Is Your Loaf Like This?

If your loaf is of the right quality, it ought to produce uniformly good bread. When the loaf comes out of the oven it ought to be appetizing and inviting in appearance. The crust should be crisp, tender and sweet as a nut. The pores of the bread should be regular and uniform expansion by the yeast and every loaf should be light, plump and should expand over the top of the pan. Bread made from Ogilvie's Royal Household Flour always compares to the highest standard of excellence when made right. It is always uniform and good to look at as well as good to eat.

Summer and winter, day after day month after month, "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" is milled by exactly the same process from exactly the same standard uniform grade of the best Red Eye wheat. And this uniformity is guaranteed by rigid safeguarding tests at the mills before the flour is shipped out.

FAMOUS GEMS OF PROSE

THE EVIL OF CIVIL WAR

By Henry John Temple. (Lord Palmerston)

From a speech in the English house of commons on the Roman Catholic relief bill, March 18, 1829.

WHEN come we to the last remedy—civil war. Some gentlemen say that, sooner or later, we must fight for it, and the sword must decide. They tell us that, if blood were shed in Ireland, Catholic emancipation might be avoided. Sir, when honorable members shall be a little deeper read in the history of Ireland, they will find that in Ireland blood has been shed—that in Ireland leaders have been seized, trials have been had, and punishments have been inflicted. They will find, indeed, almost every page of the history of Ireland darkened by bloodshed, by seizures, by trials, and by punishments. But what has been the effect of those measures? They have, indeed, been successful in quelling the disturbances of the moment; but they never have gone to their cause, and have only fixed deeper the poisoned barb that rankles in the heart of Ireland. Can one believe one's ears, when one hears respectable men talk so lightly—may almost so wishfully—of civil war? Do they reflect that a countless multitude of ills those three short syllables contain? It is well, indeed, for the gentlemen of England, who live secure under the protecting shadow of the law, whose slumbers have never been broken by the clashing of angry swords, whose harvests have never been trodden down by the conflict of hostile feet—it is well for them to talk of civil war, as if it were some holiday pastime, or some sport of children.

They jest at scars who never felt a wound.

But, that gentlemen from unfortunate and ill-starred Ireland, who have never seen with their own eyes, and heard with their own ears, the miseries which civil war produces—who have never known, by their own experience the barbarism, ay, the barbarity, which it engenders—that such persons should look upon civil war as anything short of the last and greatest of national calamities—it is to me a matter of the deepest and most unmixt astonishment. I will grant, if you will, that the success of such a war with Ireland would be as signal and complete as would be its injustice. I will grant, if you will, that resistance would soon be extinguished with the lives of those who resisted; I will grant, if you will, that the crimson banner of England would soon wave, in undisputed supremacy, over the smoking ashes of their towns, and the blood-stained solitude of their fields. But I will tell you that England herself never would permit the achievement of such a conquest; England would reject, with disgust, laurels that were dyed in fraternal blood; England would recoil, with loathing abhorrence, from the bare contemplation of so devilish a triumph!

CHAPTER XVI.

The Hall-Porter's Doubt.

When one o'clock came and Edith had not arrived, the three men waiting in the hotel made no further effort to conceal their anxiety. The impetuous Fairholme was eager to search for Edith, and he had adhered to his resolution not to stir from their sitting-room until either Miss Talbot came back in person or it became quite certain that she was detained by some other influence than her own untimely arrival.

"It may be," he argued, "that she will require some action on our part the moment we see her, and nothing could be more stupid than for the three of us to be wandering about this great city helplessly inquiring for a missing English lady, whilst she was impatiently awaiting our return in the knowledge that valuable time was being wasted to no purpose. What is there to fear? Miss Talbot is absolutely unknown to all the parties concerned in the affair. Even if she attracted their attention, which is improbable, it is almost inconceivable that they should connect her with the search being made for them. The only risk she runs is that of being mistaken for some semi-intoxicated reveler, and even in a rowdy city like this, it must indeed be a strange locality in which she would be denied some protection. Of course I will be much relieved when Miss Talbot returns and she will be able to present to me no reason for undue anxiety on our part. Indeed, we ought to congratulate ourselves on the fact that she does not intend to leave us for such a long time. The probability is that she is making highly important discoveries which might materially reduce the area of inquiry."

With this view Talbot could not help concurring, so Fairholme had to content himself by smoking many cigarettes and walking uneasily about the room. Sit down he could not, whilst any casual ring at the hotel door found him leaning over the balustrade of the inner court and listening intently for the first words of the new arrival.

