CHAPTER XXXVII.

He fell back in his chair, covering his face with his hands once more, and gradually his great exhaustion conquered thought; his eyes closed, his aching limbs stretched themselves out to rest, and a heavy sleep—the sleep of intense fatigue—fell upon him.

The night wore on; the dawn came, and the sun rose high in the heavens, but the sleep—heavy, dreamless sleep, like that obtained by a narcotic—still held him in its stupor. When he awoke, his eyes, opening slowly and blindly, fell on Oswald's anxious face, as he stood beside him holding a letter.

"Sturt how is it with you?" he said, bending over him; and bewildered still, Guy held out his hand for the letter.

"Is it for me?" he asked slowly, for his eyelids seemed weighted with lead, and the words were difficult to utter.

"Yes; but, Guy, old fellow, dear old fellow, how can I tell you?" Oswald said, in a tone of intense distress.

"Tell me what, Shirley?"

The words came brokenly, hoarsely; he had started up from his chair but he could hardly stand in his weakness and giddiness.

"This note is from her," Oswald said unsteadily. "Guy, try to bear it, old fellow; it was perhaps for the best."

"The note. Give it to me."

He opened it with unsteady, trembling hands, and looked at it with eager, sightless eyes.

"Read it to me," he said to Oswald in a hoarse, strained voice; and Oswald's own eyes were dim as he read the few words Shirley had traced before she left the friends whom she loved and trusted and went out into the world alone.

"I am going away, Guy, because I love you, and because it is best for us both. Some day, perhaps, Heaven will be merciful and let us meet again; but, if you can, forget me, and forgive me all the misery I have brought into your life. Do not seek me, dear; it will be useless. I could not bring shame into your life. If this pains you, my darling, remember that I did it in love. Heaven forever bless you, Guy!"

A moment's dead silence followed the perusal of the letter; then Guy put out his burning, trembling hand. "I do not understand," he said, in a strained, broken voice. "Is she gone?"

"Yes; she went in the night—"

12 Tumors Removed Without An Operation

Dear Mrs. Currah—I am enjoying better health than I have for eight years, and I think I am entirely cured. I have none of the old symptoms. I am very grateful for my present health, and think Orange Lily is the greatest treatment for women the world knows. The use of my case caused 12 tumors to be removed. Some were as large as a hen's egg, and others smaller, down to the size of a walnut. You may use my case in your advertisement, for it is the solid truth, and you cannot describe all the good it has done for me. Mrs. Louisa A. Bole.

This letter gives an indication of the positive benefits that always follow the use of Orange Lily. It is an applied treatment and comes in direct contact with the suffering organs. It produces results from within, including painful periods, falling of the womb, irregularities, leucorrhoea, etc. 10 days' treatment absolutely free to any suffering woman who has not yet tried it if she will send me her address, stamps and address Mrs. FRANCES E. CURRAH, Windsor, Ont.

alone. Old fellow, dear old fellow, what are you going to do?"

"I am going"—Guy was staggering toward the door as he spoke—there was a pause between each slow word—"going—to my darling. Oswald—do you think—she has—gone away alone? I—saw—"

His voice died away, a great darkness fell upon his sight; he stretched out his hands with a blind groping movement terrible to see, and stood swaying for a moment to and fro; then, before Oswald could interpose, he fell forward senseless at his feet.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

A dingy little room on the first floor of a dingy house in a dingy part of London—a house standing in a faded street with two irregular rows of tall dark-looking houses, which even the summer sunshine, a sickly sunshine here, could not cheer or brighten.

Judging from the appearance and size of the houses, a passerby would have considered that they had been at one time tenanted by persons in a different and better position in life than that of their present occupants; but that, in their falling fortunes, they had been let out in offices and floors to different lodgers, for most of the doors were several plates and bell-handles, with names of the various tenants.

