A.O.H. CONCERT, MASSEY HALL

Large Audience Enjoy Musical Treat. Erin's Green Isle was once again brought hearer the heart and vision of 300) music-lovers at Massey Hall annual concert Saturday night last, when a choir of 600 children, Miss Olive Casey, soprano; Will J. White, singing comedian: Arthur Leithseur, baritone; Mar-garet Park-Wilson, contralto; George Ross, tenor; the Gaelic League Dancers and Angila Breen and Dr. Ross, ac-companists, provided a truly splendid program. Will J. White, the ever-popular concert entertainer, simply had the audience "In his mit" from the mo-ment he stepped to the footlights until the conclusion of the last number. His song, "They Have Won Every Coun-try's Battles But Their Gwn." created wild enthusiasm, and he had difficulty in starting each verse, so prolonged was the applause. "Everybody's Doing It Now," a new "Koon Kraze," was introduced by the clever entertaines, and again he made a great hit—in fact, it was "Will White" night with the Irish on St. Patrick's night, and it must be said that altho all the artists pleased decidedly in their selections and won evidences of the audience's approval, Will J. White was the attrac-tion for old and young allke, as was demonstrated by the entire audience on his every appearance. One old gen-tleman of the Green Isle was heard to remark at the close of the concert. "Sure, it's me sides that are sore wid laughin' at the spalpeen of a Will White, wid his funny songs an' say. dian; Arthur Leithseur, baritone; Mar-Sure it's he sides that are sore who laughin' at the spalpeen of a Will White, wid his funny songs an' say-in's, but be gorra it's younger I'm feelin' afther listenin' to him, the ras-

an important consideration must be that the volume be up to date. The World's search ended with Webster's New Illustrated Dictionary, because it is the very latest, beyond doubt. USED PIANOS OF CELEBRATED MAKES

In our Exchange Department you will find all the best makes of pianos-many styles in each some almost brand new-all in perfect condition.

Only the desire inborn of every music lover for immediate music mastery could have brought together so many magnificent instruments. These were taken in exchange for the PIANOLA pianos and Mason & Risch player-pianos, which anyone can play, and not because they were in any way unsatisfactory to their former owners.

If you are looking for a particular make of piano, or if you are seeking an expensive piano at an inexpensive price, do not fail to visit our Exchange Department. The assortment is unusually large. The variety for selection is most satisfying. The prices in every case are the lowest ever quoted for such flawless instruments. PRICES BEGIN AT $150.

Mr. Bruenech has just returned to Toronto after an extensive European trip and in his collection of watercol ors now on exhibition there are scenes in Norway, Canada, and parts of Engd, which one can safely say are the most beautiful and interesting ever seen in this city. Mr. Bruenech is without doubt a great artist in the de-pletion of the sea, sky, distance and at-mospheric effects. His style is bold and clear, every detail is carefully fin-ished, tho not too minute, and in his English and Canadian scenes, greys, quiet greens and pate blues predomin-ate. His work is full of diffused day-light; his distanct effects coiae and go rapidly and are full of mystery and delicacy. His foliage is rich and remark-able in composition; his rock and bill drawing realistic and his skies exqui-site. In Norway, with its labyrinthine mixture of land and water, its sea coast a succession of flords and rocky headlands, his talent finds ample scope. Here his colors glow, and in the mid-night sun effects his treatment is vivid and grand; he delineates with his most beautiful and interesting ever

Here his colors glow, and in the mid-night sun effects his treatment is vivid and grand; he delineates with his brush what Grieg expresses in his nusic, the rugged, combre, irregular, abrupt qualities of the glorious north, the land of the midnight sun. No more fitting place could be found for such an exhibition than the Mason & Risch store. Art is in the atmos-phere; the building is palatial and strictly in keeping with the high artis-tic standard that has always been maintained by that well-known firm. A specimen of their superb Grand, a miniature mahogany, inlaid, being near at hand, one yielded to a mute, but appealing invitation, to let one's fingers wander over its keys, and be-ing for a moment transported to the morthland, ones thoughts turned to Grieg, Sinding and Sibelius, and in the association of kindred spirits the slow of the sun became more radiant; the cold grey skies took on a warmer hue and for a time one forget the strener things of life and "dwelt alone with the gods." Mr. Bruenech is a Frenchman by birth, and is an asso-ciate of the Royal Canadian Academy of Artists. Among the most import-ant pictures in the collection are: "The Seven Sisters." The beginning everywhere to canvase the feasibility of this solution. National Mines for the Navy The parliamentary correspondent of a London daily says that it is most ilikely that the government will buy out some of the colliers which supply isteam coal to the navy, and work them in the national interests. He writes. The best steam coal for naval purposes comes from South Wales. Acquisitions by the Admirality of a few coal mines in this coalined is an idea that has been often mooted, and the present crisis in the coal trade has revitalized it. Without an uninterrupted supply of coal our maval predominance is a vain thing. The recent investigation into the management of the home for boys at Mimico which brought out much evi-dence of cruelty in the handling of the inmates of that institution, inspires me to offer a few reasons why boys are placed in confinement there. Many of them are from homes where self-control is not known, where the burden of care rests heavily upon mothers and fathers in the management of children brought into the world handicapped. "moral self-control." They give one "moral self-control." They give one more moral resisting power than can be gotten from any other source. They are made and a self-control of the source. CRIMINOLOGY--Its Fundamental Psychology

By D. B. McKELLAR, Scientific Phrenologist

Heredity does not mean that a child has some good or bad traits of char-acter belonging to some anoestor in the past centuries, but it means the child possesses the good and bad quol-ities of both parents, blended in such manner as to produce in the child a distinct head-shape. Human Nature is a reality. Heretor fore it has been treated by nearly all in a vague, superficial, general man-ner. Since the elements of human na-ture have been learned there is no need to proceed in this manner in the hand-ing of men, women, boys and girls. The forty-two elements of human na-ture, discovered by phrenologists, con-stitute all of the essential parts of man's mentality that have been mani-fested up to the present time. They moral sides of human nature. These general divisions of human nature are

Farm Lands

As the Spring is at hand, there is a large immigration to Western Canada, and a large number no doubt will make their homes there and purchase farms. We might say we would be of assistance to any immigrant buyers purchasing farm lands, as we cover practically the whole of Western Canada; we are not at all local in our views, and will give immigrant investors the very best buys and advice at our disposal in any part of Western Canada. We have a large list of lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta ranging in prices from $10 per acre up.

6000 Acres of Our Own Lands

We have over 6000 acres of our own lands in the three prairie provinces that we will sell at prices ranging from $10 to $25 peracre, on the terms of one-third cash, and, if the purchaser is desirous of getting easy terms, the balance on a ten-year mortgage. This will give the man of moderate means an opportunity. Farm lands at present prices in Western Canada are very safe buying, and a judicious purchase is always sure to give an annual profit of at least 10 to 25 per cent. on the amount invested.

HOW TO GET THERE. When you wish to re-sell your lot, tell a prospective buyer that the way to Walmer Hill is via Queen's Park, Avenue Road, Poplar Plains Road or Spadina Road, and you've done half the selling. But now lot us motor you there from your home. It's a pleasure for us to do it, because we know we have the finest close-in property around Toronto. If the roads are good it takes us about half an hour to go from the Temple Building to Walmer Hill, all around the property and back again. We are already sold out of the farthest-out half of the subdivision, so let us show you the closest-in half, the part show you the closest-in half, the part right on top of the Hill.

THE BEST TOWN IN EASTERN ONTARIO THE EARLY BUYER HAS THE GREATEST CHOICE LIMITED NUMBER OF LOTS NDUSTRIAL PARK 30 FEET FRONTAGE And Upwards One-Third Cash OSHAWA NEEDS HOMES WHERE IS INDUSTRIAL PARK? Industrial Park is in the industrial

ection of the town alongside the Ontario Malleable Iron Co.'s factory, where 800 men are employed. On the other side is the C.P.R.'s property, on which they will erect their station, and houses are built on the third side. The only logical location in Oshawa for nomes in the Industrial section is in this Park. It is needed immediately for homes, and is being developed with that view in mind. A purchaser of a lot in Industrial Park buys where he's sure to make money, and in a community of prosperous manufacturers and large employers of labor.

We want to meet you-then sell to you, then sell for you, and place you on our list of satisfied investors.

