,
When I might change or start anew.
With weary hands I now must see
Another's skill my task complete;
The gift of use is gone from me—
The gift that makes all life seem sweet.

The pleasant labor of the day,
The following hours of welcome rest—
These from my life have passed away,
No longer has it aim or quest,
I sit and wait—and all the hours
The happy past before me stands;
With dimming eyes and failing powers
I live the life of folded hands.

PRAYER

Most glorious God, Thou Who are light and in Whom there is no darkness at all, we bless Thee for the true Light whom Thou hast sent into the world. O Thou who art the Light of men, we thank Thee that Thou hast shined into our hearts. Enable us faithfully to reflect the light which Thou hast given. Make Thy Church a beacon for the whole earth, and let the nations come to her light and bring forth Thy servants everywhere bearing the torch which can dispel the darkness of ignorance and cruelty and sin, and let the earth be filled with Thy glory. Amen.

FAITH'S VICTORIES

(J. R. Miller, in Presbyterianian.)

A great deal is said in the Bible about faith. We live by faith when we believe in things we cannot see and then act as if the things were true. That is what the first verse teaches us. "Faith is assurance of things hoped for." We hope that God loves us. If we become so assured of this that we take the hope into our hearts as a fact, that is faith. If we really believe that God loves us, the truth means a great deal to us. We are not then afraid of God. He is our friend. We may have hard things to endure—losses, sorrows, sufferings, disappointments,—but if we really believe that God loves us we will not be greatly disturbed by such experiences. If we actually believe that Christ rose from the dead, we know that we have a living Saviour who is our friend, our companion, our helper, our guide.

PIECE-MEAL

Many represent justification as a synonym for pardon, the idea of piecemeal pardon, keeping debit and credit account with God. This is to travel in the wrong road, and land people in weakness and confusion. Men who understand this neither understand God nor themselves. Surely it is well to keep in everlasting remembrance the utterance, "I am that I am." All inclusive, all embracing, undivided. Paul asks, "Is Christ divided?" Yes! in many a pulpit. Here is where the science of theology is at fault. Men teach in watertight compartments. One steamer can ram another and fill the compartment rammed with sea-water, and yet the ship may get no hurt; but this is not the way souls arrive at the port of peace and heaven. Two facts must ever be kept in mind: God is one, and man is one. Look at that young man of irregular habits; he is in a strange place and with some money in his pocket. What would he leave behind in his room? He would leave behind his memory and conscience; but not the whole man goes through that door. By and by he will have time to reflect. You stand on the wharf and the steamer is outward-bound. It is not enough that you know the port she is bound for; it is not enough that you desire to be there; to reach the port you must walk the gangway and leave the shore for the ship, and what then? Can you go down to the engine room and start the engines? No. Can you go into the binnacle house and steer? No. You are ignorant and must use the ability of others. There is no such thing as half salvation; you are either on board or not. If you are in Christ you have the whole one, and that the beginning. You increase in comfort, but you do not increase in safety. Christ is a great physician, but he does not walk the hospital all his days attending to the same patients, who look for spoon feed, and who never really gets well. He wants you cured, and well, and out, and in the fray, doing manly work in a sin-sodden world, where the devil is rough and men are weak. Up, ye! Be men! Hardy and brave.

I will go forth 'mong men, not mailed in scorn,
But in the armor of a pure intent;
Great duties are before me, and great songs,
And whether crowned or crownless,
When I fall, it matters not,
So God's work is done.

Mount Everest, of the Himalayas, is the highest mountain peak in the world, being over 29,000 feet high. The 18,000,000 packets representing one year's output of "Salada" Tea would, if placed end to end, produce a pyramid 6,500,000 feet in height, or 193 times higher than the highest mountain in the world. Can you grasp the magnitude of the demand for "Salada" Tea?

Advice to Bathers.

1. Don't bathe in unfrequented or secluded parts.
2. Don't bathe alone if subject to giddiness or faintness.
3. Don't take fright if you fall into the water with your clothes on; remember clothes float and assist you to float; make for the shore, swimming with the tide or stream.
4. Don't bathe in water without first ascertaining its depth.
5. Don't swim too far out in the sea or lake without being attended by a boat or expert swimmer.
6. Don't take fright if seized with cramps; keep cool, turn on your back, and endeavor to rub the affected part. If the leg is drawn up with pain, swim slowly with the arms only. All swimmers should practice this.
7. Don't swim without some recognized signal to give your fellow swimmer, if subject to cramps, such as lifting one arm or shouting for help; don't abuse this; leave the water as soon as possible.
8. Don't dive out of or try to get into a boat from the side; dive from the stern, and then only from a boat with a broad beam.
9. Don't swim near dams, waterfalls, or where weeds are growing.
10. Don't go out beyond the depth of your hips, if you cannot swim.
11. Don't swim without company if you have a weak heart, and then only after consulting a doctor.
12. Don't bathe too soon after eating; wait till your meal is digested.

Rules for a Long Life.

A Paris contemporary has been instructing its readers how to live to a good age, drawing its conclusions from the lives and writings of distinguished men. Michael Eugene Chevreul, the celebrated French chemist, who lived 103 years, was always frugal in regard to his diet, and considered a happy disposition to be an important factor contributing to his long life. Victor Hugo had a tablet on the wall of his house with the following: "Rising at 6, dining at 10, supping at 6, retiring at 10 make the life of man ten times ten." The secret of Molke's health lay in his great moderation in all things. Sir Benjamin Ward Richardson declared that those who wished to reach a century must neither smoke nor drink. They should eat sparingly of meat, work as little as possible by artificial light, making a fortune, and never allow ambition to rule their lives.—London Globe.

BAD NEWS FOR OUR DOCTORS.

"And now that you are through college what are you going to do?" "I shall study medicine." "Rather crowded profession already, isn't it?" "Can't help that. I shall study medicine, and those who are already in the profession will have to take their chances, that's all."—Boston Transcript.

The Sunday School Lesson

LESSON XVII.—JUNE 20, 1909.

Review.—Read Acts 15: 5-21.

Summary.—Lesson I. Topic: The Gentile Pentecost. Places: Joppa and Caesarea. Cornelius, a Roman centurion and a devout man, saw an angel of God in a vision; was told to send men to Joppa to call for Peter; he immediately sent two servants and a soldier. Peter, while in Joppa, was in a trance; he saw a sheet let down before him on which were all manner of beasts, creeping things and fowls; he was told to kill and eat; he objected; this was done three times, and all were taken up to heaven; the Spirit bade him go with them; he went and God poured out his Spirit on the Gentiles as a result of his preaching.

II. Topic: Supernatural deliverance. Place: Jerusalem. There was great persecution against the church in Antioch; Saul persecuted the disciples; he received a commission from the high priest to go to Damascus to arrest the Christians; when near Damascus he was struck down to the earth by supernatural power; heard a voice from heaven; was assisted to Damascus; was blind three days, during which time he fasted; Barnabas was sent to Antioch to find him; he laid hands on him; scales fell from his eyes; he received the Holy Spirit and was baptized; preached immediately.

III. Topic: An illustration of divine methods. Place: In and near Damascus. Saul persecuted the disciples; he received a commission from the high priest to go to Damascus to arrest the Christians; when near Damascus he was struck down to the earth by supernatural power; heard a voice from heaven; was assisted to Damascus; was blind three days, during which time he fasted; Barnabas was sent to Antioch to find him; he laid hands on him; scales fell from his eyes; he received the Holy Spirit and was baptized; preached immediately.

IV. Topic: The first Gentile church. Place: Antioch in Syria. The persecutions that came scattered the disciples; they preached the word and many believed; Barnabas was sent to Antioch to encourage the converts; Barnabas needed assistance and went to Tarsus seeking Saul; Saul returned with him and during a whole year they taught much people in Antioch; Agabus predicted a famine in Judea; Barnabas and Saul were sent to Jerusalem with a relief fund.

V. Topic: Foreign missions. Place: Antioch and the Island of Cyprus. Barnabas and Saul were chosen to go as missionaries; they went to Seleucia and Cyprus; preached the gospel in Salamis; at Paphos the Holy Spirit came upon Saul and he denounced Elymas, the false prophet, severely; Elymas was struck blind.

VI. Topic: Paul's first recorded sermon. Place: Antioch in Pisidia. The apostles journeyed to Antioch in Pisidia; Paul preached in the synagogue; many followed Paul and Barnabas; on the Sabbath day, nearly the whole city came together to hear the apostles; the Jews were filled with envy; the apostles turned to the Gentiles; the Gentiles were glad; the persecution against the apostles was great; the apostles went to Iconium.

VII. Topic: The gospel extended and established. Places: Iconium and Lystra. The missionaries were opposed to flee for their lives; went to Lystra; Paul healed a cripple; the people thought Paul and Barnabas were gods; Jews stoned Paul and dragged him out of the city; supposing him to be dead; he departed with Barnabas to Derbe, at which they returned to Lystra.

VIII. Topic: The first church council. Places: Antioch and Jerusalem. After returning from their first missionary journey Paul and Barnabas abode in Antioch a long time; there was great contention over the question of circumcision; a council met at Jerusalem; after much discussion it was decided that the Gentiles need not be circumcised according to the law of Moses. The Gentiles were asked (1) to abstain from meats offered to idols, (2) from blood, (3) from things strangled, and (4) from fornication.

IX. Topic: Active, living faith. Place: Jerusalem. James found some who declared that faith was all that was of value to a Christian; they disregarded good works; he taught the necessity of combining them in order to have a perfect Christian character; genuine faith is shown to be always accompanied by good works; works that are acceptable to God are shown to be accompanied by a living faith; the devil's faith is not the right kind, and it does not save him; the spirit separated from the body means death; good works apart from faith mean spiritual death.