But the Englishmen were not the only persons in the hotel that night whose composure was disturbed. Their extraordinary behavior caused uneasiness to the manager and those members of the staff who remained on duty. The facts disclosed by the hall porter were certainly remarkable. Only one member of the party had behaved in a normal manner. Sir Hubert Fitzgibbon, soon after his arrival, went quietly to bed, but the hall porter's report as to the conduct of the others was passing strange.

One of them to his surprise, had rung up the prefecture of police in Paris on the telephone. The others were standing at the hotel door, gazing quietly at the passerby, when suddenly about midnight much excitement rose amongst them. They conversed eagerly in their own tongue for a few minutes, and the lady had rushed off down the street by herself, whilst her two companions ran with equal precipitancy to join the third in the sitting-room they had engaged, and there they were still seated in mood expectancy, apparently watching for some dramatic event to happen.

It was time that all good people were in bed. But it was hopeless to approach such lunatic questions, for they were English, and no decent Frenchman could possibly hope to understand their actions or motives. It was satisfactory that they could speak French well, therefore the manager counselled the hall porter to exhibit patience and prudence. Moreover, mislata upstairs would be sure to recogdestination, and the best chance we have of discovering it is to seize the immediate opportunity of this hour of drats arrest of her father. Possibly the morning some document may be found on him which will reveal his daughter's destination. It occurs to me that she will expect to arrive by a late train. Again, when the fishing-smack puts into port, the girl will probably elope some method of communication with him, and that communication must come into our hands, not into his. So I have telephoned the police officials in Paris to raid the Cabaret Noir forthwith, it is possible that they may report developments within the next two or three hours."

"Is there no chance of your discovering the whereabouts of that fishing-smack?" said Fairholme.

"Well, this is a big port, you know, and there are always tugs knocking about with steam up, on the off-chance of their services being required. Isn't it possible to charter a steamboat and set off after the smack?"

"I do not think so," said Brett. "I imagine it would be wasted effort. By his time the Belle-Scourie would be out to sea. She can go in a dozen different directions. She may beat along the coast towards Corsica, towards the Balearic Islands, Spain, or the mouth of the Rhone. She will certainly not show any lights, and I personally feel that although there is, perhaps a thousand to one chance we might fall in with her, it will be far better for our purpose to remain quietly here and await developments in Paris."

"Theories," remarked Fairholme, convinced that his proposal was impracticable, "it will be an easy matter for the authorities to ascertain the port that she arrives at."

Brett shook his head dubiously.

"I have my doubts on that point," he said. "The man who has thus far kept himself so easily ahead of all pursuers, and exhibited such a wealth of resources in his methods, may well be trusted to cover up his tracks, effectually. There is even a possibility that that her number will long remain vacant on the shipping register of Marseilles. However, we shall see."

"Then, Mr. Brett," put in Edith quietly, with a tired smile, "I suppose we may go to bed?"

"Most certainly, Miss Talbot. You have earned your rest more than any of us tonight," he answered.

He held out his hand to wish her good-night, but she demanded with some surprise, "What are you going to do? Surely you want some sleep?"

"I will remain here," he said. "I have bribed the hall-porter to keep awake, and I may be wanted on the telephone at any moment."

"Then I will stop with you," cried Fairholme.

"And I too," chimed in Talbot.

"You will do nothing of the sort," he answered with pleasant insistence. "You will just be off both of you, and get some hours of sound sleep. You may need all your energy tomorrow. Do not be afraid. I will remain here, if anything should happen."

Left to himself, Brett again interviewed the hall-porter and returned to the sitting room, where he disposed himself for a nap on the sofa. Like all men who possess the faculty of concentrated thought, he also cultivated the power of dismissing a perplexing problem from his mind until it became necessary to consider it afresh in the light of further knowledge.

Within five minutes he was sound asleep. At length he woke with a start. He was stiff with cold, for the fire had gone out, and the tiny gas jet he had left burning was not sufficient to warm the room. He sprang to his feet and looked at his watch. It was half-past six.

"Surely," he cried, "there must have been a message from Paris long before this!"

He ran downstairs, encountering on his way some of the hotel servants, who even thus early had commenced work for the morning. Going to the hall-porter's office he found that functionary snoring peacefully. The poor fellow was tired out, and twenty telephone bells might have jangled in his ears without waking him.

So, for the third time, Brett rang up the exchange to get in touch with Paris. As he had anticipated, he quickly learnt that the Prefecture had endeavored to get through to him about 4:30 a. m., but the operators were unable to obtain any answer.

Hot and sultry was the day, So I've since been told, When I proposed to May, Who gave it to me cold. Find her father.

ANSWER TO YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE

Inside down, nose under man's elbow.

CATARRH NOT HOPELESS

It has been Cured Scores of Times by Father Morrissey's No. 26.