See the illustrated section of this

"THE MANCHESTER OF CANADA" Oshawa is the Banner Town of Eastern Ontario

It is the headquarters of many manufacturers whose names are emblazoned throughout the Dominion, and in all parts of the civilized world. The Ontario Malleable Iron Works, McLaughlin Carriage Company, Schofield Woolen Mills Company, Williams Piano Company, Canada Malleable Steel Range Company, T. Eaton Company, Fittings, Limited, and others are large employers of labor, who all see a bright future abead of Oshawa.

NEEDS HOMES

and needs them very badly. The building of residences has not kept page with the industrial growth of the town. The population is now 8000, but will be increased to 20,000 within a short time. Buy a lot now, in Oshawa.

Three Railroads For Oshawa

Up to the present Oshawa has been served by the Grand Trunk Railway only, and more freight was handled there in the past year than in any community between Toronto and Montreal. Foreseeing the immense possibilities in Oshawa, the Canadian Pacific Railroad and the Canadian Northern are now going to Oshawa. The C.P.R. have purchased thirty acres immediately alongside Industrial Park The Toronto Eastern Electric Railway are now buying their right-of-way from Toronto to Bowmanville, and will run a sput to Oshawa.

AND OSHAWA, ONT.

WHERE IS SIMCOE HEIGHTS? Simcoe Heights is located on North Simcoe Street, and is intended for the more expensive and higher class residences, in harmony with those now erected on the lots alongside. The street cars run almost up to the property, and the High School is alongside. Many of the lots are adorned with fruit trees. and across the road are the grounds of the Exhibition and Alexandria Park. The beautiful scenery surrounding. Simcoe Heights to the north and east is magnificent. Some of Oshawa's finest homes are on Simcoe Street adjoining this property. We prefer to sell to builders, but to investors these lots offer a safe, sound, and sure investment. They are the only lots in the direct growth of the town. Houses immediately adjoin-and this property will rapidly be built on also.

City Engineer Rust stated Saturday morning that the new $2,500,000 trunk sewer system will be in running order in about six weeks. The high level interceptor sewer is practically com-pleted at the present time. As yet the pumps have not been installd at the sewage disposal works, but the screens actived from England last week and are now being installed. When this sec-ton of the system is completed it will be adequate to dispose of about two-thirds of the sewage.

the city. Restating the case, then, by taking advantage of the congested state of Montreal the Canadian Northern are enabled to carry out this gigantic un-dertaking with profit to themselves and money in hand for most of the work of construction. By selling the six or eight square miles of new territory which it brings within ten minutes of the city's centre, it not only pays for the under-taking, but gives a greatly increased value to the heart of Montreal, bring-ing more business into it and calling for more hotels and a better class of buildings. Local Winter Traction Provided.

But this is only one advantage of the big policy adopted by the Canadian Northern in this respect. If there is one city in America that has to solve one city in America that has to solve the street car problem in winter, it is Montreal, because of its narrow streets and the quantity of snow that often blocks the street car tracks. But here will be a tunnel, to start with three miles long, that will carry thousands of people to the centre of the city every day and be absolutely weather-proof and away from the congestion of

Many persons in Montreal are obliged now to spend 40 to 60 min-utes each trip between home and busi-ness, because of the congestion and crowded street cars; hereafter they will be able to get from all the coun-try behind the mountain into the city in less than 15 minutes, in well-lighted cars, beyond all exposure to the wea-ther, and thru a well-ventilated shaft. And it is absolutely certain that once the tunneling of Montreal has been commenced other tunnels will follow and the public, for the first time, will become acquainted with the comfort and convenience of rapid traveling in tubes instead of fighting their way thru congested streets, wet weather CALGARY. March 22.—To consider the advisability of blowing up Turtle Mountain with dynamite in order to avoid a second slide there, the Cana-dian Pacific Railway Company will make arrangements with the federal government some time in the future. After the report of an expert is ob-tained, some action will probably be taken to protect the Town of Frank and its citizens from an ice slide. There is no immediate danger. Cataranich Visits Capital City-George Kennedy of Irish Canadians Has Practically Secured Bobby Pringle and Harry Lavelle. OTTAWA, March 22 .- (Special.)-The first blow of the lacrosse war now waging was struck yesterday, and it is significant that the Big Four were the ones to do the striking. Cattaranich of the Nationals arrived in Ottawa last night, and within a few minutes of his arrival signed up Buck Sarazin of the Capitals, one of the best on the local team's defence. He also had a confab with Bobby Pringle, but Bobby did not sign up. Sarazin is said to have affixed his name to a contract for $500, but what ever the price was he signed up and will play for the French team in Montreal. George Kennedy of the Canadiens and also the Irish-Canadians was also in town. Kennedy had a talk with Pringle, and also with Harry Lavelle, and it is practically certain that both men will go to Montreal. The Cana-diens' manager also wants Shea, and, from information that leaked out, is certain to get all three. This will leave a big gap in the ranks of the Capitals. the iniquitous regulation forbidding children under 15 to drive their ponies on the streets or in the public places of Toronto. It is not necessary to say that such a regulation is seriously de-trimental to pony interests as well as being of itecif tyrannical and arbi-trary. The Hunter and Polo Pony Society's Show was held recently at the Royal Agricultural Hall, London, England, Mr. Duff's Stallion Bill. I am very much in sympathy with Hon. J. S. Duff's stallion enrolment King offered a Champion Challenge and inspection bill, but in several Cup for the best thorobred stallion; particulars it appears that it might be simplified. For instance, instead of a 000 to suitable sires; while sums of "committee" of inspection a cupilitical site ($525) and $520 ($160) were site simplified. For instance, instead of a 000) to suitable sires; while sums of "committee" of inspection, a qualified $1125 ($5625) and $632 ($3160) were given vet, for each district might be ap-pointed to perform the necessary dutles. Again it is peremptory in several clauses but no penalties are provided. Subsection 2, clause 5, says that a certificate "shall" be issued on neons competition in jumping over the the breeding and ownership of a stalthat a vertificate "shall" be issued on moons competition in jumping over the the breeding and ownership of a stal- course and over the water were pro-lion being furnished. R., Manager. MONEY" Junc. 557. WAY in a corner of the great barnlike assembly room at the top of the City Hall there is and has been for several months a tent. Over the door of this tent appears a cheap pasteboard card bearing the legend "Juvenfle Court." This is Toronto's new repair shop for budding humanity, and when one looks it over one cannot but be reminded of Kipling's line: "Oheap repairs for the cheap uns." At first blush the reference seems to hold good until you have entered the filmsy canvas portals, and come into the presence of a large, kindly and understanding mau.

Once this man was "Rev." J. E. Starr, preacher to a bunch of railroad men at Allandale, Ont. Once he was a deputy sheriff, and he has been a number of other things in his eventful life. Now he is Commissioner of the Juvenile Court of the City of Toronto, but his title does not amount to much, even to his wife, who shares his work with helpful and understanding sympethy, and thinks that "Old Man Starr" is as good a designation as any other.

This man is at the head of the city's juvenile repair department, and, while he is not the first to bring wisdom to a tent, it has to be a real big tent to house all the kindly wisdom which Le has brought to his task "Old Man Starr" believes that he can best serve the interests of the community which employs him by serving the little careless, careworn or uncared for children who have been given into his charge. ' He believes that the service of his head is no more required than the service of his heart, and he is giving all there is of both, and there is a mighty lot of them.

This big man, with eyes that are sad, merry and mad all in five minutes listens to the tales of the troubles of little children that are daily poured into his ears by little girls and littler boys who do not, more than half of the time, know that they have done wrong, do not even understand that anyone has done wrong, and, indeed, only know that while other little eyes are smilling their own are blinded with tears.

Often the commissioner does not understand just what remedy to apply. He has his daily problems, which are great big problems albeit that they arise out of the troubles of very little folk. He has troubles which arise out of insufficient aid and equipment, and inept and inadequate systems of dealing with the young citizens who come before him.

One thing which he believes to the bottom of his being is that only love, sympathy and service, breed love, sympathy and service. He knows with his heart just as surely as with his mind that if these little people are to grow up to love and serve and understand the state, the state must do as much for them, and he is right in believing that he can bring them to accept his loving, understanding service and sympathy as that of the state, and is giving them without stint or limitation.

One case, that of "Bob," will serve to illustrate his attitude and effect upon thousands similar but different equations, which he has to solve. "Bob" is about 14 years of age, and "Bob" certainly did steal. He was brought before "Old Man Starr" at first, when he did not steal. He just had a bunch of tools which you wouldn't expect a boy to have. He said he had bought them, and when the commissioner told him that he believed him, but others didn't, and they had better get busy and put it all over the doubters, the boy proved it solid. He was put in a home, and, for a while did well.

