

BIG CROWD AGAIN AT THE FAIR; VISITORS CONTINUE TO ARRIVE

Full Programme of Amusements This Afternoon and Evening—Two Races on the Card.

There would have been record-breaking crowds at the Western Fair this year, had there been any sort of good weather. Yesterday's crowd, as it was, proved to be one of the greatest the Western Fair has ever entertained, and today there will be as large a crowd at the grounds.

As on the previous day, special trains were run on all the railroads running into London, and the cars were crowded to capacity.

Passengers were riding on the steps, and holding on in every conceivable way.

Fully ten thousand visitors came into the city on the specials, and the regular trains were also crowded.

The weather will be good. The day opened badly, rain falling very heavy all night, and continuing until after 10 o'clock. Then the sun managed to break through, and the hopes of the directors awakened.

The day will be a splendid one, and the large crowd will see the Fair at its best.

Went East Early.

The crowds made their way to the grounds early. At 11 o'clock there were nearly ten thousand people on the grounds and every car took a full load to the Fair.

The attractions were all drawing well, the dog show in particular being well patronized.

The race track was rather wet after the heavy rains of the past few days, but the management got busy early, and it will be in fair condition, though

Big Slander Suit Is Now in Sight; Prominent Londoners Involved

Businessman and Civil Engineer In for a Legal Tangle.

It is understood that unless an apology is coming forthwith, there will be an action for damages entered by Herman E. Roberts, the well-known engraver, and head of the firm known as the Roberts Engraving Company, of Richmond street, against County Engineer Talbot, whose office is in the county building on Ridout street.

It is alleged that as the result of a misunderstanding, the men came to blows some time ago, and that Mr.

Talbot made certain charges against Mr. Roberts involving the name of a lady, a relative of Mr. Talbot's.

Later, it is further alleged, Mr. Talbot stood up in a Springfield car and calling the attention of the passengers to Mr. Roberts, he shouted, it is charged, a very serious accusation at him.

Mr. Roberts, it is said, endeavored to have the matter straightened out, but Mr. Talbot would not grant him an interview.

Another Bunch of Wrists Issued; Many People Are Seeking Damages

Suits Against the City and Railway Companies, Etc.

Seven writs have been added to those already issued for the October assizes. They are:

Alexander Moore vs. George White & Sons Company, Limited—Action for damages for injuries received while in employment on April 13 last. E. T. Gunn for plaintiff.

W. Mitchell vs. W. R. Sparling—Action for settlement of an account amounting to $320. Mitchell resides in the Township of Blandford, and the defendant lives in the village of St. Marys. J. M. McEvoy for plaintiff.

W. F. Ingram vs. Wabash Railroad—Mr.

Ingram sued for damages for injuries received at Nixon station, Aug. 13. J. M. McEvoy for plaintiff.

Jenkins vs. T. R.—An action by Mary Jenkins to recover unpaid damages from the Grand Trunk for the death of her husband on July 19 of the present year. J. M. McEvoy for plaintiff.

H. Peterman vs. A. Howe—Specific performance of an agreement for sale of property on St. James street. Meredith, Jedd & Meredith for the plaintiff.

McBride vs. City of London—William McBride and Jeannette McBride sue the city for damages for injuries received by reason of defects in the Pipe Line road. Mrs. McBride, on the night of Aug. 3, fell over an unguarded portion of the road into the water of the second cove, and sustained numerous injuries. J. M. McEvoy for plaintiffs.

Sterling Bros. vs. G. L. Beamish—An action to recover $423.35, as price of goods sold and delivered to the defendant, who resides in Schreiber, District of Algoma. Gibbons, Harper & Gibbons for plaintiffs.

LONDON MAN GETS DETROIT DIVORCE

Because His Wife Preferred to Live Here Instead of Across the River.

In its divorce court reports the Detroit News says:

A young woman who prefers London, Ont., to Detroit, Mich., was discovered in the suit of Charles H. Evans, a D. U. R. employee, against Elizabeth May Evans. "When I came here for a job she refused to accompany me, saying she'd rather live in London than Detroit any day," said Evans. The judge thought that a girl with such peculiar tastes should be allowed to "gang her ain gait," and signed a decree for the husband.

THE LUSITANIA ON HER LAST DAY

Must Make 24 Knots an Hour All the Way Now to Break the Record.

New York, Sept. 12.—The Titanic turbine Lusitania, Cunard Line, entered today on the final day of her maiden voyage, which may break all transatlantic records.

The newest greynound of the sea was reported 150 miles east of Sable Island at 11:20 last night, and no further reports of her may be received until tonight, when the big Cunarder will enter the Nantucket wireless zone.

With 800 miles to sail at 11:20 o'clock last night, the Lusitania will have to make 24 knots or better until Sandy Hook light vessel is passed in order to excel the unbroken record of 23.15 knots held by the Deutschland, of the Hamburg-American Line, while the Lusitania is in the Atlantic.

The Lusitania will have fair weather for her last day's run, and every ounce of the propulsive power will be used to make up the time lost in the fogs of the Grand Banks. Driven at her top speed, the giant Cunarder may be expected at the lightship shortly before 7 o'clock Friday morning, making the time for the trip a shade under five days, and establishing the Lusitania as a four-day ship.

Wireless dispatches from the Lusitania show that the ship is running smoothly, and that her machinery has been shaken down so that her run from Sable Island to this port can be made at her highest speed.

Officials of the Cunard line planned to have the Lusitania at the end of the ocean-racing lane at 5 o'clock tomorrow morning, and despite the fogs, they believe she will be found at the lightship near that time.

While the Lusitania is expected at the gateway of the port at sunrise tomorrow, she will slip through the Narrows until several hours later when the tide serves full in the Ambrose Channel. The Lusitania will be the first ocean liner to enter the port through the new fairway.

FARMER'S HEAVY LOSS

Barns of Mr. Archibald Campbell, of Clachan, Burned.

St. Thomas, Sept. 12.—The barns of Archibald Campbell, of Clachan, were recently burned to the ground. The structure caught fire while threshing was going on and all his crops, sixteen pigs and a bull were destroyed. He also lost 40 tons of hay. His loss will be nearly $5,000, with $800 of an insurance.

ROWLEY THE DEFAULTER

Report That He Has Been Released Is Not Correct.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, Sept. 12.—The report from St. Thomas that Rowley, the defaulter, has been released, is not correct, the department has not done anything in the matter.

EN ROUTE TO VANCOUVER

Three Hundred Japanese on Board the Indiana.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, Sept. 12.—Mr. Nossie has received a telegram stating that 300 Japanese are on the Indiana en route for Vancouver from Honolulu. This is said to be the last of the number which Mr. Shillingworth contracted for.

THE TUNNEL CAVED IN.

Detroit, Sept. 12.—With a roar like the discharge of a gatling gun, the earth around the big Michigan Central shaft No. 1 slid together about 10:30 yesterday morning. Huge timbers 10x12 were snapped off like reeds and back under the ground, others were twisted round and round by the force of the avalanche.

The collapse followed a gradual crumbling away in the earth's surface in the sides of the shaft and this alone saved the laborers at the bottom, who frantically scrambled to the heli, and were lifted to safety just as the ground came down.

Action Against Local Shoe Firm; Breach of Alien Labor Act Alleged

Cook-Fitzgerald Company Is Not Worried—Ex-Employees Bring Suit.

An interesting suit will be tried at the division court in a couple of weeks. Not long ago, it is alleged the Cook-Fitzgerald Shoe Company, of Brockton, Mass., was discovered working in the firm's large shoe manufactory.

From time to time after that employees of the firm were dismissed to make room for the importations, so the discharged workmen claim.

The reasons for the dismissals were sufficient for the firm all right, but the men were not satisfied, and immediately sought redress.

The matter was placed in the hands of Mr. G. N. Weekes, the local lawyer, and it was decided to sue the Cook-Fitzgerald Company for damages under the Alien Labor Act.

This suit will be tried in the division court, as it is understood that the men will seek only the minimum penalty.

Had the maximum penalty been sought the case would have come before the fall assize court.

The minimum penalty is $50, and the maximum is $1,000. The deportation of the men will not be asked for.

The Cook-Fitzgerald Company is not worrying, so the management says. They claim that the firm has not violated the Alien Labor Act.

It is true that the men have been brought from Brockton, the seat of the shoe industry in the United States, but as the men are skilled mechanics, they do not come under the act. The case is causing very considerable interest among workmen in the city.

Trolley Car Collides With a Cab

Have you ever danced foolishly back and forth on the sidewalk while a person directly in front of you and going in an opposite direction did the same thing? Such an occurrence is never attended with dire results.

It is another proposition, however, when a cab and a street car get to performing along the same line.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. G. R. Coughlin, of Montreal, left the Teacumseh House in a hack driven by Joseph Gilligan, an employee of Mack's livery stable, going in a southerly direction down Richmond street.

Running alongside of the cab was an Oxford car, while coming north from Horton street was car number 122 on the Belt line.

Just across the G. T. R. tracks on Richmond street, opposite Bathurst street, is a double track.

The southbound cars cross the railroad tracks as the northbound car was entering the single track from the double one, and as a consequence it was necessary for one or the other to back up. The motorman of the Belt line car rang for a signal and backed up when he received it.

Just at that time Mr. Coughlin, in the cab, who, by the way, was an invited guest at the Macfie wedding in South London, remembered that he had forgotten some small article at the hotel, and the cabbie was directed to turn around. The hack attempted to go across the tracks as the car started to back up.

Perceiving the danger the conductor gave a stop signal. At the same time the driver of the cab began to back off the track, and the conductor, thinking that the track would be clear before the car reached the spot again, signaled to go ahead.

Then the hack started across the tracks again and there was a collision which gave Mr. Coughlin and his driver a severe shaking up and resulted in the loss of two wheels, a front and a back one, from the cab, which was taken to a nearby carriage shop for repairs.

The horses were clear of the track when the smash came and were uninjured. No damage was done to the

Fell Through Window---Discharged

When William Burgess faced Magistrate Love this morning on a charge of having been drunk and disorderly it was with a feeling that something disagreeable was about to happen.

Burgess became disgusted yesterday, when the rain in the afternoon spoiled a contemplated trip to the Fair, and proceeded to reduce London's liquor supply with the result that he finally succeeded in falling through the plate-glass window of Barnard's jewelry store on Dundas street.

This morning Burgess looked about the court room with much fear and trembling, and when he caught sight of Mr. Barnard himself his fears were in nowise abated.

Great was his joy, however, when Mr. Barnard arose and announced that he had no desire to prosecute the case.

Magistrate Love dismissed the overjoyed Burgess with a warning that if he appeared in police court again he would be punished severely.

Medals for the Heroic Fire Fighters

Fire Chief Clark and Fireman Dan McDonald have been awarded bronze medals by the Humane Society for bravery shown in the rescue of the late James Angus from a burning building on Richmond street in May last.

The medals were sent on to Inspector Sanders and arrived yesterday. They were turned over to Ald. Gillen, chairman of No. 3 committee, in whose possession they now are. They are very beautiful bronze medals, and were much admired by many citizens this morning. The inscription reads: "To Lawrence Clark, for heroism in the rescue of James Angus from a burning building in London, in May, 1907."

Mr. McDonald's medal is the same. It is expected that the medals will be presented to the brave firemen some day next week.

The Travelers Interview Sir Wilfrid

Ottawa, Sept. 12.—L. Howard, president, and James Sargent, secretary of the Toronto Commercial Travelers' Association; Alfred Robinson, W. L. Underwood and C. W. Nichols, of London; M. E. Maloney, Quebec, and Messrs. Mann, Wadsworth, Brown, Marceau and Pecard are in the city to see Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

They will ask this afternoon that Thanksgiving Day be changed from Thursday to Monday for the benefit of business in general.

Picture Postcard Craze in London; 500,000 Sold in City Last Year

Is a Fad No Longer—Card Is Viewed With Favor by All Classes.

The picture postcard has passed the fad stage, and is now a recognized industry, one of the marvels of the twentieth century. When one considers that over half a million cards were sold in London last year, the greatness of the industry is noticed.

