the distance was between them. Nora felt the blood rise to her face, and her heart gave a quick little jump of pleasure.

One evening she heard the roll of wheels, and knew that a carriage was coming up the valley. She thought it was one belonging to the Hill, and she was startled when one of the Nelworthy files, turned in at the gate. She thought it was some visitors, and she was still more startled when she saw her father's face at the open window, for Mr. Ryall's return was always attended by as much fuss as his departure, and he had not written to say that he was coming back—had not, indeed, written to her at all.

She ran down the stairs, calling out joyfully, "Father! father! here!" and hoping, as she made the announcement, that there was something in the house for his dinner; for in Mr. Ryall's absence Nora indulged in that favourite feminine meal which is known as a "high tea," and consists principally of boiled eggs, bread and butter, and jam.

She ran through the hall and down the steps to open the door for him and greet him; but she stopped suddenly and stood as if transfixed, gazing in amazement; for Mr. Ryall had got out of the carriage, with unusual alacrity, and was assisting a lady to alight. Nora, her mouth open, and her eyes like saucers, stared at this lady. She was not young, though she affected more than the airs and graces of youth; she was rather good-looking in a staid style, with a mass of reddish-coloured hair, dark eyebrows, and a striking complexion. But there was something strange about the hair, eyebrows, and complexion. Even at that first moment it seemed to Nora that they were not real.

The lady looked not only as if she were tired of the long journey, but as if she were not in a particularly good temper; and as she stepped from the carriage she threw a somewhat contemptuous and disappointed glance at the house and its surroundings. Mr. Ryall himself appeared to be embarrassed, and his smile was one of feeble apology and timorous anxiety, fully commingled. He wore a new light suit and lavender gloves, and before Nora could get over her astonishment at his appearance and the presence of his companion, he led the lady up the steps with an air of juvenile jauntness, and said in a voice that shook a little, for all his audacity.

"Well, here we are, Nora! Taken you by surprise, eh?—This is my little girl, Amelia. Nora was about to throw her arms round her father's neck and kiss him as usual, but at this astounding familiar address to a perfect stranger, she stopped short and regarded the lady with an expression which was a comprehensive interrogation. The lady drew her thin lips into a wintry smile, and nodded half-triumphantly, half-defiantly, at the amazed girl.

"I am your stepmother, my dear," she said in a voice which, to Nora's acute ears, sounded as unreal as anything she had ever heard of before. "You look surprised; and so you are, of course." She giggled as Nora had never before heard any one giggle, and wagged her head with an affection of archness. "Reginald and I thought it best to keep our marriage a secret. I do so hate a fuss! We thought we would just drop in on you unawares, and so avoid explanations. Explanations are so tiresome, aren't they? Well, aren't you going to speak to me, to say that you are glad to see me?" she asked, her natural colour rising, her smile still more obviously forced, and an unpleasant little glitter coming into the greenish-brown eyes.

Nora swallowed down a lump in her throat, resolutely drove back the tears that had threatened to start to her eyes, and, holding out her hand, said very quietly.

"How do you do?"
"Oh, come, that's not the way to welcome your stepmother," remonstrated the lady, with a would-be winning air. "You must give me a kiss, my dear." She bent forward, and though, if her life depended on it, Nora could not have avoided shrinking back, the new Mrs. Ryall succeeded in bestowing a kiss—and a dash of powder de-ris on the tip of Nora's nose.

"That's better," she said—Nora thought it was, indeed, better—she shall be your friend, I see. Oh, yes, we shall be like sisters; you must not treat me like a stepmother, of course, you would not be able to. I am so young, you see," and she sighed and looked at the happy bridegroom, who, by the way, was not looking particularly happy at that moment, and then yawned behind a cheap, badly-fitting glove. "I am so tired! It was such a dreadful journey, I really thought it never was coming to an end."

"You would like to go upstairs at once, Amelia, dear," said Mr. Ryall. "Yes, yes, of course, Nora, will you take your mother—" He sighed still more nervously, and his eyes fell before the indignant flash from Nora's. "Take Amelia."

FOUR DOCTORS GAVE HER UP

Through a Neighbor's Advice This Woman Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Kenosha, Wis.—"I suffered with a female trouble and at last was in bed for six weeks with what the doctors called inflammation of the bowels. Four of them said I could not live. A neighbor told me to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped me from the start. When the doctor came I told him what I had taken and he said 'Throw my medicine away and keep on with the Pinkham medicine.' I did and it relieved me. If more women would take your medicine they would suffer so. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to lots of people and they have been satisfied."—MRS. MARY RYAN, 2703 Wisconsin St., Kenosha, Wisconsin.

When a woman is beset with such symptoms as irregularities, inflammation, ulceration, a displaced womb, backache, headaches, bearing-down pains, nervousness or the "blues," she should treat the cause of such conditions by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

word from Nora—"Father"—arrested him, and he wavered in the library. Nora stood by the fireplace and looked at him, but said nothing. The silence would have been unendurable even by a stronger man than Reginald Ryall, and he was compelled to break it. Flushing and paling by turns, his light blue eyes furtively looking her face, and then as furtively averting, his loose lips twisted into an apologetic smile, his foot shuffling and his hand fidgeting with his chin, he said—

"Perhaps after all it was, rather foolish to take you by surprise, Nora; but as Amelia said, we did it for the best. The fact is, I thought you might—er—cut up a bit—though if I told you I was going to be married again—you see, you have been mistress here so long, that I daresay it never occurred to you that your father was still young; and that he might some day"—he emitted a foolish laugh—"lose his heart. You might have cut up rough and tried to dissuade me—not that it would have made any difference," he put it drawing himself up with a pitiful show of courage and determination, "because, as you know, when I put my foot down, well—er—I put my foot down. But there! We have got over the business; and I hope, as Amelia says, that you will soon grow fond of one another. She's as amiable and charming as she is beautiful; nobody could help loving her; and I am sure—"

Nora broke in upon the feeble drivel; not violently, not even reproachfully, though her heart was aching as if it would break.

"Where did you meet? Who is she? How did you—?" she asked almost chokingly.

He coughed nervously, and kicked at a piece of coal with the toe of his new boots.

"Where did I meet? Well, the fact of it is, Amelia is—er—quite a famous lady." He smiled and nodded with an affection of pride. "She is, or rather, I should say, she was, a celebrated actress. On the music-hall stage—only the high-class music-hall of course."

Nora sank into a chair, and leaning forward, concealed her face with her hand.

THE Lady of the Night —OR— Amelia Makes a Success

CHAPTER III.
THE BOUNDER.

"I were you I should tell your father when you get home to have a notice board put up," he said presently. "You don't want to have all sorts of people trespassing on the land and the river; some more of them may come down from the Hill."

"My father is not at home," said Nora. "Besides, what would be the use of a notice board? We haven't a keeper; we can't afford one. We are very poor."

