ALMY HANGED.

Death Was Instantaneous, But the Execution was a Bunting Job.

CONCORD, N. H., May 16.—Frank C. Almy, the murderer, passed his last night on earth in apparently a restful sleep. He arose at five o'clock this morning and pleasantly greeted the death watch and dressed himself. He smoked a cigar with evident pleasure and then read awhile. At 5:45 Almy was escorted from his cell to the matron's room. He walked steadily and although he endeavored to appear unconcerned, it was impossible for him to conceal the terrible mental strain by which he was affected. He said nothing beyond remarking that the change in his quarters was a pleasant one. He had now become evidently less nervous and uneasy, and by neither word nor action, did he indicate that this was the closing day of his life. The steward furnished for breakfast steak, eggs, rolls and coffee, which Almy ate heartily and with apparent relish. Sheriff Hurlbut and his deputies had gone to the prison early to erect the gallows and complete the final arrangements for the execution. Chaplain Wilkins went to the prison early and was with Almy to the end. Spectators were admitted at 9:45. Almy was in charge of the prison officials until a few minutes after ten, when the warden surrendered him to the sheriff.

A large number of citizens came from Hanover on the early morning train to witness the hanging, among them being Bert Warden, brother of the murdered girl, Christie Warden, and C. E. Hewitt, the student who shot Almy in the barn before he was captured.

From eight to ten o'clock, chaplain Wilkins and the death watch were Almy's only visitors in the matron's room at the prison. The condemned man said but little and paid no special attention to the chaplain's exhortations to turn his thoughts to eternal things; in fact he declined absolutely to hear anything about religion. As his only request, he asked Warden Colbath for the ring which he wore when he was brought to prison. This request was granted, and the ring Almy placed the heavy plain gold ring on the second finger of his left hand, saying as he did so: "I shall put it on the finger where Christie placed it long ago." Soon after when Almy had taken a bath he put on a suit of black clothes, which the sheriff had provided. As the hour of ten approached, he became perceptibly nervous, getting up and pacing the room. At ten o'clock sharp he was formally turned over to sheriff Hurlbut. In reply to a statement by the sheriff that he might say anything he wished before being placed in the gallows, Almy said he had nothing to say. Upwards of 150 persons were present and took their positions in the corridor of the north wing above and below the gallows, which stood on the east side of the main street. At 10:13 the death march was begun from the matron's room, Almy being in charge of the sheriff and deputies and accompanied by the chaplain. In a moment the scaffold was reached. Almy's arms and lower limbs were quickly strapped. His face became sallow pale and he was very nervous, swaying slightly in either direction, but the temporary support of the officers helped him to keep his place. His spirit was evidently broken. As sheriff Hurlbut concluded the strapping of Almy's lower limbs, the condemned man looking into the officer's face, said twice in an almost inaudible tone: "May I speak?" The sheriff shook his head and adjusted the rope about Almy's neck. Even then he appeared to want to speak, but his face was hastily placed over his face and he said nothing.

The sheriff placed the hangman's knot under the left ear, then stepped to the centre of the scaffold, and at 10:16 touched the spring. The drop fell heavily and Almy's body went through the hoisting of the spectators his feet struck the floor and his knees bent. The rope was evidently too long, as it did not stretch any. As the feet touched the floor the body swayed to the right and slightly forward. Inside of a minute officers on the scaffold swung the rope and pulled the body up several feet. Another shudder ran through the witnesses when they saw the position of the rope and knot. The former was pulled over the left ear, while the knot was fully one foot above the neck. But one or two tremors on the part of the body were seen, and there was an entire absence of struggling. Life was pronounced extinct at 10:30. The body was taken down, witness left the prison and the gallows was taken apart and put away before the dinner hour so as not to be seen by the other prisoners. No arrangements have been made for the funeral. It is stated that the body will be buried in the prison yard.

At the post mortem examination of Almy's body thirty minutes after death, it was found that death came instantly from the drop by reason of dislocation and fracture of the spine. Almy left no written statement. The ring he wore will be buried with him.

Almy killed a young woman named Christie Warden more than a year ago. He had been a thief and desperado, but apparently reformed. His past history was unknown to the Warden. He fell in love with the farmer's daughter, and when he repeated his hidden career. According to himself the girl returned his love until she discovered how wicked his life had been. Then she refused to have anything to do with him. He was obliged to leave the Warden household. Returning soon after, he met Christie and her mother and sister in a secluded place. She refused to take a walk with him, whereupon he dragged her into the woods and barbarously shot her to death. He always insisted that the shooting was accidental.

A BULLET KILLED THE TWO.

A Father Committing Suicide Shoots His Daughter.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 15.—Warren C. Butterworth, aged 70, of Warren, committed suicide this afternoon about 1 o'clock, by shooting himself through the head with a rifle.

His daughter Emma, aged twenty-three, who was trying to prevent her father from killing himself, received the bullet in her brain after it had passed through her father's head, and she died at 3:30 o'clock.

Mr. Butterworth had been in ill-health of late and despondent, and insanity is supposed to have been the cause of the suicide. He told a neighbor earlier in the day that he intended to kill himself, and Mr. Butterworth's sons were notified. A physician was sent to his house, and he was there when the deed was done, but he was not near enough to prevent it. Mr. Butterworth had gone about town

ARIZONA'S HIGHWAYMEN.

