

KATE'S ADVENTURE.

I am Kate. Of course I can tell my own adventures great deal better than any one can tell it for me. That stands to nature. I'm not a practical writer, and I don't know how to produce what the fashionable authors call "grand pen effects," but I believe I can make you understand how it was. And that is all that is necessary. Leeman had sprained his ankle—that's my brother—and he could not go to town with the load of russet apples that was already piled into barrels, and stood waiting under the big red shed. "It's too bad!" said he. "Those russet apples are worth a deal at this time of year, and we shall miss the market day!" "Can't you ask Neighbor Hutton to take them?" said my mother. "Neighbor Hutton is a deal too sharp a practitioner for me," said Leeman. "It's a hard thing to say about a neighbor; but I can't trust his honesty."

As of fern and cow slip, on either side of the solitary, railed road. All at once old Pomp gave a sidewise start—his ancient idea of ahying—and then I saw a man, pale, dusty and tired-looking, sitting on a fallen log; I was like mother—who would never let the shabbiest or meanest looking vagabond go past our house without a draught of milk, or a piece of fresh baked pie, or a slice of her famous home-made bread-cake—and without stopping to think, I drew in old Pomp's rein. "Are you going towards Lennox Cross Roads?" said I. "Yes! Then jump in; I'm going in that direction too, and I'll give you a lift." He thanked me in a silent, drooping sort of way, and seated himself on the board at the back of the wagon, toward which I pointed with the handle of my whip. "You look ill," said I. "I am not ill," he said, with a smothered cough. "Only tired with my long walk, I did not know it was so far to Lennox."

THE FALL FASHIONS.

Very Interesting to the Ladies. A Bit of Gossip about Style of Millinery. The autumn styles are by no means wanting in brilliancy; indeed, they are, if anything, more gorgeous than the striking combinations which obtained last summer. Bonnets and hats vary somewhat in shape, but more in material. All bonnets are very small and low, fitting closely to the head. The finest are of silk plush and velvet, or smooth beaver crowns with fluffy fur brims and facings. The small "poke" bonnet is seen in the winter materials, but needs a fair young face beneath its aspiring brim. Reports from New York and Boston say that the Derby hat is a thing of the past, but it is still seen in black and navy blue in our streets, usually accompanying the quaker suits or peasant dresses of pressed flannel. Wide brimmed hats are of the picturesque Reubens or Gainsborough shapes, and the flexible brims are made to assume the shape most becoming to the wearer. Smooth felts have been almost entirely superseded by the fur felt or beavers, with rough "fur" nearly an inch in length. These are not furnished with linings, the furry beaver being considered more "toney" than any satin, velvet or plush which could be used. The inside of the brim is frequently of a contrasting color, the inside of a cream hat being seal brown, dark grey, a rich dark wine color, or even old gold. There are smaller hats in the English turban style with full crown and rolling brim. "Tani O'Shanter" cap has "put in an appearance" in Detroit. The shape is somewhat akin to that of the caps worn by midshipmen in the navy, having the same close fitting band about the head and the large flat round crown projecting beyond the brim. These are trimmed with a bird's head pressed closely against the side and two feathers falling from the back; or a twisted band of wide plaid ribbon finishing the edge and a large flat bow or rosette, with pearl or gilt ornament, on the left side of the crown. They may be becoming and charming "to the beauty loving eye," but it requires a vivid imagination to pronounce them so, as they give a bald-headed American eagle sort of expression to most faces. It is not likely that this style will prevail for any great length of time among our fashionables, as any enterprising girl by the aid of a pair of scissors and her native ingenuity can manufacture one, and they will probably become too common. Satin ties are fastened with ornaments, which are very large and conspicuous, so much so that an exchange fears the belles of the season will have "corns on their chins." A favorite ornament is a large hoop of gold, from which depends a small pig or a "baby elephant," also in the same (presumably) precious metal. A wide brimmed fur beaver in black, also marked $35, was trimmed with a very long heavy black plume, falling from the side front quite two-thirds of the way around the crown, the remaining space being filled in with a wide Roman scarf, while another equally handsome feather was laid across the reversed brim, forming a very graceful and soft setting for a pliant face. Plumes are "all the rage" for both hats and bonnets, flowers being entirely neglected, although very beautiful and artistic specimens were to be seen in a show case. Jetted wings are still in favor; birds' heads, plumes and breasts are also used, but preference is given to the long, full curled ostrich plume. These range in prices from $4.50 to figures limited only by the capacity of a pocket-book. Shaded plumes are exceptionally handsome, being shown in tints varying from a very deep brown with a suspicion of orange about it, to the lightest sulphur yellow, or from a deep wine color having a tinge of brown, to a delicate cream. A broad brimmed fur beaver has its left side caught against the crown and held in place by a tiger's paw with gilt claws; from this starts a long plume shaded from deepest brown to the lightest tint of amber, sweeping around the crown and falling low behind. Tigers' or bears' paws with gilt claws promise to be popular or turbans of velvet or plush. Narrower rimmed hats have the brims caught to the crown beneath a large knot of plush, from which spring four or even five short, full tips, falling over the crown. Old gold, rich dark garnets and plum colors, and "Pompeian red" are the favorite colors. Bonnets of crimson plush with ties and plume of the same glowing hue, are seen.

THE GREAT WONDER OF MODERN TIMES.

