GOLDEN JUBILEE OF SISTERS OF CHARITY.

Many Participate in Opening Ceremonies Today.

New Chapel Dedicated With Impressive Solemnity—Able Sermon by Rev. Father Kenzel of Roxbury, Mass.

This morning the splendid new chapel, Cliff street, of the Sisters of Charity was decorated with great ceremony and the celebration of the golden anniversary of the order was begun. At one o'clock luncheon was served at the convent. Tomorrow morning a solemn mass of requiem will be celebrated at 8 o'clock for the repose of the souls of deceased members. The chapel will remain open all day for those who wish to inspect it.

The ceremony this morning was most interesting. The size of the building did not permit of the accommodation of the general public, but the chapel was well filled by the priests, the sisters of the order, the orphans in their charge and a number of benefactors of the order. The dedication began at 9.30. The service was conducted by His Reverend the Bishop, assisted by Rev. Father Robert V. G., as deacon; Father Doyle, as sub-deacon, and Father Chapman as high priest. All the priests in procession went through the church to the front door. Outside prayers were said by the bishop, who then began the asperging of the church with holy water. The priest then turned around the whole church, asperging the walls. They then returned to the altar where the litany of the saints was sung. The walls inside the church were next blessed and sprinkled with holy water. This finished the benediction of the church.

At 10 a. m. pontifical high mass was celebrated by the bishop, with Rev. Father Chapman, V. G., as high priest; Father Herbert V. G., as deacon; and Father Doyle sub-deacon of honor, and Father O'Neil deacon of the mass. Rev. R. J. Cooghan, of the R. H. Holland were masters of ceremonies.

The jubilee sermon was preached by Rev. Francis Kenzel, of Roxbury, Mass. His text was the following: "The vine and you are the branches. He that believeth in me and I in him shall bear much fruit, and the fruit remaining will be followed with the closest attention by all present.

The various orders of the church, he said, were made in the memory of a single branch. Fifty years ago the vine put forth a new sprout which was destined to be a most glorious branch. This order, which has done so much good work, has spread into every town and village in this diocese, and has borne wonderful fruit. It has lasted for half a century, in three ways. 1. The love of God Almighty; 2. Education and increase of knowledge; 3. The perfection of religious life.

The preacher spoke of the great work the order had done in the care and education of orphans. At the beginning Mother Mary took some of the children to her own convent, and the work has continued ever since. There is no object which appears so strong as to the human heart as a child, fatherless and motherless. The children cared for by the order were in a different position, from those in public orphan asylum. With the Sisters of Charity it was not a question of business. They had discovered the key to the mystery of the poor and remembrance of the words of Christ when He said that what you do to the least of them, you do unto me. In the little orphan she sees the young Christ. Her love is the love of God Almighty.

Not only has the order assisted the orphans, but also the aged ones, neglected in the autumn of life. They are taken to the Mater Misericordiae Home and kindly cared for. The Sisters of Charity sits by the aged, sick and becomes an angel of the hospital. And when at last the taper of life burns low, she is who goes for the priest and attends to the last wishes of the dying.

This evening the members of St. Vincent's Alumnae Association met at the convent to pay their respects to the sisters.

Then when the memory of the dead one has faded from the memory even of her relations still the prayer for her remains with the prayer for the orphans from the mouth of the sister. The Sisters of Charity also teach and send forth children well educated and prepared to be the fathers and mothers of Catholic families. Their influence is felt through the entire community. Their quiet costume reminds the girl of the world to her own frivolity, the rosary calls to her mind prayers which have been forgotten and the cross brings to her mind holy things.

The third point was the most important. The sisters are the fruit of Christian perfection. By the vow of poverty she not only parts with all her riches but all opportunities of ever being the owner of wealth. Sometimes she has to suffer for the necessities of life especially in this so in some of the younger branches. In the vow of chastity they cast aside the pleasures of the senses. They are like the virgin among the disciples—the Apostle John.

By the vow of obedience, the sister parts with one thing which one can really call his own. She obeys not will but that of God Almighty, the voice of God which comes to her through the words of the mother superior. This is the greatest renunciation of them all. Those who say that convent life should not be permitted indulge only in empty prattle. What kind of a judge is the world in such matters?

In conclusion on behalf of his lordship and the priests assembled he congratulated the order on their great work. Nearly 2,000 children had been cared for and hundreds of aged looked after. The academies of the order are now crowded. The magnificent

M. WITTE LEADS THE PEACE COMMISSION.

Takes the Place of His Rival Muravieff.

His Appointment a Guarantee of Peace—A Sketch of the Career of Russia's Best Hated Man.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 13.—12.53 p. m.—Emperor Nicholas has signed the appointment of M. Witte, president of the committee of ministers, yesterday to be the chief plenipotentiary representing the Russian government in the peace negotiations to be conducted next month in the United States. The appointment which was signed after midnight clothes M. Witte with plenipotentiary powers. Notification of the designation of M. Witte to head the mission was based partly on his state of health and partly on the fact that his resignation of the position of minister of the North German Lloyd steamship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grossen, which sailed from Cherbourg, July 26.

PARIS, July 13.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Echo de Paris stated that the designation of M. Muravieff to head the Russian peace mission was based partly on his state of health and partly on the fact that his allowance for expenses to cover the period of his sojourn in America was only 15,000 roubles, which amount is considered insufficient, owing to the cost of living in the United States.

M. Witte twice refused to become the successor of M. Muravieff on the mission on the ground that he did not wish to be a mere figurehead in the transmission to Emperor Nicholas of the peace terms offered by the Japanese. His selection therefore cannot be taken to mean that the emperor has yielded to his insistence that the power of a plenipotentiary be conferred upon Russia's principal representative in the peace commission.

Sergius Witte, chief of the Russian plenipotentiaries may be regarded as the leading liberal statesman of Russia.

He is about fifty-six years old, and has worked his way up from the position of an underpaid railroad clerk, who occasionally acted as porter to the minister of finance, to the position of the fact that his enemies are numerous and include some of the most powerful men in Russia. He is what is known as a well-hated man, but his honesty and ability have never been doubted even by his worst enemies.

One of the reasons for his unpopularity is the fact that Witte is very remotely Russian. His father was of Dutch descent and he himself was born at Tiflis, Caucasus. Witte was created a baron in 1881, but he has generally been referred to as "M. Witte." He is thoroughly familiar with the Far Eastern question in 22 years.

Practically it was M. Witte's disapproval of Russia's Far Eastern policy and the creation of a vice-royalty in the East that caused his downfall as minister of finance. During his trip to Port Arthur, in 1893, M. Witte was invited by the Japanese government to visit Japan, which would indicate that the Japanese probably will welcome the selection to conduct the peace negotiations on behalf of Russia, knowing that they will be dealing with the Russian statesman who understands the situation and is more likely to reach an agreement mutually advantageous.

chapel, dedicated today with such pomp and ceremony, was the finest of its kind the speaker had ever seen.

The priests present were: Rev. Fr. Couchlan, J. P. Carleton, J. W. Holland, D. S. O'Keefe, of the palace, W. F. Chapman, V. G., of St. John the Baptist; J. J. O'Donovan, of West End; C. Collins, of Fairview; Fr. White, C. S. S. R.; Fr. Sculley, C. S. S. R.; Fr. Borgeman, C. S. S. R., of St. Peter; Fr. A. J. O'Neil, of Silver Falls; H. D. Cormier, of Moncton; A. Robichaud, of Fox Creek; J. Hebert, V. G., of Bonaventure; A. Fortier, of St. Joseph's College; A. Fortier, of St. Martin's; E. Doyle, of Milford, and P. L. Carney, of Fredericton.