It was not a disreputable street by any means; on the contrary, it was respectable and steady, and in its immediate neighborhood of some superior squares and terraces; but it was also in the vicinity of some inferior ones; and it was plain that the inhabitants of these latter were more frequently in the dingy debating ground than the inhabitants of the former, for the people to be met there were mostly shabby business people.

It is never wise to judge by appearances, and perhaps in London especially; dinginess and dirty windows and grimy, carpetless stairs are sometimes better vouchers for respectability, than brand-new offices and plate-glass and mirrors. At any rate, the governess agency, whose office was in a dingy room of the dingy house at the corner of the street, was a respectable and trustworthy place enough—more respectable perhaps than many of such establishments.

It was reached though a dirty carpetless passage and up a bare, grimy staircase, and it was itself a dingy, floor-clothed room containing a high desk table in the centre, and two or three chairs, while a door on the left opened into another room, rather less comfortable, where clients could interview ladies whom they had any thought of engaging.

Dingy as the rooms were, the summer sunshine found its way even here; it streamed through the dirty panes of glass, falling in a bright stream of light on the faded and soiled coverings of the floor, on the piles of letters and papers scattered on the desk-table, on the grave but unkindly-looking woman who sat before it and received the applicants and on two of the latter—one a quiet lady-like girl, neatly dressed, the other a showy, handsome damsel who stood on this hot July day waiting for her audience, while the former was having hers with the grave-faced woman, who, letter in hand was giving her the address of some situation likely to suit her.

"I have already answered several," the girl was saying rather wearily; "and people are always either suited or want more accomplishments than I am possessed of."

"Yes," said the kindly voice from the other side of the desk, "people are unreasonable in asking for so many accomplishments from one person; but your great drawback, Miss Johnson, is your not being a proficient musician."

"I know," the girl replied sadly; "but I have no chance of becoming that, Miss Milton."

"Well, they do not want music," said Miss Milton, smiling, "so hope you will be successful. Let me know at once, if you please."

"I will, certainly. Thank you very much."

The girl tripped away, looking much brighter, and with a light step went down the grimy staircase. Halfway she met another applicant coming up, a slender girl in black, who went rather heavily on the balance, and who had pushed away her sassy crape veil from her white, thin face, out of which her eyes seemed to shine with a feverish lustre. They passed each other in silence, and while the one went out into the sunshine, the other went on and knocked timidly at the door on which "Governess Agency—Miss Milton" was painted in white letters on a dark brown ground.

"Come in," Miss Milton said from within; and a slight shadow fell over her face as she saw the slender drooping figure that entered the room with a deprecating look in the sweet sad eyes which went to Miss Milton's heart, familiar as she was with pain and disappointment and sorrow in the poor ladies who sought her aid.

The smartly-dressed young lady was expressing her opinions and requirements in a decided and peremptory tone. There was no need for her to "go out," she said; but she wanted to see something of the world and would like to accompany a family travelling abroad. Her list of requirements was a long one, and varied, for her "pa" had given her the very best education to be had for money. Miss Milton thought that it was a pity she could not have also acquired some refinement, and a manner which would have made her a suitable companion for girls who would be women and honest men's wives, perhaps, some day.

"I have nothing, I think, likely to suit you to-day," said Miss Milton quietly. "If you will leave me your address, I will write to you; and meanwhile, if you are in this neighborhood, you might call again."

"Oh, very well; there is no immediate hurry!" responded the young lady, sweeping away in her pink gingham dress and lace-trimmed hat, and then the slender girl in black came forward and stood by the desk.

The pitying glance deepened in Miss Milton's eyes as she looked up at the little eager, pale face with the pitiful, tremulous smile flickering on the white lips.

"You have not been successful?" Miss Milton said, kindly.

"No."

"Did you see the lady—Mrs. Spears was it not?"

"Yes, but—"

"You did not suit her?"

"It was not that," the sweet unsteady voice answered, "but—"

"You are tired. You have walked all this way in the sun," said Miss Milton gently. "Sit down and rest a little, and you will tell me then."