More bandits and highwaymen have made Arizona their home than people would suppose. From 1860 until recently it has been their favorite resort. Both Mexicans and Americans indulged in the practice, and it is said that many a snug fortune now belonging to respected citizens was founded in that way. But it is said that as many a bar of bullion started from the mines to the railroad as failed to reach its destination. Years afterwards the bones of its custodian would be found bleaching in the sand; but they could tell no tales and the robbers went unknown, unless the sudden rise of some struggling citizen from poverty to affluence directed suspicion, in which case the matter was allowed to drop. One of the latest and boldest of these robberies occurred in 1885, a little way out from Phoenix and the result has deterred the Mexicans from any attempt at its repetition. The Vulture mine property of senator Taylor, was at that time worked by an English syndicate, with a man named Gribble as superintendent. In taking away the bullion an armed guard of five to ten men usually accompanied it, riding far enough ahead and behind to

ARIZONA'S HIGHWAYMEN.

PREVENT THEM ALL BEING KILLED BY a single fire from ambush. One morning in August, 1888, Gribble with one companion in a buggy started for Phoenix with forty-two pounds of gold bullion. His guard consisted of two men on horseback, who were supposed to ride one, two hundred yards in advance, and the other two hundred yards to the rear, but it afterwards developed that they were riding together. When the cavalcade reached a lonely place on the desert a deadly fire was poured in on them by three Mexicans and they were killed. The other man, who was mounted on a thoroughbred horse, attempted to escape, but the bullets from the Winchester overtook him and he fell dead about three hundred yards distant. One of the Mexicans took his horse, and strapping the bullion before him on the saddle, rode the three miles across the desert toward Mexico. Late that day the stage from Prescott came by, and the driver, discovering the bodies, brought the news into Phoenix. By daylight next morning a posse of white men with Indian trailers were on the ground and began the pursuit. Late in the day they came upon the robbers while they were trying to cut the piece of bullion to divide it, they evidently wishing to separate.

THEY SHOT FIGHT, and the whites returned to Vulture for reinforcements, and going back as rapidly as possible, found that the robbers had separated and two of the trails were lost in the small pass of Eagle Tail mountain. They found the fugitive's horse reined in the quicksand, with a leg broken, his rider having taken his blankets and the bullion, which he still had in his possession, and started down the river on foot. He had ridden the horse more than the day stage without food or water. The pursuers shot him, and followed the bank of the river to a ferry a few miles below, where Gov. Powers had some Mexicans at work on a boat. Before Powers could reply to their inquiries the Mexican started to run up the hill and towards the bush. The white men began shooting, and he fell dead. In his roll of blankets they found the piece of bullion with Gribble's blood dried upon it. The thieves had tried to cut it in two, but had failed, and they had separated, the leader of the party giving the other two the slip. The other two robbers were never discovered, nor were the citizens ever able to even faint suspicion on any one.

ARIZONA'S HIGHWAYMEN.

THE NEW YORK Central's new engine, No. 999, which is to be exhibited at the world's fair, has made a record of 112 miles an hour. On Tuesday the Empire State express, drawn by this marvellous machine, made 102 miles an hour, a great record in itself, but engineer Charles Hogan said he was not feeling well that day and could do better. After a night's rest at the depot he brought out and sent down to Syracuse for another trial. The Empire State express arrived in Syracuse on time, and No. 999 was coupled on and the train left Syracuse on time. Hogan let her out a few miles on the way to Rochester, but he did not want to get ahead of his schedule, and he brought her into the Rochester depot on time.

The test of speed was to come between Rochester and Buffalo. Soon after leaving Rochester, Hogan slowed her down a little, for he intended to make up the time at the western end of the stretch. Passing Batavia the train was rushing along at an easy gait of a mile a minute. Then Hogan let her out. The speed increased as the engine flew along, and just before reaching Crittenden, the record of Tuesday was broken. For three seconds the Empire State was exceeding just this side of the station; and when the new world's record of a mile in thirty-two seconds was made. This is equivalent to 112 miles an hour. A speed nearly as great was kept up for a few miles, and was reached, and then Hogan slowed her down and allowed her to enter Buffalo at her customary speed, arriving on time.

The passengers on board said that the train flew along with the same steadiness that would have accompanied a lower rate of speed. There was no unusual swaying or jolting, and only persons who were looking out for manifestations of extraordinary speed would have noticed that the clackety-click of the rails sounded like the roar of machinery. The telegraph poles along the track seemed like pickets in a fence.

ELOPED WITH HER MOTHER.

A Youth Vanishes With the Mother of His Betrothed.

BUFFALO, May 12.—Chicago's World's Fair visitors this week include a bridal party, which left this city under circumstances which have excited the little town of Angelica, a few miles from this city. The departure of this couple took the form of an elopement on the eve of the day appointed for a marriage, but the woman who went to Chicago to enjoy the sights was not the bride for whom the preparations had been made.

It was her mother.

Three years ago Leander Gurnee sought employment on the farm of John Atkins, three miles from the village of Angelica. He was then nineteen years of age and fairly good looking. Farmer Atkins hired him, and in the course of six months the young fellow had courted and won the

A Strange Letter Suicide Kelley Wrote to His Brother.

