Development of the Coal Business in St. John. HUGE COAL POCKET Constructed for the Dominion Coal Company at the End of North Wharf...

There are many evidences in and about the city which show clearly that St. John is not going behind in points of commercial development.

The building was commenced on August 10, and it is expected, will be completed in operation by the first of November.

The structure measures 200 feet long, 30 feet wide and 20 feet high, from the wharf line. The substructure consists of a modern framework of No. 1 yellow pine...

ARE THESE MACHINES SAFELY OPERATED?

They Are Scattered Over the City and Are Said to Have Caused Two Fires by Gasolene Explosion.

The Times yesterday called attention to the fact that a fire which caused considerable damage and might have caused much more was said to have resulted from a gasolene explosion in a Chinese laundry...

It is alleged that when yesterday morning's fire occurred the laundryman was filling the gasolene feed can while the roller was hot, and the explosion resulted.

WANT MURDER MADE LEGAL

Texans Ask Their Governor to Permit Mob Punishment of Negroes Who Assault Women.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Houston, Tex., says: A petition from a number of citizens, headed by G. W. Knight, has been presented to Governor Leake...

being emptied of her entire cargo in ten hours at a cost for labor of from ten to twelve dollars, or about three-quarters of a cent per ton.

In addition, to the above mentioned pockets will be a small portable pocket weighing only a few pounds and capable of weighing coal in small quantities to tags and small vessels in the harbor for coaling, being so arranged as to admit of coaling at any stage of the tide.

The floor of the building is constructed at an angle of 45 degrees, that the coal may flow freely from the pocket. The structure is sheathed with yellow pine having fourteen windows on either side, in the mansard roof.

Mr. Underwood has employed all local workmen, of whom he speaks in the highest terms as regards energy and diligence in taking hold of a class of work that is entirely new to most of them.

The motive power used in raising the structure is a gasoline engine of five horse power, costing at a maximum 40 cents a day for fuel and incidental repairs.

ESSAY ON THE HORSE

Here is a Bombay student's essay upon the horse: "The horse is a very noble quadruped, but when he is angry he will trample on you as fast as he could."

This has been a very busy season with Lord Barker of the Ben Lomond House. Besides a large number of guests for the summer he has quite a number of those in charge of the waterworks on Mooney's section.

It is said there is one also on Brunson street, and that one will be put in on Union street. It is further stated that several other laundries have these machines, and that it is time the fire underwriters some cognizance of the fact, in the interests of adjacent property holders, and their own as well.

W. TREMAINE GARD TESTIFIES TO VALUE OF MANUAL TRAINING

A Course in the McDonald Schools Proved of Vast Benefit to His Son, Who Could Not Graduate from High School—Would Favor Its Introduction Here.

Much has been written about the theory of manual training, but there is a practical illustration of what a course of this kind can accomplish right here in St. John.

Louis Tremaine Gard, son of W. Tremaine Gard, the well known lawyer, has completed a year's course in the McDonald consolidated schools and passed with honors in his various studies.

Speaking of his son's success Mr. Gard pointed out to Mr. Gard, when he endeavored to see if some arrangement could be made for Louis to continue his course in the high school and drop those studies which he did not see the benefit of for a career such as he had decided on, namely that of electrical engineer or mechanic in some form, that he could not get a diploma unless he passed in all branches of study, and that it would be impossible to drop any of the subjects.

Mr. Gard therefore determined to send him to a school where he could learn something that would be of more benefit to him in his chosen line of work.

In a letter received recently from the principal of the school he speaks in the highest praise of the work and studies of the young man. The subjects that he did not like and could not get on at all, but his talents were developed in the manual training department.

Tuberculosis Congress Vehemently Advocates Discontinuance of Osculation—Discriminated as "an Unpleasant Custom."

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—A special telegram to the Sun says that among the various anti-plague measures discussed at the International Tuberculosis Congress, the one most vehemently advocated was the discontinuance of osculation.

Prof. F. P. O'Brien, the distinguished and famous Canadian physician, who presided at the meeting, declared that it was "an unpleasant custom."

ACCIDENT TO THE POKONOKET

Star Liner Struck the Rocks While Going Through the Falls.

The Star Line steamer Pokonoket met with an accident when coming through the falls this morning from Lower Cove ship, which she had been undergoing repairs.

The vessel was struck by the rocks, starting the pumps and causing some leakage. The pumps were set to work and she is now lying at the May Queen wharf and will be taken back through the falls as soon as possible.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien intend to announce their marriage to the public in the near future.

The New Freeman is a weekly paper published in St. John, N. B., and is edited by Mr. O'Brien.

It is not generally known that in the Chipman House, head of Chipman Hill, there is a spring of water which has been in use for over one hundred years.

THE MEANEST WOMAN

Miss Caroline Powell, of Boston, is a wood engraver, a pupil of Timothy Cole, and at a dinner recently she said to her mother:

"Mr. Cole had a horror of stingy persons. He was continually railing against such people, continually pointing out to me glaring examples of meanness and greed."

"He said one day that he had heard that morning of one of the meanest women in the world."

BACK FROM THE YUKON

Robert Chestnut, of Fredericton, is Home on a Visit After an Absence of Six Years.

FREDERICTON, N. B., Oct. 7 (Special)—Robert Chestnut, who has been in the Klondike for the past six years, arrived home Tuesday to visit his father, Henry Chestnut, and expects to remain for the winter.

Miss Bell Bignold, an employee of the Barber House, suffered a stroke of paralysis last night and was today admitted to the Victoria Hospital.

The Hon. Charles D. O'Brien, Esq., is here today searching for a farm upon which to establish a home for orphan children.

In the police court this morning two drunks were fined $4 each.

Joseph Landry was arrested last night by Sergeant Baxter charged with lying and lurking in the vicinity of Charlotte street and Queen street.

ADMIRALTY COURT

$175,000 FOR SERVANTS (London Mail).

According to the will of the late Major Gen. Frederic George Nathall, who recently died in his home, Clarence Place, Newport, England, £35,000 is bequeathed to his servants as follows:

It is impossible to convey in words any idea of the difficulty they have encountered at Elderslie Brook and the Dry Lake. An enormous amount of rock blasting had to be done in the bottom of a deep trench, and they were greatly troubled by water.