THE GREAT WONDER OF MODERN TIMES.—The Pills Purify the Blood, correct all disorders of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys and Bowels and are invaluable in all complaints incident to Females. The Ointment is the only reliable remedy for Bad Legs, Old Wounds, Sores and Ulcers, of however long standing. For Bronchitis, Diphtheria, Coughs, Colds, Gout, Rheumatism and all Skin Diseases, it has no equal. BEWARE OF AMERICAN COUNTERFEITS.—Most remedies will take leave to call the attention of the Public generally to the fact that certain Houses in New York are sending to many parts of the globe spurious imitations of my Pills and Ointment. These frauds bear their labels some address in New York. I do not allow my Medicine to be sold in any part of the United States. I have no Agents there. My Medicines are only made by me, at 533 Oxford Street, London. In the Books of directions affixed to the spurious make is a caution warning the Public against being deceived by counterfeiters. Do not be misled by this audacious trick, as they are the counterfeiters they pretend to denounce. These counterfeiters are purchased by unprincipled Vendors at one-half the price of my Pills and Ointment. I most earnestly appeal to that sense of justice which I feel sure I may venture upon asking from all honorable persons to assist me, and the Public, as far as may lie in their power, in denouncing the fraudulent. Each Box and Bottle of the Genuine Medicines bears the British Government Stamp with the words "HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT LONDON," engraved thereon. On the label is the address, 533 Oxford Street, London, where alone they are manufactured. Holloway's Pills and Ointment bearing any other address are counterfeit. The Trade Marks of these Medicines are registered in Ottawa. Hence any one throughout the British Possessions who may keep the American Counterfeit for sale will be prosecuted. (Signed) THOMAS HOLLOWAY Oxford Street London Jan 1 1879.

Fun and Fancy.

Every man has his own reputation to make, and this is why so many men make such poor ones.

"It's only a fall opening, ma," the naughty boy said, as he exhibited his torn trousers after tumbling from an apple tree.

A dull old lady being told that a certain lawyer was lying at the point of death, exclaimed: "My gracious! Won't even death stop that man's lying?"

A lady wishes to know the best way of marking table-linen. Black berry pie is our choice, although a lady with a gray dich is highly esteemed by many.

A lover who had gone west to make a home for his "bride," wrote to her: "I have got the finest quarter-section of land (one hundred and fifty acres) I ever put my foot down on." Bride wrote back: "Suppose you buy another quarter section, John, so we can have a lawn round your foot. John "made a home," but Birdie never was mistress of it.

"Bob," said Tom, "which is the most dangerous word in the English language to pronounce?" "Don't know, unless it's a swearing word." "No," said Tom, "it's stumbling, because you are sure to get a tumble between the first and last letter." "Ha, ha," said Bob. "Now I have one for you. Which is the longest word in the English language?" "Valentinianism," responded Tom, promptly. "No, sir; it's smiles, because there is a whole mile between the first and last letter." "Ah, that is nothing. I know a word that has over three miles between its beginning and ending." "What is that?" asked Bob faintly. "Beleaguered," exclaimed Tom, triumphantly.

BALDHEADED PEOPLE.

A baldheaded man is refined and he always shows his skull-sure.

A good novel for bald heads to read—"The Lost Hair."

What does a baldheaded man say to his comb? We meet to part no more.

Motto for a baldhead—Bare and furbare.

However high a position a baldheaded man holds, he will never comb down to the world.

The baldheaded man never dyes. What does every baldheaded man put on his head? F' hat.

You never saw a baldheaded man with a low forehead.

HANDWORK.

The grasp of the human race is in the hand.

The hand of the baby with its chubbyness, all dimples, but the fingers, which wiggle aimlessly in forty seven directions isn't it innocent and pretty? And how nicely its wondrously-eyed owner can spread butter with it.

The hand of the small boy, on a three weeks' vacation from the wash basin, begrimed knuckles, mourning fingernails and a rag wound round its sore thumb. This is the hand that eats cookies, jam and other goodies one minute, and puts the crust of a mud pie in innocent mirth the second. We were all small boys once—perhaps a few feminine exceptions.

The hand of the young woman of the day, sparkling with diamonds and other jewels, mostly other. How its shapely fingers run up and down the piano keyboard, and how daintily does it show its deftness in embroidery, fancy work, etc., and how seldom is it found in the bread tray or the wash-tub.

The hand of a mother, lovingly leading us along the pathway of our childhood. How gratefully we remember its administration, even when they were heavy and were placed where they would do the most good.

The hand of the farmer, hard and knotty, with knuckles like knobs, fingers all thumbs, unused and unfit for the dainty occupations of life. It grasps the prosperity of the country right by the crop.

The hand of the speculator is in every one's pocket but his own.

The hand of the intelligent compositor swinging over his case with rapid regularity, raising the complete "printer's devil" with editorial brain-work, and holding the editor up to the unpying gaze of the world as a consummate fool. It is the worst hand played.

The hand of a marriageable young lady always stretched forth, and just as you think you have got it for life it vanishes. 'Tis well. Only a few of these species are worth having.

The hand of an old friend, as it settles into yours with one long grateful clasp. Nothing in this world ever starts the tremors of the nerves from the brain centre and causes a thrill so permeating to the soul as its grasp.

The real pretty hand symmetrical in every finger joint, makes the owner just vain enough to gracefully rest her face upon it as often as anybody would be likely to look at it.

The hand of the dear old grandmother. Wrinkled with goodness, by age that has tempered its old-time severity; it now is up to the wrists in beneficent and kindly deeds for the young. Ah, lucky is the young scamp who can depend on the interference of a grandmother's hand.

Household Hints.

PICKLED ONIONS.—Peel and boil them in milk and water a few moments; put cloves, spice, pepper and salt into your vinegar; and boil them in brass; turn it on your onions and cover them tight.

BAKED APPLES.—Pare and quarter and lay them in a skillet; sprinkle each layer with sugar, small pieces of butter and grated nutmeg; set in the oven and bake. I think this much nicer than stewing.

A NICE WAY TO PREPARE CABBAGE.—To one quart of chopped cabbage with salt and pepper to taste, pour over hot one cup of vinegar, a large tablespoonful of sugar, one tablespoonful of butter, cover, and let it steam.

SQUASH PIES.—Boil and sift a good dry squash, thin it with boiling milk until it is about the consistency of thick milk porridge. To every quart of this add three eggs, two great spoonfuls of melted butter, nutmeg (or ginger if you prefer), and sweeten quite sweet with sugar. Bake in a deep plate with an undercrust.

PICKLING CABBAGE.—Take half a dozen small red beets, boil, and when cold chop up fine with a hash knife. Take one large head of cabbage, chop up the same way, mix all together, add salt and black pepper to your taste, a half teaspoonful cayenne pepper, pack in a crock, cover with good vinegar, and it will keep for months.