X. Topic: The function of the tongue. Place: Jerusalem. James sets forth the sins of the tongue; calls an evil tongue a fire, a world of iniquity; calls it a corrupt Christian character; genuine faith is shown to be always accompanied by good works; works that are acceptable to God are shown to be accompanied by a living faith; the devil's faith is not the right kind, and it does not save him; the spirit separated from the body means death; good works apart from faith mean spiritual death.

XI. Topic: The Christian's faith. Faith is declared to be "the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen;" faith is shown to endure, suffer, triumph; we cannot please God without possessing true faith; the rewards of faith are as great to-day as ever; the examples of faith given in the lesson should help us to be strong spiritually.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS. I. Saving grace exemplified. It triumphed over self-righteousness and malignity. Paul later, in testifying of his former life, said, "After the most straitest sect of our religion I have lived a Pharisee" (Acts 23:5). The Master reveals the chief characteristics of this sect, self-righteousness and self-sufficiency, in Luke 18:9-12. Saul's manner of life showed him to be possessed of a good share of this spirit. The Pharisees were malignant persecutors (John 11:47, 12:10, 13:35) and self-righteous (Acts 9:11). What a picture of malignity! But no sooner does he open his heart to the Spirit of the Lord than his self-righteousness and malignity are gone and he humbles himself at the feet of the Christ he had persecuted, and asks of him direction and guidance.

II. Christ's promise fulfilled. In his commission to his disciples Jesus had said, "These signs shall follow" (Mark 16:17), and "Lo, I am with you always" (Matt. 28:20). In the miracles recorded this quarter we see the fulfillment of the promise. The manifested supernatural element among the early Christians gave Christianity its wonderful power. It may be asked, Have we not a right to expect like signs now? We frankly answer, Yes, but we must not forget that the "greater works" to be done by the gospel are manifested in such transformation of character as that recorded in the history of Paul.

III. The gospel preached to the Gentiles. The great commission read, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature" (Mark 16:15). The understandings of the apostles for a time seemed to be closed to this great fact, but now by special divine operation they are opened. There is no respect of persons with God. No man is accepted because he is a Jew, nor rejected because he is a Gentile. The ground of acceptance is made plain: "In every nation he that feareth God and worketh righteousness is accepted with him." The fear of the Lord will be manifested by turning from sin and gladly accepting God's provisions for deliverance from sin, and by working righteousness.

IV. Origin of the name Christian. "They that were scattered abroad" did not hide their light, but let it shine. The result is seen in one instance in the church organized at Antioch. "A great number believed and turned unto the Lord." How many to-day might see the same results from the same devotion, but alas! too many when "scattered abroad" fail to carry their light with them. The name of Christian, applied in derision to the disciples at Antioch, and it has come to be synonymous with all that stands for man's welfare here and hereafter.

V. The first missionaries. The word of the Lord to Ananias concerning Saul was, "He is a chosen vessel unto me to bear my name before the Gentiles" (Acts 9:15). The time is now ripe for the church to move out into the "regions beyond," and God makes known the ones he has chosen for this particular work. The church at Antioch, though doubtless enjoying the ministry of Barnabas and Saul, gladly responded to the divine call, and commending them to the grace of God sent them on their way. A spiritual church recognizes the mind of the Spirit in regard to those whom God calls, and without that recognition no one should go forth. The church has recognized the gospel as for all (Acts 10:11), and immediately God began to call the men for the work. As the church of to-day turns her face toward her mission to "all the world," God will raise up the workers to go.—John S. McGeary.

VI. The first Gentile church. Place: Antioch in Syria. The persecutions that came scattered the disciples; they preached the word and many believed; Barnabas was sent to Antioch to encourage the converts; Barnabas needed assistance and went to Tarsus seeking Saul; Saul returned with him and during a whole year they taught much people in Antioch; Agabus predicted a famine in Judea; Barnabas and Saul were sent to Jerusalem with a relief fund.

VII. Topic: Foreign missions. Place: Antioch and the Island of Cyprus. Barnabas and Saul were chosen to go as missionaries; they went to Seleucia and Cyprus; preached the gospel in Salamis; at Paphos the Holy Spirit came upon Saul and he denounced Elymas, the false prophet, severely; Elymas was struck blind.

VIII. Topic: The first church council. Places: Antioch and Jerusalem. Another Modern Miracle Paralysis Permanently Cured

The Sufferer Paralyzed From Waist to Feet—Encased in Plaster of Paris For Nine Months—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cure After Four Doctors Had Failed—The Cure Vouched for by a Well-Known Clergyman.

Paralysis, no matter how silent, is a terrible affliction, but to be paralyzed from waist to the feet, to be a helpless cripple, totally dependent upon what others do for you, is a condition as wretched as man could possibly bear. Such was the state of Mr. Allan J. McDonald, of Rice Point, P. E. I. For over a year he was a helpless invalid. He was paralyzed from his waist to his feet, and for nine months lay in bed encased in a plaster of Paris cast. Four of the best doctors in Prince Edward Island were unable to help him and he seemed doomed to a life of misery and despair. But hope came to him when he read of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had done for other sufferers from paralysis. He procured a supply of the Pills and began taking them. Gradually they broke the chains of disease that bound him, and filled his whole body with new blood, life and vigor. Mr. McDonald says: "I am a farmer and in consequence have a great deal of hard work to do. One day while about my work I injured my back, but at the time I paid little attention to the injury and my work. As time went on, though, help me, and I grew rapidly worse. I had to take to my bed, and in the hope that my spine might receive strength I was encased in a plaster of Paris cast. This did not help me, and I could feel the paralysis slowly creeping over me till I was totally paralyzed from my waist to my feet. I lost all control over my bowels and bladder, and my legs had no more feeling than if they were made of wood. Three other doctors strove to cure me, but for over eleven months I lay in bed unable to move. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were then advised and I was shown testimonials of others who had been cured of paralysis through them. I bought a supply and in less than three months they made a remarkable change in me. I was able to get out of bed and crawl along the floor on my hands and knees. Gradually my limbs became stronger. Soon I could walk with the aid of a cane and inside of nine months after I had begun the use of the Pills I was totally cured, and once more able to do light work. Now I am as strong as ever I was and can do my work about the farm without the least trouble. I think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are without an equal, for, besides my own case, I know of two other cases of paralysis cured by them. Two young girls who have been crippled and whom I advised to try the Pills." In corroboration of what Mr. McDonald says the Rev. D. McLean, of Charlottetown, P. E. I., writes: "I visited Mr. McDonald many times during his illness. He was attended by three or more doctors and put in plaster Paris, and everything imaginable which might be of benefit to him without success. He had lost all power of his body from his waist down and I think he was nearly a year under treatment before he began to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was with him the first day he moved his big toe, and from that time on he gradually improved, and for the last few years he has been perfectly well. I can vouch for the cure Dr. Williams' Pink Pills effected in his case." If you are sick and the treatment you are now taking does not help you, give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial. They have cured thousands of other doctors and other medical treatment had hopelessly failed. These Pills actually make new, rich, red blood, feed the starved nerves and bring health and strength to every part of the body. This is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure such apparently hopeless cases as Mr. McDonald's, and it is why they have cured thousands and thousands of sick, discouraged people in every part of the world. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The World of Amusement

General Gossip

George M. Cohan has a rather ingenious plan for bringing about a betterment in the musical comedy of the day and he gives a hint of it in an open note of advice addressed at large to "My Dear Mr. Critic" and published in the last issue of the Spotlight. His letter follows:

"Will you please consider the fact that whether or not you like 'musical comedy,' the public demands this style of entertainment, and consequently it becomes necessary to produce it. Now, so long as things are like this and so long as it is impossible to do away with musical plays entirely, why not encourage the men who write these 'awful things' to do better work? Instead of going after them hammer and tongs, just say a few kind words now and then, and you'll find that it will help a whole lot toward bettering things in this particular line of amusement."

Evidently it is Mr. Cohan's opinion that a candid criticism, which may seem harsh when the occasion requires, instead of pointing out to the librettist the error of his way, impels him to do his worst when next the opportunity offers. Who has been going after the nimble footed George with "hammer and tongs," that he should assume his present aggrieved tone? Was it because of some of the unkind things which may have been said about his last effort, "The American Idea," that he was obliged to lay aside several half-finished plays and await a more convenient season before attempting to bring them to completion? If he had been patted on the back and had been assured that "The American Idea" was "the greatest ever," would he have found the encouragement to go ahead and complete "The Chorus Man" on schedule time?

It was because he had departed from the course laid down in "Little Johnny Jones," "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway," "The Talk of New York" and "The Yankee Prince" that "Fifty Miles From Boston" and "The American Idea" failed to give the same satisfaction. His earlier plays were comedies with music rather than musical comedies, and in each of them he created a real and definite plot and developed it with a consistency that caused him to be hailed as a wonder worker. He came into prominence at a time when we no longer looked for a plot, a real plot, and a consistently developed story in the musical plays put forward.

Little by little we had been robbed of our rights in this respect, until it had become the fashion to tell the entire story in the first act and reserve the concluding portion of the entertainment for the introduction of specialties. In time even this concession was denied and then it was but a step to the senseless inanities of the musical vaudeville, which is about all that the average present day so-called musical comedy is.

The advent of the early Cohan comedies, possessed of attributes the public had ceased to expect, caused them to be received with an avidity almost pitiable. Their success was most pronounced as their long engagements in the big cities bore witness, and there is no reason why Mr. Cohan should not revert to his original practices, and in fashioning "The Chorus Man," "The Harrigan Girl," and "The Christmas Doll"—the three pieces he is said to be engaged on—make them musical comedies worthy of the name.