HELD BY POLICE ON AWFUL CHARGE

TOGO WILL GO ON TOUR Japanese Admiral and Squadron to Visit English and American Waters.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—According to a cablegram from London to the American, Admiral Togo, with his squadron of the best ships in the Japanese navy will visit Europe and American waters some time next year.

According to latest reports from Tokyo the Japanese government believes that Japan's position in the family of nations will be strengthened by the appearance abroad of the magnificent sea fighting machine and their crews which have accomplished such successes in the war just ended.

Mr. Gard says he has greatly enjoyed reading the views of other citizens on the question, which were published in the Times recently, and adds his testimony to aid in this laudable object for the benefit of the rising generation.

THE G. T. P. ROUTE Chairman Parent, of the G. T. P. Commission, speaking in Halifax, said that there need be no rivalry between Halifax and Montreal.

Mr. Melrose, according to the Chronicle report, examined the body of the girl, declared that there was not the slightest doubt that she had been criminally treated.

EQUITY COURT

PLENTY MORE (From the Brooklyn Eagle).

Little Miss Tuffet was trundling a baby carriage in which sat her brother, maybe 2 years old, up Cleverland street the other day. Miss Tuffet is maybe 7, and a little mother. Another Miss Tuffet, with another baby carriage and another baby in it, came alongside of No. 1 and challenged her to a race.

Mr. McArthur stated that he had about 225 men at work, and he considers that they have done remarkably well to get the work in the rock ledge and Dry Lake and quicksand sections as far advanced as they have.

DEATH OF YOUNG GIRL

Ten Year Old Irene Klokow Died Under Suspicious Circumstances at Her Home—She Was Maltreated and Poisoned—Hart Says He Has Done No Wrong.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Dr. Oliver B. Hart, a young physician residing in the suburb of Rogers Park, is in the custody of the police pending further investigation of the death of Irene Klokow, 10 years old, which occurred yesterday in the residence of the physician.

The girl died in a bedroom of the Hart residence in which she and the physician had been located for several hours. It is the opinion of the authorities, based on the facts disclosed at the inquest that the girl was maltreated and then poisoned in an attempt to conceal the crime.

Police Inspector Wheeler subjected Dr. Hart to an exhaustive examination in the effort to secure from him a statement of the occurrences in the house during the afternoon. But the physician insisted throughout that the girl was not murdered, that he did not harm her and that he did not attempt to commit suicide.

Dr. Hart and his wife, who desired a girl who could serve in a measure as a companion for Mrs. Hart, who is but 12 years of age, and at the same time do light work about the house.

In the case of Logie vs. Montgomery and O'Leary, H. H. McLean, of Weldon & McLean, took the stand this morning and swore that he had a deed of conveyance from the clerk to the office of Weldon & McLean.

McARTHUR & MacVAY MAY FINISH IN A MONTH

If They Have Fine Weather—Tremendous Difficulties They Have Met With in the Rock Ledge and Dry Lake.

A Times man went over the section of McArthur & MacVay's waterworks contract where the reinforced concrete pipe is being laid. This is the section where the ledge of rock was found, and where the "Dry Lake" is located.

It is impossible to convey in words any idea of the difficulty they have encountered at Elderslie Brook and the Dry Lake. An enormous amount of rock blasting had to be done in the bottom of a deep trench, and they were greatly troubled by water.

DUN'S REVIEW. NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade tomorrow will say: Favorable trade reports will predominate and there is no anxiety regarding the future. Higher temperature checked retail distribution of heavy wearing apparel and other reasonable merchandise, but preparations for unprecedented fall and winter trade continue without diminution. Superlatives are needed in commenting on retail sales transactions, building permits, bank exchanges and railway earnings, and failure estimates for the third quarter show a very low rate. The iron and steel industries are most encouraging. The heat-treatment in primary markets for cotton goods is in the hope of better terms. The decline in price of raw material, buyers pointing to the hope of better terms. This delay is of a temporary nature, however, requirements being large, and in the long run spinning will be greatly benefited by a large supply of raw cotton at more normal quotations. No severe collapse is anticipated. The mill being prepared to accept large quantities at slightly more attractive prices than the market. Inability to purchase desired deliveries is making purchasers more willing to place orders for future shipments, this attitude being in no degree abnormal.

THE SPRING WHEAT CROP.

Manitoba Free Press Estimates the Crop of Spring Wheat at 80,000,000 to 85,000,000 Bushels. From time to time the question has been asked, 'What is the Free Press estimate of the wheat crop of 1905?' On the 26th day of September the Free Press announced its belief that the wheat crop of 1905 will be between 80,000,000 and 85,000,000 bushels or on an average of 82,500,000 bushels per acre on an average of 40.00 bushels per acre.

FLOUR MILLING PROFITS.

Lake of the Woods Made Net Profits of $369,000 During Past Year. (Montreal Witness). The balance sheet of the Lake of the Woods Milling Co., Ltd., for the year ended Aug. 31, 1905, shows profit for the year to be $369,000, which was distributed as follows:—Interest on bonds, $20,000; dividend on preferred stock, $100,000; and dividend on common stock, $100,000, leaving $149,000 to be added to the balance brought from the previous year of $220,000. From this total $200,000 has been paid aside as a reserve against depreciation of property, therefore leaving a balance to be carried forward of $249,000. Notwithstanding the fact that Canada had a more than average crop year during the 1904 season, the year was not a good one for milling or shipping interest. The abnormal price existing throughout the United States for the best grades of wheat placed our western wheat slightly at the mercy of the United States millers, who, being in a position to purchase Canadian grain on the continent, 'drawn' the price, bought heavily from Canadian points, thus inflicting prices in the country to an unusual extent, entirely killing export business and compelling the consumer to adopt a half-monthly policy in the purchase of flour. There has also been a great amount of rivalry between the large milling interest which has no doubt reduced the profits of all concerned as covered by the retail millers concerned. One might suggest that the unbalanced competition without the strenuous under-cutting with which the market was flooded from time to time. While the profits of the year were about $12,338 less than those of 1904, the figures are very satisfactory when the extreme conditions of the market and four months' strike are taken into account. The executive are to be congratulated on their unusual year. H. H. HAYDEN, manager for the company for Ontario, Canada, was elected on the board at yesterday's meeting, succeeding Thomas Fyler, resigned.