He glanced round the starved lands, and then down at her with a sympathy that was very tender and gentle in such a big young fellow.

"I wish—" he began shyly, then stopped. "I wish I were your brother or your poor relation instead of Sir Joseph's. I could help you with this," he jerked his head towards the meadow.

Nora looked up at him and laughed; then she said, rather wistfully, "I have never had a brother. Yes, it would be nice; but you see, you are not my brother, and you are not rich enough to afford poor relations."

CHAPTER IV.
THE FAIR AMELIA.

Nora abandoned fine feathers; they had been a delusion and a snare, and had only laid her open to the advances of Mr. Selwyn Ferrand, and so she returned to her dearly-loved farming attire without a sigh of regret. She went about her work with a novel sense of light-heartedness; that deep contralto voice of hers woke the echoes of the old house, and was heard in the valley and on the hills as she scampered about on Tommy; but she did not now ride astride, for she might happen to meet some of the people at the Hall—or Elliot Graham. Unconsciously she was always expecting to meet him, but a week passed before she saw him again, and then it was only at a distance; he was riding with a string of horses, and she knew that he had been to Nelworthy, Great as she was, she said, rather wistfully, "I have never had a brother. Yes, it would be nice; but you see, you are not my brother, and you are not rich enough to afford poor relations."

"All the same," he said, "I'll keep a look-out on the river, and I'll take precious good care Mr. Selwyn does not bother you again."

"I don't think he will," said Nora, "but mind," imperiously, "you have promised not to speak to him, quarrel with him."

"That's all right," he said simply. "I always keep a promise. I suppose you think I should be hurt?"
"Perhaps I do."

IN CIVILIZED NEW YORK
NEW YORK, May 12

J. H. Thomas General Secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen of Great Britain, encountered a hostile demonstration on his arrival here yesterday on the Olympic. Men and women who styled themselves as representatives of the Irish-American League assembled at the pier bringing banners, criticizing Thomas for his action in settlement of the threatened strike of the Triple Alliance, in England and last month when he urged the miners to accept the resumption of negotiations with Mr. Lloyd George.

ASQUITH AND IRELAND.

LONDON, May 12. Rt. Hon. H. H. Asquith in a speech last evening took occasion to remind his hearers that just a year ago he had been an advocate of the policy of giving Ireland the same status as that enjoyed by Self-Governing Dominions.

"If England were arraigned at the bar of history there is only one indictment that we would be afraid to face, and that would be in connection with our policy in Ireland," said Mr. Asquith. "If validity of the argument that Britain is prevented from recognizing the claims of Ireland by military considerations was recognized, the Liberal leader said, it would be obligatory to recognize the right of the United States to establish a political domination of Canada in order to protect frontiers."

AUSTRIA RECOGNIZES MESSAGE.

MEXICO CITY, May 12. Recognition has been accorded the Oregon Government of Mexico by the Austrian Republic, says a cablegram received at the Foreign Office here.

Wellington's Passage of the Douro.

In the early days of May, 1809, Marshal Soult, with 25,000 veteran French soldiers, lay in the city of Oporto, which he had taken by storm from the Portuguese. Napoleon, having given him instructions to destroy the English, had gone back to France, but unknown to Soult, Wellington, with 15,000 British, lay opposite to him across the Douro. The river was wide, deep and swift, and the French had secured all the boats. On the British side was a rocky height, crowned with a convent, and on its roof stood, on the morning of the 12 May, 1809, our great captain, then Sir Arthur Wellesley, who had just been appointed commander-in-chief of both the English and Portuguese armies, and who was about to commence the long roll of victories which can be read on his tomb in St. Paul's, and which has hardly been matched by the greatest generals the world has known. Yet to cross a river 300 yards wide in full daylight, and in the face of the enemy, was an enterprise which might cause a Caesar or Napoleon to pause. His eagle eyes searching the landscape, took in every detail, and on the opposite side he saw a large building called the Seminary, protected by walls which came down to the water. If he could seize the building it would give him a foothold in the city. A staff officer found a small boat, crossed the river and brought back three large ones. He reported to Wellington, who said, "Well, let the men cross." The first two boats crossed without being noticed, but when the third started the French took alarm. Drums and bugles sounded and the enemy rushed to attack the English, now strongly posted in the Seminary. Both sides being reinforced every minute, the combat became very fierce, and Wellington's men were in danger of being overpowered when the English guns from across the river opened on the French with deadly effect. A British brigade under General Murray, which had crossed the river three miles higher up, now appeared on the French side. The French now thought of nothing but retreat, and rushed away as fast as they could. Their course lay parallel to that of Murray, and if that general had fallen upon them he would have destroyed them, but he was afraid they would push him into the river and so let them pass. They fled on headlong rout, abandoning the city to Wellington, who, on the following day, brought all his baggage, stores and artillery over the river. He then pursued Soult and nearly surrounded him, but the wily Marshal escaped from the toll.

No Reduction in Newspaper Costs.

In the production of newspapers costs are at the very peak, with the prospects that they will either be maintained at the present level or advanced still further. There has been no "deflation" in wages paid compositors, pressmen or stereotypers, no reduction in cost of paper, ink, postage, etc., and no contraction in salaries of reporters and editorial writers. The Minneapolis Tribune has compiled figures which are typical of the whole newspaper industry. Here are the Unemployed Refused $28.80.

The joke is on Controller Maguire, of Toronto, and he admits it. Recently at a meeting of the Board of Control the Controller learned, in conversation with one of the unemployed deputations, that he would be put out of his house during the day for non-payment of rent. Answering a question, he stated that his family consisted of three small children.

"We will fix that right now," said the Controller, who sat down and wrote out a cheque for the rent, which he handed to Property Commissioner Chabois. The man was then taken down to the Works Department, with instructions that work was to be provided immediately. He was offered the standard civic wage—namely, $28.80 per week. "Oh, rats," said the man. "I won't take that. I am a painter." Crepe de chine and stiffened silk combine to make some charming hats.