King St. East People Disgusted With Conditions Surrounding the Neighboring Repository for Dead Bodies.

The paragraph published in yesterday's Star to the effect that there are numerous complaints as to the nauseous and disagreeable smell from the mortuary on King street East has received corroboration from a number of well known citizens whose business led them into the neighborhood of the mortuary during the time the body was resting there. Taking into consideration the fact that at the present moment the morgue is where it is, and the position could not be altered in five minutes, there are those who say that sufficient care is not taken to ward off the odors which arise consequent on the decomposition of the body.

Taking for example the case which caused the complaint yesterday, it is known that a body which had been in the water for two months, was taken to the mortuary by two officers, dumped down on an old wooden stand, the window facing the street opened wide, and the body left there just as it was, to await the pleasure of the one, whose duty it is to issue a permit for its burial, and whose duty it should be to see to the proper disinfecting of the body in the interim.

Sheriff Ritchie when seen by the Star this morning admitted the whole affair as "simply disgusting." All the windows in the various buildings adjoining the morgue had to be closed, and even there the stench was unbearable. He said it was altogether the wrong place to have a dead house, which should certainly be on the water side, in an unobtrusive building which it receives are those found in the water.

Acting magistrate Henderson was also strongly in favor of the mortuary being removed and complains of the stench of Tuesday last.

J. V. McLaughlin, the Registrar of Deeds, whose office practically adjoins the dead house, complains strongly of the stench which pervaded the whole building on Monday and Tuesday. There were people whose business took them to the registrar's office on these days and who since have been quite ill as a result of smell arising from the decomposed body. It is necessary to pass by the door and window of the mortuary on Monday and Tuesday, as it is in the office and as the window was wide open, description of the dangerous smell is needless.

The Misses Rankin who live in the jail, also bear out the statement as to the horrible state of affairs.

T. M. Burns, the secretary of the Board of Health, is out of town, but another official admitted the place could hardly be described as an ideal one and said it was a matter for the city council to deal with.

Dr. Berryman when seen this morning said he had everything possible to expedite matters. All his business was to order the removal of the body there. The city paid a man to look after the mortuary, but in the case he (Dr. Berryman) had disinfectant the place all over within a few hours of the body being taken there. He couldn't conceive how anyone could make a fuss about the smell. What was a dead house for he asked, but to receive the bodies of dead people.

The official referred to tests the magnificent remuneration of $40 a year to look after the mortuary and little wonder can be felt as to why he neglected his duty.

DARING ATTEMPT TO BLOW UP THE CZAR.

250 Pounds of Dynamite Under His Bedroom--General Trepoft Expects to be Assassinated.

NEW YORK, July 13.—A World dispatch from London says the following from the Vienna correspondent of the Daily Telegraph: Private letters from St. Petersburg state that the police have discovered elaborate preparations for blowing up the Castle of Ilienskoe near Moscow where the Czar and the Imperial Family intended to take up a brief residence. Beneath the apartments destined for His Majesty's use a subterranean passage is said to have been found leading to a cellar where 250 pounds of dynamite lay concealed.

The police have made many arrests, apprehending among others two engineers who conducted the cleaning and decorating of the apartments in the castle.

"The intelligence, associated with the murder of Shouvaloff has made a deep impression."

"The Czar has now given up all idea of staying at Ilienskoe."

ST. PETERSBURG, July 13.—The resignation of M. Boulgan, as minister of the interior, is expected daily. General Trepoft, the assistant minister of the interior, probably will be his successor.

The territories have recently renewed their warnings against General Trepoft with ominous persistence. The general is constantly in receipt of letters signed by the executive committee of the fighting organization informing him that his hour has come. A remarkable feature of all the communications is that the writers take pains to say that no safeguards can avert his impending doom. At the same time they tell him not to be afraid to go abroad in the streets, they add: "Your sentence will be executed in your own room. You will die in your bed."

The terrorists seem to take pride in issuing a challenge involving a demonstration of their powers and resources. General Trepoft knows enough of the resources and desperation of the organization to firmly believe the terrorists are able to execute their threats. He makes no concealment of the fact that he expects to be killed, but his nerve is unshaken. He says: "I will at least die at the post of duty."

Privately General Trepoft takes a gloomy view of the autocracy which he believes. The general is confident that if given untrammelled power he could restore the old status quo in a year, but the present vacillating policy he thinks will end only in ruin. A representative assembly, no matter what its initial character may be, he is convinced, will soon be transferred into a constituent assembly which will give the death blow to absolutism.

"The intelligence, associated with the murder of Shouvaloff has made a deep impression."

"The Czar has now given up all idea of staying at Ilienskoe."

ST. PETERSBURG, July 13.—The resignation of M. Boulgan, as minister of the interior, is expected daily. General Trepoft, the assistant minister of the interior, probably will be his successor.

The territories have recently renewed their warnings against General Trepoft with ominous persistence. The general is constantly in receipt of letters signed by the executive committee of the fighting organization informing him that his hour has come. A remarkable feature of all the communications is that the writers take pains to say that no safeguards can avert his impending doom. At the same time they tell him not to be afraid to go abroad in the streets, they add: "Your sentence will be executed in your own room. You will die in your bed."

The terrorists seem to take pride in issuing a challenge involving a demonstration of their powers and resources. General Trepoft knows enough of the resources and desperation of the organization to firmly believe the terrorists are able to execute their threats. He makes no concealment of the fact that he expects to be killed, but his nerve is unshaken. He says: "I will at least die at the post of duty."

Privately General Trepoft takes a gloomy view of the autocracy which he believes. The general is confident that if given untrammelled power he could restore the old status quo in a year, but the present vacillating policy he thinks will end only in ruin. A representative assembly, no matter what its initial character may be, he is convinced, will soon be transferred into a constituent assembly which will give the death blow to absolutism.

250 Pounds of Dynamite Under His Bedroom--General Trepoft Expects to be Assassinated.

NEW YORK, July 13.—A World dispatch from London says the following from the Vienna correspondent of the Daily Telegraph: Private letters from St. Petersburg state that the police have discovered elaborate preparations for blowing up the Castle of Ilienskoe near Moscow where the Czar and the Imperial Family intended to take up a brief residence. Beneath the apartments destined for His Majesty's use a subterranean passage is said to have been found leading to a cellar where 250 pounds of dynamite lay concealed.

The police have made many arrests, apprehending among others two engineers who conducted the cleaning and decorating of the apartments in the castle.

A DEFENCELESS TREASURY.

A cartoon in an Upper Canadian paper represents the Canadian treasury weeping a goodby to J. Lorne McDougall, who is leaving it unprotected amid great dangers.
A better depiction of the situation today would be hard to find. For twenty-eight years, Mr. McDougall, as auditor general, has stood between the treasury and the grafters. Appointed by Sir Alexander McKenzie he served through the eighteen years of Conservative rule faithfully. At times he was too censorious in his criticisms, too niticky and trivial in his methods but his errors were always in the direction of safety and no Conservative ever attempted to lessen the powers allowed under the Audit Act, of which he took full advantage.
But when the time came again to do the work Sir Alexander McKenzie appointed him to do—protect the treasury from Liberals—his troubles began. He found every obstacle put in the way of his duty, found himself confronted by improved tricks of graft, by influences and pressure he never felt before. In the face of these he found himself, under the present Audit Act, powerless to protect adequately the money of the people. He asked for an amendment but got no response. The government even refused to appoint a commission to enquire if amendments were necessary. He threatened to resign—still no response. Now he has resigned, as clearly forced away from his post as if he had been seized by masked men and thrown out of the window.
Mr. McDougall is only sixty-nine years old and as fit for good work as he ever was. But because he will not consent to stand beside the public safe with his eyes bandaged and his mouth gagged, he must go.
The cartoon referred to faithfully represented the treasury as shedding tears. It is the people, whose money that treasury holds who should be weeping at J. Lorne McDougall's departure. For those who are forcing him out are not doing so for nothing and what they make we must pay.