A CASE IN POINT

The interview with Mr. W. Tremaine Gard, which the Times publishes today, is an answer to the one solitary critic who has asked to be enlightened on the subject of manual training and its practical value.

The people begin to make discoveries. The reader finds that there are other papers as good, or much better, than the advertiser finds that circulation is what he wants.

The Sun states that Mr. James Bourke, ex-M. P. P., will be a labor candidate for a seat in the legislature.

The Canadian surplus is said to be nearly $8,000,000. It might well be reduced. The expenditure account also shows an increase for the year.

When the president of a life insurance company can get $150,000 a year, and two vice-presidents $50,000 each, and other officers $10,000 to $50,000 each, the policyholder ought to feel as one who contributes to the welfare of his fellow.

The life insurance enquiry in New York produces a sensation every day. It becomes more and more obvious that policyholders have been paying too much for insurance.

St. John people will be glad if Mr. Copp, M.P., is able to increase the volume of through travel by the Bay of Fundy route.

The local street railway situation grows more and more interesting. St. John will apparently be largely in evidence at the next session of the legislature.

The Times weekly summary of the world's news of labor will appear in Monday's issue.

Today's Times will be found to contain features of interest to all classes of readers.

BAPTIST UNION

The cordial sympathy of other religious denominations will go out to the Baptists and Free Baptists, who next week will meet to consummate a union that means much in the life-work of both.

This is a case where amalgamation is not regarded as injurious to any interests. It is in line with a tendency that is growing.

The local street railway situation grows more and more interesting. St. John will apparently be largely in evidence at the next session of the legislature.

AME FASHION'S NEW DRESS TRIMMINGS

Contrast Strikes the Key Note of the Exquisite Colored Appliques and Made-Trimming Which Adorn Fall Costumes—Several New Laces on the Market.

Contrast sounds the keynote in the symphony of winter trimmings. A thousand harmonies of hand embroidery, applique and machine-made braids and bindings, which simulate handwork, will set off the rich-toned hose and street gowns of 1905-1906.

The fad for English eyelid work, which began in both broadcloth and silk trimmings, where somber hues once finished by black skirts and coats, the more recent scalloped in self-tone or a direct contrast, as the Winter's approved finish, and if inside each scallop appears a bit of the eyelid work, the gown has the final touch of smartness.

The puffy bouillons which made last season's winter raiment so bumptious have given place almost entirely in wool fabric to the broderie Anglaise bands, and many of the box patterns in popular tones of broadcloth show machine eyelid work which defies all but the expert in Dame Fashion's device.

Jeweled effects, decidedly reminiscent of lace cloths, are frequently introduced into the hand work on cloth costumes, and they are particularly striking when done on the rich purple and plum shades which are features of the season.

In applique, self-tone velvet set off by embroidered designs interspersed with silk and soutache braids, will be used. For instance, a long box coat in a peculiar rich shade of tan, will have collar, cuffs and pocket flaps of a deeper brown velvet set off by fleur-de-lis or military ornaments in gold bullion. But it is in the broadcloth appliques upon broadcloth that the wondrously harmonious contrasts are shown. As an example of this, a brown cloth suit will have a deep trimming of harmonious green broadcloth appliques, held in place by handwork of bronze silk which shades alternately into the green and the brown. Odd browns are applied upon brilliant reds, Persian and Chinese blues, blend exquisitely, and greens, and gold and white are combined rationally on reception, house and evening frocks as well as on drapery coats of all sorts.

A most brilliant effect is secured by combining machine-wrought braids with heavily embroidered appliques in various designs. A hose gown of old rose velvet broadcloth shows a heavy border in modified Greek design of black silk novelty braid, and raising from each square square an applique in soft Persian colorings, rose, green, blue and yellow, cleverly done by machine.

A trimming popular for vests is a heavy machine embroidery so thick as to suggest fur or plush. This is in colors contrasting with the gown, and set off by more delicately embroidered scroll work. Cream lace and even deeper tones leading to ecru have supplanted the dead white in vogue for summer dresses. An Argentine lace showing lattice work with medallions inset, is extremely popular. Cluny lace appears on wraps and cloth dresses, and in ornate shades are sometimes seen in the new stockings. One very desirable scheme is by all odds the smart embellishment for hosiery this Fall.

Tiny figures in imitation of the various cuttings of precious stones, decorate the fronts of many of the new stockings. Curved discs both hand embroidered and woven also stand out from sheer silk and like backgrounds. No less fascinating are the miniature flowers and leaf designs such as weep leaves, roses and forget-me-nots. Many of these outline Marie Antoinette garlands. One very desirable ornamentation on a gauze hose shows a vine of tiny leaves and flowers which extends over the instep half way to the knee, in curling branches. But silk and lace thread stockings are not alone in their new loveliness. Beautiful embroideries and filmy weaves render cotton hosiery equally as captivating. In fact many women whose purse admits of the more costly sort, buy very sheer cotton in preference or have the feet of cotton and the upper half of silk.

When selecting the Winter's supply of sheer hosiery, the cautious woman will look well to two points. Careful knees that is, a double fold from the opening almost to the knee, prevent fine weaves from tearing out, and a special seam at the back of the stocking strengthens the joining and insures against raveling.

HORRORS OF MATRIMONY
A well known archbishop, visiting small parish in a mining district for the purpose of administering confirmation, asked one nervous little girl what matrimony was, and she answered that it was "a state of terrible torment which those who enter it are compelled to undergo for a time to prepare them for a brighter and better world."

"No, no," remonstrated the pastor, "that isn't matrimony; that's the definition of purgatory."

"Leave her alone," said the archbishop. "Maybe she's right. What do you or I know about it?"

Other skirts are draped only at the sides, with a shaped sash, many, finishing the drop there, and the skirt falling voluminously all round.

In fact there are few skirt models which are more dapper footwear or else the fall upon the floor is exaggerated. Many American women have learned at last the proper handling of such petticoats. In Paris, no matter how long the skirt, it is never lifted in the street, trailing sashes or mincing across sidewalks with a delicious unconscious. Only one thing is considered—the man must always when such folders are worn.