CINCINNATI, May 12.—The most remarkable letter ever left by a suicide was that found on Asahel Kelley, of Winchester, Ind. He was 32 years old, and for years was an adventurer, roaming the world over. Some months ago he returned to Winchester and went into the restaurant business. He came to Cincinnati a few days ago. He had been drinking. When found dead in his room at the Cincinnati hotel it was discovered he had taken morphine. The following letter was found on the table near his bed:

CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 12.—Mr. Ezra S. Kelley, Winchester, Ind.—Dear Sir and Brother—You will know on receipt of this that I have cashed in my cheques and will soon have a happy playing a melody for "Old Stone." I wrote to your pious brother Dennis for some money so that I could get to the hospital, but he declined to send it. I think he could afford to. He ROBBED POOR OLD FATHER out of enough to have let me had it. You can do as you please about burying me, but don't plant me at Winchester. If you can't take me to Montezuma give me to some doctor. You remember twenty years ago last month another of our brothers took a trip of this kind, only in a more tragic way. People will soon think it a family epidemic. I have nothing to live for, no money, or no way to get along. I am a broken down in health and spirit. I never had but one good true friend (my wife), and her I treated like a dog. I feel sincerely sorry for her, but she is better off without me. You will find me a rusty looking corpse, as I have not shaved for two weeks nor bathed for a month. Don't have any religious exercises over me, whatever you do. By way of amusement you might have somebody whistle "Johnny Comes Marching Home," and if any of our pious relatives want to shed tears, kindly fire a few rocks at them. Don't you.

OPEN THE BOX OR COFFIN, or whatever I am in, as I don't want those hypocrites to have the satisfaction of seeing me dead. I go by the morphine route. If any time you should move the folks from Montezuma to Winchester, please let Morris and I remain. Either of us is too good to be buried alongside of old Ace Stone.

The letter closes with an signature, but on another piece of paper were the words: "Telegraph to Ezra S. Kelley, Winchester, Ind. Ace Kelley, On April 23 Kelley sent this letter to his brother." Cincinnati, April 23.—To Ezra S. Kelley, Winchester, Ind.—I will have a package sent to you about 25th of this month kindly respect it enough to bury it at Montezuma without priest or minister. Don't fall in this. Full details come with the "package." Ace Kelley.

P. S.—You will have to come here and take charge.

HAD NO WATER OR FOOD.

NORWALK, Cal., May 13.—State Humane Agent Thrale's attention has been directed to the horrible and most pitiable condition of a cargo of cows which arrived at South Norwalk from Canada this afternoon. They were brought here by a Norwalk farmer and cattle dealer of means, who is alleged, packed them all, 42 in number, into one box car, and so far as can be learned gave them nothing to eat or drink, although they had been several days on the route.

The farmer opened the car door himself when the train rolled into the South Norwalk depot.

Every one of the cows were completely exhausted. At least a dozen were dying under the feet of others, being unable to stand, and two were dead. Several were bleeding from many wounds caused by being trodden upon and in many cases the hair had been almost wholly scraped from their hides.

All were emaciated, their bones almost protruding through the skin, in mute evidence of the great suffering they had endured since they were captured.

The car subjected to a horrible stench, and the floor was covered several inches deep with most nauseating filth.

When released the cows ate and drank ravenously. Less than half of the cattle can live. All have been quarantined for fear they may spread contagious diseases.

LUDLOW.

May 15.—A sad accident occurred here on the 10th inst. Roy Alston Price was found dead on the road. It was evident he had fallen from a load of hay which he was taking home, his neck was broken. He was deceased May 14 years of age and only son of Charles H. and Katie Price. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved family.

The ladies have reorganized the sewing circle. They intend having a sale later on.

The mission band intend having a concert as soon as convenient.

LIFE A TORTURE.

Kendrick Outcomes, of Toronto, N. S., says: "For several years I suffered from severe attacks of biliousness, which came on periodically about every ten days. I had awful headaches and the smell of anything cooking turned me sick. I became weak and nervous, and had no appetite or strength to work. I passed many sleepless nights, and my days could not retain food on my stomach. I suffered intensely with piles and liver, and my life was a constant torture to me. I became so weak that my friends gave up all hopes of my recovery. My brother brought me a bottle of

HAWKER'S NERVE AND STOMACH TONIC, and a box of HAWKER'S LIVER PILLS.

I had not taken these long before I commenced to improve and in a short time I was completely cured. I grew strong and vigorous, and my appetite returned. I had gained 50 pounds in weight. I have not suffered from piles or biliousness since, now I eat and am as strong and healthy as any man could wish to be. I firmly believe that

Mrs. Enoch Carrier has returned from spending a week in St. John.

Biblical—What did the children of Israel do after they came through the Red Sea? asked a New York Sunday school teacher. Dried their clothes, I suppose, replied Tommy Amsterdam.

Just the Man.—She—I will never marry a man whose fortune has not at least five ciphers in it. He (triumphantly)—Oh, darling! Mine is all ciphers.

UPPER GAGETOWN.

MAY 16.—Mrs. Charles Plummer is spending a few weeks with relatives in St. John.

Rev. Ezekiel Hopper has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Baptist church here for the ensuing year.

A. E. Crother launched his big sewer on Saturday. It was built for Mr. Gibson. Gilbert Smith, of Greenfield, lost his house with all its contents, by fire on Thursday last.

The freshet is now more than two feet higher than it was last year. It is still rising and those having logs on the lowlands along the river, are busy rafting.

