Britain Firm.

PARIS, Oct. 22.—A remarkable change has come over French opinion on the Fashoda question during the last 48 hours. The attitude of the public is more informed and more distant. This is partly due to the tone of the British press, but more to the British chancellor of the exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, which the Aurore calls "A provocation that is almost a threat of war."

The municipal council of Paris is abashed on all sides for exhorting the government to avert war. In government circles the disposition seems to be to resist the British demands. LONDON, Oct. 21.—Government circles here are apparently satisfied that the Fashoda question will not lead to war. At the same time the determination is reiterated not to budge from the position which the British government has taken up, no matter what the outcome may be. It is said on good authority that the British government has also determined not to brook unreasonable delay, and that in the event of France declining to evacuate Fashoda, the Marchand party will be removed from that place, although it is not expected that it will be necessary to go to such extremes.

French War Preparations.

PARIS, Oct. 20.—The alleged war preparations of France are the absorbing subject of discussion here at present.

According to the French papers there were important naval experiments at Toulon yesterday evening. A flotilla of torpedo boats was detailed to make an endeavor to force the entrance of the harbor and the whole garrison was called to arms and the forts and batteries were manned, ready for instant action. The result of the experiment has not been made public.

Vice-Admiral Barrera presided yesterday at a secret council of war at Brest, in which the chiefs of the maritime forces took part. Confidential orders were subsequently issued to the garrison. The Aurore asserts that classes of the naval reserves around Brest have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness for active service.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—usually improving weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters'; and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim. No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents a bottle, every bottle guaranteed at any Drug Store."

Harry Vail Wins.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 19.—The single scull race on Bedford Basin this afternoon between Harry Vail of St. John and John Brennan of Halifax, was won by Vail. The race was probably the closest that has ever taken place over the Bedford Basin course. It was witnessed by about 1,000 people, most of whom were in the vicinity of the start, near the Three Mile House.

It was 3.16 o'clock when the men were called out. Brennan was the toss and selected the course nearest the shore. The men were sent off with a splendid start, with the advantage slightly in favor of the St. John man. He caught the water first but did not hold it right long. The men kept well together during the entire race. Brennan was leading over half a mile from the start. Vail quickened his stroke from 33 to 36, and again both were on even terms. Both men steered a great course. They made for their buoys on a direct line. Brennan started and got to his buoy first and collided with it, losing probably a length. Both squared for home almost on even terms, with Brennan half a stroke to the good. It looked as though Brennan would be the winner. Vail crawling up on his opponent at a mile from the finish line, and it was almost stroke for stroke to the finish. To many it appeared that Brennan was leading a half mile from the finish and a spurt at the proper time might have landed him winner. Slowly but surely St. John overtook Halifax, and when the report of the finish gun was heard, John Brennan was a defeated man by a half length. It seemed to be the general opinion that although Vail rowed a nice race, yet had he used the boat he brought with him from St. John, Brennan would have won. The time of the race was 22.12; better time than that made by Michael Lynch in his race with Brennan.

The time at the turn was exactly 11 minutes and at the finish 22.12. The course was three land miles and was measured correctly by the referee the day preceding the race. About $600 was bet on the event. Odds varied. Before the race they were in favor of Brennan and during the progress of it the odds turned in favor of Vail. The principal winner was Mr. Vail, proprietor of the Globe laundry of this city, who won in the vicinity of $250. The principal losers were those who had staked their money on Rice and Durman against the Lynchers. After the race those behind Vail offered to give Brennan another race for $500 a side. This was not accepted. A representative of the Lynchers asked Vail to make a race with either Mark or Michael Lynch for from $100 to $300 a side, but the offer was declined.

HALIFAX, Oct. 20.—There is a strong probability that a race between Michael Lynch and Harry Vail will be arranged to take place in Halifax within ten days. Vail desired to give Brennan another chance and, it is stated, that Brennan's backers were willing to make the match, but Brennan did not feel disposed to do so, claiming that he did not think he would be able to beat Vail this year. The backers of Vail and Lynch will meet tomorrow morning, when it is expected that the match will be made for a stake of $600. If the match should not be made, it will not be the fault of the backers of Lynch, as they have made a written proposition for the above sum and have left it open till noon tomorrow.

The proposed race between Dalton and Vail of St. John and Brennan and Dugan of Halifax, will not take place. Both Vail and Dalton have made many friends in this city.

Saturday's Halifax Chronicle says: There was talk Thursday of a return match between Vail and Brennan and the latter's friends were willing and even anxious to post a forfeit and stake for him, while M. H. Ruggles was willing to make the match on behalf of Harry Vail. J. W. Salterio had a talk with Brennan told him of his willingness to fill backing for another race. But Brennan declined to row. He was dissatisfied with the showing he had made and was not willing just now to cause any financial loss to his friends. He said he might give the New Brunswick oarsman another race, but not at present. Under the circumstances he was not likely to let Mr. Salterio do but decline the match.

Harry Vail and George Dalton came into town in the afternoon thinking the return race would be made and called on the Farmer's to complete the arrangements, but were disappointed to learn that the race was off. George Dalton was spoken to about the proposed race between himself and Vail and Brennan and Dugan, and said he had never expressed a desire for such a race. He never rowed a flat up a couple of days ago, and was therefore unaccustomed to them. He said, however, that he had never liked to have had a race with Lou Lovett in singles. He and Lou rowed a race last year. This is Dalton's first visit to Halifax, and he is believed to be on his way to take things and people. He has made many friends here by his quiet and manly behavior. He leaves for home tomorrow, as he must be back at work on Monday.

During the afternoon Vail and Dalton dropped in to see E. J. Quirk, the well known Lynch man. While chatting, naturally enough the racing question was the uppermost, and Mike Lynch's name was mentioned. Mr. Quirk said he had not seen Mike since the double scull race and believed he had come over to see the Lynch man, and but one of them came. It didn't matter much for he got every kind of fair square treatment in Halifax, but it was a little disheartening, to a fellow to have none of his home friends at the course on the day of the race.

"I wish you were a Halifax man, Harry," said one of the party conversing. "You bet I wouldn't be ashamed of my city if I were," said Vail. Vail thinks that for good air and good men, there's no place like the provinces. He will leave for Baltimore about March 1st to train the Baltimore A A crews, and perhaps the Ariel crews also and will not return to St. John again until the fall. Crews from the two clubs will row in the different regattas on May 30th July 4th, and other dates, ending with the national regatta in August.

Halifax will likely have a big aquatic event in the spring. Friends of the Lynchers have decided to accept the challenge from the English champions, Bubean and Barry, for a double scull race for a stake of $5000-$2,500 a side. The Englishmen will be allowed £50 expenses to have the race rowed in Halifax. This is the sum named by Bubean and Barry, and friends of the Lynchers have decided to allow that sum.

And Serious Losses from Use of Common and Adulterated Dyes.

DIAMOND DYES. Are Used by All Wise and Economical Women.

The only pure, harmless and successful package dyes for home dyeing are the Diamond Dyes. The imitation package dyes and the common soap grease mixtures are so largely adulterated with foreign substances that they are positively dangerous to use and handle. No lady who values her carpets and materials will care to risk the coloring powers of these adulterated dyestuffs. Suffice it to say, the colors are dull, muddy and lifeless, and cannot stand the most ordinary washing.

The Diamond Dyes have a long record of triumphs and well-don'ts that has never been equalled in the history of home dyes. In every part of the world they give delight and satisfaction, and are hailed as true money savers. Easy, pleasant and profitable home dyeing is only possible with the tested and popular Diamond Dyes. Every genuine package has the name "Diamond." It is poor judgment to pay ten cents for adulterated dyes when you can buy the guaranteed Diamond Dyes for the same price. Missionaries Massacred.

PARIS, Oct. 20.—At the cabinet meeting to-day the Minister of Foreign Affairs, M. Delcasse, read a despatch from the French minister at Pekin, M. Gerard, announcing that a French missionary and several Chinese Catholics have been massacred or burned to death in a chapel at Paking by a riotous mob. M. Gerard, it was added, immediately demanded reparation from the Chinese government.

Naval Battle.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The Madrid correspondent of the Times says: "Captain Laman, the minister of Marine, has received a despatch from Manila announcing a naval engagement between the Americans and the rebels, in consequence of Admiral Dewey forbidding the latter to fly the rebel flag from their ships. The despatch adds that there were losses on both sides, but that the Americans captured the rebel ships."

"The scene of the engagement is not stated, but it is supposed to have been Manila Bay. M. Laman, the minister of Marine, has decided to forward to the Spanish peace commissioners at Paris an official despatch received yesterday from Manila reporting an engagement between the Americans and insurgents growing out of the refusal of Admiral Dewey to allow the insurgents to fly their flag from their ships."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—As far as could be ascertained no information regarding the reported naval engagement had been received by the war department, nor has General Otis at Manila made any reference to it in any communications he may have made to the war department. The despatch created considerable interest in Washington. Recently the newspapers contained a statement that Admiral Dewey had despatched some of his ships to another portion of the Philippine group on a mission of importance, and the suggestion is made that it may have been these vessels which fought with the insurgents.

Fire at Moncton.

MONCTON, Oct. 22.—At 11.30 to-day fire broke out in the Times Publishing Company's office and resulted in serious damage. The fire broke out in the roof in the immediate vicinity of the chimney connected with the furnace. All the employees were away to dinner at the time. The fire department quickly responded, but the fire had made considerable headway before being discovered. The building was badly gutted, the bindery totally destroyed and the job department more or less damaged. The news room escaped damage, but the contents of the stock room and public office, as well as the editor's office, were badly damaged by water. The loss is estimated at between $2,000 and $5,000; covered with insurance.

Farm and Household.

Choice Bacon Hogs at a Premium

No other product of the farm is selling so well at the present time, comparatively speaking, as the first class bacon hog. Last week as high as $6.95 per cwt. was paid on the Toronto market for hogs of this character. As compared with Chicago prices for the best hogs this is fully $2 per cwt. higher. To bring this figure however, the hogs must be of the highest class for bacon producing purposes. Both the breeding and the feeding must be right or the top limit cannot be reached.