"I am not tired," the girl answered, conquering the agitation which was so visible in her shaking hands and quivering lips. "But she asked me so many questions—and then she would not engage me." Her head sank forward upon her breast, and a burning flush of shame rose in her pale face, coloring it from chin to brow with a crimson glow.

"Why not?"

"Because I could not give her any references."

"Ah, I thought so!" Miss Milton said with a sigh. "But what is to be done, Mrs. Grant? You yourself, in her place, would have done the same thing. It is impossible, you know, to take a person into one's house, especially for such an important post without knowing something of their antecedents."

"But I told her," Mrs. Grant answered simply, "that there were reasons why I could not refer her to my friends, and that she might trust me; and—she only laughed."

There was a minute's pause then; the hot red glow was fading out of the sweet, pale face, and she leaned wearily against the desk, looking at Miss Milton with very wistful eyes.

"I am afraid," the latter said, with a little reluctance, "that, unless you can give a reference, you will find it very difficult to obtain a situation. Mrs. Grant—in fact, I may say, it will be impossible. And it is not to be wondered at. Ladies cannot be too particular," she added a little tiffily, "in their choice of a governess."

"But I told her as I told the other lady whose address you gave me, that I would try so hard to please her," was the earnest answer. "I am sure the would not have regretted taking me. I would have been so kind to the children, and so persevering, and—oh, she might have trusted me!"

"I do not see how you could have expected her to do so. It is such a suspicious circumstance, your having no references, Mrs. Grant. You must excuse my speaking so frankly; it is for your own sake. Is it quite impossible for you to write to any of your friends?"

SUFFERED AWFUL PAINS

For Sixteen Years. Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Moretown, Vermont.—"I was troubled with pains and irregularities for sixteen years, and was thin, weak and nervous. When I would lie down it would seem as if I was going right down out of sight into some dark hole, and the window curtains had faces that would peek out at me, and when I was out of doors it would seem as if something was going to happen. My blood was poor, my circulation was so bad I would be like a dead person at times. I had female weakness badly, my abdomen was sore and I had awful pains."

"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used the Sarsaparilla Wash and they certainly did wonders for me. My troubles disappeared and I am able to work hard every day."—Mrs. W. F. SAWYER, River View Farm, Moretown, Vermont.

Another Case. Gifford, Iowa.—"I was troubled with female weakness, also with displacement. I had very severe and steady headache, also pain in back and was very thin and tired all the time. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am cured of these troubles. I cannot praise your medicine too highly."—Mrs. I. A. MILLER, Gifford, Iowa.

Public Utility Earnings.

A practical demonstration of the fact that the earnings of public utility or Public Service Corporations such as telegraph and telephone companies are not affected by depressions in trade, was evidenced in the great panic of 1907 and depression the following year. While, on all sides, the earnings of railways and industrial companies showed a marked falling off, the Nova Scotia Telephone Company, now owned by the Maritime Telephone Company, showed an increase of $16,000.

This is one of the reasons why we are recommending an investment in Maritime Telegraph & Telephone Company 6 p.c. Preferred Stock. It shows stability of earnings, the best kind of assurance that dividends will be paid regularly.

The par value of the Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Company Preferred Stock is $18. We offer a block in lots to suit purchasers. Prices and other particulars will be gladly furnished upon request.

I Don't Feel Like It.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"I'm not in the mood for that work," etc., etc., when the worker who must would simply go ahead and get the thing done.

Of course there are times when we feel in just the right mood and can do better work than at other times, but the more we pamper ourselves, the more we give in to these moods the oftener they come. Man is naturally lazy. To be sure, almost anyone will work at the thing he feels like doing at the moment he feels like doing it; but the capability for patient perseverance, unremitting effort is a developed and not a natural quality in the human animal.