Now they can be bought almost anywhere in London, stationery stores, news dealers, cigar stores, barber shops, drug stores—in fact, almost anywhere except in a green grocery store.

A Big Business.

"Firms buy on a large scale now. We used to buy them in 500 lots," said a prominent dealer this morning. "Now, we order them in 10,000 lots. The business is growing and seems destined to stay."

New designs are being imported, and are being put on the market.

More elaborate cards than the fad would warrant, are being made every year, now that the industry is established. Some very fine samples for Christmas are being shown by dealers.

In many cities large businesses have been built up with nothing but the picture card for sale.

Circulation in Canada.

In Canada over twenty-five million postcards were circulated in the past year, and each year the sales have been doubled, and promise to more than double this year. The picture postcard originated in Germany thirty-one years ago. Up to ten years ago the postal laws of England and Canada would not permit of their use.

In those countries, six years ago they were first introduced in Canada. About 90 per cent of the cards sold in Canada are imported goods, which call for a duty of 25 per cent to 30 per cent. Owing to this great importation the employment in Canada in this connection is in the sale alone, nearly seven hundred and fifty persons being employed in all.

Canada is behind Germany and England as far as the superior quality of cards is concerned, but she is one year ahead of the United States.

Introducing New Cards.

Will Pave Dundas Street Next May

The contractors for the Dundas street pavement have at last been signed, and the Barber Asphalt Company will commence work on the pavement next May. The council, according to the bylaw authorized the agreement, and it is expected that this incident is now closed.

When the contracts were sealed, signed and delivered, City Engineer Graydon got busy. The pavement was held up by the street railway company, as it was stated that the company desired to put in new steel along Dundas street, and the work could not be done in time to lay the pavement this year. So Mr. Graydon is resolved that the company will have the new rails in position before the pavement is commenced next May day.

He consequently has written a letter to Manager King of the street railway company notifying him of the contracts, and asking the company to get the rails laid this fall, as the city will not allow the pavement to be held up much longer. This matter has vexed the city fathers now all that is necessary, and they have resolved to settle the matter for all time.

Street Railway Conductor Injured

Conductor James Fleming, of the street railway met with a painful accident last night about 9 o'clock. He was badly bruised and shaken up, but was fortunate to escape so easily, although at work today, although still suffering from the effects of the accident.

He was in charge of an Oxford car, and had finished his run to Adelaide and Oxford streets. The car has to be run around the "Y" to bring it back to the city. While he was leaning back over the end of the car holding the trolley rope, the car lurched and he was thrown violently on the rails. He was stunned by the fall, but the motorman stopped the car before Fleming was caught under it. He was brought around in a few minutes, and although badly bruised he managed to take his

E. W. VANDERBILT ADJUDGED LUNATIC

Verdict of the Sheriff's Jury—Order for Guardian Was Granted.

New York, Sept. 11.—Edward W. Vanderbilt, the aged, retired merchant, of Brooklyn, who married May S. Pepper, the spiritualist medium, is incapable of managing his affairs, because of lunacy, according to a verdict returned by a sheriff's jury in Brooklyn today. An application for the appointment of a guardian for Mr. Vanderbilt's estate was granted.

The proceedings were brought by his daughter, Miss Minerva Vanderbilt, Mrs. Pepper's sister, and sister of Mr. Vanderbilt's late wife, now dead.

After several months ago, and had given to her a large portion of the real estate which he owned in Brooklyn, including the house in which they lived.

Miss Vanderbilt asserted that her inheritance rights were being disregarded, and that she had been left without a home. A brother and sister of Mr. Vanderbilt's subsequently joined her in the appeal to the courts.

The hearing was held before a jury and a commission consisting of a physician, a lawyer and a banker. Much evidence was offered to show that Mr. Vanderbilt had received communications which he supposed came from the spirit of his former wife, now dead, through another spirit called "Bright Eyes," for which latter spirit Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt declared that she acted as a medium of communication with mortals.

The jury returned a verdict today.

MAY BE MURDER.

Hamilton, Sept. 12.—Abraham Schock is in the Dundas jail, and it is possible that he may have to answer to a charge of murder. He got into a row with Ben Rubenstein and brutally assaulted him, kicking him in the stomach until he became unconscious. Rubenstein is in a bad shape and the doctor who is attending him says that he will have a hard time pulling through. Bail has been refused for Schock.

STRATHROY PASTOR RESIGNS.

Strathroy, Sept. 12.—Rev. David Daek, B.D., who has successfully preached in the Baptist Church here for the last six years, has resigned.

Carmel Man Arrested for Cattle Theft

Detective Rider yesterday arrested Angus Ford, a young Mount Carmel man, on a charge of having stolen a day or two ago two steers from a pasture owned by George Larey, a Parkhill farmer.

This morning Chief of Police W. J. Blisset, of Exeter, took charge of the accused young man and returned with him to Exeter, where he will be tried shortly.

Larey, the owner of the steers, alleges that young Ford, who, by the way, is the son of a very respectable farmer, drove the steers fifteen miles after removing them from the pasture, and finally traded them off for a good road horse, paying the difference in value.

A farmer who knew Ford by sight came into the city yesterday, and gave his description to Detective Rider, who shortly afterward accomplished his arrest just as Ford was preparing to leave the city.

All nearby towns were wired and it was not expected that Ford would head for London at Fair time, when the police and detectives would all be on the lookout for suspicious appearing strangers.

MODEL SCHOOL PUPILS.

Toronto, Sept. 12.—Hon. Dr. Pyne, minister of education has issued an announcement setting forth that for the present session of the county model schools, and not thereafter, county boards may admit pupils who are qualified non-professionally and who will be 18 years of age or below Aug. 17, 1908. Certificates of qualifications will not, however, be issued to such candidates until they are of legal age.

NEARLY CHOKED.

Strathroy, Sept. 11.—Clarence, the 11-year-old son of James Haney, of this town, met with a peculiar accident today. In handling some money he put a 25-cent piece in his mouth which stuck in his throat. Dr. Berdan was quickly called and relieved the little fellow of his sufferings.

YESTERDAY'S TEMPERATURES.

Toronto, Sept. 11-8 p.m.—The disturbance mentioned last night now covers Northern Ontario and Quebec. A few showers have occurred today in Ontario and general rains Quebec have fallen.

In the Western Provinces the weather is decidedly cool, and rain or snow has fallen in many localities.

Minimum and maximum temperatures: London, 56-58; Kamsloops, 4-40; Edmonton, 34-40; Calgary, 30-36; Bitterford, 36-44; Prince Albert, 36-44; Regina, 40-56; Winnipeg, 52-55; Parry Sound, 50-70; Toronto, 64-72; Ottawa, 62-66; Montreal, 64-70; Quebec, 56-62; St. John, 56-66.

The Deaf Hear--It's Wonderful

Geo. P. Way
Inventor

A representative of this paper called yesterday on Geo. P. Way, the inventor of the Way Ear Drum, in his parlors at the Tecumseh House and found him busily at work examining and advising a large number of deaf persons who had called to consult him and test his invention. It is remarkable how the simple little device which Mr. Way invented is so effective in restoring the hearing of the deaf. Yet, when we realize that Edison, with rubber, metal and mica, has produced a device that reproduces the human voice with absolute perfection, it is very reasonable to believe in the invention of Mr. Way. If you cannot call on Mr. Way at his time write to the Way Ear Drum Company, 1320 Majestic Building, De troit.

which is but a mechanical device made in harmony with an understanding of the human ear and the natural law governing the sense of hearing. Knowledge is power, and it is such practical knowledge, coupled with his inventive genius, which has enabled Mr. Way to produce an Ear Drum which really does restore the hearing. Of course, Mr. Way does not claim to cure every case of deafness. That is impossible, but he has brought help to nine out of ten persons who have tried the Way Ear Drums. Mr. Way is very frank and in all cases tells his visitors plainly just what can be done for them. The Way Ear Drums are easily placed in the ears, and as easily removed, are invisible, painless and will not collapse, and they do help the hearing. All who are deaf or suffer from impaired hearing in any way, or with "head noises," should call and see Mr. Way.

Take the elevator and the attendant will show you to Mr. Way's parlors.

Emigrants from Ireland in 1906 numbered 35,918, an increase of 4,746 compared with the figures of the preceding year. The latter were the lowest on record since 1851, and last year's number is below the average for the preceding five years by 2,099.

Rare Exhibits in the Art Gallery; Works of Merit at the Western Fair

A Glance at the Ladies' Work in the Main Building—Some Worthy of Mention.

When you go to the Fair sooner or later you will reach the Art Gallery. You will not be content with one visit; you will go again, and yet once again. Sooner or later you will meet every one you know—there all looking wise, all willing to express decided opinions upon the merits and demerits of exhibits, upon the justice or injustice of judges.

On your first visit, unless you are extremely methodical—and you generally aren't on such occasions—you circle around to get your bearings, and discover the location of professional as distinguished from amateur work. Next, you fix your attention upon the prize tickets, and study the collection of pictures as a whole; then you begin to make comparisons; and, lastly, you "pick the winners." No, there is yet another stage. You begin to compare notes with your acquaintances, and it is then, and only then, that you are overwhelmed with a sense of your appalling ignorance in regard to the principles of art. The pictures that you have decided are full of life, and animation and warmth, are found to be dull, dead and lifeless; those that in your opinion have an atmosphere are voted to be without form or definition; those that seem clear and well-defined are declared stiff and harsh. Laymen, you find, seldom agree, excepting upon the incapacity of the judge.

Artists Divided.

Artists express such a diversity of opinion, that with each one you interview you marvel anew that a jury of artists ever lives long enough to reach a decision. The Advertiser critic last night followed the usual routine to the point of forming an opinion, next three prominent artists were seized upon and interviewed individually and separately, in hopes of acquiring information. Interview one ended in deep humility for the critic; number two in renewing hope; number three in a determination to disregard the opinions of all three, except those of a painter of a different school and had a different viewpoint, and "to write of the things as they were."

Those Represented.

The professional class in painting this year is represented by the work of Mrs. Dignam, the well-known artist of Toronto; Miss Farncombe, Miss Florence Woodman, J. P. Hunt, and S. K. Davidson, of this city, and W. Greason, of St. Marys.

The work of Fleming, of Chatham, is again missed this year, as is that of St. Thomas Smith and Sievey. Mrs. Dignam, of Toronto, has carried off the first prizes, both in water colors and oils. Especially good are her Dutch scenes. A Dutch village street is one of the gems of her collection. In oils, a fleet of boats in a harbor has also been much admired. In her water colors a rare transparency and depth is noted which is somewhat lacking in the other collections. "Exquisite," perhaps, better than any other word, describes her water-color studies. Miss Farncombe, who has received second prize, has some really good studies in peasant women. Mr. W. Greason, of St. Marys, who last year received first prize, has this year been awarded third prize.

He belongs to the Impressionistic School of Art, a school that is very popular in Great Britain and on the continent, and that is slowly winning favor in America. He paints nature as he sees it, not as it absolutely is, or ought to be. He receives an impression of a landscape and transfers it as he sees it to the canvas. At close range the impressionistic picture appears a hopeless daub; at a distance it resolves itself into a thing of beauty and truth. Mr. Greason is undoubtedly one of the coming artists of America. Still young, very young, his pictures were last winter accepted by the Ontario Society of Artists, judgment being pronounced upon them by a committee of nine artists. His work possesses strength, originality and health of conception. In his pictures the color is always high keyed, and splendid atmosphere effect is noted.

An Artistic Mystery.

The impressionistic picture has always been a mystery to the uninitiated. How does the artist at close range, who apparently pitches paint on the canvas, know how his picture is going to look at a distance? Mr. Greason explained the mystery.

"Do you paint with a long-handled brush or do you half-close your eyes?" he was asked.

"Neither," he replied. "The obtaining of the right effect is a matter of knowledge and experience. I know the effect produced by the combination of certain colors. That picture—indicating a landscape—at close range looks like a snowstorm in summer. At this distance, you see it is a peaceful landscape with tranquil sky above. We never retouch, thus our colors are definite and never muddy."

