Even She Had Corns

Until a little while ago she thought them unavoidable. If you have corns don't blame yourself too much. Many an old person has had them fifty years.

YET they have done what you do—pared them and used old-time, useless treatments.

But what folly it is in two days take the plaster off. The corn will disappear. Only one corn in ten needs another application.

You will laugh at the old ways when you try Blue-jay. You will wonder why people ever let their corns hurt. Please start tonight. You have suffered long enough.

CHAPTER XI.

"All right," he assented. "Thank goodness they'll most probably be out; it's so fine."

"Then I shall have to write a note," she said, as if to herself.

"A note—what about?" he asked, only wondering what, woman-like, she was going to spring upon him.

"Why, of course you'll ask them to dinner, Byrnes. You couldn't do less."

"Oh, couldn't I?" he retorted. "I could keep away from them altogether. Why on earth you want to bother about them I can't imagine."

She smiled at him with all a woman's pity for a man's obtuseness.

"I won't be more than five minutes, Byrnes."

"That means half an hour," he said.

"All right."

"What was the name—Charrington, wasn't it?" she asked over her shoulder.

Heroncourt nodded. He had heard the name but indistinctly.

"Yes, I think so."

When she had gone he seated himself on one of the old wooden benches and leaned back with an air of quiet enjoyment; but gradually he grew thoughtful. This money, Mr. Spinner had lent him would not go very far—the period of his stay at Heroncourt would soon pass. He looked up at the grand old house, across the park-like lawns, and sighed.

"Back already," he said, as the countess, radiantly dressed, came gliding toward him.

"Oh, Byrnes! you haven't changed your coat. You want a frock-coat," she said, reproachfully.

"Oh, bother!" he said. "What's it matter? You're gorgeous enough for both of us."

to your coat and skirt and I'll take you for a drive. Heaven has been merciful, and we'll show our gratitude by being happy in our own, simple little way. There'll be time for a good, long drive; and you shall lecture me all the way, if you like, Ethel."

"You will have to ask some people to meet them," she said, musingly. "There are the Percys and the Walmingtons, and, of course, the rector and his wife—"

Heroncourt sighed and shrugged his shoulders.

"Oh, I'll ask whom you please," he said. "And now, for goodness' sake, let's change the subject."

When Maida and Carrie returned from their drive they found Mr. Carrington in the hall turning over the cards and the note. His face was flushed, and there was an air of satisfaction beaming from every point of him.

"Guess what news I've got for you, girls," he said, with an attempt at indifference. "There you are!" and he tossed the note and cards on the table.

Carrie sprang upon them and uttered a little cry of delight.

"And we were out, of course! What luck! What's the note say, Maida?"

"It is an invitation to dinner. 'Quite an informal little dinner,' she read. 'It is for next Tuesday.'"

Carrie crowded softly.

"Isn't that nice, isn't that friendly? 'An informal little dinner.' Of course we shall go. Maida, write and accept at once."

"In case Lady Glassbury should change her mind," said Maida, with a smile at Carrie's eagerness, "tomorrow will do. Besides, we shall have to return the call."

"How surprised Lady Glassbury will be when she finds that she knows you. But perhaps she knows already," said Carrie.

"No. The note is addressed 'Charrington,'" said Maida; "and if she knew the right name she would very probably not remember it, certainly would not jump at the connection."

Maida's surmise was perfectly correct, for when the Carringtons called at the Court and left their cards and a note accepting the invitation—Lord Heroncourt and Lady Glassbury were out—it did not occur to Lady Glassbury that the daughter of the millionaire, owner of Marston Towers, was the girl who had recited for her at Glassbury House; and Heroncourt saw neither the cards nor note—had, indeed, quite forgotten his new neighbors.

CHAPTER XII.

On the eventful Tuesday evening Carrie ran into Maida's room just as her maid had put the finishing touches to Maida's toilette, and stopped and stared at her with an expression of surprise and something like disappointment.

"Why, Maida, dear, aren't you going to wear your white silk?"

For Maida's tall, slim figure was attired in an evening dress of black lace, so simple as to be almost severe, and unrelieved by any ornament other than a white orchid which nestled in the by no means low bodice.

"Not to-night, Carrie," said Maida, gently. "How pretty you look, dear," she added, scanning her with fond admiration.

"Oh, never mind me, I'm as Nature made me, and that isn't pretty. But you? Why not the white dress, Maida? Though I'm bound to admit that you look simply ravishing in that lace. But where are your diamonds? Do be quick and put them on; I know it is time we started."

"I don't think I will wear any jewellery to-night," said Maida, gently.

"Why not? And those lovely things—the bracelets and the pendant—Ah, I see!" she broke off, her green-grey eyes suddenly gleaming with comprehension. "Mary, will you fetch me my pocket-handkerchief? Yes, you're right; you always are, Maida. All the diamonds in the world couldn't make any difference to you."

"That sounds scarcely complimentary, Carrie," said Maida, laughing.

"You couldn't look more beautiful, and you don't want to call attention to the fact that we are nouveau rich. How cute of you—no, not cute; it's instinct, Maida, that's what it is. And, after all, these grand people are sure to have better diamonds than ours—family diamonds—"

"Which they are fully entitled to wear," said Maida. "Carrie," suddenly, with a touch of colour in her ivory pale cheeks, "it is because we are rich, because we have bought the Towers, that Lady Glassbury and Lord Heroncourt have made our acquaintance and asked us to dinner. Would they have cared to know us if we were still living in Coleridge Street? And they will expect us to air our wealth—"

"And they'll be disappointed," broke in Carrie, whipping off her necklace and all her rings. "There! They shan't have a chance of sneering—"

Maida put her arm round her and drew the girl to her.

"They would not sneer, Carrie; they would only think we had done the expected thing. But put on your necklace again, child."

"Nary necklace nor ring nor bracelet for me!" said Carrie. "But, oh, Maida—laughing—what will father say?"

"We will tell him that we will wear them next time," said Maida. "There, he is calling. Let us go down."

