Band Minstrel Show

One of the Most Successful Entertainments Ever Given in Bridgetown, for Benefit of Bridgetown Band.

The Court House Hall was completely transformed on Monday night for the occasion of the Minstrel Show given under the direction of Mr. Frank Stanton, of St. John, which was greeted with a packed house. The stage, surrounded by colored lights, and numerous electric lights produced a very attractive setting. The platform was raised and extended to accommodate the amateur minstrel troupe, which consisted of about forty members of the Grand chorus. The end men were W. D. Lockett, W. P. Coade, Ingalis Austin, Thos. Cowling, Harry Marshall, Albert Burns. The jokes, though not all new, were received with keen appreciation, shown by liberal applause. Particularly good hits were made by Mayor Lockett and W. P. Coade. The grand chorus of the Grand Central—the "two Bills,"—and when we say that they were "immense" we have stated the whole facts and under the skillful direction of Mr. Stanton made no exception on this occasion. Mr. Stanton is the de-late manager of the Cedar Theatre, but as an amateur on this occasion he presented a moving picture and vaudeville show. He repeats Monday night's performance on Wednesday with a considerable change of program and introducing a new comedy sketch. On Monday night it is the intention to put the entertainment on the boards at 8 o'clock. The benefit of the Middleton Base Ball Team. The first of August Mr. Stanton will go to Newcastle, N. S., to see the performance of the Newcastle Band. The Bridgetown Band, for whose benefit the entertainment was given, has the public attention drawn to their performance. After so short a time of their reorganization, their progress is most commendable and Bridgetown has reason to be proud of its orchestra.

Boy and Girl Drowned in Bedford Basin

Caught in a terrible squall in Bedford Basin on the 15th, William Muir, aged 16, and Miss Una Roy, aged 17, both of Halifax, were drowned by the capsizing of their boat. They did their best to steer their trail craft to a point of safety, but in vain. Miss Margaret Muir, aged 12, was rescued by climbing to an oak for nearly an hour. The storm was one of the worst that has swept over the Basin for years.

The merry party set out from the boathouse at Bedford at half-past three in the afternoon of July 15th in a sailboat owned by Lewis Muir, Mr. Muir and Miss Roy were expert swimmers, particularly the young lady. The least capable in this respect was Margaret Muir, the only one saved.

Margaret Muir, the heroic little girl, who made such a brave struggle for life, after witnessing her brother and Miss Roy drown, tells the following pathetic story: "As soon as we were thrown into the water, Will gave Una and I an oak each, which came out of the boat when she upset, and told us to use them in reaching the shore, saying he would make for Spruce Island. He started to swim in that direction, but his heavy oilskins and rubber boots seemed to weigh him down, and I saw him pass below the surface a few yards from me. "Una had a long rubber coat and she seemed to become exhausted. After swimming about for several minutes she threw back her head, as if stunned, and immediately sank. I kept afloat with the aid of the oak and was blown in between Spruce Island and the Hen and Chicken rocks, where I was rescued. While I was in the water I took my watch out to see the time, but it had stopped."

The parents and friends of the little girl did not wish to question her further, and it is not yet known what conversation passed between the drowning children. After grappling the waters of Bedford Basin from daylight, the body of William Hampton Muir, one of the victims of Wednesday afternoon's sailing accident, was located at sun down and brought to the surface by Geo. Shefferson and his boat. Friday morning Jas. E. Roy, while grappling brought to the surface the remains of his daughter.

Costliest Steamer in American Waters

Boston, July 19.—The steamer Commonwealth took her place as flagship of the Fall River line's fleet last night, succeeding the Priscilla. That the Commonwealth has the distinction of being the largest and costliest steamer in American waters is conceded by the gathering which made a tour of inspection yesterday afternoon. In response to invitations issued by the New England Navigation Company, a party of guests took the special train which left the South station at 1:30 o'clock for Fall River. Among the 1000 people estimated to have been on the train were the following officials: General Passenger Agent A. B. Smith, General Freight Agent F. S. Holbrook, Assistant General Passenger Agent F. C. Cole, Express Agent Fremont Whittier, General Agent C. A. Call, Captain J. W. Miller, president of the Navigation Company, and M. B. Campbell, vice-president of N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad. The special train ran directly to the line wharf and the party quickly boarded the steamer.

In addition to those who arrived on the train the party was augmented by a large number from New Bedford and Fall River, so that during the hours of inspection, from 3 to 5 o'clock, the steamer presented a very lively scene. The local party returned home by special train leaving Fall River at 5:25 o'clock.

The Commonwealth exceeds in size and speed and magnificence any vessel heretofore built for coastwise service. Her length over all is 450 feet, breadth of hull, moulded, 65 feet, breadth over guards 96 feet, depth of hull 22 feet. She has sleeping accommodations for 2,300 persons. Stepping aboard one enters the quarter deck. Here are the parson's office, barber shop, cafe and parcel room. Leather upholstered seats offer the traveller an inviting resting place. The stye of this room is modern English, the woodwork being of oak. Aft is the social hall and library, a saloon of the Louis XVI. period, a deep rose red carpet covering the floors.

The saloon deck is reached by an imposing staircase. On this deck is a saloon of the Louis XV. and XVI. styles. The beds in these suits are gold-plated. Forward in the grand saloon which extends up through two decks and is the main assembly room of the steamer. Nothing of the kind has ever before been attempted in steamship architecture. A broad stairway leads upward to the gallery deck which forms a sort of balcony over the entire saloon below. On this deck is a saloon of the Louis XVI. period. Forward is the writing room and the news stand. Here also is the telephone central exchange, for every part of the boat is connected by telephone, also the wireless telegraph station. After, are the Venetian, Gothic and Adams saloons. Parlor suites with bath connections open off from the latter saloon.