A picture isn't merely a picture; it is the realizing in some measure, at least, of an ideal that has animated the creation. In looking at the collection of art, especially in the professional class, this year, one is struck with the diversity of ideas of the artists represented and the faithfulness in attempting to realize them. Very different from the impressionistic is Mr. J. P. Hunt's school of art. His pictures contain a wealth of detail, and bear the marks of a finishing polish. The largest canvas he has on exhibition this year is an excellent portrait of Bev. James Livingstone, of this city. A large marine has attracted much attention, but better still is a small marine, rocks and a quiet sea. Some fine landscapes are also on exhibition. A cool forest glade is, in the estimation of many, the finest piece of Miss Woodman's collection. A study of creamy yellow roses on a brown background is also exceedingly good.

Mr. S. K. Davidson.

Mr. S. K. Davidson has won first prize in finely wrought pastels, beautifully toned, and has also received a prize for water colors. His scenes are familiar, the Springbank dam and pump-house, views on the Thames around London, views around Byron, a view of the Byron bridge being perhaps his best picture.

The strain of judging the professional pictures seems to have been too much for the judge. In his weariness he seems to have distributed prizes at random amongst the amateurs. Sometimes hitting, sometimes missing the mark. In the amateur collection are many pictures that give much promise; many that show genuine talent. In this class should be mentioned the work of Miss Florence Bailey, G. B. Healy, Miss Vera Simpson, Turrill, of Aylmer, and M. V. Bradshaw, of St. Marys. In the amateur class are also the usual ribbons by courtesy called pictures, and the old-time atrocities that, like the fabled cat, have a habit of "coming back."

The decision that has awarded Miss Florence Woodman fifth prize in china painting is understandable to the majority. Miss Woodman's decorated china is remarkable for depth and beauty of coloring and originality. One beautiful jug is decorated in water lilies, from the midst of which a water nymph is emerging from the clearest, most transparent water. A dresser set, decorated in lilies-of-the-valley, is exquisitely dainty. Miss E. May Butler, of a really fine collection, including a monk's head plaque, Mrs. C. D. Doring, of this city, receives the second prize; Miss E. L. Bell, the third—a plaque ornamented with a woman's head—being an especially fine bit of her collection; and Mrs. Stevenson, of this city, has been awarded fourth prize.

Another Londoner.

Miss Eva Macpherson, of South London, who leaves shortly to continue her studies in Cincinnati, has received the first prize for some beautiful specimens of wood carving. J. F. Anderson's wood carving is well worthy the second prize.

Excellent Specimens.

Some good pieces of pyrography are shown by Roy Short, Mrs. Haist, of Hamilton, and Miss Woolverton. Miss E. Woolverton receives the first prize for modeling in clay; Miss Donna Wheeler, the second; and E. Farral, of Hamilton, the third.

Photographs, with the exception of a few amateurs, are missing this year. The north end of the Art Gallery is devoted to one of the most interesting exhibits of the Fair, including work made by the women of Canada in their homes. A few years ago the Women's Art Association of Canada realized that the weaving, etc., in which early Scotch, Irish and French settlers in Canada excelled, were becoming lost arts. It was decided to take up the matter. Canadian women, with the exception of a few French in Quebec, had put away their looms and spinning wheels, and the homespun dress-goods, carpets and tapestry were no longer a glory of the country. The handicrafts have been renewed, production increased and advanced by the supervision, exhibition and sales under the auspices of the Women's Art Association of Canada, as well as the societies of Europe, with which the Canadian association is affiliated.

In the exhibit are woollen and linen homespuns, the work of the French-Canadian women, rag carpets, tapestries, curtains, portieres, mats (equal to Oriental rugs in beauty and durability), linen (spun, woven and embroidered by Doukhobor women), Indian basketry and beadwork, exquisite lace and embroideries (the work of women of the Maritime Provinces). One small Indian basket, the work of a now almost extinct nation, is valued at $25. So closely is it woven that it will hold water, and it is said the beautiful polish was obtained by each fiber being drawn through the Indian craftsman's teeth before being interwoven.

Women's Work.

From the exhibit of work of Canadian women in the Art Gallery a natural transition is to the second floor of the Main Building, where the women's work is displayed. Handsome glass cases are a decided improvement this year upon the former method of displaying fancy work. The cases display the work to better advantage, and also keep it in much better condition. Miss McLaren, superintendent of this department, declares the exhibit of this year the finest in her recollection. The work is exceedingly good, and the variety and variety greater than usual. This improvement might not be apparent to the casual observer, owing to the fact that space is limited, and there is not room for displaying to advantage.

Strathroy to the Front.

As in former years, Mrs. Pincombe and Mrs. Douglas, of Strathroy, carry off a large share of prizes for embroidery work, in which they are unexcelled. Miss M. Howes, of Drumquinn, a new exhibitor, also receives several prizes. Mrs. J. Patton, Wallace-town, receives first prize in beautiful Honiton lace handkerchief. Miss M. Howes, of Drumquinn, second, and Miss Jennie Ward, of Welland, third.

Some fine pieces of Battenburg were shown, which, however, did not meet with the requirement, "a yard of Battenburg lace." Consequently, no prizes were awarded. The most exquisitely dainty lace exhibited, and also extremely difficult, is a pillow lace dolly by Mrs. Stevenson, and a piece of tatting, fine as a cobweb, and of very original design, by Miss McCutcheon, of Toronto.

Miss Willmott, of Toronto, receives first prize for a handsome point lace collar; Miss M. Howes, of Drumquinn, second, and Miss McCutcheon, of Toronto, third. Mrs. E. H. Brown and Mrs. Alf Robinson receive first and second prizes for sofa pillows.

Miss E. L. Bell, of the city, and Mrs. E. Hanham, St. Marys, have some beautiful tatting. In Bulgarian embroidery, Mrs. Pincombe, Strathroy; Mrs. P. Zoellner, Mount Forest; and Mrs. A. B. Douglas receive prizes.

Prize Winners.

Amongst the prize-winners are Mrs. Pincombe and Mrs. Douglas, of Strathroy; Mrs. Zoellner, Mount For-

POLITICS AND THE LICENSE AD-MINISTRATION.

In his report on the liquor license system in Toronto, Mr. Starr, the Ontario Government's commissioner, has not concealed his partisan bias, but nothing that he alleges against the administration of the license law under the previous government is so bad as the condition of things in Toronto, under the Whitney regime, which he is honest enough to expose.
The change from municipal to Provincial control of the liquor traffic was one of the most beneficent measures of the Mowat Government. It paved the way for the wholesale reduction of licenses and a series of wholesome restrictions upon the sale of liquor, which were effected under an administration which sympathized with temperance reform. Many dangerous abuses were banished, although there is no pretense that the new system was perfect. Occasionally license commissioners were no doubt influenced by local political pressure, but in the main a vast improvement resulted, and the liquor traffic was brought within limits which would have been impossible under municipal control.

The Conservative party in Ontario opposed Provincial control in the first place, but yielded to the logic of events. The present Premier, before and after he obtained office, pledged himself to go further, and place the administration of the license system where there could be no possibility of party interference. His first act was a brazen repudiation of his pledge.
He dismissed all the license inspectors of the Province, and replaced them by party workers, chosen mainly by local patronage committees.

In Toronto this was the signal for the party organization to seize the whole license administration as an instrument of graft and patronage. For a time a board of conscientious license commissioners stood in the way, but the Government sided with the wire-pullers, and made the retention of office by the commissioners impossible.
The alliance between the licensehold-ers and the heads of the party machine in Toronto was perfected. Mr.
Starr, in his report, does not spare some of these men. He reproves the chief license inspector for his association with them, and advises one of the board commissioners, an insurance agent, who was showered with premiums by licensees, to resign.

Mr. Starr discloses his party feelings chiefly in his gingerly treatment of the Minister of Education, Dr.
Pyne. The latter canvassed the chairman of the first Whitney board of license commissioners, on behalf of one Courtney, who had an unfavorable record. Mr. Starr merely says Dr.
Pyne was unwise. He points out that Courtney's application for a license was refused, and adds that Dr. Pyne took no further interest in the matter. But this is not the whole story.
The remainder is told by the Toronto News, whose owner, Mr. Flavell, was the license commissioner whom Dr.
Pyne first approached. The News says that Dr. Pyne brought also pressure to bear upon Mr. Flavell's colleagues, and upon the chief inspector,
Mr. Hastings. Other active Conservative members of the Legislature, says the News, saw Mr. Hastings, and impressed upon the official the wisdom of submission to party representation and the advantage of attaching to himself the interested petitioners who could stand in his defense with the Government and in the Legislature.
The News adds:

"It is true that with this failure
Dr. Pyne made no further attempt to influence the license board. He carried his influence to the council chamber in Queen's Park, and there he was more successful. It had become evident that the board was not submissive to political representations, and therefore new machinery had to be provided. As a result, the old license officials were dismissed, and officials in sympathy with the party were appointed. As a further result, the general handling of licenses passed into the hands of Conservative workers, and a public inquiry into the whole system of license administration in Toronto became necessary. The old commissioners understood that the dismissal of the inspector was an intimation that officials in active alliance with the party would be appointed, that under these circumstances a non-partisan administration of the law would be difficult or impossible, and that, in face of this violation of the understanding upon which they took office, they had no alternative but to resign their places."

influence with the Government. The dismissal of Mr. Hastings was an incident, a necessary incident in the Pyne campaign, but it is not the chief fact which should engage public attention. The chief fact is that a license board who were pledged to give a non-partisan administration of the license system were subjected to partisan pressure, and,
when they would not yield, the case was carried to Queen's Park, the inspectors dismissed, and active Conservative workers put into their places in the expectation that their ears would be open to party representations, and through whom, as the result has proved, the license office would become an active center of party intrigue and party manipulation."

The News winds up by saying that the pretense that the Whitney Government has taken the license question out of politics is a sham and a humbug.

FLOUR AND APPENDICITIS.

To the layman, if not to the medical profession, the great increase in late years in the number of cases of appendicitis has been a matter of considerable wonder and speculation.
There are those now living who can easily remember the time when the disease was rarely heard of; indeed investigations into the post-mortem examinations of the London Hospital show that in forty years prior to 1884 only nineteen cases of trouble in the appendix are on record. The prevalence of the ailment in recent years, however, has been such as to increase the alarms of those with whom dread of disease is itself almost a disease, for scarcely a week passes but operations on the appendix are recorded.

Many theories have been advanced as to the reason for the increase, a popular one being that it resulted from eating seed-bearing fruits, and not a few timorous people have as a consequence been induced to eschew grapes, berries, apples and suchlike luxuries.
The latest theory is advanced by Dr.
W. H. Battle, surgeon to St. Thomas' Hospital, London. His idea is that on the introduction of the roller process of turning wheat into flour, particles of iron began to be common in flour, and that these particles found their way into the appendix and formed the nucleus for concretions that cause the trouble. It is such concretions as were at one time described as fruit seeds, but in the great majority of cases they are now recognized to be of an altogether different character, being, instead of carried in from without, formed around some minute nucleus inside the appendix. Dr. Battle does not claim that every case of appendicitis is due to the presence of such concretions, neither does he pretend that iron particles are the nuclei in all cases where concretions occur;
he merely suggests that to the prevalence of iron particles in rolled flour is very probably due the great increase of appendicitis. Some force is given the theory of this London practitioner, apart from the results of pathological investigation, by the fact that with the introduction of roller process flour began the increase in the disease.

The remedy seems to be not in discontinuing the use of wheat flour, as some of the more cautious among us might be inclined to do, but in the enactment of a law compelling the purification of flour from iron particles.
This can be accomplished by the use of magnets as the flour passes from the rollers to the bags—a plan in use in not a few mills at the present time.
The old-fashioned stone-ground flour is still prepared by many people, but as time passes it is becoming a scarcer commodity. But in view of this latest theory it is not altogether unlikely that stone-grinding of wheat may again be found a profitable industry.