Reasons why Emma Janvier went on the stage and sang "Ain't It Awful, Ma-bell?" Because she wanted to be a preacher, but being a woman and barred from that profession she took the stage as the next best thing. Because she was never appreciated in private life on account of people thinking her odd. Because being thought odd was not pleasant. Because behind the footlights they called her a genius and her "oddness" art. Because they loved her, and because she liked to be loved. "To tell you the truth, I was driven to the stage and once there to the kind of talk and song I hand out," said Miss Janvier, to a Chicago Tribune reporter recently.

"You know, or more probably you don't know, that I am the produce of a small country town and I know all about the women who live in those places. O, I don't class myself with them—not on your life. If I did I wouldn't be on the stage for I couldn't have seen the humor of the situation. You know the ones I mean. The dear things who say 'Gossiping is something I never do, my dear. I never talk about anybody—not even that detestable Emma Janvier. I know some people think she's clever, but I lived next door to her and I know what I know. She may, of course be all right—but—always the 'but'—you butt up against it all the time—please excuse that pun. I don't do it often."

"So, as I say, I was driven to the stage. If I had been a man I should have taken to the pulpit and delivered a series of lectures and sermons and things on 'Women Who Won't Let Women Alone.' Unfortunately, however, I was a woman and anything I might say would in private life only be interpreted as 'spite work,' 'jealousy, my dear,' and I'll like that, you know, so I screwed up my hair into a nice little knot and had my gowns cut so they sagged—my stage gowns, of course—and I went to work to show those women just how they looked and talked. Sort of a realistic movie-picture combination, you know. 'I'm really funny,' Of course. If my monologues weren't funny they couldn't be anything at all. It's because I've been able to see humor in things that really are heart rending that I'm able to be what I am."

Not in the least discouraged by London's reversal of New York's verdict on "Love Watches," Charles Frohman has chosen another comedy by the same authors for Miss Billie Burke's use next season. The stellar role will be a Frenchman's conception of a type of American girl. It is announced that in March Miss Burke and her company will present the piece in Paris and in the original French. Think of that, now!

Miss Edith Ellis, author of "Mary Jane's Pa," is contemplating a return to the stage in a new play from her own pen, entitled "Vespers." The piece is a four act drama with scenes laid in Chaudry, a little French-Canadian village, and in old Quebec city. In plot outline the story resembles Henri Lavandier's "The Duel." As in the Lavandier drama, a priest and an atheist battle for the soul and the love of a woman.

The San Francisco earthquake has been dramatized, but not by Lincoln J. Carter or Theodore Kremer. It remained for Gertrude Nelson Andrews to appropriate herself to the task, and she has called her play "Through a Window." The action of the drama takes place the evening before and the morning of the quake. The story deals with municipal graft and its exposure. Lillian Albertson, the original Emma Brooks in "Paid in Full," has been engaged by Klaw & Erlanger to create the principal feminine role.

At the Grand

Lew Dockstader and his big minstrel company will be seen at the Grand next Thursday evening for one performance only. As usual Dockstader comes with an all new show; not one feature of last year's production having been retained. Dockstader's effort is always aimed at producing real minstrelsy, and in this direction his show always differs from the usual minstrel bills which present the old familiar first part circle, followed with more or less able vaudeville olio. All this has been eliminated and real minstrelsy, as Mr. Dockstader knows it, is the result.

Somewhat of a departure has been introduced in this year's production in that a story runs through the entire show. The first part shows the Club House and terraced grounds of the Possum Hunt Club, colored organization, the members of which are found discussing the failure of the white man to discover the North Pole. It is decided that the colored brethren shall make an effort in the exploring line and Dockstader, as the President of the Club, looms up as an Arctic explorer, and starts out in an airship for the Pole. Of course, this is but an interlude to the first part songs and witticisms, but the idea is carried throughout the evening and in the finale shows the Minstrel King in the Arctic regions, where he has the North Pole under his arm and a great Polar bear in meek submissiveness at his feet.

The company contains Neil O'Brien, who for several years past has been so prominently identified with this organization. This year O'Brien has a new vehicle for his eccentric darkey characterization, which he calls "The House of Rest." Another shining light in the comedy circle will be found in Al Johnson, a comedian whom Dockstader introduces to the east for the first time this year, and whom, it is said, has made a distinct hit in minstrelsy. He is styled "the modern Billy Emerson." Others in the line light of the first part are: Eddie Mazier, Pete Detzel, and Tommy Hyde. Dockstader's individual specialty this year shows him in a Taft make-up, with a submarine boat at the bottom of the ocean, where his peculiar style of political witticisms evoke the usual merriment.

The singing strength of this year's company includes: Will Oakland, W. H. Thompson, Herbert Willison, Geo. M. Vail, Master Pierce Keegan, and a choir of twenty excellent voices. Seats will be on sale Tuesday morning, and there will undoubtedly be a good demand, as Dockstader has always been a great favorite with Hamiltonians.

Mountain Theatre

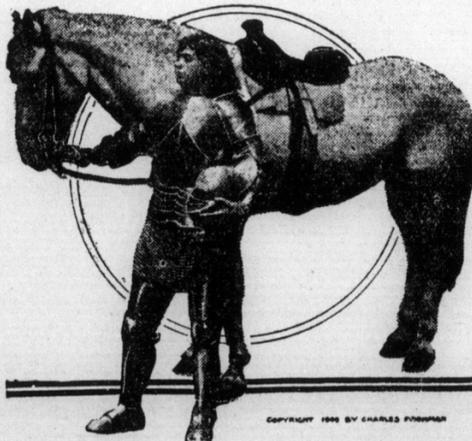

The Summers Stock Company will offer for next week the great problem play, "The Lion and the Mouse." Those who have seen Miss Belle Stevenson in any of the many plays she has appeared in will know that the leading role of "Shirley Rossmore" will be in good hands, as Miss Stevenson has an abundance of that magnetism which holds her audience interested till the final curtain. The supporting company is well balanced and a finished production of this excellent play should be the only result. New vaudeville will be introduced between the acts. Lyons and Esvyn have been retained for next week.

Maple Leaf Park

For next week's free show at Maple Leaf Park Manager Robertson was fortunate in securing the Picaro troupe of sensational acrobats, who recently came to America after filling a long engagement at the hippodrome in London. It was only owing to the fact that they had an off week that they were able to come here, and something out of the ordinary in the way of an acrobatic act is promised patrons of the popular pleasure resort next week. Their stunts are unusually new, and made such a hit in England that the troupe was requested to play before the King. The act is one of the highest priced attractions of its nature on the road to-day. Although everything has been detrimental to the welfare of the park since it was opened, the management is well satisfied with the outlook and is prepared to give Hamiltonians some real high class attractions before the season ends. The cool weather and the repairs to the street railway have affected the attendance materially, but Maple Leaf has been so well patronized in proportion as any summer park on the continent, and for that reason the management has cause to be satisfied. Every effort is being made to furnish high class amusement, and every day sees some new attraction booked. For the second week in July an attraction that will be a decided novelty has been booked. A big airship will make two flights daily at the park, the spectators

Maude Adams to Portray Joan of Arc.

MISS ADAMS, IN ARMOR, AND HER WHITE HORSE.

Boston, June 19.—Boston will see Maude Adams in a monster open-air production of "Joan of Arc" in the Harvard stadium next Tuesday, and it will mark Miss Adams' first appearance in an open-air spectacle. But the occasion will be notable and means so much to cultured Boston that the faculty of Harvard, headed by former President Elliot, will attend. More than 15,000 persons will see the play, and a small army of actors and actresses will give the battle being enabled to see the night ascension by the aid of a powerful searchlight which is being installed on the big electric tower. To-day the Woodmen of the World hold a big picnic at the park, and special attractions have been arranged. Several other picnics have been booked, including the G. T. R. employees from Stratford, the Michigan Central employees from St. Thomas, the S. O. E. from Toronto and many others that will be the means of bringing large crowds to the city. The City Baseball League plays two games at the park every Saturday afternoon, and a bicycle Marathon race will be held within a few weeks time.

LEVIS SCANDAL.

GOVIN TO LET OUT THE BOTTOM OF THE SCANDAL.

Compounding a Felony the Real Charge That is Involved—Atkinson and Lindsay Are Only Minor Figures Now, and People in High Circles Will be Caught in the Dragnet.

Quebec, June 18.—The Attorney-General's Department of Quebec, presided over by Sir Lomer Gouin, is busily engaged these days searching for evidence into every phase of the Levis forgeries scandal, with a view to reach the guilty parties and have them punished as they deserve. The recent arrest of W. P. Lindsay, former manager of the Levis branch of the Bank of British North America, charged with obtaining money under false pretences in connection with these forgeries, is the first step taken by the Attorney-General to get at the bottom of the scandal.

The story of the Levis forgeries is replete with sensational incidents. Last fall it was discovered that forged notes to the amount of $7,000 had been discounted at the Levis branch of the Bank of British North America had come to light. These notes bore the presumptive endorsement of Mr. George Davie, a member of the well-known Levis wrecking firm of Davie & Company. There were also notes discounted by the Levis branch of the Bank National to the amount of $2,700.

When the discovery was made and Mr. Davie repudiated all knowledge of these notes the banks did not take any steps to have the forger arrested, and it was some time afterwards, in fact when the forgeries were common talk on the streets, that a young Levis resident named George Atkinson, who carried on a commission and brokerage business, and had no means except his commissions, was arrested on the charge of forgery. Atkinson admitted his guilt and was taken to the Quebec Police Court for examination, where it is alleged an effort was made to settle matters. Repayment of the moneys advanced by the National Bank was made, not by the prisoner or his friends, but by a certain person for advantages accorded him.