LIBERALS AND IMPERIALISM.

Are the Liberal leaders indifferent with respect to British connection or are they deliberately plotting to separate this country from the empire? The recent history of the party compels belief in one theory or the other.
There has been the persistent refusal of the government to contribute anything to the maintenance of the Imperial army or navy; there was the so evident reluctance with which the popular clamor was acceded to and Canadian soldiers allowed to go to the British taxpayer's expense—South Africa; there was Laurier's refusal to join with the leader of the opposition in a resolution approving the Imperial objects of Mr. Chamberlain's preference policy and there is the more recent action which will soon result in the withdrawal of the last British soldier from Canada and probably of the British navy from Canadian waters.
Are any of these things calculated to knit Canada more closely into the empire? Are they not rather apt to loosen the bonds, to make Canada gradually more independent, to develop little-Canadianism, as distinct from Imperialism?
And if they are, what is the object of those who are forcing Canada along these lines?

Three times as much bonus for immigrants from the scum of continental Europe as for Great Britain—that is what the Liberal government is paying and that is a fair indication of their attitude toward all things British.

The morgue on King St. East, as at present conducted, is disgusting and unsanitary and the protest of the people of that vicinity is well founded. A properly equipped and managed repository for unidentified bodies with disinfecting and cooling facilities is not open to so much objection, but that unventilated, filthy, foetid room on King Street with no water and no accommodations, save dirty tables is a dangerous neighbor.

The Dominion of Canada closed the fiscal year at the end of last month with a net debt of $21,922,225, which was $5,964,450 in excess of the debt of the year before. There is an increase of $850,000 in revenue for the year, an advance of $5,550,000 on the current expenditure, and of $1,880,000 in the capital expenditure. But the expenditure accounts are not all in, and something will be added to these generous figures.

SPIES FOLLOW LAWSON.
Author of Frozened Finance Says He Is Being Tracked in His Western Speaking Tour.
FAIRBURY, Neb., July 12.—Thomas W. Lawson spoke his audience at Fairbury Chautauqua yesterday that three spies following his enemies are following his utterances and the temper of his audiences. Mr. Lawson said that he knew the men, their names and that he could have no higher tribute to the effectiveness of his work than that it was thought worth while to track him.
Fairbury was much alive to the opportunity of seeing and hearing Mr. Lawson. A crowd of curious citizens gathered about his car and he shook hands with more than eight hundred men and women, some of whom said they had come five, six and seven hundred miles to see him. Several citizens with automobiles and a brass band took Mr. Lawson and his party to the circus tent in which the Chautauqua meetings are held. Half of the audience were women.
Mr. Lawson had partly recovered his voice and spoke in a low conversational tone. He said:—
"I have come out West on a very simple message. I said in Kansas on the evening of my first talk that I had come for the sole purpose of endeavoring to plant a simple, tiny kernel of truth. Whereupon, one of the great reformers of the East, District Attorney Jerome, of New York, in an enthusiastic effort to give me the second of called my attention, on the eve of my effort to root up the ground to get that kernel in, that it was a poor joke on his part, that he would plant anything, much less one kernel. And the papers also called attention to the fact that the West had already been planted with a kind of kernel I proposed to distribute.
"My mission to the West is to try to show the people just where the enormous surplus over and above what they have consumed for their existence has gone.
"My enemies and those who may suffer through my work call what I have to say 'rot.' After I got through talking in Kansas City one of the papers said—'Why, there is nothing new there. That is the old Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska populism.' I don't know where it is or not, but I have been so very busy in my lifetime doing those things that I know that the West has already been planted to spend hunting up other people's business, which I did not see had any connection with mine. Now it may be that I have been saying and am going to say is the old populism of the West. If it is it must be pretty good stuff.
"It is the old populism, then, Wall Street and Standard Oil and the rest are about to learn for the first time that Western populism is the hottest stuff that ever struck them."
"John D. Rockefeller isn't such a bad fellow—he is as good as he knows how to be but not being able to save him from the hands of a receiver when once I got to him."
The granger and farmer of the day was shown when Mr. Lawson called on the people of Kansas to keep their eye on him, and see whether he made good. He had considerably and Dr. Sheffield, who was nearby when the accident happened, and who ordered the lad removed to the hospital, cannot yet tell how serious the accident is.
Young Fleet was riding at a rapid pace along Prince William street in the direction of the Western Union office, when in front of the Imperial building his wheel collided with Samuel Johnston, a painter, who was crossing the street. The lad was hurled through the air over the handle bar of the wheel and struck on his head. Johnston was knocked down and for some time was in a semi-unconscious state, but soon recovered and was able to go back to work. He had considerably and Dr. Sheffield, who was nearby when the accident happened, and who ordered the lad removed to the hospital, cannot yet tell how serious the accident is.

STRIKE FUNDS SHORT.

Contributions to Chicago Strikers Falling Off—Another Effort to Spread the Struggle is Being Made.

CHICAGO, July 13.—The executive board of the Chicago Federation of Labor has abandoned the solicitation of funds on behalf of the striking teamsters. Hereafter all contributions from unions affiliated with the federation will be received by the finance committee of the teamsters' joint council. Complete delivery unions affiliated with the federation have dwindled from $12,000 a week early in the strike, to less than $4,000. The department store drivers made a strong effort last night to spread the struggle. At the meeting officials of the union announced that a special meeting of the baggage-men and parcel delivery drivers will be held tonight to vote on a strike against parcel delivery concerns that collect from the Chicago Cartage Company, which is making deliveries to strike-bound firms.

MESSENGER BOY HURT.

Thrown From His Bicycle and Dangerously Injured—Same Boy Was Badly Hurt Last Year.

Herbert Fleet, a Western Union telegraph messenger boy, is in the hospital in a very critical condition as a result of a bicycle accident this morning.

Young Fleet is no stranger to the hospital, having spent some weeks there last fall, when for eleven days he lay unconscious as the result of a fall from Leonard's wharf, when he received a slight fracture of the skull. It is his head that is again injured, and Dr. Sheffield, who was nearby when the accident happened, and who ordered the lad removed to the hospital, cannot yet tell how serious the accident is.

Young Fleet was riding at a rapid pace along Prince William street in the direction of the Western Union office, when in front of the Imperial building his wheel collided with Samuel Johnston, a painter, who was crossing the street. The lad was hurled through the air over the handle bar of the wheel and struck on his head. Johnston was knocked down and for some time was in a semi-unconscious state, but soon recovered and was able to go back to work. He had considerably and Dr. Sheffield, who was nearby when the accident happened, and who ordered the lad removed to the hospital, cannot yet tell how serious the accident is.

Passamaquoddy Indians To Play Here Tomorrow and Saturday—Entries for St. John Races—Tennis.

BASEBALL.

INDIANS TO PLAY HERE.