Later "Bob" walked into the court one morning and laid a bundle of tools on the table. He said he had stolen them. A heart-to-heart conference followed, in which "Bob" told that he did not know why he had stolen them, and was mighty sorry for it, but was terribly afraid that he might steal again. He got along all right for a while, but once more the temptation to steal got him. "Old Man Starr" sent him to Prof. Jones, of the University Psychological Department, and received the enlightening information that it arose out of "Bob's" age and physical condition, and that he was not much more responsible for stealing than for breathing. He said, however, that if carefully watched for a year or so the crisis would be over, and "Bob" would be as good if not better than new. "Bob," who might have been sent to Mimico last year, is being watched and cared for, and will be saved to the community instead of becoming a charge upon and a menace to it. "Bob" is just one case, there are scores of "Bobs" coming daily and hourly to the court.

What the court needs is a psychological expert, as is attached to that model children's court at Chicago. They have one in Seattle, Wash., and the results are wonderful. The reasons for such and the need were explained a few weeks ago in The Sunday World by Dr. Lucy Hoesch Ernst.

Another great and urgent need is that the court should have its own building and detention home, as is the case in Seattle, where the work can be carried on in greater privacy, and as far removed from all appearance of official dom All these things will come, and they will corie just as soon as enough people can be brought to see the great value of the service, which this repuirshop for little ch'idren is doing, and the saving of late danger, sorrow and expense to both the individual and the state.

"Suffer little children to come unto Me," said a greater savior than "Old Man Starr," who has taken a leaf out of His book.

The Race for Naval Supremacy

When the first pardonable ebullition of German feeling, over the blunt and plain, but perfectly courteous exposition of British naval policy, by the first lord of the admiralty, has simmered down it will perhaps, be found to have aided rather than retarded the progress of the negotiations for a better understanding between the two countries. Mr. Churchill in no way sought to limit the Dreadnaught activities of the Fatherland, but he did state without any persiflage that whether these be large or small the relative proportion of the two fleets will be maintained as it now exists. He placed the relatively greater increase in British construction at 60 per cent., while at the same time he pointed out that in certain circumstances, even the proportion of two to one might become necessary. But in all this there was nothing new That the superiority of the British fighting fleet must be maintained at all hazards has been a commonplace during this international controversy The principle that the fleet should equal in strength that of the next two naval powers was generally accepted until the United States became one of them. Confident that the danger of war between the two English-speaking peoples is too remote for practical consideration, the British government has declined to rank the republic as a possible enemy. The sixty per cent. margin of strength above the German fighting line is in effect nothing more than a rough equivalent of the previous standard-the point is that Germany has now been told clearly and emphatically that her naval policy will regulate that of the United Kingdom.

The Cologne Gazette therefore completely missed the mark when It affirmed, what is perfectly true, that Great Britain must decide from the standpoint of her own interests what increase in her fleet is necessary, but that Germany must do the same. That criticism presupposes independent increases, but is without bearing on the proposition advanced by Mr. Churchill. Britain has decided that it is necessary for the purposes of an empire, whose safety depends on maritime supremacy to have a fleet of battleships at least sixty per cent. greater than that of a continental empire, whose military strength is many times greater than her own. The naval needs of Germany cannot be compared with those of the British Empire, or as Mr. Churchill epigrammatically put-to Britain fleets are a necessity, to Germany a luxury. It is as true to-day as when Tennyson wrote that "the fleet of Britain is her all in all." German security is not dependent on victory at sea-it is only the silver sea and the fleet that protects the United Kingdom and the British dominions and dependencies from invasion, and possible conquest. Britain is the only European nation without universal compulsory army service, and because she refuses to be a nation in arms she proclaims to the world that her security rests on her first line of defence-her fleet. If Germany chooses to challenge British naval superiority she in turn can not resent the conclusion that her designs are offensive, not defensive

The Militia

It is no reflection upon Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes, that his estimates should have called forth considerable criticism of the militia department from some members on both sides of the house. The militia department or ginally looked after the militia proper, and the regular army for Canada was supplied by the imperial authorities. With the withdrawal of the imperial troops, the militia department took over the permanent force, and thus required and received additional votes of money. The net result is, however, that our volunteer militia estimates grow in size from year to year, without an adequate increase for the militi proper

The Toronto Globe believes that the military estimates should be reduced, and ridicules the notion that soldiers are needed in Canada, and at the same time comments on the inactivity of the Borden government in the matter of naval defence. Britain's determination to maintain her present marginal advantage cannot be construed as a menace to world peace. It is really a declaration that the preservation of her naval strength is essential for peace. London is the world's international money exchange. As was remarked in an important article on Lombard Street and War. appearing in the current number of The Round Table, bills on London are the usual means of settling all forms of indebtedness between the British Isles and the outside world, and are largely used by other countries also to settle debts as between one and another. The result is that London finances other countries to an enormous amount. and has to be out of vast sums pending the maturity and collection of the commercial paper it has discounted. All this stupendous credit system is carried on with a gold reserve very much less than that of any other of the leading commercial nations. A collapse of credit in London would entail consequences absolutely disastrous, and would certainly follow, upon maritime defeat. No countries would suffer from that shock more than the British Oversea Dominions, yet should war unfortunately come, all that stands in the way of a financial crisis is the British fleet. To Britain maritime supremacy is, indeed, a necessity, and those who in the name of peace oppose the measures required to maintain it little reck the dangers of defeat. There is neither menace to peace nor provocation of war in Britain's naval policy.

Too Much Sport

A correspondent suggests that too much attention is given to sport. He thinks the papers are overcrowded with such matters to the detriment of the rising generation. He says that he is not opposed to a rational amount of sport, but that he is clearly of the opinion it is overdone.

Of course every man has a right to his own opinions; still, we do not believe that there is too much play. On the contrary, our disposition is to think that the twenty-four hours, comprising night and day, should be divided into three distinct parts; eight hours for sleep, eight hours for sport, study and meals, and eight hours for work. There is no necessity to quote the old adage about all work and no play on this occasion, altho it is undoubted that rest from labor and a change of occupation are of the utmost value both to health and character.

It is certain that sport, like everything else, can be indulged in to excess. Also, like everything else, the excess brings its own punishment, and in time its own remedy. Everybody recognizes that it is no more possible to prosper and play too frequently than it is possible to enjoy good health by deliberately doing everything calculated to prevent its acquirement. If our correspondent would take the trouble to investigate and enquire, he will find that the greatest and most successful men are those who allow themselves a reason able amount of leisure, and are even devoted to one particular pasttime. There is no necessity here to go into particulars regarding this fact, for they are manifest to everybody who has the power of thought or has the ability to read and to see.

Sport, rationally and reasonably indulged in, is helpful both mentally and physically. If people neglect business to indulge their inclinations in this direction, they suffer for it, but on the whole, this is rarely the case. To follow sport to any extent, money is necessary and, herefore, the disease cures the desire, for the means can only be secured by work. Consequently, we are not disposed to agree with our correspondent, that too much attention is given to sport. I lic service,

The growth of the headquarters staff, and its costliness is resented in some quarters. We are maintaining an elaborate machine for setting 200,000 soldiers in the field. True, we have not enough ammunition to enable them to fire more than one shot apiece, and in many other respects, are utterly unprepared for war.

The fact is, that the militia department is either doing too much or not enough. It should seriously proceed to place the country in a position where resistance could be made to an armed invasion, or it should cut off some of the fuss and feathers so strongly objected to.

Certainly the people at large take much more interest in the volunteer militia than they do in the headquarters staff and the permanent force. Of the permanent force, only ten per cent. of the men are Canadians?

Something too, might be done to bring the excellent military college at Kingston closer to the people, and of more use to the government. Certainly a number of army officers could be used in carrying out great engineering enterprises of the government. The construction of the Georgian Bay Canal and of the Welland Canal will call for a large number of engineers, and to some extent at least, these engineers should be officers in the Canadian army, and graduates of the Royal Military College.

Possibly, too, the Northwest Mounted Police should be treated as a military unit. This would guarantee a good cavalry service, and would do much to interest the people generally in the work of the militia department. There seems to be no good reason why the force should constitute a separate department of the government, when its organization and work so clearly fall in the lines | of military endeavor including frontier defence.

