LONDON'S SLUM BABIES.

Gutter Children That Thrive Where They Court Death.

London gutter babies are immune to ordinary diseases and thrive under con-ditions that would be death to other children, said Dr. Thomas, health officer of the Finsbury district. Dr. Thomas works in the most congested of the London boroughs, where 6,000 families live and sleep in 6,000 rooms.

"Some of these bables," he says, "as soon or even before they are able to crawl, are placed on the sidewalks early in the day, to be watched or nursed by a girl of four or five years. They are true gutter children. Sometime the immature nurse falls asleep, wearied by her task, and the baby crawls to the other side of the road, heedless of traific. Both are fillty and gutter stained but they seem to live. In fact, the stock from which they have sprung rises superfor to the ordinary diseases of childhood." Among the cases reported are these:

A baby four months old was given a ficer of the Finsbury district. Dr. Tho-

The catalogue is kept up by contributions from the police of every town and city where a crank is found.

. A Military Compliment.

During the South African war an order was issued to the men of the Hhabland regiments that they must cover up their tartan kilts as they made too good targets for the enemy. The order proved very unpopular and caused a great deal of dissatisfaction among the soldiers conce-ned. When Sir George White heard this he thought of a way out of the difficulty.

"Let them cover up only the front of their kilts," he said. "The enemy will never see the other side."—London Answers.

 THE POULTRY WORLD

SUMMER HATCHED CHICKS. There is profit in summer hatched chicks if they are carefully and economically raised.

Where one has a large, old orchard he has an ideal spot for raising summer chicks, and an excellent way is to set hens right under these trees in barrels laid on their sides with a lath run in front. After the hatch is over the barrels can be cleaned out, new soil thrown in, and the hen and her brood can make this their home until large enough to be moved to other quarters. On this shady range the youngsters will not mind the heat, and they will secure grass and insects galore. Everything else being equal, chicks are bound to grow rapidly under such circumstances.

Where the old orchard is not available a confield will serve the purpose. After the corn is about three feet high the coops can be scattered about the field, same as in the orchard.

Now where the land is limited, where the old orchard does not exist and the confield would be out of question, in fact where the territory is very limited and where natural shade is not extensive, canopoles can be erected, practically only a roof supported by four strong posts, one in each corner. This contrivance should be not more than two feet high, and since there are no sides, the cool air will come through, if there is any air at all. Shade is one of the greatest factors in raising summer chicks. Without it failure is sure to come.

Next in importance to shade comes fresh air. Begin right. Grow the chicks of the summer of might may be a the found of these seeds composed of one-inch will not successfully raise summer chicks. Where there is summer of might have been though, if there is summer chicks is practically the same as that for winter chicks excepting that less corn (a heating food) should be allowed in the ration, there must be some corn, however. Put in just enough to balance the ration. The three grains important for chick growth are wheat, oats and corn—in the proportion (in summer) of two parts cracked wheat two parts bran (by weight) to one part each of middlings, oatmeal, cornmeal and meat scrap. Of this only enough is given each morning that the chicks and natural essentials that go much toward making rapid and strong growth in the chicks.

Strange how many beginners fail to heed the advice of known experts in poultry. A few years of experience, however, puts the beginner right. Yet time and money could often be saved if the advice of those who have made good in poultry was heeded.

There is yet much to learn in poultry. Our best experts do not know it all, but the foundation has been laid to successful poultry, and the advice given by those who have and are making good should be carefully considered.

The better the care the chicks receive the more rapid the growth, and quicker maturity to the producing of eggs for the winter markets. A well-grown chick from good stock is a profit-payer the field. Now watch for the reaction, not that utility is not a good thing to have in the flock. In fact, it is the first consideration, but the claims made by some called utility is almost a crime against the American fowls. If it were not for the name, one on seeing them on the farm would call them common scrubs. All shapes, all sizes and looking anything but like the breed of variety they are named after. The only recommendation they have is the name utility, and that means to some only egg production.

TRICKS OF BULLETS

the Battle of Omdurman a sick officer was taken across the Nile placed under an awning at least 5,500 yards from the nearest point of possible fire. This should have ensured him an ample margin of safety, but none the less a stray bullet ate up the intervening three miles of desert, struck him in the head and killed him.

Shortly before the Battle of Giniss, in Sudan, General Sir Archibald Hunter, Colonel Hacket-Thompson, C. B., and another officer whose name capes me were reconnoitering through an opening in the wall of a disused sakeeyeh, or waterwheel. in the wall was so small that the officers had to stand one behind the other to see anything. The officer whose name I forget was in front using a pair or binoculars, while Sir Archibald Hunter was in the rear The glint caused by the setting sun shining on the glass of the binoculars attracted the attention of a dervish who, together with others, was retiring along the Nile. He stopped, took aim, and fired. It was a very good shot, for it sped through one lens of the binoculars, through the brain of the officer holding them, killing him on the spot, through the shoulder of Colonel Hacket-Thompson, and finally lodged in the breast of Sir Archibald Hunter, where, I believe, it remains to

TRACING COUNTERFEITERS.

The Secret Service Agents Have a Splendidly Effective System.

Some time ago one of the local anks caught during the day a counterfeit ten dollar bill. It was such a clever counterfeit it would pass anybody but an expert. The next day ten or fifteen more of the bad bills were found in the city.

Then the government's machinery to protect its currency began to work. But there was nothing mysterious about its working. in the office of the secret service here an official sat all afternoon smoking and looking at specimens of counterfeit currency. Huge clouds of smoke rose from his pipe. That kept up all day. The reader of detective tales who believe the secret service works in a mysterious way would have been distinctly disappointed. But at last the pipe dropped from the lips of the man sitting at the desk in the federal building with a whol pile of greenbacks infront of him. He took up two bills and compared them carefully. Then he studied them again noting every little curve and characteristic mark. He stepped to the telephone and called the United States prison at Leavenworth.

"Was Jarses Hard, alias Stewart, alias Nolan, in srison?"
No. James of the two aliases had been out six months. Then telegrams went out to certain officers in certain cities. How they located James Ward the government keeps as a secret. Later the counterfeiter was arrested at Springfield, Ill., and his outfit for raising bills was found with him

And so another counterfeiter was caught and put out of business. How was it done? Simple enough—if you belong to the secret service. Every counterfeiter has some distinguishing characteristic in his work, some little urve or break in a line that gives him away. The secret service agents compart the new counterfeit with dozens of old counterfeiters. At last he found the telltale distinguishing characteris-ic. And the rest was easy. James of the two aliases and a counterfeiting device had served three terms before. So there was plenty of his samples.—Kansas City Times.

The Wonderful French Housewife

Mabel Potter Daggett tells the following in writing about the French housewife in Pictorial Review for July, 1915.