Another quite important feature of the new styles is the empire coat, strapped or plainly stitched, or of English or Scotch tweeds, each empire coat frock are very dashing, though the style seems more to suit plain cloth and velvet than the less elegant materials. The skirts of the long coat are very full but no matter how solid the texture of the gown the sleeves follow the prevailing elbow cuts.

These short sleeves, a well known French maker of styles gives out, "are so elegant and graceful that they necessarily distinguish the smartest winter costumes. When they are finally replaced, it may be for the long wrinkled Theodor sleeve, which Herminette made fashionable. We use the Theodor continually for tea gowns and all sorts of graceful house toilets."

In texture, more corduroy is a novel material, which presents a pleasing alliteration to the eye, and in soft shades of brown it is beautifully effective with sea blue and pink fur, these skins, by the way, with a revival of chinilla, in combination with splendid laces for evening use, are again to be the winter favorites, and since much are enormously big, and a number of the hose prodigiously long, it naturally follows that fur will be dear. Chinilla skins are especially scarce, and only those which show the velvet markings are approved. With some of the smaller made-up sets there is again a tendency to employ milliner trimmings—lace falls, ribbon ruffles, rosettes, etc.—with the ends of the neckpiece treated with a fusy grace of ribbon. Many of the long hose finish with a single great tail, a rowing of lace and artificial rose giving in some cases at the left bust.

Such hose will again be worn to a great extent on the shoulders, and the new fashion. A deep fall of black lace over white distinguished the shoulder portion

NEW COATS AND DRAPED GOWNS

A FALL EXTRAVAGANCE

In Shear Weaves and Exquisite Embroideries, the New Hosiery is Irresistible to the Well Dressed Woman and She Has Made It Her Pet Extravagance This Fall—Eyelet Embroidery a New Wrinkle on Fancy Stockings.

Among the pet extravagances of the well dressed woman, fancy hosiery takes first place this Fall. Time was that the Summer's supply of stockings, with a little darning and perhaps a few extra pairs of plain black hose, lasted her through the Winter months. This year, however, the decided vogue of pumps for houseworn, and the necessity of having the entire course in harmony, has caused this fastidious woman to discard all the delicately tinted stockings which matched her Summer frocks.

Gowns in Autumn colorings must have ivory in the same shade, and this fall eyelet embroideries on stockings used to match the handwork that ornaments the dress with which they are worn. So instead of spending a large portion of her allowance on fine handkerchiefs or other small accessories, has chosen beautiful stockings as the object of her last expenditure.

The new offerings in hosiery are well suited to meet the most exacting tastes. In sheerness and filmy weaves they are not a whit less gaudy than Summer stockings. Heavy woolen and cotton stockings have become only a memory in the feminine wardrobe, and transparency is what up-to-date women insist upon above all else, even in cold weather. As a consequence, not only silk and lace thread weaves are of exquisite fineness and delicacy, but less costly hosiery that is within the reach of the average purse, has much the same comely appearance.

Embroidery plays a very extensive role in Fall hosiery. Quite the newest thing is the stocking showing designs done in French eyelid work. Very delicate patterns are employed and the effect of the work over pink flesh, vies in loveliness with borders of swan's-down, set in that quilting of full, Tulle, the smart modistes say, is to trim everything.

What Sulphur Does
For the Human Body in Health and Disease.

The mention of sulphur will recall to many of us the early days when our mothers and grandmothers gave us our daily dose of sulphur and molasses every spring and fall.

It was the universal spring and fall "blood purifier," tonic and cure-all, and mind you, this old-fashioned remedy was not without merit.

The idea was good, but the remedy was crude and unpalatable, and a large quantity had to be taken to get any effect.

Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable concentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a tablespoonful of the crude sulphur.

In recent years, research and experiment have proved that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium (Calcium Sulphide) and sold in drug stores under the name of Sturtevant's Calcium Wafer.

They are small chocolate-colored pellets and contain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated, effective form.

Many people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health; sulphur acts directly on the liver, and exerts a purifying and purgative effect on the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material.

Sturtevant's Calcium Wafer is a purgative and purifies the blood in a way that often surprises patient and physician alike.

They are the natural antidote for liver and kidney troubles, and cure constipation and purify the blood in a way that often surprises patient and physician alike.

Dr. R. M. Wilkins while experimenting with sulphur remedies soon found that the sulphur from Calcium was superior to any other form. He says: "For liver, kidney and blood troubles, especially when resulting from constipation or malaria, I have been surprised at the results obtained from Sturtevant's Calcium Wafer. In patients suffering from boils and pimples and even deep-seated carbuncles, I have repeatedly seen them dry up and disappear in four or five days, leaving the skin clear and smooth. The same wafer forms the vest and director collar and cuffs of the bolero, with soutache braid for further ornament.

The second picture gives some modest walking frocks in the new tartan style. The Bolero dress is in shades of green, trimmed with a tartan braid in cerise, blues and greens. The belt and jacket facings are of green velvet and the hat is of violet felt braid, with cerise trimmings.

Beautiful shades of dark blue and green distinguish the next frock, which is of English homestead. The smart little Norfolk coat, with its brown velvet belt and collar, is in a model lately exploited as a jaunty loose fitting suitable for young matrons. Plain white cloth shows the cuffs and collar. The hat, flowers and all, is in a single rich scheme of purple.

As may be gathered from these descriptions, hats which contrast sharply from the color of gowns will be one feature of the Winter styles.

Calmeure and merino, too, are charming old materials which are to have a vogue. Another novel comes from Paris that some of the first evening weaves are being made of these gracefully hanging and gimps of the shawl are cut up and astina as soft as themselves. One mantlette was described as being of ivory cash-

PARISIAN TOUCHES IN FALL WARDROBES

The interlude in fashion-making is about over, and the smart things which set off show windows no longer are advertised as for the "trade."

In the garment and fabric which replace the earlier displays are seen the signs of the fall opening, moiré and plain satins, which look deliciously antiquated, rubbing elbows with the novelties distinctly twentieth century.