INDIA PICKLE.—Carefully follow this:—Take three quarts of vinegar, quarter pound mustard, half ounce of black pepper, one ounce cloves, one ounce allspice, one ounce tumeric, one ounce ginger, one ounce cayenne pepper, handful of salt, and the same of sugar; boil for twenty minutes. When cold put in the vegetables, cucumbers, onions, cauliflower cut up small, and cover closely. If the liquid should seem thin, boil again and add more mustard in three weeks after making.

BREAD FRITTERS WITH LEMON SAUCE.—Take slices of stale bread and cut off the crust, making them of uniform shape. Soak these in a custard made of one egg, one cup of milk, a tablespoonful of sugar, and a little flavoring. Remove them before they get so soft as to break, dip each slice in rolled bread crumbs, then in beaten egg, then in bread crumbs again, and fry to a golden brown in hot lard. For the sauce, cream together a cup of sugar and half a cup of butter, stir in one egg, well beaten, and the juice and half the grated peel of one lemon. Beat well and then stir in gradually half a cup of hot water. Set the bowl on top of the boiling teakettle until it thickens, stirring occasionally. Do not allow it to boil.

SALT RISING BREAD.—The night before you want to make your bread, take a pint of sweet milk and heat it scalding hot; then stir in corn meal until it is as thick as mush; keep it by the fire at night. The next morning take a teacupful of water as hot as you can bear your finger in it; pour it in the mush and thicken it with flour as thick as you can stir it, put it in a pot of water as warm as you can bear your finger in. In a short time it will be to the top of your cup; then take as much water as you wish to make your bread with, and have it warm; thicken with flour, and when cool enough, stir your rising in it; it will be ready to mix in an hour or less time; mix pretty stiff; grease your pans well; also grease your bread on top, and as soon as light enough, put it in the oven and bake it. Don't let it stand after it is light.

VERY SEVERE.—A lawyer who was badgering a colored witness in a District of Columbia court by asking him if he had not been convicted of larceny, assault and arson, receiving a negative reply in every case, he finally enquired:—"Have you ever been in the penitentiary?"

"Yes, sah."

Attorney smiled complacently, and resumed: How many times have you been in the penitentiary?"

"Twice, sah."

"Where?"

"In Baltimore, sah."

"How long were you there the first time?"

"'About two hours, sah."

"How long the second time?" asked the attorney, rather crestfallen.

"An hour, sah. I went there to white-wash a cell for a lawyer who had robbed his client."

The Greatest Remedy Known.

DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY FOR Consumption is certainly the greatest medical remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity. Thousands of once hopeless sufferers, now loudly proclaim their praise for this wonderful Discovery to which they owe their lives. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers as if by magic. We do not ask you to buy a large bottle until you know what you are getting. We therefore earnestly request you to call on your druggist, F. Jordan, and get a trial bottle for ten cents which will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful merits, and show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do. For sale by F. Jordan.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY. ONE OF THE OLDEST AND MOST RELIABLE REMEDIES IN THE WORLD FOR THE CURE OF Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, and every affection of the Throat, Lungs, and Chest, including CONSUMPTION. A WELL-KNOWN PHYSICIAN WRITES: "It does not dry up a cough, and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most preparations, but loosens it, cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of complaint." DO NOT BE DECEIVED by articles bearing a similar name. Be sure you get DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY, with the signature of "I. BUTTS" on the wrapper. 50 Cents and $1.00 a Bottle. Prepared by SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, Boston, Mass. Sold by druggists and dealers generally.

PERUVIAN SYRUP. A Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. When the blood does not contain the usual quantity of Iron, the deficiency can be supplied by the use of the PERUVIAN SYRUP. It cures a "thousand ills" simply by TONING UP, INVIGORATING, and VITALIZING the system. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon. This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Boils, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhea, Nervous Affections, Female Complaints. And all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility, or a bad state of the system. CAUTION.—Be sure you get the "PERUVIAN SYRUP." Sold by druggists generally. Pamphlets sent free to any address by SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, Proprietors, 88 Harrison Avenue, Boston, Mass.

OUR OFFER.

To Intending Subscribers!

We will send THE HURON SIGNAL from now till JANUARY 1881, for $1.50. We will send the SIGNAL from now till New Year's, for 25 Cents.

FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPO-PHOSPHITES

FOR THE RELIEF AND CURE OF ALL WASTING DISEASES,

Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, General Debility, Brain Exhaustion, Chronic Constipation, Chronic Diarrhoea, Dyspepsia, or Loss of Nervous Power. It is unequalled in the treatment of Palpitation of the Heart, Trembling of the Hands and Limbs, Loss of Appetite, Energy or Memory.

It acts with vigor, gentleness and subtlety, owing to the exquisite harmony of its ingredients, akin to pure blood itself. Its taste is pleasant, and its effects permanent. The first apparent effect is to increase the appetite. It assists digestion, and causes the food to assimilate properly—thus the system is nourished. It also, by its tonic action on the digestive organs, induces more copious and regular evacuations. The facility with which patients take on flesh while under the influence of the Syrup, of itself indicates that no other preparation can be better adapted to help and nourish the constitution, and hence be more efficacious in all depression of spirits, shaking or trembling of the hands or body, cough, shortness of breath, or consumptive habit. The nerves and muscles become strengthened, and the blood purified.

Read what the INVENTOR, MR. FELLOWS, HAS TO SAY ABOUT HIS SYRUP OF THE HYPOPHOSPHITES.

In the summer of 1864, I was suddenly affected by a copious expectoration of mucous purulent matter. I had been declining in health for some months, and, being exceedingly nervous, the symptoms caused alarm. As my business was that of a dispensing chemist, the syrup was constantly visited by medical men, all of whom rendered their advice. During 1864 and 1865 my chest was examined by ten first class physicians, some of whom pronounced the case Bronchitis; some, not wishing to cause alarm, or unwilling to venture an opinion, gave no decision; some stated unequivocally that I had Tubercular Disease of the Lungs, and located the trouble where the pains were felt. By professional advice, I used, in turn, horse-back exercise, country life, eggs and ale in the morning, tonics, Bourbon whiskey, cod-liver oil, electricity, tar, and various inhalants, but the trouble increased. Expectoration became more profuse and offensive. Night-sweats set in. Cold chills, diarrhoea, dyspnoea, cough, blood-streaked expectorations, loss of sleep, loss of appetite, loss of memory, loss of ambition, accompanied by general prostration, showed themselves. Under the microscope the blood was found to contain but a small portion of vitalized corpuscles; the heart's action was feeble; the pulse intermittent; the stomach could no longer digest properly, so that flatulency and acidity was the result. Finding the symptoms indicated Consumption, I determined to use every effort to stay its progress, and, if possible, to cure it. I selected the most powerful tonics and moderators, and combined them with the vital constituents of the human body. For months I endeavored to amalgamate them before my efforts were crowned with success. I cannot speak too plainly or too strongly of the effects produced, and the benefits derived from the composition.