She is coming down the Rue Delambre and the Rue de la Gaite, the Rue Poinsot, the Rue Stanislaus, and the Rue d'Odessa. In either hand she car-ries a capacious filet, the string bag that is to Paris what the market bas ket is to the provinces. And these long hurrying lines of her are converging on the market that has this morning unfolded its fluttering white canvas covers beneath the locust trees where the white olicloth stalls are set ep down the length of the Boule vard Edgar Quinet. There are other streets, too, where you might see her. Every quarter of Paris has a market like this for two days a week. And she is always there.
Solomon, writing some thousands of years ago, might have had her in mind, so well does the description ap-ply: "She looketh well to the ways of her household, and eateth not the bread of idleness. . . The heart of her husband doth safely trust in her." And well it may. It is she who holds the national bas de laine, the 'stocking" that is said to contain the wealth of France. This, of course, is a figure of speech. Quite likely it may as often be in a teacup on the pantry shelf or in the corner of a oureau drawer or in the bottom of a trunk in the attic. But the point is that somewhere she puts it away. She does this through saving thrift and her careful economy—because she is French. See her here this morning buying in the Boulevard Edgar Quinet

At home in New York, as in the cit-les all over the American continent, there are to-day ten thousand housethere are to-day ten thousand house-wives and more, who also are doing their marketing. But many of them are doing it in a kimono and a lace-frilled boudoir cap, with no more ex-ertion than taking down a telephone receiver. What is the price per pound of the lamb chops that Madame Manhattan is ordering? Really, she has never troubled to inquire. Loes she know that there is a shortage in peas to day that has made them jump in price? And that peaches this month are costing twice as much as they will next? Put these are details in do next? But these are details in domes-tic economy that she has very likely wholly missed. A voice at the other end of the wire "sends them over," and "charges it." Presently there is the butchers boy and the baker's boy and the grocer's boy calling up the dumb-waiter shaft, and a succession of packages has arrived on the kitches of packages has arrived on the kitchen table. The marketing for the day is done—until the maid remarks that she "forgot, but the breakfast bacon is

"Oh, well, just call up." A little later she remebers that "We need Ecap.

"Oh, well, call up." And perhaps afterward she comes in to say that "The cake isn't going round for dessert." In the course of time, there will be the butcher's boy and the baker's boy and the grocer's boy all coming whistling down the street again. And they don't come for nothing. That, too, gets charged in the bill. Though Madame never, never heard of such thing. For every dollar expended by the American housewife on food for the home table, twenty-five cents goes to pay for transportation. Seven hundred million dollars' worth of food stuffs are consumed annually in New oyrk are consumed annually in New OYTK City, and that means a cost of one hundred and seventy five million dol-lars for transportation. All if it isn't for railroad freight. Some of it is for when Dr. Hamilton's Pills are taken, they are not only correct coastipated bowels, but act upon the liver as well.

"A LITTLE QUEER."

His Eccentricity in the End

Proved His Own Undoing.

Proved His Own Undoing.

Rev. Mr. Hagamore, to whose memory is a slab in the church at Catshoge, Leicestershire, Engla d, was "a little queer." It seems that the reverend gentleman died in January, 1886, leaving all of his property, valued at $3,500, to a railroad porter.

This queer old preacher kept one servant of each sex, whom he locked up every night. His last employment of an evening was to go the rounds of his premises, let loose the dogs and fire off his gun.

He lost his life in a curious manner. Starting out early one morning to let out his servants, the dogs fawned upon him and threw him into a pond of water. The servants heard his cries, but, being locked up, could not render assistance, so the old man was drowned.

When the Inventory of his property was taken, he was found to be the owner of 80 gowns, 100 pairs of shoes, 80 whigs (although he had plenty of natural hair), 50 dogs, 36 wagons and carts, 30 wheelbarrows, 249 razors, 80 plows, 50 saddles and 222 pickaxes and shovels. He surely was "a little queer." — London Standard.

London Cable.—There were eleven Americans among the nineteen members of the crew who lost their lives in the sinking of the Layland Like freight steamer Armenian by the German submarine U-38 off Trevose Heac, Cornwall, on Monday. Some members of the crew were killed outright when the German tornedo struck the ship.

When sunk by the German submarine the Armenian was carrying . cargo of 1.422 inules from Newport News to Avonmouth, the animals to le used by the French armies in Belgium and France. The vessel had a crew of 72 men, and carried 96 men as

The submarine was first sighted by the man at the wheel, and though the ship was pushed to the limit, the under-water craft rapidly overhauled ler and commenced shelling. Armenian's efforts to keep her stern to the submarine were futile.

The faster vessel circled the freighter, and the German commander, speaking through a megaphone, ordered the Armenian's captain to surrender or he would sink the ship. The skipper of the Layland Lines struggled hard to evade the undersea but the latter dropped a shell through a skylight into the stermer's engine-room, putting the engines out of action. The Arfmenian then sur-

THE CAPTAIN'S STORY.

Captain Trickey, of the Armentan, in an interview to-day, said that he only surrendered to the German submarine when the freighter was aftre three places and after the ship' engines had been put out of action and a dozen members of the crew had been killed by shrappel fire. The submarine as a signal for us to stop," said Captain Trickey, 'first put a couple of shots over our bows when we were four miles off. I put my stern to him and ran for it.

"The submarine then began to shell us in earnest, the shrappel bursting all round us, killing several of the rew and knocking others overboard I soon realized that the enemy was gaining on us, but I ddi not propose to surrender without a struggle. But my steering gear was soon hit and placed out of commission. Then a shell fell into the engine room and another carried the Marconi house away. British Barque Thistle Bank and Steamer Lomas.

London Cable-The British barque histle Bank, which sailed from Bahis Blanca, Argentina, April 28, with a cargo of wheat for Queenstown, was torpedoed by a German submarine yesterday at a point off Fastnet, Ireland.

Some of the crew were landed at Baltimore, a small seaport 47 miles southwest of Cork.

The British steamship Lomas, bound from Argentine for Belfast with a cargo of corn, was sunk by a German submarine Wednesday afternoon sixty miles west of the Soilly Islands.

The submarine first fired two shots, presumably as a summons to haul to, but the second shell struck the steamer, killing the second officer. The crew took to the boats and were picked up by a Belgian trawler and landed at Milford Haven. Blanca, Argentina, April 26, with a car Struggle On the Austro-Italian Frontier Heavily Resumed.

New Ally Slowly Advancing On the Isonzo Front.

London Cable A great battle is developing along the Isonzo River between the Italian and Austrian forces, where operations had been almost suspended for several days on account of the bad weather. Both the Italian and the Austrian official reports declare that the other side is attacking unsuccessfully, the latest communication from Rome particularly mentioning engagements at Castelle Nuovo and near Plava.

Sensation at Probe Into Torpedoing of the Lusitania.

Extra Sitting Held in Regard to Collapsible Boats.