Fireworks Cause Serious Accident

A most distressing accident befell Mrs. Kerr, wife of V. C. Kerr, of the H. & S. W. Railway accounting department, Bridgewater. It seems that Mrs. Kerr was watching some fireworks in Brookline, Mass., on the evening of the 4th inst., when the stick of a falling rocket struck her in one of her eyes, tearing it from its socket, and breaking a cheekbone and dislodging several teeth. The accident was a most painful one, and Mrs. Kerr's friends here are deeply sympathetic and distressed. The unfortunate lady is progressing as favorably as can be expected under the circumstances.—Bulletin.

(Mrs. Kerr—Miss Fannie Holland—will be remembered here, Mr. and Mrs. Holland and family having formerly resided in Kentville. Their friends here will be sorry to learn of this serious accident.—Ed. Advertiser.)

Not Pensions but State-Managed Annuities

The House of Commons Monday passed a measure that means a great deal to the thirty Canadian who wish to make a safe provision for old age. The act provides machinery by which the savings of the people may be directed to the purchase of annuities. The funds to be accumulated will be held and guaranteed by the Dominion Government, which will add interest at the rate of three per cent. The idea is Sir Richard Cartwright's. He does not think the time has come in Canada for old-age pensions taken out of the public treasury, believing that the mass of the Canadian people are still unable to provide for old age if assured of the safety of their savings and the reduction under state control of the cost of management to the lowest possible figure. The chief provisions of the bill follow:—No annuity shall be larger than $600 to one person, and not more than $600 to husband and wife jointly.

The minimum age at which an annuity may begin is 55 years. A man may arrange to have his annuity begin at a later age if he wishes to, but no man shall receive an annuity until he has reached the age of 55 years. This is subject to a proviso that if disability falls upon a man and he needs the annuity at an earlier age he can receive it, but the amount will in that case be smaller than what he will receive if he carries the transactions to the full 55 years.

The annuities will not be transferrable, and will not be subject to seizure. In case of death before the age at which the annuity is payable, all the moneys due in it will be retained by the representatives of the annuitant, with interest at 3 per cent. compounded yearly. The annuitant may make periodical payments at stated times, or he may make independent payments to suit his own convenience. Assuming that the contributor begins at the age of 20, and continues to pay until the age of 55, he can take his annuity at once, or if he chooses he can allow the money to stay a little longer and he will receive a larger annuity. There is a provision for independent payments by which a contributor may make a payment of $10 or more at any time. By payment of the age of 55 months, the Postoffice Bank depositors may transfer their money to purchase annuities. Friendly societies and religious organizations can purchase annuities for their members, and employers of labor can make such arrangements as are necessary to benefit their workmen. In order that the latter may benefit under the provisions of the act. The two great advantages of the scheme are the security provided by government and the cheapness of administration.

Arrange to Visit Exhibition at Halifax.

The Exhibition Commission are arranging for a Show this year at Halifax that will be the equal of its predecessors, and in some respects will surpass them. The date of the opening is September 2nd, so that the weather will be warm and pleasant for open-air amusements, and the racing and travelling to be seen from the Grand Stand should draw great crowds. A splendid field of feet horses will race on seven days of the Exhibition for purse aggregating $8,000.

The Exhibition dates include "LABOR DAY," this should draw to the grounds a great concourse of holiday-seekers, not alone from the city but from the various industrial centres of the Province. The Department Buildings will have a good display. The applications for space in the Manufacturers Building already are sufficient to demand nearly all the available space.

The annual low rates of travel will prevail and everybody should begin to arrange for a pleasant holiday in Halifax during Exhibition week.

I. C. R. Employee Charged With Murder

Halifax, July 14.—With a knife wound in the abdomen, received while skylarking in a room in North street station, Frank Burke, 27 years old, a second cook in the Intercolonial dining car service, is lying in the hospital with practically no hope held out for his recovery, and an examination showed that the charge of inflicting the wound. Perrin and Burke were wrestling and the latter was thrown against a shelf where some dining car equipment was stored, and a knife penetrated his side. Burke was taken home in a car after his friends had endeavored to stop the bleeding, and an examination showed that the injured man had a hemorrhage. There was only one course open, to perform an operation, and stop the bleeding, and Burke was taken to the hospital. The wound was closed but he had lost so much blood that no hope for his recovery is held out. Young Perrin said that Burke and he, with two other employees, were sent to clean up the store room. Just as they were knocking off work Burke and one of the other men began to wrestle and Burke was thrown against a shelf on which there were some sharp pointed bread knives. One of the knives stuck into him and they took him home.

The injured man said it was all an accident. He had been wrestling with Perrin and fell against the knife. Halifax, July 16.—Frank Burke died in the hospital yesterday as a result of his death. William Perrin, the young man who was with him when he received the wound which caused death, has been arrested. He is charged with murder. Perrin insists that he is not aware how Burke was wounded as he was.

The C. D. Pickels Launched

The Launching of the Twenty-first Schooner Built by L. D. Shafner Witnessed by a Thousand Spectators.

On Wednesday last at one o'clock there was launched from the ship yard of L. D. Shafner a handsome tern schooner, 450 tons register. About a thousand people gathered along the river banks to witness the launching. The christening ceremony was gracefully performed by Miss Hazel King who gave the vessel the name of C. D. Pickels as she slid from the ways into the river. As she lay there gay with bunting and glistening with her white coat of paint she made a pretty sight lying between the grassy slopes on either side.