There is one thing that should be remembered by the hog producer. So long as the packer is willing to pay a high premium for choice bacon hogs it is clear that that is the kind of a hog that suits his trade best. At present the packer is willing to pay fifty cents more per cwt. for the choice bacon hog than for any other, and therefore there can be no doubt but that this is the kind of hog the farmer should produce. Those who have followed the markets closely during the past few years will have noticed that the distinction between a choice bacon hog and any other quality is becoming more marked. In other words the prices obtainable for choice bacon hog and heavy fat corn fed hogs are getting farther apart. We believe that the margin between these two classes of hogs will be greater than it is now. In fact we are inclined to the opinion that the packers do not make sufficient distinction as between the prices for choice bacon hogs and heavy fat hogs. If it is all important to the trader that the bacon hog should be produced and no other, a greater difference than fifty cents per cwt. should be made in the prices paid for the different qualities. If thick, fat hogs are not suitable for the export bacon trade, it seems strange that as high as $5.00 to $6.75 per cwt. should be paid for them on this market.—Farming.

The Model Hostess.

A woman may possess wealth untold, she may have the kindest hearts and the brightest of minds, but unless she has absolute control of her feelings there will be some time in her career as hostess that she will display annoyance or flurry, and the contagion spreading to the guests, will cause an otherwise successful entertainment to die out in undignified failure. A model hostess must to all appearances be made of good humor so far as disagreeable happenings are concerned. Even though a guest or a careless waiter inadvertently breaks a bit of china which can never be replaced, she must smile as though the loss of the entire set would but emphasize the pleasure of the evening. Her well bred calm inspires her guest with a feeling of confidence, and though in her heart she may be dubious about certain important details of her dinner, if she does not show her anxiety, everything will pass off to a happy conclusion. A flurried hostess or a nervous host, whose countenance but sadly reveals the worry felt, can do more toward making the guests uncomfortable than if the soup were served stone cold and the salad dressing were ruined by a too bountiful application of vinegar. An imperturbable calm and a ready tact are the two important factors in the making of a model hostess. Secure these and you need never fear the success of any of your entertainments.—New York Ledger.

In Preserving Fruit, Remember That

The richest and most delicate flavors cannot be produced with inferior fruit or sugar; neither from the choicest kinds unless proper methods, vessels and utensils are employed.

Sugar is used in canning to impart a mere delicious flavor to the fruit, and has no "keeping power." The thorough expulsion of the air, and jars and rubbers so perfect that it cannot force its way in are what "keeps" it.

It is better to pare with a silver knife, for fruit will sometimes discolor before it can be finished and dropped in cold water.

The skins of peaches and plums may be easily removed by pouring boiling water over the fruit, but only a few should be taken at a time, and they should almost immediately be plunged in cold water to prevent softening.

The pits of cherries and peaches and the cores of pears impart a richness and delicacy of flavor that cannot be obtained in any other way.

There is more pectine (gelatinous matter) around the cores and skins of all kinds of fruit than in any other part, and in making jelly neither should be discarded.

Knots, black spots, stems, and blossom ends should never be left on fruit when making jelly.

After once coming to a boil fruit should cook slowly.

He was dreaming about the bobtail flush he had tried to fill earlier in the evening.

"Oh, for another club!" he cried, in his sleep.

"Then it was that she shook him and woke him up."

"It wouldn't do you any good," she said. "I've taken the precaution to put the axe within reach on my side of the

FRIENDLESS COYOTE.

TRICKS OF HIS ENEMIES TO MAKE MONEY OUT OF HIM.

A County That Paid Bounty Twelve Times on the Same Set of Sculp—in Spite of Wholesale Killing, the Pest Does Not Appear to Decrease.

The one friendless, hunted Ishmaelite of the plains, against whom is every man's hand, is the prairie wolf—the coyote. If he is adapted to any sphere of usefulness on earth, nobody has yet been shrewd enough to find it out; if he has ever done a respectable deed, it has not yet come to light. The jack rabbit will at least furnish the basis for a savory stew in case of need, the buffalo was valued for its hide, the rattlesnake for its rattle, but there is yet to be discovered a method of utilizing any portion of the coyote from his snarling month to his ragged tail—except as a fertilizer. The short grass country is his home, the high prairie where the gray, hairlike vegetation that is called pasture blends with the dirty coat of the vandal. Through it he sneaks and runs, now a gamut figure on the horizon, now an ungraspable shape near at hand. He is without acquaintance with anything that is alive, usually solitary, always with a criminal aspect, as if he had just done something to be ashamed of or was contemplating a deed of the sort at the earliest opportunity.

Once the coyote had the whole Indian Territory to himself. He could snarl and fight to his heart's content, and there was none to say him nay. But when the lands were opened to settlement and a family took its place on every quarter section there was less room for the wild creature of the plains who had before been undisturbed. Then the coyote had to go out among men, and he found that he was very unpopular. He stole the chickens and made the traveler afraid—all without any equivalent in service. Furthermore, he is essentially a coward. The men of the frontier have a respect for the brave creature that defies them or for the cunning one that outwits them, but they can never forgive the trembling one that is alarmed at their very appearance. So, from the farmer's son who blazes away with his old shotgun at the prowling coyote behind the barn to the city sportsman who wastes a cartridge intended for a prairie chicken or duck in ending the life of a wolf trotting along the hedgerow, there is a ceaseless, unrelenting war waged against the luckless wanderer.

Since the immigration of the wolves from the territory into the farming and stock raising states to the north there has been a sort of desecrated warfare. The farmers have banded together to protect the flocks and herds and have offered generous bounties for the scalps of the creatures, proceeding that has resulted in the slaughter of thousands. Yet the supply seems not the less, and all the sharpshooting is but a waste of powder and balls. Year after year there are reported from 1,500 to 1,600 sheep killed in Nebraska and Kansas by wolves, and the hundreds of dollars spent for bounties have produced little diminution of the plague.

Sometimes the bounties are not what they are purported to be. The people of a western county found once that they were being taxed very heavily for the payment of this sort of expense and that certain hunters were buying new farms out of the proceeds of their prowls on the plains. An examination followed, and it was found that there was in existence an endless chain in comparison with which the greenbacks and gold reserves make but a feeble showing. At the rear of the county clerk's office, where the redeemed scalps were thrown, was a convenient opening in the wall, and through this the scalps were pulled in the night, to be presented at the counter in the morning for another bounty of $5 each. It was estimated that the county had paid for one set of scalps not less than 15 times, and the emptiness of the treasury was explained. The saddest part of the happening was that the schemers saw the investigators at the hole and became bounty jumpers at once—jumping the county for safer climes.

Another curious circumstance was noticed by the officers of two counties adjoining in central Kansas. The officers of one were paying out money every day for wolf scalps while the others seldom had any demands for the reward. Each of the hunters was compelled to swear that he had killed the wolf inside the boundaries of the county where the scalp was presented, and there was no reason for doubting the truth of the testimony. But what could be the reason of the disparity in the claims? One day a settler's son was questioned:

"Where did you kill this wolf?"

"Down near the edge of the county."

"Are coyotes very thick there?"

"Well, rather, though not so thick as they are farther south."

"Over in the other county?"

"Yes, there are more there."

"But they do not kill any there. Why is it?"

"The other county only pays $1 for scalps and this pays $5. So we drive them over the line before we shoot them."

The county officers at once readjusted the scale of rewards.—Chicago Times-Herald.

GAGETOWN, JULY 27th, 1897.

Dear Sir—My wife has been afflicted with nervous prostration for several years, using every kind of medicine recommended, but obtaining no relief until I procured some of your Pelee Wine, which I am delighted to say, has had the desired effect. It is the greatest tonic of the age, I think too much cannot be said in praise and no house should be without it. We have recommended it to several suffering from la grippe debility, with like good results.

I am, yours gratefully,

TEMPERANCE COLUMN.

Contributed by the I. O. G. T.

All lodges, and others interested in temperance work, are earnestly solicited to contribute to this column. Correspondence to be sent to Secretary, Cambridge Union Lodge, McDonalds Corner.

"Let all who love our Order and desire its progress—who love our Order and desire its maintenance—who would extend a knowledge of our beautiful organization, and perpetuate its principles, which aim to promote fraternity, to unite men and women in acts of benevolence and incite them to a generous emulation for the good of all mankind, that our Charity may be co-extensive with the universe, winning by gentle influence and example the erring and unfortunate victims of the tyrant alcohol to a place in our inner sanctuary, where sweet Peace sits enthroned, and Purity has an abiding place, and Love is the guiding star, unite in a determination to sustain and support this Temperance Column."

"BELLE'S SENSATION."

It is a pity that every drinking man could not have a wife of Belle Kady's abilities. She had her own peculiar views of moral sensation, and she was never known to hesitate about putting them into practice, especially the other kind of sensation. When Josey came home drunk he knew what to expect. She took down the new hide with an ominous flourish and gave him a "good thrashing." He might be and sarge behind chairs and doors, he was used to feel the blows hot and heavy. Oh, how he would beg and promise! But Belle's heart was flint unyielding. It was little money she allowed to pass through his hands when she could help it. She was sharp at collecting his wages when she could, and not a cent of anything sold from the place was paid over to him except on rare occasions.

He did, however, once take a pig to sell, over to a man who had contracted for it, though it was against Belle's better judgment that she let him. Still he promised so fair, and begged so hard, she at last gave in the point. "But mind you don't go over the hill to town," she said, and there were makes in her eyes.

"No, no, he wouldn't go to town. He'd travel straight home with his money, he would." But all the while he felt he would have something to comfort the inner man before he came back, if it did cost him a whipping.

The trade once made, he was not slow in making tracks for the gin shop. He was met with a jovial welcome, and every one was anxious after Belle's health, his replies to all being quite satisfactory. He soon "got settled up right," and was spending the money he got for the pig "hand over left." There was but a small show of it, when someone coming in, remarked with a jolly smile: "Josey, did you know that Belle was in town?"