London Cable. With the object of cheering farther, implimation regarding some questions submitted to the bittish board of Trade in the Lusitania inquiry, Baron Mersey held another public hearing here to-day.

Prof. Maritmai, of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., who stated he was a retired officer of the French army, created a diversion by complaining of the treatment accorded to rescued passengers of the Lusitania by the Cunard company. He alleged the survivors had the greatest difficulty in chaining dry clothes, 100d, accommodation or transportation.

Prof. Mariciai also stated that the econd explosion on the ship resembled the sound which would be caused by ammunition, "like a Maxim gun." He also charged the company with indifference to the interest of the passengers in carrying a dangerous cargo, and criticised the manner of conducting rescue work.

Counsel of the Cunard line read a letter written by Prof. Marichal to the company after the disaster, in which the writer asked that cash be advanced on his lost baggage, or he would give evidence "not to the credit of the company or the Admiralty."

"Doesn't that imply you wanted money to keep your mouth closed?" asked Baron Mersey.

The witness explained that he meant he would bring a separate action apart from the enquiry unless he was paid, but he denied that he remained silent at the enquiry for that reason. that reason. don't believe you," declared Lord Mersey.

The witness expressed indignation at such an explanation of the letter, but the presiding officer was unyield-ing, and the professor left the stand in high anger. One of the objects of reopening the enquiry was for the purpose of re-viewing the testimony relative to the state of collapsible boats. She evidence regarding these boats was largely technical as to whether they were capable of being used, and it the skin had been removed.

Lord Mersey said the particular evidence he desired was whether the grips and lashings were loose, the evidence regarding which tradictory, but an expert stated if the lashings had been loose the boats would have floated from the deck when the ship sank.

Chief Carpenter Robinson, on being re-examined, said that he himself had removed the lashings on eight lifeboats and saw that the remainder was being attended to by stewards. He believed all the boats floated after the

HANGING FOR

Brides-in-Bath'' Case in London Ends in Conviction.

Judge's Words Strong Against the Prisoner.

London Cable. guilty was brought in by the jury today in the case of George Joseph Smith, who was charged with the murder of three of his wives. It had been alleged by the Crown that Smith had killed his wives while they were in their baths, and had collected insurance money on their lives.

Smith was sen enced to death.
"You will hang me before you're done, my Lord," was Smith's excited outburst while Mr. Justice Scrutton was summing up the case, prisoner quickly followed with:

"You cannot hang me for murder; 'Ye done no murder. This is a disgrace to a Christian country."
Smith's first explosive utterance voiced the general impression in crowded courtroom as Mr. Justice Scrutton presented the court's estimate of facts for and against the prisoner. The judge told the jury that while no direct evidence connecting Smith with the death of Beatrice Mun dy, one of the three wives, with the murder of whom he was specifically charged, there was seldom anything but circumstantial evidence in cases of cold-blooded, calculated murder.

The jury, continued the court, must consider if Smith had opportunity and motive. There was no doubt and motive. There was no doubt that he had opportunity and if he gained by the woman's death the jury could see the motive. Even then, continued the justice, the jury might not be sure whether the deaths were accidental or designed, but if it were found that an accident which here. found that an accident which benefitted the prisoner happened a num-ber of times they could draw a strong inference that so many accidents benefitting him could not happen unless by design.

After Mr. Justice Scrutton concluded his summing up it took the jury just twenty-two minutes to find a verdict of guilty of murder against Smith. Asked if he had anything to say before sentence was passed, the prisoner, who seemed dazed by the verdict, took a full half minute before showing that he realized the purport of the he finally said. He stared blankly at the judge as he assumed the black cap, but he bore the ordeal of the judge's brief address and subsequent I am not guilty. pronouncement of sentence grimly.

Before he was removed to the cells he thanked Counsel Hall for what he had done, adding: "I still have great confidence in you and I shall bear up." He then walked firmly to the cells.

Addressing the prisoner before pronouncing sentence, the judge remarked that he entirely concurred in the verdict. He did not propose, he said, to follow the practice of some judges of warning the public against the re-petition of such crimes or in exhort-ing the prisoner to repentance.

"I don't believe there is another man in England," the judge said, 'who needs to be warned against the commission of such a crime, and to exhort you to repentance would be vaste of time.'

After passing sentence on Smith the judge remarked that perhaps the jury would be interested to know, as showing that their verdict, was right, that there was evidence which had not been presented in court to the that the prisoner had gone through the ceremony of marriage with two other women, both of whom robbed of considerable sums money.

Annual Report of Athens W. I.

In preparing a report of our work for the Institute year ending May 31st, I paused to think of how inadequately figures express the real work, benefit, profit and pleasure which filled the past year of our Institute life. We have met many times during the year as one large Canadian family.

In our keeping of the "Home and Country" motto we learn many things not the least of which are the sharing of our advantages with the one next door, the reaching out of a helping hand, the giving and taking of opporiunities, blessings and pleasures. The strongest factor in Institute work is just this feeling of comradeship in the betterment of our surroundings, the furthering of social life in our community on broad and common sense

We, as Canadian women, are proud of the response made by Canada's sons in answer to the call of our Motherland. We, as Institute women, feel that we have our part to play in this great stringgle in which thousands of our brave soldiers have fallen and in which thousands may fall before its close. We have worked and we intend to continue to work as long as our boys are called upon to defend the flag, the symbol of Liberty, Truth, Justice.

Farewell to Margaret Shaw (From The Chesterville Record)

About thirty-five of the young people assembled at the Music Hall on Wednesday evening to bid farewell to Miss Margaret Shaw, before taking her departure to her new home in Athens, Ont. Games and dancing were indulged in.

A dainty luncheon was served, after which the following address was read by Miss G. Barkley:

Dear Margaret-On behalf of your young friends of Chesterville, we wish to express the regret we feel at your removal from us. On all occasions you have been one of our number, and we will miss your sympathy and the charm and sweetness of your personality. Especially will we miss you whenever it is our task to assist in concert work for your pusical talents. in concert work, for your musical talent as well as your many others, have placed you in a high position among us. Will you let us act the part of the prophet, by saying that we predict for you a successful musical career. Your sweet voice and your already masterful touch on the piano are valuable qualities in one so young.

As you go to your new home, you will carry with you the highest esteem of your many Chesterville friends, and we wish you happiness and success in every department of life. After leaving us you must form new friendships, but we trust that you will always keep a warm place in your heart for the friends you are leaving.

As a souvenir of our affection and es-eem, we ask you to accept this camera. Signed on behalf of your Chesterville oung friends.

On the east side of the Fulford Block, Court House Avenue, Brockville, is a large sign bearing the words BROCKVILLE BUSINESS COLL-EGE. This sign last year needed repainting and a sign Painter offered to do same for $10.00 per word or a total of $30.00. This sum Principal Rogers thought too much, so the painter made the following offer: To paint the first letter for one cent and the price was to be doubled on each succeeding letter of the three words BROCKVILLE BUSINESS BOLLEGE, i.e., that is the doubling process was to go on for 24 times after the first letter. To this the principal agreed. When the painter sent in his account the principal was alarmed and thinking there was a mistake sat down and worked it out. Finding that the account had been rendered correctly the business college manager sent the painter a check for $30.00. If the painter insists on his own proposal, how much is coming to him?