In the meantime the Crown officers, hearing of the matter, stepped in and conducted the preliminary investigation, which was held in private. Atkinson pleaded guilty, and told a story that implicated others and also showed a very loose system of banking, in fact culpable negligence. He said he not only profited, but gave part of the money to Manager Lindsay. This latter denies, claiming that he had not profited by the forgeries. He also denies that he ever suspected the endorsement on the notes were forged. In the meantime Atkinson was allowed to withdraw his plea of guilty and plead not guilty. He was then committed for trial at the April term of the King's Bench Criminal Court, when he was acquitted.

He was re-arrested on another charge and again tried during the first week of the present month, when the jury disagreed. The most remarkable incident connected with these trials was the absence of several witnesses who could have thrown much light upon interesting facts connected with the forgeries and their sequel, and given evidence that would have led to the exposure of the compounding of felony. Among those absent witnesses was the Quebec manufacturer who gave his check to pay and retire the forged notes held by the Bank National. He could not have had any interest in Atkinson, in fact he did not even know him. The furnisher of this money and a lawyer who acted as the negotiator when brought into the first preliminary inquiry at the court denied all knowledge, but later, when the Crown Prosecutors managed to get hold of the cheque written, both admitted their knowledge and part in the illegal transaction that left them open to prosecution and were allowed scot free. The Attorney-General is now in possession of these facts, and more, and the public is anxiously awaiting developments that are bound to create an intense sensation, and may lead to prosecution in high quarters.

W. P. Lindsay, now under arrest, is the son of a most respectable and untainted citizen, who has the sympathy of the entire community. The sentencing of Mr. Jules Fournier, editor of Le Nationaliste, to three months in jail for contempt of court is a branch of the case. After the acquittal of Atkinson on the first occasion Mr. Fournier, on May 9, warmly attacked those who had handled the case. The Judges regarded the article as an attack on the Superior Court. Fournier was brought before Judge Langelier. Fournier's article was entitled "The Prostitution of Justice."

A Wellington dispatch says that when Sir Joseph Ward sailed for England a large crowd assembled. There was some cheering and some booing as the steamer left. The boating was due to the prostration of Parliament. A mob at Ulisses drove the Catholic Bishop of Lincoln and two priests from town, threatening them with violence.

Many complaints are being made again by residents in the park district and between here and Winona at the excessive speed automobiles are making, and the dense clouds of dust being raised. It is said the principal offenders are from across the border. Pneumonia's Race With Consumption

These Two Diseases Mow Down Annually Ten Times More Than War and Famine Combined.

At this season, of the two evils pneumonia is most to be feared. It develops quickly and if not taken in time leaves the patient but a slim chance for his life. Look out for the little devil, don't let it run on—keep it from developing into either pneumonia or consumption.

Who knows of a real trusty remedy that can be relied on to cure colds as quickly as Nerviline, it is impossible to find anything that draws out inflammation, eases that tight, congested feeling, gives such sure relief as Nerviline. Why for fifty years in thousands of homes no other medicine is even kept. "Sometimes I hurried off to work without an overcoat," writes Mr. C. C. Hinckley of New London, "and as a consequence caught severe chills, I neglected the cold that was tightening around me and finally La Grippe held me in its grip and I was taken to bed as helpless as a child. I feared pneumonia most but fortunately I had lots of Nerviline in the house. When it was well rubbed into my chest, a hard, tearing cough loosened up. I used Nerviline as a gargle and got ease in my throat in a few hours. Every four hours I took half a teaspoonful of Nerviline in hot sweetened water to break up the fever and chills. My chest felt weak and tender after this attack and for several weeks I wore a Nerviline Porous Plaster which strengthened my chest and prevented a relapse.

"I can recommend Nerviline as the best and only cure for coughs, colds, tight chest, sciatica and rheumatic pains."

Don't be misled into taking anything but "NERVILINE," fifty years' success stands behind it. Large 25c bottles at all dealers.

EVEN HYDRO MEN OPPOSE MONOPOLY

As Proposed to the City by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

That Point to be First Settled—Engineer Asked to Come Here on Monday.

There was nothing spectacular about the first meeting of the new power committee, held last night, and those who went there expecting fireworks left disappointed. What the aldermen did was to engage in a very businesslike session, which lasted less than an hour, and at which the preliminary steps in straightening out the tangle over the power question were taken.

Mayor McLaren was expected to have made a slashing attack on the circular issued by Ald. Wright before the by-laws were voted on, in view of certain insinuations, but His Worship wisely refrained from obscuring the salient features of the meeting by any other discussion than on the power subject itself. The statements made by Ald. Wright will be dealt with later. That gentleman was on the job last night, and no doubt there would have been an interesting time had the matter been brought up.

Briefly this is what the committee decided on:

To engage an electrical expert to assist City engineer Macallum in preparing information.

To see if the commission will permit the city to take 1,000 horse power without binding itself to take any more.

To see if the city is obliged to pay for cost, maintenance and so forth on 1,500 horse power, should it after ordering this amount decided to take only 900 horse power.

To meet again on Monday night, and ask the commission to have its solicitor and an engineer present to answer questions.

The meeting last night began in the Finance Committee room, but it was found too small to accommodate the crowd, and the aldermen adjourned to the Council chamber.

Ald. Jutten, who was suggested as chairman by Ald. Morris, declined on the ground that he could not spare the time, and Mayor McLaren presided.

Each alderman was furnished with a copy of the following letter received by Mayor McLaren from the Hydro Commission's chief engineer:

"In reply to your letter of 15th inst. I enclose estimate of price of power for 1,000, 2,000, 3,000 and 4,000 horse power, also several copies of all of the form of agreement, and two copies of the Act of 1909.

"I invite your attention to section 10 of the Act, and paragraph 11 of the agreement. These provisions will apply to the municipality of the city of Hamilton.

"For further guidance I enclose two copies agreement with the Ontario Power Company."

"We have estimated the cost of power to Hamilton on a basis of demands of 1,000, 2,000, 2,500, 3,000 and 4,000, and give them to you below. The figures for 1,500 horse power are those given to you previously in the old schedule.

Total cost Sink. fund

Demand. per h. p. charge

1,000 17 92 $1 52

1,500 17 50 1 39

2,000 16 65 1 26

2,500 16 13 1 19

3,000 15 79 1 14

4,000 15 55 1 13

"Yours truly, Hydro-Electric Power Commission, P. W. Sothman, Chief Engineer."

Clause 11 of the agreement, to which attention was directed, reads as follows:

"At any time, any other municipal corporation, or pursuant to said Act, any railway or distributing company or any other corporation or person, applies to the commission for a supply of power, the commission shall notify the applicant and the corporations, parties thereunto, in writing, of a time and place and hear all representations that may be made as to the terms and conditions for such supply."

The meaning of this, the Mayor pointed out, was that the city was not a party to the contract and must make application for power, the other corporations and the commission naming the terms on which the city could enter.

Ald. Cooper thought this meant that the city could take power for the Beach, say a thousand horse power, and stop there, according to the reading of the clause. So did Ald. Jutten.

"That would be a nice way out of the difficulty," said His Worship, but he explained that he went to Toronto with City Clerk Kent and interviewed Hon. Adam Beck and Solicitor Lobbo about this. Mr. Beck, after some hesitation, said this concession could not be made to Hamilton. It would have to come in on the same terms as the other municipalities and agree to take all its power from the commission.

"They may have changed their minds since then," ventured Ald. Jutten.

Then Ald. Allan moved the following resolution, seconded by Ald. Jutten:

"That the chairman be instructed to apply to the commission to find out what terms they will take us in on for 1,000 horse power, and to find out whether they would allow us to take 1,000 horse power or more, as we see fit, but that we be not bound to take any more than the 1,000 horse power, or such amount as we may order."

Ald. Peregrine—"You will take your own risk as regards liability."

Mayor McLaren—"We are not closing; we are only getting information."

Ald. Peregrine—"As quick as you take that step you get many things involved."

Mayor McLaren—"We should make it clear that we will not be compelled to take any more than we order."

Although assured by the Mayor, who quoted the correspondence signed by the commission's engineer, that the city could reduce the amount of power ordered to 75 per cent, but that the city would have to pay the full cost of maintenance, repairs, line loss and so forth, Ald. Jutten insisted on the following question: If we order 1,500 h. p., and afterwards reduce under section 10, clause 1, to 900 h. p., will we get the 900 h. p. at the same rate that we got the 1,500 h. p., all other things being equal?

When Ald. Anderson suggested the advisability of getting one of the engineers here to answer questions, Ald. Allan quoted the fact that we quite clear according to clause 11 that no one could speak authoritatively as to the terms before the commission and municipalities, already parties to the contract agreed upon them.

The Mayor announced that he had been informed by the young man who delivered the form of contract that the power was to be delivered to Hamilton at the Beach from Dundas at 13-200 volts, and that no provision was made in the estimates for the cost of labor or transformers.

The engineer Macallum, when asked if the power could be used at the Beach at the voltage without transformers, said it would cost $5 a kilowatt to stop it down for the 500 kilowatt motors. In addition to this, Ald. Allan pointed out that it would be necessary in any event to stop the power down to bring it back to the sewage plant and the quarry, so that the city would be obliged to have transformers.

An important point brought up by Ald. Jutten was that from the information the aldermen had the meter for Hamilton was to be at Dundas. He did not see why this city should pay line loss on ten miles of transmission line. The meter should be at the Beach pumping plant.