When the steamer Pocahontas of the Eastern Steamship Company's fleet arrives in St. John this afternoon she will bring among her passengers the famous Passamaquoddy Indian baseball team from Perry, Maine. The Indians will play two games with the St. John team on Friday and Saturday afternoons on the Victoria grounds. These games promise to be the most interesting event of the season for local fans and already have attracted more attention than any other similar event ever held here.

The visitors are full blooded Indians, and it will certainly be interesting to see them at the game in which their white brethren have become so adept. Manager Douthan has the St. John team in splendid shape and the boys will go on to the field prepared to win both games.

Mitchell, or, to give him his Indian name, "Tah-na-ka-ka-ne," signifying "Big Man Who Chases The Duck," will pitch for the visitors in the first game, while Don McEachern will float them up for the local team.

THE TURF.

TAUNTON RACES.

TAUNTON, Mass., July 12.—Favorites had a hard time winning today in the second day of the race meet of the Gloucester County Fair Association. In the 2.13 trot, Totara, who was picked, after winning the first heat, was outdriven in the second and broke in the third. Tier held him in reserve in the fourth, but after that he took the next two and the race. There were only two starters in the free-for-all, which was won by John M. in a four heat race.

Chimes Bell, the favorite, was beaten in the 1.35 trot by Wavette, while in the 2.25 pace Argus's break in the second heat caused some anxiety. The Somersworth mare took the next two and the race.

ENTRIES FOR ST. JOHN RACES.

The races to be held at Moscopath on July 19th and 20th promise to give the best exhibition of speed seen here for some time. The entries are now all in, and each class has a fine field.

It will be noticed that John M. Johnston's horses make their start for this season in these coming races.

RACERS AT SUSSEX YESTERDAY.

The races at Sussex yesterday opened at sharp two o'clock. The crowd present was somewhat smaller than in former years, about 600 in all having passed through the gates. The best of the race was the 2.13 in which John M. Johnston's Stables, the latter having charge of the races gave entire satisfaction. Frank J. Power of Halifax, acted as starter and judge, with W. G. Gillis of Springfield, N. B., and H. M. Bain of Kentville, N. S., the official timers were W. C. Ward, W. C. Campbell and Geo. A. Chamberlain. S. A. McLeod of Sussex, was clerk and official starter.

The track was in the condition, the only drawback being the dust. Good time was made in each of the races, the best being 2.13 by Lady Ringen of the Springhill stables. The horses got even starts and in most cases there was little change in the position after the start was made. The following is a summary of the different classes:

TENNIS.

HAMPTON TOURNAMENT.
 HAMPTON, Kings County, July 11.—The ladies' handicap tournament of the Hampton Tennis Club, for the fine Spaulding's tennis racquet, offered in competition by Col. Alperon, of New York, which was started last Saturday afternoon, was finished last evening in the presence of a large number of the members of the club and interested spectators.

In the first round Miss Frances Prichard defeated Miss George Weston, 6-4, 3-3.
 Miss Winnie Barnes defeated Mrs. F. A. Young, 1-6, 6-4.
 Miss Lou Girvan defeated Miss Frances Mabee, 6-4, 1-2.
 Mrs. T. W. Barnes defeated Miss Fanny Langstroth 6-4, 4-5.
 In the second round Miss Frances Prichard defeated Miss Lou Girvan 6-4, 4-3.
 Miss Winnie Barnes defeated Mrs. T. W. Barnes 6-7, 4-5.
 In the final Miss Winnie Barnes defeated Miss Frances Prichard 4-6, 6-0-1.

The last round developed some very fine play, and was a strenuous struggle from first to last. Miss Prichard's service was at times quite brilliant, but the activity of her opponent and her well conducted rally, steadily ran up the score, notwithstanding the heavy handicap she had to overcome. R. A. March and P. A. Young acted as umpires, and on the announcement of the result hearty cheers were given for the winner.

The racquet was presented to Miss Barnes by Mr. March, in the name of Col. Alperon, with a few words of well deserved praise, which were endorsed by all who had witnessed the contest. Miss Barnes modestly responded, after which "doubles" were played on the three courts until darkness set in.

NO FLAW IN THE CELEBRATION.

12th. of July Glorification a Joyful One

Orangemen Everywhere Joined Loyally—Drowning Married N. S. Picnic—Formation of Third Party Advocated.

The glorious twelfth for this year is now a thing of the past. The greatest interest centred at Fredericton where the twelve traditional cars all crowded to their utmost capacity came in over the I. C. R. at 1.30 p. m., under a double headed train over the road and one of the heaviest ever brought to the city of Fredericton.

The excursion train from Moncton over the I. C. R. consisted of ten cars and a double headed train arrived at 2.30. Every car was loaded down. The regular train over the I. C. R. did not reach the city until after the special. She also brought in a heavy load.

The steamer Victoria having on board, representatives of six St. John lodges, and a band and a large number of excursionists, arrived in port shortly after two o'clock. A procession was at once formed and was played by the band to Smythe street.

The local lodges met at the Orange Hall, Queen street, and were taken to Smythe street to join the parade.

The members of the Marysville ladies' lodge drove to the city in barouches at 1.30 o'clock. The members of the Rosemore Lodge marched from their hall at Gibson.

The parade was formed on Smythe street at the upper part of the city and it was nearly four o'clock before it got under way.

The route of march was about as previously arranged. The ceremony of decorating the grave of P. C. M. Anderson was most impressive, and the pines in Scully's Grove a stand had been erected which was occupied by the leading members of the Orange lodges. York County Master Oldham presided and introduced the several speakers. Owing to the fateness of the hour the programme was quite short but were loudly applauded.

Grand Master McLeod was received by the vast assemblage with cheers. He warmly welcomed the Orange order and congratulated them on their excellent turnout.

Past Grand Master E. R. Heine, followed the grand master. The Orange order, he said, stood for equal rights to all. Such a thing as class legislation was foreign to its principles.

Past Grand Master Thomas said the Orangemen believed with that great statesman, Chamberlain, in the up-building and interests of our great empire.

Robert Maxwell, past master of St. John was the last speaker. We will ever fight for the rights of the people against legislation on the separate schools, he said. His remarks brought forth cheers.

After cheers for the king the gathering dispersed, the visitors leaving again for their homes.

The Dominion Lodge, No. 141, L. O. L. excursion to Digby was well patronized. There was no official welcome but the informal welcoming of the excursionists was of the heartiest. At three o'clock the return was commenced and all arrived safely in St. John at 5.45 p. m.

The Local Orange lodges of Western Cumberland had their annual walk at Parrsboro. The Parrsboro Cornet band furnished the music. The Orangemen of Kings East celebrated the day with the Londonderry Heres at Markhamville. Speeches were delivered by Brother Jas. A. Moore and Past Grand Secretary J. M. McIntyre. The dinner and dance at Lorneville was most successful.

HALIFAX, July 12.—The Orange demonstration at Shubenacadie was attended by 5,000 people, who gathered from all the central parts of the province. The affair was a success, but

SAVED EJECTABLE FROM BANKRUPTCY.

NEW YORK, July 12.—The following statement was given out today by Thomas F. Ryan:
 "The report of my connection with the Washington Life Insurance Company are inaccurate. When that company was on the verge of bankruptcy last December, I was a director, but I joined Governor Morton and other subscribers in the necessary money to put the company in the strong financial position which it finds itself in today. Its business is daily increasing and the policy holders are to be congratulated. Governor Morton's wisdom, wholly from a sense of duty, and in spite of his advanced age, to step in to prevent impending disaster to a company of which he had been a charter member."