T. T. SHAW, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR

Communication

Editor Reporter-I notice in your last week's issue a long letter setting forth the grievances of the boys of our village. I don't think it represents the situation fairly. We don't think the attitude of the great majority is at all unfriendly to the boys, but rather the opposite and as to the Council, the fact that they granted ten dollars towards securing a field for a sporting ground, does not bear out the statement of your correspondent. It is not my purpose to stand sponsor for the churches, but I believe they offer some inducements for young men to spend part of their time there. believe on the whole, the young men and boys are well treated and have a large degree of liberty. They even are allowed ta play ball on our main street and this and other privileges will be allowed if it is kept in proper bounds, but blocking the sidewalks and making it unpleasant for the public and residents, as referred to in Citizen's letter, will not be allowed. Also, massing in front of the Mission doors and climbing up in the windows is not creditable to those that do it and is not worthy of any defence and we hope the parties that condone those are cranks in connection with every institution, moral cranks, sport cranks three cranks don't make a church: a few cranks don't constitute the whole citizenship of Athens and a few old cranks don't make up the young manhood and boyhood of our village. I believe the young men of our village on the whole are a good bunch and will compare favorably with that of any other place, also, the people that make up our population are second to none, cranks to the contrary how. ever. Now, Mr Editor, it seems hard to reconcile people that hold extreme and opposite views and we hope that class will be less in evidence. F. BLANCHER

Fisher-Moore

The home of Mr and Mrs J. D. Wetherell, Lyndhurst, was the scene of a pretty June wedding at 830 o'clock on Wednesday evening when the marriage was solemnized of Miss Clara B. Moore, second daughter of Mr and Mrs W. P. Moore, to Dalton W. Fisher, of Regina, Sask, Rev J. A. Waddell officiating, To the strains of Mendelsshon's wedding march, rendered by Mrs S. P. Moore, the bridal couple entered, unattended. The bride was wearing a pretty gown of ivory satin over which was worn a tulle veil, arranged as a juliet cap, with sprays of owers. She carried a bridal shower of pale pink carnations and fern

When the dainty luncheon was finished, short speeches by a number of the guests were enjoyed by all. The bride received many valuable gifts which testified to the high esteem in which she was held by all who knew

Among the many gifts was a cabinet of cut glass from the staff of the Royal Bank of Regina, in whose service Miss Moore has been employed for the past four years.

"The War Summary"

Almost from the very day the great European war began in August last, the outstanding feature in Canadian journalism covering the condict has been "The War Summary" daily on pages 1 and 2 of THE GLOBE to the concisest possible form the writer has given his readers a pen picture of the developments in all parts of the world. While the details of the movements along the extended frontiers have not been overlooked, the readers of THE GLOBE have been enabled to follow intelligently and with confidence the general outlines of the stupendous conflict. "The War Summary" of THE GLOBE is reproduced daily by several papers throughout the Dominion.

The Editorial Page

THE GLOBE on its editorial page has striven to place before the public in proper perspective the broad background of the titanic struggle. This series of articles has attracted the attention not only of the Canadian people, but of leading men and journals in all parts of the world. The causes leading up to the war, the elements entering into its conduct, and the results likely to flow from the cossation of lostilities have been dealt with in that bold and clear-cut form characteristic of THE GLOBE'S editorial page.

News Service

The above features, in addition to a cable and letter service from the front unmatched in Canada, have placed THE GLOBE far in the lend of Canadian papers, and partly explain the phenomenal increase of 331-3 per cent, in THE GLOBE'S circulation during recent months. Other Features

The sporting pages, the financial and commercial pages, the woman's pages, etc., etc., with the additional pages in Wednesday's issue devoted to "Farm and Country Life." are maintained at a high standard of excellence, a standard that has justified THE GLOBE in its litle of Canada's National Newspaper, and has given it by many thousands the largest circulation of any morning paper in the Dominion. Local and City Papers

By all means take your local paper, but in the field of metropolitan newspapers THE GLOBE unquestionably offers you the greatest value to be had in Canada. Order it to-day. 25 cents per month—one dollar for four months—three dollars per year. THE GLOBE, Toronto.

Solomon Anointed King.-1 Kings 1

COMMENTARY -I. Adonijah's at tempt to become King (1; 1-10). David was undertaking at the age of thirty years, and by the time he had reign-ed forty years he was feeble and did not have the strength and disposition to take an active part in the govern-ment. Adonijah was his fourth son, but Ammon and Absalom were dead; and of Chileab no record appears since that of his birth (2 Sam. 3; 3; I Chron. 3; 1), therefore it is con-cluded that he, too, was dead, and that Adonijah was David's eldest surthat Adonitah was David's eldest surviving son. He was ambitious to become king, and took advantage of his father's feebleness to carry out his plans. It appears that he had not been held closely in check by his father and was preposessing in his personal appearance (v. 6). He had prepared chariots and horsemen, and footmen to run before him, and had brought to his support Joab David's brought to his support Jose, David's military chief, and Abiathar, the priest. He had provided for the celebration of a great feast in the Kidron valley close to Jerusalem. He invited all his brothers but Solomon, and he left out Zadok, the priest, and Nathan, the prophet, and most of

David's men of war.

II. His plans frustrated (1; 11-27).
Nathan, the prophet, knew of Adonijah's insurrection, and he knew also that David had declared that Solomon should be king after him, for the Lord had designated him for that office (1 Chron. 22; 9). Hence the prophet went to Bath-sheba, the mother of Solomon told her of Adonijah's of Solomon, told her of Adontjab's plot, and urged her to tell the king about it, that he might declare that Solomon should succoed him in the kingdom. But Bath-sheba obtained a hearing with the king, and a little later Nathan came in and told him all that Adonijah was doing, and asked him if it was his direction that Adon ijah was being made king. The prophet knew that David was ignorant of what his son was doing, and he wished to arouse him to instant ac-

David's men of war.

III. Solomon made king (1; 28-53) 28. Cail me Bath-sheba —She had withdrawn from the king's presence when Nathan entered. Stood before the king—In an attitude of reverence 29. As the Lord liveth-This was a usual form of oath or strong aftir-mation. Out of all distress—David recalled vividly the many distresses which had fallen to his lot, and recognized God's hand in his deliverce from them. 30. Even so will I certainly do—David remembered the promise he had made and the promise which God had given to him and was fully resolved to fulfil what he had pledged. 31. With her face to the earth—This was an attitude of reverearth— This was an attribute of root ence and supplication. Let my lord King David live forever—It was the common Eastern formula. Bath-sheba implied thereby that in her zoal for Solomon's succession there was no de-sire for David's death, but only that the promise made to her concerning Solomon should not be broken.—Cam.