In general effect the lines of garments are not greatly changed, skirts retaining the two lengths of the summer, and bodices continuing the look of coquetry which the fussy sheet sleeves and dainty vest effects give. But there are new "touches."

Not only number, and perhaps the most important of these is the revival of the draped skirt. Many tunic effects are observed, and some are so suggestive of the old time overskirt as to need the sacred title of "tunic."

A Word as to the Fetching Colors for Relieving Winter Costumes—Cerise in a Deep Shade, Closely Resembling Magenta, Mingles With Ostrich Plum and Lacé "Tails" on Smart Millinery.

A splendid box in silver fox, the front of which had quite a mantilla grace, crosses at the waist, where black and white rosettes were placed.

Dressmakers' use of broadcloth this fall is quite remarkable. This tender and soft skin, which is as expensive as it is delicate, is extravagantly employed for elaborate wraps and even whole gowns. One wonderful French costume seen had a silk bolero over a rich white lace blouse, the waist finishing with a deep girdle of applique-green silk and chiffon.

The lining of the skirt frounce was also in this rich green, each frounce being finished at the front of the charming little jacket were placed rosette ornaments, built over the old-fashioned wooden button mold, covered and tucked with green silk. These little things are considered—the man must always when such folders are worn.

Such hose will again be worn to a great extent on the shoulders, and the new fashion. A deep fall of black lace over white distinguished the shoulder portion which may be evolved from narrow ribbons and velvets is preferred to the machine-made things.

A little hand trimming on a gown of piled moiré, poplin in beautiful shades of violet, gives a dainty and suggestive hint for home dressmaking. It was made of graduated widths of ribbon velvet, in the three shades of violet, the velvets put one on top of the other, so that the shades came at the bottom line.

Bright and pale velvet, fashion authorities declare, will be much used this winter in relieving touches. A sort of cruet young and green will also be employed, with widely dissimilar colors, as well as cerise, orange and the softer Oriental tints. The shade in cerise which seems to have found favor with the manufacturer, very nearly approaches the old magenta. In thin millinery velvet, this color may trim a brown hat, the velvet shirred in elaborate crown puff, and into coloring flowers and daisies. One hat of millinery in the two colors had a cerise velvet crown and brown felt brim, which was turned up materially at one side, where it met brown owl head and wings were placed.

The use of materials by the yard for millinery purposes is growing. Some velvet models show a complete tucking or shirring over cords, the trimming being to great extent made up of wide, filmy or rich feathers. Such evening shapes are so solidly covered by pale moiré, silk, or made superb with these fringing plumes, which in exquisite and unusual colors, hang so far down and so delicately at the back of a hat as to give the effect of a drop.

"Tail" of some sort, in fact, is the newest feature in millinery, and a beautifully wrapped veil of chiffon or lace shapes it as often as anything else.

In the accompanying drawings are shown some of the effects discussed. The larger picture displays the back and front of an Empire coat costume, and an afternoon dress with a draped skirt. The coat gown is of pale olive satin cloth, with black taffeta collars and cuffs edged with a gilt galloon. Embroidery in rich and varied lace shapes the little vest pieces, and the enormously high belt worn with the white main bodice is of folded black taffetas.

The hat is of wedgewood blue felt with an olive feather and huge pink rose. Violet cloth is the material of the draped gown, which with one figure is worn with a hat of olive felt with purple roses and olive and purple feathers. A very new model is shown by the little bolero, which is shirred at the back, and which hangs short enough to display the deep velvet bell all round. The same velvet forms the vest and director collar and cuffs of the bolero, with soutache braid for further ornament.

Why They Don't Marry
(Chicago Tribune.)

The universal and particular light which the stenographer girl has upon business life versus matrimony is that which centers about her money. The absolute, preciousness of her payroll is a thing which can never be taken into account for the sex to whom independent finances are an every breath.

A hint of the hollows with which she regards her fifteen per week is given in the way she alluded to it as her $60 a month or her $800 a year.

"Why don't you get married?" was asked of a girl who is in receipt of $22 weekly. "Why, I get over $1,000 a year. Do you suppose I am going to give that up?"

"Not unless I can marry the head of the firm," said another of the bustling and bustling type who was asked the same question. "Because I have never seen the man yet who would give me $80 a month with no questions."

"The only man who has proposed to me within the last year is our bookkeeper," said a girl with attractive dimples and good teeth. "Do you know anything about bookkeepers?"

"Well, they are the same thing to the stenographers that curators are to the society girl. There is always one who is ready to propose to every good looking typewriter girl who comes into the office. One I would have thought that the $35 a week which he gets was a magnificent salary, and he is a nice fellow, too; but he's not for me."

The money question is not the only one upon which the stenographer now sees light. It is to be wondered if the average employer takes into account as he should the recording possibilities of the stiff young person whose only interest outside her dashboard notes seems to be in the black bow upon her hair and the papers which she wears around her wrist. Said a man, who is in charge of a stenographer agency the other day:

"The girl who sits up there is the unerring register of every move, time, intention and expression of her employer, and who shall say of how many of his thoughts, she is not fully curious. It is all done mechanically, and her habit of being alert to everything which takes place is partly the result of her ear trained to catch every sound which bears upon her work. When she gets through she knows him as nobody else in the world does, probably not even his wife."

"She is not unusually good at expressing herself, but when she says she is a good judge of men she is right. She may never have exchanged words with her employer beyond taking a dictation, but she knows a man, who is in charge of a stenographer, and what kind of case he is taking of his family."

"I am glad I am not married to a man like that, she will say. It is always troubling with his wife."

"Well, he comes down in the morning like a thunder cloud. He throws things here and there, and he seems to be in the office all day long. He calls him up on the telephone, and it doesn't take the whole of the conversation even at one end to show what has happened."

"The result is that she is afraid of matrimony. She sees her employer as he is. Again, the man who shields the woman of his family from every breath that is disagreeable is perhaps anything but attractive to the stenographer, who is the confidante of all his business announcements and who sees the little trickeries that are inevitable in business life."