Immediately after the meeting the Mayor wrote to the commission notifying it of what had been done, and asking that they send their engineer and solicitor up on Monday night, if possible, and, if not, then on Wednesday night.

Mr. Macallum promised to do his best to get the information asked from him by that time.

One or two persons informed the detectives that they had seen Miss Sigel with the young Chinese at the theatre about a week ago.

The building in which the body was found is rented by Sam Leung, who runs a chop suey restaurant on the second floor, using the third and fourth floors for living purposes. Leon occupied a hall bedroom on the fourth floor. The front room on the fourth floor is occupied by the proprietor of the restaurant, who is a cousin of Leon. It wasn't until this afternoon, however, that the odor in the house became unbearable to him.

This evening he went to the police station and told the lieutenant in charge that he feared his cousin Leon had been murdered. Two policemen were sent to the house. The door of Leon's room was forced and the trunk, tied with a rope, was discovered.

When the police cut the rope, the cover flew up from the pressure of the body. A woman's body, bent double, head down, was tied under the knees and around the back so that the knees were drawn close under the chin. The lower part of the legs had been doubled back and also tied.

About the woman's neck was a noose made of the same awning rope with which the body was tied. The noose had been pulled so tightly that it was buried in the flesh, and the coroner thought the neck also had been fractured. The woman's face was swollen almost beyond recognition.

Both Sorry.

St. Petersburg, June 18.—The British Embassy here has received a report concerning the firing upon the British steamer Woodburn on Wednesday night. Its contents have not been made public.

The belief that any grave developments would follow the affair here had been excluded, however, as it evidently was the result of some one's blunder, and for which either or both sides are willing to express regret.

At the meeting of the Southern Alberta Land Company, in London, England, the report recommending that £400,000 be spent in irrigation was carried.

Buffalo, June 18.—Among the papers read at to-day's session of the International Association of Chiefs of Police was one by Colonel H. J. Grasett, of Toronto, on the use of "sweat-box" by the police. Col. Grasett stated that a few days ago he rode into Viscount, Sask., and posing as a sheriff, "lifted" six valuable horses, which he drove northwards with him. The Mounted Police were notified, and a general order sent out for his arrest. Momentarily word is expected of a fight which will last until the rustler is either killed or put out of business.

As far as can be learned, this man, "Red" Murray, alias Ryan, escaped from the provincial jail in Winnipeg some two years ago, and has since made his headquarters in the vicinity of the Big Muddy River, Montana. It is understood the State of Montana has offered a big reward for his capture on account of his rustling operations in that State.

When he escaped from Winnipeg jail he was awaiting trial on a charge of horse-stealing, and the Montana authorities were also after him at that time on a similar charge, many times over.

LITTLE THIEVES.

The Mystery of Vancouver Shoplifting Solved.

Vancouver, June 18.—It came as a shock to even the old heads of the police department to find out yesterday that the shoplifters who have been for weeks causing the department store managers to turn grey with worry, and to keep the floor walkers in a state of nervous prostration, were made up of children. The oldest in the gang is just about 12 years. The youngest is 5.

Several arrests were made yesterday. The prisoners, consisting of the two McFee girls, aged 12 and 7; a girl named Waterman, aged 12, and a McFee boy, aged 5. They all live on Mount Pleasant.

The youngsters claim that they were first started on a career of crime by older girls, who told them how easy it was to pick things up in stores. For a time they worked for these female fugitives, getting a share of what they purloined. Lately they concluded that the thing was good enough to keep to themselves. Taking all the risk for a quarter of the proceeds did not strike them as just the proper distribution of labor and profit.

Mounted Police Hot on Trail of Desperado Armed to Teeth.

Humbolt, Sask., June 18.—The Humboldt detachment of the Royal North-West Mounted Police are having a hot chase after a Montana bad man, who is working the country to the north of here, literally armed to the teeth. The man is an ex-convict with a bad record, a crack shot and horse rascal. He swears he will not be taken alive. A few days ago he rode into Viscount, Sask., and posing as a sheriff, "lifted" six valuable horses, which he drove northwards with him. The Mounted Police were notified, and a general order sent out for his arrest. Momentarily word is expected of a fight which will last until the rustler is either killed or put out of business.

U. S. SENATE TO RETALIATE.

Angered at Restrictions on Export of Pulpwood.

Discouraging Export Called a Mediaval Expedient.

Special Amendment Aimed at Canada Will be Drafted.

Washington, June 18.—In the course of the debate on the paper schedule in the Senate to-day the Canadian policy of discouraging the export of wood pulp and pulpwood was severely criticized.

Senator Aldrich, the Republican leader, took a prominent part in this discussion, characterizing this expedient as "medieval." This, he said, was no longer recognized as a wise method of building up home industries. Mr. Aldrich quoted a speech made by the Premier of Quebec, in which the Premier declared it to be the policy of the Provincial Government to prohibit the exportation of pulpwood and wood pulp in order to build up the paper manufacturing industry at home.

"Ontario," Mr. Aldrich said, "had already taken steps to limit the shipment of pulpwood from the Province. If the plan of prohibiting the exportation of pulpwood and wood pulp should be carried out, Mr. Aldrich declared, it would greatly injure the paper industry in the United States. The prohibition in Quebec would have a serious effect on the New England mills.

QUESTION OF RETALIATION.

Senator Cummins, of Iowa, asked Mr. Aldrich if the maximum and minimum, a feature of the proposed tariff law, could not be invoked in retaliation against the effect of the restrictive measures inaugurated in Canada, and the Republican leader replied that there was some doubt of this. He explained by saying that before the maximum rate can be applied the president of the United States must be absolutely certain, as the result of an investigation, that a discrimination against this country was intended. The restriction in Canada, Mr. Aldrich said, might be so worded as to apply ostensibly to all countries alike, while applying really to the United States only.

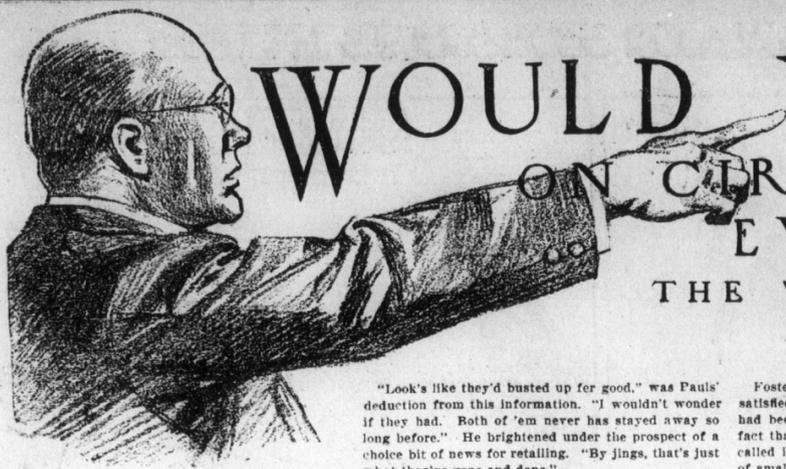

TO MEET RESTRICTIVE MEASURES.

Senator Aldrich then made the highly significant statement that the Finance Committee would draw up an amendment intended to meet the restrictive measures of Canada.

An amendment offered by Senator Stone to-day placing paper and wood pulp on the free list was voted down without the formality of a roll call. This ended in a fizzle the long agitation for free pulp. Senator LaFollette found himself for once supporting the Finance Committee.

NO FREE PRINT PAPER.

Washington, June 18.—Senator Brown's amendment to the tariff bill providing for free importation of print paper was defeated to-day by a vote of 29 to 52, only four Republicans, Messrs. WOULD YOU CONVICT - ON CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE?

THE WHIPCORD MURDER A TRUE STORY

EDGAR TRUMAN BRACKETT, State Senator of New York and one of the ablest lawyers in the country, says:— "Circumstantial evidence is good evidence, and if the case is complete and follows the rules of law properly prescribed in other respects it holds no more danger for the innocent man than direct statements. It has been said that circumstantial evidence is superior to direct evidence because it does not admit of perjury; that circumstances cannot lie, but witnesses may. This distinction is, I think, falsely emphasized. There is no such weight in favor of circumstantial evidence. A circumstance must be presented to the jury through witnesses. And are not the witnesses still open to the same suspicion of perjury? "It may be said with truth, however, that witnesses are somewhat less likely to commit perjury or to be honestly mistaken concerning a simple circumstance than concerning a complicated story presented through direct testimony. All evidence, of whatsoever kind, depends chiefly upon the reliability of the witnesses and the care with which the rules of law are applied by the Court. "I look forward to the day when capital punishment shall be abolished. When that time comes juries will be able to approach their duties with better balance and to judge more fairly of all evidence. They will then be removed from the possibility of committing an error that lies beyond remedy and at the same time will be free to give convicting testimony its full weight."

"WHAT'S gone of the Bucksons?" asked James Pauls. His question was directed to the convened loiterers about the little store. "Ain't seen 'em in two weeks," he added.

"Guess John's off on his sloop," said one of the others. "As for Nancy, she's got a fancy fer makin' quick dashes on friends an' relatives 'round the State. Aint' much use tryin' to imagine where she is—'s likely one place as another. Passin' there to-day an' I see the house 's still closed."

"I wonder if she makes it 's hard for her relatives 's what she does fer John?" suggested the storekeeper with a smile.

"Pity fer 'm if she does," exclaimed Pauls. "That's a queer thing, too. Last time I see both of 'm at the house they was just havin' the rip rarinest set to I ever heard tell on. She was just givin' him snakes."

"Bet he wasn't sayin' much," volunteered the storekeeper.