Just as we are getting through the water shortage nicely, a coal famine is predicted.

Is there any omen in the fact that Mr. Borden visits London on Friday, the 13th?

The Dreadnought and the Lusitania furnish further proof, if it were needed, that Britannia rules the waves and means to keep it up.

The way that London's water supply has held out in the dry spell demonstrates that rivers are more prone to dry up than springs.

Why does Mr. Borden insult consen-tious Conservatives by bringing Rufus Pope in his train? Perhaps because he lacks the courage to cast off a hanger-on. But is this the stuff leaders are made of?

NO RACE SUICIDE IN EGYPT.

[Harriet Quimby, in Leslie's Weekly.]

There is no race suicide in Egypt. From Alexandria to Assuan the country is filled with babies, round faced, and solemn ex-pressioned little tykes, who look out upon the world with great eyes that are painful with kola, making their tiny faces appear top-heavy, so large do they seem.
As in all Oriental countries, children in Egypt are welcomed. The more the merrier. The wife is not even considered a true wife until she becomes a mother.
The estimation in which she is held, not only by her husband, but also by her friends, depends, in a great degree, upon her fruitfulness, and upon the preservation of her children; for, by men and women, rich and poor, barrenness is considered a curse and a reproach. So high ly are babies esteemed in that strange country of the Nile that in the days before slavery was abolished, a slave who contributed a child to her master's family circle, and which he acknowledged as his own, thereby earned her freedom according to the law; and in the majority of instances she was further honored by being taken as her master's wife, or one of them, and becoming entitled to the luxuries of the harem. So frequently do babies come, and so numerous are their deaths, that the Egyptian Government has never been able to procure a census that was at all satisfactory, and even the recent attempt made this year cannot be accepted as an official statement of the country's population. In Egypt births and deaths are not recorded, except in the memories of those immediately concerned.

Three characteristics of Egyptian babies impress themselves upon the tourist. The first is their beauty, for, although many of them are blind, or nearly so, from un-cleanness and ophthalmia, they are all round faced and exquisitely modeled, their features are classically beautiful, and their color is exactly like bronze. Self-control is the next most impressive feature about these little folk, for it is a most unusual thing to hear an Egyptian baby cry.
Noticeable, also, is these little folks' usefulness. It is an odd thing to see an infant person indeed to fail to notice the infant toilers in Egypt.

RECUOPERATED.

[Exchange.]

A—You look really recuperated this year. Have you been to the seaside?
B—No, but my wife has.

A LONG LOOK AHEAD.

[Exchange.]

Jacob Jacobs—How much does a bath cost?
Clerk—Half a shilling; but if you buy a dozen tickets you'll save 10 per cent.
Jacob Jacobs—What? A dozen tickets?
Do you think I'm going to live a hundred years?

BAD HABITS?

[Exchange.]

Clerk—Please, sir, I should like a three days' holiday.
Banker—What for?
Clerk—Please, sir, I'm going to be married.
Banker—A little while ago you were away ill for three days. Why didn't you get married then or wait till now to fall ill? Don't let this sort of thing happen again!

NATURAL HISTORY.

[Exchange.]

"You see, Tommy, that is an elephant."
"Ah! Yes, papa—the thing that makes the billiard balls!"

NOT IN TOUCH.

[Exchange.]

Wife (to husband)—Poor children! When you get up they have gone to school.
When you come back from the club they are asleep. Send them a picture postcard from time to time."

TAKES NO PART.

[Chicago Tribune.]

"He seems to be a good man, but he cheats in a horse trade. How can he reconcile that with his conscience?"
"My dear sir, when a man trades horses his conscience always goes to sleep."

HIS TROUBLE.

[Exchange.]

Smith—Do you mean to say you don't have any trouble in keeping your wife dressed in the height of fashion?
Wedderburn—That's what I said. My trouble comes when I don't keep her dressed that way.

RETRIBUTION.

[Chicago Tribune.]

Letter Carrier—Little girl, will you please call off your dog?
Little Girl—Got any mail for our flat?
Letter Carrier—Not this time.
Little Girl—Sick 'im, Rover!

MONEY IN IT.

[Life.]

Mrs. Wall Street (to farmer by roadside).
"I'm so glad to see you going in for wheat. Mr. Hayrick, my husband has made a great deal of money out of that in the city."

ARTISTICALLY SPEAKING.

[Chicago Tribune.]

Mrs. Kowler (looking at photograph).
"It's an excellent picture of you, but it's an exceedingly poor one of your husband."
Mrs. Crowsley—I know it, but I like it all the better on that account. He makes such a admirable—er—fool, you know."

CHAPMAN'S
Visitors Shopping

Hundreds of visitors are in our city, who come at Western Fair time with the fixed intention of doing their fall shopping and at the same time visit the great exhibition. Many hundreds of these visitors do all of their shopping at Chapman's, where their every want is anticipated, and to those who have not become acquainted we could suggest no better time than the present to make your visit profitable and pleasurable. For Friday and Saturday we have many special bargains to offer in every department of the Chapman store. By bargains we do not mean something for nothing, but sterling, seasonable merchandise reduced from already low Chapman pricing. A Chapman bargain measures at all times up to the standard of both quality and value.

The Right Kind of Clothing For Men

With every Progress Brand Suit (of whatever price) we hand you a solid leather card case, containing an accident insurance policy for $1,000. This is a further inducement for you to wear a Progress Brand Suit. The garments that keep their shape are cut and made by practical tailors with materials just as good as any ordered tailor will give you at a very much higher price. The difference in price is accounted for by the very low price the makers get in buying such large quantities of materials. The new fall styles are now on the tables, for

PART SECOND.

CHAPTER I.

My machine had been repaired for a week, but I had not had it brought up to town, when I received a note from Leah. It was dated "Tuesday."

"Come down immediately," she wrote, "if you can think of a plausible pretext but don't say that I sent for you. Miss Fielding will not ask you herself, but we need you very much. I trust to you."

I took an early afternoon train the next day, and finding no one to meet me at the station, engaged a carriage to take me over to Miss Fielding's place. My driver would, I am sure, have been glad to gossip with me upon the lady's affairs, but I headed off all his hints, knowing pretty well from Uncle Jerdon's insinuations what the tenor of the neighborhood talk must be.

Midmeadows was about four miles from the station, and a half-mile back from the county road. The house was approached by two long lanes overgrown with shrubbery and hazels, one from the seaside on the east, and one from the main road on the north. We took the latter, a wild and tangled wagon track, filled with stones and hummocks, and worn into deep holes. The boughs of trees constantly scraped across the top of the buggy and often hung low enough to threaten our eyes. Near the house, the lane took a turn round the corner of an extensive, old-fashioned garden of hollyhocks, rose bushes, poppies and violets, then swung up to the green, eight-paneled front door, with its transom of old bulls-eye panes. The house came in close to the garden, partly enclosing it on two sides. To the right of the house vegetables were planted, with meadows beyond, and behind, the hill rose almost from the stable. The whole place had a charming natural wildness, and seemed as if it was miles away from any other human habitation; but it was not uncared for; its natural features had been amended and composed with the care of a true artist.

The house itself was long and low, covered with unstained shingles. A great square brick chimney rose from the middle of the gambrel roof. The lower windows were leaded and built into wide bays, but they showed above the little-paned sashes of the original building. The front was almost hidden by climbing Cecil Bruner roses, now odorously in bloom. The southern side was lined with a row of geraniums which rose in huge bushes. Here, in the second story, was another bay window of curious construction, somewhat resembling the stern of an old galleon. It was Miss Fielding's sitting-room, which I had not yet visited.

The place seemed deserted, for not even the dogs were visible. I got out and knocked while my driver waited curiously to catch what was probably a rare glimpse of the mistress of the house.

Joy herself, wearing a white duck sailor suit, with a red handkerchief knotted about her neck, answered my knock. She held her hand to her eyes to shade them from the rays of the afternoon sun, so that I could not, at first, quite make out her expression. The first thing she showed, after her surprise, was a most cordial satisfaction at seeing me. She did not, apparently expect me, but my presence delighted her. I saw next that she was in trouble. The very intensity of her welcome alarmed me. The two vertical lines between her brows were deeply cut into her forehead, her lips were quivering, there were dark circles under her eyes.

"She drew me quickly into the library, and I saw terror in her look. Her cheeks were pale and wan. Her hand trembled, as it lay on the back of a chair where she leaned."

"Oh, I am so glad you have come!" had been her first speech, murmured in the hall, and it was repeated now as I stood before her. "I am so glad you have come! I need you so!"

I had fancied before that her face was one capable of expressing tragedy—not every woman's is. Tragedy shadowed her face now, giving her a newer, more dramatic beauty so moving that, despite my alarm, I could not help wondering at it.

"You are not well," I exclaimed. "Oh, well enough," she replied. "Something is the matter—what is it?"

"Sit down and I'll try to tell you." She dropped into a chair, with her elbow on the table, letting her cheek fall into the hollow of her palm. Her eyes closed for a moment, the soft, long lashes shading her pale cheek. She shook herself and sat erect. "I'm so sleepy!" she moaned. "I haven't slept since night before last."

I sprang up from the window seat. "Won't you lie down here and rest?" Do!" I pleaded.

"Oh, I don't dare! I don't dare!" she cried.

"Tell me what is troubling you, so that I may try to help you!"

She looked up and said, "Leah has gone!" and put out a hand that trembled with a despairing gesture.

"Gone?" I repeated. "Where?"

"I don't know where. I don't know when she went. I don't know even why."

"Do you fear she has met with an accident?"

"Oh, no, not that. Worse than that!" she spoke helplessly.

"Worse?" I could not understand.

"I mean I think I must have driven her away."

I still could not guess. "Why, how could you have done that? You mean that she took offense at something, perhaps?"

"Oh, I must have made it impossible for her to stay."

"But what did you do? She was devoted to you."

She sprang up and walked out with bitter vehemence. "Oh, I don't know! I don't know! If I only knew, I could do something. But what can I do, now? She's gone. She was my right hand, my eyes, my ears, my memory—but it's not that! It is that I could have been cruel enough to her to drive her away. Where is she? Where could she have gone, do you think? I've waited and waited to hear from her, or for her to come back—two whole days! I didn't go to bed at all last night. I didn't dare, lest she should come while I was asleep."

"You expect her to return, then?"

She was walking up and down the room, her hands clasped behind her back tightly. I could see that she was on the verge of hysteria. She turned to me again, and said:

"Oh, Leah would never abandon me, never! She's too true for that. But she's afraid to come back!"

I went up to her and led her gently to the seat.

"Now," I said, "tell me exactly what has happened."

She broke out again wildly, her face twitching with excitement. "I don't know! Don't you see I don't know? That's the horror of it! I may have killed her, for all I know!"

"Ah! Do you mean," I began, afraid to say it, "that you've forgotten?"

She stared at me. "Forgotten? Well, you may call it that. Yes, I've forgotten." She put her face into the pillow and began to sob convulsively. After this nervous crisis had spent itself she sat up, wiped her eyes and said with a faint, spectral smile:

"Oh, I'll have to tell you everything, now. I can't bear it any longer. It was bad enough while I had Leah to depend upon, but now I must have somebody to confide in, or I shall go mad—I haven't already gone mad."

I looked over at the table where I noticed a coffee pot, and a cup on a saucer. "How much coffee have you drunk?" I asked.

"Oh, I don't know. Cup after cup. I've been drinking it all day to keep me awake."

"That accounts for your nerves. You must rest. If you sleep a little, you'll get your strength back."

She sprang up suddenly, her gripped fists raised, her head thrown back in a sudden new access of alarm. "Oh, no, no, no! You don't understand! I haven't slept! I'm afraid—afraid! How do I know what may happen, now when I'm so worn out?"

I had done considerable thinking while I was away, and I had done some reading as well. I was beginning now to make it out, piece by piece, and put it together in an astonishing whole. It was too late, in this crisis for reserves, too late for me to keep to my promise of not trying to know. The girl was distraught and alone. And, indeed, the door to the cupboard where her skeleton had been hidden was now well ajar.