At first my appetite increased; the expectoration became easy, digestion better; the mucus became more copious and less frequent; cold chills ceased; night-sweats lessened; I gained in weight; the hacking cough left me; refreshing sleep returned; my spirits became buoyant, the mind active and vigorous. I continued taking the Syrup month after month; but owing to the damp, foggy climate of St. John, my recovery was necessarily slow, although I could observe a gradual return of strength for three years, during which time I continued taking the remedy. My present weight is one hundred and eighty-eight, being thirty-eight above my usual. I have no symptoms of my disease. The only notable sign during twelve months was the expectation. Now that has stopped, and I consider myself well. The reader may ask, How do you know your difficulty to have proceeded from ulcerated or tuberculated lung? I answer, In the most certain of all modes for ascertaining. In March last I coughed from the right lung a piece of PHOSPHATE OF LIME, half the size of a pea, which could have come from no other place, and which the highest authority in Lung Diseases (Lancet) states is the result of tubercle, which has been cured. Added to this, I had the leaden colored, purulent, blood-streaked expectoration, and the opinion of one of the best diagnosticians in the country. I believed I had successfully combated them, so that I do not despair of any case where there is left sufficient lung tissue to build upon. I can only add that you may have your satisfaction of increased size would never induce me to publish this report, but at all times sympathy for the poor Consumptive with whom I can identify myself in any to trifle.

Respectfully,
JAMES FELLOWS,
Inventor of Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

SUBSTITUTES!

The public are cautioned against a custom which is growing quite common of late among a certain class of medicine dealers, and which is this: When asked for a bottle of Pain-Killer, they suddenly discover that they are "sold out," but have another article just as good, if not better, which they will supply at the same price. The object of this deception is transparent. These substitutes are made up to sell on the great reputation of the Pain-Killer; and being compounded of the vilest and cheapest drugs, are bought by the dealer at about half what he pays for the genuine Pain-Killer, which enables him therefore to realize a few cents more profit per bottle upon the imitation article than he can on the genuine.

For SUDDEN COLDS NEURALGIC, RHEUMATIC AND OTHER PAINS IN ANY PART OF THE BODY.

PERRY DAVIS' PAIN-KILLER

IT CURES ALMOST INSTANTLY. PAIN-KILLERS are put in the market every day, and are sold at a low price, but they are not the genuine Pain-Killer. The genuine Pain-Killer is sold by all medicine dealers.

THE HURON SIGNAL. FRIDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1880.

A DISHONEST CRITIC.

Sir Richard Cartwright is at loggerheads with himself. In his speech to his constituents the other day he denounced the sale of land to Mr. Brassey, and then admitted that he had made a similar purchase himself. Referring to the North-West territory, the clever knight declared in one breath that he held a high opinion of it, and in the next breath expressed his disbelief in the agricultural capabilities of the country.—Toronto Mail.

ANOTHER RAILROAD.

Our friends in Bayfield and vicinity have opened up an agitation on the railway question. A couple of weeks ago a "Ratepayer" addressed to us a letter, crying down the contemplated Bayfield and Clinton road. In another column of this issue will be found a reply in favor of a railroad by "Ratepayer No. 2," which gives facts and figures favoring the construction of a new road. Our own opinion is that a compromise between the belligerents could be adopted by throwing overboard the proposed Clinton & Bayfield line, and adopting a route from Goderich to Bayfield and tapping the London Huron & Bruce R. R. at Brucefield or Exeter. This would connect Bayfield with the G. T. R. and G. W. R., and would place in the hands of Bayfield a popular route which would more likely suit all parties, and for which the necessary bonuses could be more readily obtained than the line under contemplation between Bayfield and Clinton.

WEDNESDAY next will be Thanksgiving Day. As we have before said, we have much cause for thanksgiving in this Canada of ours. Having the day, it is good that it should be well spent. Some will go shooting, and return home gameless and as limp as an unarched shirt-front. Others will loaf around home, and yawn away the time over the papers or the latest humorous book. Some will get drunk, and make fools of themselves. Not a few, we hope, will go to church, and remember the special occasion of gathering together; and all should, out of their own store, supply the need of some starving family, and so give proof of their gratitude for the blessings of the year. In the language of quaint Matthew Henry, "thanksgiving is better than thanksgiving."

The Guelph Herald thinks itself witty when it is vulgar. Here is a sample of its style: "Sir Richard Cartwright is about to take the stump in Centre Huron and give an account of his stewardship. The hall has been hired, the band has been engaged, and reserved seat tickets have been distributed free gratis among the 'unco guid.' Arrangements have been made for a liberal supply of Hot Scotch in order to get up the requisite amount of enthusiasm. Taking it altogether, the meeting will be a success, i. e.—if the whisky holds out."

We have grown tired of reading articles in our exchanges about the fall show business being overdone. They are all written in the same strain, for it is never suggested by any of them to begin the "thinning out" process at home. Each place would like to see its neighbor give up its show. When one of the papers comes out boldly, and declares against its local fair as unnecessary, we will believe it to be sincere in its desire to lessen the number of exhibitions.

The Biddulph murder case will probably be tried by a special commission, Hon. Mr. Mowat being favorable to that course of procedure. It is hardly probable that the prisoners will be allowed out on bail. It is to be hoped that the case will be speedily settled, for the prisoners have been about eight months in gaol.