MR. FOSTER'S BANQUET.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster, minister of finance, accompanied by his wife, Messrs. Bowell, Angers and Daly are visiting St. John for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not the protected manufacturers are in favor of protection. While in St. John the minister of finance was tendered a banquet by the faithful and the grateful. The list of guests who surrounded the festive board does not strike us as being a very representative or influential one, but the enthusiasm appears to have been unbounded, particularly during Mr. Foster's eloquent prayer which the disloyal grins were denounced and the old flag was waved to the inspiring tune of My Own Canadian Home. It must have been gratifying to Mr. Foster to hear his praises sung so loudly by his colleagues in the government, and the eulogy of the St. John representatives by the guest of the evening, must have sounded as sweet music in the ears of Messrs. McLeod and Hazen who, if the reports are correct, have not been greeted with pleasant sounds since their return from Ottawa. We notice that A. A. Stockton, M. P., nominal leader of the representatives of York county and St. John city, in the house of assembly, accompanied by Dr. Silas Alward, M. P., E., was among those who sat at the feet of the minister on the festive occasion. We further notice that when the health of the lieutenant governor was proposed, Mr. Powell, M. P., E., in the absence of his honor, was called upon to respond. With the above exception the papers do not report that any person was kicked out of the feast for want of a wedding garment. Dr. Silas, it is true, was not heard from, although it was generally supposed that when the proceedings had reached a proper length he would call a halt, and read a few well chosen selections from his Record of the Tory party, for the edification of the guests of the evening and his colleagues. We were pleased to hear that Frederickson was well represented at the feast. Mr. Temple, M. P., not only "graced the minister with his presence," but took down several of the faithful with him. We understand from one of the delegation that Mr. Foster will not visit Fredericton this spring as his time is limited, and it was represented to him by Mr. Temple, that while all the manufacturers in Fredericton, and all the respective proprietors thereof at this busy season would take at least a month; while the hum of the machinery and the clouds of black smoke that are thrown out by the tall chimneys that loom up on every street, would make a visit to the capital of the province at this time of year decidedly unpleasant. While we must admire Mr. Temple's thoughtfulness, we regret that Mr. Foster will not make a visit, as we would like to have been a part of a committee of the citizens to drive him around the town and point out to him the many permanent results of the national policy in our midst.

Mr. Foster's speech in reply to the toast of the evening is said to have been a remarkably brilliant one. According to the Sun's report it was punctuated from beginning to end with "hear hears" and "prolonged cheers." These were repeated with mighty demonstrations when reference was made to the disloyal grins, and the prosperity of the country under the present regime. Doubtless with the good things provided by the caterer of the occasion, aided by the sparkling champagne, and the stimulating eloquence of the finance minister, many of the party felt like millionaires. This is all natural enough to understand, and we venture the prediction that the majority of them did not feel so wealthy the next day as they did while the minister was speaking. And Mr. Foster has yet to face Kings, and Messrs. McLeod and Hazen to give an account of their stewardship to St. John.

THE LIBERAL CONVENTION.

The liberal convention which met in this city this morning to elect delegates to the general convention of the liberal party to be held at Ottawa in June, was a representative and enthusiastic one. While it is to be regretted that the busy season of the year kept most of the farmers at home and prevented as large a gathering of the country friends as was desirable, yet the attendance from the city, and the interest displayed by everyone present in working harmoniously and unitedly together, was most satisfactory, and is a conclusive answer to those who would endeavor to have the impression go abroad that there is a want of harmony among the liberals of York. There never was a more harmonious and enthusiastic convention held in the county than assembled in the temperance hall this morning, and after the business of electing delegates had been transacted and the speeches of the occasion were over, the general and unanimous feeling prevailed that whoever the next liberal candidate for this county might be, he would receive the hearty and united support of the party. The gentlemen who have been selected to represent this county in the Liberal Convention at Ottawa, are well qualified for the work they will be called upon to do, and there is no doubt, but that in the deliberations before them, they will reflect credit upon themselves and upon the county of York.

SPRINGFIELD.

May 16.—Another of our pioneers has passed into the great unknown, in the person of Alex. Love who died on the 10th inst. after a short illness. He had reached the good old age of 80 years. He leaves four sons and three daughters to mourn the loss of a kind father. His end was peace. The sabbath school was opened here last sabbath. New officers and teachers were elected for the coming summer, and the classes reorganized. Charles G. Moore of this place lost a horse from lock-jaw last week. A "pie-party" is to be held in the school room on the evening of the 20th inst. for the purpose of raising funds for a Sunday school library. Our stream drivers are beginning to return home, hale and hearty, with only one exception, W. Moore who had his foot slightly crushed in a jam. Farming this spring is very late in this vicinity but first begun this week. Wm. Prescott and wife of Ashland Mich., have returned home after having enjoyed a short visit with his father, Thos. Prescott, of this place. Harry Prescott has moved his family to Gibson. Farmers are very busy putting in their crops, the ground being very warm and mellow.

LIBERAL RALLY.

Delegates Chosen to Represent York at the Ottawa Convention.