The schooner has been built of our native woods selected under the personal supervision of Mr. Shafner. The cabins which are fitted up with bath and every modern convenience are finished in quartered oak.

Fatal Accident at Round Hill

Our Round Hill reporter sends us the following details of the fatal accident at that place on Friday last:—A sad accident happened here on Friday last in which Mr. Albert Kirkpatrick lost his life. A special engine, running over the D. A. R. line, struck the trolley car on which Mr. Kirkpatrick, and his men were returning from their work. The engine blew several times, but with a head wind the men did not hear it until the engine was quite close upon them. The men were endeavoring to get the car off the track when the engine struck it, hurling the trolley car down the embankment. Mr. Kirkpatrick was the only one injured. He was brought to Round Hill station on the engine and from there he was conveyed to his own home, Drs. Byers, Armstrong, and Robinson were summoned, but to no avail. He passed away Monday morning. Mr. Kirkpatrick will be very much missed in the community. He was a member of St. Paul's church, and a valued assistant in the choir. He was also always ready to lend his assistance in any public entertainment. He leaves a wife, an aged mother, and several brothers and sisters to mourn his loss. Mrs. Kirkpatrick has the sympathy of the whole community in her sad and sudden bereavement. The funeral will take place to-morrow (Wednesday) at 10 o'clock from the east-bound train. The funeral will be conducted with Masonic ceremonies.

Sudden Death of Mrs. Russell Cropley.

The community was shocked to learn this morning of the sudden death of Mrs. Russell Cropley. Retiring last night in apparent health she was taken ill about midnight. Dr. DeBlois was summoned and found her suffering from an attack of apoplexy. After doing what he could to make the sufferer comfortable and believing she might linger some time, he returned home, but being again summoned at six o'clock found she had just passed away.

Mrs. Cropley is survived by her husband and two daughters, Mrs. Archie Chute and Miss Hetty Cropley who deeply feel their sudden loss. She was a lady of intelligence and ability and was a member of the Baptist Church. Before her marriage she was a Miss Chute and taught school a number of years.

The family have been living this summer on the Thos. Foster place, east of Carleton's Corner, where her death occurred.

KILLED BY CONTACT WITH A LIVE WIRE.

NEW GLASGOW, July 15.—John Wile, aged 35 years, of N. S., a lineman in the employ of the Nova Scotia Telephone Company, was instantly killed here to-day by coming in contact with a live wire. Wile was in the employ of the Nova Scotia Telephone Company for many years, and he was considered an expert lineman. While at work on a pole to-day, he came in contact with a live wire from the Acadia Coal Company's plant and he was shocked to death. His body, limp and bleeding, hung across the wires for fifteen minutes before it could be removed, while scores of horrified spectators gazed at the awful sight unable to render aid to the victim. Finally some men ascended the pole, placed a rope around Wile's body and lowered it to the ground. Life was then extinct.

Cremation Gains Favor

The prejudice against cremation is wearing away, as the records of the Montreal Crematorium prove. Up to date 126 bodies have been cremated, and the disposition to use this method of disposing of human remains is growing.

The crematorium itself is one of the sights which the tourist is never allowed to forget by the back-draw. Curiosity in respect of it would not stop at the beautiful vestibule, filled with flowers and ferns, but would penetrate to the chamber where the cremating processes are carried out.

This was noticeable recently when a body was being prepared for the furnace room. A number of lady tourists entered into the inner rooms and mingled with the sorrowing relatives of the deceased, following these as they followed the coffin to the platform. Attendants, however, quietly but firmly asked them to retire, and the connecting door was shut.

Everything about and inside the crematorium is inviting. The situation is delightful, commanding, as it does, a glorious view of the surrounding country, while all the appointments are such as are calculated to soothe the sorrowful feeling.

The passage to the inner chamber is through a splendid conservatory filled with the choicest blooms and exotic plants, whose fronds reach to the high glass dome.

Inside the crematorium proper, the walls are marble, the floors set in tile work. The friends gather around the coffin, which is placed on a carriage. The minister, if such be present, offers prayer, or makes a short address, according to desire or custom.

Then the attendants remove all the fittings of the coffin, open the lid a little, and wheel it close to the open door of the furnace.

It is then gently pushed in. The furnace is shut, the power is turned on, and in two hours there is a little ash, which is subsequently deposited in the family vault of burial lot.

CUSTOMS REGULATIONS RESPECTING THE FREE ADMISSION OF ANIMALS FOR THE IMPROVEMENT OF STOCK.

On July 1st there came into effect new regulations regarding the custom entry of animals imported into Canada for the improvement of stock. Heretofore all certificates of registration which were apparently genuine were accepted by customs officers for the purpose of free entry. Under the new regulations the certificate must be presented at the Port of Entry for the following classes and breeds—

CATTLE.
French Canadian, Galloway, Aberdeen-Angus, Red Felled, Jersey, Guernsey and Holstein.

HORSES.
Clydesdale, Hackney, Shire, Percheron, Thoroughbred, Belgian, and French Canadian.

PONIES.
Shetland, Welsh, New Forest, Polo and Riding, Exmoor, Connemara and Haenney.

SWINE.
Yorkshire, Berkshire, Tamworth, Chester-White, Poland China, Duroc, Jersey, Essex and Victoria.

SHEEP.
Shropshire, Lincoln, Oxford Down, Dorset, Southdown, Hampshire and Leicester.