"One more look at you, Maida," with impressive emphasis. "You look divine; and, oh, if you could only guess how proud of you I am! You won't mind my telling everybody to-night that you belong to me, will you?"

They went down to the hall, where Mr. Carrington and Mr. Spinner, in resplendent evening-dress, were awaiting them. A diamond stud blazed in Mr. Carrington's expansive shirt front, and as his eyes wandered over the girls he noticed the absence of jewellery, and his face fell; but "Lost all those diamonds I gave you?" was all he said.

"Oh, no; but they wouldn't go with our dresses, father," replied Carrie, mendaciously. "It's all right. Don't you worry. And how—how splendid are you looking!"

Mr. Spinner eyed the girls with his affectation of simplicity, but there was a twinkle of comprehension in his pale eyes.

"I haven't any terms at my command to describe you, Miss Carrie—and Miss Maida," he added; but his gaze only wandered from Carrie to Maida for a moment.

"The carriage has been up quite five minutes, and it's had form to be late for dinner," said Mr. Carrington, tearing at his gloves and dropping his opera-hat in the nervousness which he was trying hard to conceal under an assumption of accustomed ease.

He succeeded in splitting the right-hand glove long before they reached the Court.

"Poor father!" whispered Carrie as they followed the plainly liveried footman through the ancient, dimly lighted hall. "And I'm just as nervous as he is. But you—just look as cool as a cucumber, Maida; but that's because you are so artful."

The footman announced them, and they entered the drawing-room. Most of the other guests had arrived. Sir Edmund and Lady Percy—a tall and distinguished-looking couple—were standing talking to Lady Glassbury, and Lord Glassbury was declaiming about politics to Lord Walmington—a short, thick-set man, who looked like a farmer; though he was the descendant of a hundred earls. The rector—a thin, overworked-looking man—was standing by Lady Walmington's chair discussing parish affairs, and his wife—a faded, colorless little person—was listening as if every word her husband said was too precious to lose.

AT THE HOUSE.

Practically all of the time of the House of Assembly was exhausted in bickering and dickerings with the Estimates yesterday afternoon.

Shortly after the opening Mr. Grimes took the floor. He then talked of the need for a Reformatory here and wished to acquaint the House that he had received a reply from the Colonial Secretary in reference to collection of private fees at the General Hospital by Dr. Keegan. In the Doctor's letter to the Colonial Secretary, which was read to the House, he stated that he had not received any fees on a public ward but he had on private wards. In 1916 he received one fee of $15 or $20 from John Ashley, cable operator; in 1917 a Mrs. Finn of Carboneau had paid him $50 for services; also a Mr. Butt of Bay Roberts had been charged for an operation on his wife, though the fee had not yet reached him. The Doctor intimated in his report that he understood when he was appointed Superintendent that the Hospital was only intended free to laborers, fishermen and their wives and families, but that persons who he knew could afford should pay. Mr. Grimes considered that was Dr. Keegan's own interpretation, but it was a gross defiance of the law and Legislature, as there was an Act passed two years ago stating that all such fees collected should be handed over to the general revenue of the Colony. He (Mr. G.) did not see anything to hinder other heads of departments from acting similarly. He said that Dr. Keegan was now being paid, all things considered (except extra fees), $4,000 a year. Continuing, Mr. Grimes said that the High Cost of Living Commission had not justified itself, as the food dealers were making greater profits now than ever before. He then advocated compulsory education.

Mr. Stone followed virtually along the same lines, though his main point of argument was the wonder why the toy steamer (Wren), 45 tons net, should receive the same subsidy as the s.s. Ethie of about 200 tons and with splendid accommodation. He said it was in the best interests of the country and Empire that an election should be held this year. At this juncture Mr. Coaker rose to a point of order, pointing out that there were not sufficient members present to form a quorum. In the Government benches were the Premier and Messrs. Piccott, Woodford, Higgins and Devereaux, whilst on the Opposition side were Messrs. Coaker, Stone and Jennings. The Premier replied that when the House was in Committee a quorum was not required, though he had no objection to having the members called in from the lobby. Shortly after Mr. Coaker raised the question as to a quorum, and quoting the rules of the House disagreed with the Premier's decision. The latter told him to have it any way he liked as far as he was concerned. Mr. Coaker rejoined, "Well, then, we'll have an election."

Mr. Jennings spoke of the Prime Minister's trip to the Old Country and thought that the Premier's "sentimental platitudes" were not good enough. He then dealt with the report of the Logging Inspector.

Dr. Lloyd stated that the reason for the present attitude of the Opposition was the Government's refusal to state what their intention was concerning an election. He said it was the duty of the Colonial Secretary to have the list of voters taken and that it was illegal for him to accept a salary as Chief Censor and Colonial Secretary and to retain his seat in the House, just the same as it was unlawful for the member for Placentia (Mr. Morris) to be in the House and at the same time be paid as Acting Judge of the Central District Court. He thought that there should be a salary cut out for the Premier. He didn't mean to say the Premier was working without pay, as he went on to read to the House under the head of Contingencies the following entries:—

Sir E. P. Morris—July 22nd, visiting Regiment in France, 250 pounds, $1,193.15. (Includes gifts to members of Regiment.)

Sir E. P. Morris—July 22nd, expenses re Loan (not including commission), $4,000.

Sir E. P. Morris—March 5th, expenses, $3,000.

Dr. Lloyd also thought that the vote for the Heads of Departments should be increased, but objected to Ministers augmenting their salaries in other respects.

The Bill respecting the Volunteer Force, which extends the time to keep the Regiment in existence until six months after the war, was read a second time, as was also the Bill respecting the Wills and Estates of members of the Nfld. Regiment and Royal Naval Reserve. The winding up of the estates of deceased soldiers and sailors is facilitated and done without cost and delay by the enforcement of this Bill.