The town bell which was placed in the Court House on Thursday last, refutes the theory that the producer pays the duty. Goderich, which gave a majority vote for the N. P., has now $70 worth of experience in the matter.

Farmer Gray Endorses Himself.

I have been thinkin', Betsy Jane, about this here N. P. And I've been tryin' to calculate what it has done for me; For when I voted for it, in the fall of '78, I really b'lieved 'twould put our land in a much better state. I wasn't much at readin', and them chaps that hunted votes. Told us we'd get a bigger price for lambs and wheat and oats;— That in this growing country great factories would rise, And make up goods so wondrous cheap, 'twould fill us with surprise. So I voted for it, Betsy, and I've waited for the "buns;" And for the better times and that, but yet they haven't come; And I've come to the conclusion that they've fooled us pretty slick; But they musn't blame us farmers if they find that we will kick. That new frame barn I built last year, used up And oh, the price I paid for them! I tell you language falls. T' express my indignation at the way them cussed "rings" Have hoisted up the price of nails, and screws and bolts and things. And the coal oil that I burn at night when my day's work is o'er Has gone as high as fifty cents, and perhaps 'twill go up more; So, you'll make them "tallers," Betsy Jane, as in the good old days When greedy "rings" could not get gain from the evening candle's rays. Now what I sell goes pretty cheap, and what I buy is dear. I've really sored on sugar, for it's mighty high this year. And when I think it over it really puzzles me How I was ever fool enough to vote for the N. P. Goderich, Oct. 26, 1880.

MEDICAL etiquette may be a very nice thing, but should we unfortunately require the services of a modern Esculapius, we hope he will leave that commodity at home in his drawing-room when he comes to see us. And this is our reason: A man required medical attendance at Montreal and by mistake two doctors were summoned, a dispute arose as to which would prescribe, and, disgusted with the unseemly rumpus, the man died, without the assistance of either. But if the dead man wished to "preserve peace and quietness," by his self-sacrificing act, his intention miscarried, for a fresh dispute arose as to which medico should fill out the necessary certificate of death, and the corpse could not be buried until the matter was satisfactorily settled.

Let us bow down reverently and pay devotion to the N. P., as the Hindoos prostrate themselves before Juggernaut's car, which crushes them under its wheels. Great is thy power, oh N. P., thy might is of the mightiest! Let us sing thy praises, oh, N. P! and chant thy victories in the great field of industry.—Mitchell Safe Works, closed; Brussels Fire Engine Works, in the sweet long ago; Oshawa Cabinet Works, resting; Joseph Hall Works, Oshawa, averaging one hour's work in twenty-four; Thomson & Williams, Stratford, 40c on the dollar, &c., &c., and thine, oh, N. P! be the glory, thou promoter of hums!

The U. S. Postmaster-General has issued an order forbidding the payment of postal orders and the delivery of registered letters to R. C. Wintersmith, Louisville, Ky., or A. W. Harris & Co., New York, agents or representatives of the Frankfort School Fund lottery. This action on the part of the Postmaster-General has been necessitated owing to the fact that the fools are not yet all dead, and many there are who would prefer to risk their last dollar in a lottery, than to fairly and squarely and honestly attempt to earn a livelihood.

The Stratford Herald endeavors to point out that we published a jeremiad from Sir Richard Cartwright, and at the same time showed that Goderich was feeling the effects of better times. We deny the "soft impeachment," so far as the latter part of the sentence is concerned. What we endeavored to do was to show that Goderich's industries "were doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances," as the doctors sometimes say in doubtful cases.

If "a nod is as good as a wink to a blind horse," a good deal can be construed from the following extract from a temperance lecture, recently delivered by a County of Kerry parish priest:—"Drink," said he, "is a curse; it makes a man 'bate' his wife, starve his children, go shoot at his landlord, and miss him, too."

The Stratford Times canonizes Sir Tupper in its last issue. The way the gentleman of "Spring Hill notoriety" is plastered with "taffy" by our confere at the "Hub," is highly suggestive of a hankering after railway advertisements at 10c. per line. Ahem!

GRIP very properly rebukes the new Toronto weekly, Truth, for its tendency to dabble in filth. Grip itself is a model of pure wit. It has all the excellencies of a comic paper, without any of the uncleanness that too frequently crops out in journals of that class.

Two men in Hamilton were fined $5 and $2 respectively, for setting a couple of dogs fighting. We suppose the $5 man said, "Seek him, Towser," to the bigger dog.

CONTEMPORARY OPINION.

Of the election in Indiana the Republican leaders may well say, in the words of a successful American politician regarding another close political fight:—"The tactics of the enemy, sir, were infamous—simply infamous; but, d—n them, we beat them at their own weapons."—[Seaforth Sun.

There can be no doubt that there is a great deal of useless flummery connected with the office of Lieutenant-Governor, and that the present incumbent is not worth more than $1,200 a year. The people are beginning to think that an office which is so easily filled is scarcely needed at all, or, at least, should not cost the country so much.—[Woodstock Sentinel Review.

Canadian banking institutions generally are reducing their rate of interest. In Toronto and Montreal the rate on deposits "on call" has been reduced to three per cent., and in almost all the interior towns four per cent is the highest interest paid, with restricting conditions. The conditions are that savings bank accounts will be limited to a certain amount in one person's name. Larger sums must be placed in three months' deposit, subject to fifteen days' notice, interest to cease when notice is given. Plenty of cheap money ought to stimulate enterprise.—[Stratford Beacon.

The proper thing to do with the title of Queen's Counsel is to abolish it altogether. A correspondent of the Kingston Whip points out another course, which is to allow every barrister of ten or fifteen years' good standing to take the silk if he choose. The appointment has now lost its significance, as others than Q. Cs. frequently represent the Crown, and Q. Cs. very often appear on behalf of prisoners. But the most damaging argument against the title is that nine times out of ten it is not bestowed on the grounds of merit, but on account of politics. The odd tenth time it is given to a political opponent, as a make-believe. [Telegram.