Prime Minister's Honor Impugned

(Continued from 4th page.) Debate on the Estimates would not permit of the thrashing out of the matter. An impartial enquiry was absolutely necessary. Sir John Crosbie suggested that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries had not taken his advice with respect to the motion for a Select Committee. He dwelt at some length on the matter of the "President Coaker" and he asked the Minister, if he had issued any cheques to Mr. Sellars, to lay them on the table of the House. The Prime Minister stated he had the cheques and would in a few minutes, lay them on the table of the House. Sir John Crosbie said that the cat would then be out of the bag. The Prime Minister said the cheques were as follows:— Nov. 27th, 1920—$67,500.00. Nov. 28th, 1920—$82,675.00. Dec. 16th, 1920—$3,781.11. The first two were made payable to Mr. Joseph Sellars or order, the third to A. H. Murray. Sir John Crosbie said the mouse had fallen into the trap. He was now convinced the whole matter was crooked. That morning he had seen Mr. Sellars and had been told by him the presence of a witness that he had had no interest in the "President Coaker" but that on Nov. 26th, 1920, a cheque had been sent him from the Department of Marine and Fisheries for $82,000. When Mr. Sellars deposited the cheque to the credit of his own account he drew a cheque for an equal sum in favour of the Union Trading Company. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries had deliberately sent in the cheque to Mr. Sellars and received in return another cheque for a similar amount. The fact of this had never been heard before. Half was not yet told about the "President Coaker's" cargo. Had any arrangements been made to recover the money paid for the "President Coaker's" cargo? This cargo was now landing in Italy and no one knew whether a single cent would ever be got for it. The people were clamorous for an investigation and they would not be satisfied until they got it. The Prime Minister would not have the pleasure of attending the June conference until this matter was cleared up. The production of the cheques was only the beginning of the transaction. If the Department of Marine and Fisheries was in as disgraceful a condition as was this, there it was impossible to say how much money had gone from the country in which Mr. Sellars bought that was the nicest way in which he had ever heard of anyone buying fish. The Government dared not have an enquiry. Sir John next dealt with the salt question. Why had the sum of $100,000 been paid into the treasury by the Union Trading Co. been paid before enquiries were asked in the House? The country should be told how much of this was now in Port Union. The production of the cheques was only the beginning of the transaction. The Government dared not have an enquiry. Sir John next dealt with the salt question. Why had the sum of $100,000 been paid into the treasury by the Union Trading Co. been paid before enquiries were asked in the House? The country should be told how much of this was now in Port Union.

to buy one or more local-made articles every week, and whenever possible to use local-made goods all the time.

Furthermore, I will boost local-made goods, knowing that by so doing I shall be helping to keep local factories working full time, and my fellow-countrymen employed six days a week.

The Bell Island Ore Tax Agreement.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.—In common with you, sir, I am willing to plead guilty to "lack of knowledge of the fundamental elements regarding the nature of Iron Ore," attributed to us by Mr. F. W. Angel, in his letter which was published by you on the 11th inst. But I cannot see what that has to do with the question whether ore should be allowed to be exported to Germany from Bell Island free of duty. As a matter of fact, Mr. Angel has completely established the accuracy of my assertion that our ore is vital now to Germany. He says that "before the war, our ore found a market in Germany because its steel industry was built up on such low grade ores as ours, largely supplied by Lorraine." Well, as Lorraine has become French, the Germans will be more than ever dependent upon us, and our ore will be used as the basis of an industry competing with the great Great Britain and Canada. But, says Mr. Angel, as British capital is behind the merger which will control Bell Island, it cannot be unpatriotic for us to aid and abet the merger's shipments of ore to Germany. I do not know that capital is necessarily patriotic, and it has often been ready to "profiteer" at the expense of life, kin and country. So far as we are concerned, we should at least make Germany pay for our ore. What will it profit us to let that ore go duty free? I cannot congratulate Mr. Angel on his proposal that Newfoundland vessels should be engaged in carrying coal and ore. Surely, we've no vessels of sufficient tonnage to engage profitably in such a traffic. Of course, the "Lobelia" might be tried. Yours truly, ALFRED B. MORINE.

To Be Ordained at Placentia.

REV. DR. T. O'REILLY BOYLE. On May 21st an ordination service of great interest to residents of Placentia will be held at that place when Rev. Father Thos. Boyle, a native of Jersey, Placentia, cousin of Archbishop Roche and nephew of Mr. John Bradshaw and Magistrate O'Reilly, will be admitted to the priesthood. Father Boyle, whose parents reside at Whitney Pier, C.B., is a distinguished graduate of Antigonish University and he continued his philosophical and theological studies at the renowned seminary of Quebec. He has made a special study of the science of Catholic Sociology on the principles advocated by Pope Leo XIII. His many friends will congratulate him on his reception to the sacred order of the Catholic priesthood after many years of strenuous application to scholastic and scriptural studies.

Picked Up Buoy.

An apparently new buoy belonging to the Department of Marine in Quebec, was picked up Saturday by Capt. Taverner, of the steamer Sagona, while on the way to port from Port aux Basques. The buoy was drifting about with two shackles of heavy chain attached to it, and was more or less of a menace to shipping, when serious trouble would follow should a steamer's propeller get mixed up with the heavy chain. For this reason Capt. Taverner stopped long enough to hoist the two-ton obstacle on board the Sagona, landing it on the terminus wharf, where it will remain until such time as the Quebec authorities come after it. This is the second valuable buoy Capt. Taverner brought to North Sydney, the last one being the property of the Dominion Government, who failed to reimburse the captain for his trouble.—North Sydney Herald, May 11.

C. L. B. Cadets.

Monthly Meeting of Officers' Mess.

The regular weekly parade of the C.L.B. Cadets was held last night. There was a splendid turnout of all ranks, the following officers being present: Lt.-Col. Goodridge, Major Raley, Capt. Henry and Snow, Lieut. Rendell, H. C. Hayward, Lewis, Hayward, (Rev.) Fletcher, Hunt, Moty, King and Perlin. Company Drill was taken by the various Company officers during the evening. The following are extracts from orders for the week ending May 19th: Orderly Officer for week—Lieut. L. Hayward. Next for Duty—Lieut. A. B. Perlin, Duty Section—No. 4 Sec. F. Co. The following Lance-Corporals were promoted to the rank of Corporal: T. Quinton, W. Thford, J. Constable, W. Lockyer, R. Anderson. Lt. Corporal C. Press to be Acting Corporal. The regular monthly meeting of the Officers' Mess was held last night and was largely attended. Amongst the matters to come up for discussion was the annual Mess Dinner. The Secretary, Lieut. F. B. Rendell, read a communication from the Ladies' Auxiliary in this connection, in which they stated their willingness to cater for the dinner. The question of fixing a date for the affair was left in the hands of the Mess Committee. Lieut. Lewis presented the financial statement for the past month, and passed some remarks upon Brigade finances and the question of raising the amount asked for in the Budget. A committee of five members of the Mess was appointed by the Mess President, Lieut. (Rev.) Fletcher, to consider ways and means of raising the officers' quota. The committee consists of Lieut. Reeves as convenor, and Lieuts. H. C. Hayward, Perlin, Snow and Hunt. A committee consisting of Lieuts. Lewis, Rendell and L. C. Hayward was appointed to confer with the Ladies' Auxiliary and representatives of other branches of the Brigade in connection with certain matters of importance broached by the Ladies' Auxiliary. The President, before the meeting adjourned, officially extended a welcome on behalf of the Mess, to Capt. J. Dawe, O.C. Bay Roberts Company, who was present at the meeting. There being no further business, the meeting then adjourned. Several sets in the Ping Pong Championship were played last night. Major Raley is now well ahead of all other competitors, not having lost a single point as yet. On Monday night, the Band is giving a concert in aid of the Shannon Munns Memorial Company, and it is hoped that all who can will attend. The next parade will be held on Thursday, May 19th, when a good attendance is expected. By that time, it is hoped that Major Williams will be back in the Quartermaster's Department again after his trip to Canada. The presentation of the Outerbridge Shield will take place at the Armory within the next few weeks.