FOUR WEEKS IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Brown Finally Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cleveland, Ohio. "For years I suffered so sometimes it seemed as though I could not stand it any longer. It was all in my lower organs. At times I could hardly walk, for if I stepped on a little stone I would almost faint. One day I did faint and my husband was sent for and the doctor came. I was taken to the hospital and stayed four weeks but when I came home I was just the same and had the same pains. A friend who is a nurse said for me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I began taking it that very day for I was suffering a great deal. It has already done me more good than the hospital. To anyone who is suffering as I was my advice is to stop in the first drug-store and get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before you go home." - Mrs. W. C. Brown, 1109 Auburn Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

danger to any one, but simply such as would be a bulwark guaranteeing the independence of a pacific country. "The hour is solemn for our country," he said. "We cannot deny that by a prolongation of the war conditions have become worse day by day who may be expected to aspire to an equitable and durable peace. It must be equitable to prove durable, a peace which will mark an advance in the march of civilization. It is to obtain such a peace that we appeal to the entire nation without distinction of rank, of sex, or age, asking that each continue his efforts in the sacred name of all our brothers who have given their health or life for the common cause. Every momentary weakness, every hesitation might render useless the steps which have been taken up to the present amid so many arduous difficulties and immeasurable sacrifices and might even imperil the victorious outcome. Italy counts to-day absolutely upon the devotion of her sons, upon their actions, their words, and their sublime spirit of self abnegation."

ITALIAN SUCCESSES.

ROME, To-day. Successes for the Italians in both the Dolomites region and on the Carso plateau are reported in an official statement issued by the Italian War Office to-night. The text of the statement follows: Yesterday evening in the Valcastrana Ampezzo sector we exploded a powerful mine which had been prepared after difficult excavation work under the spur of the Lagazuol Piccolo. The explosion blew up the position and destroyed the garrison. Our Alpine troops following close on the explosion and supported by artillery boldly carried the summit of Hill 2668 on the Lagazuol Piccolo and established themselves firmly there. On the Julian front enemy attacks on our positions on the Vodico and southwest of Jamnass were repulsed. A violent enemy fire on our positions south of Versic was promptly silenced. In the same area a surprise action on our part carried our advanced line some distance forward.

EMPEROR NICHOLAS TO BE TRIED

LONDON, To-day. Former Emperor Nicholas will be placed on public trial, according to a statement made by Wm. James Thorne and James O'Grady, Labor members of Parliament, who were members of the mission sent to Russia by the Labor Party. The two Labor leaders addressed a meeting in London last night at which they said that M. Kerensky, Russian Minister of War, had told them that a trial of the former Emperor and a number of reactionaries had been decided upon. At the trial, Minister Kerensky was quoted as saying, incriminating documents will be produced proving that a separate peace was planned by the Court party. These documents will include one dated March 15th.

WAS PEDLARS' PARADE.

The Pedlars' Parade, promoted by Mrs. T. J. Duley, Mrs. Geo. Knowling, Jr., and Mrs. S. H. Logan, of the Khaki Guild, and held at the C. C. C. New Hall last night, in aid of the fund for disabled soldiers and sailors, proved an unqualified success. The parade which took place was spectacular and amusing, followed by a dance. The Daffodil song and dance, in which a number of little girls took part was very enjoyable, as was also the Butterfly Dance by Mrs. Cleary's pupils. Appropriate solos were rendered in beautiful voice by Miss Mare and Mrs. Grieve. The patriotic tableau was enthusiastically applauded. Mrs. C. W. E. Ayre represented the central figure, Britannia, and those coming forward, artistically costumed, to honour her, were: Newfoundland, Miss M. LeMessurier; Canada, Miss Mare; France, Miss Gosling; Russia, Mrs. Grieve; Italy, Miss C. Rendell; Belgium, Miss Emerson; Japan, Miss Hayward; West Indies, Mrs. Bennett; New Zealand, Blakie Ayre; South Africa, Miss Carter; India, Miss J. Rendell; Australia, Mr. N. Duley; Serbia, Miss C. Emerson; Roumania, Miss M. Clouston; Montenegro, Miss Duley; Uncle Sam, Mr. H. Mitchell. The C. C. C. band, in charge of Captain Bulley, discoursed splendid airs, and Mr. A. Gowen, who manipulated the colored lights, aided in no small degree towards giving effect to the dances and tableaux. To Mrs. Dickie, who acted as accompanist, and Mesdames Tessier, Glennie and McLean, who served ice cream, and all others who assisted, credit is due, but the promoters mentioned above are entitled to particular praise for bringing the affair to such a successful issue. Dancing to the strains of the C. C. C. band was continued until 1 o'clock this morning.

City Man Discovers New Bait Preserver.

A well known gentleman of the East End, whose name, for personal reasons we are not in a position to state, has discovered a new bait preserver which on being put to the test has proved remarkably satisfactory. In September of last year, the gentleman in question secured a fairly large quantity of squid, and treating the fish with the new process stored it away in a safe place, but watched the progress of the treatment each week for the past nine months. This morning the Telegram reporter was shown a sample of the fish, which to all appearances had not altered from its natural state, being as fresh as the day on which it was caught. A quantity of the bait was given a trial on the fishing grounds this morning and proved in every way equal to newly caught squid. The process for preserving it, we are informed, very simple and inexpensive and is jealously guarded by the discoverer.

Tackling the Food Question.

We have read carefully the arguments which the Herald set forth yesterday against the proposed policy of a Governmental commandeering of all flour stocks in the country...

If we accept the assumption of the Herald that flour prices are high and ought to be lessened, we cannot see the force of its arguments against the proposed method of lessening them...

But these difficulties themselves are they so insuperable after all? They seem to rest merely on the fact that the flour, if taken over, would be of different grades and have to be bought from the owners at different prices...

about that. Half measures would be worse than none. If it is all bought at a fair profit, the owners could have no complaint. Why need it be sold at different prices? All the flour in the hands of the wholesale dealers at any time is usually sufficient for the needs of the country for a good period ahead...

But there is one qualification of this rule, which shows the chief advantage of Government control of the food supply. We cannot too often repeat that the supply is far more important than price...

In what we have said we do not necessarily advocate Government management of the flour business; we have endeavoured merely to answer the objections the Herald has raised to it...

Beef, Iron & Wine Case.