The Irish landlords are at present in any but an enviable position. Parliament is not in session, and they cannot find much to do in London. They might go home and hunt on their estates, only that the tenants have an unpleasant habit of hunting them, the landlord being the only species of game in Ireland for which there is no close season. If an Irish landlord lives in England he is abused for spending the revenue of his estate out of his country, and if he lives at home he is in imminent danger of some of his tenants taking a shot at him. But shooting landlords is like killing mosquitoes: the moment you dispose of one there is another ready to take his place, for no heir was ever known to decline an estate on the ground that he might get shot, just as no mosquito was ever known to be warned by the fate of a defunct fellow. Yet it is a question if the possession of land in Ireland ought to be an offence deserving of capital punishment at the hands of the masses, like horse-stealing in Texas.—[Telegram.

BAYFIELD RAILWAY.

To the Editor of The Huron Signal. SIR:—My attention has been directed to a communication which appeared in THE SIGNAL of the 16th inst., signed "Ratepayer," professing to report the proceedings which took place at the last meeting of the Goderich township Council, with reference to submitting to the electors a By-law granting a bonus of $7,500 in aid of the projected Bayfield and South Huron Railway. Your correspondent seems highly pleased with the action of the Council, in refusing to submit this by-law. It is, however, very questionable whether the 200 ratepayers who signed the petition, and many others to whom it was not submitted for signature, will be equally pleased with the decision arrived at. However that may be, I am not disposed to censure the Council for refusing to comply with the request of the petitioners. I am bound to suppose that they were actuated by their sense of duty to their constituents; but they might have been liberal enough, without damaging their position as public men, to have allowed their constituents the opportunity of expressing their opinion on the point.

Your correspondent, in his report of the proceedings, should have avoided casting so grave a stigma upon the members of the Council as he has done when he says, "it was stated to them (the gentlemen who presented the petition) that a number of the names attached to the petition had not been signed by the proprietaries, and that said parties had never seen the petition. In fact, that a number of the signatures were 'bogus.' I cannot believe it possible that any five men, or any one man worthy of holding a position at the Council Board, should be so devoid of that courtesy expected from gentlemen acting in their official capacity, as to charge the two gentlemen who presented the petition (Messrs. Connor and Rutledge, whose characters stand so high in the County of Huron,) with the presentation of a surreptitious and bogus document. Your correspondent says they did. I cannot believe him. This "Ratepayer" tells the people of Goderich Township "that they have had a bitter experience of railway bonuses, and it has paid for much for their whistle" in days gone by—referring to the township having granted a bonus of $15,000 to the London, Huron and Bruce Railway. Let us see how he explains this "bitter experience." Does he try to show that no value was obtained for the money? By no means. He himself has given the most conclusive testimony that it was money well spent, and no "bitter experience" at all. He tells us "that it was of advantage to the grain buyers of Clinton and, to some extent, benefited the farming community." Does this look like a "bitter experience?" I should say that this road benefited the farming community, not only to "some extent," but to a very great extent; for the line of railway that made Clinton a good grain buying mart, as he says it did, and afforded ready access to the eastern market, would not have been so generally of advantage to the farmers of the surrounding country. But he tells us; moreover, by way of elucidating this "bitter experience," that this line of railway (the London, Huron and Bruce,) gave them "a competing line" with the Grand Trunk. Now, a competing line is generally regarded as of great value from its tendency to keep down freights and prevent the overcharges of which monopolists are often accused. In short, upon "Ratepayer's" own showing the "bitter experience" of which he complains, is about the most valuable that could befall the township he speaks of, and the best investment of $15,000 it has ever made.

Your correspondent towards the end of his letter, founds his opposition to the granting of the bonus chiefly upon financial considerations. He tells the ratepayers that "should they, by squandering something worse, allow the by-law for $7,500 to pass, they will feel it in their pockets—the surest way to make any man feel." Well, let us see how much they would feel it in their pockets. I think I can show that the amount which would fall upon each ratepayer would scarcely be enough to make even the selfish soul of your correspondent tremble for his pocket.

The bonus of $7,500 asked for would be given in the form of debentures, maturing at the expiration of 20 years, to which would be attached coupons, bearing interest at 6 per cent. an annum, payable half yearly. A sinking fund of 2 per cent. per annum upon the principal would be laid up to liquidate the debt when the debentures become due. Now, the interest of $7,500 at 6 per cent. amounts to $450; and the 2 per cent. reserved for the sinking fund amounts to $150, thus making an annual liability upon the township of $600. Now, let us extend this small amount over the ratepayers of the extensive and prosperous township of Goderich, in proportion to the several amounts for which they are assessed, and we shall see that they would not be very seriously affected in their pockets. The assessed value of the real and personal property of the township, as shown by the report of the County Council for the present year, 1880, is $1,734,480. Now, by dividing the $600, annually required to be raised by the township, by the assessed value of its property, we find that it amounts to .0346 of a cent upon the dollar. It is not possible to represent this decimal by a vulgar fraction of absolutely equal value, but is the 1-29th part of one cent on the dollar is within the slightest shade of being its equivalent. That the rate upon the dollar thus struck is a substantially correct admit of neither doubt nor cavil, for by multiplying the assessed value of the property of the township by the decimal .0346 of a cent on the dollar, it realizes exactly $600.13. For practical purposes, however, three points of decimals will serve us, and be more convenient for calculation. I shall therefore take .035 of a cent on the dollar as the basis of our calculation. It will realize just $7 more than the sum required. Now, every man who can multiply decimal fractions, and every advanced school-boy, when he knows the amount for which he is assessed, can calculate for himself how much this railway tax would cost him, simply by multiplying his assessment by .035.

On the collector's roll it would stand thus:—

Table with 2 columns: Total value of Real and Personal property, and Railway tax. Values range from $1,000 to $5,000.

From the above statement, the correctness of which I think cannot be disputed, it will appear very evident to the ratepayers that they would not feel the pressure upon their pockets so heavily as your correspondent, in his ignorance, I presume, would lead you to believe; and that the bonus of $7,500 to the railway would be but a very small matter to them. The length to which I have extended this communication prevents me from referring to the advantages that this railway would confer, but I think it could be clearly shown that, both at the present time and prospectively, it would contribute much to the convenience and advantage of all the farming community residing at a reasonable distance from this village.