Obituary.

Word was received yesterday that Mrs. Jas. R. Hayes of St. George's had passed away at that place on Sunday last, the 8th inst., interment taking place at the local cemetery on Tuesday. This estimable lady was formerly Miss Annie Dooling of St. John's, but had been domiciled at St. George's for a period extending over twenty years, and by her splendid traits of character and sterling qualities, had endeared herself to the people of that community, whose sympathy will go out to the sorrowing husband and two sons, whom she leaves to mourn.

"All Tangled Up."

VERY SUCCESSFUL PRODUCTION.

The farce comedy "All Tangled Up," which was produced at St. Joseph's Hall last night under the management of Capt. J. O'Grady, was very well received by the large audience. The play itself is a most amusing one and all those who took part excelled themselves, the audience being kept in a continual up-rear of ripples of laughter. As Major Halls Halliday, Capt. O'Grady gave a splendid performance whilst Messrs. J. M. Spearns and A. Galgay portrayed their parts in an excellent manner. Mr. J. Prowse impersonated the inimitable O'Toole to perfection, and Mr. Geo. Jackman played his part in an able manner. Misses Mae Jackman, Gerlie Ryan and Mrs. F. J. Kinnella took the female parts and played them to perfection. During the acts special items were given by Mr. James Irvine, Mr. Canning and Mr. Walsh, the latter (our genial Frank) carolling a couple of excellent songs reminiscent of the "old days." Another large audience is expected to-night when the performance will be repeated.

House of Assembly.

THURSDAY, May 12.
NOTICE OF QUESTION
 Mr. M. P. Cashin.—To ask the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries to lay on the Table of the House a statement giving the details of the sum of $1170.00 received by the Fisheries Department on account of dredging work performed for private concerns as shown in his reply on May 10th to my question respecting the operations of dredges; also to say if there are any amounts outstanding and payable collected for such private work, and so to state the amount and the parties from whom such are due.

To ask the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries what steps his Department is taking to assist the people of the Southern Districts who have stocks of fish that are unable to obtain supplies for the fishery this year owing to the financial embarrassment of the fishery which ordinarily supply them and which through the operation of the Fishery Regulations are now unable to do so; also if the members for St. John's, Fortunate Bay, and Burgeo Districts have made any representations to his Department with a view to securing assistance for these people, and if not will the Minister now take the matter into consideration and say what action if any the Government proposes to take, and if the Government proposes to take no action why not.

To ask the Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries if his Department has compiled a complete statement showing the total catch of fish during the calendar year 1920, and if so to lay on the Table of the House a statement showing the Department's figures for—
 (a) Bank fishery
 (b) Shore fishery
 (c) Labrador fishery

And also to indicate wherein the Minister's estimate made last September and submitted to a meeting of fish exporters differ from the actual figures as now supplied by the Department.
 To ask the Hon. Minister of Justice if it is the intention of the Government to propose any enactment to indemnify any carrier which would give greater protection to business people as recommended by the Board of Trade on several occasions and if not why not.

To ask the Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture and Mines (a) how many barrels of seed potatoes have been imported by the Department since the first of January last, and how many have been purchased in the Colony; (b) what has been the average price paid for imported potatoes and what for local potatoes; (c) what distribution has been made of imported potatoes and of local potatoes showing the localities to which such has been sent and the quantity of each; (d) and what quantities are to be imported and what quantity it is proposed to buy locally and where and in what quantities will the same be distributed.

To ask the Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries if it is the intention of his Department to continue being the presence of the army of so-called Fishery Inspectors sent out last year, and if so what services they are to perform in view of the Minister's declaration last week that while the standardization law will be retained on the Statute Book, it will not be enforced, and also if the Minister has received any representations from the Board of Trade with a view to re-issuing certificates of inspection for the Board with regard to fish exports being exported from this Colony, and if so what is his attitude with regard to such a proposal.

To ask the Hon. the Prime Minister if the Government has arranged or is arranging with Mr. E. Collisshaw for the formation of a Company by him to operate for the term of ten or fifteen years, the Coastal and Bay Steamship present operated by the Company and the Railway Commission and the Department of Shipping; if the annual subsidy for the said service is to be increased in the neighborhood of a million dollars, and if, any such arrangement is being made, why is the principle of advertising for tenders being departed from in this instance.

Mr. Bennett.—To ask the Hon. Minister of Justice the names of the lawyers who drafted the agreement between the Government and the Bell Island Companies which is now the subject of a Bill before this House, stating who represented the Colony and the Companies respectively.

To ask Hon. Dr. Barnes, Minister of Education, if Mr. G. Butler, Principal of Springdale Street School, St. John's, under Church of England Board of Education, is one of the persons sent abroad by his department for the purpose of perfecting their educational training in order to make them eligible for positions under the new system about to be inaugurated by the Hon. Minister for the promotion of higher education in Newfoundland, and if so to state whether Mr. Butler is, during his absence, drawing his customary salary from the Church of England Educational grant for St. John's, in addition to whatever other emolument he may be receiving from the Department of Education.

Mr. Sullivan.—I give notice that I will on to-morrow ask the Minister of Public Works to lay on the Table of this House a statement showing (a) the number of bedsteads purchased within the last twelve months for the Poor House; (b) from whom purchased; (c) price paid for same; (d) mattresses are included in price mentioned; (e) if not to give prices for bedsteads and mattresses separately.

Mr. Walsh.—To ask the Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs, if Mr. Edward Whelan who was last year employed as Customs Officer at the South Coast Revenue Service is still in the Customs Service, if not why not.

To ask the Hon. the Prime Minister, in the absence of the Hon. the Minister of Finance and Customs (a) for a detailed statement showing the names and addresses of all applications for the old age pension whose applications are on file in Mr. Wood's office and who have not yet received said pension; (b) if it is the intention of the Government to vote a sufficient amount the present session to give all applicants who are qualified this pension.

Order of Elks Instituted Fifty Years Ago.

There is much of romance, sociability and good fellowship in connection with the founding of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the United States of America. In these later years B. P. O. E. has come to mean in the popular mind Best People on Earth, and it is as such perhaps that members of the order like to be known.

The order of Elks owes its existence and its name to Charles Algenon Sidney Vivian, an Englishman and son of a preacher. Vivian landed on these shores November 15, 1857. He was an actor and his first engagement was at Butler's American Theater, New York city.

Vivian was a convivial soul, and his boarding house was a popular gathering place for theatrical folks. Hardly a Sunday passed without a big meeting and rally of the thespians. Sometimes there were mid-weekly sessions as well.