The Canadian records for all above mentioned breeds with the exception of that for Holstein cattle are conducted under the Canadian National System in the office of the Canadian National Records, Ottawa.

The Holstein records are kept at St. George, Ont. In making application for the registration of an imported animal, the foreign certificate of registration in addition to the usual application must be forwarded.

To secure free custom entry for an animal so recorded, it is necessary to forward to the Canadian National Records, Ottawa, the foreign certificate of registration. The Accountant of the Canadian National Records will return to the importer the foreign certificate to which will be attached an import certificate which will be authority to the customs officer to admit the animal duty free. A nominal charge will be made by the National Records for this service.

If further information is desired such will be supplied on application to the ACCOUNTANT, National Live Stock Records, Ottawa.

The Slaughter of the Trees.

My friend, yesterday a man took the mat from your table, writes Emerson Hough, in Everybody's Magazine. Today a man burned down your house. Do you care?

My brother, yesterday this was America, a rich, beautiful land. Today much of it is a waste and a wilderness. Is that anything to you and me?

My brother, in ten years a man is going to force you to rent a house of his to pay double what you do now. In twenty years very few of us will be able to afford even rented houses. In thirty years America will no longer be able to build houses of wood unless you shall in the meantime remember that you own America, you who found it, fought for it, and was ought to have a pride in it, if only for the sake of your children and grandchildren. Does this cause you any personal concern?

When we first owned this country one-half of its total area was covered with the grandest forest that ever grew in any portion of the world, the richest, the most useful, the most valuable for the building of a civilization. Yes, we had trees. We had forests that set the first whites who saw this country: wild with admiration, men who came here from the reforested Europe. They were all ours. Now they are all gone. Are they reared in lasting structures of a great civilization? No, at least one-half of them are ashes or rotted mold. Half of what we have left today are but the ashes or rotted mold. They will never rest in the beams and walls of abiding homes.

Had we gone on across this continent and left the remainder of our standing woods, we still should have abundance; but we have gone back a second and a third time, planning and executing the destruction of our forest until we have reaped our forest as we reap the grass lands, leaving nothing behind to grow. We have used ever-increasing appliances for speed and thoroughness, we have shipped an ever-increasing demand for an ever-increasing price. We are consuming in ever-increasing numbers, with an ever-increasing zeal, upon what is left, and in our haste to get it all we are permitting an ever increasing waste and ruin of the original supply.

The highest estimate of our remaining hardwood is four hundred billion feet. For lumber, ties, posts, manufactures, fuel, etc., we use twenty-five billion feet per annum or more. At this rate it will take us sixteen years to use up all the rest of our hardwood—if we do not burn it, and if the demand remains the same. A pleasant prospect, is it not?

All our standing timber is estimated to be somewhere between fourteen hundred and two thousand billion feet. If we use forty billion feet per annum, we can run this rate for fifty years at the present rate provided we do not have any waste. If we use one hundred and fifty billion per annum, our timber will last fourteen years, and if we use one hundred and fifty billion per annum in nine to thirteen years our timber will all be gone! Considering the natural growth under prevailing methods, we could add ten years to these terms, but that means if there is no waste in any private operations, and we cannot control the operations on private lands under any laws we now have. What will this country owe to our children when the trees are gone? Look at Persia, Assyria, the land of Canaan, China. They are wastes. China is the best instance of a land that never cared for forestry. She builds houses now of little poles, uses for fuel saplings, shrubs, herbs. Her children literally comb the hillsides for bits of roots and shrubs for fuel and fodder. The lands are bare to the bone. It is a land of floods. Villages are swept away, hard tilled fields ruined. Starvation always stalks in China. Irrigation is necessary, but since the springs are dry, water for irrigation must be raised in buckets from deep wells. Alternate floods and water famines follow the waste of forests—as the Pittsburg flood and others in our own country testify.

On the other hand, you may see what forestry has done for Europe. That continent has trees, although they have cost hundreds of years. In Germany he who cuts a tree plants one, and no cutting is done save with the consent of an expert. England holds as a pariah the man who sells his oaks. France plants trees in rows from seeds, as any other crop, and reaps the material crop in strips. It is profitable to raise trees in a country where they sell twigs in fagots for fuel, sell the bark, sell each item of that forest product, as with pasture yards of civilization becomes most imperatively necessary. And Europe has proved that the states that spend the most in forestry get the greatest net returns on their money.

HELPS FOR THOSE WHO HAVE STOMACH TROUBLE.

After doctoring for about twelve years for a bad stomach trouble, and spending nearly five hundred dollars for medicine and doctors' fees, I purchased my wife one box of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, which did her so much good that she continued to use them and they have done her more good than all of the medicine I bought before.

"Resolved, that the following regulations be made under and by virtue of Chap. 53 of the acts of the legislature of Nova Scotia, passed in the year 1908, viz.—That the use and operation of motor vehicles upon any of the public highways of the municipality of the district of West Hants on Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday of each week, be and is hereby prohibited, and any person violating this regulation shall be liable to a fine not exceeding $25 for the first offence, and a fine not less than $25 or more than $50 for the second offence, and a fine of not less than $50 or more than $100, and of imprisonment not exceeding sixty days, or both for a third or subsequent offence."

Two Flours in One

Beaver Flour is the best "pastry flour," just as it is the best bread flour. Because it is a blend of the two flours that are best for bread and best for pastry.

Beaver Flour contains Manitoba wheat, which is rich in gluten, and makes bread that is both tasty and nutritious. Beaver Flour also contains Ontario wheat, which is famous for the light, delicious Cake, Pies and Pastry it makes.