CURE-ALL FOR HUMAN ILLS.

CHICAGO, July 10.—After suffering for over three years with stomach trouble, W. L. Steele, of No. 715 Michigan avenue, Evanston, has determined to try the open air treatment, and during the summer months will sleep in a tent in his back yard.

Mr. Steele has suffered considerably from stomach disorders, and after trying several medicines concluded that nothing would help him but a course of open air treatment. A framework of poles was built, which will be hoisted within two feet of the top. This will be covered with cheesecloth. The roof will consist of canvas. A floor will be laid on the inside and cords arranged for sleeping.

The open air treatment has already been tried by Dr. A. P. Pratt and by O. Billing, and "10 men enthusiastic in regard to its benefits."

CHASED BY A BEAR.

Peter Shanklin, of 21 Sydney street, had an experience, a few evenings ago, with a bear while making his way to the city for his bicycle. He was four miles beyond the head of Loch Lomond, about dusk, he saw that there was a full grown bear on the side of the road. The animal raised itself up on its haunches with a hungry growl. Mr. Shanklin increased his speed and flew down the hill and up the next with the animal following after for a short distance. This is the third time Mr. Shanklin has met with these animals near this same spot.

BRIDE AND GROOM DROWNED TOGETHER.

QUEBEC, July 12.—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kerouac of St. Huberts, who were only married about a year, were drowned together in Lac Grande Fourche, county of Tremblay, by the leaking and subsequent foundering of a boat yesterday, in which they were out for a row. Mrs. Dumont, a sister of Mrs. Kerouac, who accompanied them, was picked up alive after having floated in the water on her back for two or three hours.

LITTLE POVERTY IN ST. JOHN.
 Mrs. Hall the secretary to the board of Associated charities in her report for the month of June says that the town is now comparatively free from poverty. There are no cases of absolute want, but of course there are a number of families in needy circumstances. There is plenty of work in the city for men, and Mrs. Hall has no difficulty in securing employment for all able bodied men who want it. But the demand for female labor is not nearly so good.
 Thirty-five applicants sought work last month, of which number Mrs. Hall found jobs for ten, and recommended ten others to persons with whom work might be had. The remainder were women, for whom as already stated, it is not so easy to find employment.

The Wings of the Morning

By LOUIS TRACY
Copyright, 1905, by Edward J. Clode

He decided in favor of the latter course. He wished to dishearten his assistants, to crum down their throats the belief that he was invulnerable and could visit their every effort with a deadly reprisal.

Iris, of course, protested when he explained his project. But the fighting spirit prevailed. Their love idyll must yield to the needs of the hour. He had not long to wait. The last arrow fell and he sprang to the extreme right of the ledge. First he looked through that invaluable screen of grass. Three Dyaks went on the ground and a fourth in the fork of a tree. They were each armed with a blowpipe. He in the tree was first hitting an arrow into the bamboo tube. The others were watching him. Jenks raised his rifle, fired, and the warrior in the tree pitched headlong to the ground. A second shot stretched a companion on top of him. One man jumped into the bushes and got away, but the fourth tripped over his unwieldy sumpitan, and a bullet tore a large section from his skull. The sailor then amused himself with breaking the bamboo by firing at them. He came back to the white faced girl.

"I fancy that further practice with blowpipes will be a discount on Rainbow Island," he cried cheerfully. But Iris was anxious and distrustful. "It is very sad," she said, "that we are obliged to secure our own safety by the careless slaughter of human beings. Is there no other way we can make them, no promise of future gain, to tempt them to abandon hostilities?"

"None whatever. These Borneo Dyaks are bred from infancy to prey on their fellow creatures. To be strangers and defenseless is to court pillage and massacre at their hands. I think no more of shooting them than of smashing a clay pigeon. Killing a mad dog is perhaps a better simile."

"But, Robert dear, how long can we hold out?"
"What? Are you growing tired of me already?"
He hoped to divert her thoughts from this constantly recurring topic. Twice within the hour had it been broached and dismissed, but Iris would not permit him to shirk it again. She made no reply, simply regarding him with a wistful smile.

So Jenks sat down by her side and reassured the hopes and fears which perplexed him. He determined that there should be no further concealment between them. If they failed to secure water that night, if the Dyaks maintained a strict siege of the rock throughout the whole of next day, well—they might survive—it was problematical. Best leave matters in God's hands.

With feminine persistency she clung to the subject, detecting his unwillingness to discuss a possible final stage in their sufferings.

"Robert," she whispered feebly, "you will never let me fall into the power of the chief, will you?"
"Not while I live."
"You must live. Don't you understand? I would go with them to save you. But I would have died by my own hand. Robert, my love, you must do this thing before the end. I must be the first to die."
The sailor wrestled with the great problem. He may be pardoned if his heart quailed and he groaned aloud.

"Iris," he said solemnly, "what ever happens, unless the Dyaks make a coup de grace, I promise you that we shall pass the boundary hand in hand. Be mine the punishment if we have decided wrongly. And mine the credit of energy, let us have done with the morgue. For my part I refuse to acknowledge I am inside until the gates clang behind me."
The chatted in lighter vein with such pendulum swing back to nonchalance that none would have deemed it possible for these two to have already determined if the struggle should go against them.

Were it not for the presence of Iris he would have given no second thought to the peril. To act without consulting her was impossible, so they discussed the project. Naturally she scouted it.

"The Mohammedan may be able to help us," she pointed out. "In any event let us wait until the moon wanes. That is the darkest hour. We do not know what may happen meanwhile." The words had hardly left her mouth when an irregular volley was fired at them from the right flank of the enemy's position. Every man in the front row of the cave opened up on the Dyaks above their heads, the common falling of musketry at night being to take too high an aim. But the impact of the missiles on a rock so highly impregnated with minerals caused sparks to fly, and Jenks saw that the Dyaks would obtain by this means a most dangerous index of their faulty practice. Telling Iris to once occupy her safe corner, he rapidly adjusted a rifle on the wooden rests already prepared in anticipation of an attack from that quarter and fired three shots at the opposing crest whence came the majority of gun flashes.

One at least of the three found a human billet. There was a shout of surprise and pain, and the next volley sprang from the ground level. This could do no damage owing to the angle, but he endeavored to disconcert the marksmen by keeping up a steady fire in their direction. He did not dream of attaining other than a moral effect, as there is a lot of room to miss when aiming in the dark. Soon he imagined that the burst of flame from his rifle helped the Dyaks, because several bullets whizzed close to his head, and about this time firing recommenced from the crest.

Notwithstanding all his skill and manipulation of the wooden supports he failed to dislodge the occupants. Every minute or so more ounces of lead pitched right into the ledge, damaging the stores and tearing the tarpaulin, while those which struck the wall of rock were dangerous to Iris by reason of the molten spray.

He could guess what had happened. By lying flat on the sloping plateau or squeezing close to the projecting shoulder of the cliff the Dyaks were so little exposed that his chances along with the rifleman to hit one of them. But they must be shifted, or this night bombardment would prove the most serious development yet encountered.

"Are you all right, Iris?" he called out.
"Yes, dear," she answered.
"Well, I want you to keep yourself covered by the canvas for a little while, especially your head and shoulders. I am going to stop these chaps. They have found our weak point, but I can baffle them."
She did not ask what he proposed to do. He heard the rustling of the tarpaulin as she pulled it. Instantly he cast loose the rope ladder and, armed only with a revolver, dropped down the cliff. He was quite invisible to the enemy for a moment. There was no sound save the occasional reports nine yards away. He hitched up the lower rungs of the ladder until they were six feet from the level and then crept noiselessly close to the rock for some forty yards.