Do not think I fail to appreciate that there are times when one gets the best results by giving up a piece of work over which one has grown stale and nervous, working on something else for a while, or if possible, going out for a breath of fresh air, and then coming back with recreated energy for the difficult task. I most emphatically appreciate that fact, and I think there are many people who would accomplish more with less use of energy if they knew when to let up on themselves. But, on the other hand, I think there are a great many who are too easy on themselves, who think "I don't feel like it" is equivalent to "I can't." "All that ought to be done can be done" is the motto they need.

Of course, I don't know which class you belong to, reader friend. That's for you to decide. Here's hoping the over-energetic people won't take the suggestion that's meant for the opposite class, and vice-versa.

How many times the worker who has no absolute compulsion behind him says "I can't," "I don't feel like it."

Passenger Train Crashes Into Caboose of Freight—Conductor, Brakeman and Flagman Killed.

Pittsburg, Jan. 29.—A Pennsylvania passenger train from New York to Pittsburg, was wrecked near Conango, Pa., to-day, when it ran into a freight train going west. Three members of the crew were killed. The passenger train was running at a high rate of speed when, as it rounded a curve, the engineer saw the lights of the freight directly in front. He applied the emergency brakes, but the heavy engine crashed into the caboose killing A. L. Richie, conductor, of Youngwood, Pa.; A. Leyheiter, brakeman, of Youngwood, Pa., and H. C. Pell, flagman, Altoona, Pa., and injuring H. W. Dodd, brakeman, Youngwood, Pa.

The engine and the mail car on the passenger train were derailed, blocking three tracks. Passengers were tossed about by the force of the collision, but none was seriously hurt. A heavy fog hung over the valley and the engineer of the passenger train was unable to see the signals of the automatic block system with which the division is equipped.

Cleanses Your Hair Makes It Beautiful

It becomes thick, wavy, lustrous and all dandruff disappears—Hair stops coming out.

Surely, try a "Danderine Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them, its exfoliating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25 cent bottle of Kawilton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as Edmonton, Alta., Feb. 2.—John Gentile, of this city, tried to chase what he thought was a dog out of a chicken coop in his back yard yesterday and because the animal refused he is better off by $5,000 as it proved the finest female specimen of genuine black fox taken this year, according to fox experts having for eastern fairs here. Forty minutes after capturing it he was offered $5,000 but is holding for $7,000.

presented the Liberal vote. He said four years from now it would be different in the northern districts, as he knew of a number of men who were falling away from the Union.

Mr. Coaker—Men who were expelled from the Union and who did not vote for Union candidates. It is laid down in the Constitution plain, openly and above board, to every man before he joins the Union that he must support it, and no one is dragged into it by the throat. He said the Premier conveniently omitted to tell of the thousands of fishermen who did not vote at all on election day because they were engaged on the Reid Co's. railways, and of the many influenced by employment on various works in the public service. This was particularly applicable to Bay de Verde district.

Mr. Moulton—He said that the members on the Government side were called rogues, robbers, grafters and everything that was bad by the Advocate. The members on the opposition side were very suspicious. He did not mean those on the front row, but those on the back row, except Mr. Stone. He did not object to the Fishermen's Union as a union, but as a political machine. He had got nothing out of politics, but he had lost $150,000 by being a politician.

Mr. Jennings rose to defend himself in connection with the disparagement hurled at all the Union candidates by the previous speaker. He had never made a remark to reflect upon the personal character of any man in the House since the session opened. What he had said was wholly on the policy of the Government.

Mr. Coaker—The hon. member for Burgeo reiterated the insinuations that he made yesterday and throws insults at every member who sits on the back row of the Opposition. He (Mr. M.) had stated that he was not getting any money out of the Government, but would that hon. member tell us how much he is drawing and will draw out of the chest in connection with railway arbitrations in Fortme Bay? As to the strength of the north, he invited the Premier to try it by sending two men to Bonavista to fill the offices of Messrs. Morison and Blandford. He was ready to resign.