Benajah--He was a military man and the captain of David's body guard, and later became the leader of his They came before the king-Zadok, Nathan and Benaiah were the chief men of David's officers. 33.
Cause Sclomon....to ride upon mine own mule—To ride upon the king's was almost equivalent to being crowned. In the Eastern min 1 it was an honor ever associated with that of of Olion; nome suppose it to have been west of Jerusalem, and others cast, not far from where Adonilah was celebroding a feast, 34. Aunoint him there king over Israel—The annointing was an important part of the ceremony by which one was appointed king. It was a sign that such a person was made king, and it typified the bestowment of divine gifts upon him. Blow ye with the trumpet—To call the attention of the people to the anointing. God save King Solomon— This was to be the public proclamation of the fact that Solomon was made ng. 35. Ye shall come up after him This would denote that they were his supporters Sit nicon my throng-This act would complete the ceremony. His occupying his father's throne by his direction would mean that David handed the reins of government over to 36. Amen-Sc Amen—Sc let it be. 37. be he with Solomon—The Even so of Benaiah was comprehensive David had been great as king in subduing the nation's enemies and in en-larging the territory of Israel, but Solomon would be still greater in extending his dominion and in wealth Cherethites, and the Polethites—These constituted the king's body guard. 39. A horn of oil cut of tabernacie-It is clear that the oil used for annointing the priests in set ting them apart for their office. 40 All the people and they rallied to the standard of Selomon. Piped with pipes —In I. Sam. 10: 5 pipes are mentioned as being used by the prophets. They were wind instruments similar to the modern flute. The earth tent with the sound—The rejoicing was so great that the sound around to jar the earth. David held a large place in the hearts. of the people, but they were glad to receive that one of his sons as king whom he should designate. 41-53. of his sons as king Adamajh at once gave up his effort to become king and sought mercy at the hands of Solomon, who spared his life and sent him her

IV. David's charge (2: 1-i2.) Just before David died he charged Solomon, whe was only nineteen or twenty years to obey carefully all the law and to make his business to serve the advised Solomon to show himself a Lord. David had received the promise man, he attached no low and feeble and to make his business to serve the Lord. David had received the promise that if his children would walk befor the Lord if truth with all their necessity of personal resolution, self-there would always be one of control, integrity against all bribery.

their line to occupy the throne of israel. He charged Solomon to see that the sentence of death was visited upon Joab and Shimei for their crimes. and that kindness should be shown to the sons of Barzilioi, for he had aided David at the time of Absalom's rebellion. Barzillai was a wealthy prominent man, and had furnished supplies to David and his army while they were at Mahanaim. David invited him to go to Jerusalem and live with him, but Barzillai was old and preferred to live his remaining days in his own land and to be buried with his fathers. Shimei had insulted David in his flight from Jerusalem, but had in a sense repented and greeted him when he returned to his kingdom. David refrained from having him executed, but gave direction that he be cuted, but gave direction that he be put to death later. David died after having reigned forty years and was buried in the city of Jerusalem. Questions.—How did Adonijah seek to become king? What plan did Nathan suggest to defeat Adonijah's purpose? What did David command to be done? How old was David at this time? How long had he reigned? How old was Solomon? Who was Benaiah? What dealings had Nathan How was with David before this? Solomon received by the people? What charge did David give Solomon?

In death David thought of duty. He took interest in Israel's future. and in the immediate responsibilities of his own house. He was concerned for the piety and prosperity of his son, and through him the picty and pros-perity of the nation. He desired that Solomon should be nobler, better happier than he had been. He would have him avoid the errors and evils into which he has fallen. The charge delivered by Solomon to his father was deeply religious in its spirit. Not only was Solomon introduced to a throne but the book of the law was placed in his hands, to pursue, to understand and apply. Nothing was left to his own invention. The charge was official rather than personal. Even Solomon was to remember that he had a Sovereign over him. David used no vair repetitions when he spoke of "stat utes, commandments, judgments and testimonics. The whole law was to be remembered. The important aim of the charge was the right formation and development of character. Dur-ing his life David had been very zealous for the Lord God of Israel. His great aim had been to keep the law His ruling desire displayed itself in death. To him succession in plety in living and acting faith, was of greater importance than succession to the throne. He was assured that obedicnce to the will of God inevitably issued in prosperity in the truest sense of the word. Solomon was thus exhorted to prove himself wise, valorous, virtuous and, above all, loyal at heart to God, not distorted, crooked or perverted by sin, not boastful or self-confident. Such manhood implied struggle, conflict with self, resistance of evil influ-ences, coupled with the assurance of blessedness. IMPROVED HIGHWAYS

The Hon. G. F. McDiarmid, Minis ter of Public Works and Highways in the Ontario Government, has issued a ramphlet containing much information concerning the new Act dealing with the improvement of the public highways. It says that the whole scheme of highway development has ben conceived on briad lines. There are two main classes of roads, namely, county or market roads and township roads. It is chiefly for the benefit of these classes that the Government programme has been designed. The lighway improvement Act was origmally passed in 1901, was consolidated and revised in 1.07; important smendments were introduced in 1912. and the new Ontario Highway Act passod in 1915. The general basis is as follows:

1. A county council is authorized to assume a system of roads for con struction and maintenance.

2. A by-law adopting such a system may be passed by a two-thirds majority of a county council, representing at least one half of the equal ized assessment of the county.

3. Failing to receive a two-thirds majority of the county council, it may be carried by a simple majority of the council, and confirmed by a vote of the ratepayers.

The roads assumed are to he such as will accommodate the greater part of the local market travel, creating a system of main market roads. The roads are to be built in accordance with the regulations of the Department of Public Works Highways.
6. The direction and superintendence of the work is placed in charge of a county engineer or capable super-intendent appointed by the county council. A committee of the county council should co-operate with, advise and direct the road superintendent.

7. The system of roads assumed and the by-law fixing the plan of improvement are subject to approval by Order-in-Council.

When considering the adoption of a ounty system or the framing of a bylaw, the county council should com-municate with the Department of Highways in order that their plans may be prepared in accordance with the requirements of the Act. The cost of reads varies with licul conditions. The mileage of reads assumed also varies, but is an early from 12 to 15 per cent, of the total road mileage of the county. Gravel roads are built at a cost of from $1,000 to $2,500 per mile; broken stone road? from $2,500 to $4,000. The length of wagen haul is an important factor. Suburbon reads, for the most part, are sub-divisions of the market roads. They are simply market roads entering the larger cities and to which the cities should contribute. The classifiof assisting the farming communities to build their market roads by calling upon the cities to pay a fair snare of the ccit. This is rendered all the more necessary now that traffic from the cities takee advantage of the county road systems for motor travel, both for pleasure and commerce.