"No, is she?" he asked with a scared look, as he sought frantically for his hat. "Yes, I saw her just coming over the brow of the hill. Her bonnet was set well back on her head, I tell you, and you'd better out stick and run."

It needed no second advice, Josey was on his way as fast as his unsteady legs would take him. As she rode into town he sneaked around a by-way home and was there an hour before her.

But it did him no good, however, the money had to be accounted for, and Belle knew too well into whose till it had gone. It was too exorbitant to thus lose the price of her beautiful pig, and even those who pitied poor Josey and rejoiced that he did not stand in his shoes, could not help owning that he only met his deserts.

Belle's sensation certainly did keep her husband steady a good share of the time without it, no doubt, he would never have seen a sober moment. Don't you think he ought to have been grateful for such a help-meet.

TOO LATE.

By W. Weldon Scott.

He stood beside a dramsoph's door, A man decrept and grey; I grasped him by the palsied hand And wondered what to say.

Here was a man, his life near spent, A wretched, hopeless slave; Facing a vast eternity, And one foot in the grave.

His heated breath, it burned my cheek, His eye foretook my sight, I prayed a silent prayer to God To aid me with his might.

"My brother, hast thou never read Of thine, a drunkard's fate, For such the Bible saith cannot Ever enter Heaven's gate."

"Hast thou not thought of after-life, Of what awaiteth thee; My brother, art thou reconciled To die eternally."

"Oh brother, heed the words of Truth, The warning I give thee, And with God's strength throw off the yoke. Christ died to set you free."

He looked at me with tearful eyes And said, "I know my fate, I cannot burst their galling chains, Young man, it is too late."

"My work is done, my life far spent, And I lay down await; Fearful, I seek the future dark, Young man, it is too late."

But thou art young and in thy path Are hopes and prospects great; I'm old and gray, past sixty years, Young man it is too late."

I turned away with saddened heart, And tears my eyes did fill; But, old! those mournful words, too late, I hear them—'Tis too late!

Oh, young man, shun the way to death; Thy heart to God, or it may be Thou, too, shall cry, too late."

Battle Creek, Mich.
Suggested by a personal experience of the author in his city with a drunkard a days ago.

Dr. Lyman Abbot on Books.

Almost all families have books; few families have a library. I put in here, wrote Dr. Lyman Abbot several years ago, a plea for a library in every household, and, as a foundation for the library, a cyclopaedia.

I place in order of importance in the family, for its literary food, in the formation of a library, the articles of diet as follows:

First—a Bible.
Second—a dictionary. Get the unabridged if you can afford it, but a smaller edition is better than none.

Third—a good weekly newspaper that gives, comprehensively and fairly, the news of the week.

Fourth—a cyclopaedia.
After these are purchased you may properly consider the purchase of other books, but not before.

Brotherly Advice.

A certain curate was of a painfully nervous temperament, and, in consequence, was constantly making awkward remarks—intended as compliments to the bishop and others. Having distinguished himself in an unusual degree during a gathering of the clergy to an afternoon tea at the Bishop's palace, he was taken to task for his failings by a senior curate, who was one of his companions on the way home.

"Look here, Bruce," said the senior, decidedly, "you are a donkey! Why cannot you keep quiet instead of making your assinine remarks! I am speaking to you now as a brother."

Liquid laughter interrupted him at this point and he wondered why.

Some Common Mistakes.

It is a mistake to work when you are not in a fit condition to do so.
To take off heavy undereclothing because you have become over heated.
To think that the more a person eats the healthier and stronger he will become.

To believe that children can do as much work as grown people, and that the more they study the more they learn.

To go to bed late at night and rise at daybreak and imagine that every hour taken from sleep is an hour gained.

To imagine that if a little work or exercise is good, violent or prolonged exercise is better.
To sleep exposed to a direct draught at any season.

To imagine that whatever remedy causes one to feel immediately better, as alcoholic stimulants for example, is good for the system without regard to the after effects.

To eat as if you had only a minute in which to finish the meal, or to eat without an appetite, or to continue after it has been satisfied to gratify the taste.

To give unnecessary time to a certain established routine of housekeeping when it could be much more profitably spent in rest and recreation.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

The undersigned having been restored to health by simple means, after suffering for several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease Consumption, is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure. To those who desire it, he will cheerfully send (free of charge) a copy of the prescription used, which they will find a sure cure for Consumption, Asthma, Catarrh, Bronchitis and all throat and lung Maladies. He hopes all sufferers will try his remedy, as it is invaluable. Those desiring the prescription, which will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing, will please address—

REV. EDWARD A. WILSON,
33-lyr. Brooklyn, New York.

Out Of Work.

Here is a good story of an old colored man, who asked a white man if he could give him work. The white man asked the negro if he had a boat.

When the negro replied, "Yes, boss," the white man responded, "Well, you see all the driftwood floating down the river?"

"Yes, sah," was the reply.
"Well, then, continued the white man, you row out in the river and catch that driftwood, and I'll give you half you get."

The colored man worked hard for a while when all of a sudden he stopped and pulled for the shore. On being asked ed the reason for his return, he replied, "Dat wood is just as much mine as 't is his. I ain't gwine to give him any, and so I'm out of work ag'in."

UNSPOKEN SYMPATHY.

Little Children Who Were Remarkably Careful Not to Hurt an Uncle's Feelings. He was a big, burly, good natured conductor on a country railroad, and he had watched them with much interest as they got on the train. There were two handsome, round faced, rosy cheeked boys and three sunny haired, pretty little girls of various sizes and ages. A grave, kind looking gentleman, evidently their guardian, got in with them, and the conductor's attention was soon caught by the fact that the apparently tender conversation was carried on by means of a dead end alphabet, the gentleman leaning in so pleasantly that the conductor beamed on him with approval. Naturally kind hearted himself, it pleased him to see this trait in others, but his honest eyes were misty as he thought of his own noisy crowd of youngsters at home and contrasted them with this prim little company who smiled and gesticulated, but made no sound.

It was plain they were off on a holiday jaunt, for they all had satchels and wore a festive "go away" air, and the conductor, whose fancy played about them continually, settled it in his mind that they belonged to some asylum and were going with their teacher for a vacation trip. He couldn't help watching them and nodding to them as he passed through the car. They returned his greeting in kind, being cheerful little souls, and he began to look forward with regret to the time of parting.

At length at one of the rural stations the gentleman kissed the young ones hurriedly all round and got off the train. They leaned out of the windows and waved enthusiastic farewells as the car moved on. Then the biggest "little girl" took a brown paper bag from her satchel and distributed crackers in even shares. The conductor in passing smiled and nodded as usual as the little girl held out the paper bag to him.

"Do have some," she said.
He started back in sheer amazement. "What?" he exclaimed. "You can talk, then—all of you?"

"Of course!" they cried in chorus. The conductor sank into the seat across the aisle. "I thought you were dead and dumb!" he gasped.

"Oh, how funny!" cried one of the rosy cheeked boys. "Why, that was Uncle Jack, poor fellow! He was born that way. We wouldn't talk while he was with us; it might hurt his feelings, you know. Hello, here's our station! Come on, girls!" And the five trooped neatly out and waved their good-byes to the conductor from the platform as the train moved on.—Belle's Mosaic in St. Nicholas.

Feather Bedsteads.
Marched, the great stinging teacher, says that when she found in any of her pupils symptoms of indolence or want of enthusiasm she at once attempted to dissuade them from an artistic career. One such case was very absurd in the manner in which her advice was taken. This was Fraulein T., who was remarkably handsome, but very lazy.

One day Marched lost patience with her. "Get married, my dear child," said she, "and become a good wife. You will never do anything on this stage." The girl laughingly replied that she believed it was easier to get a good engagement than a good husband, but shortly afterward, on coming for her lesson, she whispered:

"I am following your advice. I am going to be married."
"Ah, that is good! And who is the happy man?"

"I do not know," was the girl's laconic reply.
"What! You are going to marry some one you do not know?"

"Yes; my fiance saw me before he went to India, when I was 12 years old. I have been shown his photograph, and as his noble expression inspires me with confidence I have decided upon marrying him."

"When will your fiance come to fetch you?"

"Unfortunately he cannot come for the wedding," she answered, with a slight blush. "His business prevents him from doing so. I am to be married in my native town to a friend of the family by proxy, and he will take me to Bombay to my future husband."

A few weeks later the curious ceremony did take place, and the marriage apparently turned out very happy.—Youth's Companion.

The Society of the Rejected.
In one of the western cities a lot of men have formed an organization, the only condition to membership to which being the fact that the candidate's matrimonial advances have been rejected by a woman. From all that can be learned regarding the inside proceedings it is believed on the members do not indulge in sighs and tears and all the old time evidences of heartbreak. On the contrary, it is understood that they have what may be termed a rip-roaring good time. Their ritual, if it may be designated, prescribes frequent mutual congratulations and hearty assurances of future happiness and fond wishes for continued freedom. This doesn't seem quite the right thing under the depressing circumstances, but it is a fact that the club appears to enjoy it. It is even said that they get a good deal of pleasure out of following, as it were, the existence of the individual women who have rejected one or more of them. They eagerly watch for gains in avowals and for wrinkles and for rumors of bad temper. One of the choicest possessions of the society is a photograph of a one time haughty syph who now weighs 350 pounds and has nine red haired children.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Infantile Chicken Broth.
Customer—What on earth is this broth made of, waiter? Surely it isn't chicken broth?
Waiter—Well, sir, it's chicken broth in its infancy. It's made out of the water that the higgs are boiled in.—London Fun.

ST. JOHN LETTER.

