It is positively stated by the lytours transfer, and the Editor of that paper ought to be the valley of the Gatineau, and of these, three or sand Indian families in the Gati-Province are to be made over to a Corporation of Monks! If we do not greatly err, the lands set apart in former years in Lower Canada for the use of the Indian tribes are far greater in extent than is necessary, not being yet half cultivated; not that we would take away a single acre from these poor people, but we certainly do think it both impolitic and unjust to the people to alienate more of the public domain for Indian use, or rather

If there are a few families on the Gatineau, let them have a few acres of land, by all means - we should think three or four to each family would be ample, according to what we know of Indian habits-but we must protest against the mad scheme of locking up sixty thousand acres of fine land from public use, and placing it in the power of an irresponsible Corporation.

The Parliament and the Reporters.

The Montreal Gazette and Quebec Chronicle, the only papers which have, that we have yet seen, taken a stand against their brother journalists in this quarrel, do both, as it strikes us, wander away from the real point at issue. Act, has the right starger onite, to emorce order directly from the Government in the place in which it meets for the transaction of business. So has the Corporation of Montreal, or any other city, and we do not believe that the House of Assembly possesses legally one iota more power Therefore we believe that if order is violated in their Chamber, or their proceedings are interrupted by a stranger, they have the means order, and putting a stop to intersuption, and that in the simplest way in the world, by desiring their officers to eject the offender; but this is a monstrous different thing from the power claimed-that is, to send the Serjeant-at Arms, orthaps to a man's own domicile, drag him to the Bar of the House, reprintand, and perhaps fine and imprison him. The House of Commons claims the right to do this thing, and custom, from time issmemorial, has, we suppose, given the claim the force of law; but this Colodial Parliament of ours has only been in existence some ten years; we remember the birth of the rickety thing, and we have before us the Statute which called it into mand, fine, or imprison the Queen's subjects; and frees, expressive of their regret at his departure, the Gasette knows perfectly well that it has been and of regard for his public and private worth, in the Court of Privy Council, that no Colonial to which we observed the names of all the prin-Parliament has any such privileges or powers. We coacede to this Colonial Parliament just the same zight that we possess as an individual—that in, the right to kick an impertment intruder out of doors, but not an atom more, for no man can convince us that it has more, legally or constitutionally, after the decision of the Privy Council. Mr. Ure disturb the order of the Assembly or interrupt its proceedings, and so render himself ent, which we concede to the and therein lies another antagonism between the body of the Press and their conferes, the Gasette soft iron, becoming a magnet when acted upon by Assembly the power to exercise? We think not, of the Press and their conferers, the Gasette Chronicle. Mr. Ure certainly did not disturb order or interrupt, the proceedings of the electric fluid, opens or closes the orifice action, for the simple reason that what he said nites when it is necessary to light the lamps, and nites when it is necessary to light the lamps, and nites when it is necessary to light the lamps, and nites when it is necessary to light the lamps, and then beyond his immediate neighbor.

Mr. Baldwin went on talking, knowing ng of the alleged outrage on the privileges of simultaneously, or extinguished in the same way by a different action on this magnetized iron. He simply requested Mr. Christie to "allow him to heat the Member speaking,"—and now we put t to our readers, to say fairly and impartially who cuts the best figure in this transaction—the reporter, who was doing his best to fulfil his duty to the public and his employers, or Mr. Robert Christie, who was out of his place, chattering soft nothings to a parcel of foolish women, who had better have been at home darning their evening next. stockings.! Which was really the most dignified, the Reporter's simple request to be allowed to perform his duty, or Mr. Christie's punctilious stand upon his pretended dignity? Who was nost worthy of censure, the Reporter, a young man five weeks in the country, and probably very ignorant of all pertaining to these assumed privileges of Purliament, or the veteran Member of perhaps twenty years Parliamentary expeience, who ought to have known that the Reporters have a solemn duty to perform, and a very lifficult one, and that his laughing and chattering in their vicinity was not exactly the way to help them? Why this very Reporter might have been pulled up next day by Mr. Robert Baldwin (or an inaccuracy in his report, for, though these gentlemen ignore the existence and presence of Report-ers in their House, they deem it a high breach of privilege to make a mistake in reporting their horrid twaddle, so far does their inconsistency carry them, and Mr. Ure might actually have been re It is stated that the Government had actually primanded, fired, and imprisoned, on motion of contemplated placing Sixty Thousand Acass of the finest lands in the valley of the Gatineau at Mr. Robert Baldwin, and all because Mr. Robert

It was in the year 1550, before the Mogul dynasty had been established by the prowess of the great Akbar, that this marvellous atone was first brought to light in the mines of Golconda. The "Mount, in of Light" passed in the train of conquest, and as the emblem of dominion, from Golconda to Delhi, from Delhi to Mushed, from Mushed to Cabul, and from Cabul to Lahore. Excepting the somewhat content of the same of the Brazilian stone among from Delhi to Mushed, from Mushed to Cabul, from Delhi to Lahore. Excepting the somewhat doubtful claims of the Brazilian stone among the crown jewels of Portugal, the Koh-i-noor is the largest known diamond in the world. When first given to Shah Jehaun it was still uncut, weighing, it is said, in that rough state, nearly 800 carats, which were reduced by the unskillfulness of the artist to 279, its present weight. It was cut by Mortensio Borgis, a Venetian, who, instead of receiving a remuneration for his labor, was fined 10,000 rupees by the enraged Mogul. In form, it is "rose cut"—that is to say, it is cut to