York county liberal convention was called to order at 10:30 to-day by Z. R. Everett, vice-president of the county. He made a rattling speech during the course of which he explained that the Tories took to themselves credit for reducing the prices of certain manufactured articles, but comparing them with the same articles over the line, their statement is absurd. In the case of nails, here they are sold at $2.75, there the price is $1.50; scythes sell here for $7 and $8 per dozen, there tools of similar quality sold from $4 to $5. He believed that a little cloud was rising on the political horizon that promised abundance of rain—a flood that would drown the high priests of political corruption. Chas. Duffy was appointed secretary. Moved by Geo. Hughes that delegates be elected by ballot. Mr. Gregory thought that the meeting should be open and that the ballot should not be resorted to. It was sometimes a protection but there could be no necessity for it here. It was a wise move to call delegates to meet in a general convention. At last election the standing of the liberal party was not clearly defined. The unrestricted reciprocity was the rallying cry, but the matter was not put in a plain state before the people. He believed that it would be wise to call a liberal convention of the maritime provinces, and have our trade with the United States fully ventilated, and asked Mr. Hughes to withdraw his motion. Mr. Hughes explained that it was not for any purposes of secrecy that he had made his motion. He believed that there might be more persons nominated than the number allowed, and he thought that the ballot would be the simplest way to settle the matter. Z. R. Everett, Geo. F. Gregory, W. Wilson, Nelson Brown and Geo. W. Allen, were elected delegates to represent the county at the Ottawa convention. The following resolution was moved by W. Wilson and carried unanimously: Whereas, It was predicted with the utmost confidence by the leaders of the conservative party when they adopted the policy of high tariffs that it would build up our manufacturing industries, give employment to the mechanic and laborer, create a better market for our farmers, furnish sources of investment for the unemployed capital and generally give to our people prosperity and contentment; and Whereas, After fourteen years of the application of such a policy, it has not only failed to accomplish any of the results anticipated but has deprived our farmers of that profitable trade which they formerly had with the people of the neighboring republic, has depreciated farm property in value, has created gigantic monopolies which have extracted large sums of money from the pockets of the people without any corresponding remuneration and has increased the exodus of our young men to the United States; and Whereas, The results of the operation of this policy of high tariffs and restriction of trade has been in strict accordance with the predictions of the leaders of the liberal party of Canada. Therefore Resolved, That this convention endorse the opposition by the liberal party of such a policy, urge the continuance of the same and the making of any effort commensurate with the unity and integrity of the empire to secure to our people the greatest possible freedom of trade with the neighboring republic, and the rest of the world which alone in the opinion of the convention can give to the people of this great dominion prosperity and contentment. Owing to the prevalent bad weather, and it being a rather busy time for farmers, the county was not so largely represented as could have been desired. However, many representative men assembled and reports show that the county is equally with the city in favor of a change in the tariff laws. Among those present were: G. F. Gregory, F. P. Thompson, Z. R. Everett, R. Foster, Jas. Beall, Jas. H. Crockett, Alex. Horen, Geo. R. Myles, Geo. A. Hughes, Wm. Wilson, John Mowatt, Ed. Dunphy, Geo. Pugh, M. S. Hall, Jas. E. Simmons, C. De E. Simmons, Rich. Boone, Geo. Wilson, N. W. Brown, Albert Everett, Geo. W. Allen, Geo. Fletcher, J. MacArthur, John Moore, W. May, R. A. Estey, R. G. Blair, R. A. Estey, O. C. Fugate, E. H. Allen, W. William Pugh, F. Baird, Mr. Shephard, W. McBean, Fred. Quartermain.

KESWICK RIDGE.

May 15.—The weather at present is rather damp. It has rained since Saturday evening. Last week was very fine and warm and many of the farmers availed themselves of the opportunity to begin farming, early potatoes and carrots are the principal crops being attended to. Death has once more visited this place. Mrs. Stephen Tripp was laid in her last resting place on Sunday the 14th inst. The services were performed by Rev. S. Sykes. His text was from 2nd Corinthians, 4th chap. and last two verses. This grave was chosen by Mrs. Tripp. Mr. Sykes took the subject up in his usual good style and delivered an able and pleasant discourse. Mrs. Tripp leaves a husband and three children to mourn the loss of a loving wife and mother. She also leaves a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. J. K. continues about the same. He stands his protracted illness very well. Mrs. N. R. Estey has been confined to the house by an attack of erysipelas. Mr. and Mrs. Ira Burt are receiving congratulations over a domestic event—a girl. Mr. and Mrs. Clowes Jewett, are receiving congratulations over a similar event. David Coburn has returned home from Princeton. He has been studying in a theological college there for the last six months. He is a graduate of the U. N. B. Every body is glad to see him once more. Dr. A. D. Coburn has gone to Canterbury. It will be remembered that he spent some time there last summer, during which time he made many friends in that place. His many friends of Keswick Ridge wish him every success. SHREWSBURY.—The shingle manufacturers are sending their output by schooner, instead of rail, on account of the recent increase by the C. P. R. on this class of freight. The rate from Bay of Fundy ports to Boston stands at 38 cents per thousand, from this city it is 40 cents. The Clifford C. took away a large load of shingles on Friday for R. A. Estey. Mr. Gibson is employing schooners to carry the shingles manufactured on the Nashwaak.

SAM IS FREE.

Boats and Bars Prove no Hindrance to His Escape.

Friday evening, the locally notorious Samuel Jones made things rather lively in his home of his parents, and at last the patience of the long suffering sire becoming exhausted he had Samuel placed in the clutches of the law and deposited in one of the subterranean vaults of the police court. Here the late Sam brooded over the outrage which had been perpetrated upon him till after the streets became silent and the officers of the law had set out on their down town beat, then he began to examine the intricate workings of the massive padlock that holds the door of the vault in position. By the aid of a wire he managed to spring the lock and with a bound was in the hall of the court; the first step was gained and then began an examination of the cumbersome door that separated him from the world and liberty. The remains of the axe that has been wielded by the junior officer all winter to split the knotty chunks of hardwood furnished by the city fathers was standing near and after it had left the handle several times the bolt holding the door was broken and Sam was free—free once more to drink in the balmy air of whitechapel and its precincts. He is gone, no man knoweth whither.

GIBSON AND ST. MARYS.