Reforming Criminals

Upon another page of this issue is found th story of a young man whom Buffalo and Eric County, N.Y., have empowered to look after large percentage of their criminals. It is the duty of this officer to find out why crimes are commit ted, and what is the likelihood of the reclamation of the offender to usefulness to himself, his fami ly and the state.

This is a work which was begun with chil dren's courts, and is just growing up into usefulness and service among adult offenders. It is in use in various states of the country to the south; and has been found uniformly efficacious, and in stead of being discarded, these offices are being increased, both as to number and equipment, add ed to which is found a growing tendency toward co-operation from the old line criminal handling agencies such as the police, the courts, and the prisons.

It would be well for a government, which has done so much toward softening the yoke upon the shoulders of the oppressed, as has been done at Guelph, and as will be accomplished when Mimico has been reformed to turn its very earnest regard to this advance in public economy and pub-under the protection of the navy of the empire, towards which navy, by the way, we do not contribute a ship, a man, or a dollar. We hope that before long, this disgraceful attitude will be abandoned, and that at the same time, we will commence the construction of war vessels in Canadian ship-yards, from Canadian material, by Canadian labor.

But, why should there be no adequate preparation for military defence? Even an invasion from the sea is not important unless the enemy's fleet convoys an army. It is on the land that the invader is often defeated, and driven back. At present there is not sufficient provision for maintaining a Canadian army in the field. Indeed, we are informed that if 50,000 soldiers were mobilized for defence, the present resources of Canada would only supply them with enough ammunition to fire kept a diary, and who has not at one four shots apiece.

There may be too much fuss and feathers in the militia department, and the present expenditures may be large, but there are other expenditures that ought to be made, and in any event the people of this country are not ready to disband the militia or to confess themselves unable to defend their homes from any invader.

Again the Intercolonial

The Intercolonial Railway has been up again for discussion in the house of commons. The two ex-ministers, Mr. Emmerson and Mr. Graham spoke of the road and its future lugubriously, while the them. present minister, Mr. Cochrane, thought the road was alright.

The I. C. R. has been discussed by parliament aboard the vessel, the frigate "Triton" and the press for many years, but the discussions of 28 guns. T SECRETS OF BEANTR MOSTFAMOUS LIVING BEANTY. BEAUTY QUESTIONS ANSWERED

C. A. N. writes to ask whether when peroxide of hydrogen be used to bleach, weaken and finally kill superfluous hair it leaves a sleek, shining skin, and whether the hairs will return.

I know no reason why the skin should have the appearance you describe. There is no guarantee that hair will not grow again unless the roots are destroyed. Even electrolysis does not always have that effect. But it is well worth the effort. M. L. asks advice about the treatment of lips that look "blue and parched."

If your lips are bluish you may be aenemic. Better see a physician about a Spring tonic. The protracted cold weather may be accountable for the dryness. Anoint them morning and night and before going out of doors with this solution:

Most thin perone good reason for not massaging the muscles of the face deeply, but for simply patting the cream lightly Into the skin. H. B. requests: "Kindly tell me how to perfume my cold cream. Also my nails become snow white at the tips, making the rest of the nail look peculiar. Also please let me know how to massage the creases from the base of the nose to the corners of the mouth."

If you are making the cold cream yourself pour a few drops of your favorite perfume into it and stir it In while the substances are cooling. growing old. It is only one of them. And you have my assurance that you can make it look youthful again. For proof of this let me point you to the great singing teachers, yes, and the great singers who are their pupils. Almost every one of them-indeed, I can think of no exception-has a round, white, youthful looking throat. One of the most beautiful necks I ever saw, white, strong, girlish, was that of the celebrated vocal teacher, Mme.

Marchesi, when she was seventy. But while this is true, it is also true that you should begin giving the neck special attention before you are thirty. It were better if you began when you were twenty-Ave. First, look to its careful feeding. Give it at least one good meal a day by rubbing cold cream liberally into the front of the neck at night before retiring.

Look very carefully to the poise of the head. If the head be held proudly, the chin up, the muscles of the neck will also be held firm But if you permit the head to droop the neck muscles share the sagging. Never lie with the head high. One breathing, learned by vocal lessons, should never grow old. I advise every woman to take vocal culture for herself, even though she have no liking for music, simply for the sake of the beauty of her neck. The most beautiful necks in the world are those of singers.

He was strolling with her along waterside when he suddenly turne his fair companio "I say-aw-Miss Teresa. Could you manage to fall in so that-awcould wescue you?" The fair Miss Teresa looked surprised.

But if these preventive measures have been neglected and the neck is losing its roundness and its firm aspect, have recourse to that great body builder, massage. There is special massage for the neck, and it must be intelligently given.

First strengthen the chin muscles by pressing firmly upon them with the backs of the hands. Turn the hands, with the backs upward, and letting the finger tips meet beneath the middle of the chin. Press with ward behind the ears to the hair

Second. With the tips of the fingers quite meeting at the point of the collar bone in front, draw the hands with long, slow strokes upwand to a point beneath the ears. This is a good muscle building movement.

Third. Slap the neck smartly with the palms.

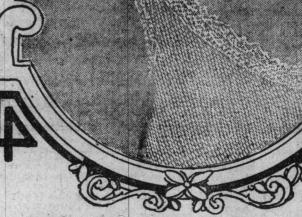

Fourth. "Lift" the tendons at the side of the neck that are inclined to grow more prominent and ropey each year. This lifting consists in seizing the tendons in a firm grasp and seeming to raise them to meet the head. This is painful, and may even cause a slight headache at first, but these are only Nature's protests against the unaccustomed.

Even Nature is an old fogey about innovations. Fifth. Grasp the large muscles at the back of the neck and connecting the shoulders, and "lift" these also. Raise them as though it were your purpose to place them in the curve of the neck. This should be followed by a vigorous kneading of the muscles. The aim of all these massage movements is to promote circulation in the neck. The yellowish, withered-looking skin denotes that the blood flows weakly in that part of the body. The flabby muscles Indicate that the muscles have not been well exercised. A good developing exercise for the neck is to let the head lie back as far as possible on the shoulders, then roll slowly from one shoulder to the other. The hands should be immersed

One of the most practical pillows for the car are those with the adjustable leather slip covers. They come in all colors, are fringed, have a diagonal pocket for a light robe on the outside and have snap catches to hold the pil-low in. The down pillow may have a white case or be covered in dark ma-terial to use with the leather case or without it. There is another model in a tan Scotch cheviot that is also lined to the waist. It is loose except for the belt that holds it to the figure at the back. It has large metal buttons and deep pockets.

There is a folding hat case that may be attached to the rail which is a great convenience, for when it is not in use it is quite flat and out of the way and when needed it will hold two hats secure from dust while the com-fort of the soft automobile bonnet is enloved.

For men, there is nothing more use-ful than the ragian model coats of Scotch cheviot in the brown and gray mixtures. They have leather buttons to match and button close at the throat if needed.

The cold luncheon basket is quite a favorite for short trips where only a light luncheon will be required. It contains a sandwich case and a va-cum bottle only, and is small enough not to be in the way.

The new double wrist purses of Rus-sian velour are quite nice for automo-bile shopping, as they do not slip off the lap like a bag, but are attached to the wrist by a chain. They have two compartments and come in sever-al colors.

Motor cars can be advertised, with a marked degree of success, in publica-tions of national circulation, but local newspaper advertising is the force that is needed to concentrate the interest of The English walking hats of white straw with black facings and fancies seem to have come to stay. They are very becoming to nearly all types of faces. respective buyers on the dealer right tere at home.

A new fetish for the car that is hav-ing its popular run just now is the carved ivory elephant. It comes in all sizes and is supposed to bring great wisdom to the owners of the car that carry it. It teaches the driver never to cross a bridge or other passage be-fore he tests it to see if it will hold the weight of the machine, as caution is one of the strongest traits of the beast. the mark. The car that aims to be a success must, of course, build up a na-tional reputation, and that means na-tional advertising. On the other hand, the mational advertising must be crys-tallized into local interest, and to do that and focus the power of the na-tional publications on the dealer re-quires space in the newspapers. Suppose, for example, you read an alluring automobile advertisement in one of your weekly or monthly maga-zines and you are interested to the point of promising yourself to look that car up. Four or five days or a week slip by and you've done nothing -perhaps because you had no idea where to go to see the cat. Tou open your newspaper some morning-or where to go to see the car. You open your, newspaper some morning-or evening-and there is an advertisement of the same car. It gives the name of the dealer, his street address-even his telephone number. Your waning in-terest is revived when you learn where the car can be inspected. We won't say the newspaper closes the sales-but if it takes you to the door of the sales-room, it has done its work and done it well. The rest is up to the sales-man inside, but his way has been smoothed-first by the national, then by the local newspaper advertising.