"No, he wasn't just then. But he was lookin' a whole lot, and you can lay on that."

"How'd it come about?"

"I was comin' by the orchard an' I passed by the kitchen window. There was a clatter comin' from Nancy's tongue like she was talkin' against the Day of Judgement. I heard a good many mad women in my time, but I had over the palm to Nancy Buckson fer makin' a man feel like he was standin' unprotected in a hall an' lightnin' storm. She was lashin' out with all she could put her mind on and a lot she couldn't."

"Thinks I, here's a likely time fer poor old John, and I stopped. I stepped up quiet to the window and peeped in over the sill. There was Nancy ragin' up and down, with a skillet in one hand and a wooden spoon in t'other, and just makin' a monkey of John, she was talkin' that sharp. But when I looked at him I tell you I was surprised. Never seen him with such a face. They do say John has a temper somewhere under that calm face of his, but I never believed it before."

"He was standin' near the stove watchin' Nancy close. He wasn't sayin' nothin'; he was just lookin'. And I guess if there's anythin' in the evil eye he'd have piazled her up on the spot. He aint' what you'd call pale at any time, John isn't, but his cheeks was just burnin' red and his eyes was a-dancin' in his head, he was that mad. He stood there fumblin' with a whipcord, makin' knots and hitches without knowin' what he was doin'."

"I saw that wasn't no place fer me, so I lit out fer home. Pretty near as fur's I could see the house I could hear her screamin' at him."

As to John's Temper.

"You're right about John havin' a temper," said the storekeeper. "He's a bad one when it gets worked up. They call him Parson Buckson, 'r the Prayin' Captain, on board his sloop. He's pious, they say. Has all hands up fer service on Sundays, and by ordinary couldn't be hired to put a belayin' pin to anythin' but his just and proper use. But they tell of a man that crossed him once and got his skull crushed in fer his pains—never spoke again. There was other times, too, when he let go of himself and laid up folks that was holdin' the other end of the argument. Oh, Johnny Buckson's got a temper all right, and don't you forget it."

"When was this time you saw them quarrellin', Pauls?" asked Foster, the Sheriff, who had listened in silence to the conversation.

"Oh, must have been about a fortnight gone—yes, full as much as that. Hold on—I remember now. It was two weeks ago yesterday—Friday. I was comin' back from Pierce's."

"When did they go away?" continued Foster.

"Why, if Pauls is right in his date they was gone the next mornin'." answered the storekeeper. "I passed that way two weeks to-day and the house was all closed up. Aint' neither of them been seen since, so fur 's I know."

"Look's like they'd busted up fer good," was Pauls' deduction from this information. "I wouldn't wonder if they had. Roth of 'em never has stayed away so long before." He brightened under the prospect of a choice bit of news for retailing. "By jings, that's just what they've gone and done."

The deliberations of the cracker box conversation were interrupted in a startling manner at this point. A barefooted boy, breathless and staring, stumbled up the steps and hung into the circle.

"Oh, Mister Foster," he gasped, his small voice almost lost in fear and labor of lungs, "we just found—a dead woman—in the Cropsey Woods—me 'n' Chris Taylor."

The Sheriff started up.

"What! A dead woman? Who—where?"

The boy nodded and struggled for speech.

"We was blackberryin'. We had Chris Taylor's little pup with us. In a patch of blackberries he set up a howl—'n' begun scratchin' like anythin'. We thought it was somethin'—'n' we were sickin' him on when he dug up a hand—'n' then part of a dress. We run all the way to tell you, Mister Foster."

"Who was she?"

"We didn't stop to look. It was in a clearin' in the woods—'bout half a mile back of Buckson's."

The Sheriff hurried away to hitch up his horses. Others of the group scattered through the streets, intent upon spreading the strange news and preparing to take part in the investigation. Within ten minutes, as if by prearrangement, thirty men and boys had met and were trailing the Sheriff's rig along the road leading into the Cropsey Woods. Pauls lingered to put a team to his farm wagon and lumbered after them. The two small informants accompanied Foster.

After proceeding about half a mile the Sheriff drew up and started off with his guides on foot through the heavily grown timberland. He had not covered many rods when he had no need of their further and somewhat vague directions. Mournfully through the shaded aisles of the forest came the shrill whining howl of a dog. It led him straight into a large clearing thick with tangled vines and blackberry bushes.

Finding the Body.

The little animal that had been the first to make the discovery had not left his post, but sat beside a stretch of clear sand voicing the alarm. The hollow he had scratched in the soil showed to Foster a white human hand, with fingers bent inward, and the folds of a garment.

The searchers were soon at work with a spade which had been brought along by one of them. The earth yielded readily and they soon found that the body had been buried from sight by only a few inches. It was the face they leaned toward. The Sheriff wiped the soil from it with his handkerchief. With almost a simultaneous breath those that crowded about him spoke a name:—

"Nancy Buckson!"

There was no mistaking the features of the wife of the sea captain, and the body was clothed in a calico dress which they had seen her wear a hundred times. Almost all of those in the party had known her for years, had talked with her, had seen her daily about the streets. Awe stricken in the presence of the proof of terrible and secret death visited upon a member of their little community, they stood back until, under the urging of the Sheriff, they summoned courage to complete the disinterment of the body and prepare for its removal to the town.

It was discovered that the sides of the shallow grave had been thickly sprinkled with chloride of lime, evidently to hasten decomposition. The Sheriff was not able immediately to determine the manner in which death had been induced, and was at first inclined to believe that poison had been employed. There was no evidence of a wound. The body was being carried to Pauls' wagon when one of the searchers, who was acting as a bearer, called Foster's attention to the neck. The Sheriff then found what the clinging soil had concealed—that a stout cord was wrapped tightly about under the collar. It had been bound with great strength and the skin was deeply compressed. There was no doubt that the woman had been strangled to death.

Medical examination confirmed this evident fact and further established that the victim had been dead about two weeks. Marks of bruises upon the limbs seemed to indicate that she had engaged in a severe struggle before being overpowered.

Interest centred immediately upon the cord used by the murderer, and Foster took this as his first clue. It was a woven whip lash of the detachable kind, such as could be found in the possession of any farmer in the vicinity. The story told by Pauls recurring, the Sheriff asked him to state whether in his opinion it could be the same one which he had seen in the hands of Buckson during the altercation he had witnessed. He replied that it was very similar, but that there was no mark upon it by which he could swear positively to its identity.

Foster then visited the Buckson home. He found it locked front and rear, but one of the side windows was not fastened and through this he gained entrance. The kitchen presented a scene of confusion and the results of violence that left no doubt in the mind of the investigator that he had found the place in which the murder had been committed. The table had been overturned. One of the chairs was broken—Foster thought that it might have been used as a weapon—utensils and broken crockery strewn the floor. In one corner lay a woman's shoe. This was of interest from the fact that one shoe had been missing from the body found in the woods. Most significant of all was the fact that the polished shaft of a hickory wagon whip, cracked in the middle by what must have been a heavy blow, lay amid the wreckage.

The Missing Silver.

Other rooms in the house indicated that some one had made hasty preparations for departure. Trunks in the attic had been thrown on end and their contents scattered about the floor. The drawers of dressers and chests had been pulled out and thrown aside. A tumbled litter of clothing and household articles carpeted the living apartments.

Foster examined the wreckage with some care and satisfied himself that all objects of intrinsic value had been selected. This view was borne out by the fact that the sideboard had been cleared. Neighbors called in to give information declared that a number of small sterling silver pieces had always stood upon the shelf.

The whiphandle was identified beyond all question by residents of the place who had seen Buckson use it on his farm wagon. The wagon itself stood in the barn and there was no whip in the socket.

In the cellar Foster found a small open box containing chloride of lime. A quantity had been taken from it and a trail of white leading up the stairs and faintly traceable on the rear steps showed that it had been used recently and carelessly.

Outside the door of the woodshed the investigator came upon a spade. It bore marks of use in sandy soil, whereas the ground included in Buckson's farm was composed uniformly of rich loam. Of greater interest were some streaks of the chloride of lime still now due to be upon her return. The Sheriff, armed with the necessary papers, made the trip to New York and laid the matter before the police. Captain James Leonard was assigned to assist him. Application was made of the port authorities, and by their aid the berth occupied by the Oregon was quickly learned. She had arrived the preceding day.

Foster and Leonard boarded the vessel the following afternoon, having learned that the captain had not gone ashore. Buckson was sitting in the shade of the deck house and Leonard stepped around to that side.

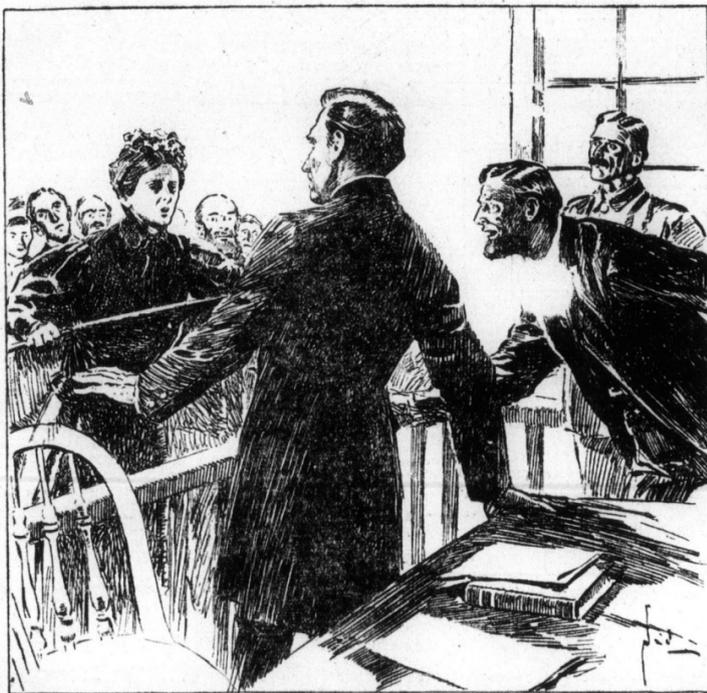

"Captain Buckson?" he inquired.