It is customary for many sufferers from catarrh, and even for many doctors to despair of curing this annoying and dangerous disease. Nevertheless, if correct methods are adopted, there is no reason why catarrh should not yield to treatment with a reasonable degree of ease. The failure to cure is to be attributed to the failure to apply a comprehensive treatment which will not only eliminate and remedy the abnormal local conditions, but also go to the real seat of the trouble.

Father Morrissey, the learned physician, after much study and experience, was successful in devising a combined treatment which has proved to be the solution of the problem. His No. 26 consists of a tableting, which is taken a day, together with a healing antiseptic salve for the nostrils.

The tableting sets up and integrates the system, Nature not only to throw off the disease, but to guard against future attacks. The nasal salve clears out the diseased secretions and heals the delicate membranes.

No. 26 has often cured catarrh of long standing, but it is much wiser to take it in time. Otherwise, catarrh is almost certain to lead to more serious diseases. It not only develops into consumption but often causes disease of the stomach and bowels. Do not put it off, but take Father Morrissey's Combined Catarrh Treatment now, and prevent serious troubles.

When, by its aid, Nature has not only cured the local disease but also built up the system against future attacks, you will find your general health tremendously improved.

So, for the combined treatment. At your druggist's or from Father Morrissey Medicine Co., Ltd., Chatham, N.B.

THE RICH NORTH

Hon. Frank Oliver, minister of the interior, on his return from his five thousand mile journey through the farthest north-west, declared that when the prairies have been filled up there will be a vast northern area to offer for settlement, with a climate well suited to agriculture. We quote:—"I was absolutely astonished," he said, "to find luxuriant vegetation close to the Arctic circle, at Prince Rupert and at Fort Macpherson. Potatoes were growing well at Circle City and at Eagle; cabbages were in fine condition at Fort Yukon, while Dawson City is a city of flowers. It is a beautiful place, where a great deal of interest is taken in gardening. At every point we touched at from Edmonton north as far as Fort Good Hope, which is within sixteen miles of the Arctic circle, vegetables were grown and grown successfully. There is a good crop every year, I am told. Spruce of a splendid size grows on the Mackenzie Delta, suitable for sawing and not at all of the stunted growth one might expect to find in the North. The Mackenzie is a beautiful river, two miles wide, with gravel banks, and the country all along it looks well. I came back satisfied that in Canada there is no danger of our stepping over our limit in settling the North country for several hundred miles yet. A large area of the North country will have to be reclaimed and cleared, but in so far as climatic conditions are concerned, it is worthy of the closest attention as a field for settlement."

ARREST PASSION. PLAY PERFORMER. Mistake Made by The Munich Police Because of His Hair. Munich, Aug. 30.—The police here have made a curious mistake. They arrested Albrecht Birling, who plays the part of John the Baptist in the Passion Play at Oberammergau, who was on an excursion here, on suspicion of being a woman murderer for whom they have been looking. Birling wears his hair very long, and the police thought he was a woman in disguise. DR. MELVIN IS STRONGLY FOR VACCINATION

St. John Health Officer Tells Plainly Why School Children and Adults, As Well, Should be Vaccinated

Smallpox is a disease which is greatly feared in every community, and the importance of the process of vaccination is being realized more and more every day. A knowledge of the importance of vaccination at this particular period when hundreds of children from many localities are being assembled in public buildings, should be of value and interest to many parents.

"As I understand it," said the doctor, "the law at the present time gives school trustees the power to demand vaccination, and in this way, it has been rigidly enforced in St. John, but, in order to make it effective, it should be strictly enforced all over New Brunswick."

"All school children should be vaccinated. If this were carried out for a few years, it would have the result that in a short time the whole population of the province would be vaccinated, and that, therefore, smallpox would be virtually unknown, except when imported. The condition of affairs has been attained in most of western Europe, and in very many of the cities of the United States, in consequence of compulsory vaccination, and smallpox has in these places that I have mentioned, become almost unknown."

"Cases of incomplete vaccination sometimes occur. This is worse than none, because it gives a sense of security which is of no account, one being incompletely vaccinated, and imagining himself to be truly vaccinated, being more apt to expose himself to the dangers of smallpox than one who is not vaccinated at all. No one should consider himself vaccinated until a week has elapsed after the operation, and has been examined by a medical man in that time. That is the only possible way of ascertaining complete vaccination. Incomplete vaccination may result from a number of things. Some of the causes are inert vaccine, too light, or too severe scarification, rubbing off of the lymph, and natural immunity from the vaccine. Two or three or even more attempts should be made at vaccination, however, before one is considered immune."