The Iudhope

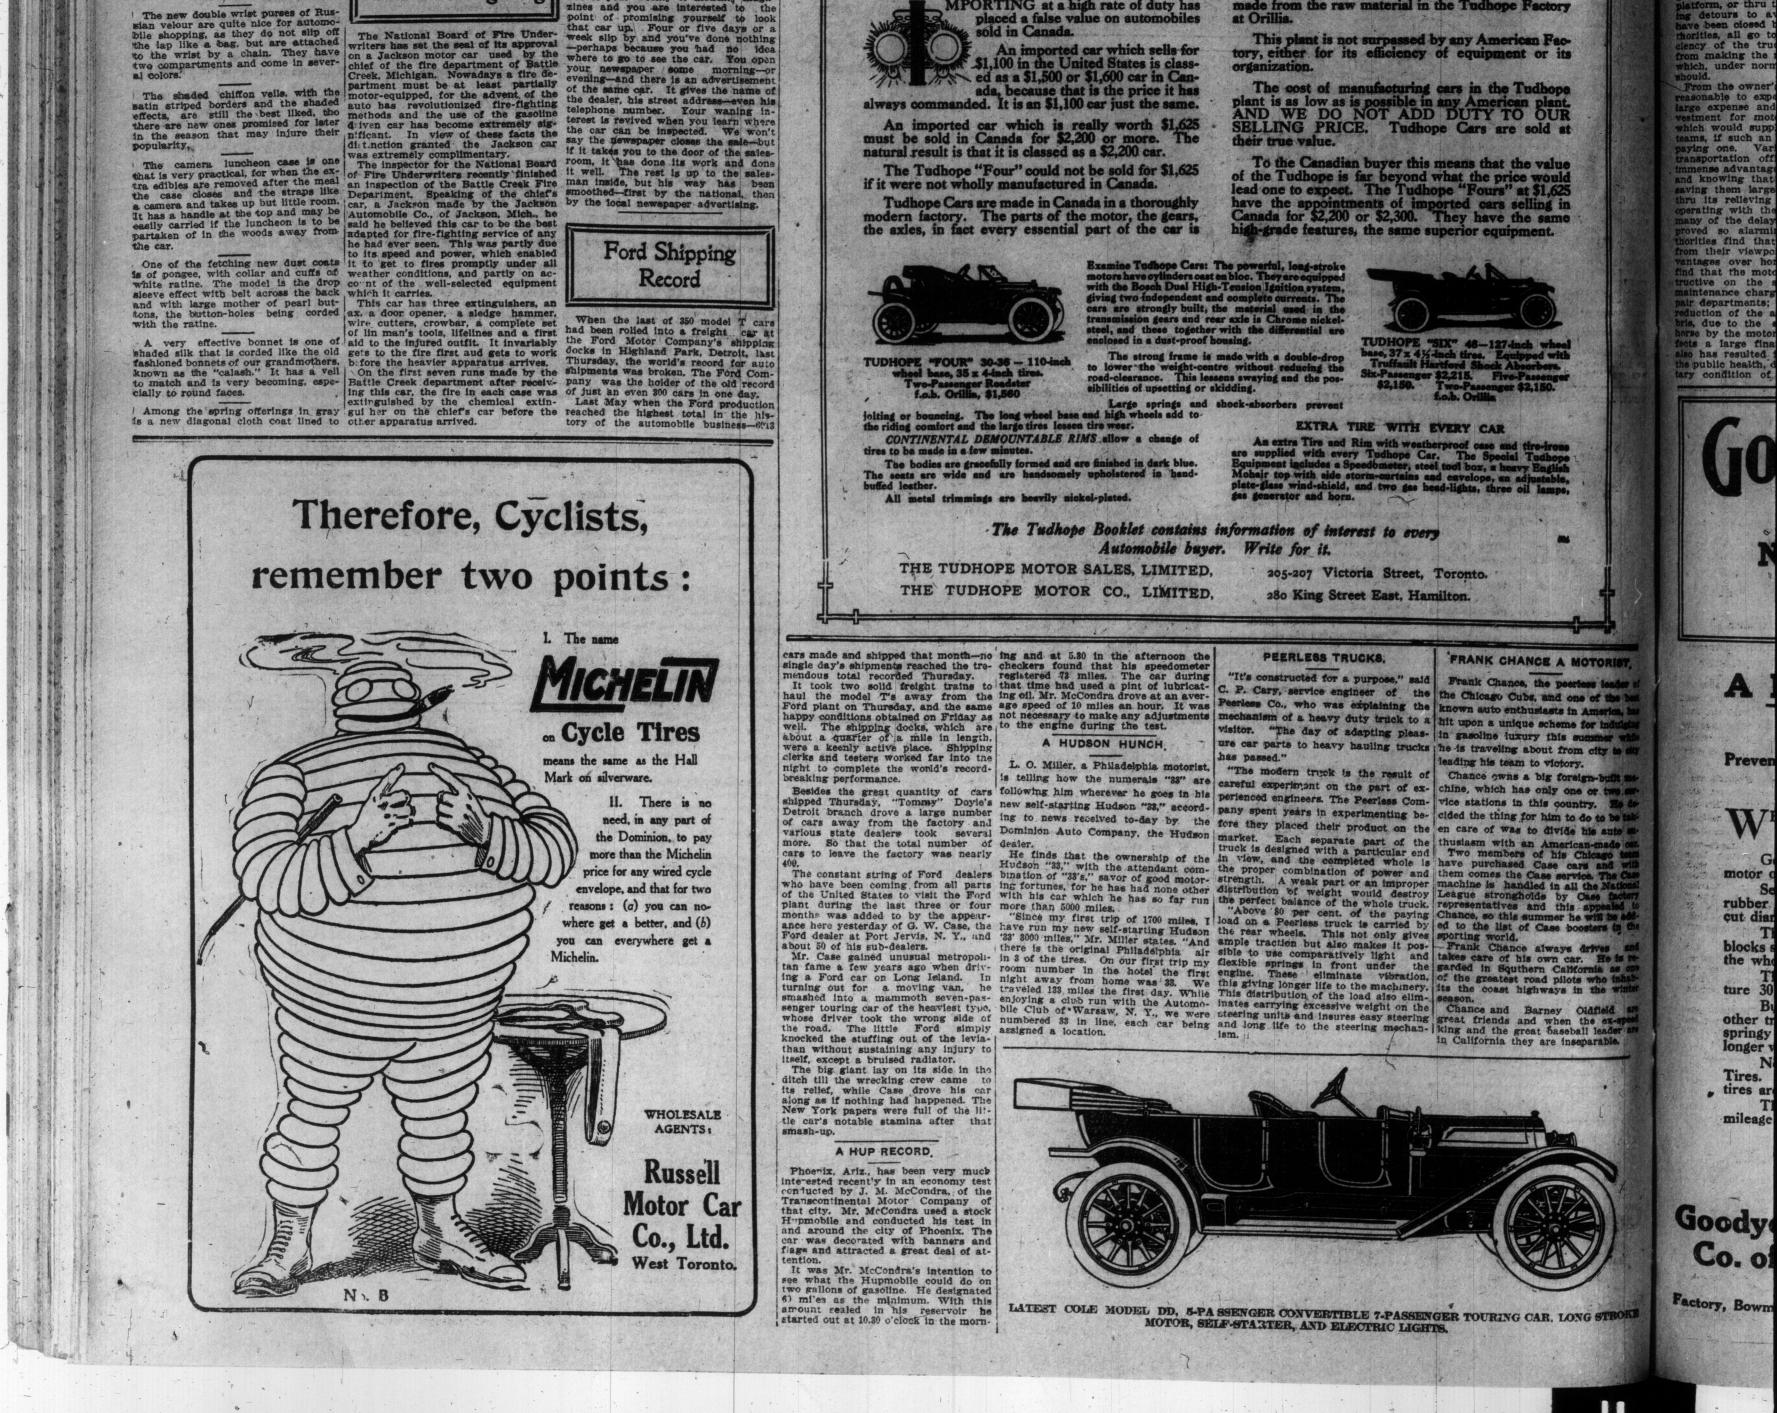

MPORTING at a high rate of duty has placed a false value on automobiles sold in Canada.