"You are afraid, you mean, of the other one?" I brought it out deliberately.

She stared at me, like a somnambulist.

"Yes," she whispered, "of the 'other one.'"

Then for the first time, and quite unconsciously, I think, she used my name. It seemed so natural to me that I was not surprised.

"Oh, I'm so glad you know, at last, Chester. I'm so glad that it will be easier to tell you." She put her hand on my arm and looked up at me in tender confidence. "Now you know why I called myself 'The White Cat.'"

"Yes, I see. Don't be alarmed, I'll help you. You must calm yourself you know."

"Yes, I know you do. You must tell me all about it sometime. How you must have hated me!"

"Perhaps I can manage her, but no matter about her now. We must think it all out, and decide calmly what to do. I'm not afraid. Trust me, and I'll see you through. It will all come out right, I'm sure."

I went on so purposely, iterating such phrases to lull her, and key down the intense strain which wrought upon her. Her eyes kept on me, and I saw my influence work—my suggestion, I might say, since it was purposely hypnotic. Her hysteria made her abnormally sensitive to the treatment. She relaxed her attitude slightly, sighed, and dropped back among the silken pillows behind her.

"Oh, you're so good!" she breathed. "You will help me, I'm sure. You have helped me already! You're so strong—it's such a comfort to have you here!" She reached her hand out shyly and put it in mine, where it lay, small and cold. It was the first time she had done so, except under the direct stress of an earnestness strong enough to rob the act of any personal suggestion. It was a distinct caress, fearless and genuine.

"Now," I said, "begin at the beginning, and tell me all about what has happened."

She took it up again with a new courage. "As I've said, I don't know when Leah left. I only know that when I rang for her yesterday morning she didn't come. I went into her room and she wasn't there. She was not downstairs. King didn't know anything about it."

"Nor Uncle Jerdon?"

"Uncle Jerdon has been away for three days visiting his nephew, who's ill. You see, she—the other one—was here for two days running. It hasn't happened so far years. So whether it happened, whatever did happen, on Monday or Tuesday, I can't tell. Leah might have left either day."

"How do you know that 'the other one' was here for two days?"

"Only because Sunday is the last thing I remember before yesterday morning. The doctor was down then. You know that there's a hiatus when she's here—a perfect blank in my memory. I lose time, as she does, when I'm here."

Her mention of the doctor started a new train of thought, but I put that by for the present, to tell her the letter I had received from Leah, which made it probable that she had left on Tuesday, the second day of "the other one." The situation was serious enough, I was sure, for me to disobey Leah's injunction to secrecy.

"Oh," said Joy, "that relieves my mind a little. It shows that Leah had a plan, and she must have stayed somewhere near here, expecting you, though how she happened to miss you I don't see. It's quite right for you to have told me, for I had already telephoned to you—today, after you started. I was surprised to see you

DESIGNED BY MARTHA DEAN.

A PRETTY YOKE WAIST—6968.

One of the most charming of recent designs for a separate waist is here sketched in simple, graceful, and almost universally becoming. It is a model which will infallibly commend itself to the woman of refined tastes. The picturesque effect of the deep, square yoke and full front portion, is greatly enhanced by the tucked trimming bands, to which the Mandarin sleeves are attached. These accessories may, however, be omitted if desired, and the plain development substituted. The sleeves are most effective when made as pictured, but they may, if necessary, be made full-length for cool-weather wear. Silk voile of the new felle or string color was used for modeling the waist, with pale blue tucked chiffon for the yoke and flit lace and small gilt buttons for garniture; but foulard, crepon or any flexible material would develop equally well, with all-over lace for the collar and yoke. For the medium, size 3 yards of 27-inch goods will be needed with three-quarters of a yard of 18-inch material for the collar and yoke. 6968 sizes, 32 to 42 inches, bust measure.

The price of this pattern is 10 cents.

"I'm glad you sent for me," I said. "I shan't have to feel that I'm intruding. But now the question is, why doesn't Leah come back? Why didn't she wait for me at the station?"

"She must have been awfully frightened, to have gone away like this," Joy said.

"Perhaps she discharged her—I know she complained of Leah a good deal."

"Yes, I've thought of that. But I fear it's even worse."

Brooklyn Woman Suffers From Disease That Increases Weight.

New York, Sept. 12.—Afflicted with a rare disease, elephantiasis, Mrs. Juliette Felt is confined in the Kings county hospital, Brooklyn, her body slowly but surely increasing in size. She now weighs 525 pounds.

Physicians declare it is the most malignant and remarkable case of elephantiasis that had been brought to the attention of the medical fraternity. The doctors declare she may weigh more than half a ton in ten years.

NERVES IN ORDER. NERVES UNSTRUNG.

This in a nerve racking age—not a man in an office or behind the counter, striving hard to get on in the world, that does not feel the strain.

If nerves are in order, a man is strong, eats and sleeps well. Unstrung nerves means weakness, worry, sleeplessness and a general decay of bodily strength, inability to do good work or to do it long.

Local Rugby Warriors Will Begin Practice on Monday at Tecumseh

All arrangements have been made for the use of Tecumseh Park by the rugby management, and practice will begin on Monday next at 6 p.m. sharp. Secretary Spay today stated that the outlook for the placing of both a junior and an intermediate team in the field was very bright.

Everybody who has ever seen or cares to see a football is cordially invited to turn out with the boys for practice.

Partiality will be avoided as far as possible in making up the teams, and the best men will get the vacancies.

There are a number of vacancies to fill on last year's team and the younger players will have an excellent opportunity of getting placed.

Mr. S. Brent, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., has promised to devote a portion of his spare time over to coaching the team or teams, and it is hoped that others who know the game as Mr. Brent does will get out and give a helping hand.

The task of coaching any sort of an athletic team is ever a thankless one unless one is fortunate enough to turn out a winner every time, which is an impossibility.

The city baseball league management have an option on Tecumseh Park until some time in October, but they have kindly consented to allow the football boys the use of the park for practice while their option obtains, free of charge.

It is hoped that a large turnout will be present on the opening practice night, and that the oldtimers will be out to give the boys a lift.

The Hamilton Cubs were London's strongest opponents last season, and as everybody remembers they were a one man team to a large extent.

"Nibbs" Harrison won practically every game himself by his all around good work and excellent kicking qualities, although his team mates were always somewhere in the immediate region when there was anything doing. Harrison will not be with the Cubs this year, having graduated to the senior ranks, and it is whispered that there will be several other vacancies among the Cubs, which will have to be filled this year.

In the junior ranks London will have to hustle some, providing she also has an interim fate team, for the laxity in the age rules for juniors makes it possible to play giants if they can be had. London has very few of that brand.

The boys, however, are out to do their best, and one cannot do more than that.

ADDIE JOSS IS VERY EFFECTIVE AGAINST THE DETROIT TIGERS

George Mullin Pitches Good Ball, But Has One Bad Inning, Nevertheless.

Detroit, Sept. 11.—Addie Joss again shut out the Tigers yesterday, holding them to five hits. All through the nine innings of hard fighting the locals were never allowed more than one single for an inning. George Mullin held the visitors to even a less number of raps, but was unable to scatter them as did Joss. The Naps bunched three in the fourth inning, and this resulted in two tallies. The other, which made no difference, was scored on an error, a balk, a sacrifice hit and some loose play.

Joss was not as effective as he was in that remarkable Cleveland game against the hard-fighting locals, but was given great support, and was strong with men on bases. Mullin was strong and steady barring that one inning. If the Tigers ever get over that one-bad-inning habit they may land the American League flag. So far it has pursued them persistently for several weeks.

The Naps clinched the contest in the fourth, when Turner hit to Schaefer in deep short, and beat the Dutchman's throw to first. Lajoie sacrificed. Nig Clarke connected for a single of the line drive kind to center, and Turner beat Crawford's throw to the plate. Nig was able to make second on Sam Joss, and sprinted to third when Hinchman grounded to Schaefer. He scored on Birmingham's single over second. Stovall retired the side by flying to Jones in deep left.

Barring that one inning it was a remarkable pitchers' battle. At no other time were the Naps able to do anything with Mullin's delivery, but Addie Joss was equally steady.

In the second inning the Tigers got men on third and second, but could not score. Rossman walked and advanced on Down's sacrifice. Schmidt popped to Bradley, but Schaefer singled to deep short, and stole second. George Mullin has been stepping to the plate regularly as a pinch hitter, and seldom fails to land on the ball for a good healthy single. But somehow or other George can't do it for himself as successfully. His first effort was a terrific drive to right that looked good for three bases. But the wind caught the ball and swerved to just a few inches wide of the chalk line. It saved Addie's life. Mullin fled again, and lined to Flick, retiring the side.

In the sixth, two runs behind, the locals had another faint chance when Coughlin got a scratch two-bagger, a bouncer getting past Stovall. But there was one out and the side was retired, when Crawford grounded to Turner and Cobb lined in the same direction. In the ninth Cobb singled with one out, and made third on Rossman's whipped one into right field.

out and a wild pitch. But Downs struck out.

These were the only chances the Tigers had against the great Joss. All during the rest of the game he held them at his mercy.

The Naps found Mullin equally hard, with the exception noted above. In the seventh Coughlin booted Birmingham's grounder. Hurst allowed Birmy to make second, calling a balk on Mullin. Stovall sacrificed. Schmidt got the ball, and shot it to first. Birmingham saw there was no one covering the plate, and sprinted for home, making it easy.

The three men who scored were the only ones to make third. Three runs on four hits against the Tigers is going some. The score:

Notes on the Game.

The heavy-hitting Crawford, Flick and Lajoie went hitless. Cobb just broke into the base-hit column in the eleventh hour.

Double-header today. Liebhafdt and Rhoades will most likely work for Cleveland, while Donovan and Killian will twirl for the Tigers.

Downs saved Schmidt from a wild throw in the third, when he shot high in the air and speared the ball with one hand, too late, however, to get Flick, who was stealing.

Flick made a wonderful running catch of a drive from Schaefer's bat. It was a low liner, and Flick, on the dead run, dived for it. He slid along the wet grass and rolled over, still holding on to the ball.

But eight balls the Tigers hit went out of the infield. Three of them were flies to Flick, two to Hinchman and one to Birmingham. Coughlin got a single to left bounding down the third base line and Cobb in the last round whipped one into right field.

New Football Union a Reality; Schedule Already Drawn Up

Ballard, of Hamilton, Elected President—Now Up to C. A. A. U.

Hamilton, Sept. 11.—The Spectator says: All obstacles have been overcome and the Inter-Provincial Rugby Football Union is now a reality. It is composed of the Rough Riders, of Ottawa, the Montrealers, the Tigers of Hamilton and the Argonauts of Toronto. The organization work was practically completed at the meeting held in Toronto last Saturday, but for good reasons the information was not made public, it being announced that another meeting was to be held on Tuesday to complete the work of organization. The meeting was not held because there was no necessity for it.

The only obstacle that arose at last Saturday's meeting was the amateur question. The Argos' and Tigers' representatives wanted the O.R.F.U. definition of an amateur adopted, but the representatives of the eastern teams pointed out that such a rule would shut out many of their players who, while not actually professionals themselves, had become ineligible under the O.R.F.U. definition of an amateur by competing with and against recognized professionals in other sports. The agreement finally arrived at was that all players thus affected should make an affidavit to the effect that they had never received any remuneration for participating in football or any other sport and that they should then apply to the C.A.A.U. for reinstatement as amateurs.

But One Officer.

The new union has but one officer. He is George Ballard, of Hamilton, and his position is that of president. The president will each year appoint a secretary-treasurer who will receive an honorarium of $200 a year for his services. Each team will be represented on the executive by two members, but the secretary will not be a member of the committee and will not have a voice in its deliberations.

The Canadian Rugby Union's rules have been adopted, and the game that the Tigers and Montreal played for the Canadian championship last year will be the game played by all of the teams this year.

Will Continue Three Years.