"Yes, sir."

"At the demand of the State of Rhode Island I place you under arrest for the murder of your wife, Nancy Buckson, on or about May 21."

The man sat limp in his chair, gazing in helpless horror at the policeman, his face gone white under its tan.

"Squire," he stammered, after he had gained some adhering to the blade. The value of all the circumstances was heightened by the fact that there had been no rain in the vicinity since a short time before the disappearance of the Bucksons, when there had been three days of heavy downpour.

"JUST LET HIM OUT OF THERE THIS MINUTE OR YOU'LL HAVE TROUBLE WITH ME."

The case was complete in all its details to the minds of the authorities. No one could be found who had seen either of the Bucksons after the quarrel described by Pauls. The sea captain, as a hundred witnesses could testify, was a man slow to anger but terrible in his wrath. It was plain that, spurred to the limits of exasperation by the shrewishness and continual fault finding of his wife, he had struck her in the heat of temper and had wound the cord about her neck, probably but a moment after Pauls had left the window. After strangling her, they believed, he had waited until night, when he had dragged or carted her body to the woods, buried it with lime and returned to gather all things of value from his home, after which he had made off under cover of darkness, leaving the place locked. At the inquest the jury returned a verdict in which they found that Buckson was the murderer of the woman.

The village was but a short distance from Providence, and Foster visited that city after the inquest. Buckson's sloop, the Oregon, was on the regular run from Providence to Norfolk, Va., and the Sheriff's first thought was to obtain trace of her movements.

The information he gathered fitted consistently with the clearest view of the case. It was a Friday when James Pauls saw the beginning of the domestic tragedy through the window. The Oregon had been scheduled to leave early in the afternoon of the next day. She had been delayed on account of the failure of Buckson to appear on time. He came late that afternoon and the Oregon sailed early on Sunday morning. His vessel had thus, apparently, served John Buckson as a convenient means of flight.

The Sheriff's Work.

The Sheriff learned that the sloop was hooked to touch at New York on her return voyage, and herein he thought he saw the murderer's plan. The captain, he conceived, would not be likely to leave the Oregon at Newport. A cargo would be taken on board there for New York, and there would be money on hand at the latter port that a hunted man would find useful in flight. Then, too, the metropolis would offer facilities for evading pursuit that would be lacking in the smaller place. Buckson had every reason to believe that his crime was concealed for a month or more, until long absence of any tenant from the house should lead to an investigation. Even then, as the Sheriff understood the sailor's probable reasoning, there was small chance of the discovery of the body and he need be under no pressure to escape. The conclusion of this to the Sheriff was that New York was the place to look for the fugitive.

Some time had elapsed before Foster had reached this stage in his inquiries, and the Oregon was even control of himself by a great effort; "Squire, I never killed Nancy. You've got the wrong man."

"All right," said Leonard soothingly; "perhaps we have. But you'll have to come along, just the same."

John Buckson suddenly stood upright and passed a hand over his damp face. Apparently in this action he summoned to his aid some latent forces of command and resistance, for it was the strong outface of wave and tempest that confronted them the next moment.

"Do you tell me that Nancy is dead?" he asked.

"There seems to be no doubt about that," answered Leonard, "and you will be asked to explain how."

"Will you let me go below a second to attend to some private matters?"

But Leonard suspected and feared the change in the body of the prisoner.

"We'll go with you while you get what you want."

Buckson stood a space in thought and then shook his head.

"I'll go with you," he said calmly.

They took him to Police Headquarters for the night and next morning, having waived extradition, he was started for Providence in charge of Foster. The Sheriff tried to engage him in conversation, but with little success. He could make nothing of the man. The sailor sat in morose silence, showing no disposition to resent the grave accusation against him nor a willingness to discuss it. After that first flash of terror when Leonard's announcement had fallen upon him all unprepared he had shown no emotion of any kind. Foster thought him a hardy and dangerous criminal and kept the closest watch upon him during the trip. He had reason to congratulate himself for having taken this care before they reached Providence. He found Buckson fumbling in his pocket and caught his hand in time to prevent the captain from drawing a large knife, the blade of which he had been able to open inside his coat.

Crowd Is Assembled.

If Buckson's indifference had been sturdily maintained during his arraignment and journey it fell from him when he reached the streets of his native town. The Sheriff's desire in notifying the authorities of the arrival of the prisoner had been that they should keep the news from public knowledge until the captain had been safely and quietly escorted to the jail. On his arrival, however, he found a large and threatening crowd. Word that the murderer was on his way had been public property for hours and townspeople and farmers had gathered to voice their indignation and their desire for speedy and condign punishment of the culprit.

Buckson cringed before the demonstration. If no other phase of the crime and its consequences could reach his reserve at least the hatred and contempt of his neighbors broke through his barriers completely. It seemed as if the first realization of his position before the community came to him on the last stage of his journey to his cell. His demeanor served only to increase the fury of the spectators against him, since it stamped him coward as well as villain. They closed in about him and blows were struck at the last, while the Sheriff was hustling his charge inside the stout, barred building.

The trial of John Buckson for murder was brief and satisfactory both to public opinion and to the individuals that go to make up the machinery of justice. It was not a case that involved subtleties of deduction or the intricate tracing of motives and movements. The facts gathered by Foster were considered quite ample. There had never been a plainer collection of convicting circumstances in the experience of the prosecuting attorney. He took occasion to point out that while there was not a shred of direct evidence there was no single link or strand in the sequence of facts that could be made to show a weakness.

Here was a perfect example of the strength of circumstantial evidence, he said. While each step in it had of necessity been presented through witnesses so exactly corroborated the details in their statements and were so free from the suspicion of perjury that he had no hesitation in declaring that each successive action of the murderer could not be more precisely mapped out if he had performed the deed under a hundred pairs of eyes. Nothing was lacking and nothing was open to question.

The court room was crowded as he made his eloquent address, and the spectators read in the eyes of the jurymen the determination to visit the severest penalty upon the guilty man. It was one of those occasions when the least experienced observer, through sympathy with the prevailing sentiment, knew beforehand what the verdict must inevitably be.

Outside in the dusty streets a few youngsters who had clung curiously about the steps of the court house, conscious of the centre of interest, but who had tired of the quiet, were playing their usual games. There were few others abroad. Occasionally a worker or some woman bound to her domestic tasks stepped to the doorway to listen for the murmur that would mean a break in or an end to the trial.

A figure was coming along the road toward the town. The first persons to see it were three children who sat at the side of the highway in the shade. They whispered among themselves for a second and then fled shrieking. The figure passed on. At the first corner, where it turned, a mother of five looked up from her tubs in a back yard, caught a glimpse of it out there in the glaring sunshine and fainted.

It went on to the Buckson house, where it stopped, surveying the closed door and the drawn shades. At this point the figure was heard to speak to itself by a frightened urchin who lay hidden behind a fence and trying to think of his prayers. And this is what it said:—

"That John Buckson'll be the death of me yet. He's let them pesky hogs into the garden again."

The Remark Significant.

There was a significance in these words and an acerbity with which they were delivered that struck an added chill into the listener. It was the more remarkable that the figure should have had such a strange effect upon those who saw it. A stranger would have said it was nothing more than a comely, neatly dressed young woman with a blue parasol.

Off called the figure toward the main street this time, and as it moved on so grew the sensation that followed in its wake. It had not noticed the commotion at first, but a white face suddenly withdrawn from a window at its approach apparently annoyed it, for it bounced up a walk to an open door.

"Mirandy Nebitts, what's so wrong with Nancy Buckson that you're tryin' to climb under the sofa to get shut of me?"

There was some necessary delay at this point, while the figure made various indignant and scornful disclaimers of the suggestion that it had stepped out of the spirit world. It asserted with some vehemence that it would like to hear any one say anything like that again. Possibly these expressions were accompanied by some demonstration of a more convincing nature, for Miranda Nebitts was presently able to talk.

A moment later the figure was seen moving rapidly toward the court house, indifferent now to further effects upon those who saw it. It continued its advance up the steps and there was a threatening lowering of the brows as it pushed into those lowering the door.

"Here you," a sharp, commanding voice broke in upon the closing words of the eloquent prosecutor, "you that's got my John behind that railing! Just let him out of there this minute or you'll have trouble with me."