Inaac Smith has his notices out respecting the impending election. Babbitt's mill is having a very busy spring and is doing a large amount of work. There will be baptism by Rev. Mr. Nobles after the morning services on Sunday next. Walter McFarlane has had the foundation laid for a new residence, on the site of the one recently burned. It will be a very neat and attractive building and will cost something over $2,000. Part of the roof has been placed on the bridge at month of Nashwaak. The whole structure will be completed in about ten days. The road from here to Marysville is in a desperate state, but nothing can be done to till the frost is all out. Edward Wilcox, it is said, is paying for the gainst of the Episcopal church. McFarlane's factory is doing a big business just at present in the manufacture of peaves. Samuel Cole has opened up a shop shop in the little Hayes building at the bridge approach. Charles Wise has removed into the Edgar Hanson house; Mr. Hanson and family have removed to the city for the summer.

MARYVILLE NEWS.

There is a new house in course of erection on the site occupied by the old Frank Conlier house. Rev. A. Lucas and S. J. Parsons will meet the Sabbath school workers at the Baptist church, Marysville, on June 2nd. The drives are coming along rapidly and the mills are running, though the "back water" somewhat impedes progress. The dry goods store is well stocked with new and very elegant summer goods and Messrs. Lively, Tapley and Read have all they can attend to when the evening rush is on. Wednesday, Sewell's tug Ernest took up some coals loaded with general groceries and carried back return cargo of birch. It will be shipped at St. John for the English market. Mrs. Palmer, who lives on the east side, died Tuesday night after a brief illness. Mr. Tracey, an old man who resided at the lower end of the town, west side, and who died on Saturday last, was taken to his old home at Centreville on Monday for burial.

DECEASED THE CALL.

The Rev. Mr. Davidson, of Prince Edward Island, was extended a call by the Baptist church of Gibson to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Rev. Mr. Nobles, but it appears that he has declined the call. It is a good opening for a minister of that denomination; the church is comparatively strong, in good working order with a comfortable building.

FROM CAR TO COACH.

It is very seldom the case that passengers by the C. P. R. are delayed on the Fredericton branch and conductor Hagerman and driver Donaldson take every care that their train shall get through on time, but Friday forenoon a mishap occurred at Morrigan's mills and passengers had to be brought up to the city by coach. The brewers did not amount to much, only sufficient to stop the train for a short time.

BRAGDON AGAIN.

Mrs. John Sheehan and James Patterson have been called upon to answer to complaints against them for Scott Act violations, three against the former and two against the latter. They came up before major Alexander. These are the outcome of Bragdon's visit to the place a few weeks ago. J. W. McCready, G. F. Gregory, and A. Vanant were appointed to conduct the case. It was soon learned that a mistake had been made; that Sheehan had been charged with Patterson's crimes, and vice versa. The cases were then dismissed.

THE CENTREVILLE ROAD.

A meeting of the Woodstock and Centreville railroad company was held at Woodstock on Tuesday last. The following were present: Directors: Messrs. E. R. Burpee, John Connor, F. Tabor, T. P. Connor and W. T. Drysdale. Arrangements have been made for beginning operations at an early date. When completed the line will connect with the C. P. R. at Woodstock and with the Bangor and Aroostook and Bridgewater. It will open up a fine section of Carleton county and it is expected will be a paying road.

BOOM COMPANY.

There is a large quantity of logs in the Douglas boom, but owing to the high water and heavy current no rafting is being done by the company, though some of the farmers are making up small rafts. It is thought that rafting will be in full operation next week. The pile driving scow went to Douglas Wednesday morning. It is a new idea and there are various conjectures as to how it will work. It is intended to use it to haul logs out of the jams and then break them up. The plan has been in such cases to use the axe, thus many logs were spoiled. If this appliance does the work intended it will be a great advance in rafting. Chas. McCluskey of Gibson has the apparatus in charge.

LAKEVILLE CORNER, S. C.

May 17.—Jewett & Randall have their schooner, Lakeville, loaded with fish. They expect to start for St. John in a few days. Miss Helen Ferguson spent a few days in St. John last week. Miss Julia Thompson has returned home from Washburn, Me., where she has spent the winter. She expects to return again in a few months. It is rumored with mingled pleasure and surprise that some of our young bachelors are soon to depart from the state of single blessedness to join the ranks of benefactors. We extend to them and their partners in life our best wishes for their future welfare and happiness. Miss Minnie Jewett was confined to the house last week with lagrippe. It is quite prevalent there this season.

LOWER SOUTHAMPTON.

May 16.—We are having wet weather here, making it very bad for the farmers. There is a great deal of sickness here this spring, keeping Dr. McNally of Millville, very busy. Ezra Miller has been very low with conjestion, but with the skillful treatment of Dr. McNally is recovering. Master Edgar Cronkrite is very low with small hopes of his recovery. Mrs. Geo. Grosvener has been very ill for three weeks. Miss Sarah Haines has taken the school in the upper district for the summer.

AROUND THE WORLD.

The Week's Events in Brief—The Cream of Our Exchanges.

Major LeCaron, once British government spy among the Irish in America is dying. Brome county electors vote on June sixteenth on the question of repealing the operation of the Scott act in that county. A short time ago Joseph M. Ruddock purchased the well known Miramichi Foundry, Chatham, of which some years ago he was manager. The Standard Oil company's barreling works at Indiana, were burned Sunday night. The loss is from $50,000 to $100,000. No insurance. George Windsor, Romauld Boudran, Hermingilde G. Poirier, Henry Bishop, Patrick J. Power, and Louis Corbett, are gaudied as Justices of the Peace for Gloucester county.