The insurgents at Virden, Illinois, and other places in the west are much more aggressive than were the rebels in the south a few months preceding the outbreak of the rebellion. In Illinois they have the sympathy and support of Governor Tanner, just as the Unionists had the sympathy and support of President Buchanan. These people who talk about the rights of labor forget that the employer has as many rights as the employed; the one can employ who he will, and pay what he will; the other can work or not as he chooses. It is the business of the governor to call out the State troops to preserve order, and if he fails to do so it is in the business of the national government to procure his indictment and preserve order at all hazards by the employment of the national guards.

By his sympathy with the strikers at Virden an insurrection in the State of Illinois has disgraced himself, his state and the nation, and as he is responsible for the bloodshed that has occurred he should not be allowed to escape punishment. Sometimes imported laborers have not been looked upon very favorably in St. John but they never have been and never will be molested with impunity.

Last Tuesday customs collections at this port exceeded $5,000.

Tug boat Captain which has been lying at the bottom of Rowan's Slip for several weeks, was raised to the surface last Wednesday.

The dinner to Lord Herschell at Hotel Dufferin last Wednesday evening was a brilliant affair. About fifty guests were present and Lord Herschell made a happy and highly complimentary speech to St. John and Canada. Miss West Willis provided a sumptuous repast and the tables were profusely decorated with carnations, chrysanthemums and palms from the greenhouses of H. S. Crook-shank.

A St. John man estimates that he has drawn a prize of 7,500 in the Honduras lottery.

A flour mill of 400 barrels a day capacity is to be erected on the west side of the harbor.

Minister Blair has presented Willie Ingraham who had his legs cut off by a locomotive a few weeks ago with a ticket to New York where he will provide himself with artificial limbs.

Market slip is filled with coasters, mostly from Nova Scotia, with cargoes of apples and other farm produce.

There is still a good deal of bloom at Fernhill but the city squares are very forlorn in appearance.

Rumors of war between France and Great Britain have caused some agitation in the breadstuffs market. Flour advanced two or three days since 10 cents per barrel; best Ontario is quoted today at $4.10 to $4.15. Oats have also advanced 10 cents per bushel. Lard is very scarce and firmer in price. Oliver's pickles a new London brand, in chow chow, pickled and mixed, are in the market in two dozen cases at $1 per dozen and are rapid sellers.

Sunday School Convention.

MONROE, Oct. 20.—At yesterday's session of the Sunday school convention greetings from the Nova Scotia Association, Sunday school workers in the State of California and in Maine were read.

The report of the executive committee was submitted by Mr. T. S. Simms, of St. John. The committee asked for at least $2000 for carrying on the work of the executive committee for next year, and the committee will undertake to raise this amount.

This morning's session opened with prayer and singing, after which it was announced by the president that over $200 was pledged at last night's session, including $40 by Andrew Malcolm of St. John. The election of officers was proceeded with and resulted as follows:

President, Rev. Geo. Steel, St. John; Field and corresponding secretary, Rev. A. Lucas, Sussex.

Recording secretary, Geo. J. Jenkins, St. John.

Treasurer, H. A. White, Sussex.

Superintendent of home class department, Robert Reid, St. John.

Superintendent of normal class department E. R. Machum, St. John.

Superintendent of primary work, Mrs.

D. A. Morrison, St. John.
Vice-presidents—Albert, Miss M. E. Bacon, Hopewell Hill; Carleton, S. J. Parsons, Woodstock; Charlotte, Rev. A. Lavers, St. George; Gloucester, Mrs. J. Ferguson, Bathurst; Kent, R. H. Davis, Richibucto; Kings, A. M. Hubley, Sussex; Madawaska, Rev. A. Lodge, Edmundston; Northumberland, O. McLoon, Chatham; Queens, Isaac Vanwart, Hampstead; Restigouche, Robert Currie, St. John; St. John, R. G. Haley, St. John; Sunbury, F. Alexander, Fredericton Junction; Victoria, Rev. J. F. Estey, Andover; Westmorland, Rev. J. E. Brown, Moncton.

The additional executive committee comprises, T. S. Simms, Rev. G. O. Gates, W. J. Parks, Rev. T. F. Fotheringham, W. O. Whittaker, Alex. Watson, J. Willard Smith, J. S. Trites, Andrew Malcolm, all of St. John.

Rev. J. E. Brown submitted the report of the Westmorland Association. This county has 7 parishes, all organized; nine parish conventions were held during the year. There are 83 schools, 668 teachers, 5,065 pupils. The association shows an increase all along the line, there being 6 additional schools, 282 new scholars and 51 teachers. There are 46 evergreen schools this year against 40 last year; 1,827 Sunday school scholars during the past year were received into the church. The association pledged itself to do better work during the coming year. After this report was adopted the conference considered the matter of systematic grading in Sunday schools led by E. R. Machum, St. John. Prof. Hamill followed in an address on Sunday school teaching which was of great value to primary teachers.

A Severe Attack of Grip.

Mr. Wm. Edgecombe, carriage maker, Fredericton, "I feel entirely new, and expected to be laid up for weeks with a severe attack of the grip, but on the advice of a friend I got a bottle of Cook's Sore Throat Cure. It did what no other cough remedy I ever tried before could do. One bottle brought me to my feet again, and gave me new life. I am glad to be able to testify to its wonderful curative properties. All general dealers, 25 cents."

HEAVY RAINS.—On Saturday afternoon
a heavy rain set in, the wind blowing from the south. A large quantity of rain fell, swelling the brooks and in some places doing considerable washing out along the road.

TOOK WINGS.—Mr. B. S. Babbitt had hanging in front of his store on Saturday evening last three partridges. Between the hours of 6:30 and 9 o'clock they mysteriously disappeared. Several cases of sudden disappearance of articles has been heard of lately.

FINE RESIDENCE.—Mr. Chas. McAlpine of Upper Hamstead, has nearly completed his new residence to supply
the place of the one burned last fall.
The residence is a fine one with all the modern improvements and presents a nice appearance.

SUNBURY COUNTY COURT.—The case of the Crown vs. O'Donnell, on the information of Patrick Collins was tried at the Sunbury County Court on the 13th and 14th inst. The Grand Jury found a true bill, but the Petty Jury found the accused
"not guilty."

TEACHER'S INSTITUTE.—The Sunbury and Queens Teachers Institute will be held in the Grammar school building, Gagetown, on Thursday and Friday, October 27th and 28th. Inspector Bridges will be present. Arrangements have been made with the steamer to return
the teachers free of charge who have purchased one first class fare.

MISSIONARY MEETING.—The annual Missionary meeting of the Methodist church was held in the church on Thursday evening last. The night being stormy the audience was not as large as it would otherwise have been. The Rev. Mr.
Teasdale, of Frederickton, delivered an able address on missionary work.

AN Aged Lady's Death.—The death occurred at Lincoln at an early hour on Thursday morning of Mrs. Margaret Polly, who had reached the advanced age of eighty-three years. She leaves two sons. The funeral took place at two o'clock this afternoon from the residence of Mr. Angus G. Christ, at whose home the deceased died. The obsequies were largely attended. Gleaner.

WEDDING AT LINCOLN.—The house of
Mr. and Mrs. Parker Glazier of Lincoln, Sunbury County was the scene of a very interesting event on Thursday last, when their daughter Lily Bliss, was married to J. Dufferin Mitchell son of H. B. Mitchell the well known lumberer and farmer. Miss Ada A. Mitchell was bridesmaid and H. F. McLeod of Frederickton, acted as groomsmen. A large wedding party was present. The bride received very elegant and costly presents.

to make the affair a success.

DIED AT FORT FAIRFIELD, ME.—Mr.
Chas. Slipp of Juneau received a telephone message on Friday, containing the sad intelligence of the death of his brother Israel, at Fort Fairfield, Maine.
Mr. Slipp has been in failing health for several years past. He was a native of Queens County.

FREDERICKTON SHOE FACTORY.—The
tenders for constructing the basement of the shoe factory were opened at the office of John Palmer and the tender of Chas.
W. Currie and John Maxwell was accepted and work on the construction has already begun. The tenders for the other portion of the building will be opened at a formal meeting of the directors which will be held at a later date. The list for those who wish to become stockholders is still open and it will be to the advantage of any person to subscribe while the stock is still at par—one hundred dollars a share.—Herald.

GREAT BRITAIN'S FAVORITE BATTLE PICTURE.—It seems a fact that the family Herald and Weekly Star have acquired the famous battle picture "THE THIN RED LINE" as a premium picture for their subscribers this season. Lucky subscribers to get such a picture and such a paper for one dollar a year. "THE THIN RED LINE" carried all Europe
by storm. The coloring of the Highland costumes has been beautifully executed,
and every face is a study—a picture in itself. "THE THIN RED LINE" is 17
x 30. Every British subject wants this picture as soon as he sees it.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY MEETING.—
Queens County Agricultural Society No.
70, held its annual meeting in the Agricultural Hall, Upper Hamstead, on Saturday last. Owing to the day being rainy only a limited number were present.
The president S. L. Peters was in the chair. After the usual routine of business the prize money, won at the recent exhibition was distributed which amounted to over one hundred and sixty dollars.
The election of officers was then taken up which resulted as follows: President,
S. L. Peters; Secretary, A. W. Ebbett;
Treasurer, H. B. Hall; 1st Vice President, A. P. Slipp; 2nd Vice President, T. S. Peters; Auditors, Wm. Allingham and J. A. Stewart. It was decided to hold an exhibition in 1899. A subscription list for next year was opened and signed by all present. A committee was appointed to procure names for the Association. The meeting then adjourned to meet again at the call of the president.

POPULAR READING.—We have received from the Pools Printing Company, Limited, Toronto, Ont., a copy of "His Brother's Keeper," by Charles M. Sheldon,
the well known author of "In His Steps."
This is not only a delightful story, told in an interesting manner, but is full of helpfulness. One of the greatest problems of the day is ably dealt with. The scenes in the mining region are based upon events which occurred during the great strike among the iron miners in the summer of 1895, and which were witnessed by the author. Everyone should read it.
The Pools Printing Company, Limited,
Toronto, have already published seven of Sheldon's books, and every one is having a very large sale. The titles of the others are: "Overcoming the World," "The Crucifixion of Philip Strog," "Robert Hardy's Seven Days," "Richard Bruce,"
and "The Twentieth Door." For sale by all Dealers. Or, if your dealer cannot supply them, any one book will be sent, postpaid for 25 cents, or any six for $1.00,
by sending to the Pools Printing Company, Limited, 28 and 30 Melinda Street, Toronto, Ontario.