The union is bound to continue in existence for three years, and each club will be required to put up a bond for $500 as a guarantee that it will stick for that length of time. This bond will be forfeited in event of any team failing to finish out its schedule, and the team that suffers by reason of the default will receive $200 from the defaulters. Each club will keep its own gate receipts and pay its own expenses when it goes away to play. An initiation fee of $30 will be collected from each of the four teams and this money will be expended on a cup or trophy to become the permanent property of the club winning it once. This will mean that a new trophy will have to be purchased each year. The new union will be financed in much the same manner as was the O. R. F. U. The union will collect a fee of $25 from the home club for each game, and this fee will be made a first charge on the gate receipts.

$300 a Year.

As the schedule calls for twelve games, the union will have $300 a year to carry it along and that should be sufficient for all purposes. The union will confine itself to senior ball and will not have anything to do with the junior or intermediate series.

There is still a possibility that the C. A. A. U. may upset the plans of the promoters of the new union by refusing to reinstate the eastern players, but that is not likely in view of the promise made by President Stark and other officers of the union.

SOMETHING THAT SHOULD BE RUBBED IN.—Whenever pain is felt in the limbs or back, take Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil; pour a little in the hand, and, applying it to the surface beneath which the pain lies, rub briskly. If the first application does not afford relief, which is not usually the case, keep rubbing. The Oil will gradually penetrate to the affected part and relief will come.

German capitalists have established a glass factory at Poshan, China, a town on the T'ing-tau-Chinan-fu railway; a sugar refinery at Tsingtau, of which the daily output will be 70 tons, requiring 80,000 tons of raw sugar annually, and a soap factory.

Northeast Australia develops very slowly. Farmers grow maize in the old-fashioned way. The maize crop in Queensland this year is a record one. Canning pineapples is becoming an important industry in Queensland. Opal mining is growing steadily.

USEFUL AT ALL TIMES.—In winter or in summer Parke's Vegetable Pills will come with and overcome any irregularities of the digestive tract, which change of residence, or variation of temperature may bring about. They should be always kept in hand, and once they are taken, the action becomes known, no one will be without them. There is nothing nauseating in their structure, and the most delicate can use them confidently.

A CRIME THAT IS NOT PUNISHABLE.

How many people reading this article have gone into a drug store and asked for some well known and highly tried medicine and some unscrupulous druggist has said, "Yes! we have that, but have you ever tried this remedy, it is just as good and costs less." Any druggist doing this has not the interest of your health at heart, but the interest of his pocket, as he makes more profit out of the cheap substitute.

For the protection and benefit of the public, we wish to say that Dr. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY has been used in thousands of homes for the past sixty-two years and has never failed to give prompt relief and cure in all cases of Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Colic, Stomach Cramps, Summer Complaint, Cholera, Sickhead, Chills, Infantum, Cholera Morbus and all Fluxes of the Bowels. When you buy Dr. FOWLER'S, you are not experimenting with a new and untried remedy, but are getting one that has stood the test of time.

"Miss Lettie Reid, Vivian, Ont., writes: 'Last year I suffered untold agony from cramps in the stomach and did not know what to do until a friend suggested I should try Dr. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY and as I was glad to try anything I purchased a bottle.

"When I had taken four doses I found relief and since then I never fail to keep a bottle in the house."

WAGNER HURLS DEFI AT LAJOIE

Pittsburg, Sept. 9.—Hans Wagner, of the Pirates, wants to be "world's baseball field champion." So he has come out with a deft to Napoleon Lajoie, manager of the Cleveland team, and for years held up as the only man equal in general effectiveness, if not superior to Wagner. Hans has dived down into his kick and come up with a bale of greenbacks that measures exactly $5,000, which he is willing to wager on himself to defeat Lajoie for the world's baseball field championship, based upon the following trials: Running to first from the plate. Running to first, finishing with a slide.

A run around the bases. Shortest bunt. Position of ball from where it stops to plate to be measured.

Distance hitting, each batter to furnish his own pitcher. Three trials;

total distance to win.

Run around the bases, a slide to be made at each base. Best time to win. Distance throwing. Three throws, longest or total distances to win. Throwing for accuracy. Player to stand on any base and throw at the cloth sack on every other base; spot where ball lights to be counted as the mark.

Fungo hitting for distance, best of three hits to count. Hitting for height, stop watch to determine highest hit.

Catching throws at all bases, each player to furnish thrower.

Batting from both sides of the plate. Hans is also willing to make any additions or alterations to these conditions that Lajoie may suggest. And, just to make the affair more interesting, Manager Clarke, of the Pirates, is willing to wager an additional $5,000 on Wagner.

Athletic Contest Draws Crowds At Cincinnati Park Yesterday

Mitchell Wins Fungo Hitting Contest, Driving Ball 413 Feet 81-2 Inches.

Cincinnati, Sept. 11.—One of the largest crowds that ever visited League Park in this city was on hand this afternoon for the athletic contests between 50 professional ball players, representing seven different leagues in all parts of the country. Although known as "bowlers' day," the event was of chief interest to baseball lovers, as the contestants were all well-known ball players.

In the long distance throwing contest seven players had been entered, six entries were announced for the long-distance fungo hitting; six players, five of whom are catchers, had entered the accurate-throwing contest, in which the throw from home to second was the test; for running out a bunt eleven players waited the test, and the circling-of-the-bases contest a dozen men were ready to compare merits.

In addition to the players entered for the contest, people from many cities were present to sustain the courage of their particular favorites, while President Fullam, of the National League, and managers or presidents of numerous interested baseball teams were spectators.

Preceding the baseball contests local bowling and turner societies paraded and the regular Cincinnati-Pittsburg National League game closed the afternoon. A strong wind somewhat interfered with record-breaking.

"Mike" Mitchell, Cincinnati right fielder, won the fungo hitting, driving a ball 413 feet, 8 1/2 inches. McIntyre, of Brooklyn, made 411 feet 1 inch; Walsh, Chicago Americans, 395 feet 10 1/2 inches; Overall, Chicago National, 380 feet 3 3/4 inches; McCoy, Mobile, 352 feet 1 1/2 inches; Lienfeld, Pittsburg, 326 feet 7 inches.

George Gibson, Pittsburg, catcher, won the accurate-throwing contest, his thrown ball striking fairly on the target, but the other contestants missed it entirely.

Elimination contests were necessary to decide the "beating a bunt" contest. Eleven contestants had entered. Six of these were eliminated on the first trial, when Huggins, of Cincinnati, D. Hoffman, of the Chicago National, Maloney, of Brooklyn, Leach, of Pittsburg, and Thoney, of Toronto, each reached first base in 3 2-5 seconds.

On the second trial Thoney won the bunting contest, reaching first in 3 1-5 seconds.

L. E. June, of the Springfield, O., Central League team, won the long-distance throw, making 339 feet, 10 inches, only 2 inches short of the world's record, Hostetter, of St. Louis Nationals, second, 355 feet 8 inches. Stanley, of Louisville, made 372 feet 11 3-8 inches. Mitchell, of Cincinnati, 372. McCoy, of Mobile, made 348 feet 1/4 inch, and Wagner, of Pittsburg, 341 feet 1 1/2 inches.

In circling the bases, Clements, of the Jersey City Eastern League team, won in 14 1-5 seconds. Others in this contest were Lobert, of Cincinnati, and Thoney, of Toronto, who made it in 14 2-5 seconds. Maloney, of Brooklyn, and Browne, of New York, in 14 3-5; Noblett, of Grand Rapids, in 14 4-5; and A. Hoffman, of the Chicago Nationals, in 15 flat. Leach, of Pittsburg, was disqualified, having failed to touch one of the bases.

What Our Exchanges Have to Say In the Sporting Line

Alfred Shrubbs' estimation of Longboat is not a very high one, and does not harmonize with the general theory that the speedy Indian is a world-beater. Shrubbs was on the grounds at Britannia Park on Saturday, during the course of the I. C. C. games. Whilst Longboat was running his race against Marsh, the English crack watched him intently and took his time by miles.

Asked what he thought of him he said that he had endurance, but no speed, and was not on that account a great runner. He said that Longboat was all right, provided he was allowed to run his own race and cut out the pace, which was not a very fast one. "What would you do if you were running against the Indian?" he asked.

"Oh, I would attempt to run the first two miles in nine minutes," said the Englishman, with the greatest of assurance. "I don't think that Longboat could keep up that pace, and I fancy that in the fourth mile I should be able to lap him."—Hamilton Herald.

"Happy" L'Hereux, the National goal-keeper, alleged that he was offered a bribe to throw the game to the Tecumsehs. He says he was offered $75 at the end of the first quarter, and at the end of the third period the briber offered him $200.

He refuses to give the name of the man who offered him the coin.

Manager Querries denies all knowledge of any such offer. He says he made none, and authorized none to be made.

The situation is serious, and demands an investigation.

It seems queer that the Frenchman did not tell his tale of corruption sooner. He should not have waited nearly two weeks.

If any such person made any such offer, he should be ruled out of the game forever.

If "Happy" L'Hereux does not come up to the scratch with the name of the would-be briber he should be thereafter discredited among honest men.

Anyway, it's up to the N. L. U. to investigate, and to strike soon, while the iron is hot.

And, by the way, this is not the first time that there have been whisperings of bribery in senior lacrosse.

On June 1, in the first game of the season, Shamrocks defeated the Nationals by 10 to 8, after the French had run up a lead of five goals. The Irish went into the game in the last quarter, and scored enough to win by 10 to 8.

There were charges made then, it is said, by National players, who suspected that all was not as it should be. The goalkeeper was put on the defensive, and he replied to his mates, it is alleged, by telling them that if they were not satisfied with his work they could get another goalkeeper.

BRAY-MACFIE NUPTIALS

St. James' Church, South London, was the scene yesterday afternoon of a brilliant social event, when Mary Macfie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Macfie, Ardara, was united in marriage to John Noel Bray, of the Bank of Montreal, Hamilton, son of Dr. J. P. Bray, registrar of the College of Physicians, Toronto.

Masses of gorgeous golden-rod added to the brightness of the interior of the church, where the ceremony was performed at five o'clock by the rector, Very Rev. Dean Evans Davis, assisted by Rev. Horace Bray, of Port Rowan, uncle of the groom. Mr. F. Linforth Willoughby presided at the organ, playing appropriate music while the guests were assembling and throughout the service.

The bride was lovely in her nuptial robe of French lace over satin, with bertha of rose-point lace, the tulle well being draped under a wreath of orange blossoms, the orange blossoms worn by her mother on her own wedding day.

Her only ornament was the groom's gift, a necklace of pearls and amethysts, and she carried a bouquet of arum lilies.

Miss Maizie Wheeler, of Boston, was a very charming bridesmaid. She wore an exquisite gown of white chiffon, pointed in yellow chrysanthemums and a large black picture hat, and carried yellow flowers.

The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Walter Bray, of New York, and the ushers were Messrs. E. Wood Leonard, H. Loudon, of Strathroy, Gerald Coghlin, of Montreal, and Norman Locke, of the Dominion Bank, this city, formerly of Toronto. The groom's gift to the bride was a necklace of antique silver, with pendant of Amazonite; to the groomsmen a pearl scarf pin, and to the ushers leather watch fobs, monogrammed in silver.

Mrs. Macfie, mother of the bride, wore a costume of black lace, mounted on white silk, with hat en suite; Mrs. Bray, mother of the groom, black and white silk grenadine; Mrs. Means, of Steubenville, Ohio, grandmother of the groom, a costume of black, relieved with gold; Mrs. Harrington Walker, of Walkerville, sister of the bride, white mull, with garniture of lace and white plumed hat; Miss Macfie, heliotrope net gown and hat of yellow roses; Mrs. R. D. Bray, white silk mousseline de sole; Mrs. M. Chandler Walker, of Walkerville, a beautiful gown of white embroidered mull and black picture hat.