THE FLAG STILL FLOATS.

Tuesday morning about one o'clock the Newcastle skating and curling rink was destroyed by fire. For some time the door has been open, and the fire lugs lit the fire on the inside. The latest move of the prosecuting attorney in the Fall River murder case is an attempt to have Lizzie Bowden examined by experts in insanity with a view of showing that she is insane. For two hundred miles the valley of the Ottawa is literally drowned out. Fears are entertained that some of the Chaudiere lumber mills will be washed away owing to the tremendous torrent. L. M. Carrier, commission agent of Quebec, has left the county with $15,000, entrusted to him by flour merchants to be paid to western millers. Carrier leaves unpaid debts amounting to $25,000.

"HOW DID YOU REST LAST NIGHT?"

SELECT STORY.

COUNT OF MONTE-CRISTO;

REVENGE OF EDMOND DANTES.

CHAPTER XLVII.

THE PART.

"The dead are everywhere," said Morrel.

"I have known a man much more unfortunate than you, Morrel."

"What can be more wretched than the man who has lost all he loved and desired in the world?"

"Listen, Morrel, and pay attention to what I am about to tell you. I knew a man who like you had fixed all his hopes of happiness upon a woman."

"My father, too, is dead," said Morrel.

"Fourteen years!" he muttered.

"He was, then, a more unhappy son than you, Morrel, for he could not even find his father's grave!"

"You are deceived, that woman."

"He was, then, a more unhappy son than you, Morrel, for he could not even find his father's grave!"

"On the fifth of October, Morrel, I shall expect you at the Island of Monte-Cristo."

"I am entirely yours, count."

"Morrel accompanied the count to the harbor. The white steam was descending like a plume of feathers from the black chimney."

"The carriage entered by the Porto del Popolo, turned to the left and stopped at the Hotel d'Espagne. Pastini, our old acquaintance, received the traveller at the door, hat in hand."

guide in the anteroom, who immediately entered into conversation with two or three industriousillers, who are always to be found in Rome at the doors of banking houses. With the Frenchman, the man who had followed him entered too; the Frenchman knocked at the inner door, and entered the first room; his shadow fell on the same.

"Monsieur Thomson & French?" inquired the stranger.

"Whom shall I announce?" said the footman.

"The Baron Danglars."

"Follow me!" said the man. A door opened, through which the footman and the baron disappeared. The man who had followed Danglars sat down on a bench. The clerk continued to write for some time, and then he raised his head, and appeared to be perfectly sure of a chat.

"You have found out that there is something worth having about this stout gentleman?"

"There is no great merit due to me, for we were informed of it."

"But you must let me make my observations on the Frenchman who transacts his business without my knowing the name?"

"Well!" asked Peppino of his friend.

"I did not come to Rome to see sights," said Danglars.

"Then your excellency is going—"

"Cassa Pastini!" said the carriage driver.

"The next morning Danglars awoke late, though he went to bed so early. He breakfasted early, and ordered post horses at noon. But Danglars had not reckoned upon the formalities of the police and the delay of the posting-master. The horses only arrived at two o'clock, and the carriage did not bring the passports until three. All these preparations had collected a number of idlers round the door of Maitre Pastini's; the descendants of the Gracchi, who were also not wanting. The baron walked triumphantly through the crowd, who for the sake of gain styled him "your excellency."

"Which road?" asked the postilion in Italian.

"The Ancona road," replied the baron. Pastini interpreted the question and answer, and the horses galloped off. Danglars intended travelling to Venice, where he would receive one part of his fortune, and then proceeding to Vienna, where he would find the rest, he meant to take up his residence in the latter town, which had been told was a city of pleasure.

"Is this the man?" asked the captain.

"Himself, captain—himself."

"Very well, show him to me," Peppino raised his torch to Danglars' face.

"Oh!" murmured Danglars.

"The banker uttered a groan and followed his guide; he never spoke more."

"No," he cried, "they have not wounded, but perhaps they have robbed me!"

which in the first moment of strong emotion enables them to see distinctly, and which afterwards falls from being too much taxed. Danglars observed a man in a cloak galloping at the right hand of the carriage.

"Some gendarme!" he exclaimed.

"Can I have been signalled by the French telegraphs to the pontifical authorities?"

"Decidedly!" said Danglars, with the perspiration on his forehead.

"You are leading me?" he asked.

"Dentro la testa," replied the same voice, with the same menacing accent.

"Danglars turned to the left; another man on horseback was galloping on that side."

"Decidedly!" said Danglars, with the perspiration on his forehead.

"You are leading me?" he asked.

"Dentro la testa," replied the same voice, with the same menacing accent.

"Danglars turned to the left; another man on horseback was galloping on that side."

"Danglars turned to the left; another man on horseback was galloping on that side."

"You are leading me?" he asked.

The last alternative seemed the most prudent, so he waited until twelve o'clock. During all this time a sentinel who had been relieved at eight o'clock, had been watching his inclination. He had remarked that a few rays from a lamp penetrated through the ill-jointed planks of the door; he approached it just as the brigand was refreshing himself with a mouthful of brandy, which sent forth an odor which was extremely unpleasant to Danglars.

"Fugh!" he exclaimed, retreating to the extreme corner of his cell.

"At twelve, the man was replaced by another functionary, and Danglars, wishing to catch sight of his new arrival approached the door again. He was an athletic, gigantic bandit, with large eyes, thick lips, and a red hair fell in dishevelled masses like snakes around his shoulders.

Danglars knocked at the door; the bandit raised his head. Danglars knew that he had been heard, so he redoubled his blows.