COOK'S NEW BLOOD PILLS.
THE CATTLE KILLING CASE.—The preliminary examination of John Gorrell, on the information of Thomas Harper, all of Burton, Sunbury County, was concluded before Justice Cecil F. McLean, on the 17th inst. C. E. Duffy appeared for the prosecution and E. St. John Bliss for the defense. John Gorrell was committed for trial to the Circuit Court which convened on the 18th inst. An indictment was presented to the Grand Jury charging Mr. Gorrell with killing one cow and wounding two oxen, the property of the said Thos. Harper. The Grand Jury found a true bill against the accused.
The prisoner pleaded not guilty. By an affidavit presented by F. St. John Bliss from the said John Gorrell and also one from F. St. John Bliss, setting forth that the defendants case would be prejudiced on account of the short time intervening
between the examination and the Court,
the same being read to His Honor Chief Justice Tuck, the court adjourned the hearing of this trial to the Circuit Court to be held in May 1899. In the civil case of Wm. Wilson vs. Frank Bird, damages were assessed in favor of the plaintiff for the sum of $408.97. C. E.
Duffy appeared for the plaintiff.

SURPRISE PARTY.—A large gathering of young folks assembled at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Coy, Upper Gagetown, on Friday evening last, the occasion being a surprise party, under the management of some of the young people of that place. Gagetown and Hamstead were well represented. Music was furnished by Mr. Fred Weston on the violin and Mr. Fred Covey on the harmonica, and dancing was kept up till an early hour. All the various games were played and everyone appeared to enjoy themselves. At twelve o'clock the tables were beautifully laid—viands of every description being in abundance and a bountiful supper was served. Too much can not be said of the kind and genial manner in which Mr. and Mrs.

Coy received their guests and of how they tried by every means in their power to make the time pass pleasantly for them. Altogether the occasion was a very enjoyable one, and all dispersed
well satisfied with their evening entertainment.

LARGE BEE.—We have on exhibition on our table a bee grown on the farm of F. and G. Dinges, which weighs seven pounds and measures in circumference
twenty-seven inches.

DEATH OF H. J. DUVERNET.—Mr. H. J.
DuVermet, one of Gagetown's aged and respected citizens died at his home on Monday night at 12 o'clock. Mr. Du-Vermet has been in failing health for the past few years, but his complaint was not thought serious. About a week ago he took a turn for the worse, and did not rally
since. He was in his seventy-first year.
He leaves a wife and family to mourn their sad loss. The funeral will take place on Wednesday, at 3 o'clock p. m.

A Thousand Tongues
Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1125 Howard st.,
Philadelphia when she found that Dr.
King's New Discovery for Consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life
a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help, but she says
of this Royal Cure—"It soon removed this pain in my chest and I can now sleep
soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praise throughout the Universe."
So will every one who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. Price 50 cents and $1.00 at any Drug Store; every bottle guaranteed.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, Oct. 21.—Mayor McLeary receives letters by every mail from the United States asking for positions on the Santiago police force. There are no vacancies, and if there were the pay is very small. The chief of police receives only $70 a month;
inspectors receive $40 and ordinary policemen $30.
The Angl-American club has amalgamated with the Spanish club, and will move into the latter's fine buildings next week. The united organizations will be known in future as the Cosmopolitan club.
Gen. Wood received a communication from Washington today, in which the government refuses to pay any compensation to the Archbishop of Santiago De Cuba.

TO EDITOR QUEENS COUNTY GAZETTE.
Dear Sir: I have been informed that one, L. J. King, who claims to be a reformed Roman Catholic, stated in the Parish of Johnston that a certain member of Parliament, representing this County, was a pew holder in a Catholic chapel in this county, and that said member was paying pew rent each year for the said pew.
Now, Mr. Editor, I wish to state that there is not one word of truth in the statement he made, as no one of the present members for the county either hold pews or pay pew rent in any Catholic chapel.
It is a pity that while the gentleman was being reform'd that he was not instructed in telling the truth.
Thanking you for your valuable space,
I remain,
Yours, etc.,
ONE WHO KNOWS.

MUTUAL CONFESSIONS.

By the author of "Wiltful Winnie," etc.

Besides the grand staircase at Hanteville House, there is a smaller one leading to the summer parlors and suites of bed and dressing rooms above. It runs up the south wall of the great hall, and, on the first landing, an opening has been pierced, from which one can look down into that magnificent apartment, where amidst the tapestries and banners and suits of armour pertaining to the Marquis's ancestry, his stage struck Marchioness gives the theatrical entertainments that have created such a sensation in the fashionable world.

It was on the evening devoted to a dress rehearsal of that favorite play of amateurs, "The Lady of Lyons," that a young man, coming down the staircase we have mentioned, stopped suddenly on the lower landing to gaze at the very pretty picture the window-like opening presented. It was curtained with crimson draperies and one shaded lamp lighted it sufficiently for him to see that a slender girl was leaning on the balustrade intently watching the performers in the hall below, from which arose the murmur of many voices.

But just as he paused she drew back, and threw herself on a settee, clasping her hands above her head, as if she felt very weary.

The movement tossed back from her head the hooded sortie-du-bal of pale blue and swansdown she was wearing, and the light fell softly on pale, pure features and tresses that glistened like gold.

A diamond ring sparkled on one of her fingers—a ring that was all too large, for, as she brushed back a wave of the sunny hair that had fallen over her forehead, the precious circlet slipped off and rolled away from her across the carpet.

With a cry of dismay she sprang up to find it, but the hitherto unnoticed stranger was yet more prompt than she, and it was from his hand she received it.

Her voice was as sweet as the face over which the rosy coloring of health came and went, as she expressed her thanks, adding, with a look of concern, the ejaculation:

"What should I have done if I had lost it?"

"Do you prize it so highly?" the young man asked, with a pang of something like jealousy quivering his pulses already. She was so youthful not more than seventeen or eighteen years could have passed over her head—that surely this ring could not be the gift of an affianced lover!

She opened her soft gray eyes a little at the question.

"It is as brilliant as the first water, and without a flaw," she said, holding it up for his inspection. "I must be more careful with it."

"For the donor's sake?" that same jealous pang prompted the young man to query, though, seeing her stop and retreat a step or two, as if half offended, made him instantly repent it.

"Forgive me; that was an impertinent question, which nothing could justify my putting to you. Please forget it."

He bowed, as if intending to withdraw, yet lingered, while she hesitated, then gave him a bewitching smile, though, at the same time, increasing the distance between them by moving nearer to her seat. Eventually she resumed it, saying, however, as she did so:

"You were going to watch the actors. Pray do not let my being here prevent it."

These words were spoken so graciously that he stayed, and took up a position opposite hers. The curtains on either side would have shaded both of them from observation, had anyone in the hall cast a glance upwards; but a dispute had arisen between two of the principal performers which was so warmly contested that it absorbed the attention of all their companions.

Had they, however, rehearsed their parts with all the eloquence they could command, they would have found but indifferent auditors in the modern Romeo and Juliet, now engaged in a dialogue of their own.

It was the same old story of sighs and looks, smiles and blushes, with a few faltering words, commonplace enough, yet fraught with immense significance both to the speaker and the listener—five minutes ago, strangers, yet already feeling as if they knew each other well, and wondering how, and when, they might hope to meet again.

"You are staying at Hanteville House?" he inquired.

"Yes," she replied, "with my god-mamma, Lady Milverton. And you?" she asked, shyly.

"No, unfortunately. I am often here; but I leave town tomorrow, and do not return until Saturday. Then perhaps—"

"Then," she repeated trying to speak lightly, "I—we—shall be at the Crystal Palace. One of Lady Milverton's proteges sings at the concert, and she has promised to be present and take as large a party with her as she can. Afterwards we dine there, and stay for the fireworks."

"And he will be there—the giver of that ring?"

"Indeed, no. He is dead." She raised the diamond to her lips, reverently.

ly. "And that is why his ring is so precious."

"I am sorry to have reminded you of aught that makes you sad. I have to beg for forgiveness again. Prove that you grant it by giving me your hand. You will not? Unkind!"

He was gently reminded that they had not been introduced to each other.

"True; I do not know by what name to remember my fair friend."

"It is a very simple one. I wish my god-mamma had given me her own, but she preferred another, so I am—Lucie."

"After one of the sweetest and fairest of the virgin martyrs. Will Saint Lucia's namesake remember me in her orisons?"

"For whom," she asked demurely, "shall I invoke her aid, that he may be purged of the crime of flattery?"

"I am called Sedley by those who love me."

"And by those who have the honor of a brief acquaintance."

Instead of replying, the young man took a card out of an ivory case, and presented it to her; but as in doing so he tried to retain in his hand she extended, Mistress Lucia's pretty cheeks became of a deeper hue than before, and she faltered that she must go.

"Nor did he venture to detain her, but saying, 'The Crystal Palace, Saturday,'" took his departure too.

His meditations were of a very similar character to those of Lucie, who locking herself into her chamber, sat down before the mirror that reflected her blushes.

"It is the first time," quoth she, "that a man's eyes have told me I am pretty. Was I wrong to stay and listen to him? It was very pleasant. I hope I shall see him again; but heigho! he belongs to the fickle sex and may have forgotten me already."

But he had not; for when the crowd of eager sight-seers at the Crystal Palace made a rush for the best points for securing a view of the pyrotechnic display, and Lucie was separated from her companion, it was his voice that reassured her, his strong arm that sheltered her from the press, and guided her to a place where she could see every brilliant flight of rockets, and yet be almost alone with him.

"How good you are, Sir Charles!" she cried gratefully.