After the service in the church, the guests drove to Ardara, the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Macfie on Ridout street. The rooms of the quaint, old-fashioned house were transformed into perfect bowers, with masses of autumn flowers. The happy young bride and groom stood in the flower-banked room to the right of the hall, where congratulations were showered upon them. A buffet luncheon was served in the dining-room. The beautiful wedding gifts were arranged in the drawing-room. One very handsome gift was a silver tray with filigree border and inscription engraved in the center, presented to Mr. Bray by friends in the Bank of Montreal, Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Bray left on the eastern express to spend a honeymoon in Toronto and at Lake Simcoe, after which they will live in Hamilton. In going away, the bride was becoming gown of dark green and large green hat.

Amongst the out-of-town guests who were present were: Dr. and Mrs. Bray, of Toronto, parents of the groom; Mrs. Means, of Steubenville, grandmother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Bray, of Chatham; Mrs. Robertson, Newmarket, and Miss Bray, Port Rowan, aunts of the groom; Mrs. M. Chandler Walker, Walkerville; Mrs. Glenn and Mrs. Falls, of Chatham.

PRETTY GOLDEN WEDDING

MR. AND MRS. SAMUEL BAKER.

On Monday, Sept. 10, surrounded by the members of their family and other immediate relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Baker, of South London, celebrated their golden wedding at their home on Bruce street.

After luncheon, congratulatory addresses were given by Rev. A. K. Birks, Rev. Isaac Baker, Mr. William Webb, Mr. R. H. Baker and Mr. J. Blewett, all referring to the long years filled with loving service and the now mellowed and enriched characters of the couple whom they delighted to honor.

Amongst those present were: Rev. A. K. Birks and Mrs. Birks, city; Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Baker, city; Mr. and Mrs. John Baker, St. Thomas; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Baker, city; Mr. Thos. Baker and Miss Baker, Mr. and Mrs. J. Blewett, St. Thomas; Mrs. William Blewett, St. Thomas; Mr. W. Webb, city; Mr. J. A. Baldwin, of Spokane, Wash.; Mrs. J. Allen and Mrs. E. Down, of Whitty; Mrs. Branton, of Wardsville; Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Baker, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Baker, Mrs. N. Love, Mr. J. Love, of Littlewood; Dr. J. Baker, of Leduc, Alberta.

POST CARD CRAZE IN LONDON

To send a representative to Germany and other postcard centers at intervals of about four months during the year to re-stock and introduce a new line of goods to the people of Canada. The sales of one postcard dealer in Toronto during the exhibition averaged fifteen thousand cards per day.

Prices of Cards. The postcards might be classified as follows: Local and foreign views, Easter, Christmas, Valentine, New Year's, fancy, embossed, comic and many others too numerous to mention.

In order to make a first-class postcard it is necessary to have a photograph at least as large as the postcard. The larger the better for the detail of the view. The prices of picture postcards have a wide range. The cheapest can be obtained for $3.50 per thousand, and they range from that price to $250 per thousand. The stock used in the different cards is leather, cardboard, plush and silk.

One of the main advantages of the picture postcards is the broadening of ideas by coming in constant contact with them.

In fact the industry has come to about where anyone can get a card to express mostly any thought that he might wish to express by mail.

PERSONAL MENTION

Miss Ida MacDougall, of Hamilton, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. R. Tait, of this city.

Miss Bertha Farmer, of Hamilton, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Charles A. Monteith, of this city, has returned home.

Deaf People Take Notice.

Any person troubled with deafness or ear defect, such as head noises, etc., should consult M. D. Tugendhaft, and his patented invisible ear drum, which restores hearing immediately. He will be at the Grigg House up to Saturday night.

NO DECISION REACHED

Paris, Sept. 11.—The Paris Presbytery met in the Presbyterian Church yesterday afternoon. There was a warm and lengthy discussion on church union, but no recommendation was made on the subject. Rev. Mr. Macbeth presented the presbytery with the names of three young men from the Paris congregation who intend studying in the ministry, Herbert Malcolm, George Russell and George Crawford. The presbytery certified to the names of the three young men for the study for the ministry.

STRANGE SUICIDE AT A STATE FAIR

Milwaukee, Sept. 12.—Frank Farries, an inventor, of Decatur, Ill., committed suicide at the state fair grounds by throwing himself under the steam roller which was being operated on the sample pavement that is being laid as an object lesson in good road-building.

Farries came to the fair from the Wauwatosa sanatorium in charge of W. A. Anthony, an attendant. He had been in the sanatorium about three months, but had never shown any sign of violence.

As they stood looking at the steam roller working back and forth Farries said: "What a fine machine it is." Anthony looked away for an instant, when he heard a cry and turning, found Farries had thrown himself in the path of the big rollers just as the machine started back.

He was crushed horribly, not a bone being left unbroken.

"DOLLY DIMPLES" ALL TO THE GOOD

Grace Cameron and Al. Laurence Made Big Hit at the Grand.

Pretty, petite, Grace Cameron sang so successfully in "Dolly Dimples," "When Dolly Dimples Made a Hit," that she was taken out of the production, and another production, "Dolly Dimples," was written around her.

In looking for a co-star, Mr. C. H. Kerr, the proprietor and manager, was very fortunate, for he secured the services of that prince of good fellows, Al. Laurence, well known to Londoners as a monologist of the first water.

Last night Grace Cameron and Al. Laurence appeared at the Grand in

AL. LAURENCE.

"Dolly Dimples," and a packed house applauded their work for three hours. "Dolly Dimples" is a musical comedy story. From the rise to the fall of the curtain, there is something doing. It sparkles with witty lines, melodious tones, and laugh-provoking actions. It is a conglomeration of "The Show Girl," with a strong strain of vaudeville, and a little of everything that is good in wit, humor and song. Its staging is magnificent, and on the whole, it is one of the most satisfactory musical melanges produced at the Grand for many months.

There is a plot to it, though between laughing spasms it is generally lost sight of, and no one gives a—well, nobody cares, anyway. One cannot laugh and figure out problem plays at the same time.

Miss Cameron, who has been seen in London in "The Normandy Wedding"—save the mark, that was a bad one; "Foxy Quiller," and other productions, is a favorite here. Last night she was working under difficulties, for she was suffering from a severe cold, but she carried her audience by storm nevertheless. Grace's opening song is to text for a Sunday school class, but she gets away with it. Her vivacious, winsome personality would carry her through anything.

Mr. Laurence appears in the part of Hiram, a rural character, whose friskiness and ready gab, kept the house in an uproar last night. It is only just to Mr. Laurence to say that in the opinion of the vast majority of local theatergoers, he is head and shoulders over the majority of the so-called first-class comedians. His rube dialect is excellent, and his deliveries are splendid. He knows what to do in any situation, and that is to make people laugh. He was applauded repeatedly last night, and it is safe to say that his reputation as a star in America is no passing glorifier. Al's there with the goods every minute.

At the close of the show he rung in his famous monologue, and the crowd laughed itself to the verge of a fit. For a time it appeared as though the audience meant to sit up all night with him.

The choruses were very praiseworthy, the numbers being rendered in a finished manner. The specialties, of which there were a number, were much better than the ordinary, especially the musical turns.

"Dolly Dimples" will be repeated at the Grand tonight. Everyone should see Grace Cameron and Al. Laurence. They're the greatest laugh-producers in the business.

Denman Thompson has never been credited with running a training school for actors, but the "Old Homestead" has turned out some good ones in its time, not the least of whom are Chauncey Oleott and Bernard Daly, lately starring in "Kerry Goo," and comes to the Grand for two performances next Saturday.

Mr. Daly is a young Irish comedian and possesses a phenomenally high tenor voice or rare quality ranging from C below the staff to E natural above high C.

He was born in Lynn, Mass., and has been on the stage several years in opera and musical comedy.

"The Top O' The World," a new American extravaganza, will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House, one night, Wednesday, Sept. 18. The Shuberts, who are so well-known for the high standard and excellence of their musical offerings, have excelled their record in this sumptuous production. The comedy is bright and diverting and the musical numbers are melodious and of the whistling variety. Great stunts are laid upon the dancing.

Miss Isabel Irving, will appear at the Grand, Thursday, Sept. 19. In Clyde Fitch's latest success, "The Girl Who Has Everything," Miss Irving is one of the ablest actresses on the American stage, with a varied experience in leading roles and star parts.

CONDENSED LOCAL NEWS

The funeral of the late Mr. Fred Platt took place this afternoon at Woodland Cemetery. Rev. Canon Dann conducted the funeral services.

The Pere Marquette has settled 26 of the 31 cases arising from the Salem, Mich., wreck. Mrs. Haas who lost her husband and two sons, gets $4,000, and Mrs. Merrill, widow of Photographer Merrill, about $2,700. They reside in Salem.

The Harvest Thanksgiving services of St. John's Church, London Township, are to take place next Sunday. Arrangements are being made for very interesting services, and the morning and evening sermons will be by Rev. A. Beverly, of Forest.

The death of Mr. John Wilkinson, of 436 Adelaide street, took place this morning at Victoria Hospital. The deceased was 73 years of age. The funeral will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. to Woodland Cemetery. Friends and acquaintances are invited to attend.

No. 3 committee of the city council, which was to have met last evening in the city hall, failed to put in an appearance. The only persons present were Chief Clerk of the fire brigade, and two newspaper reporters. The meeting will probably be held towards the end of this week.

Bank Clearings. Local bank clearings for the week ending Sept. 12 totaled $1,270,623, as compared with $1,145,040 for the same week of last year. Increase, $112,583.

Wedding Invitations Out. Invitations are issued for the wedding of Miss Mary Elizabeth Lamond Osler, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund B. Osler, to Mr. George Sutton Gibbons, London, Ont., in St. Simon's Church, on Wednesday, September 25, at 3 o'clock, and afterwards at Craigleigh, Rosedale, Toronto.

Honey Prospects.

The white honey harvest is over for this year, says the Bee Journal. In the majority of districts there is nothing more to follow, but to put the colonies in condition for winter. There are lots of lean hives throughout the country, and the beekeeper, above all men, is called upon to exert a large amount of "faith and good works," and especially the latter, if he is going to bring his bees successfully through to the fields of another spring.

Mr. Borden's Visit.

Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the Conservative Opposition in the Dominion House, will arrive in this city tomorrow evening from Woodstock, where he addresses a meeting tomorrow. He will be met here by a reception committee and the Citizens' Band, and escorted to the residence of Hon. Adam Beck, on Richmond street, where he will be entertained during his visit to London. He will spend the Princess Rink at night, and on Saturday morning will continue his tour.

Clerks Want Increase.

An eight-hour day, with overtime for more hours, including Sunday, and an increase in wages, are demanded by the Toledo Railway Clerks Union in a new schedule and working agreement presented to the entering Toledo. The increase demanded is 10 per cent on the Lake Shore Railroad and 20 per cent on the Michigan Central, C. H. and D. Pere Marquette, Clover Leaf, Ohio Central and the Wheeling and Lake Erie. A reply within ten days is requested.

Organ Recital Tonight.

The popular organ recital this evening at 8:15 in the First Methodist Church should be largely attended as Mr. Jordan has arranged a very interesting programme, that will display the varied qualities of the fine organ to the best advantage. By request the Tannhauser overture will be given. Mr. Maurice Pour, the well-known violinist, has just returned from Europe, bringing some valuable old violins, one of which a Joseph Guarnerius valued at $1,500 he will use tonight. Miss Beatrice Hunt, who is also assisting, will sing the "Angels' Serenade," by request. A silver collection will be taken at the door.

Is An Applicant.

Hamilton Spectator: London is about to appoint a building inspector, and among the applicants is a former resident of London, who for the past ten years has resided in London.—Henry F. Ram. Mr. Ram is a man well fitted for such a position, having had practical experience and a thorough knowledge of all the requirements necessary in the construction of buildings. He is highly recommended by the leading architects and builders of Hamilton, where his work speaks for itself. He is of the same school as Hamilton's inspector—Mr. Anderson.

Box-Houston.