As it was 6.30 the House adjourned and met again at 8 o'clock, when Mr. Coaker continued his argument on the strength and influence of the P. F. U. throughout the session.

Mr. Higgins took up the milk question and put himself forward as champion of farmers and other milk vendors. He had been pained by attacks made on him by the Advocate and did not think Mr. Coaker was the only victim. He had nothing against the P. F. U. He had been patted on the back by his election for St. John's East, and as Mr. Coaker had offered to resign from Bonavista to meet Messrs. Morison or Blandford there again, he extended the lists by offering to resign to meet him in St. John's East.

Mr. Thorsor was the next speaker, and said he had not reflected upon any member of the Government side as referred to by Mr. Moulton. He gave humorous instances of some of the lavish expenditures of the Government and made many witty hits. The Government appeared to be very pure. It refused to admit it had a beam in its eye. But it did not mind having a spar in its eye. He chaffed Mr. Higgins on his affected love for the P. F. U. and his speech was keenly relished.

Mr. Targett repudiated the obloquy which had been hurled at Union men since the House opened. If they were suspicious of the Government, they had good ground to be so, and he instanced some extravagance and waste that he had come across in Trinity Bay.

Mr. Stone declared the Union would not stand the abuse that had been hurled at them by Government members without forceful objection. They were there to criticize and criticize they would. The acts of the Government justified all that more than had been said against them.

Messrs. Abbott, Halyard, the Premier and Grimés were the last speakers before the committee rose. Mr. Abbott defended the formation of the Union and its organization as a political party. The Union was following the footsteps of labor in New Zealand, Australia and England. Mr. Abbott delivered a polished speech with commendable literary finish and furnished a surprise to all present in the House. With perseverance and practice he will go far in oratory.

The report of the C.M.E. for 1913 was tabled by the Colonial Secretary. Notice of a bill to regulate the season when wild fruit may be gathered in the country was given by the Premier.

Several members of the Opposition gave notice of a question after which the House adjourned until Monday afternoon.

The Conquest of the Air.

By BEATRICE M. CHANCEY. One of the conquests of German invention, is air-flying over land and sea; it is in the minds of the young generation. We wonder what future will be his conquest of air has all been so sudden. That since eight short years have been past, the most paths through the air to man have been opened. Whose aerial changes are vast. We were not all seen a bubble suspending. And watched when impelled by the air, each one immediately changing itself, assuming the shape of a sphere, and the different balloons of the nations. It matters not how large or small, they float along as a tiny soap bubble, impressing great wonder on all. Balloons and bubbles have no motor power. Not so with the air-ships to-day, as they float up by the mighty air currents. Unstopped, on all sides, on their way, powerful air-ships while up in those currents, Retain through the air their same shape, and passengers in them, pleasantly seated. From the winds and the storms escape. The motors are working—petrol is burning. But when its supply ends, they stop; when wool to their air-vessels, passengers, motors. They suddenly somewhere they drop, in descending they make a grand landing. Fortune favours—then things are well. Over the ocean, desert, or moorland, Sadness, unrevealed, we foretell. In the ambition of modern inventors, To carry mails through the air; when air-ships are fast, reliable, steady. The steamships may not need repair. Sink once again of the Marconi system. By contact with air-waves, at sea we lives have been rescued, hearts have been gladdened. Through wireless telegraphy, the system is established. Over the nation, Aeronaut's day is but young; in the near future, through modern warfare, We see many air-ships among. It is asserted that France has six hundred. While Germany has hundreds, four, five, six, Mother Country! thy subjects desire. That England should have many more. Watering Road, St. John's, Nfld.

C.C.C. Armoury.

Two very exciting games of field hockey took place at the C. C. C. Armoury last night and were witnessed by a large gathering of enthusiasts. In the first game the team led by J. Donnelly defeated that captained by W. Clancey by a score of 4 to 3. In the second, J. Walsh won from C. Jardine by 5 to 1. As the stores will be open to-night, no games will be played.