Beaver Flour is always blended in just the exact proportions, so that it is always the same and always gives the same results when you use it.

SWEARING PROHIBITED.

A prohibitive swearing placard is being hung in factories of St. Louis Mo., and has been recommended by State Factory Inspector Sikes, who is heartily in favor of Chief Crover's dictum against the use of profane and bad language in public places, and especially in factories, where women congregate.

The campaign against profane language is becoming aggressive. Those who are profane admit the habit is vulgar and ungentlemanly, and the reputation of a woman who cannot bridle her tongue certainly suffers in other respects.

Bathing Pilgrimage in China

Once in forty years, as arranged between the Brahmins and the Stars falls, in Bengal, the great bathing pilgrimage of the Ardhodaya Yoj. It is just over. The Calcutta papers began to talk about a week or two before it happened, because the crowd would be greater in Calcutta, where there is a very special shrine and bathing places of a very special sanctity. They told us of the railway arrangements, the police arrangements, the cholera camp, all the immense provision to meet a sudden influx of fifty thousand people. But long before that, in the village huts beside the rice-fields, where the matter was of real importance, it had been talked of for years till it now extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Druggists at first bought them in lots of one dozen boxes—to retail for 15.00. Now it is no uncommon thing to receive orders from wholesale or 100 gross lots (14,400 boxes)—to retail for $7,200. There is only one reason for this great success—they cure sick people.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" CAN BE HAD IN 25c. TRIAL SIZE AS WELL AS IN REGULAR CO.

Everybody Can Afford To Give These Wonderful Tablets a Trial At Least And Prove Their Value.

"Fruit-a-tives" or "Fruit Liver Tablets," the wonderful medicine made from the juices of five fruits, have scored a remarkable success. The demand for them has grown in four years till it now extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Druggists at first bought them in lots of one dozen boxes—to retail for 15.00. Now it is no uncommon thing to receive orders from wholesale or 100 gross lots (14,400 boxes)—to retail for $7,200. There is only one reason for this great success—they cure sick people.

But still there are homes where "Fruit-a-tives" have not been tried—homes where they still suffer from consumption, rheumatism, Kidney Trouble, Skin Diseases, Neuralgia, Rheumatism and kindred painful and weakening ailments. Often because they have not cared to risk 50c. to try "Fruit-a-tives" when other medicines supposed to cure—could be had for 25c.

This last objection to trying "Fruit-a-tives" has now been overcome. We have put out a new trial size to retail at 25c. The price no longer stands in the way. Get a trial box and see for yourself that "Fruit-a-tives" will cure you.

If your dealer has not the 25c. trial size, let us know. Give us your name and address, and we will send you a booklet—free—containing valuable recipes and stories of what "Fruit-a-tives" have done. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

A MEDLEY.

A weary Congressman, who could "snore upon the flint," occupied a room adjoining a German musician's.

"You will have to give me another room, I guess," said the congressman to the hotel clerk.

"What's the matter? Aren't you comfortable where you are?"

"Well, not exactly. That German musician in the next room and I don't get along well. Last night he tooted away on his clarinet so that I thought I never would go to sleep. After I had caught a few winks I was awakened by a pounding at my door. 'What's the matter?' I asked. 'If you please,' said the German, 'dot you could schmore of der same key. You vas go der F flat to G, and it spolls der moosic!'"

A NEW DEFINITION.

A rather cynical joke has been recently credited to Senator Platt. The Senator, on his last visit to the Manhattan Beach Hotel, allowed a pretty little girl, a western millionaire's daughter, to be presented to him.

"The little girl, in the course of one of her many chats with the aged statesman, said:

"Tell me, won't you, Senator, what political economy is?"

"Political economy, my dear child," Senator Platt is said to have replied, "is the art of never buying more votes than you actually need."

SPREADING CHESTNUTS.

They sat at the edge of the wood gazing dreamily at the reapers toiling in the sunny fields, at the scarlet poppies that glowed among the golden grain, and at each other.

"Darling," he cried, "I swear by this great tree whose spreading branches shade us from the heat by this noble tree I swear that I have never loved before."

The girl smiled faintly.

"How do you spread about appropriate things, Dick," she murmured. "This is a chestnut tree."

SOMETHING WRONG.

"Better send an inspector down to see what's the matter with this man's meter," said the cashier in the gas company's office to the superintendent.

"Oh!" began the superintendent. "We throw complaints about meters—"

"This is no complaint. He sends a cheque for the amount of his bill and says it's 'very reasonable.'"

HE KNEW.

"Do you know the value of an oath?" asked the judge of an old darky, who was to be the next witness.

"Yes, sah, I does. One ob dese yeh lawyers done sib me foah dollars to swear to suffin. Dat's de value of an oath. Foah dollars sah." And then there was consternation in the courtroom.—St. Joseph News.

IT WAS THE OTHER KIND OF PLAY.

"What's all this crying about, my little man?"

"I have just—lost—my—five cents."

"Come, come—stop crying! Here's five cents for you. But how did you happen to lose your money?"

"I—lost—it—play—play—playing craps!"

THEY NEVER MADE UP.

"And so you quarrelled."

"Yes, and I returned all his gifts, and what do you suppose he did?"

"Can't guess."

"Sent me half a dozen boxes of face powder, with a note explaining that he thought he had taken that much home on his coat since he first knew me."

AN ART IN ITSELF.

"She has enormous feet."

"But she's a very, very clever girl."

"She must be a horse with feet like that would interfere?"