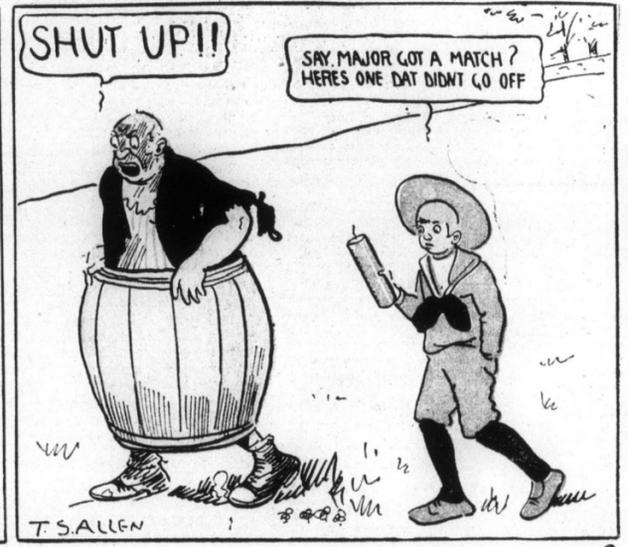

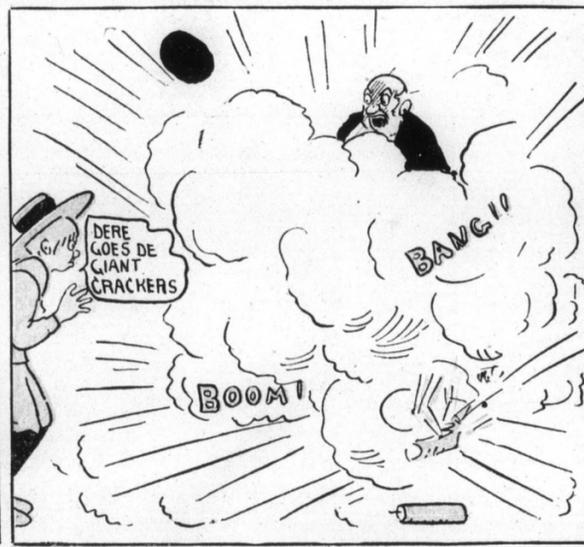

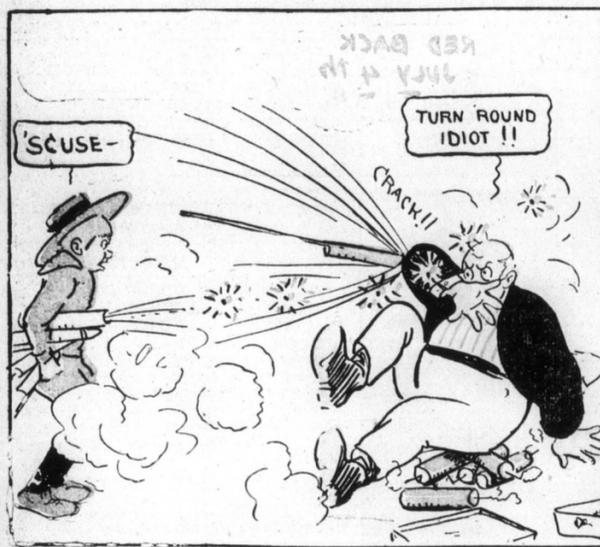

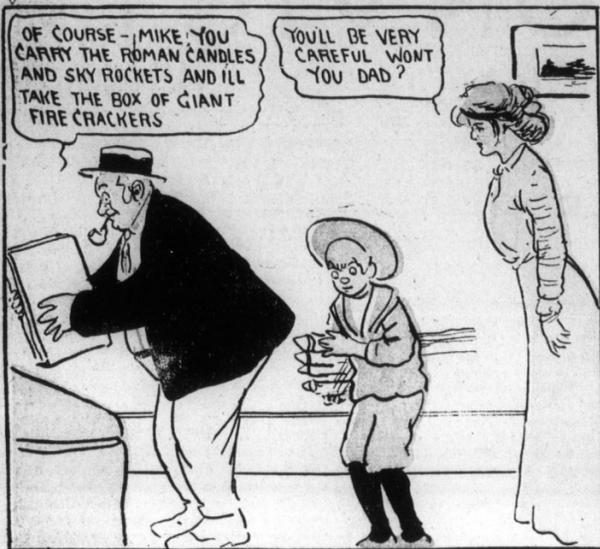

Nancy Buckson was not dead, a fact the astonished townsfolk admitted without reservation. But who was the woman whose body had been discovered in the woods? Her identity remains officially an entry among the unsolved mysteries of crime, but public report had settled the matter to local satisfaction within the year.

It was learned that a burglar and desperate character, Collins by name, had lived for some time in Providence with his wife. The couple had disappeared about the time of the Buckson case and neither of them had since been seen. It was believed that Collins and the woman had entered the Buckson home and robbed it on the night the Bucksons left; that some quarrel had arisen between them which ended in murder, the criminal using the whipcord as the first thing that came to his hand. The fact that the woman wore one of Nancy Buckson's dresses, the wrecking of the house and the loss of the valuables fitted into this theory, which depended chiefly upon a supposed remarkable resemblance between the victim and the captain's wife.

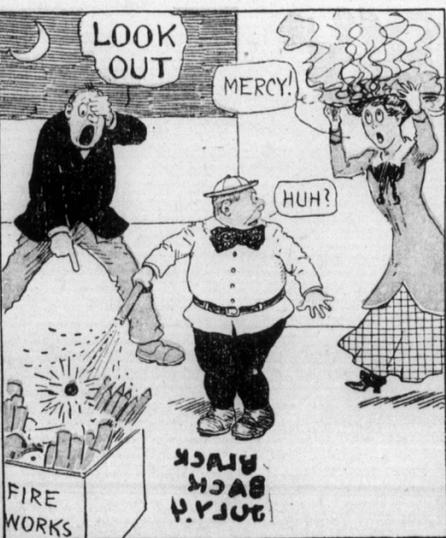

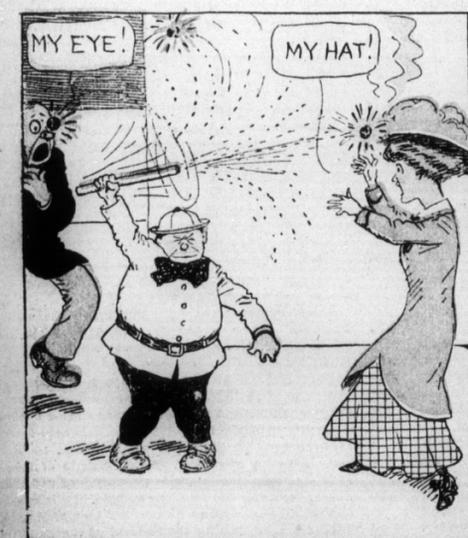

The altercation between the Bucksons witnessed by Pauls had spluttered itself out. The captain had left the village after dinner for Providence to take his vessel to sea. Mrs. Buckson, who frequently left home during her husband's absence, had closed the house and had walked to a town not far distant, where she was not recognized and where she started upon a stage trip to Maine to visit a sister. Captain Buckson's behavior on the vessel was explained by himself. Believing absolutely, on the strength of Leonard's statement, that his wife must be dead and that a crime was about to be fastened upon him in consequence, the simple man's thought had been of suicide. This also accounted for the incident of the knife on the train.

It is perhaps fitting to add that the incident was not without its happy results and that the worthy captain and his no less worthy wife lived afterward in great peace and amity.

THE HEALTH OF THE CHILD.

Council of Women to Organize Health Department.

Stirring Address on the Subject by Lady Aberdeen.

The Women Deal With Many Subjects at Their Meeting.

Toronto, June 18.—The health of the child means that of the nation, and a nation's greatest riches lies in its health.

The Countess of Aberdeen, in moving that a department of health should be formed in connection with the council, spoke impressively of the need for women to play their part in the war against tuberculosis.

The decision to form the department suggested was greeted with enthusiasm, and in the address which followed it was made to the women of the world which should not be allowed to lightly pass.

The election of officers was to have taken place yesterday, but unfortunately a mistake in the marking of one of the ballots necessitated the voiding of the election and another ballot will be taken this morning.

Lady Aberdeen explained that, while the public were invited to attend, the meeting was really one of their council meetings. Therefore it had been decided to relieve their programme by dealing with the resolution with regard to public health.

The publication of the Health of the Nations marked a distinct era in their existence. Previously they had been engaged in organizing and consolidating councils along certain lines.

Of late there seemed to have been a change, as if the efforts of the medical profession were having an effect, their repeated warnings being heeded, and their call to the laity to have gone home.

As they noted the unsatisfactory conditions that prevailed they must realize that a great deal of the responsibility lay at the door of women who came to wifehood and motherhood without the necessary knowledge.

Let them take as an example on the general body of the people that physicians and surgeons and health authorities need the help, and the active help, of the rank and file.

The second class of facts, which varied according to circumstances, must also be realized and borne in mind in order to prevent their generalizing too freely.

All the wastage of young, vigorous life, she declared, "is preventable by the adoption of the most simple and ordinary rules of health—fresh air, sunshine, good, nourishing food, temperance, and healthy housing.

"But we must not stop with the dissemination of knowledge; we must proceed to action, and no more fruitful action can be taken than in inspiring the training workers, who will be prepared to take their share of public work on public boards and on voluntary societies alike.

Mrs. Popelish, Belgian, seconded the resolution for the establishment of a health section, and it was carried by acclamation.

"The motto of the new section of public health is that it is better to prevent than cure," said Dr. Blum, Germany, and no longer was science directed to the preservation of the present generation alone.

From Sweden came a more direct message as to the children. Dr. Lauril has devoted her professional career to problems of children, and mentioned that in 1906 the infant mortality was 81 per thousand.

YORK LOAN.

Phillips Just Missed Being a Great Financial Magnate.

(Toronto Saturday Night.)

During the week it was announced that within six months the first dividend, of from twenty to twenty-five cents on the dollar, will be paid to the creditors of the defunct York Loan and Savings Company, of Toronto.

By a very narrow margin this man Phillips missed becoming a Toronto magnate of the first rank. For years the agents of the company he promoted secured Ontario and districts far beyond it raking in the small savings of poor or comparatively poor people, and giving them in return neat little York Loan Company pass-books, in which interest was compounded in a most liberal manner.

Examinations disclosed that on the bodies of nine of the children the tree had been perfectly photographed by the electric bolt. The shoes had been torn from their feet and every piece of metal about them fused.