To premote the construction of county or market reads the Govern-ment under the new legislation has increased the amount of the Provin-cial contribution from 321-3 per cent. to 49 per cent. of the cost of construc-Having recard to the importunce of maintaining such roads to a high standard, and to insure a proper system, Government will pay 20 pag cent. of the cost of maintenauce, and this provision is made to extend to any county that has adopted a by-law under the Highway Improvement Act. With regard to suburban roads, the Act provides that upon application of

Ly a proposed system of suburban roads; such commission to be selected by the councils of the city and county The board so appointed shall be em-powered to lay out and construct the roads, which shall continue to be county roads under the jurisdiction and control of the county council, the work to be under the supervision of the county engineer, but subject to the direction of the board appointed for tient purpose. The expenditure upon reads within any suburban area shall be borne as follows: 30 per cent, by the county, 30 per cent, by the city or town, and 40 per cent, by the Province; but the amount to be contributed by the city shall not exceed the proceeds of a rate of one-half null on the dollar of the assessment. The expenditure for main-tenance and repair shall be borne by the city and the county in the ratio of 40 per cent. cach, the Province paying 20 per cent. Where the population is 20 per cent. Where the population is over 50,000 the commission shall consist of five persons, two each from the ment as before. The Act provides that a township council may appoint a road overseer or foreman, who shall under the direction of the council, lay out and supervise all work and expenditure on roads within the exclusive jurisdiction of the township council, and the Pro-vince will pay 25 per cent of the salary for three years of such overseer or superintendent up to $600 per year. In a system of highways, main or interurban roads form an essential part. Under the Act the petition of three-fourths of the municipalities interested in the construction of a main road will enable a start to be made. When in the opinion of the Lieuter-ant-Governor in Council, it is in the public interest to build such a road, a board of trustees of five members shall be appointed. The Minister may procure for the board a report by the Engineer of the Department on the proposed work, with plans, specificasuggested distribution of cost, and the board may proceed with the work making such revision of the estimates as may be necessary after hearing representations from all parties

As in the case of other roads the Province will contribute to the cost to he extent of 40 per cent., but in any event the Provincial grant shall not exceed $4,000 per mile. The moneys required for the repair and maintenance of any such main or interurban road shall be levied by the board annually on the various municipalities involved in the proportion set forth in the approved report of the Engineer of the Department, and these moneys shall be a debt of the municipal corporation due the board, and shall be payable at such times as the board may determine. To prevent the unsightly marking of the landscape with sign boards, power a given to the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, to make regulations for the erection of signs or other advertising devices, and for fixing a fee to be charged for creeting any sign or sign board of other advertising device, and this same power is to be exercised by road if the Lieut-nant-Governor in Council so directs. Widespread cont plaints have been made of the defac ing of the roadside in other communities by the erection of unsightly advertising devices, and to prevent the ruisance gaining a foothold in Ontario this provision has been deemed ad-visable and timely. At the same time a system of licensing advertising signs would produce a revenue for road

RAISING SQUASHES FOR MARKET. Squashes can be raised with less hand labor than any other vegetable. They can be grown as a second crop after peas, early cabbage and vegetable that can be marketed before July 15.

Squashes can be scored until a profitable market is open, for these rea-sons they are a favorite crop with market gardeners. It is an excellent crop to raise on land not in suitable condition for murket gardening, or in orchards where the trees are small or so scattered as not to overshade the crop. Squashes will always fail to give satisfactory returns if planted in turf and by cutting out a circle two or three feet in diameter and manuring three feet in diameter and manuring liberally. But they can be successfully grown in tillage land badly infested with twitch grass if the cultivator is so frequently used as to torment this pest till it gives up the ghost.

In the manure pile and cultivator lie hidden the squash crop. Freshly-broken turf is preforable, such land being less infested with bugs. For the red; for the darker-colored, such as Hubbard, Delicious and Bay State, the heavier soil, but it should be free of neavier soil, but it should be free or clay. Plow in spring as deep as good soil goes and apply the manure, full ten cords to the acre, and the surface, and wheelbarrow in until the surface is as fine as possible to make it. In making the hills, furrow and cross-furrow, have them eight feet square for the yellow varieties and nine feet for the dark ones. Excavate shallow hill where the furrow crosses and throw a heaping forkful of rich manure into each. Draw the earth rich manure into each. Draw the earth over it, so that the seed, when planted one and a half inches below the surface shall be a hand bove the general level. Plant eight to ten seeds, and just before runners show, thin to three plants, scatter the seeds well over the hill when planting.

As soon as young plants begin to break ground scatter over them some good hur protector, such as plaster.

One good hand-hoeing close to the hill is all the crop, should need, the cultivator run both ways close to the hills doing all the needed work. Keep the cultivator active, especially just as the cultivator active, especially just as you begin to see signs of runners, for after that, in a very few days, the vines will take ground and it will be too late. If a runner is interfered with by the cultivator it will be apt to be rolled over by the first high wind, and the crop from it will amount to nothing.

The king of squashes to raise will depend on your market, if you have one in your vicinity, or they may be shipped by the carload. Crops vary from five to eighteen tons per acre. For the earliest market the Dunlap Marrow, with its varieties, is a favor For the late fell market the Warren is excellent, and for winter and spring markets the Hubbard and Bay

State are favorites.

For family use for fall and early winter none to compare with the De licious, as hundreds who have enjoyed it well know. This does not crop quite as heavily as most sorts, but its superior quality should insure its bring-ing an extra price, sufficient to fully offset the difference.

For keeping purposes, handle your squashes like eggs. Pile them two deep, having plenty of air in your squash house until too cold; then keep the thermometer about 40 degrees.

FARM NEWS AND VIEWS.

For footrot in the sheep flock there is nothing better than this treatment: Pare away all dead hoof and apply blue vitriol, nitric acid and red lead, equal parts, mixed.

Science indicates that one may plant and care for his crops with every method known to man, but if the seed method known to man, but it the short is not good the crop will fall short of expectations. More depends on what of us realize. We the seer than most of us realize. think that proper cultivation will work a miracle out of anything we plant. It will not. Get good seed first, and then give it all the advantages.

Work horses should have very little hay at morning or at the noon feed. Plenty of grain is better, and their greater service will compensate for the extra grain allowance.

It is very provoking to have a horse on the farm that is shy and hard to catch. The trouble is often the result of improper training when the animal is young. Kindness is necessary in order to break a horse of this habit. Never hit him when he is caught. A good plan is to feed him something every time he is caught. It is a good plan occasionally to bring the horses in from pasture and put them in the barn when there is no work for them to do. It requires a good deal of patience to cure a horse of shyness, but it pays.

Noise has a frightening effect on ome horses, and simply an exciting effect on others, especially on the trained ones, who, being well-man-nered, remain under control whatever nay be their feelings in the matter.