An imported car which sells for $1,100 in the United States is class-ed as a $1,500 or $1,600 car in Can-ada, because that is the price it has always commanded. It is an $1,100 car just the same.

An imported car which is really worth $1,625 must be sold in Canada for $2,200 or more. The natural result is that it is classed as a $2,200 car.

The Tudhope "Four" could not be sold for $1,625 if it were not wholly manufactured in Canada.

Tudhope Cars are made in Canada in a thoroughly modern factory. The parts of the motor, the gears, the axles, in fact every essential part of the car is made from the raw material in the Tudhope Factory at Orillia.

TIRES

WHEN you buy tires, look to the construction of your treads. To get a tread that grips the road is not enough.

Get one that is alive, - one that will not shake the motor out of adjustment.

See how the Goodyear Tread has added the clinging rubber blocks without deadening the tire. Deep blocks, cut diamond shape, with air spaces between them.

The angles and edges hold in every direction. The blocks spread out and distribute the weight of the car over the whole tread.

The extra thickness reduces the danger of puncture 30%.

But here is where the Goodyear differs from any other tread. It is perfectly resilient. The tire is just as springy as a plain tread tire and has the advantages of longer wear, fewer punctures, and freedom from skidding.

Non-Skid-Treads are vulcanized on to No-Rim-Cut Tires. These tires cannot rim-cut, and 23% of wrecked tires are due to rim-cutting.

They are 10% oversize—that adds 25% to the tiremileage.

Why is the FORD MODEL T so much more practical and economical that 80,000 value-comparing buyers selected it in prefer ence to all other makes of cars? Because of its exclusive features, because it was a H enry Ford car backed with a Ford guarantee and built throughout of Vanadium st eel-that wonderful metal, which after heattreatment by special Ford process is best in giving strength and power to resist shock and vibration.

The genius of Henry Ford built the Ma gneto into the flywheel, as an integral part of the motor, compelling ignition sparks with every turn of the flywheel.

The Ford Spring Suspension is so unique as to allow correct distribution of weight, guaranteeing easier riding qualities by receiving and absorbing shocks at greatest distance from passengers. Also greatly saving the wear of the car from rough roads.

Its great economy is proved by the car's averaging 25 to 30 miles on a gallon of gasoline and 5,000 to 8,000 miles on one set of tires.

These features and many more, showing the same Ford genius, are not found on any other car except those bearing the name of Ford. You know the quality mark. See the FORD MODEL T cars. They have been called a liberal education in simplified mechanics. They will help you in business and add to your pleasures. Do not delay your order, the demand is world-wide, so order early and enjoy yourself.

New York's Probation System Works; Would Be Good Thing for Ontario

By JAMES P. HAVERSON. Over in Buffalo there is, s you man doing work for that city and for Erie County, N. Y. in which it is situated which is badly needed for Toronto and Ontario. He is Edwin J. Cooley, County Probation Officer. He is a big. oung man with big ideas and ideals. He is just twenty-six years of age and has been on the job for three years, since its creation and he has made good against big obstacles, not to say obstruction.

Mr. Cooley says that the extension of probation to adult offenders has come up from the children's courts and has and is still having tough struggle, but is maintaining its position at the head of criminal reclamations and studying hard and working nights to stay there.

This young man is large, kindly and quiet but he has the blood of the fightng Irish in his veins and when anything, man or institution bumps into his work, the saving of the offender from the stigma of "jajlbird," that red blood mounts to his face right up to the roots of his red hair and there is something doing right off the bat. His job has grown in three years from an office without office room into a comfortably fitted establishment with a comfortably fitted establishment with two deputies and several clerks. The, records of his work show that in the three years since its creation, the of-fice has amply justified its existence and like offices are being established in various cities of his and other states. Needs Careful Handling. Mr. Cooley, as do all the descipies of the modern school of criminal preven-tion and reclamation, believes that the moment a man is placed behind prison bars and clothed in prison strings

s removed. If he has no work, work s found for him, for the idea that Sa-tan is busy finding employment for die hands is the very root of the theory of probation.

Cooley now has a long list of employ-ers of every kind who are willing and eager to employ his probationers and who are diligent in helping on the work of human salvage. So large has this feature of the work become that he has been frequently able to find jobs for those who do not come to him thru the courts, but are in need of em-ployment.

ployment. The State of New York is now as is Ontario, in the throes of evolving a solution for a consistent and compre-hensive plan for dealing with her ment-al defectives. These are a source of sadness to this large hearted young man who sees these mental children with the bodies of men slipping daily thru his fingers to be horded with crim-inals whose tendencies they must im-bibe and lose whatever chance even of timited usefulness and good could have been theirs. been theirs.

Employment of Criminals.

As a great and bountiful biprody probation in addition to its prime ed to the ranks of the enemies of so-clety. Cooley regards the fact that the earnings of the man are saved for his family when he has oner. He feels that this is no small part of the work and is continually urging the useful and remunerative employment of criminals so that this may be applied to the sup-port of their families while they are confined. If confined they must be, which he is reluctant to admit except in rare cases, or which may be siven to the man at the end of his term so that he may not be turned out naked into the world with an added urge to re-turn to crime from the very present Erie County, N. UYING a motor truck is like hiring a man. You are not interested in the color of his eyes, the tilt of his nose, or his height and weight.

You want to know what this man has done and what he can do.

Just so with the motor truck.

It's what a truck will do that interests you.

Price alone sells few trucks. It's what you "get for the money" that sells them. In other words value. Four things determine value in a truck.

One of them is good design. The only sure way to tell good design is by results.

If a truck is not well designed the owner soon knows. If it is well designed, and if he can use more trucks in his business, he buys more of the same make-naturally.

Thus you may judge a truck by the number of repeat orders or reorders.

In the case of the Alco Truck 62 per cent, were purchased on repeat orders. Ninetenths of this number are in the service of firms and corporations listed in Bradstreet's at over $1,000,000.

Before purchasing, many of these large firms carried on extensive experiments to determine which motor truck was best. If only one Alco had been purchased by each of these concerns, its place among motor trucks would be clear. But each of these bought more than one. The American Expiess Company has 40; the Gulf Refining Company 16;

Gimbel Brothers 15; the Long Island Express

Company 10; and so en. Among some the Alco has been accepted as the standard-all future purchases will be

The second point on which value depends is the experience of the manufacturer.

Good design means little unless experience in building is back of it. The thing to know is "how long has the manufacturer been building trucks." "What does the manufacturer know about the problems of transportation?"

For the American Locomotive Company, builders of the Alco Truck, the experience began in 1905. The Alco Truck was marketed in 1908. The experience of the American Locomotive Company in problems of transpor-tation dates back to 1885 as movers of the world's goods.

The problems of the locomotive and the problems of the motor truck are parallel. One is a power driven vehicle running on rails. The other a power driven vehicle running without rails.

The experience of the American Locomo-tive Company, as builders of the Alco Truck, is rare.

Value is again determined in the way the truck is built.

Little does it matter how well a truck is designed if it is not well built. It becomes a consideration of factory and factory equipment.

The Alco factory represents a very large investment in equipment. In it are built 95 per cent. of the parts of the Alco-Truck. It has the most complete heat treating plant of any motor truck factory in the world. It has large chemical and physical laboratories to analyze and test the metals that go into the Alco Truck. In special and sutomatic machinery the investment is particularly large. Many of the tools are not tools in the ordinary sense of the word, but are fine instruments—like those of a surgeon—and are kept in fiannel when not

In this factory is the largest drop hammer in the world. It weighs $50,000 pounds.

The fourth consideration in determining value-and one that is most decisive-is the responsibility of the manufacturer.

The safest thing in the world to buy is reputation. Buying a truck from a manufacturer without rep-utation or responsibility is like making a loan without security.

The American Locomotive Company is capitalized at $50,000,000. It dates back to 1835 as movers of the world's goods. It has built 50,009 locomotives. Its reputation is indelible.

These four considerations-Good Design, the Experience of the Manufacturer, Good Building and the Responsibility of the Manufacturerprovide an "acid test" for judging & motor truck.

There are a few trucks that can stand this test.

Of these the Alco Truck is one. You should investigate the Alco for one vital reason, if for no other: -the latent experience-of its builders in manufacturing power driven vehicles.

Write for an appointment.