DEFENDANT CONVICTED. In the Magistrate's Court—Before Mr. F. J. Morris, K.C., J.P.

Martha Myers, Police Constable vs. Mary Sphire—This is a proceeding taken against the Defendant, Mary Sphire, a shop-keeper of New Gower Street, who is charged with a violation of Section 4 of the Act, 6 Geo. V., Cap. 5 (Intoxicating Liquors Prohibition Act), for selling to one Patrick Grey a preparation known as "Beef, Iron and Wine" containing over 2% of alcohol in volume...

The principal facts elicited at the trial by Mr. C. E. Hunt, B.L., who appeared on behalf of the Prosecution, were as follows: On Sunday the 22nd of April last, Patrick Grey, having heard the merits of Beef, Iron and Wine extolled by his friends at the Union Hall, proceeded to the shop of the defendant, Mary Sphire, and purchased three flasks, each containing about a half pint of Beef, Iron and Wine...

"One flask Beef, Iron and Wine found on Patrick Grey—bought at Mary Sphire's shop, No. 12 New Gower Street, on the 22nd day of April, 1917, containing Intoxicating drink. Alcohol—16.2 % by volume. (Sgd.) D. J. DAVIES, B.Sc., F.C.S.

H. W. LeMessurier, C.M.G., Deputy Minister of Customs, deposed to the fact that the imported article known as "Beef, Iron and Wine" is certified under the heading of "Alcoholic preparation for medicinal purposes."

Albert E. Parkins, Chemist, a witness on behalf of the defence who manufactured the compound, which was sold by the defendant to Grey, stated, the preparation contained not less than 15% alcohol, and may run up to 20%. He imported the medicinal wine, identical in alcoholic strength to 16 per cent. absolute alcohol. It is over ale, stout and beer from the alcoholic standpoint, and contains more alcohol than lighter wine. Mr. Gibbs, K.C., Counsel for the defendant, in an exhaustive address, during which he quoted from several authorities, asked for dismissal of the complaint. He defined the term "Spiritous" as meaning distilled, distinguished from fermented and recited as applied to a liquor for drinking. "Liquor" is defined as an alcoholic or spirituous liquid either distilled or fermented. Liquor was distilled, and ales, wines and beers fermented. He contended that Beef, Iron and Wine was not an ale, it was not a wine, it was not a malt, it was not brewed, it was not spirituous because it was not distilled. He submitted that it did not come within the provisions of the Act, and that against the defendant should therefore be dismissed.

Mr. Dunfield, B.L., who appeared with Mr. Hunt, summed up for the Prosecution, and after reviewing the evidence, and certain sections of the Act, contended that a clear violation of the law had been proved against the defendant, and she should be convicted.

Section 4 of the "Intoxicating Liquors Prohibition Act" is as follows: "If anyone not licensed in accordance with the provisions of the said 'Prohibition (Liquors) Act' sells, after the first day of January, 1917, any intoxicating liquor, he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than One Hundred Dollars, and not more than Five Hundred Dollars, or, in default of payment, imprisonment not exceeding three months."

The definition of "Intoxicating Liquors" is found in Section 7 of the Act under consideration. The term "Intoxicating Liquors" shall be construed to signify all ales, wines, malt brewed or spirituous liquors containing two per cent. or upwards of alcohol in volume, except such drugs and medicines as may be excepted by the Governor in Council, and wines for Sacramental purposes. The compound sold by the Defendant as Beef, Iron and Wine has not been excepted by the Governor in Council, and therefore is not exempt as a drug or a medicine. The Defendant is not licensed under the Act to sell intoxicating liquors. The compound sold by her to Patrick Grey contained over 16 per cent. of Alcohol by volume.

I hold that under the evidence, the Defendant must be convicted of a breach of Section 4 of the "Intoxicating Liquors Prohibition Act," and I therefore convict her accordingly and impose the minimum fine of One Hundred Dollars or, in default, one month's imprisonment.

Dated at St. John's, this 22nd day of June, 1917. Messrs. Hunt and Dunfield for the Prosecution. Mr. Gibbs, K.C., for the Defendant. (Sgd.) F. J. MORRIS, J. P.

Flower of German Race Being Blotted Out By the War.

Extracts from letters of German Soldiers in Messines and Wytschaete Trenches show the Terror and Havoc Caused by the British Guns—Germans Say They Cannot Compete With the British and Believe They Will Be Beaten—Enemy's Losses Appalling. (By Philip Gibbs.)

War Correspondent's Headquarters, Tuesday, June 12.—The following extracts from letters written by German soldiers in the Messines and Wytschaete trenches before our offensive broke show the terror and havoc caused by our guns: "We are now in this hell. One might believe that God would not allow it to go on any longer like this. I think we shall be relieved one of these days, as there are not many left."

Losses Are Enormous. "We are five days in the trench, five days in support, five days in the trench again, then we go back for ten days. Our divisions losses are over 300 men each day. The enemy bombards the trench with aerial bombs. The observation aviator flies quite low and nobody dares show himself. Our position looks as though 10,000 men should have ravaged them. On the other hand, the English side is quite smooth. Our artillery does not fire at all. If ours fire one shot the English return a hundred. Our artillery has no ammunition—just enough to repel an attack. I think if the end does not come soon he will beat us."

"I am in the trenches. In where it is very hot. Drumfire day and night. It is almost unbearable. I cannot understand at all where the English get their ammunition."

"We have been lying in advanced position for twenty days, and I can tell you it is a regular hell hole here, and one does not know what to do. There will soon be no way of escape for us. The English smash up everything with artillery and we have fearful losses."

"We have artillery fire here such as you cannot imagine. Yesterday twenty-one men were killed, seven wounded with one shot. Our artillery does not speak."

Lesing Flower of Race. "To-day, June 1, is now the thirtieth day on which our trenches and ground behind have been exposed to heavy fire. All trenches are smashed. No more shelter is to be had, as battery emplacements was destroyed, and even six deep metre galleries are not safe from guns of heavy calibre. Thus we are forced into the open and into a hall of iron each day. We must thank God we are alive."