Grass is nature's feed for the horse. and it seems cruel to keep a workherse up in a hot barn when he could just as well be out in the cool night eir browsing grass. Another thing we like to see is to have a horse take a good roll after a hard day's Have you ever noticed that the first thing a horse will do after being turned out is to roll? It always seemed to us that a good roll is to a horse what a bath is to a man. If they are kept up at night, it is best to allow them at least an hour or two in an open lot during the evening.

Butter made from cream which has been allowed to remain too long be-fere being churned never keeps well; in addition to this, its flavor is never what it ought to be.

"Fertilize the soil, not the crop," is the slogan of the soil fertility experts of the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University. They say it is a mistake to talk about a "corn fer-tillzer" and "wheat fertilizer." Ex-periments have shown that an application of phosphorus on some solls, for instance, will largely increase the yield of every crop grown, and not only the one immediately following application. All crops will be good, say these men, if the soil is supplied with the elements of plant food which it lacks.

ECZEMA WAS CURED TWELVE YEARS AGO

Dr. Chase's Ointment Proved to be a Permanent Cure. The old idea of eczema being a disease of the blood has been pretty well exploded by the record of cures made by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Some doctors still advise internal treatment, but the results are slow and uncertain, and too often a lament-able failure. With Dr. Chase's Oint-ment it is different. You apply the ointment to the sore parts. It cleanses the sores and soon sets up the heal-ing process. In a few days you can see with your own eyes the wonderful change that is taking place, and are encouraged to keep up the treatment until the cure is complete and the sores replaced by smooth, natural

It is wise to look after your general health, keep the bowels regular and the blood rich, but you can depend on Dr. Chase's Ointment to cure the eczema if you will do your part and apply it regularly.

Mr. W. H. Roberts, Charlottetown, P.E.I., writes: "I can recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to anyone suffering Chase's Ointment to anyone suffering all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., from itching skin disease. I had Limited, Toronto.

He knew it was made up of the intoxication of the senses, the exasperation of wounded vanity, and a sort of mysterious terror which takes possession of those who, habit uated to the tumult of a feverish exintence, see themselves condemned suddenly to a life of isolation and silence. The transition was like passing from the galety of a ball-room to the stillness of a Trappist monastery. Only a strong soul and a steady head could bear it with calm-

Jacques burst into a fit of nervous aughter that sounded harsh and pair

"No, no, abandon me to my fate," he cried. "I do not want to be cured! I am already sentenced, and nothing can change the decrees of fate. I have lived only for happiness. Anguish and middle and the control of the co misery are my doom!'

He lowered his voice as if with sudden terror.
"You know well; it is not i who act who speak, who suffer, and who com-plain. There is another within me who is leading re on to my fate. Even it

I wished to stop myself I could not do so. Ah, I feel this implacable soul ag-itating itself furiously. It is jealous! It takes vengeance of me on mysel So long as it inhabits my body I must suffer. On the day on which I shall be delivered from it—" Davidoff interrupted Jacques with a quick gesture; he knitted his brow and was on the point of saying: "You are mad! Laurier has disappeared, it is true, but Laurier is still alive. I humored your fancy because I had a conviction that only faith would give back the strength to live. since you have reached such a state of hallucination as to make your recov-ered health the cause of your ruin, it is my duty to declare the truth to

One thought, however, made pause, "He will not believe me!" he said to himself, "I must show him his friend restored to mental health in order to prove to him that he himself may recover his sanity." He turned to-ward the young man and said very gently: "Since you do not wish to accompany me to Paris I will go alone, then.

I shall see your mother and sister

He rose, and a quick shudder passed through his frame.

"Oh, I am a wretch!" he cried. 'It would be better for me to be dead!"

At this moment the sound of a clear voice calling "Jacques!" in the garden below, was heard.

He advanced hastily to the window. Clemence was gathering roses. She Clemence was gathering roses. She saw him, and cried gayly:

"Well, is your sulking over? The air is delightful. Come down, and we will go to Villers to breakfast."

Jacques turned to Davidoff, and cried in agitation: "She calls me, you see. She is waiting for me. She is not so bad as I said. She has terrible moments, it is true, but at heart she loves me. Come, He drew Davidoff toward the stairs. They went down into the hall. There Jacques pressed the doctor's hand tightly, and as if impatient to be alone with Clemence said;

"Adieu, Once more, pardon me.

And with rapid steps he hurried toward the garden where his pitiless ty rant awaited him. Davidoff, already in the street, strode quickly away. Through an opening to the shore he caught a glimpse of the yacht, which was steaming out to sea, leaving in its wake a trail of black smoke. "I am free," he cried; "let me pro-

CHAPTER VI

Davidoff's telegram was delivered to Pierre Laurier on the very day of Agostino's marriage with the daughter of a well-to-do farmer of San Pelle grino. The young sailor had prospered in his trading expeditions to the Mediterranean ports, and he brought a fortune of six thousand francs to his The latter, a rosy brunette sixteen from the mountains, had a house and some olive groves of her own. The young people had loved each other for a year past, and on the understanding that Agostino was to give up his seafaring life the marriage had now been celebrated.

On emerging from the church of San newly-married pair Pellegrino, the newly-married pair were greeted by a succession of shots fired in their honor. One might have thought from the noise that the vil-lagers were engaged in a vendetta and were trying to exterminate each other; vivas broke forth from the guests. Every face beamed with joy, and the bright sunshine, the heat and the smell of the powder seemed to produce a general feeling of intoxication.

Pierre, giving his arm to the little Marietta, whose companion he had been in the church, followed with defamous under the title of "A Corsican Marriage."

His heart was at peace, and his mind had recovered its balance. Not a shadow darkened his soul. He was completely absorbed in the contemplation of the happiness of these people whom he loved, and in the simplicity and tranquility of whose patriarchal life he had been able to forget his unworthy passion and to regain the dignity of his manhood. The wedding guests now proceeded to the house of the bride's father, there to partake of the banquet as on the night on which set forth in honor of the newly-mar-ried pair. As they assembled in the grounds, a little boy, who served the good cure of Torrevecchio as an acoyte, pushed through the crowd and cunning up to the venerable priest, handed him a blue envelope which had fast been left at the vicarage. To chto and San Pellegrina, the little fel-low, with his mountaineer's legs, had taken only an hour. He arrived breathhis face covered with dust and erspiration.

The cure read the address on the envelope and then handed it to Pierre, saying affectionately: liere, my dear child, this is for

So I set out without a moment's delay, and here I am."

As he spoke, he wiped off with the back of his hand the perspin which was running down his showing his white teeth in a broad smile of delight at having performed his mission so successfully. "You are going to drink a glass of Toliano and to eat a morsel of bread with us, Jacopo," said Agostino. He pushed the child toward his father-in-law, and then, greatly troubled by the uneasiness which Pierre's face by trayed, he said to him anxiously:

What is the matter? Pierre opened the envelope slowly. unfolded the telegram, and read the imperious summons addressed to him by his friend. He turned pale and his brow clouded. His heart suddenly seemed to coptract.