The fun was that the standard "Scot-land for the Scots" had to be saluted by a Loadoner, Mr. McKinnon Wood, on behalf of the government, and tho many doughty Scotch Liberals kept out of the way the majority voted for a motion favoring Scotch home rule. These after-dinner motions raise what are called academic discussion; they are expressions of opinion and lead nowhere. Still it was made clear that Mr. McKinnon Wood, as secre-tary for Scotland, went the whole hog as a Scotch home ruler during the St. Rollox election-and the bottom that when they got office there would be a splendid saving of money. caller, who has come out on his own, he finds welcome on the mat in great big letters. Both the provincial and Dominion governments, hold out the hand of welcome at the door, which is the Union Station.

There he will find Dominion Immigration Agent G. L. Stewart, and Provincial Immigration Agent J. M. Clark, ready, to show him to his room so to say, not forgetting to see that he has the location best suited to his talents and temperament. The helping hand is extended to all, but it is the farmer who" is the honored guest. He is to go on the land and make it fruitful, and what this country has in greatest sbunr dance just now is land awaiting the hand of the cultivator. It is the settlement and cultivation that this country needs before all else.

To this end Sir James Whitney's government is annually spending thousands of dollars in three ways. The agents of the government are sent to Britain and other countries to set before the farmers of the old lands of Europe the advantages offered to men of their talents in the new country. Canada, and particularly in Ontario. Much money ' used helping the farmer to come to the land of promise. wh one-half of his fare is advanced as a sort of first instalme fulfilment. Then the third expenditure is to keep up coming and conducting force, who receive the incoming in migrants, and immediately send them out to the farmers who have turned in applications for help.

There are many thousands of such applications find their way to the offices of the Dominion and provincial agents, and vast as has been the stream of immigrants flowing in each year, the supply of such labor has never even come close to supplying the demand. A few years ago the farmer was offering only a season's work, and then turning loose the "hired man" over the winter, when his wages and keep exceeded the value of his labor, but now labor of this description is so scarce that the farmer is generally willing to keep his man over the lean months, so that he may be on hand for the sowing and the harvest.

Dominion Agent Stewart is not a young man on the outside. His hair is gray, and so is his moustache, and his experience is ripe and melow, but out of his eyes twinkles the spirit of youth, which is strong and vigorous within him. He is in charge of the local immigration service, and he understands thoroly that that is what it is and should be, a service. His whole intention and effort is to the end, that the service may live up to its name and serve, not one here and there, not the rich and powerful, but first, last, and all the time, it must serve the great bulk of common immigrants for whose service it was designed, so that they may be assimilated to the new land and serve it as only a good, same and healthy immigration can.

When the bewildered newcomer is dumped out of the train at the Union Station, he and his fellows resemble nothing so much as a dumb driven herd of cattle. The mixed and motley mob has no direction, and no articulate general or individual Intention. They are worn weary and stupid from long travel and unaccustomed surroundings. They are met by a tall and commanding figure in a blue uniform. He is there to help them and has not said three words to any of them before they are convinced of his willingness and ability to render them the service which they need most in this new land, the service of honest and intelligent guidance.

When the immigrant arrives in Toronto he has already passed the scrutiny at the port of entry. He has passed thru a long passage where it has been ascertained that he has two arms, two legs, a voice, two eyes, and is not affected with any contagious or disabiling disease, the signs of which are apparent upon his person. He has arrived at the stage where he is regarded as a known asset to the country, and the proposition has become the placing of him where he will be of the greatest service to himself and to the community.

If he is a mechanic or city laborer he may be helped in many minor ways, and has at his command in either the Dominion or provincial office a ready, reliable, courteous and inexpensive information office and reference library. The men of both services are self-revealing railway time-tables, and hotel and lodging-house guides. You don't have to search thru columns of mixed, mingled and unintelligible figures. You ask when your train leaves, or where to stay, and the man will tell when, where and how to get there.

There is much of comedy and tragedy to be seen in either the soons of the Canadian Immigration Service at the Union Station, or those of the province across the road from it in Front-street. There are seen the raw material of citizenship. When the man comes in he is questioned, and, if he is among those who are sent out or come out to supply the constant and crying need for farm labor, he is fitted to a place much the same as shoes are fitted to your feet in a shoe store. Then he is sent on to his job if there is a train going out that day. If not he is usually directed to the Newcomers' Inn in Peterstreet, or to the British Welcome League. There he is kept at little cost unth he makes the next and last step to his destina-

Sometimes, while the rush is on, which is just now, and lasts until the end of the summer, the accommodation at both the hostelries is pretty crowded, but then they become regular Meccas for the exchange of hopes, confidences and regrets. The spirit of optimism lingers about them for the most part, and a fine prospect and a high heart are almost necessary products of a stay within their walls.

M:. Stewart says that the vultures of the "white slave trade" hover all about the station, but that in his years of enperience he has found little or nothing to indicate that the trade is organized in the sense that the material is shipped from an agent in Europe to any definite agent here. He says that it opperates more as the chan e picking up of likely subjects from among the unclassified horde that pours in continually. Nevertheless this, as are the other branches of the work is

from an already laid and planned diversion from right character The immigration is a great service, which has to deal with perhaps the greatest work that a building country has to do. Its object is to exclude the material which cannot be converted to the use and benefit of nation building and then to see that the raw materials which have been appraised as worthy are placed raw materials which have been appraised as worthy are placed where they will do the most good. It is a great and worthy ser-vice, and best of all, those who are engaged in directing and carrying it out, realize that it is a service, and that as honest worthy servants of a good and worthy cause, they are winning thru to the highest regard, the knowledge of work, well and truly done to the benefit of all the land.

Many of the common birds follow Jennie Wren's example and bring forth a second or third family in the same nest, providing their eggs or young have in no way been molested. They, too, always reline the nest after the first brood is able to fly. Your little favorite, the brown song sparrow, who sings the first sweet motes you hear in the springtime from snow-tipped fence-rail or ice-ulad ced-ar, is more particular. The biography of the late Sir Charles Dilke, now in preparation, contains much hitherto recent English political nistory of the Disraeli and Gladstone epoch and later vears. Sir Charles, in spite of the great social mistoriume which put him out of the running as an acknowledged leader of the Liberal party, was, never-theless, a vital figure in public life until the very end of his career. There have been many storles of his relations with Joseph Chamber ain; early in life and later on, in the era of Mr. Chamberlam's ascendancy. It is said that the letters to and from Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Cham-berlain to be included in this work are voluminous and piquant. In this book he endeavors to demonstrate that re-mission is the influence which will save woman from treading the narrow path. Laura, the daughter of a middle-class English family, marries a soldier and goes to make her home with him in In-dia. There she is cast into the way of temptation, and the author gives us the rather unusual and seemingly in-consistent situation of a maa making was—to save her from another man, a bad man. Laura falls in love with her good friend and actually tells him so, but he makes matters right by ex-plaining why he had been so friendly towards her and then referring her to the consolations of religion. Goldsmith's essays dealing with female wariors. Goldsmith evidently thought Boadicea, Joar of Arc and the ladies of Dahomey unworthy of mention, and so he proceeded: All the world has heard of the nations of Amazons, who inhabited the bank of the river Thermodon, in Cappadocia, who ex-pelled their men by force of arms, defended themselves by their own prowess, managed the reins of govern-ment, prosecuted the operations of war, and heid the other sex in the utmost contempt. We are informed by Homer, in the Pontheslies, Queen of the Ama-zons, acted as auxiliary to Prian and fell valiantly fighting in his cause be-fire the walls of Troy. Mintus Curtius tells us that Thalestris brought one hundred armed Amazons as a present to Alexander the Great. Piodorus Siculus expressly says, there was a nation of female warriors in Affica, whe fought of termse and son farther than our own age and country to prove that the spirit and constitution of the fair sex are equal to the dangers and faitgues of war. in the United Kingdom. Prosperity smiled on Lloyd's under-writers, and other branches of insurance besides that pertaining to ship-ping and maritime affairs were entered upon. A wave of speculation spread over the country in the early years of the eighteenth century, and the gambling spirit of the period was made the most of by the enterprising nsurance body in Lombard-street. Anything and everything found ready aceptance as a risk for insurance. The lives of kings, statesmen, celebrities, and even criminals were gambled upon in an amazing manner, and thousands of pounds often hung on the death of men of position, who accordingly ran considerable risk of premature extinction by the hand of the assassin. To such an extent, indeed, did this craze for indiscriminate and wholesale wagering of money grow that, in the interests of the nation, parliament was at last compelled to intervene, and the famous gambling act, which still remains in force, was passed. The cru-cical point in this measure is to the effect that no person may wager money against a certain event unless he ossesses an interest which will be materially affected by the occurrence of that event.