Which Sex is the Most Extravagant?

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Of all the absurd fallacies current about my sex the one I resent the most is that women are more extravagant than men.

For every woman who spends more than her husband's income warrants, I'll wager there are five men who overspend.

In the reader's column of a certain newspaper, one of the most familiar plights is that of the woman whose husband gives her some disproportionately tiny sum out of his income (for instance twelve dollars out of twenty-five) to run the house and dress herself and the baby, and keep all the rest for himself.

Every Now And Then They Upset The Balance.

Besides these unbelievably mean husbands, there are others who are in the main reasonable in their apportionment of the money but who have occasional lapses of extravagance when they completely upset the family exchequer. And then the little wife, who has been anxiously keeping everything balanced, so much for clothes, so much for savings, must scrip and manage and contrive for a month or two to get things straight again. Perhaps the savings account is sacrificed. Or perhaps she decides she doesn't need a new spring suit after all.

He Comes Home Minus A Ten Dollar Bill.

I have a friend whose handsome amiable good hearted husband usually gives her the whole of his salary which is barely enough to cover the needs of themselves and three growing youngsters. He knows this per-while he will go on a spending spree and come home minus a ten dollar bill. He met an old friend he had to entertain, he had a chance to buy a wonderful fishing rod cheap. My friend's greatest horror is debt—you can imagine how easy it is to keep out of it under these conditions.

A Harmless Extravagance But—

Another friend has a husband who is very fond of choice books. He came home the other day with some beautiful volumes he had picked up cheap (thirty dollars). "It's my one extravagance," he said, when his wife looked aghast, "and I call it a harmless one."

Which was perfectly true, but his wife hasn't a single extravagance and even goes without some necessities in her struggle to make ends meet.

To be sure, you can probably balance these with stories of the women who waste their husband's money, but be honest now—don't you know five women who have to hold their husbands back to one man who is troubled by an extravagant wife?

MINARD'S LINIMENT is the only Liniment asked for at my store and All the people use it.

Everyday Etiquette.

"I wish to announce my engagement. Can you tell me an original way of doing so?" pleaded Ethel.

Entertain several of your intimate girl friends at luncheon. During the meal have the doorbell ring and let the maid bring in a telegram to the hostess. She should then seek permission to open and read it. She should then read aloud the announcement of the engagement," advised her friend.

GAS is a great American commodity which is used for lighting, heating and consumed in ordinary conversation is the cheapest kind produced, as it is not attached to the meter and does not cost anything but brain fag. In some cases, this is also dispensed with. There are two kinds of gas—artificial and natural. Artificial gas is manufactured by opulent stock companies, who turn it out 1,000 feet at a time, after which it is forced into the basement of a man's home and allowed to trickle through a conscienceless device known as a meter. The meter is an adjuster that works just as fast whether anybody is at home or not, and it is always located in the north-west corner of the vegetable cellar, where it can be read with perfect ease by climbing up on a barrel and lying flat on the cold air duct of the furnace. This is an ideal arrangement for the gas company, as a patron cannot see how large his bill is until it has been paid by somebody at the office during his absence.

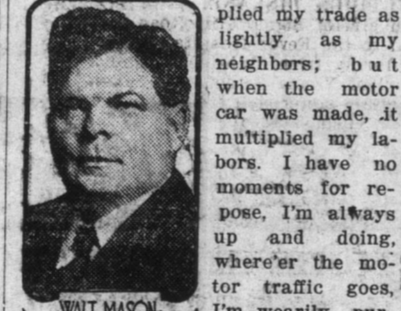

A great American commodity used for lighting, heating and conversational purposes.

Natural gas is a variety which flows out of the ground and also bubbles out of the after-dinner speaker. It is a splendid substitute for hard coal, as it contains no clinkers and does not need to be fanned with shavings, corn cobs and the Sunday paper. In some parts of the country natural gas is so cheap that a man can heat a house of nine rooms and bath without any other expense except running a few feet of iron pipe out of the west window. Great quantities of natural gas go to waste in this country, owing to its cheapness, and millions of feet are squandered in the halls of Congress and on the Chataqua circuit every year.

Gas is much nicer for cooking purposes than gasoline, as it is not liable to explode and spoil an expensive rib roast and a sound, healthy, hired girl. The gas range does not run out of fuel, either, and die down just in time to ruin a batch of salt-rising bread. There is nothing that will sour the disposition of a sweet-tempered housewife quicker than to own a gasoline stove which has the habit of going out after dark and has to be filled from a red can out in the woodshed before it will resume business.

THE FOOLKILLER.

In olden times I plied my trade as lightly, as my neighbors; but it was when the motor car was made, it multiplied my labors. I have no moments for repose, I'm always up and doing, wherever the motor traffic goes, I'm wearily pursuing. I chase the speed fans east and west, their diaphragms I sever, oh, some may sleep and some may rest, but I toil on forever. I chase, until I strain my thews, the red-eyed loosed voter, who primes himself with beer or booze, and tries to run a motor. He dodges me, perhaps, for years, Dame Fortune seems to pet him and still he mixes gas and beer, but in the end I get him. I pause to see him planted deep, then take up my endeavor, oh, some may rest and some may sleep, but I toil on forever. When youths and maidens swipe a car, and jorjide o'er the prairie, I hate like everything to mar their plans so bright and merry. But duty must be done, my friends, and so their car I follow, and see the happy jorjide ends in quarry, creek or hollow. My watch on all the cars I keep, my stratagems are clever; oh, some may rest and some may sleep, but I toil on forever.

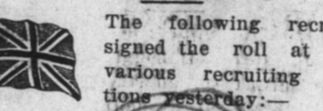

The Gas Range!

The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife; shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive.

Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove, fill her with gloom. A Gas range is so much easier to operate, so efficient for all kinds of cooking, and so much cleaner, that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. Hospital Accommodation

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Kindly allow the space in your paper, to make a few suggestions in reference to the above.