Miss Violet Houston and Mr. William Box, both of this city, were united in marriage last evening, Rev. Dean Davis, of St. James' Church, tying the happy knot. Miss Annie Carroll, of this city, assisted the bride, and Mr. Charles Richards was best man. Miss Mabel Houston, sister of the bride, was ringbearer, and led the very pretty dressed in white wedding. The bride looked very charming in her dress of crepe de chine, carrying a bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Miss Carroll was also dressed in crepe de chine, and carried a bouquet of pink asters. The couple will reside in this city.

Death of Mrs. Zwicker.

The death of Mrs. Elizabeth Zwicker, wife of Mr. George H. Zwicker, jeweler, of this city, took place at a family residence, 650 Dundas street, today after a prolonged illness of six weeks. South London Wedding.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dingle, of Spruce Villa, South London, was the scene of a pretty wedding yesterday afternoon, when the eldest son of Mrs. Dingle, Mr. A. Houlgate, was united in marriage to Miss May Corbett, both of St. Michael's. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Fisher, of Lambeth. Miss Emily Draper acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. H. Houlgate, brother of the groom, acted as best man. The bride was given away by Mr. W. H. Dingle. She was handsomely gowned in white embroidery, and carried a bouquet of white carnations. After the ceremony the guests sat down to a dainty dinner. The table was decorated with red ribbons and white flowers. Later the happy couple left for points east. The bride's going-away gown was of brown. The presents were numerous.

BIG CROWD AGAIN AT THE FAIR

of necessity, very slow. Two races are on the card and they will be pulled off. There is a large entry list, and it will be a great day for mudlarks.

SCOTT MACHINE COMPANY.

Those who have ever considered, or who are considering the installation of a private electric light plant in their factory would do well to call at the Scott Machine Company's exhibit in the machinery building at the Western Fair. There they will see one of the most perfect light lighting plants in operation. The outfit consists of a splendid 12-horsepower gasoline engine connected with a suitable dynamo which is generating power for 100 lights, and also run the machinery in several booths. The little plant is a marvel of simplicity and utility. The engine is constructed with a special automatic governing device which regulates the speed in such a way that a perfectly steady light can be generated. It also greatly reduces the amount of gasoline used in operating of the plant. Besides the little electric plant the Scott company, which has its factory in this city, exhibits a great line of special machinery such as elevators, testing machines and all manner of machinery made to order.

The following are some of the Scott company's specialties: Special machinery for economy, gas and gasoline engines, elevators, power or hand, L & K test boring machines, Durner patent die harrow sharpeners, Power transmission supplies, such as belting, pulleys, shafting, pressed steel hangers, sprocket chain and wheels, couplings, friction clutches, etc.

CAMPBELL'S CARRIAGES.

Nearly everyone knows a little about carriages, and if they don't know something about them, they all like to ride in them. If you would like to see the very best and most beautiful designs in carriages, you can see everything in the vehicle line from heavy cabs to light runabouts at the carriage exhibit of John Campbell & Sons at the Western Fair. Among the very latest carriages and vehicles displayed in the Campbell exhibit is a close quarter landau, a style of carriage which has recently come in vogue and which is exceedingly elegant and handsome. A Victoria carriage is also exhibited. This rig is rubber-tired and of most elegant design while the finish is simply superb. Then there are large numbers of traps, Westminsters and boulevard styles. There are Stanhope top buggies, Stanhope bikes, bike wagons with automobile seats and all kinds of buggies. For a splendid display of fine carriages the Campbell exhibit cannot be beaten.

A GREAT ORGAN EXHIBIT.

The Sherlock Manning Company have the best exhibit of organs at the Western Fair. Their display is just inside the main entrance in the main building. There they have on exhibition many splendid instruments, ranging from small organs to great cathedral styles for churches. Many are the musicians who visit the Sherlock Manning exhibit and the reason is that they have all heard of the fame of these instruments, which are now finding their way into the leading churches and homes of the country. Many families, organs, suitable for homes and halls, are also exhibited. A special representative of the firm is at the booth to give full particulars and information to all who call.

Nordheimer Piano and Music Company, 188 Dundas street, London, are selling agents.

I. O. F. TENT.

The I.O.F. tent is situated near the main building on the exhibition grounds. It is beautifully furnished with upholstered easy chairs and couches, and decorated as well as a beautiful display of flowers and plants.

The tent is in charge of C. H. Merryfield, Past H.C.R., assisted by G. W. Wands, D.S.C.R., and L. Davis. Thousands of people are passing in and out every day, and literature has been distributed plentifully. The register contains some thousands of names, and although the weather has been unfavorable, the I.O.F. tent has been a success. Many new applications have been written up, and the aims and objects of the order explained to the people as they visited the same.

This gigantic order gives from $500 to $5,000 of insurance, as well as sick and funeral benefits, and in addition to this, each member receives free medical attendance and free medicine.

Now is the time for the young men of the west to identify themselves with one of the best fraternal orders in the world. The membership of the order now stands over 250,000, and the surplus funds between 11 and 12 millions of dollars.

The policy of the new supreme chief ranger, who succeeded Oronhyatekha, M.D., is very satisfactory to the membership in general. His economy in doing away with the foreign offices has met with general favor. This order is under Government inspection, and has very recently gone under the scorching eye of a commission appointed by the Government, when it was expected by the enemies of the order to have shown that the order was in a very unsatisfactory condition, but, to the contrary, it was found that every dollar of the surplus funds as well as the investments claimed by the order was in the possession of the supreme executive.

Let me say that this is the opportune time for every young man and woman over 16 years of age to become a member of the order, as at the present time the registration and certificate fees will be remitted until the 31st day of September, 1917.

AN INTERESTING EXHIBIT.

On the south side, near the west corner of the Main Building at the Western Fair, is situated the exhibit of the Dominion Office Supply Company, which is conspicuous for the harmony of design and color which prevails throughout it. Large numbers of business men, storekeepers and all men who have anything to do with office work find this exhibit interesting and none should miss seeing it. The display, which consists of all the latest and most approved designs of office furniture, and, also, store show cases, is remarked for the elegance of finish which prevails throughout. A special line of fine glass show cases and floor cases is a special feature of this exhibit. Among the most beautiful of these cases is a glass case especially designed for jewelers' use.

COWAN'S EXHIBIT.

Large numbers of persons visited the "Cowan" exhibit at the Western Fair yesterday. This exhibit, which is situated in the main building, is a very fine one, and of special interest to women who pride themselves on being good cooks. All have learned of the enviable reputation which Cowan's cocoa has won. At the "Cowan" booth, one may see almost every product of cocoa, and all of quality par excellence. Among the specialties of the exhibit are: Cowan's Maple Buds, Cowan's Cream Bars, and last but not least, Cowan's Pea Cocoa, which is used in almost every household throughout the Dominion, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and which has long been looked upon by most housewives as indispensable. Mr. J. B. Whaley, the western representative of the Cowan Company, is in attendance at all times, and takes great pleasure in meeting all those interested—either merchants who wish to handle the Cowan goods or housewives.

D. MOORE STOVE COMPANY'S EXHIBIT.

In the Machinery Hall at the Western Fair is the exhibit of the D. Moore Company, of Hamilton, Ont., the foremost manufacturers of steel ranges in America. At this exhibit are to be seen many different varieties of stoves and ranges, all steel, and of the latest and most approved designs. All the D. Moore Company's stoves are the best in their "Sovereign Treasure" range, which is a beauty in every sense of the word, and should be seen by every housewife who visits the fair. Every person who has anything to do with stoves should make a special point of visiting the D. Moore exhibit.

LONDON AND DISTRICT

—The London Conservatory of Music and School of Elocution, Dundas street, of which Mr. W. Caven Barron is principal, has reopened for the fall term.
Just a Pipe Story.

Edward Andrews, the watchman who fell down the steps into the engine-room of the London Canning Company last Saturday night is well enough now to go to his own home, although still suffering slightly from the injuries he received. There is absolutely no mystery about the accident at all, so say officials of the company, and absolutely no reason to believe that any violence was used. The affair was purely accidental with no blame attached to anyone.

Looking for His Wife.

Chatham News: Ernest Reed, 776 Colborne street, London, Ont., has written to Chief of Police Holmes asking the local force to aid him in his search for his wife and child, who, he states in the letter, left him on Friday. Mr. Reed says further that he has reason to believe that they are in Chatham, and to facilitate their discovery, adds a description of the pair as follows: Mrs. Reed is aged 30, of medium height, dark hair and eyes, of slight build, with teeth slightly apart. She was dressed in black when last seen. The boy is aged 6, tall for his age, has dark eyes and fair hair. Chief Holmes and his sleuths are unaware of the presence of the pair in Chatham, but, of course, will keep a sharp lookout for them.

CONSERVATIVES DISAPPOINTED.
Ottawa, Sept. 12.—Dr. G. C. Richardson, of Hazeldean, has been appointed sheriff of Carleton county and the Supreme Court of Canada. He was the nominee of the county, and the city association of Conservatives is disappointed at the selection. The Ontario Government gave as the reason for his selection the fact that no county men now hold office in Carleton.

CHOLERA MORBUS, cramps and kindred complaints annually make their appearance at the same time as the hot weather, green fruit, cucumbers, melons, etc., and many persons are debilitated from eating these tempting things, but they need not abstain if they have Dr. J. Great Show of Dogs at the Fair; Londoners Win Very Many Prizes

List of Those Who Carry Away the Honors in All Classes of Canines.

The dog show is the newest and it promises to be the best feature of the Western Fair. Yesterday it was one of the best-patronized portions of the Fair, and was thronged all the day. Over 3,000 paid admissions were registered in the afternoon, and the total of those who paid to see the dogs will go nearly 5,000 people to date. This is beyond the expectations of the directors of the Fair and they are more than well pleased with the show. It is expected that it will be made a better show next year than this.

The show of dogs is a good one. Nearly every class is well represented, and some excellent specimens are shown. Every dog has his friends, and it would be a difficult matter, indeed, to pick out the most popular class or the class with the most friends. The dogs are all good, and are well benched.

The Graydon Kennels.

The setters are an excellent lot. In this class Mr. Marshall Graydon makes almost a clean sweep with his splendid kennel. Mr. George Bowman shows a beautiful bitch, Queen Kent, who won the open class, and Mr. A. H. Blackburn has a great dog in the novice class, Laddie. Outside of these two, Mr. Graydon got about all the ribbons. The collies are a fine lot. Mr. W. C. Finley, of Montreal, owner of the Colla kennel, sent some splendid specimens and won a large number of prizes. Mr. Finley came up yesterday from Montreal to see his dogs. His champion, Balmoral Baron, is a beautiful dog and won all the way.

The splendid kennel of Col. McEwen is among the missing. It is too bad he had not his collies in. It would have made it interesting for all. Mr. Dan. Thody, Lambeth, shows some nice dogs in this class also.

Boston Terriers.

The Boston terriers are great favorites among the ladies, and the pets are among the most admired.

Mr. J. A. Meadows, of Toronto, has some very fine Bostons. Combustion, the winner, is a specially fine dog. He beat Peter Pan, a winner in Boston and New York, owned by Dr. Richardson, of Toronto, and also beat Bad Boy, another winner, owned by Mr. W. Austin, of Toronto. Combustion won the O'Neil cup for the best Boston in the show. His kennel mate, Lady Snow Ball, was also a good winner, beating Mr. R. Oke's Togy, and Mr. W. Ruse's Kiddo II. Peggy Brady, a fine bitch, won the novice.

Fox Terriers.

Dr. Drake has some beautiful, smooth fox terriers, and practically makes a sweep of that class. His Champion Forford On, is a beauty, and scored heavily.

The Oxford Kennels of Ottawa show some very fine wire haired terriers, and take the majority of the prizes. Miss I. A. Labatt shows a fine puppy, The Meddler, and won with him. Mr. A. D. Armour had a fine dog in Fustler, who won a number of prizes.

The other classes were well filled and some excellent dogs were exhibited. There was a large showing of cocker spaniels and toy dogs. The Airedale terriers were a fine lot shown by many exhibitors. Chief in this class was the $5,000 beauty, Commodore of Clifton, shown by Mr. E. Wrightson Thorpe, of Toronto. There were many other good dogs shown.