Children Enjoy It

The story is briefly told in a little booklet called "Furnace Facts." It's not an advertisement. No furnace name is mentioned, and you can read the whole story in 5 minutes.

To the party contemplating purchasing a furnace it points out the traps and pitfalls, and shows exactly what to demand of an architect, contractor or dealer in furnace construction and installation.

THE STORK AND THE DUCK.

Dr. Walton has introduced a book on "Why Worry," with the following words from Chwang Tze:

"The legs of the stork are long; the legs of the duck are short; you cannot make the legs of the stork short, neither can you make the legs of the duck long. Why worry?"

In other words, why worry about things which cannot be helped? Take life as it comes and make the best of it. There is no use complaining or worrying because one is long and cannot make himself short, or is short and cannot make himself long, or has brains without health, or has health without brains, or is born rich without the advantages of self-development, or is born poor without the opportunity of wealth.

Professor Laughlin has defined Socialism as "the philosophy of failure." It might also be defined as the philosophy of worrying. Socialism is a protest against inequalities that cannot be helped. Men are born with wide differences, physical, mental and moral, and it is impossible by any process of law or any system of economics to remove those differences. Even equality of possession is impossible because of the inherent inequalities of the mind, the temper and the ambition of man. The Socialist complains of these inequalities and is constantly inciting the people to worry about their lack of this thing or that thing, hoping that this worrying will finally lead to a political revolution.

But while we cannot get rid of inequalities, we can make the best of the conditions in which we are placed. The duck cannot be a stork, but he can be the best kind of a duck. That is the philosophy of individualism.—Wall Street Journal.

Moving Picture Was Too Real

New York, July 21—A crowd gathered in Dyker Heights Park, Brooklyn, yesterday to see the unearthing of a moving picture for the Vitagraph Company of America. The story to be portrayed was the unearthing of an automobile of a young girl by the leader of a rzyzy band and the pursuit in two other cars by the girl's father and his friends, culminating in a fight on the water after the pursued and pursued had embarked in launches which were waiting at the foot of the Shore road, Bath Beach.

The abduction had taken place, and Arthur White, an actor, of 503 West 172nd street, was speeding along Croysey Avenue in the automobile, holding the steering wheel in his arms and waving defiance to his pursuers, when, at Fourteenth Avenue, where there is a slight curve in the road, Walter Ackerman, of Thirtieth and Croysey Avenues, who was driving the car just control of it and it upset.

The girl and White, together with Ackerman and another actor, were thrown into the road, and all escaped with bruises, except White who was caught partly beneath the overturned car. Stuart Blackton, of 1826 Church Avenue, Flatbush, who was managing the picture taking, saw the possibilities of the accident and had the cameras kept trained on the scene, while he hurried to White's help and called Dr. Spelman from the Norwegian Hospital.

The crowd lifted the car and White was pulled from under it badly bruised and only half conscious.

This Happened in St. John.

A sympathetic woman was petting a child of four years—a little girl, intelligent beyond years. Under the kindly influence the child became coquettish, and said to her new friend:—

"My mamma's heart broke."

Asked what she meant by so strange a remark, the little one replied:—

"Oh, my papa gets drunk, and it breaks mamma's heart. And," with a burst of tears, "he's breaking my heart, too."

This child knew nothing of heart-break, but she had seen her mother's misery.

Only a day or two later the mother came to the same sympathetic woman and in the course of conversation said:—

"Sometimes I feel that life is not worth living. Here I have toiled and struggled to get a sewing machine, and just when I got it paid for my husband took it out and sold it for a few dollars to get liquor."

This happened in St. John not long ago. The story was told to the Times. There is no society in St. John for the protection of women and children.

the table. But their faces gave evidence of no other emotion than that of ordinary interest.

"Yes, the Czarina's diamonds," repeated the man with the black tie. "It was a necklace of diamonds. I was told to take them to the Russian Ambassador in Paris who was to deliver them at Moscow. I am a Queen's Messenger," he added.

"Oh, I see," exclaimed Sir Andrew in a tone of relief. "And you say that this same Princess Zichy, one of the victims of this double murder, endeavored to rob you of—that cigar-case?"

"And the Czarina's diamonds," answered the Queen's Messenger imperturbably. "It's not much of a story, but it gives you an idea of the woman's character. The robbery took place between Paris and Marseilles."

The Baronet interrupted him with an abrupt movement. "No, no," he cried, shaking his head in protest. "Do not tempt me. I really cannot listen. I must be at the House in ten minutes."

"I am sorry," said the Queen's Messenger. He turned to those seated about him. "I wonder if the other gentlemen"—he inquired tentatively. There was a chorus of polite murmurs, and the Queen's Messenger, bowing his head in acknowledgment, took a preparatory sip from his glass. At the same moment the servant to whom the man with the black pearl had spoken, slipped a piece of paper into his hand. He glanced at it, frowned, and threw it under the table.

The servant bowed to the Baronet.

"Your hansom is waiting, Sir Andrew," he said.

"The necklace was worth twenty thousand pounds," began the Queen's Messenger. "It was a present from the Queen of England to celebrate"—The Baronet gave an exclamation of angry annoyance.

"Upon my word, this is most provoking," he interrupted. "I really ought not to stay. But I certainly mean to hear this." He turned irritably to the servant. "Tell the hansom to wait," he commanded, and, with an air of a boy who is playing truant, slipped guiltily into his chair.

The gentleman with the black pearl smiled blandly, and rapped upon the table.

"Order, gentlemen," he said. "Order for the story of the Queen's Messenger and the Czarina's diamonds."