We frequently read in the Press of the congested condition of this City's General Hospital. Many people who come here from the Outports have to be put in boarding houses here until they are able to obtain admission to that institution. Doubtless, in many cases this causes much more suffering and anxiety than would be the case if they were able to gain admittance upon arrival here. Residents of the City have the same experience, except that they are among friends in most cases, but they also have to wait, sometimes for many weeks before gaining admission.

This state of things should not and need not be. The blame of course attaches to no one being, no doubt, through lack of funds. I think that all that is required for those in authority to make us all see our responsibility in this matter. Hospitals are charitable institutions, and should be supported by the public generally. I would suggest that an annual collection be held, as in the large Cities of England. Such collections are generally made on Saturday, which is known as "Hospital Saturday." This is further augmented by "Hospital Sunday" a few weeks later, when all the collections taken in the City Churches are devoted to this purpose. In this way the Hospitals are well equipped, and ample accommodation, and everyone is doing their part.

During the past two years and a half, thousands of dollars have been given to Patriotic purposes showing among our people here, and I believe that if Hospital Saturday and Sunday were inaugurated here our troubles with Hospital accommodation would be over.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, in anticipation for space.

I remain,
Yours truly,
PRO BONO PUBLICO.

Boy Injured.

A ten-year-old boy named Meadus, whose home is on Boncoddy Road, was knocked down and slightly injured by a motor cycle at 7.40 o'clock last night on LeMarchant Road, near the junction with Murray Street. The lad attempted to cross in front of the cycle, which was going at a moderate speed, and was knocked over. He was picked up by the Hon. J. C. Crosbie, who was passing in his motor car, and was taken to Dr. Tall's surgery. Mr. Crosbie afterwards drove the injured boy to his home. The owner of the cycle was in no way to blame, as at the time he was proceeding slowly when the boy attempted his mad act.

How We Might Lose the War.

The Map That Will Spell Victory or Defeat.

On every hand men are asking: When will the war end?

To that question any answer is futile. No man knows. But we can get nearer to the answer by grasping the fact as to how the war will end.

Our rulers look to the nation to form that vast weight of public opinion which shall be the chief weapon of their authority. And it is of vital importance that the man in the street shall bend his will and his intelligence and his patient courage to the right formation of that opinion, and that he shall place in the hands of his Government an invincible weapon whereby a decision may be won.

First, let me clear away a greatly abounding fallacy. It would be possible for a peace to be signed next month; but it might not be the end of the war; it might even mean a prodigious prolongation of the war at a hideous disadvantage to us. Don't let us make any mad mistake about that. The written bond of the German is wholly without value. He has said it; and he has proved it. It follows that any lasting peace must be beyond German undoing.

Why Germany Wants Peace Now.

The war will end when certain things are made absolute; it can only so end. It is vital that the man in the street should try and grasp what and when that end will be. He will at the same time have revealed to him why the German wants peace; why he wants it as soon as he can get it; and why he harps on the status quo.

There are stupendous moral and spiritual ends which must determine the war; but it will first of all end with a map.

To those of us trained in strategics, a map speaks. It is what the map tells us that means victory or defeat.

The man in the street has only to get a very simple map into his mind, and to keep it there, whereby to judge and form his will all the time.

If he will take a small uncolored map of Europe, and shade or tint Germany, Austria, Serbia, Roumania, Bulgaria, Greece and Turkey; and then draw a scarlet line from Hamburg at the North Sea, through Berlin, Dresden, Prague, Vienna, Budapest, Belgrade, Nish, Sofia, to Constantinople; then go back to Berlin again and draw a second scarlet line to Breslau, Cracow, through Bukarest to Constantinople; then a branch scarlet line from Vienna to Trieste at the head of the Adriatic Sea, and a branch line from Nish to Salonika at the head of the Aegean Sea, this map will at once reveal the "Pan-German" Empire, and the great arteries whereby alone the enemy can realise his dreams of world conquest.

It was to make this map that the German made his war; and he has made that map. The conquest of Serbia opened the gates to his Pan-German Empire towards the East.

Now, certain worthy old gentlemen have been telling us that if we dethrone the Kaiser, or if we smash Germany in the west and free Northern France and Belgium, we have won the war. If we make a peace on such misunderstanding or sentimentality, and leave the map that we have just drawn to the German, then we have lost the war.

The Pan-Germanic Dream.

The Kaiser does not matter a groat. It is for the Germans to dethrone him or to keep him. If Austria does not break away from Germany and create herself into a confederation of free peoples according to nationalities, hostile to all German domination, or unless those peoples are made free with or without con-

Captain Philip Jensen Returns.

In a few days we shall again have Captain Philip Jensen amongst us, with a record of work well done and the name of Newfoundland honoured through him in New York and Boston, as it is being honoured through others of our sons in Europe.

Visiting the States to seek special medical attention, Captain Jensen did not rest but used the opportunities that offered to show what Britain was doing in this great war. After his opening talk at the Banquet of the Canada Club of New York, doors were quickly opened to him, and he has since spoken at numerous gatherings in these two cities, notably to the youth of both Boston and Harvard Universities, being bombarded afterwards by questions from these future young soldiers just entering the war. This was succeeded by his speaking to a gathering of War Veterans, and he was then recalled to New York to speak at a great entertainment given in aid of the American Red Cross.

Unfortunately his want of strength has made it necessary for him to refuse more of the continued requests to speak to inspire patriotism, the specialist urging him to return to his native air and rest for another year.

As all know, since leaving here, Canada has honoured him by promoting him to a Captaincy in his old Regiment, the Canadian Black Watch, for distinguished service in the field. Such a promotion is one of the greatest honours that can be bestowed.

It is a proud thing for Newfoundland that its fine sons to-day reap laurels in Europe, America, Canada, and that these men in their youth are making the name of the oldest Colony well-known and honoured throughout the world.

Municipal Council

At last night's meeting of the Municipal Council, Mayor Gosling presided, the full Board being in attendance. A. J. Bayly, Secy. of the Agricultural Board, informed the Council that scabs had made their appearance on the Park trees, and suggested that some of the limbs be cut off and sent to Toronto so that a proper spray should be procured with which to fight the disease.