He halted beside a small pool tree and stooped to find something imbedded near its roots. At this distance he could plainly hear the muttered conversation of the Dyaks and could see several of them prowl on the summit of the cliff. He waited perhaps a few seconds longer than was necessary, endeavoring to pierce the dim atmosphere and learn something of their disposition.

A vigorous effort of firing sent him back with haste. Iris was up there alone. He knew not what might happen. He was now feverishly anxious to be with her again, to hear her voice and be sure that all was well.

CRUISER CANADA AND THE VIRGINIAN.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 12.—The cruiser Canada which returned to Sydney this afternoon, sailed again tonight at 11 o'clock to intercept the Virginia, which it is expected, will be due early in the morning. The Virginia's failure to avoid the Newfoundland fog banks is a great disappointment to the Cape Breton route. The Canada expects to pick up the Virginia port tonight; the sea is quite smooth and little difficulty is anticipated in the transfer of the mails.

TIGER CHASED PRIEST.

BANGALORE, July 6.—The Rev. Father Proger, principal of St. Joseph's College at this place, recently had an unusual experience while cycling from Wellington to Octacomund by the Kettigri road. The road runs between Octacomund and Snellon. Father Proger was riding on a tiger on a rock on the bare hillside above him. As he watched the fact that it was a tiger soon became apparent, and to Father Proger's horror it suddenly bounded straight down the hillside and made for him. Fortunately there was a slight incline in his favor in the road and he cycled for his life until the upward grade became too steep for him, and he was compelled to dismount. But by this time the tiger had ceased pursuit. This unprovoked attack is in itself an unusual occurrence, especially with Nilgiri tigers. As a general thing the animals will not attack human beings, even children, and it is believed that the beast objected to the bicycle more than to the man.

FATAL HEAT IN BOSTON.

BOSTON, July 12.—The torrid wave, which was checked yesterday, at least in this city, by a refreshing breeze, helped the Dyaks, because several bullets whizzed close to his head, and about this time firing recommenced from the crest.

BIG SHIPMENT OF LOBSTERS.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 12.—The str. Gulf of Anou, which sailed tonight for Havre and London, had on board 20,000 cases of lobsters, the largest single shipment of lobsters ever made from this port. They were largely packed on the eastern shore of Nova Scotia, and are worth wholesale approximately $200,000.

WILL VISIT NOVA SCOTIA.

Rev. E. F. Jones, the returned missionary from Japan, who lectured on Tuesday evening in German street Baptist church, will leave on the Dibley boat Saturday morning for Nova Scotia. He will deliver lectures on Japan in Wolfville and Windsor, after which he will return to St. John on his way back to California. Mr. Jones has looked up all the Japanese settlements along the Pacific coast, and has laid out an abundance of work for himself there during the closing months of his tour. His sympathies are ever with the people wherever they are found, and he hopes to use his furrow as a means of assisting in many ways those who have wandered away from the home country and come to our shores.

Mr. Jones took a trip up river on the Victoria yesterday, and will return to the city today.

ST. JOHN MAN DEAD OUT WEST.

Referring to the death of Harry A. Day, formerly of this city, the Oakland (Cal.) Enquirer says:—The many friends of Harry A. Day of Berkeley were grieved to learn of his death in San Jose on the 12th inst. Mr. Day had been in poor health for several months, but the change to the warmer atmosphere of the Santa Clara Valley proved very beneficial and he was rapidly regaining his health. About the latter part of May, however, he contracted a cold that developed pneumonia and in a few weeks he passed away despite the efforts of faithful physician and friends. The funeral services in I. O. O. F. Hall in Berkeley on Sunday 25 were largely attended and were held under the auspices of Berkeley Lodge No. 270. I. O. F. of which order Mr. Day was a highly respected member. Patriarchs Millant of Oakland and Berkeley No. 18, Grand Fraternal assisted in the funeral. He was laid to rest in Mountain View Cemetery beside Josephine, the dearly beloved sister of the deceased, who died only a year ago. A strange coincidence in the death of these two who were so attached to each other is the fact that they both died on the same day and at the same hour of the day and on the same day of the month just a year apart.

HOSPITAL PHYSICIANS.

Dr. Scott, the new superintendent of the General Public Hospital, who has taken charge, is a Montreal man, and a graduate of McGill.

Dr. Loggie, the assistant house surgeon, arrived in the city last evening, and will assume his new duties tomorrow. Dr. Loggie is a native of Chatham, and is also a McGill graduate.

Dr. Grant, the former superintendent, is spending a vacation in Woodstock, N. B., and Dr. Bentley has gone to his home in Truro. It is understood that he eventually both Dr. Grant and Dr. Bentley will locate out west.

MUSCULAR MEN LIVE LONGEST.

CHICAGO, July 10.—Fat and lean men are now being defended by the heavy, muscular men. Ten of the leading insurance companies of Chicago taking life risks have revised their mortality tables in favor of the "heavy, active man" and against the fat and spare man.

Change in premium rates and risks is not confined to Chicago—it is a national movement inspired by the medical examiners of the life insurance companies. As one of the medical examiners said recently:

"In the early days of figuring mortality averages there is no doubt that tall averages were less than had an advantage. The thin man was a preferred risk with many companies—in fact, the average of collecting statistics on the general average of life have brought the life insurance companies to some new conclusions, based wholly on the physical condition of the applicant for insurance. These conclusions favor the heavy, active man, discredit the ordinary fat man, and leave the lean man in a state of doubt. The latter is no longer the favorite.

"Life insurance risks for the last 20 years, show this, and I am taking the reports of over 20 leading companies.

"The thin man is nervous, worries and gets tuberculosis. The fat man eats and drinks too much and is a victim of heart disease or apoplexy."

ROOF GARDENS IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, July 6.—The roof garden craze has struck London hard. The first of London's public roof gardens is being arranged for opening at the Westminster Electric Supply Corporation's new station in Duke Street Grover Square. It will be laid out in Indian style, and it opens up possibilities in the utilization of the roof surfaces of buildings. If it proves to be a success, as it now seems certain it will, the metropolitan area soon be graced with many similar attractions. The site of the building was formerly a private garden belonging to the Duke of Westminster, but the corporation obtained permission to build upon it on a condition that they made an undertaking to maintain a roof garden which should always be open to the public between sunrise and sunset. Seats are being provided, and Westminster's "garden" will be the most restful and picturesque spots in London.

MODERN SCHOOLBOYS PAMPERED.

LONDON, July 6.—Dr. Wace, Dean of Canterbury, has stirred up a hornet's nest by claiming that the school boys of England are pampered. When a boy at school, he remarked, there was scarcely anything necessary for the purposes of his education except a room, a book, a man and sometimes a stick. He had an idea that the healthy Spartan habits in which boys were bred formerly trained were not forgotten, but he believed that there was too great a tendency in schools nowadays to encourage luxury. This has brought forth a storm of protests from some of the educators of Great Britain and some of the students in the schools as well. Some of the more factious have endeavored to remark that the deficiencies in the early training of the Dean of Canterbury are now beginning to show upon many years afterwards. The Dean, however, views the subject in a philosophical light and says he is amused at the outbreak which only goes to help demonstrate that "modern molly-coddling" is indulged in.