"It is often asked how long the effects of vaccination remain in the system. This is very uncertain. In some cases one vaccination will last a lifetime, but it is not safe to rely upon this. Everyone should be vaccinated in childhood, and once again in early adult life. This, as a general rule, is sufficient, but in case of exceptional danger from smallpox, everyone so in danger should be vaccinated at once or at least, attempt to do so."

MORNING NEWS OVER THE WIRES P. Clinch, E. H. Fairweather, and J. V. E. Coffin of the N. B. Board of Fire Underwriters, superintended a test of the Fredericton water system yesterday, and were pleased, they said, with the result. Better results were obtained than was the case two years ago.

WEDDING IN ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH TODAY

Miss Gretchen Bell Bride of James Brydon of Bank of New Brunswick

In St. Andrew's church this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock a pretty wedding was performed by Rev. D. Lang, when he united in marriage Miss Gretchen Bell, daughter of C. W. Bell, of St. John, and James Brydon, late of Hawick, Scotland, but now manager of the Bank of New Brunswick in Aylesford, (N.S.) George C. Moy acted as groomsmen, and the bride was attended by her mother, Mrs. Frances Sutherland, as flower girl.

The bride was becomingly gowned in a beautiful costume of ivory satin, with trimmings of pearl and chintilly lace. She wore a veil and carried a bouquet of white bridal roses. The flower girl was daintily dressed in white net with pink trimmings, and carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas.

A wedding luncheon and reception at the home of the bride followed immediately after the ceremony, at which only near friends and relatives were guests. After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Brydon left on the Montreal train for a trip to Upper Canadian cities and on their return will go to Aylesford to reside. The bride's trousseau was of favor with that of the same shade.

The household was decorated very prettily in honor of the wedding, a beautiful color scheme being nicely arranged with green and flowers of pink and yellow. The display of wedding presents was very fine and included some handsome remembrances in silverware and cut glass.

Included in the list of presents was a handsome dinner set of Liposens china from the members of the office staff of the Bank of New Brunswick. Two other very striking remembrances were a 5 o'clock silver service, and a dinner silver service, besides checks totaling more than $700. The groom's present to his bride was a gold pendant set with silver and pearls, to his groomsmen a pearl stickpin, and to the flowergirl a pretty pearl ring.

FIFTY DOLLARS OR THREE MONTHS

Record Fine For Drunkenness Imposed on James Sullivan—Police Court Proceedings

One of the heaviest fines imposed on a charge of drunkenness in this city was struck against James Sullivan this morning by Judge Ritchie in the police court when he inflicted a fine of $50 or three months in jail. Sullivan, pleaded guilty to being drunk. It was stated that he had not been working since May last, and had been spending much of his time on the benches in King Square.

Fines of $4 each were imposed on Jeremiah Harvey, Henry Melanson, and John O'Donnell, while the amount was $8 in the case of Samuel Dookins, each on a charge of drunkenness. On a similar charge Gilbert Lauchner, who paid $5 yesterday for drunkenness, was fined $2 for violating the laws relating to coaching at the union depot.

Factory Inspector Kenney reported the Merritt Milling Co. of Black River for not having complied with the law by neglecting to notify him of an accident in their mill, in which James Osborne was hurt. Joseph Merritt advised that the matter be postponed until he could communicate with his foreman.

The name of Michael Harvey was called, in a liquor case, but he was not present. Policeman Gossline testified to having served summonses repeatedly on him, but he said he was too sick to go to court. The case will come up when he improves.

BELIEVES HE WAS DRUGGED

Nova Scotian Has Reason to Remember His Visit—Case in Police Court

John Newman, a Scotchman, who came here yesterday from Halifax, will have cause to remember his visit to this city, for he had a very unpleasant stay, most of his time being spent in the lock-up. He claims that his presence there was due to his having been drugged in the restaurant owned by James Barclay in Pond street, where he says he was supplied with whiskey yesterday morning. Barclay, however, asserts that the liquor was given to Newman by a cookhouse and in order to take the latter's evidence the case was postponed until Saturday at 9 a. m.

Policeman Hughes told of having made the arrest, and of Newman recognizing the place this morning as where he got the liquor yesterday. Newman said his mind was a blank after he left the store, but he remembered, having left an overcoat there, and of getting it today.

DR. WILKES TO WED MISS BARTLETT OF LANCASTER THIS EVENING

The bridesmaid, Miss Helen Roddy, will wear white silk and she will carry a basket of flowers. Roy MacGibbon will support the groom.
After the ceremony Dr. and Mrs. Wilkes will leave on the Halifax train for a honeymoon trip through Nova Scotia. On their return they will reside in Fairview where Dr. Wilkes has opened an office.