Your correspondent, I think, might have forborne the sneer about Bayfield "accepting the situation" and "contenting itself with being merely a fishing village," for he should know that it is only the characteristic of a very low cast of mind to add insult to injury.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—On Monday evening 18th Mr. Wm. Doupe, of the 4th Line, Blanshard, was returning home in company with his wife from the tea meeting at Cooper's Church on the Base Line, the shaft became detached from the buggy wheel, about forty rods from home. Mr. Doupe pulled the animal toward the fence in order to stop him. The sudden movement threw them both out on the road. Mrs. Doupe's temple struck on the hard road, and she was killed instantly. Mr. Doupe was badly hurt. The deceased lady was a very large person, weighing over 200 pounds, and this fact no doubt caused her to fall so heavily that death ensued. She was buried at Kirkton yesterday.

The opening of the Queen's College, at Kingston, under very flattering auspices, was a most successful and satisfactory affair. Queen's College, with its staff of well qualified teachers, has done much for the cause of higher education in this province, and with its greater facilities is now in a position to do very much more. Principal Grant, the leading spirit of the institution, is a sanguine man, full of push and enterprise. Whom first proposed to build a new college, the people of Kingston were inclined to laugh at the idea; but he went resolutely to work and now has the satisfaction of seeing a splendid building as the result of his efforts. He is a man of broad and liberal views, and is surrounded by a staff of professors whose views are as broad and liberal as his own. Kingston may well be proud of her university, for it is an imposing and well appointed institution.

MORTGAGE SALE OF VALUABLE

property in the Township of Colborne, and in the Town of Goderich, in the County of Huron:
Notice is hereby given that the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage to the vendors, which will be produced at the time of sale, and in payment of which debt has been made, there will be sold by public auction at Currie's Auction Mart, in the town of Goderich, on THURSDAY, THE FOURTH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1880, at 1:30 p.m., by J. C. Currie, the following valuable property, to-wit: A parcel of land, situate in the Township of Colborne, in the County of Huron, containing one hundred acres, more or less. This farm is advantageously situated on the Northern Gravel Road, about six miles from the Town of Goderich, soil sandy and rich, and well watered. About fifteen acres are cleared, and the balance timbered with hemlock, beech and maple. A creek runs through the lot. The buildings are said to consist of a log house and a log barn.
Secondly—Letting number eight hundred and ninety-eight in the said town of Goderich, in the County of Huron, excepting therefrom six hundred square feet heretofore conveyed to one Gavin Hamilton. This is a conveniently situated within a short distance of the market square. The buildings are said to consist of a two-story brick dwelling, with mansard roof, and a wooden stable and driving shaft. The house is said to be in good repair, brick partitions said to be built from the foundation, seven foot cellar under the whole house, divided the same as ground floor. Twenty rooms in house, exclusive of closets and halls. This lot will be sold subject to a mortgage dated July 4th, A. D. 1878, made by James Agnes Savage, wife of William M. Savage, and the said William M. Savage to Margaret Sprague, the wife of Thomas Sprague, Jane Watson, the wife of Edward C. Watson, and Howard Savage, to secure the sum of $500 without interest. Terms and conditions of sale—The property will be sold in one parcel, subject to a reserve bid to be in the hands of the auctioneer at the time of sale. The purchaser shall at the time of sale pay to the vendors, their solicitors or agents ten per cent of the purchase money and of the balance $3,000 shall remain upon mortgage for a term of five years with interest at six per cent, and interest on arrears. The said mortgage to contain all the usual covenants, provisions and conditions in the form of mortgage taken by the vendors to secure loans, and covenant for insurance in the North British and Mercantile Insurance Company, to the full insurable value of the building. The balance of the said purchase money, over and above the said ten per cent thereof and the said $3,000, shall be paid to the vendors, their solicitors or agents within thirty days from day of sale, with interest at eight per cent from said date. Upon making the above payments, and executing the said mortgage, the purchaser shall be entitled to his conveyance, and to take possession. The vendors shall not be bound to account for or produce or show or prove the contents of any deeds, documents or evidences of title not in their possession, or furnish copies of the same, and shall not be bound to furnish an abstract containing any further particulars than are contained in a Registrar's abstract of title. The other conditions of sale to be similar to the standing conditions of sale of the Court of Chancery.
For further particulars apply to the undersigned in Toronto, or to RICHARD RADCLIFFE, at Goderich.

ROBIN ADAIR.

Who that has ever heard or sung the plaintive air of "Robin Adair" will not be interested in learning the true story of the hero of the song? The hero of Robin Adair was well known to the London fashionable circles of the last century by the sobriquet of the "Fortunate Irishman," but his parentage and the exact place of his birth are unknown. He was brought up a surgeon, but "detraction in an early amour drove him precipitately from Dublin" to push his fortune in England. Scarcely had he crossed the Channel when the chain of the lucky events that ultimately led him to fame and fortune commenced. Near Holyhead, perceiving a carriage overturned, he ran to render assistance. The sole occupant of this vehicle was a "lady of fashion, well known in polite circles," who received Adair's attentions with thanks; and being slightly hurt, and hearing he was a surgeon, requested him to travel with her in her carriage to London. On arriving in the metropolis she presented him with a fee of a hundred guineas, and gave him a general invitation to her house. In after life Adair used to say that it was not so much the amount of his fee, but the time it was given him, that was of service to him, as he was then most destitute. But this invitation to her house was still greater service, for there he met the person who decided his fate in life. This was Lady Caroline Keppel, daughter of the second Earl of Albemarle and of Lady Ann Lennox, daughter of the first Duke of Richmond. Forgetting her high lineage, Caroline, at the first sight of the Irish surgeon, fell desperately in love with him, and her emotions were so sudden and so violent as to attract the general attention of the company. Adair, perceiving his advantage, lost no time in pursuing it, while the Albemarle and Richmond families were dismayed at the prospect of such a terrible mesalliance. Every means were tried to induce the young lady to alter her mind but without effect. Adair's biographer tells us that "amusements, a long journey, an advantageous offer, and other common modes of shaking off what was considered by the family as an improper match, were already tried, but in vain; the health of Lady Caroline was evidently impaired, and the family at last confessed, with a good sense that reflects honor on their understanding as well as their hearts, that it was possible to prevent, but never to dissolve an attachment; and that marriage was the honorable, and indeed only alternative that could secure her happiness in life." When Lady Caroline was taken by her friends from London to Bath, that she might be separated from her lover, she wrote, it is said, the song of "Robin Adair" and set it to a plaintive tune that she had heard him sing. Whether written by Lady Caroline or not, the song is simply expressive of her feelings at the time, as it completely corroborates the circumstances just related, which were the town talk of that period, though now little more than family tradition, there can be no doubt they were the origin of the song.