The Story of a Famous Tropical Rheumatism Cure; How It Brought Good Fortune and Success In Love

A Treasure From the South Seas

By . . . Howard Fielding

Copyright, 1935, by Charles W. Hooker

R. TERRY would like to see you, sir," said the office boy, and then perceiving that the name conveyed no meaning to his chief, he added: "Tinker" Terry.

"That's what he says," said Mr. Austin. "Tinker" Terry, he said. "He was drowned two years ago last April in the middle of the Pacific ocean."

"He looks it, sir," responded the boy, with a timid grin.

"Send him in," said Austin. Presently there appeared at the door of the private office a man who had indeed been drowned. Fathoms deep had gone down amid the whirlpools of this world, and the engulfing billows had sung in his ears. Then despair had come to him like a friend, even like that good friend death, who offers rest after the agony of striving.

"He looks it, sir," responded the boy, with a timid grin. "Send him in," said Austin. Presently there appeared at the door of the private office a man who had indeed been drowned.

the deep from the instant when his foot first touched her deck. No hull could float him, and no mast could stand against the fury of the tempests which gathered on his path.

"But what was the object of all this?" he demanded when Terry paused.

"Tinker Terry is dead," said he slowly. "He was drowned two years ago last April in the middle of the Pacific ocean."

"He looks it, sir," responded the boy, with a timid grin.

"Send him in," said Austin. Presently there appeared at the door of the private office a man who had indeed been drowned.

"He looks it, sir," responded the boy, with a timid grin.

seconds contemplated the author's name, half effaced, upon the cover.

"I love this man like a brother," said he, "yet he was no physician."

"Physician be damned!" exclaimed Terry impatiently. "I'd rather have the patient's word than the doctor's any day. He says he was cured. That's what the public wants to know."

"The man, do you fancy that I like to be poor? Is this my taste in the matter of generally supposed to be a sharer in this fairly prosperous business, but the fact is that I am only the salaried manager on a yearly contract. I haven't $10,000 of my own in the world; so there's the end of it."

"You put your $10,000 into kanitu," said Terry, with dire earnestness, "and you'll have a fortune within two years."

"Am I?" rejoined Terry in a sort of subdued shriek as he sprang to his feet.

say: Of course this kanitu business isn't big enough for me to give it my personal attention, but if you want to drop in your little ten thousand and run the thing I'll put up the balance of the capital, whatever we may figure out that it ought to be. We'll talk that over tomorrow. Goodbye for the present."

And he shook hands vigorously and skipped away as lightly as a boy. Austin remained in a dazed condition, from which he was unable to emerge even in the presence of Celia Harland.

In his apartments, however, and under the calming influence of good tobacco he was able to analyze the situation, and he beheld it in three branches:

First, Terry is the son of the father of lies, but he meant to do me a kindness. Shall I betray him and wreck his hopes?

Second, Mr. Harland has been stricken with the fortunate delusion that I am a good business man—the only kind of man he likes or understands. If I tell him the facts and reject this scheme he will think I am a donkey. Can I risk that?

Third, Mr. Harland has looked into this game, and he believes that it will win. His opinion is worth two of mine. To go into this with him and prove my ness. Terry's advertising matter had begun to appear and to excite phenomenal interest. Within a year a flourishing business had been built up. And one evening in his bachelor quarters Austin announced his engagement and accepted the cordial congratulations of his friend Terry, now changed almost beyond recognition and clothed to the edge of fashion.

"I tell you, my son," said Terry, "there's no limit to a brave man's hopes in this big world. Nil desperandum. There's the only motto. And if any man has a right to bear it, I have. You've never realized, you've never understood, what I went through. Two years—two years, by jingo, I struggled, to reach that rascally island and never saw it. No, sir, I was never within 500 miles of it."

"Never?"

"Certainly not. At the end of all that cruising I landed in San Francisco with only a sailor's wages in my pocket and my hopes no nearer than they had been at the start. What did I do? Despair? Not much. I could get out of this confounded kanitu. Very well. I said to myself that I would not be beaten. I made the stuff."

"Made it!"

"Yes, sir. Listen to me. Ten years ago there'd been a great rheumatism cure on the market, but it failed because the proprietors didn't know how to advertise. Now, I knew how to advertise, but I hadn't any cure. Very good. I raised a hundred dollars—began it—and bought the formula of Hawkins' Old Home Remedy, the best thing that ever was. I experimented with a kind of snuff and discovered that a little stick of it the size of a cigarette would soak up near a tablespoonful of the old H's. I recovered that the stuff worked better taken that way than out of the spoon. By jingo, it knocked rheumatism silly."

HE CAUGHT TERRY BY THE SHOULDER.

"THIS IS MY TREASURE."

"BELIEVE!" CRIED HARLAND, AND HE TOSSED HIS ARMS HIGH.

AMUSEMENT AND INSTRUCTION FOR BRIGHT YOUNG AMERICANS OF TODAY

SOME INTERESTING SPECIMENS OF THE MONKEY TRIBE By ALBERTA PLATT

ALL the monkey tribes belong to the division of animals known as quadrupeds, which means four handed. Both the fore and hind feet of these animals are prehensile—that is, able to take hold of things. The first toe of the quadruped is shaped somewhat like a thumb. And somehow, perhaps because they are so much like human beings, we never tire of seeing monkeys and hearing their infants eat what is bad for them, and in that respect Mamma Monk is more firm than human mothers always are.

cause of the rich, radiant blue that is found on each side of its nose. Beneath its eyes are brilliant scarlet, blue and purple stripes. It shows coloring as dazzling as that of any tropical bird. We generally consider the lion and tiger as the strongest, fiercest of animals, yet a cage that would hold the most powerful lion would be bent and broken by the mandrill. It is so fierce, cunning and powerful that it has very seldom been captured. The hideous expression of its face terrifies the natives who meet it in the jungle. One name given to it is maimon, which in Greek signifies "hobgoblin," and that name well suits its ugly, evil appearance. The mandrill falls into the bad habits of the human race more readily than any other animal does. The few specimens that have been captured grow very fond of whisky and beer, and they actually learn to eat tobacco by the plug. An odd thing about them is that in captivity they like women around them both better than men. One of the few full grown mandrills in captivity is now being exhibited through this country in a menagerie. It is as large as a man and weighs 170 pounds. Sometimes mandrills become so wild and crazy with rage that they just kick and claw and yell and then fall over dead, actually killed by their angry passion. Another large baboon, not so fierce as the mandrill, is the chacma, also found in Africa. An English explorer, Captain Drayson, was traveling in South Africa with a party of Kafirs. One morning he got up very early and went out alone. The morning was foggy, and he had a headache, and a cough near him. He looked around and saw what seemed to be a little, old man standing near him. Instantly the little old man dropped upon all fours, snatched up something beside him, threw it upon his back and trotted away as fast as he could. Then Captain Drayson saw the little old man was not a man at all, but a chacma baboon, and the thing he had snatched up and put upon his back was a baby baboon. These animals travel in flocks, and the old baboon hastened to his party, which was not far away. The captain watched the baboon party through his glass. He saw a frisky young one pull the tail of a dignified old male, who turned and soundly cuffed the impudent young one. He ran screaming to his mother, who took the young rascal in her arms and petted him tenderly, for all the world like a human being. Old Mother Why Wants to Know. Where can we always be sure of finding happiness? In the dictionary. How can you get a set of teeth inserted gratis? Kick a dog. To what question has it always been impossible to answer any thing but "yes" but yes? The question, "What does the word 'y-e-s' spell?" If Santos-Dumont fell from his airship, what would he fall against? His inclinations. What is lengthened by being cut at both ends? A ditch. What is smaller than a goat's mouth? Its tongue. Why is a map of Turkey in Europe like a dripping pan? Because there is Greece at the bottom.