From the card he had given her she had learned that her admirer was a young baronet Sir Charles Alderby; but the sound of his name on her lips seemed to displease him.

"Do not call me that! It is too stiff too formal. Let me hear you call me Sedley, and only Sedley."

"I must not stay here to call you anything," she murmured. "Dear Lady Milverton will be uneasy about me."

"But it will be impossible for you to rejoin her at present," Lucie was assured; "even if we knew where she is. As soon as the throng disperses, I will take you to her."

So Lucie—nothing loth—stayed by the side of her lover.

The night was intensely dark, save when a burst of colored fire lit up the scene, and enabled him to gaze at her downcast face, and grow more and more deeply in love with it.

Before she caught sight of Lady Milverton, and sprang towards her, she had made an admission that she sometimes walked in Kensington Gardens, after the heat and glare of the day had melted into the calm and soft gray of the twilight.

It was not positively an assignation and yet, on the following evening, they met beneath the green trees of the gardens, parted with reluctance, and promised to meet again.

"It is very wrong," said Lucie. "Lady Milverton would be angry with me if she knew. Shall I tell her?"

"Leave me to do that. When shall I ask an interview with her ladyship? Tomorrow?"

But Lucie cried:

"No, no!" in startled tones. "She might forbid me to see or speak with you again."

So it was determined that their sweet secret should be kept a little longer, and they separated. He, thinking, with smiling satisfaction, what a good match the world would say, he had made when he wedded the goddaughter and adopted child of that wealthy peeress, Lady Milverton; she, delicious dreams of being presented at Court on the occasion of her marriage with Sir Charles Sedley, Baronet, as she had learnt from the "County Families," of estates and ancestral halls in half dozen different counties.

But Lucia's eyes were full of tears when next she met her lover. Lady Milverton's youngest daughter had suddenly developed symptoms of lung disease, and by the advice of the family physician, her alarmed mother was going to hurry with her to a more equal climate than we in our island home can boast of.

"We start in a couple of days, and it may be months or even years, before we return," said Lady Milverton to her husband, who had never liked England since her husband died, and talks of settling abroad. She has a charming villa on the borders of the Lago Maggiore.

"But you, my Lucie, cannot, must not go with her. You are mine, and I will not part with you. We can be married to-morrow, by special license. Dear girl you must consent! How could we submit to such a long separation?"

Lucie hesitated, hinted that she could follow her, protested that she could not take such a step without Lady Milverton's sanction, yet finally consented to meet him early on the morrow, and become his wife.

Both were nervous and agitated; both were evidently conscious of the importance of the act they were meditating; yet both murmured, "we shall never regret it," and were firmly resolved to be united before making Lady Milverton aware that Lucie did not intend accompanying her across the Channel.

The sun did not shine on their project. It was through mist and rain, her bridal array hidden beneath a waterproof, her trembling hands scarcely able to hold a streaming umbrella, that Lucie met her bridegroom elect under the portico of the church where their nuptials were to be celebrated.

His face was as pale and grave as hers. Was it from the chilling atmosphere of the morning or from other causes?

"One moment ere we present ourselves before the clergyman," he whispered agitatedly. "I feel that I cannot be the treacherous scoundrel I have schemed to be! I love you with all my heart, my Lucie. Be mine, and my life shall be devoted to you. I will be the truest, the fondest of husbands and requite you with the tenderest devotion for the sacrifice of your pride you will make—if I am as dear to you as you tell me—for the sake of your Sedley."

"You are bewildering me," she faltered. "What do you mean?"

"Can you bear to hear that the card I gave you was not mine? That I am not your equal in rank, or position, but—actually in trade, earning my living by my own exertions."

"What trade?" Lucie demanded, looking as if she were on the eve of fainting.

"Tell me—tell me at once."

There was a long pause before the reply came.

"I am a hairdresser. I had been sent by Monsieur Millefeurs, my employer to dress the Marchioness's hair, and had stayed to give some instructions to her maid when I first saw you. Oh, Lucie I have been what fate made me. I am not to blame for the obscurity of my birth, and for ought else have you any cause to scorn me. Those who are best acquainted with my whole life will confirm what I say, when I declare that, until I deceived you, not a dishonorable action can be laid to my charge. I loved you as soon as I saw you, and hid the truth, lest my beautiful lady should shrink from me in disgust."

There was another pause. He was holding both those trembling hands in a feverish clasp; he was trying to force his destiny from Lucia's eyes, but they were averted.

"I, too, have a sorrow," she said at last. "When I was a child, I am Lady Milverton's goddaughter, and her deceased gardeners, that ever since I left the orphanage, which she placed me, I have been in the establishment as a schoolroom-attendant on her younger daughter."

"But I found you at Hanteville House—"

"Waiting for her ladyship, whom I was in attendance that evening, because her own maid was ill. You found me wearing one of her ornate gowns, with which she had me shrouded in the draughts of the staircase, and she left in my charge the diamond ring that was all too loose for her own finger. The ring she valued highly, because it had been her late lord's. If you could imagine the rich ward of my godmother, you are rightly punished."

"And you—if you have only encouraged my addresses because you believed me to be a baronet—"

Lucie rising angry, but being not allowed to finish his speech.

"Spare me, even if I will spare you, and believe me when I assure you that I did not come here this evening to be married under false pretences, but to tell Sir Charles Sedley the truth."

As she finished speaking, Lucie turned away and left the portico.

After a little hesitation he would have followed; but she had seen and signalled a cabman, into whose vehicle she stepped so quickly, that when he was in pursuit he only caught a glimpse of his lost bride, lying back in the seat in an attitude of the deepest grief, her face hidden in her handkerchief.

Lady Milverton did not stay in Italy very long after all. The little girl on whose account she went thither, quickly regained her health, and there was no reason why her ladyship should be of a lively disposition, she resumed her place in London society.

The beginning of her acquaintance found her domesticated in Park Lane, and thither Mark Sedley—now promoted to a partnership with the great Monsieur Millefeurs—went one evening to arrange the peeress's abundant treasures for a tabeau vivant.

The pretty somewhat pensive demoiselle, in a tasteful dress of black silk, who presided in Lady Milverton's dressing room, was, lately promoted; and by her burning blushes, Mark Sedley saw that he had not forgotten.

He lingered, in her presence, till the lady quitted the room.

"Do we meet here, Lucie?"

He lingered, in her presence, till the lady quitted the room.

"Do we meet here, Lucie?"

The expressive eyes that had always haunted his dream

"I have always thought of you kindly Mr. Sedley, and blamed myself for what happened."

"And I have cursed the folly that made me, in my eagerness to marry a lady forget the villainous part I was acting towards the girl who loved and trusted me."

"I have been so unhappy!" sobbed Lucie.

"And I have been the most miserable man in existence, for I heard that you were married."

"And believed it?" she queried reproachfully. "As if I could have loved anyone but you!"

And so the reconciliation was complete, and perhaps the reunited lovers will go through their future lives more happily for the chastening recollection of past errors, even though they were atoned for by MUTUAL CONFESSIONS.

That quick wit is not confined to cities was proved the other day by a young woman who was tending along one of our roads.

She was dressed smartly, and when she met a small, bare-legged archer carrying a bird's nest with eggs in it, she did not hesitate to stop him.

"You are a wicked boy," she said. "How could you rob that nest? No doubt the poor mother is now grieving over the loss of her eggs."

"Oh, she don't care," said the boy, edging away; "she's on your hat!"

Poetry.

AUTUMN DAYS.

When woods are gold and hedges gay
With jewelled autumn's bright array,
And diamonds sprinkle every spray.
The robin sings
His soft melodious well-a-day
For dying things.

Yet often when a riotous night
Has ruined half the woods delight
There breaks a spring day, warm and bright,
And the thrush sings
As though his April were in sight
Of quickening things.

BACKBONE.

When you see a fellow-mortal
Without fixed or fearless views,
Hanging on the skirts of others,
Walking in their cast-off shoes;
Bowing low to wealth or favor,
With subject uncovered head—
Ready to retract or waver,
Willing to be drove or led;
Walk yourself with firmer bearing,
Throw your moral shoulders back,
Show your spine has nerve and marrow,
Just the things which his must lack.

A stronger word
Was never heard
Than this—Backbone.

When you see a theologian
Hugging close some ugly creed,
Fearing to reject or waive Dogmas which his priest may read;
Holding back all noble feeling,
Choking down each manly view,
Caring more for forms or symbols,
Than to know the good and true;
Walk yourself with firmer bearing,
Throw your moral shoulders back,
Show your spine has nerve and marrow,
Just the things which his must lack.

A stronger word
Was never heard
Than this—Backbone.

When you see a politician
Crawling through contracted holes,
Begging for some fat position
In the rings or at the polls,
With no sterling manhood in him,
Nothing stable, broad or sound,
Destitute of pluck or ballast,
Double-sided all around;
Walk yourself with firmer bearing,
Throw your moral shoulders back,
Show that you have bone and marrow,
Just the things which he must lack.

A stronger word
Was never heard
In sense or tone
Than this—Backbone.

When you see a man
A modest song and plainly told;
The rest is mere machine of gold;
For many men most sadly lack
A noble stiffness in the back.

NEVER TO MEET!
Never to meet! Oh, can it be
That fondest hopes must end like this?
Never to meet! No more to see
The face that held a world of bliss!
Say, it is all some idle dream,
That will, on waking, fade away;
Say that our hearts in joy supreme,
Shall beat as one for now and aye!

Never to meet my sweet?
Never, as years pass o'er?
Never again, in joy or in pain,
Never, oh nevermore!

Never to meet! The words are said,
Yet surely true they cannot be!
Can all the moments past be dead?
So sweet for you love, and for me?
Ah! no, no, no! those words uneasy,
When joy shall rule in place of pain;
That idle dream bid pass away,
And let our lives be one again!

Never to meet, my sweet?
Never, as years pass o'er?
Never again, in joy or in pain,
Never, oh nevermore!