THE ART OF PUBLIC SPEAKING.

From The Whitehall Review. "You ask me," said Dr. Parker, "to define the essentials of oratory. That would not be easy. In my opinion, for a preacher or speaker to produce the proper effect it is necessary that his voice harmonize with the building in which he is speaking. Acoustics have generally been subordinated to aesthetic considerations by modern architects. For instance, before I came to London I had a magnificent Gothic church in Manchester, and Dr. Norman Macleod came there to preach for me. Before he went into the pulpit I warned him to begin softly and in conversational tone, so as to feel the acoustic quality of the building. 'But,' he rejoined, 'if I speak as I shall never be heard in this vast church.' 'If you neglect my advice,' I replied, 'you won't. That is certain.' Well, he began as I had instructed him, the result being that he was heard perfectly. 'You are opposed to Gothic buildings, then, for church purposes?' 'For preaching, yes. I admire Mr. Newman Hall's group of buildings at Lambeth immensely. They are an architectural ornament to the south side of London. But, when I preached there on the occasion of the opening, I was heard but imperfectly, whereas in the City Temple I need never exert my lungs. If I speak in a whisper I am heard in every corner of that large building. 'Perhaps that is because you preach and do not read?' 'Undoubtedly the prime essential of all oratory, whether of the pulpit, or the platform, is that it should be spontaneous and not a mere prelection. I am so convinced of the necessity of this principle that although before I enter the pulpit I work up my subject laboriously, I never allow myself to think of the precise language in which my thoughts will be clothed. I trust entirely to the inspiration of the moment, and I but rarely find myself at a loss for a word. 'Then you do not admire the preachers of the Church?'

"On the contrary, I maintain that no preachers of any communion have equalled or excelled those of the Church of England. The characteristics of the Church preaching is its deep devotion, a quality I esteem far more highly than any other in a preacher. 'Bishop Wilberforce, I suppose, one might quote as a perfect exemplar of Anglican oratory?' 'He was indeed grand—an orator without a rival. 'And Mr. Gladstone?' 'He is a charming speaker. He flows like a smooth current, and carries one easily with him. I value Mr. Gladstone as the first of living orators. 'Superior to Mr. Bright?' 'It is perhaps unfair to contrast the sparkling stream with the deep, full river. My admiration for John Bright knows no bounds. 'You have had Dean Stanley at the City Temple; was he acceptable to your people?' 'He was assuredly most acceptable to me. He speaks in rather a low tone and occasionally hesitates for a word, but what he has to say is well worth listening to, and I have been more than once astonished at the adroit way in which he has extricated himself from a rhetorical tangle by selecting the very word he required. 'One word more, Dr. Parker, before I leave. I have been told by speakers and preachers that such interruptions as coughing, walking about and other noises are fatal to oratory. Do you entertain that opinion?' 'I am not affected by anything of the kind. In fact, I am rather of the opinion of the California miner. You know the story?' 'No. 'There was a theatrical performance in San Francisco; a baby in the gallery began to scream so loudly that the actors were quite thrown out, and the manager, to drown the child's cries, bade the orchestra strike up a loud tune, whereupon a miner, who had just come in, shouted out, 'Here! I say, stop them darned fiddles. I haven't heard a baby's voice for seven years!'

Too LATE.—What sad words! Too late to ask pardon for unkind speeches or ungenerous actions. Too late to offer the helping hand to bear the weary burden, or offer words of kindness to cheer the sad heart, to make amends for wrongs done, whether intentionally or not. When the clay covers from our sight the form and face so dear, how many things we regret. We remember words that were spoken, as we thought kindly, chat, had we been able to foresee the future, would have been uttered very differently. How many a jest would have been unexpressed, how many frowns smoothed away, how many harsh accents made tender. When we look on the work of hands now grown cold forever, or gaze on the garments no more filled out by the loved form, when memory pictures the presence of the dear one in the scenes where they once moved, and recalls the tones we will hear no more in this life, oh, how terrible are those little words: Too late!

Sixty men have been discharged from the Ontario Car Works, London. The trial of Collan and Sullivan for the murder of Lord Mountmorris has been postponed until November. Gladstone has apparently recovered all the vigor of which his severe illness robbed him. He takes long walks daily in the neighborhood of Hawarden Castle, and is said to look remarkably strong and well. The Marquis of Lorne and a numerous suite have been duck shooting in Ontario, and in the two days the fourteen sportsmen bagged 1,142 ducks. The Governor-General showed himself to be not only an adept in the art of extracting merit from "roughing it," but also a crack shot, for his score was 115 ducks, the largest but one.

ANOTHER C. P. R. R. JOB!

The following letter has not been received from Sir John A. Macdonald: Office of the Canadian High Commissioner, LONDON, ENGLAND, September 1, 1880.

The Estate of R. B. SMITH, Goderich.

DEAR SIR,— Having learned from my personal friend, the Hon. Alexander Mackenzie, who has lately passed through your town, that you keep THE LARGEST AND BEST STOCK OF DRY GOODS IN GODERICH, and that you sell very cheap, I wish to make arrangements with you to supply the men working on the C. P. R. R. They will require piles of Shirts and Drawers, also Over-coats, Tweeds, Cloths, Flannel and Cotton Shirtings, Socks, Mitts, Hats, Caps, and a regular supply of nice fresh Groceries. I learn with deep regret that you still have a large number of Reformers in that section of Canada, and as I know they are wonderful people for cheap goods, I fear that even the N. P. won't prevent them from buying you out before my return—but be sure to keep plenty of the above goods for me, and when I get back from Ottawa I will make it all O. K.