"Is there any bad news?" asked "No," returned the painter, "at leas

I hope not. But I must leave you. I must go at once to Paris." "Leave us! And now!" cried the bridegroom sorrowfully. "Wait at least until to-morrow." "If they had told you when the sea was between you that your sweetheart was ill and might die during your ab ence," gravely answered Pierre, would you have delayed going to her?" Agostino pressed his preserver's hand with emotion and tears filled his eyes.

"No, you are right," he said. "But you must know how much your de-parture will grieve us."

Pierre drew the young man aside, and there speaking to him with a sudden emotion, which threw a new light on his friend's character and past life, for Agostino said:

"There is no need to cast a gloom over the feast. From here to Torre-vecchio by the highroad is a matter of twelve miles. I can hire a carriole at the inn, and go there alone. Once I am on the other side of the mountain, you will explain my absence to your guests, and thank each one of those present for the cordial reception they gave me when I came here. I shall never forget the time that I have spent among you. I was grievously ill, both in heart and mind. In the peaceful and laborious existence I have forgotten the sorrows that thought were incurable, and it is to you I owe all this—to your mother who has been so good to me, to your little sister who has so often brought to my mind by her naive and winning grace the young girl who is waiting for me now, and finally to you, my brave fellow, to save whose life I gave up my intention of putting an end to my own, when, driven to despair, I was on the point of doing so. You have restored me to myself. It is have restored me to myself. for your sake that I feel myself still bound to humanity. No! I shall never forget you, and whether in sadness or in joy, my thoughts will often recur to you. Agostino could scarcely restrain his tears at these words, and more af-fected by Pierre's departure than he would have been by that of some member of his own family, he began to sob, while the wedding guests, giving themselves up to merriment, were laughing, singing and shouting in the garden. Pierre, after he had in some measure succeeded in calming the young man's grief, said quiet-"And, now listen to me. It is ne cessary that I should reach Paris at the earliest possible moment. When does the next most leave Bastia, and where does it stop?"

"There is a steamer of the Morelli line leaving for Marseilles on Tues-day," answered Agostino. "By going to town you can engage your passage on her, and to-morrow at daybreak you will be out at sea. From Bastia to Marseilles there are thirty hours. 'In three days, then," said 'In three days, then,' Pierre, "I shall be in Paris.

Half an hour later Pierre was driving rapidly toward Torrevecchio, the same evening, after packing un his pictures and sketches, arrived at Bastla. He alighted at the inn where he had passed his first night on Corsican soil, went to engage his cassage on board the steamer, and then entered a clothier's, where he replaced his velveteen garments by a complete suit of blue cloth which became him very well.

The majority of the Duff Highlanders, the famous private bodyguard maintained by the Dukes of Fife, are also fighting in France and Flanders. The peculiarity of this private army is that in peace times the corps, which numbers 100 men, are still armed and uniformed exactly as were their forefathers three or four centuries ago.

The marquesses of Donegall have for centuries kept up a show of both military and haval strength on their Irish estates, which include Lough Neagh. Of this sheet of water, the largest in the British Isles, the reigning marquess for the time being is hereditary lord bigh admiral. Birth of Music.

There are many legends concerning the origin of music, but it is impossible to say which is the oldest. By the old Romans the god Mercury was credited with the invention of music. Accordwith the invention of music. According to Apoilodorus, the belief was as follows: The Nile after an overflow left on the shore a dead tortoise. Its flesh was finally dried up by the hot sun, so that nothing remained in the shell but the cartilages, which, being braced and contracted by the heat, became sonorous. Mercury, happening to be walking that way and striking his foot against the sheil, was so pleased with the sound produced that the idea t lyre presented itself to his imagi ion. He immediately constructed the instrument in the form of a tortoise and strung it with the sinews of dead animals. And so music began.

The fellow who curses his luck be cause he never has any must be a sort of human paradox.

WHY YOUNG GIRLS GROW PALE AND WEAK

The Blood Supply is Deficient and Unless the Trouble is Remedied Consumption May Follow.

When girls grow, weak, pale and miserable, then is the time for parents to take prompt steps. Delay means danger—perhaps consumption. The girl in her teens cannot develop into a happy robust woman without an abundant supply of rich, red blood in her veins. It is the lack of this good blood that is the great trouble with nine girls out of every ten. They grow weak and depressed; lose their appetite are breathless after the slightest exertion, and suffer from headaches and backaches. When headaches and backaches. When girls are in this condition there is no medicine can compare with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In the use of these Pills there is splendid vigorous health, with glowing cheeks and sparkling sparkling eyes, for every unhappy, fragile girl who is struggling on to womanhood in a wretched state of health. This is why thousands of girls and women, now robust and attractive, are constantly recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to their suffering sex. Miss Pink Pills to their suitering sex. Missibilith Brousseau, Savona, B. C., says:
"At the age of fourteen I became very anaemic. I was as pale as a ghost, suffered from headaches, severe palpitation. I had little or no appetite, and seemed to be drifting into a decline. I was attending high school in Van-couver at the time, and the doctor ad-vised me to stop. I did so and took his vised me to stop. DISGRACED THE SENTINEL For Not Killing the Army Chief Who Had Struck Him.

In France in the seventeenth century the office of sentinel was a very solemn charge, and a part of the sentinel's duty was to resent and pun-ish any affront. The severity of this punishment was in proportion to the high importance of his office. A Frenchman relates an incident illustrative of this fact: In 1622 M. de Mariliac rode away on horseback from an audience with the king. His horse stepped on a sentinel's foot. The man struck the horse, which leaped forward and shook M.

de Marillac in his saddle. The rider turned and struck the sentinel. The soldier belonged to the company of M. de Goas, who when he heard of this had him arrested and imprisoned. He himself set out, sword in hand, in search of M. de Marillac to demand satisfaction for an insult to his sentinel. The king was informed of the incident and sent for M. de Goas and M. de Marillac. He reprimanded de Marillac severely, told him that the sentinel should have killed him and forbade

Mrs Cornell, of Athens, has received a Cincinnati newspaper containing the announcement of the death of Mrs (Rev) J. B. Tuttle at that place. Mrs Tuttle was the widow of a pastor of the Brockville Baptist Church some thirty years ago, and will be remembered by the older members of that congregation. Rev Mr Tuttle died some years ago at Atlantic City.

An exchange says :- Monday night, at a special meeting of the Oshawa town council a warm discussion took place over the appointment of a sanitary inspector for the town, Councillor Smythe strongly contending for a veterinary to fill the position. In the course of his remarks he said he knew that horse meat had been sold in Oshawa as beef and he knew that meat offered to produce evidence within a week to substantiate his statements.