A Hymn In The Night.
Dear Saviour, seal this heart of mine,
Forever more to be
A consecration wholly thine;
With Thy pure love, my life refine,
And bind it unto Thee.

O, fill my soul with heavenly love,
And break its unclean thorn!
Descend, O blest, angelic dove,
Bestow thy riches from above,
Answer my humble prayer!

Then shall hope's star-enslaving beam
Its warmth my soul entwine,
And faith shall part with radiant streams
The cloud's deep veil of gloom, with gleams
Of light from the Divine.

Its clasp shall still the mourner's sigh,
Shall dry the mourner's tear,
And raise to heaven the dewy eye
From shadows deep, the sunny sky
Emerge with holy cheer.

God and His Son by man be known
As never known before.
When Faith and Hope and Love have shown
Their righteous fruits, the earth shall own
The truth's victorious power.

THE GENTLE THACKERAY.

It Was a Bad Christmas Eve When He Sleight Light Went Out.
"I have known Thackeray 18 years, and I don't know him yet," said Douglas Jerrold. There was a rosette in the manner of the great satirist and humorist which prevented his friends from being near to him, and yet when the humor suited him he would open his heart as though he had never known the feeling of reticence. He cared little for display and adulation, and when a banquet was tendered him on his departure for America he said he wished it were over, as such things always set him trembling.

"Besides," said he, "I'll have to make a speech, and what am I to say? I'll see if I can hammer out something. I am afraid it will be stammering by and by."

At the time "Vanity Fair" was published, Charles Dickens was producing in monthly form the story of "Dombey and Son." Thackeray read with eager delight each number as it came from the press. Where Dickens described the death of little Paul with a depth of pathos which produced the vibratory emotion in the hearts of all who read it, Thackeray seemed electrified at the thought that there was a man living who could exercise so complete a control over him. Putting the copy of "Dombey and Son" in his pocket, he hurried down to Mr. Punch's office and, dashing it down on the table with startling vehemence, exclaimed: "There's no writing against such power as this—one has no control over him. He's a greater describing Paul's death. It is stupendous!"

Thackeray was found dead in bed on the eve of Christmas, 1868. He had laid his "weary pen" aside and sunk into his last deep sleep after months and years of suffering.

My song, save this, is little worth,
I lay the weary pen aside
And wish with health and love and mirth,
As fits the solemn Christmas tide,
As fits the holy Christmas birth,
To this, good friends, our cordial still,
Be peace on earth, be peace on earth,
To men of gentle will.

If these simple but impressive words may be taken as a shadow of what his feelings may have been when called upon to lay aside his pen for the last time, we may well believe that at that sad moment his thoughts were full of prayer for the earthly peace of all.—Detroit Free Press.

"TELL HER SHE MUST."
The Doctor's Mistake, Which Was Corrected by the Married Man.
The family physician puffed meditatively at his cigar for a few minutes before coming down to business.

"I have been to see your wife, as you requested," he said at last, "and I called you to come in so that I could tell you what should be done. She's in a pretty bad way."

"Indeed?"
"Yes. No regular sickness, you know, but generally run down and in bad shape. With rest and care she'll come out all right, but you'll have to look after her pretty closely."

"I say you'll have to look after her pretty closely. You'll have to appoint yourself sort of general overseer or supervisor of everything pertaining to her welfare for a time and be very strict with her too. In the first place, tell her she must!"

"Doctor, are you acquainted with my wife?" interrupted the husband.
"Not intimately at all," replied the astonished physician. "I've been called upon to treat her once or twice, as you know, but that's all."

"Possibly that may be urged as an excuse," said the husband, "but it's not a particularly good one. This is a woman with whom you've become well acquainted, are there not?"

"Many times," said the physician.
"I have often called on me to tell my wife that she must do something or other?"

"The physician looked at the husband, and the husband looked at the physician.
"My dear sir," said the physician at last, "it flatters some men to talk to them that way, but I see you are a man of judgment and I prefer the truth to all else. Of course what I mean is that you ought to suggest to your wife that, if it is in accord with her judgment, possibly it might be a good thing to follow the advice that I will now give you. Naturally, being married, I know as well as you that 'must' is a word that ought to be eliminated from the English language or at the most confined to the instructions of parents with children."—Chicago Post.

A Queen New England Betrothal.
Hawthorne found romance on the shores of old New England, and there is a good deal of it unmingled in the modern life of the Yankee. The following story of love and marriage, strange as it may seem, is known to the writer to be true:

One summer boarder at a cottage on a point of land which formed the protecting arm of the harbor of a fishing town in Massachusetts was shown a girl, barely only a few months old. He looked at the babe and admired; then said to the mother:

"Will you give me that babe for my wife?"
The mother had known the young man for several summers; she liked him, and therefore answered promptly, "Yes."

"Will you promise never to tell her that you have selected me as her husband?"
"Yes."

The conditions of the singular betrothal were observed. The girl baby grew up, and summer after summer the young man courted her. When she was 18, he married her, and not till then did she know that she had been betrothed to her husband while in her cradle. Can old romance be more romantic than this story of a New England fishing town?—Youth's Companion.

Stars, but Not In His Line.
"You referred to me this morning, sir," howled the eminent actor, "as 'the Algal of the theatrical profession.' Allow me to ask you, sir, if that is a misearable attempt to play upon the word 'alcohol,' as a reminder, sir, that I was once addicted to the excessive use of the intoxicating bowl!"

"By no means, sir," protested the newspaper man. "I meant by that expression to convey the idea that you were a 'variable star'—sometimes brilliant and at other times not so brilliant."

With a muttered apology the eminent actor turned on his heel and stalked away.

"And this," bitterly exclaimed the newspaper man, "is the result of an assignment to an act."

One of the "algal" stars had like almon

To Editor QUEENS COUNTY GAZETTE.

Dear Sir: A very pretty wedding took place at Springfield, Kings Co., when one of the most popular young ladies of that place—Miss Jafie E. Myles, was united in marriage to Mr. Geo. R. Ward of Annidale, on the 12th inst. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's father by Rev. Mr. Pickles. The bride looked lovely in a dress of New Blue trimmed with pink satin. She was assisted by her cousin Miss Leah Howe. The groom was assisted by his cousin, Geo. Smith of Belleisle. After the ceremony the guests, to the number of 40 sat down to a well spread table. After having satisfied the wants of the inner man, a very pleasant evening was spent by all. Mr. and Mrs. Ward drove to their future home at Annidale on Thursday evening, where they were met by a number of their friends from Highfield, Annidale and Belleisle. Supper was prepared and partaken of by those present to the number of 40. Another very enjoyable evening was spent greatly to the satisfaction of all. The many presents received were both costly and elegant. The young couple start in life with the best wishes of the community.

The school here is taught by Miss Coates, who has given satisfaction to the ratepayers of the District during the year she has been teaching. The trustees are to be congratulated on having secured the services of such an efficient teacher.

Leonard and Sons intend starting their saw-mill in this place next week. Their grist mill has been running for some time under the management of Joseph P. Leonard, who is receiving high praise for the excellency of his work. It is rumored that Mr. Geo. Leonard is about to accept a position in Greenwich.

Bears have lately been seen in this vicinity, and your correspondent would like to caution two young gentlemen, who are occasionally seen late at night on the Swamp Road—a well known resort for bears.

Mrs. Samuel Long, of Belleisle, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Geo. L. Hathaway.

Johnston.

Oct. 11.—XX wants me to publish my name—in all meekness and humility I beg to state that I have already replied to that challenge; moreover I am not yet sufficiently skilled in my newly adopted trade to justify my advertising. After a little more experience lifting the article of XX I shall hang out my shingle and upon it will be inscribed my name and the following motto, "Jackasses skinned while you wait!" The public are respectfully informed that long experience, skimming and tanning the hide of XX (I cry pardon to all ordinary jackasses for numbering XX among their specie) enables me to remove donkey pelts with skill and dispatch. Fine assortment of leather taken from the hide of XX always on hand. Prime sole leather taken from his superabundant cheek, warranted to wear. Like XX's head you can only beat sense into it with a club. Cordovan wets (slightly injured by the overflow of gall before their removal) at reduced rates. The creature from which the leather was originally removed now kept in a cage at the back of the shop. Don't mind his chattering, he is not dangerous, although his appearance is liable to cause sea sickness. No! He can't exactly whisper in his own ear. But his mouth at different times has been used as a barn yard reservoir and considerable of the filth is there yet. Please note the droop of his lower lip, as an unwhipped fly trap, he is a wonder.

When you first hear his blubbering snorts as he utters different words you would imagine that he had some small amount of common sense. A little reflection however will convince you to the contrary. When he speaks of "Mongrel exclamations," you will know that he "is murdering the Queen's English worse than a six year old child. If a child were to make such a senseless remark, it might be thrashed, when he calls a newspaper correspondent, who will not reveal his name a "Traitor" you will see he has not the slightest idea in regard to the proper use of words. He has only stolen a form of challenge from some of his school books, but has made a blundering application of the phraseology. At first you will be unable to classify him, but when he begins to grumble and call names you will recognize the unvarying mark of human idiocy." All this and much more will be upon my sign.

He speaks of my "powers of oratory," who before ever heard letter writing being called oratory. Want some little boy or girl who lives near Hamilton mountain and can read the primer as far as, "This is a cat," have the kindness to take this fool in hand and learn him how to talk, or failing in this, learn him to some Italian organ grinder, who will lead him around on a string and use him for a penny catcher and so relieve decent people from being annoyed by his gibberish. "This oratory," some one has said, "consists in making the object of one's eloquence appear profound and contemptible." It would not need an orator to describe

XX. It would be impossible for words to make XX more contemptible than he has made himself. I was not aware that he had taken religious orders, and am unable to tell whether he be a mother or father "superior." Judging from his tendency to call names I should say that he was a mother "superior." His last article is largely made up of quotations from his former letters, his Pigeon English "Blunderbush," "Sagaw," and his blackguard epithets "Boar," "Belial Imps," "Nabal," "Polcat," have all been used before. I will give a leather medal to the man, woman, boy or girl who can tell me to what language the two first names belong. What form will his drivelling idiocy assume next?