JUMBO JUNIOR A WONDERFUL SPELLER.

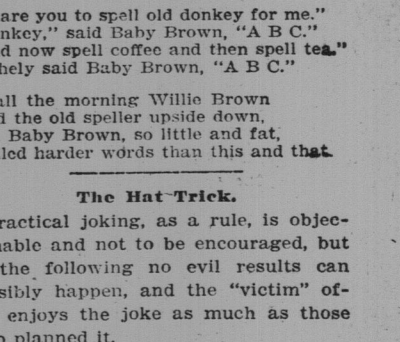

The baby elephant seen in the illustration is called Jumbo Junior. He is just one year old and only thirty-three inches tall, so he does not stand much higher than a big dog. Jumbo Junior was born in the forest of Burma, in India, and lived there with his mother till one sad day she was shot, and he was sent over to the zoo in London. Baby elephants are very delicate, and when Jumbo Junior arrived in London he was driven to the zoo in a cab. During the ride he waved his trunk out of the cab window, and you may imagine how the people in the streets stared, for such a thing as an elephant riding in a cab had never been seen before.

Where Animals Are Kindly Treated. India is the country where animals are most kindly treated.

The Hindu religion teaches kindness and mercy to all living creatures. To kill anything that has life is an unpardonable sin, while protection of living creatures is considered a virtue. Beasts, birds, reptiles and insects come under this category. The high caste Hindus never eat flesh and live entirely on milk and vegetables, and, although certain sects eat meat, they only eat it after it has been sacrificed before one of their deities. Hindus look upon the practice of shooting and hunting as barbarous. They feed even the destructive wolf with rice and corn every day. They are kind to snakes of the most venomous kind, and a snake that has once taken up its abode in a native house is considered a guest and allowed to wander about unmolested and untouched.

Practical Joking, as a rule, is objectionable and not to be encouraged, but in the following no evil results can possibly happen, and the "victim" often enjoys the joke as much as those who planned it. Take an old brush and saw off six inches of its handle. Into the shorter piece insert a needle head foremost.

A New Kind of Apprentice.

Johnny—Papa, what does it mean to be apprenticed? Papa—It means the binding of one person to another by agreement. The person so bound has to teach the other all he can of his trade or profession, while the other has to watch and learn how things are done and to make himself useful in every way possible. Johnny—Then I suppose you're apprenticed to mamma, ain't you, papa?

BLUE RIBBON BASEBALL.

Junior Templars of Honor Form a League—Schedule Drawn Up at Meeting Last Evening.

At a meeting held in the North End last evening, which was attended by some grand officers of the Temple of Honor, a number of youthful members of the order, belonging to the sections, and others, a schedule for the proposed series of baseball contests between teams representing the sections in town and in Fairville was drawn up. As the arrangements now stand the league will be opened tomorrow evening with a spirited game between Fairville Section and Victoria Section, in Fairville. Fred McGaw, a senior, has been appointed general supervisor and Harry Sullivan official scorer.

A. R. Baxter, of North End, has consented to assist in the management of the league, and Fry Chase, one of the section members, has been appointed secretary-treasurer. It was decided last evening to have four innings contests. Other details were arranged. There are a large number of boys in the Junior division of the Temple of Honor in and about the city, among whom is considerable baseball talent. The lads are enthusiastic in the league idea and are practicing faithfully for their coming battles. The schedule is as follows:

Victoria Section vs. Fairville Section, at Fairville.

Alexandra Section vs. La Tour Section, in Carleton.

Fairville Section vs. Alexandra Section, in North End.

La Tour Section vs. Victoria Section, in North End.

Alexandra Section vs. Fairville Section, in Carleton.

Fairville Section vs. La Tour Section, in Carleton.

Victoria Section vs. Alexandra Section, in North End.

Fairville Section vs. Victoria Section, in South End.

La Tour Section vs. Fairville Section, in Fairville.

Victoria Section vs. La Tour Section, in Carleton.

La Tour Section vs. Alexandra Section, in North End.

Alexandra Section vs. Victoria Section, in South End.

Officers of the Grand Temple of Honor consider this baseball league a first-class medium through which to stimulate interest in temperance matters among the juniors during the summer season, which is generally a severe test on the organizations.

Once acquainted with one another, and familiarized with the make-up of the various sections as a district organization, there is no doubt but that the boys will be ready for a fall and winter of benefitting meetings. A pennant will be awarded the winning section in the league contest.

PHILADELPHIA LIVED

CRIMINAL LIFE FOR YEARS.

PHILADELPHIA, July 12.—John Wesley Priestley, head of an old Philadelphia family which for half a century has been known throughout the country on account of its connection with the textile industry, is in a Canadian, N. J. jail, said to have been leading for years a most amazing Jekyll-and-Hyde existence. Mr. Priestley is accused of having supported his family in a luxurious style on the proceeds of money obtained through burning properties which previously had been insured, and to have perpetrated frauds on life insurance companies as well in connection with the death of his brother.

Mr. Priestley's means of support have been a mystery for a number of years. Though apparently the fortunes of the old Priestley family were waning, and his head had no business connections which would bring him in an income sufficient to live as family traditions dictated, he continued to spend money lavishly.

He maintained an expensive establishment in a fashionable suburb. But so old and respected was the family that, despite this apparent iniquity, no suspicion attached to the man until today.

POLICE COURT.

Six prisoners faced the music at the police court this morning four of whom were simply ordinary drunks and had to pay the usual four dollars or do ten days.

An old offender, Mary Degan, of Sheppard street, once more got into the clutches of the police last evening and was promptly fined eight dollars and two months. Degan it will be recalled was the woman who made the startling statement which was discredited by the jury, as to another woman of her own class, having thrown a lighted lamp at the late Samuel Dugan, which was the cause of the fatal fire on Sheffield street.

Charles Rogers was up for wandering about between twelve and one o'clock this morning without giving a satisfactory account of himself. Rogers said he belonged to Liverpool and arrived in Halifax from there some five weeks ago. He came on here and had been working on the waterworks extension, but wanted to get to Montreal, so as to get a boat for home. Acting Magistrate Henderson let him go on condition that he went back home at once, not on account of Rogers being a criminal, nor as a punishment to him, but simply in furtherance of the man's wish to get back to his native country.

WEDDINGS.

RHODES-PIPES. AMHERST, July 12.—The wedding took place today of Grace, daughter of Hon. W. T. Pipes, commissioner of mines, to Edgar A. Rhodes, of the law firm of Pipes & Rhodes. The ceremony was performed in Christ Church, by Rev. A. J. Creswell, rector. Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes went on the C. E. R. train to Boston en route for a ten weeks European trip. On returning they will reside in the Havelock district.

SACKVILLE, July 12.—This evening Teresa, daughter of Hamill Oulton, was married to John Tweeddale of Fredericton. The wedding took place at Mr. Oulton's residence on Main street.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the Fenwick Baptist Church yesterday when Emilie Hyatt was married to Rev. Frank O. Erb. Miss Hyatt is well known in Casseville, and Rev. Erb was pastor of Fenwick church for two years.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Emil M. Barber, who also married the bride's parents.