"Sometimes this intimate view has another result. Sometimes the austere maid with the black bow on her head, or the more dashing young woman of the blond complexion, sees in her employer a man who differs in another way from any she has ever known. He is a little mannerly and ways. He does not bring the drawing room into the office, and she stands up with her stenographer as down as a common occurrence, but occasionally it happens he does other little things which, though uncommon in the business world, are to be noted in the home. "He can have me," is the immediate response of the blonde. As the stiff-necked little girl, she lets forth a flood of eloquence. "It could be a man as well as be a man," she says. "I would get married in a minute. He is perfectly beautiful as he is, and his wife, and he takes splendid care of them. He is my ideal of what a man should be."

The Father—Let me see—today is the twenty-first anniversary of your birth, isn't it?

The Son—That's the way it stands on the family record.

The Father—Well, now that you have attained your majority, don't you think you ought to go to work?

The Son—No, I guess not; mine isn't a working majority.

PRESTON'S NARROW ESCAPE

Montreal, Oct. 6 (Special)—A London cable says that Canadian Engineer Preston, while crossing the North Sea last night had a narrow escape from death by asphyxiation. It seems that a group in his stateroom, headed by Mr. Preston, thought nearly overcome by the fumes, was able on awakening to get to his stateroom door and summoned assistance, but the doctor says that in a few minutes more Mr. Preston would have succumbed.

Selected Reading for Sunday's Quiet Hours

REV. J. D. PICKLES SAYS FAREWELL

Rev. John D. Pickles, who has presided as pastor of St. John's M. E. church, South Boston, to take up with connection with the Massachusetts Sunday school association, preached his farewell sermon last Sunday evening.

"The subject of my sermon last night was 'The Three Impregnable of Christianity.'" He said in part— "Before discussing the subject of the evening I desire to express my gratitude to all the people of St. John's church for their constant courtesy and effective help during the present pastorate. We have labored, suffered and triumphed together, and the memories of these years will be deeply cherished by my family and myself. In our hearts will be a constant prayer for the prosperity and ever increasing spiritual power of this great church."

"Dwelling upon the 'Three Impregnable of Christianity,' I have chosen to call your attention to those which, to every mind, are irrevocable, unchangeable and immovable. 'Christianity has, first, an impregnable creed. We have not to look far to find it. It has many different forms of statement, but one will suffice, and it is found in the Gospel of John when, speaking of the signs wrought by Jesus in the presence of his disciples, not recorded in his book, the apostle adds: 'But these are written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ the son of God, and that believing ye might have life through him.'"

"The third is an impregnable Christ. The majestic figure of Jesus of Nazareth, the Christ and God, looms larger today in the thought and life of humanity than ever before. Two thousand years of confusion and strife have only served to fix him more securely in the affections and service of ever increasing millions. No weapon that has been forged against Him has prospered and to Him every knee shall bow and every tongue confess that Jesus, Christ is Lord, to the glory of God, the Father."

MOST MEN ARE MORAL

Speaker at Railroad Y. M. C. A. Conference Believes the Majority Are So. "Service is the keyword of this convention," said John R. Mott of New York at the final session last Sunday evening of the conference of the railroad Y. M. C. A. which was in session in Detroit last week for four days. Mr. Mott's address, which was the last of the conference, was a plea to the men to take home with them a realization of the necessity for personal service in the Christian work of the railroad Y. M. C. A.

Fred B. Smith of New York addressed 2000 men at a mass meeting in the afternoon. "Drunkenness, gambling and immorality are the three sins which today threaten the manhood of this country," said he. "Gambling is only a high-toned word for stealing. I believe, after six years of careful study, that a majority of men have a normally criminal in their lives. I wish to have an impression to the contrary, gathered from the statements of a certain type of evangelist, that I have changed my mind. The majority of men in the world are moral."

POPE MAY APPEAL

(Rome Letter.) Because of the great damage done to churches and seminary buildings in southern Italy by the recent earthquake, it is probable that Pius X. will issue an appeal to the world at large for financial assistance for the restoration of the destroyed or damaged properties. The appeal will take the form of a letter addressed to the bishops of the world, who will be asked to collect contributions in every diocese and forward them to Rome. Pius X. has himself already given more than the present condition of the Vatican finances made advisable, and now feels that an appeal to the churches abroad is now a matter of absolute necessity.

The Free Masons of Italy view with alarm the success which has attended the activities of Italian Catholics in political matters, which has enabled the friends of the church to elect members of their number to administrative and municipal positions in the kingdom. The situation has led the Grand Orient of Rome to issue a manifesto calling upon members of the order to be on their guard and to consider the interference of the pope in the electoral work of the country as of great danger to the nation. In Vatican circles much satisfaction is expressed over the document, as it demonstrates the success that has attended the efforts of Pius X. and his ability to hold Italian Catholics together. There is no fear that the declaration will have a bad effect on future elections, as Freemasonry has been far from popular in Italy since allegations of a scandalous character have been made affecting it.

George MacDonald: A Study.

It is safe to say that many of those who read the short obituary which announced the death of George MacDonald had been under the impression that the venerable poet and novelist had passed away long years ago. And this, despite the fact that Dr. MacDonald had continued his literary work almost until the end. But the man who, thirty-five years ago, was even twenty years ago, was provoking discussion with his "David Elginbrod" and "Robert Falconer," and charming childhood and youth with "The Back of the North Wind" and "Ranald Bannerman's Boyhood," did not belong to the age of "best sellers" or the day of the discovery that God is probably radium.

There were giants in the earth in those days, mighty men, and men of renown. Kipling and Newman had waged their battle of religious polemics with all England looking on. Thirteen years after the publication of "David Elginbrod," Gladstone was compelling the "Letter to the Duke of Norfolk," with his "Vaticanism." Religious discussions were considered to be perfectly proper on all and sundry occasions in all and every one of the walls of life. John might go to Cambridge with safety, but to send him to Oxford, was to dive him into the arms of the Scarlet Woman. Tom should be induced to drop his debating society, because he heard things there which would unsettle him. And what, people were in earnest, and they didn't care if their neighbors knew it.

Small wonder, therefore, that a man like MacDonald, who had something to say, and knew how to say it, found many with ears to hear. Small wonder, either, that, while he made many friends, he also created some critics. Originally intending to say that something from the pulpit, he had become a Congressional minister after his graduation from Aberdeen University had been supplemented by a theological course at the Independent College at Highbury, London. But he won resigned his pastorate, and turned his whole attention to writing. For years his brethren on Congressional pulpits appeared to consider it their duty to make known to their flock whether they approved or disapproved of his teachings. There were mighty men of renown in the Independent connection in both camps.