As the fame of those meetings spread their popularity increased, so much so that it was decided finally to organize a club. Committees were named, a tentative society formed and Vivian was placed at its head. At first it was confined to actors, but soon writers, artists and others began to be included in the circle.

With the growth of the club it was decided that a more suitable name than any which had been suggested should be selected and a committee was named for that purpose. On February 16, 1868, the committee reported and submitted the "Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks and Buffaloes." There were fifteen present at the committee meeting at which decision was to be made.

Seven voted for the name "Elks." The other seven favored "Buffaloes." Vivian's name was the last on the list to vote. He cast his ballot for "Elks," and that is how the wonderful organization came into existence.

Up to 1899 the order had two degrees, one, the first, designated as "Elks," and the second as "Devout Elders." They had separate passwords, words of recognition as well as handicaps. These degrees were abolished at the 1899 session of the Grand Lodge.

In 1868 Vivian was elected Right Honorable Primo, which was then the same as Grand Exalted Ruler to-day. The story of the Elks reads like a romance. At the end of the first year it had seventy-nine members, and one lodge, New York, No. 1, the mother lodge of Elksdom, which to-day has a magnificent home, club and temple on Forty-third street, just east of Broadway. On March 12, 1870, Elksdom began its country-wide spread. On that date a charter was granted to Philadelphia Lodge, No. 2. That year also saw the election of the first Grand Exalted Ruler. He was Brother George J. Green, and when the title was first given to the office he was the Right Honorable Primo of the single body of Elks.

Death entered the ranks of the order for the first time in 1870, also. Two members passed away, and the first "Lodge of Sorrow" in Elksdom's history took place March 20, 1870, in Clarendon Hall.

The B. P. O. Elks consisted of two lodges until 1876. On June 11 of that year, the Grand Lodge's meeting in New York, went across the continent and granted a charter to San Francisco Lodge, No. 3. Chicago was the fourth city to have a lodge, and since that time it has grown with tremendous activity. To-day the Order of Elks has nearly 1,400 lodges in every State in the Union and in most of the territorial possessions; and the antlered heard numbers about 700,000 members. It is one of the really great fraternities of the country.

Representatives from the subordinate lodges meet once each year in Grand Lodge sessions, at which national policies of the organization are shaped. Requirements for admission have been changed from time to time, but there are three essentials. The first is American citizenship, the second a belief in a Supreme Being and the third, good moral character. The Elks recognize no creed or sect; no race except that its members must be white, and the order is nonpolitical. It is the only fraternal organization recognizing Flag Day, June 14, the anniversary of the birth of the American flag, and it makes paramount the principles of Americanism, patriotism and the four cardinal ideals of the order, charity, justice, brotherly love and fidelity. It is only natural, in view of those whose originally formed the Elks, that nearly all actors and other professional performers should be included in its membership. That is one reason why gatherings of its members are always enjoyable.

But while the Elks make much of the social life and sociability, it is even more than a mere social body. It is a tremendous force in the life of the country and an organization that regards its obligations as sacred as duty to country, love of home, and maintenance of freedom and institutions under the Constitution. Growth of the order has brought with it a magnificent national home in Bedford, Va. Here an Elk may pass his declining years in the company of his fellows, or if unable to care for himself, he will receive the best of medical attention. It is a real home and is for every Elk, no matter what his circumstances. There is a spacious lodge room, magnificent sleeping rooms and apartments, library, immense dining room, and the appointments of a hotel or club and home. There are wide sweeps of lawn, groves and drives. It is just another phase of the greater Elksdom that is so appealing—Charleston, American.

A Strong Man Gone.

One of the pillars of stable government in Great Britain has been removed through the retirement of the Rt. Hon. Bonar Law whom falling health has compelled to leave the Government, and if he remains for a time in public life it will be more as an onlooker than as a participant in the strenuous work of governing. His retirement is a great loss to his former colleagues in the Coalition Government, a great loss to Great Britain and to the Empire.

Trained to business and with many years' experience in administering large affairs, he brought to public life, and especially to the work of governing, a practical directness that grasped at once the essentials of the problems presented and the work at hand. His well-balanced Scottish head and his thorough training in the matter-of-fact world of industry and commerce enabled him to see things as they are, and to measure means needed to produce desired results.

He was thoroughly honest in the broadest sense. He never attempted to deceive the nation by theatrical action or flowery speech. As he saw the facts, so he presented them, and the conclusions he arrived at he stood by with the unflinching courage of a patriotic public man, who placed before all else the welfare of his country.

His public career has been long, for it was in the year 1900 that he first entered the House of Commons, and during many of the intervening years he held high offices in the public service—Chancellor of the Exchequer, Lord Privy Seal, Secretary of State for the Colonies.

When it became necessary to form a Coalition Ministry in order to concentrate upon the prosecution of the war all the material and moral strength of Great Britain, Bonar Law took office under the leadership of a former political opponent, and to that leader he gave undivided loyalty and most efficient service. Those years of toil and anxiety undermined his

How the Color Seas Were Named

There are several large seas which were named for their colors. The White Sea bears its name with perhaps the best reason of any. Its shores are covered with snow the greater part of the year, and its frozen surface is for that time a snowy plain.

The Red Sea is also entitled to its name. Through its clear waters the reefs or red coral are clearly to be seen. Much of its rocky bed is the growth of the coral insect. Another reason, and probably the true one, for the name of this sea, is the fact that along its shores lies ancient Edom. This name signifies red.

In the case of the Yellow Sea its name is sufficiently accounted for from the appearance of its water. The sea receives a great deal of mud from the rivers of China, moreover, it is shallow, and the sandy bottom gives its own color a long way out from the shore.

The Black Sea affords no clear account of its name. The waters are not black, but blue. The Greeks, when they first became acquainted with the sea, called it by a name which signifies The Inhospitable. Later they changed it to the Hospitable. It was naturally inferred by this change of name that upon further acquaintance the Greek sailors found the waters friendly. But the Greeks were inclined to give soft and flattering names to the objects of their dread and that may be what they did in this particular case. The Greek name holds to this day among the older nations of Europe. The Russian calls the sea Black. It seems likely that this name was suggested by contrast.

The sea lies south of Russia, as the White Sea lies to the north. Had the latter been called the North Sea, the Hospitable of the Greeks might have been named by the Russians South Sea. In the same way Black Sea was named in contrast to the White Sea.

NOTHING DOING.

I haven't been appointed to any office yet; my hopes are all disappointed. I cannot help but fret. I thought a hint to Harding would certainly suffice, but he is quite regarding. I had a hint I sent him twice. I am the Harding's brother who first hung out his name, and like a tireless rooster, I crowed him the fame. 'Twas in the Podunk banner some uppy years ago, that in ardent manner, for him began to crow. "Who is this man you're looking at?" subscribers oft inquired; "this everlasting rooster is making people tired." I said, "I beg your parding for boasting yonder gent, but that same Warren Harding will yet be president. And I'll keep up my capers, and boost as he deserves, and men can stop their papers, who do not like my curves." And now that he should recall the Banner, and all my loyal fits. But presidents, like prizes, think gratitude a bore, and Warren G. evinces a crust that makes me sore. I'm sorer than a cancer, and friendship nears its end; he doesn't even answer the telegrams I send.