CHAPTER II

THE necklace was a present from the Queen of England to the Czarina of Russia," began the Queen's Messenger. "It was to celebrate the occasion of the Czar's coronation. Our Foreign Office knew that the Russian Ambassador in Paris was to proceed to Moscow for that ceremony, and I was directed to go to Paris and turn over the necklace to him. But when I reached Paris I found he had not expected me for a week later and was taking a few days' vacation at Nice. His people asked me to leave the necklace with them at the Embassy, but I had been charged to get a receipt for it from the Ambassador himself, so I started at once for Nice. The fact that Monte Carlo is not two thousand miles from Nice may have had something to do with making me carry out my instructions so carefully."

"Now, how the Princess Zichy came to find out about the necklace I don't know, but I can guess. As you have just heard, she was at one time a spy in the service of the Russian government. And after they dismissed her she kept up her acquaintance with many of the Russian agents in London. It is probable that through one of them she learned that the necklace was to be sent to Moscow, and which one of the Queen's Messengers had been detailed to take it there. Bill, I don't know if even that knowledge would have helped her if she had not also known something which I supposed no one else in the world knew but myself and one other man. And, curiously enough, the other man was a Queen's Messenger too, and a friend of mine. You must know that up to the time of this robbery I had always concealed my dispatches in a manner peculiarly my own. I got the idea from that play called 'A Scrap of Paper.' In it a man wants to hide a certain compromising document. He knows that all his rooms will be secretly searched for it, so he puts it in a torn envelope and sticks it up where any one can see it on his mantel shelf. The result is that the woman who is ransacking the house to find it looks in all the unlikely places, but passes over the scrap of paper that is just under her nose. Sometimes the papers and packages they give us to carry about Europe are of very great value, and sometimes they are special makes of cigarettes, and orders to court dressmakers. Sometimes we know what we are carrying and sometimes we do not. If it is a large sum of money or a treaty, they generally tell us. But, as a rule, we have no knowledge of what the package contains; so, to be on the safe side, we naturally take just as great care of it as though we knew it held the terms of an ultimatum or the crown jewels. As a rule, my conferees carry the official packages in a despatch-box, which is just as obvious as a lady's jewel bag in the hands of her maid. Every one knows they are carrying something of value. They put a premium on dishonesty. Well, after I saw the 'Scrap of Paper' play, I determined to put the government valuables in the most unlikely place that any one would look for them. So I used to hide the documents they gave me inside my riding-boots, and small articles, such as money or jewels, I carried in an old cigar-case. After I took to using my case for that purpose I bought a new one, exactly like it, for my cigars. But to avoid mistakes, I had my initials placed on both sides of the new one, and the moment I touched the case, even in the dark, I could tell which it was by the raised initials.

"No one knew of this except the Queen's Messenger of whom I spoke. We once left Paris together on the Orient Express. I was going to Constantinople and he was to stop off at Vienna. On the journey I told him of my peculiar way of hiding things and showed him my cigar-case. If I recollect rightly, on that trip it held the grand cross of St. Michael and St. George, which the Queen was sending to our Ambassador. The Messenger was very much entertained at my scheme, and some months later when he met the Princess he told her about it as an amusing story. Of course, he had no idea she was a Russian spy. He didn't know anything at all about her, except that she was a very attractive woman. It was indiscreet, but he could not possibly have guessed that she could ever make any use of what he told her.

"Later, after the robbery, I remembered that I had informed this young chap of my secret hiding-place, and when I saw him again I questioned him about it. He was greatly distressed, and said he had never seen the importance of the secret. He remembered he had told several people of it, and among others the Princess Zichy. In that way I found out that it was she who had robbed me, and I know that from the moment I left London she was following me and that she knew then that the diamonds were concealed in my cigar-case.

"My train for Nice left Paris at ten in the morning. When I travel at night I generally tell the chef de gare that I am a Queen's Messenger, and he gives me a compartment to myself, but in the daytime I take whatever offers. On this morning I had found an empty compartment, and I had tipped the guard to keep every one else out, not from any fear of losing the diamonds, but because I wanted to smoke. He had locked the door, and as the last bell had rung I supposed I was to travel alone, so I began to arrange my traps and make myself comfortable. The diamonds in the cigar-case were in the inside pocket of my waistcoat, and as they made a bulky package, I took them out, intending to put them in my hand bag. It is a small satchel like a bookmaker's, or those hand bags that couriers carry. I wear it slung from a strap across my shoulder, and, no matter whether I am sitting or walking, it never leaves me.

"I took the cigar-case which held the necklace from my inside pocket and the case which held the cigars out of the satchel, and while I was searching through it for a box of matches I laid the two cases beside me on the seat.

"At that moment the train started, but at the same instant there was a rattle at the lock of the compartment, and a couple of porters lifted and shoved a woman through the door, and hurled her rugs and umbrellas in after her.

"Instinctively I reached for the diamonds. I shoved them quickly into the satchel and, pushing them far down to the bottom of the bag, snapped the spring lock. Then I put the cigars in the pocket of my coat, but with the thought that now that I had a woman as a travelling companion I would probably not be allowed to enjoy them.

"One of her pieces of luggage had fallen at my feet, and a roll of rugs had landed at my side. I thought if I hid the fact that the lady was not welcome, and at once endeavored to be civil, she might permit me to smoke. So I picked her hand bag off the floor and asked her where I might place it.

"As I spoke I looked at her for the first time, and saw that she was a most remarkably handsome woman.

For Campers

Don't That May Save Many Thousand Dollars.