It does not seem possible that nearly a quarter of a century has passed since the present writer, seated in a stiff-backed pew near an open window through which forward to for so long a time, and in order to accommodate all with seats, it was necessary to bring in chairs before the service began. The exercises consisted of hymns, prayers, responsive readings and a sermon by Rev. Charles G. Ames, D. D., the pastor, at the close of which the congregation recited the Lord's prayer. Dr. Ames preached on "Worship and Service." He said in part: "What is worship? Its inmost principle is to recognize and appreciate worth; to give honor to its measure values. There are many standards of worth, such as copper, silver, gold and pearls, but the moral or spiritual is the highest and it is our work as a people that is greater, nobler than all others, it is simply reasonable to give that spirit the highest honor. "To approve and love what is excellent" uphaudin' eternal ben' wh took the form o' man in Christ Jesus." A comfortable doctrine, said the critics, but dangerous, and phrased most unfortunately, if not blasphemously. Hugh Sutherland, in David Elginbrod, speaks of David as one who cared for nothing but God; or, rather, he cared for everything, because it belonged to God. So also was it with MacDonald. A smiling landscape, a doleful dog, all and everything the God of love and compassion. Science, which had disturbed other lovers of the Bible, did not disturb him, because it could not destroy the promises which alone he preached. So science might prove nature in some of her moods to be fierce and relentless; it mattered not to one who saw only with the vision of faith, reinforced by the vision of the poet of the beautiful and the beautiful. The old battle of faith and reason fought on a new battlefield.

Even to the children he taught the doctrine of faith triumphant, and "All's well—God's in His heaven." When the porch wind has proven to little Diamond that people are mistaken who think that because of her they are cold, she takes him for another trip behind her, and, seeing through a window a woman sorrowing, she causes him to whisper in the ear of the mourner: "Sure is the summer, Sure is the sun, The night and the winter Are shadows that run."

Today, when perhaps the message which MacDonald had delivered is needed more than ever; when self-surrender is reckoned as weakness, even by many popular preachers, and peace is incompatible with the strenuous life and the enjoyment of the society of men "who do things," it is pleasant to reflect that, in his own case, at least, he proved the satisfaction of a life nobly spent. Living to the age of eighty-one years, he was honored by his university and rewarded by his country with a pension for his services to literature. Much of his later life was spent in Italy, where nature smiled upon him as he would have her smile, and his occasional visits to England were periods of rejoicing over the success of his eldest son, Grenville, a distinguished physician, and one of the leading authorities in Great Britain on diseases of the nose and throat.—E. F. B., in New York Post.

INCURABLY RELIGIOUS

Man Finds Explanation of Life's Wonder and Mystery on Religious Grounds. Before the trustees, faculty and student body of Tufts College, last Sunday, acting President Frederick W. Hamilton delivered the Russell lecture in Goddard chapel. The lecture is established in accordance with a bequest of the late James Russell of Arlington, and is delivered annually the second Sunday of the college year.

The subject as prescribed by the testator is "The Sufficiency of the Promises of the Gospel to Meet the Reasonable Wants of Man. Both in Time and Eternity." While taking this as the theme of his discourse, Dr. Hamilton took as his actual subject: "The Permanence of Christianity." Dr. Hamilton spoke in part as follows: "Religious systems and theological formulas have come and gone, passing in endless procession across the pages of history. No religion, however, has as yet died intestate. "It has been said with truth that man is 'incurably religious.' Man is so constituted that he cannot face the wonder and mystery about him without seeking an explanation of it, and without finding that explanation upon religious grounds."

THE NINTH PARADISE

In the nine heavens are eight Paradises. When is the ninth one? In the human heart. "Rather, O man! seek those eight Paradises. They be without the sin's one in thy heart."—From the Arabic. is the soul of worship. Real worship is a mental transaction, an inward state, of a rational act. A man may fall on his knees, spread out his arms, lift up his eyes and not be a worshipper. He may repeat sacred words and say, "Lord! Lord!" and not be a worshipper. He may build temples and altars and offer costly sacrifices and yet not be a worshipper. No outward ceremony or ritual or form is worship. The words "in spirit and in truth," measure more than conformity to custom. True worship cannot be ground out by any church machine. It must be the free act of the mind; the free movement of the spirit. "Mental freedom is necessary to spiritual worship, because it is necessary to sincerity. Worship must therefore be as various as the different degrees of spiritual perception and appreciation. The mischief begins when we separate religion from nature; when we begin to make it artificial and external; when we let it run into clericalism and ecclesiasticism, and when we think of worship as a kind of tax that must be paid to the Creator. "The church of the Disciples," Dr. Ames said, "is a company of seekers after the highest truth and the highest life. It is not a company of professors of religion, but a school wide open to all who wish to learn and practice whatever things are true and pure and right and lovely. It is a union of free hearts, free minds and free hands. "In the enjoyment of our church privileges, and in the carrying on of our various church activities, no one has advantage over another, and no one need take a back seat on account of poverty."

THE KERSITS TO HAVE A COLLEG.

Development of a Strange Method of Opposition to Ritualism. The Wickliffe preachers have met with great popular success in England. They succeeded John Kenait, a layman who went constantly into Church of England places of public worship, even into cathedrals, and when he saw ritualistic practices he created a disturbance, browled out prelates, got himself arrested, and by signing in the newspapers and attention to what was going on in the Established Church.

Suddenly he died, but his son, named for him, took up the work in a slightly different way. He instituted travelling bands of protestors, afterward coming to be called Wickliffe preachers. These went all over England, created disturbances in many places, got themselves denounced and often imprisoned through complaints of Church of England priests. Their numbers continued to grow, however, and while ritualists are firm, they do not, it is said, have the lead they had five or six years ago. On the contrary, the Evangelical party in the same church appears to be gaining ground, not due in great measure, perhaps, to the actions of the Kenait, but because public opinion in the Establishment seems to be tending against Roman ideas. Now a Kenait Memorial College is to be established just outside of London, and $25,000 has been subscribed for the purpose. Even some Anglican clergy are said to be helping on the scheme. "These preachers, following in the wake of the elder Kenait and led by his son, have gone into more than five hundred towns. Recently they were imprisoned in Derby, and so advantageous was the advertising for their cause that as soon as they were released twenty thousand persons filled the public square to hear them tell their story."