The Perfect Clock.

The synchronizing of timepieces all over the United States, with correct observatory time by means of the wireless impulse sent out from the Government Observatory at Washington every day at the noon hour is made possible by a new device. It is the invention of Mr. T. S. Casner, of Plainfield, New Jersey, in association with Mr. Oliver Badger, of the same city, of a self-winding clock fitted with an electric apparatus so designed that it selects the one signal flashed daily by the observatory. The clock, its inventors say, can operate and control any number of secondary clocks.

ABOUT TRAINS OF THOUGHT.

Did you ever go in a room or upstairs to get something or do something and when you arrived, found yourself unable to remember what it was you came for? And then did you go back to the room from which you came and stand just where you started from to recall your errand to your mind? Very likely you did, for that is a process familiar to most of us.

It is based on the law of the association of ideas. We remember our errand because our eyes rest on the same surroundings on which they rested when we first thought of the errand, and that starts the same train of thought we started on before. We all know what the association of ideas means, but I doubt if we all realize how much it means, how often it crops up in our experiences, and how much power it has both for good and ill.

How to Recall an Address.

I have a wretched memory and often I forget addresses which I ought to remember without any effort. I have found that this method helps me to recall them. I start writing the name on the envelope boldly and calmly as if I knew the whole address perfectly. I try to let my hand do the writing without any effort on my part and presently (sometimes, but not always) my hand goes on writing the rest of the address. The law of the association of ideas has worked in my brain cells and produced the rest of the address.

In a lecture I heard recently on the subject of accomplishing things by concentrating your subconscious mind for a few minutes daily on what to attain, the lecturer emphasized that you should do your concentrating at the same time every day and in the same place. Why? Because by the law of association of ideas, you can get more easily into the right state of mind with these helps.

A Train of Thought Can Harm.

I spoke of the possibilities for good and ill of the association of ideas. Those I have mentioned have been for good. The power for ill needs perhaps even more attention, for physicians and scientists are coming to realize more and more how much chronic disease is caused by unceasing working of the law of association of ideas. We have an illness and we get over it but we are left with a fear. Some sensation similar to that with which the illness began before, starts this fear to working and presently the sub-conscious mind reproduces all the original symptoms without there being any physical reason for them.

On Casting Out Fear.

Many times an individual says that certain foods make him ill when, as a matter of fact, it is only the association with some fear caused by experience or suggestion that is causing the illness.

Many people who think they need drugs really need to learn to cast out fear and get rid of wrong trains of thought. Do not resent this and push it away if there is any chance it may apply to you. Take hold of it, for it may be the help you need to pull you out of the slough of ill health. If anyone is interested I will be glad to tell them of books that will make all this more definite.

Just Folks

SACRIFICE.

There is no easy way to serve. This life is one of sacrifice. With courage and with steady nerve. For conquest each must pay the price.

Who asks must willing be to give. For friendship man must play the friend. There is no royal way to live. On service all man's joys depend.

Time grants us what we gladly earn And gives to every man his due. But he who takes must, in his turn, Stand up and play the giver, too.

Not no the drowsy lanes of ease Are fame or fortune to be found. But on the hills of drudgery. And on the rough and stony ground.

How much of self will you bestow? How do you meet the sterner tasks? How far for conquest will you go? These are the questions greatest ask.

England Still England.

In the opinion of Dean Inge, of St. Paul's Cathedral, "the day of the Saxon" is drawing near the setting of its sun. The eminent English preacher holds that 1914 was the beginning of the great change that finally will shear the British Empire of its pride and strength. The diadem of English-speaking strength will move across the Atlantic.

As he glimpses it, the British Isles will be no more than an outpost of the English tongue against Eurasia. The Isles of Britain are to be a sort of sentinel rock, from which the great body of the race that settled, built and developed the English-speaking, Anglo-Saxon countries of the New World will keep watch upon the polyglot activities of a new-old Eurasia.

England won the great war, but lost its naval supremacy in so doing, says Dean Inge, of London town. He views England as a played-out drama, with the big scenes passed and gone. He so predicted in 1914, and seven years have intensified his beliefs.

It may well be. The pride and glory that was Phoenicia passed to Carthage, a Phoenician colony. When the parent state decayed, Carthage became in turn the mistress of the Western Mediterranean. The great traditions of the sea passed on.

It was a favorite boast of the Teuton, before and during the great war, that the Anglo-Saxon had ended his part in the great drama, that it was the turn of the German, and after the German, possibly, would come the Slav. And now, Dean Inge believes that Britain stands in the shadow of the wings of Arael, Archangel of the Twilight, but sees the old fire of the Anglo-Saxon shrines, burning on new altars in a new land.

These things do come to pass. They have from immemorial years. The sands of earth's deserts shift and move over the tombs of dead kings and the ruins of forgotten palaces. The jungles shroud the ruins of nations that have come and gone. Among the things eternal are birth, growth and decay.

Dean Inge, however, is taking a long look into the future. England may have reached the peak, she may be on that long slope that leads down toward the levels of the Little Peoples, but England is still England, and will be for many another long day. A nation that fought as she fought in the second battle of Buller and the last terrific drive for Cambray in 1918 still has something left against the Day of Dread.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Fahrenheit, of Thermometer Fame

On May 12, 1686, Gabriel Daniel Fahrenheit was born at Danzig, in Germany, but died in Holland in 1736. He was an eminent natural philosopher, or "lover of wisdom," as to all matters of nature. But he is principally known as an inventor of the thermometer, which word—according to its Greek derivation—signifies "heat measure," and that system of his bears his name. It was afterwards adopted by other European countries, and he was elected a fellow of the Royal Society of England. Mercury and quicksilver have been used in the thermometer, because, being liquid metals, they fall or rise according to the pressure of the atmosphere, the syllable "quick" signifying "alive."

Council Coping With a Trying Situation—No Money for Relief Work.

The unemployment problem of the city took another turn yesterday at one o'clock when the men who have been working in various parts of the town threw down their tools and assembled on St. George's Field. The men affected were 50 from Topsail Road section, 110 from Gravel Pit at Bennett's, 50 from Quidi Vidi Road, 110 on the New Road. As far as can be learned from the men the dissatisfaction arose because (1st) there was no employment for a large number (2nd) a number had been discharged for alleged idleness (3rd) that the system of giving three to 10 days work to each man was not relieving the situation to any extent, as when the men were paid off the amount was so small, that their position in a day or so after was no better than before they went to work. The men demand constant employment for all those in need of it.