(1.) Don't when in the woods, throw down a lighted match, cigar-stub or other flaming object; make sure that the flame has been thoroughly extinguished before throwing it away.

(2.) Don't build your camp fire larger than is necessary.

(3.) Don't, under any circumstances, leave your fire unguarded, even for a comparatively short time, see that it is dead out before you go away.

(4.) Don't build your fire in leaves, rotten wood or other inflammable material.

(5.) Don't build your fire against a large or hollow log, where it is hard to be sure when it has been entirely put out.

To these "don'ts" it may be added that in windy weather, or in a dangerous place, it is well to confine the fire in a hole dug clean down to the mineral soil. A fire may smolder in the humus, or "duff" for days only waiting for a strong breeze to fan it into a flame that may burn over miles of timber.

Summer tourists and campers unfortunately have a bad reputation among the owners of timber-lands as being a frequent cause of fires. Such fires could be prevented, almost without exception, by a little extra care on the part of the campers, who have been the unintentional cause of much forest destruction, and who have just as real an interest in the preservation of the forests as the owners of the timber themselves. The rules given above are the result of long experience and observation on the part of many woodmen and lumbermen as to the origin of fires from this cause, and are earnestly commended to the attention of campers, sportsmen and others.

The need for observing them is emphasized by the occurrence a few days ago of serious fires in the Lake St. John district in Quebec, one village being wiped out; the fires are thought to have originated from fires left by fishermen.

Nova Scotia's First Steel Ship Launching

The steel schooner, James William, the first steel ship constructed in Nova Scotia, was successfully launched on the 14th inst. She is named after the late Senator, James William Carmichael. She is a three-masted schooner, 111 feet keel, 37 feet beam, 14.6 depth of hold, and 146 feet in length over all, with tonnage about 490 net. The large quantity of steel used in the building was almost altogether the product of the Nova Scotia Steel Company. They supplied everything that was within their capacity.

The ship was built by I. Matheson & Co., iron founders, for J. W. Carmichael & Co. She is intended for the coastal lumber trade between Canadian ports and the United States in summer and in the winter will carry pine from the Gulf ports to the West Indies.

This afternoon a number of prominent citizens and visitors boarded a special train for Pictou Landing, where a steamer took them for a sail on Pictou harbor, and while on this trip the citizens presented Jas. C. McGregor with a $500 silver service, suitably engraved, in token of their appreciation of his energy and push in inaugurating such a movement.

The Famous Pedestrian

Gentlemen.—I was a martyr to catarrh of the head, throat and stomach. I was so bad the doctors feared to operate. I tried many physicians and medicines. A friend suggested Psychine. I tried it and it was the only thing ever did me any good. I am now perfectly well. It is the greatest remedy the world has ever known. I do not need it for my health now but I use it as a strengthening for my walking matches. I owe much of my physical endurance to Psychine."

Barbank's Frost Experiment

For over twenty-five years we have heard of the Burbank potato, but very few could have imagined what lay behind that name and into what greater meaning it would grow. Potato being is usually considered a dull, tiresome task, but as a boy Luther Burbank took a different view. He looked at his home potato patch, in New England, as a fascinating problem. The result was a new and improved variety of potato, which, when he was 18, he sold to a seedling for $100. This was practically Mr. Burbank's first experiment and his success since then in developing, principally the ideally beautiful in fruits and flowers makes it all the more interesting, that again he is experimenting with the homely potato. For the last several years Mr. Burbank has planted and propagated potatoes on an immense scale, and now, with 10,000 kinds, his own hybrid—he diligently studies and works to perfect the white tuber in size, form and flavor.

That recently it was almost impossible to obtain either tubers or seeds of the "Irish" potato in its original wild form from its ancient habitat in South America. There, high up in the peaks of the Andes, the potato plant still finds food on the grim, scant rims of extinct volcanoes, and slowly, in two years' time, develops into one shapeless tuber. But the Indians of those regions are as wild and resistant as the potato, and fiercely prevented encroachments by white men until civilization took the form of whiskey. It is true that the seeds are washed down the sides of the mountains, but the plant changes form in its descent, finally becoming the worst weed the people have. More than 10,000 seedlings, Mr. Burbank says, of this weed are found upon a single acre. He has been importing specimens of the original wild form from the coast of the Chile and crossing them with others of his cultivated types, from the results selecting the best for further development. Of the new varieties already obtained, Mr. Burbank says some are almost as sweet as sweet potatoes. Certainly the world will await with great curiosity and equal faith the final results of this present series of potato experiments.—Scientific American

 We have, at this time, to chronicle the death of one of our oldest and much esteemed residents, Mr. John Harris Bent, who passed over to the great majority on Saturday the 11th inst. Had he lived a few more days, he would have lived 93 years. He was born in 1815, and was the eldest son of the late John Bent, Esq., who during his lifetime carried on quite an extensive tanning and boot and shoe business. The subject of this notice was born and lived all his lifetime on the homestead of his father, which at the present time is one of the largest and most beautiful farms in the Valley. He was, in fact, a well established farmer—one of the best in the County—and through honest industry accumulated a good share of this world's goods. During his lifetime, he divided his farm between his two sons, who are settled thereon. Mr. Bent is survived by one brother, his widow, who was a daughter of the late Jesse Dodds, and two sons to mourn the loss of a most indulgent husband and father. Religiously Mr. Bent was an Episcopalian, politically he was a conservative of the old school. His interment took place at the Cemetery of St. Mary on Monday, the 13th, Rev. E. Underwood officiating.