He thinks that his effusions are "arguments." The poor fellow don't know any better, and again when he charges me in so many words with being surrounded with dishonest neighbors, the simpleton does not know what he is talking about. He uses words without any idea of their meaning. He talks about signing his name to his article, that would be a needless trouble. The public is aware that there is only one such fool in the county. This wopper jawed, flat faced Hamiltonian missing link, with a mouth like an alligator, ears like a Dutch windmill, and legs like the ac of a departing Aurora Borealis, will continue to emit saliva from the corner of his jaws and assail the public with a senseless use of words and so advertise himself as a fool who does not know when to let go. Once more I await with some curiosity his next exhibition of literary kleptomaniac and vile imbecility; and for the sake of a long suffering public I sincerely trust he will not again steal from himself.

Frederickton Junction.

Oct. 20.—On Wednesday last Reubin Boone the outlaw of Tracy and Charlie DeWitt "Alias Shiner" the terror of the St. Croix were up before Col. Alexander to answer for two first violations of the Scott Act. The above named gentry have since decamped for Uncle Sam's territory. This place will try and worry along without them.

Although the plebiscite election was run on strictly prohibition lines, so far as drinks were concerned, yet one man had the fashion of his countenance somewhat changed for saying in his haste that somebody was a liar.

The annual school meeting was held on the 8th inst. Dr. Murray was re-elected trustee. Mr. L. Mersereau, Secy. to Trustees and Col. Alexander, Auditor. The sum of $300.00 was voted for the ensuing year.

The photographic studio has come and gone and many have sat to secure the shadow ere the substance perishes.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Thomas are receiving felicitations on a double event—banns.

Thos. W. Alexander is engaged in renovating the F. C. B. church.

Mr. Fred Nutter, Station Agent is away to U.S. on his vacation. Mr. W. C. Edgemoor relies on Mr. Nutter.

Rev. Mr. Robertson and family have moved into the house lately vacated by Mr. Nutter.

COOK'S SURE COUGH CURE.

White's Cove.

Oct. 24.—Hon. L. P. Farris leaves this morning for Frederickton to attend a meeting of the government.

A number of our young men left last week for the lumber woods.

Mrs. J. W. Scribner of St. John is visiting her mother Mrs. Farris.

Rev. I. N. Parker held service yesterday morning in the Methodist church and Rev. J. Hughes (Baptist) in the evening.

Rev. Mr. Parker intends holding missionary meetings this week and expects Rev. Mr. McLaughlin of Gagetown to assist him.

J. F. Wright and others have shot a number of partridge.

Large shipments of potatoes, apples, etc. are going from here every trip of the May Queen.

Messrs. Baredon and Knight are doing a good business with their threshing machine.

P. White & Son are very busy in their mill and are obliged to grind day and night to keep her clear. The public seem satisfied with their work.

The "Sea King" is in with a load of coal and parties waiting coal can be supplied.

Chipman.

The King Lumber Company, Limited, are erecting a wood working factory on the premises of Mr. James H. Wilson, so as to avail themselves of the steam power of the grist mill of the latter. The machinery will consist of planer, matcher, moulder, trimmer, cutting off saw, and in the near future it is contemplated to add other machinery for the manufacture of doors and sashes.

The Elkin Coal Company are erecting five new buildings at the Coal Office in Chipman. The contractor and crew arrived by train on Saturday and are stopping at the Chipman House.

H. A. Ryan superintendent of the Elkin Coal Co., is constructing a new barn near the Station and Mrs. Wm. Darragh is putting in a new furnace in the hotel at the Station.

Ex Councillor Richardson is also engaged in putting in a furnace to heat his renovated dwelling.

John Henderson of Gaspereaux recently had a visit from Sheriff Reid and an attorney from the Shiretown. As a result of the visit Mr. Henderson's 15 tons of hay was sold for the small sum of $15 which was insufficient to pay the lawyers fees. The execution was issued at the instance of Dr. Keith, of Harcourt, and consequently yet remains unsatisfied.

The May Queen has had a new door rather double door placed at the foot of the stairway leading to the saloon and the sides are in sections so that it can be removed in the Spring. The May Queen is doing a rushing business both in freight and passengers. The three last trips it carried to market no less than 3000 barrels of potatoes besides other freight. It is expected to make 5 or 6 trips yet this fall before laying up for winter.

The big rainstorm ushered in Saturday afternoon has caused the Salmon River to overflow its banks and the fresher has carried away the boom at McLean's mill so that some delay in sawing this morning will result for want of logs. The mill is expected to shut down the latter part of this week.

Mr. Patrick McNally an old resident of the Harley road and all his family have left for Sherman, Maine, where in future they will reside.

Mr. John Watson, of Salmon Creek, was wedded last week to Mrs. Thomas Fiddler. Rev. D. McD. Clarke performed the ceremony.

Isaac Hutchinson will have joined the ranks of the beneficiaries before this appears in next week's issue of the GAZETTE. Miss Porter the intended bride will be married at her father's residence next Wednesday evening by the Rev. Mr. Clarke officiating.

Mr. Paeky Welch, of Upper Miles, is superintending a crew of men engaged in building a new barn for Dr. Hay.

King's bridge, so called, has received a new covering. Hon. L. P. Farris was up and pronounced the work very satisfactory.

Cox's Point.

Oct. 24th.—Mr. Asa Nightingale, of this place left a few days ago with eight or ten men, for Quebec, where he intends taking charge of a camp in the lumber woods for Mr. Hays. Mr. Nightingale is an experienced man in the business. The young men he took with him will be greatly missed here this winter.

Mr. G. P. Barton is building a wood boat which he intends for the winter trade. L. P. McLean is foreman and thoroughly understands his business.

Miss Pearl White has charge of the school at this place. Much credit is due Miss White for the manner in which she discharges her duty as a teacher.

Mr. Alexander Malroy is preparing for a large cut of steam wood. He has his camp nearly completed and will move his eyes into it in a few days.

News.

Oct. 25.—This place was visited on Sunday night by the fire of a man in distress. A number of the inhabitants gathered at the scene and were surprised to see James Munroe, a prominent boat builder and miner, struggling in the water. After several attempts he was at last successfully rescued by Stephen Yeomans.

Mr. John O'Leary started today on a business trip to Frederickton.

Mrs. R. P. Yeomans has returned from visiting friends in Boston.

Thomas McEscherson, our enterprising blacksmith has sold his entire stock and tools to James Miller, and left for Betts City, Montana.

Mrs. Charles Watt has returned home from St. John.

Major Green, Scott McLeod and Sandy Falton started last week for New Hampshire.

Mr. William Upton is building a new house.

Mouth of Jemseg.

Oct. 25.—The morning of the fair opened dark and cloudy, much to the disappointment of those who labored so energetically to make the day a success. But despite the heavy downfall of rain many gathered and with them brought large quantities of exhibit. This was one of the best shows ever held here since the society was organized. The show of vegetables was excellent and was admitted by those who have attended other societies to be the best they ever saw in the Province. There was also a fine display of swine, much to the credit of the exhibitors. The show of cattle and horses surpassed that of previous years. This goes to show that farmers are taking more interest in stock raising, and those who are taking the interest will find in the future the advantage as they follow it up year after year. The chief centre of attraction was the ladies department, which deserves special mention, and was spoken of by all present to be best exhibit of fancy work ever seen at an exhibition. The members of the society are glad to know that they are taking so much interest in their work.

Mr. and Mrs. Lake E. were up in a very large party of the day.

Wright, who have been doing business in South Boston during the past two years have dissolved partnership by mutual consent, and the business is now carried on by J. S. Wright & Co. who are at present doing an excellent business in groceries and provisions. They employ three men and two boys and are kept very busy. We wish the firm every success.

Gaspereaux Forks.

A very pleasant evening was spent at George and William Murray's last week. They had a frolic in the day time ploughing and chopping wood. Daniel Brown Jr. cut his foot but not very serious. After partaking of a very hearty repast the young people enjoyed themselves at tripping the light fantastic toe till the "evening" hours of the night.

Quite a number of the young people left this section for the West. Among the number are George Morrison, John Stephenson, Geo. F. and Melvin McEcheron. They intend to go to Butte City, Montana.

R. C. Ritchie, Manager of the McLean estate, on a business trip to St. John, stated that under the skilful management of Walter Munroe, the mill was doing good work. He intends to keep it in operation till the river freezes up.

WANTED—SEVERAL TRUSTWORTHY PERSONS in this state to manage our business in their own and nearby counties. It is mainly office work conducted at home. Salary straight $3000 a year and expenses—definite, bonuses, no more, no less salary. Monthly $75. References. Enclose self-addressed stamped envelope, Herbert E. Hess, Pres., Dept. M., Chicago.

Cambridge.

Oct. 25.—After a lingering illness Miss Melinda Straight died at her residence, Macdonald's Cor. on Wednesday the 19th inst. The funeral took place on Friday the 21st inst. at 2 o'clock. Rev. A. B. Macdonald conducted the services at the house and grave and preached a sermon suitable for the occasion. The floral decorations sent by loving friends as a last tribute to the deceased were very beautiful.

Dr. James White and wife of Hogdon, Me. were the guests last week of the Dr's sister, Mrs. Wellington Cox.

Two candidates were baptized by Rev. A. B. Macdonald at Macdonald's Cor. on Sunday, the 23rd inst.

Rev. John Hughes preached in the Baptist church at the Narrows on Sunday at 11 o'clock. The congregation was very much delighted with his able discourse.

Mr. Wallace McLean of Cumberland Bay has been visiting; his cousin Mrs. Rozella McAlpine.

Mrs. H. Humphrey returned on Saturday from Boston where she had been visiting relatives for the last month.

Messrs. G. & J. Robinson have their large furnace completed. The elevator that carries the refuse, slabs, and sawdust into the furnace works satisfactorily. This furnace reflects great credit on the builders.