Funting the Garden of Eden the North Pole!

Professor Garrett P. Serviss Tells Why an Expedition Bound Now for Mysterious Crocker Land May Find in the Once Tropical Arctic the Birthplace of the Human Race.

By Prof. Garrett P. Serviss.

AR more interesting than any mere finding of those imaginary mathematical points called the poles of the earth's axis, is the object of an expedition which is to leave New York next Summer on a dash for the frozen Arctic. Backed by the American Museum of Natural History, the American Geographical Society, and Yale Uni-versity, and led by George Borup and Donald MacMillan, both of whom were with Perry on his last voyage, this expedition aims to explore the last, and perhaps the greatest, land of mystery that the round world contains.

The unrivalled importance o their search may be indicated by the statement that the land the, seek may prove to be the true site of that "terrestrial Eden" of which may has dreamed for ages, an which from time immemorial he which, from time immemorial, he has endeavored in vain to locate. In ancient literature it was known as the "Hyperborian Land," and 2.500 years ago old Pindar sang of it and its seekers:

"Neither by taking ship Nor by any travel on foot To the Hyperborian Land Shalt thou find the wondrous way.'

American enterprise may now find that way, nevertheless.

Many readers may never chave heard of this strange land, for its existence has only been known for the past five or six years, and the eyes of only one white man are known ever to have rested upon its distant outline, the eyes of Peary, when, in July, 1906, he peered with his glass from Cape Thomas Hubbard, the northernmost point of one of the islands lying north of the North American mainland, and saw its snowclad peaks gleaming above the shimmering horizon of eternal ar away so Harris, in effect, said to the adventurers in the far north: "Look in this place, north of America and Siberia, and you will find a new land." And in both cases those who looked saw what had been predicted.

This wonderful resemblance goes still farther. Leverrier and Adams were able to predict the size of the were able to predict the size of the unseen planet, and so Harris has been able to predict the probable size of Crocker Land. He thinks, from its influence on the direction and force of the tidal waves, that and force of the tidal waves, that it may cover an area of 500,000 square miles. That is about as large as the whole of the New England Middle. Atlantic Coast and Gulf States (with the exception of Texas) put together. It may be that the whole of the mysterious area concerned may not be covered by land, but that it may consist of a great archipelago, many of whose a great archipelago, many of whose islands, however, must be of large

This may be the true "Atlantis," that continent of mystery of which Plato told the legend, and which was fabled to 1 we sunk beneath the sea, with all its millions of inhabitants and all its treasures of antique civilization. The old traditions frequently connected the fabled land of the Hyperborians with Atland of the Hyperborians with At-lantis. In this case the glittering peaks which Peary glimpsed may be all that now remains above the sea level of the original home of the level of the original home of the human race. Many times the effort has been made to prove that the most ancient legends and traditions contained in the literatures of all nations, from the Chinese and the Hindoos to the Greeks, can best be explained upon the supposition that they all refer to a time when the human race dwelt in the far north, within the Arctic circle, and in the immediate neighborhod of the North Pole. The neighborhod of the North Pole. The most curious proof of this is found in the fact that the old legends seem to indicate that in the beginning men saw the heavenly bodies remen saw the heavenly bodies re-volving around them in a horizontal direction, as they would appear to do to a person situated in the neighborhood of the Pole. There, instead of rising and setting every day, the sun, moon and stars simply move round and round the sky with the rotation of the earth on its axis. There the heavenly bodies rise and set only once a year, and six months of daylight is followed by six months of night. Dr. W. F. Warren has shown that ancient tradiyear seems only as a day." tions refer to such a condition of things as being familiar to the earliest men, before they emigrated from the birth land of their race toward the equator. Anaxagoras, an ancient. Greek astronomer, has a singular passage, in which he says: "In the beginning the stars revolved in a photograph of the actual leg of a mammoth which roamed about Siberia ages ago when that now frozen country and the extreme North had a tropical climate. I will be seen that even the skin

The first diagram shows the location of the probable first continent, the seat of life millions of years ago, when the moon circled around the earth once in three days, when 600 feet high swept the planet, which was covered in a blanket of heat conserving clouds. The second diagram shows the earliest movement of the earth at the time of the Polar Continent. The planet swung in a wide circle like a top, giving the northern half almost perpetual Summer. The centre sphere shows how it has steadled to a nearly upright motion, its slight oscillation reducing the intense cold of the Arctie nights.

The third diagram shows how in ages to come, the earth, revolving slowly, will turn with its North Pole directly toward the sun. When this happens the Arctic will again be torrid, will have perpetual daylight and be an uninhabitable desert. The Southern Hemisphere will be a frigid, uninhabitable region of perpetual night-Life will only be possible within the narrow belt between daylight and night, marked Temperate.

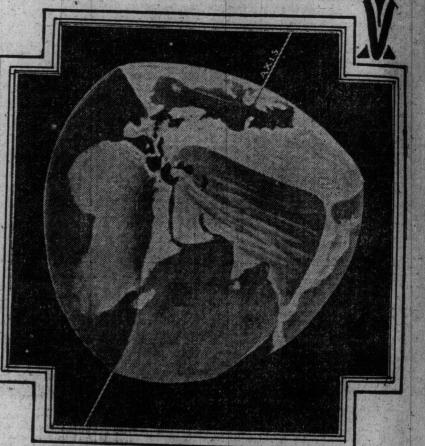

its character and abundance, have been found. All these things indicate a vast change of climate, before which the far north was not only habitable, but was the abode of a very rich fauna and flora. At that time Crocker Land may have been inhabited by now vanished races, from which, nevertheless, some of our existing races may have sprung. Whence came the Esquimaux?

Nobody has ever been able to settle that question. Haunting the north, loving the cold, unable to resist the destructive influences of life in more southern regions, they may be the degraded descendants of an original race which flourished under far superior conditions in the remote past, when Crocker Land enjoyed a genial climate. For some unknown reason they remained in the north after the invacion of ice and cold began, and gradually accustomed themselves to life under Arctic conditions, while other representatives of their kind fied southward, and developed into the present inhabitants of the great continents.

But the question arises: "What brought about the great change?" brought about the great change?" Some have sought to find an answer in the theory that the axis of the earth has shifted, so that its poles of rotation are no longor situated where they once were. But this theory has always seemed to me un-tenable. We know that the earth is not a perfect sphere, but is flattened at the poles. Its diameter is about twenty-six mlles shorter through the poles than through the equator the poles than through the equator. We also know the cause of this. of this It is due to the rotation of the earth on its axis. In consequence of that rotation a so-called centrifugal force exists, tending to cause the body of dreds, of millions of years, we find that the basis of the great oceans were situated practically just where exists, tending to cause the body of the earth to bulge round the equa-tor, where the force is greatest, and to draw in at the poles, where there is no centrifugal tendency. More-over the amount of flattening of the earth at the poles is just about as they are to-day, and that the continents were emerging and forming on the areas which they at present occupy. The changes of land to sea and of sea to land, which we know great as it ought to be with its mean density and its known rate of rota-tion. There can be little doubt that to have occurred in the past, were due not to a breaking up of the whole the the body of the earth was yet in a molten or viscid state. At that time it would be too hot to be habitcrust of the planet, such as a great change in the axis of rotation would have implied, but to upheavals and subsidences of the lands and the ocean beds. able by either plants or animals. northwest. The name of Crocker Land has been bestowed upon this mysterious resion. Peary made no attempt to reach it, for the aim of his expedition, the North Pole, lay in a different direction.

The discovery of Crocker Land bears a striking resemblance to that of the most distant planet of the solar system, Neptune, for the location of both was found by calculation before either had actually been seen. Astronomers discovered Neptune because of its attraction upon the next most distant planet Uranus. Dr. R. A. Harris, of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, similarly discovered the ex istence of Crocker Land by its in fluence upon the tidal currents of the Arctic Sea, and just as Leverrier said to the gazers in the observa tories, "Look at this point in the sky and you will see a new planet,'

All these considerations lend a scientific and romantic interest to the new expedition which makes it unique in the history of exploration. unique in the history of exploration. The explorers, if they actually suc-ceed in reaching Crocker Land, will remain there as long as possible, and, armed with the most recent means and methods of investigation, they will unveil its history, if such a thing is humanly possible. Upon their return, in about two years, they may be able to tell us that, at last, the secret of the Land of the Hy-perboreans has been discovered. perboreans has been discovered, thus connecting the world of today than it has to-day.