The Mayor reported that he had been in conference with the Minister of Agriculture and Mines and protested against an application to rebuild on the site formerly occupied by the Callan Glass factory. The ground is Crown property, and if any application is made the protest will be considered. (This building removed should cause a reduction in the insurance rates for the surrounding dwellings.)

Residents of LeMarchant Road, in the section between Springdale and Hamilton Streets, a further protest to the Council against changing the name to Patrick Street. The chief reason was that it would cause trouble in connection with leases and insurance policies. A copy of the Solicitor's report, wherein it is stated that the change of name would in no way affect leases or other rights, will be sent the petitioners.

A number of residents of Spencer St. requested that a tank and grating be removed from in front of their residences.

The F. B. Wood Co. were granted permission to install an automatic fire sprinkler.

Mr. John Smith was again re-appointed Park policeman. Messrs. Robertson, Hiscock and Blatch, acting on behalf of some of the residents of Long's Hill, complained of the action of other residents in throwing filthy water in the drains, which was a source of annoyance and discomfort to all. Mr. Blatch invited Dr. Tait to visit the locality and view the surroundings from the view point of a health officer. The houses complained of were found by the Inspector to be unfit for installation of water and sewage, but the Council would again consider the matter.

Federacy in a united Austria, the war will not end, no matter how many treaties of peace are signed.

The simplest mind can see that Bohemia, Poland, Rumania, and Serbia, being free, cut the arteries of Germany and shatter the Pan-German dreams of the conquest of the world; but that these peoples unfreed become the highway to that appalling adventure. Whatever humiliations Germany may eat in the west, leave the German his Pan-German map, and there will not only be no end to this war, but there will be no end to German ambition.

Established as a great Pan-German Empire from the North Sea to the Levant and the Persian Gulf, the German will set to work afresh to conquer the world with enormously increased powers and resources.

It is above all necessary, not only for the man in the street to understand the situation, but for him to "stick it" without complaint until the hideous nightmare that to-day stalks the earth has been effectually laid.

Let it be remembered that our cousins of America have drawn the sword for one mighty aim—that the peoples may know the freedom they desire.—Haldane Macfall, in the Sunday Pictorial.

GERMANS RETREAT.

With the British Armies in the Field, June 21.—Sometime within the last twenty-four hours the Germans retreated out of all the Territory west of the River Lys near Warneton southward. British patrols reported to-day they had failed to encounter a single Prussian in this section. The enemy evidently reached the critical position he occupied in the Lys-River head, and hurriedly decamped in the face of British pressure. The withdrawal of German forces around the Lys has been predicted. In this section the Ypres-Lille Canal and the River Lys converge, meeting at Comines. The angle of this convergence is roughly embraced between Hellebecq and Houthem to the north and Warloutin, Houplines and Armentieres to the south. Warneton is about 2 1/2 miles southwest of Comines on the Lys. West of the River Lys from near Warneton southward presumably means that about eight square miles down to Houplines has been evacuated.

RUSSIAN CONGRESS VOTE FOR OFFENSIVE.

LONDON, June 21.—Despatches from Petrograd to the Exchange Telegraph Co. says the Congress of Soldiers and Workmen's Delegates from the whole of Russia yesterday voted confidence in the Provisional Government and unanimously passed a resolution demanding the immediate resumption of the offensive. A War Cabinet has been formed including leaders of the Russian army and navy and technical representatives.

CASUALTIES DECREASING.

LONDON, June 21.—With the recent captures in the Messines region the British now hold all the vantage points along their line on the Franco-Belgian front, as a result of which there has been an enormous decrease in the number of British casualties, said Major General Maurice, Chief Director of Military Operations at the War Office, in his weekly talk with the Associated Press to-day. General Maurice pointed out that when the Germans were stopped in their drive to Calais early in the war they decided on defensive warfare in the west and established themselves on such dominating heights as those of the Somme and Messines. All these positions have now been wrested from them. Our western front is approximately 130 kilometres long, and we are occupying German trenches for this entire length, with the exception of a few sections which total about twenty-five kilometres. Naturally since we now hold dominating positions there is an enormous reduction in our casualties. General Maurice contradicted the reports current that the Germans had drawn large forces from the eastern front to take part in the fighting in France. The fact is, added the General there has not been a considerable amount of German troops brought from the east to the west. The Germans sent fresh units to the west front, but those were made up of men called to the colors. Recently the Germans have been using people of occupied territories to replace laborers at home who are thus released for the army.

THE PORTUGAL ARMY.

LISBON, June 21.—The first official report from the General commanding Portuguese troops in France, was read in Parliament to-day. It praises the excellent spirit and discipline of the men and states that all enemy raids were repulsed, notwithstanding their support by heavy bombardments.

BRUSILOFF'S MESSAGE.

LONDON, June 21.—General Alexis Brusiloff, Commander-in-Chief of the Russian Armies, replying to congratulations on his appointment, forwarded by General Sir William Robertson, Chief of the Imperial Staff at Army Headquarters, has sent the following message: "In honor bound, free Russia's armies will not fail to do their duty."

SAYS AMERICA'S ENTRY CAUSES UNREST.

PARIS, June 21.—Julius Cambon, General Secretary in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, declared that the entrance of America into the war, has caused serious unrest in Germany. In the course of an interview with a correspondent of the Associated Press to-day he said a feeling of serious unrest was caused in Germany by the entry into the struggle of a country which brings to the Allies together with its entire strength a freshness and ardour which have not been diminished by three years of war. Germany feels that Americans once engaged in the struggle will not give up. It is to prevent this cementing of close ties that it is multiplying its efforts to spread dissension among the Allies. The incident of the Swiss Socialist Grimm's intrigue in Russia reveals Germany's handiwork and is one of the straws showing how uneasy and troubled Berlin is of America in France. Everyone realizes that this uneasiness and fear is justified.

SUBMARINE ACTIVITY—GERMAN COMMENT.

COPENHAGEN, June 21.