After a consultation on St. George's Field, ranks were formed and about 500 men paraded down Long's Hill to the Municipal Office. A meeting of the Commission was being held at 4 p.m. and the Committee of the workmen sent to the Council saying that, they wished to be heard before the body. The men were all lined along Duckworth Street, and were kept in order by ten of their number appointed for that purpose. The Committee meanwhile attended the meeting in the Council Chamber. Mr. E. J. Whitty, as Chairman, was the first spokesman. Addressing the Deputy Mayor he said, "We the Committee in charge of employing the needy men out of work find ourselves overpowered. It is our duty to come here and state our circumstances. We do not want to antagonize anybody, particularly this Council, but we believe some one is playing a game of bluff, whether it is the Council, the Board of Works or the Government we are not yet able to say. We the Committee have interviewed the Prime Minister and he told us all matters were straightened out, the money has been handed over to the Council and they should give employment, yet some of the men have been paid off after working only 3 days. Our position is, if you the Council can do nothing to relieve the situation, we will have to antagonize some one. I believe if work on the Southside Road was opened up it would relieve the situation somewhat. I ask you, Mr. Deputy Mayor, has the Municipal Council yet received the $150,000 loan?"

Deputy Mayor Mullaly.—No. Continuing Mr. Whitty said, "I understand that the original $50,000 loaned by the Government, has to be paid back, and while it is not yet expended it is up to you to find more employment for the men, and if you can't do so, let us know at once. You must realize, Mr. Deputy Mayor, that we have come to the end of our rope and the responsibility must be placed on the right shoulders."

Mr. Robins who followed said in part, "This is a question where the Councilors have to get busy. Was it not possible to find more employment in a city where there is not one finished street. The Council must move immediately. 1000 men needed work; they have no food. A definite answer must be given to the Committee before Saturday morning."

Speaking of the $50,000 loan he said only about $15,000 have so far been spent and $36,000 is being held up, we men are being bamboozled by somebody."

Deputy Mayor Mullaly replying said, "I have no intention of bamboozling anybody. Of the $150,000 I know nothing yet. The money we have received has to be spent in the regular way, and I for one am not going to sit here and see it squandered. There must be returns for the expenditure. As for the Southside Road work the matter is in dispute and the estimated cost of doing the repairs is about $30,000. It is about time that the right horse was saddled in this matter."

Mr. Whitty.—"The Prime Minister told this Committee that the money was given to this Council to stave off unemployment."

Mr. Mullaly.—"If so he did not tell the truth."

Councillor Ayre next explained the Council's position regarding the loan. He said it was never intended that the money was to be spilled out in relief. The Council were only trustees, and must see that returns were given. The pay given was good, $3.30 per day and at least some would like to see better returns for the money. It is for the Committee to realize that we have a responsibility, and can only develop employment. We ask your co-operation, as it is plain that we have to discharge our duty to the city."

Mr. Dempsey speaking next said, "If you Mr. Councilors have the money get busy with it. I agree that there has been some sneaking amongst the men employed, but this can not be helped because they are not spread out enough and others are not used to the work."

Councillor L. Morris.—"I believe the whole trouble started because we are not prepared to go ahead with work at the rate demanded by the situation. Regarding the question of finance the Council is as impoverished as any of your men. About 1-3 of the revenue goes to pay interest on the city debt. We have not received the $150,000 loan and we can't do much to help you. There is a crisis on, and I would advise you to visit His Excellency the Governor and state your case to him as you did to us here this evening. It is the only hope I see. You must understand we have no money, and the loan is not ours. It must be paid back by Dec. 31st. Do not deceive yourselves; do not raise false hopes in the breasts of your men."

Mr. Whitty.—"I understand this commission to say they have no money and are not prepared to take on any more men. This is strange in view of the fact that the Prime Minister said he was surprised that more work was not being carried on. Is he bamboozling us? You have been given $50,000 for the unemployed, and you are to get a loan of $150,000. Well this Committee, and the men outside, will see that you have that money before sunset, else the Prime Minister won't sleep this night, and if we get the money you must give us employment. If you will go back to the Board of Works the $50,000 still unexpended we will see that you get the $150,000 loan. The Board of Works will employ about 150 men at the Southside Road." Councillor Vinicombe explained that the $50,000 was only transferred to the Council by the Prime Minister, and really was a grant to the district of St. John's West for the erection of the Long Bridge, and as more labor could be given by the Council for the expenditure than at that job they were given the loan of it. Complaints were constantly coming to the Commissioners that there was no returns being given for the money, which the tax payers have to make good. It was not the Council that had brought about the present conditions and they should not be held responsible for relief.

Mr. Kavanaugh asked that the money be sent back and the responsibility be placed on the Government.

Mr. Robins spoke again and demanded that the Commission resign and the body of men would see to the responsible parties. The Prime Minister told them to come to the Council and demand that work be opened up. This is a question of work or bread. There is plenty of grub in the stores on Water Street and if there is no work and it is not given to us we will not be long in placing men in those stores who will hand it out to the needy men."

Mr. Whitty joined the last speaker and demanded that the Commission resign, so as to give their Committee a chance to clean up the whole affair.

By this time the crowd outside were becoming uneasy, and the Committee or at least some of them were desirous of going to the House of Assembly, but Councillor Morris advised them not to adopt any methods that would not redound to good citizenship.

Deputy Mayor Mullaly here read correspondence between Mayor Gosling and the Prime Minister in reference to obtaining a loan. The correspondence started in February last and in it Mayor Gosling pointed out that the loan would be necessary to relieve a situation which he then foretold. The letters were acknowledged by the Prime Minister but nothing was done by the Government up to the time the deputation of unemployed made a demand at the Bar of the House. "This correspondence," said Mr. Mullaly, "shows you men that the Council has done and was doing long ago something to relieve the situation you have here to-day." The Committee agreed.

Councillor Mullaly continued and said, "I am sorry it has come to this, but it is time to saddle the right horse."

Councillor Jackson then made a motion that the unexpended $50,000 be handed over to the Board of Works. As this would have left the city without any funds and those employed would have to be paid off.

Councillor Ayre proposed that $15,000 of the amount be passed back to the Board of Works to be expended on the Southside Road. The motion was carried, after which the Committee withdrew and explained to the waiting crowd what had transpired. This morning the Committee was to go to the Board of Works and get employment for some 150 men. The men who had quit their work yesterday were to turn to this morning also.

Claims to Be 150!

World's Oldest Man With a Passion For Sweetmeats.

In the suburb of Tophane of Constantinople there lives what must be the oldest man in the world, if there is any truth in the claims of those who know his history. This is Torah, a Kurd, who is reputed to have been born 150 years ago. Far back, almost beyond living memory, Torah, as an old man, used to be a hamal, or porter, but he retired from hard work seventy or eighty years ago, and has been supported ever since by public bounty.