"Come, come," said Danglars, "I think it is quite time to give me something to eat!"

"But whether he did not understand him, or whether he had received no orders respecting the nourishment of Danglars, the giant, without answering, commenced eating his dinner.

Danglars immediately recognized him as the man who had called out in such a furious manner, "Put in your head!"

"Happen to be hungry? That's excellent when I have not eaten for twenty-four hours!"

"What would your excellency like?"

"Well, a fowl, fish, game, it signifies little to me."

"As your excellency pleases! You mentioned a fowl? I think?"

"Yes, a fowl."

"Peppino turning round, shouted, 'A fowl for his excellency! His voice yet echoed in the archway when a young man in a handsome green and half red coat, appearing, bearing a fowl in a silver dish on his head without the assistance of his hands."

"A Burning Shame—Museum Manager—Go downstairs and tell the freaks they can't smoke cigarettes here."

"The country referred to lies along the coast of Pacific R. Here you can find pretty much anything you want. In Minnesota, and in the Red River Valley, or North Dakota, the finest of prairie lands found for wheat and grain, or as well diversified farming. In Western North Dakota, and Montana, are stock ranges limitless in extent, clothed with the most nutritious of grasses.

"The public are too intelligent to purchase a worthless article a second time. On the contrary they want the best! Physicians are virtually unanimous in saying Scott's Emulsion is the best form of Cod Liver Oil.

"The Indication.—This bump, said the phenologist indicates that you are of a combative disposition. No, said the subject. It indicates that my wife is of a combative disposition. That's where she hit with a hair brush this morning."

"Her Excuse.—He—So you have been dancing with that cad Flaabtop, while I've been to get your ice? She—Well dear, I thought I would get warmed up so as to enjoy the ice."

PROF. WIGGINS' DISCOVERIES.

He Claims to Have Done Wonderful Things.

OTTAWA, May 15.—Professor Wiggins, the Canadian astronomer and weather prophet, has come before the public again. In an interview with a star correspondent yesterday he said that after a quarter of a century's hard work, he had solved one of the problems pronounced by ancient and modern mathematicians as impossible by Euclid's elements. These problems are the squaring of the circle, the duplication of the cube, the insertion of two geometrical means between two given straight lines, and the trisection of a given rectilinear angle.

The solution of the last-named, professor Wiggins said, was more eagerly sought than any of the others, for it would enable mathematicians to increase the number of regular polygons inscribable in a given circle. The equilateral triangle, the square, the regular pentagon and such regular polygons can be derived from them, have been the only regular figures known to be inscribable in a circle by elementary geometry. There is, for instance, no regular nonagon given in our school books on geometry, because no one, not even Euclid or Newton, could divide the angle of an equilateral triangle into three equal parts; in other words, find the ninth of four right angles. This is the problem prof. Wiggins has solved and has brought within the third book of Euclid. The construction is simple, but that for the demonstration and the demonstration itself are not by any means easy. He says the solution of the problem will cause universal joy among mathematicians, and it is his intention to publish the solution in a few days.

FRANCE ON GERMANY'S FRONTIER.

BERLIN, May 15.—The Wolfe News Agency asserts, on semi-official authority, that the reinforcement of the French troops stationed on the eastern frontier of France is proceeding with method and regularity.

The French government, according to the same authority, it likewise extending and strengthening the military lines adjoining the German frontier, and planning with a view to prompt and effective concentration. The barracks at the entrenched frontier camps are being greatly enlarged, and at Epinal two new barracks have been built and an addition made to the garrison.

Also on the same semi-official authority it is stated that men are at work night and day laying a double line of rails on the line of the Paris and Nancy railroad, between Bliesme and Revigny, in order to hasten the mobilization of the French troops.

The Frankfort Zeitung, commenting upon the foregoing statement and on other semi-official news despatches of similar character, states that reports of the kind are obviously intended to influence the electors in the coming election for the Reichstag in favor of candidates who support the Army bill.

THEIR NAME IS LEGION.

There is no lack of so-called cures for the common ailment known as corns. The vegetable, animal and mineral kingdoms have been ransacked for cures. It is a simple matter to remove corns without pain, for if you go to any druggist or medicine dealer and buy a bottle of Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor and apply it as directed the thing is done. Get Putnam's and no other.

A Burning Shame—Museum Manager—Go downstairs and tell the freaks they can't smoke cigarettes here. Janitor—That ain't a cigarette you smook, Museum Manager—What is it? Janitor—The India rubber man got pushed agin' the stove.

RHEUMATISM CURED IN A DAY.—South American Rheumatic Cure for rheumatism and neuralgia radically cures in 1 to 3 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. It removes at once the stiffness and swelling, and disappears. The first dose greatly benefits, 75 cents. Warranted by Davies, Staples & Co.

Made an Impression.—Father—Who is that young man who calls here so regularly? Mother—That's young Mr. Bulion. I think Dora has made an impression on him. Little Johnny—Yes, indeed; there's a big white place on his shoulder.

On several occasions, writes Rev. Wm. Lawson, formerly of Carmarthen Street Methodist church, St. John, I have suffered from severe nervous exhaustion and general debility. I was advised to use Hawker's justly celebrated Nerve and stomach tonic, and have great pleasure in testifying to its restoring, toning, invigorating and building up properties.

They Both Count.—Laura—I think I should like to marry a count. Louise—So do I, Laura—And I think I should like to marry a German count. Louise—Well, I am rather more particular. I want a bank account.