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken externally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo O. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation. The benefit by great men reached and kept were not attained by sudden flight; but they, while their companions slept, were toiling upwards in the night.—Longfellow.

REV. DR. AMES ON THE SOUL OF WORSHIP

The handsome new church edifice of the church of the Disciples in the corner of Jersey and Peterboro streets, Back Bay, Boston, was opened last Sunday morning for the first time for divine service. The occasion was of such interest to Unitarians that the auditorium was crowded.

The normal seating capacity of the church was insufficient for those who desired to participate in the opening services, which the congregation has been looking forward to for so long a time, and in order to accommodate all with seats, it was necessary to bring in chairs before the service began. The exercises consisted of hymns, prayers, responsive readings and a sermon by Rev. Charles G. Ames, D. D., the pastor, at the close of which the congregation recited the Lord's prayer. Dr. Ames preached on "Worship and Service." He said in part: "What is wor-

3---BOARDING OR "KEEPING HOUSE"---Two in a Flat Beats Any Number of Pairs in a Boarding House.

My Dear John—I infer from your letter just received, which is more disheartened by its brevity than the lengthy that you are undecided as to whether you shall board or keep house. You are evidently trying to square yourself into the belief that boarding is the ideal life, while you down in your inwards is longing for a home that you can't get rid of.

There is something favorable to be said of either proposition. If there were nothing to consider but the question of cost, that is to say, the direct expense—the fixed charges, as the railroad man would put it—should advise you to board. It is used to be a popular idea, and may be yet for aught I know to the contrary, that it was cheaper for a young couple to keep house than to board. I have had some personal experience, and I know a great many other people who have arrived at this conclusion after a long and studious study of the matter.

It is not a matter of cost, however, that should be the determining factor. A man who boards is not a man who keeps house. He is a man who is in a position to be able to do either, but he is not a man who is in a position to do both. He is a man who is in a position to be able to do either, but he is not a man who is in a position to do both.

boarding house; you have to take the world in with you. Of course you have heard the saying that a wagging tongue on the outside is better than a wagging tongue on the inside, and in some cases, I regret to say, it is true, but the man who suffers from a woman's tongue are generally themselves to blame.

On the other hand, a home is a man's training school for the making of a genuine man and woman. I'll admit that nature doesn't always turn out a first-class job, but that's the fault of the material. I know some people who wear trousers who couldn't be turned into men by any process, natural or artificial.

You never were much of a hand to accept dogmatic statements, and I recognize you taking the other side of the question just for the sake of argument, so I'll hazard you with some reasons for my belief in the theory which worked for me in practice in my case, as you certainly know, and in the experience of many of my friends.

I think I have told you something about the necessity of intimate acquaintance between man and wife. You must know another, and in a boarding house you can't possibly get more than a superficial knowledge. You are more or less in public all the time, and your manners are more or less artificial. You can't be yourself.

In a home each of you has something to live for, and each of you has something to live for. In a boarding house, each of you has nothing to live for. In a home, each of you has something to live for, and each of you has something to live for.

REV. DR. McQUEEN OF EDMONTON

Tells the People of the New West to Avoid Liquor.

The Rev. Dr. McQueen in his sermon on a recent Sunday evening in the Presbyterian church at Edmonton, Alberta, spoke strongly upon the question of temperance. He took the ground that he did not deny any man the personal right to drink, but personal rights of that kind should not be exercised when their influence was dangerous to the community.

Dr. McQueen also issued a note warning the fact that the lady who was to preside in the home. Many young men began their downward career by a glass of wine at a social function. He wished to speak of this matter in no uncertain way and entered a solemn protest against the custom that was becoming too common in the city, and warned the entertainers of the city to beware lest some one's blood be upon their heads.

Two Hotels Will Be Run on Strictly Temperance Principles. (Toronto News.) Two hotel properties in Owen Sound, the Seldon House and the Queen, have been purchased with a view of turning them into strictly temperance hotels.

Some hotels even in villages the size of Newich make from one to two thousand dollars annually out of their dining room, and the prices are the usual ones charged by country hotels. We can see no reason why a well-conducted temperance hotel, under capable management, should not be established in every town.

BE WISE TODAY "One of the illusions," says Emerson, "is that the present hour is not the critical, decisive hour. Write it on your heart: every day is the best day in your whole year. No man has learned anything rightly until he knows that every day is domesday." Young people, especially, are tempted to live more in the future than the present. What they are going to be is more attractive and exciting than what they are. Each young man, each young woman, needs to realize thoroughly that today is the key of all the future.

WHISKY AND THE FOREIGNER

Toronto Paper Strongly Protests Against Selling to Brawling Immigrants. (Mail and Empire.) In the rider to the verdict of the coroner's jury upon the Mimco murder there is a very outspoken condemnation of the action where the tragedy was enacted.

It is significant that the Hobbs murder and the case of the Italian who was shot at the door of a hotel, and there can be no slight doubt that had there been no temperance reform, these facts would not be established. These facts should be noted by license commissioners all over the province.

TEMPERANCE HOTELS The Toronto Railway News says: "Travelers who have been touring in the lower provinces, speak in the highest terms of the Grand Hotel, Yarmouth, N. S. This is one of the best hotels in the maritime provinces. We do not believe it has any equal outside the cities of Halifax and St. John, and yet the management does not have to sell whiskey to make it pay."

COFFEE CLUBS IN CALIFORNIA

They Are a Success, Financially and Socially, and Lessen Saloon Business. (New York Times.) Some time ago the California town of San Diego started a coffee club to afford a place of entertainment and recreation where no intoxicating liquors or cigars or tobacco in any form should be sold.

It is possible that California has found an expedient for the prohibition of the sale of liquor in the future. The proposal of a temperance reform, to prohibit the sale of liquor in the future, is a proposal of a temperance reform, to prohibit the sale of liquor in the future.