The Turkish Senate last year voted a special allowance to this benevolent old man. It reports in the local Press can be believed, Torah, although infirm, is by no means worn out, and betrays an astonishing appetite for sweetmeats. His memory, however, is not too reliable, and he is apt to get confused among the centuries which his life has spanned.

Trouble Over Patronage

Trouble for the Board of Works Department was apparently brewed this forenoon, when it became known that the Prime Minister had given the supervision of the proposed work on the Southside to a well-known party supporter, and had taken the job out of the hands of the regular Inspector for the district. The Municipal Council held a meeting this forenoon, when the amount of $75,000 was paid back on account of the recent loan of $50,000.

WHAT ARE THE AUTHORITIES DOING?

It will be remembered that about eighteen months ago a family of gypsies arrived in this country and pitched their encampment in Buckmaster's Field. For some time the police were very much worried by their presence there, as the gypsies were constantly surrounded by a frankly curious public. Eventually they opened up a Clairvoyant Parlor on New Gover Street, where, by crossing her palm with silver, a golden-haired goddess, well versed in the art of palmistry, would tell you all things—past, present and future. But she really had nothing on the peeps into future that Sadie and Mr. Barnes get in "Officer 666", when the latter essays to read the lines on her hand. You'll be mystified how he acquired the information he did, but no more surprised than he is himself at his powers in that direction.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

AN ARCHBISHOP'S OPINION.
LONDON, May 13.
Archbishop Mannix, of Melbourne, was tendered a dinner last night by English Catholic Priests. He declared that Great Britain was longing for friendship with the United States, but that that friendship would never be accorded until Ireland's just claim was met.

GENERAL STRIKE.
OPPELIN, May 13.
(By Courier to Bridge Silesia.) Germans have declared a general strike in Oppelin, in protest against the so-called armistice, which is interpreted by them as a recognition of Adolf Hitler's Kohlanity, head of the Polish invasion. All telephones and telegraph lines, and gas, water and lighting services were cut at one o'clock yesterday. The populace are greatly excited, and many civilians are appearing in the outskirts of Oppelin, armed.

THE STRIKE SITUATION.
LONDON, May 13.
The Executive of the Association of Locomotive Engine Drivers, of which J. Bromley is President, has sent word to its branches that they are not to move blackleg coal, and that in case there are any dissensions as a result, the Union will use its strength to prevent victimisation. It has become evident in the last day or two that G. T. Crampton, Secretary of the N.U.R., is feeling uneasy about the position into which he has permitted himself to be manoeuvred. Now this rival Railroad Union is forcing his hand, and he may be forced to call a strike against his better judgment. What would be the result to trade Unionism, as a whole, if being eagerly canvassed in labor circles. The Westminster Gazette last night warns them to look before they leap, stating that by no means every employer rejoiced when the Triple Alliance strike was originally called off, and if labor would read between the lines of the Government press they would not find any great disinclination to face an attempt at such a strike now. Labor, the paper says, is running serious danger of playing straight into the hands of its most skilful strategic enemies.

My Fight With a Panther.

(By a Big-Game Hunter.)
David Livingstone, the African explorer, said that he felt a pleasurable sensation when seized by a lion. I did not experience any pleasure in the jaws of a panther.

The animal had been shot through the body and I was following it up. These cats will conceal themselves in an incredibly small space, and the beast suddenly rushed out upon me from a depression in the ground, in which it had been invisible from a few yards' distance.

It did not spring, but rushed at me, giving vent to coughing roars.

I fired two shots, but failed to stop it, and in a moment I was borne to the ground.

The panther's breath, tainted by the putrid flesh on which it had been feeding, was very foul when it put its face in mine.

I raised an arm to protect my throat, and its teeth met in the fleshy part of the forearm.

The panther was a very large specimen and its weight was sufficient to bear me to the ground, bringing up heavily on the back of my head in a thorn bush. This pulled what was left of my arm out of its mouth, whereupon it embedded the claws of one paw in the calf of my leg, and seized my thigh in its jaws, the long canine teeth penetrating some two inches.

When it left me it walked off, turning to look again before entering the thorn bush. This pulled what was left of my arm out of its mouth, whereupon it embedded the claws of one paw in the calf of my leg, and seized my thigh in its jaws, the long canine teeth penetrating some two inches.

I was laid up for about six weeks, and poisonous wounds are very painful. No, I cannot agree with Dr. Livingstone!

I have seen several men seized, and I should say that their experiences were equally painful.

One was seized by the waist by a tiger and his entrails were exposed. He told me how it happened, but was not in a condition to discuss the question, although he lived a few hours.

Another was bitten and clawed in the back and shoulders by a tiger—quite close to me. He did not express any pleasure either and was six months in recovering.

A tiger bit off the top of a man's skull, just as one takes the top off a keg; the corpse was in a sitting posture and his remarks are not on record. The body of a boy, half devoured by a panther, was found in the fork of a tree which served as a ladder; he had no opportunity of describing his sensations. Another boy, who was seized by the throat and devoured close to a village near my camp, had not time to speak.

I could refer to other cases of which I have been a witness, but none of them appeared to feel any pleasurable sensations.

CHILD'S PLAY DRESS.

This pretty model is just the thing for romping and playing. It makes an ideal, simple home dress. The style is suitable for khaki, drill, seersucker, gingham, poplin, lawn or percale. Unbleached muslin finished with blanket stitching and with belt and bunny in some contrasting color, would be very attractive.

The Pattern is cut in 5 Sizes: 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. Size 6 requires 2 yards of 36 inch material.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 15c. in silver or 1c. and 2c. stamps.

Racing in Armor.

The most peculiar horse race in the world is the famous "Palio" which takes place every summer at the picturesque Italian city of Siena.

Magnificent medieval costumes are worn by all who take part in the proceedings. Before the actual racing begins, the jockeys, clad in glittering armor and their horses beautifully saddled, make a tour of the course, accompanied by cavaliers, pages, archers, heralds, and others.

The scene of the race is the huge public square before the communal palace. Here an oval course is fenced off for the occasion, and sand spread over the concrete. The public are admitted free to the centre of the square, and the outer side of the course is surrounded by stands and houses for the use of those who are willing to pay for seats.

Every district of Siena is represented by a jockey and has an emblem, amongst them being the snail, unicorn, caterpillar, giraffe, and porcupine. Each contingent in the procession has a standard showing these emblems, and the bearers juggle with them as they march along.

Before the racing each jockey takes his steed into a church in his district, and both receive a blessing.

As soon as the procession is over, the jockeys retire to don their armor. When they reappear they resemble our own jockeys, but the horses are without saddles, barebacked riding being the rule. Amidst thunderous cheering they at last get away and race three times round the square. Every jockey is allowed to use his whip freely on the shoulders of any of his rivals until they reach the finish.

Directly the winner arrives at the post he is seized by the crowd, kissed and embraced, and carried to the judges to receive the Palio or prize, which is an elaborately-painted banner. This he bears off in triumph and deposits in the church of his district.