The steady continuance of the submarine campaign despite the decrease in destroying tonnage admitted in the Admiralty reports for May will, in the opinion of Capt. Hue Plewetter, Naval expert of the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger, culminate in a general naval battle between the British and German fleets as the only means of ending the submarine menace. Captain Hue Plewetter blames good weather for the falling off in the number of submarine victims. He argues that the weather permits small submarine chasers to venture further to sea, to shoot better, and to detect submarines easier. In this argument the criticism is quite impartial as he equally blamed the storms for failure to secure better results in March. The other well schooled naval writers generally follow the Admiralty instructions to treat the May results as practically as satisfactory as those of April and to describe the entente counter measures as complete failure. They all accept the estimate of the Wolf Bureau, the Official News Agency, that the new tonnage is one-fifth of that destroyed.

DEMONSTRATE AGAINST TINO.

LUGANO, Switzerland, June 21.—The Federal authorities are making an investigation into the demonstrations here against former King Constantine of Greece, and have received preliminary reports. The former King and his suite remained inside their hotel yesterday. They intend to leave to-day for Berne.

AUSTRIAN CABINET RECONSTRUCTED.

AMSTERDAM, June 21.—Reports received here assert that Vienna evening newspapers declare that Emperor Charles has instructed Count Clemens, Austrian Premier, to reconstruct his cabinet, and that the Premier has opened negotiations to this end with the various parties.

ITALIAN SINKINGS.

ROME, June 21.—Two Italian steamers and five sailing ships were torpedoed during the last week, according to the official weekly announcement. Two other steamers were attacked but escaped. During the same period 606 ships with total gross tonnage of 443,170 entered Italian ports and 631 ships with a tonnage of 481,755 sailed.

KING ALEXANDER'S LETTER.

ATHENS, June 21.—The official Gazette prints the following letter, sent by King Alexander to Premier Zaimis: "I am following with the utmost interest the Government's effort for the restoration of the unity of the country. As for myself, I am remaining the faithful guardian of the constitution and am convinced of the good intention of the Powers. I am willing to cooperate sincerely with them in maintaining tranquillity, thus bringing about a reconciliation of the different elements of the nation."

SINN FEIN DISORDERS.

DUBLIN, June 21.—Sinn Feiners brought about further disorders to-day. Five hundred of them carrying Sinn Fein flags attacked the residence of former soldiers over which Union Jacks were flying. Windows were smashed and police were stoned. Eight men and five women were arrested.

GERMAN LINER SEIZED.

BOSTON, June 21.—The North German Lloyd Liner, Kron Princess Cecilie, in port here since the early days of the war, was seized to-day by Collector of Customs Billings and held for the United States Shipping Board which will proceed to put her in a seaworthy condition. The seizure was a formal proceeding, as the Collector's men merely relieved the deputy marshals in charge of the ship since February, as representatives of the Federal Court before which was pending a suit for damages instituted against the owners by two New York banks. Experts reported to the Court it would cost about $110,000 to repair the damage. The Cecilie was damaged by her crew under orders from her captain-commander.

RUSSIA'S CONSECRATION.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Russia's consecration to the war to the end with German autocracy was avowed to-day by special Ambassador Boris Bakemelief, head of the Russian Mission here, in a statement to the American people. Only through victory, he said, can a stable world peace and the fruits of the

HIS FINISH.
I sing of Assurbanipal Saul, Salamander Shadd, Who knocked the cover off the ball. Most every chance he had. He fielded like a car of Cobbs. He pulled down balls so high. He had his pick of all the jobs. In leagues both far and nigh. He slid for bases like a streak. And always beat the throw. He kidded all the umps in Greek. And also Eskimo. He waited all the pitchers out. And made 'em come to him. The nerve of young recruits he'd root. He looked so grave and grim.

But one sad day he met a girl With dimples and with eyes. And lashes long which she'd unfurl In simple sweet surprise. Whenever he would speak to her And smile a sugared smile, She tiddle like a cocklebur. And blantly beguile. She hung upon his every word. As if he were a judge. And bounced around him like a bird. And filled him full of fudge. She languished in his arms till he Grew stiff and musclebound; To swat the sphere he couldn't see. His spikes stuck in the ground. At first he batted four-four-one. But when he got the gate. He furnished all the fingers fun By whanging One-O-Eight.

So, if you are a shining star, Just hold yourself in check. In moderation haunt the bar And push the poker deck. But, oh! avoid the talk so tall. A lass hands to a lad. Remember Assurbanipal Saul Salamander Shadd.

Russian revolution be secured. The Russian people understand and are fully convinced, he said, that it is absolutely necessary to root out autocratic principles which underlie and are represented by German militarism which threatens the peace, freedom and happiness of the world.

If You Want Evidence

That Hemorrhoids, or Piles, Can be Completely Cured These Letters—Both are Sworn Statements. Toronto, Ont., June 22nd.—Next to personal experience the sworn statements of reliable people is the strongest evidence obtainable. If you have any doubt that Dr. Chase's Ointment will positively and completely cure piles, these letters should convince you. Mr. Samuel Parker, fruit grower, Grimsby, Ont., has made the following declaration before Mr. W. W. W. Kidd, Notary Public of the same place: "I do solemnly declare that I was troubled with bleeding piles and was advised to go to the hospital to have an operation performed. My wife said 'No, get a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment.' I did so and have used it according to directions while living in Manitoba and obtained a complete cure, for I have never been troubled with piles since. I am now seventy years of age and want to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to all sufferers from piles. My wife has used it for itching skin and obtained complete cure." Mr. Donald M. Campbell, Campbell's Mountain, N.S., writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment with great success for hemorrhoids or piles of fifteen years' standing. After trying all kinds of so-called pile cures, three boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment gave me a complete cure. I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and there are no others so good. You may use this letter, if you wish, for the benefit of others who may suffer as I did." Sworn before me, Murdoch Gordon Campbell, J.P., in the County and for Inverness County. If you would like to try Dr. Chase's Ointment at our expense, send a four cent stamp to pay postage and we shall mail you a sample box free. Full size box 60 cents, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.