BUT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS ALWAYS CURE IT.
Dresden Man, Who Inherited Trouble, Finds Speedy Relief and Permanent Cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills.
Dresden, Ont., Feb. 5. (Special).—Whether kidney disease is hereditary or not is a matter of opinion. Mr. Samuel Burkett, a well known resident of this place, is convinced that he inherited his from his parents. He knows that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured it. "I inherited my kidney disease from my parents," Mr. Burkett states. "I was treated by a doctor, and tried various medicines, but it was not till about eighteen months ago when I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills that I got any permanent relief. "Since then I have not felt any effect of my old trouble, and I feel that anybody troubled with kidney disease will be benefited by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills if they follow directions closely. "I hope that others may be helped by Dodd's Kidney Pills. I am well known here, and anybody who wishes more particulars of my cure can have them by writing me and enclosing stamps for reply." Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to cure any form of kidney disease.

The Babes in the Wood.

Last night there was another crowded house at Rossley's, and every one heartily enjoyed the Pantomime. The two little St. John's girls came in for an ovation, while storms of applause were given the babes. How ever Mrs. Rossley accomplishes such wonderful work with our children, no one can understand. Those children in their performance look and act like real performers. There is nothing of the amateur about them. The Babes in the Wood is the best Pantomime yet. But that's what the public say each week, the best yet. The Rossleys have had many requests to produce "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" again. As the store people did not see it, everyone knows the Rossleys are original enough not to have to repeat anything again and when they say by special request it is really and truly a special request. This pantomime, "Snow White," was of course the best. A beautiful story beautifully portrayed. The Rossleys will give a damage at the close of their pantomime season, which will be conducted on high class principles, with the best music, and will be the event of the season.

An Operation For Appendicitis

Almost anyone who has suffered from appendicitis will assure you that this trouble developed only after months or years of derangements of the liver and bowels. Appendicitis can almost invariably be prevented, and very frequently cured, by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. In the case described in this letter, the doctors had ordered an operation, but a thorough cure was brought about by this great medicine. Mrs. J. A. Ballantine, Starbuck Falls, Ont., writes: "My husband was treated for appendicitis, and the doctors ordered an operation. But he would not consent to an operation and began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since doing so he has had no need of an operation, or even of a doctor, as the trouble has completely left him. I cannot say words to speak our gratitude for his cure." STOP COUGHING.

It's quite as foolish as it is annoying to keep on coughing since PHORATONE COUGH MIXTURE is sold all over Newfoundland and is guaranteed to soothe and heal the irritated parts at once, and to rapidly destroy the very cause of this aggravating nuisance. Hundreds of persons are complaining every day about the cough or cold they have had for a long time, and are not able to get rid of it. Don't let a cough or cold hang on you day after day and run the risk of catching and developing the "cough" that is not easy to throw off. You will avoid all this worry (about the cough or cold you have) by obtaining PHORATONE COUGH MIXTURE at once. Price 25 cents a bottle, postage 5 cents extra. Prepared only by DR. F. MINARD'S LINIMENT RELIEVES

"This life is full of shocks," said Pa. "A friend proves false you thought was true. And every day or two there are a lot of things that trouble you. The stock you buy proves worthless stuff. And disappointments line your brow. A promise fair turns out a bluff. And mother wants a slit skirt now. "The sure thing that you bet upon runs next to last, and so it goes; You find your trusted clerk had gone With all your coin, where no one knows. From cloudless skies come thunder bolts. And out of peace springs up a row; This life is surely full of jells. Your mother wants a slit skirt now. "In life there's no security. The calmest, gentlest summer sea May suddenly be tempest rolled. A merry song, the robin sings. Then suddenly departs the bough; Strange changes every minute brings. Your mother wants a slit skirt now. "We've lived together twenty years. And hand in hand we've trod life's lane; We've shared each other's smiles and tears. And shared our pleasure and our pain. And here there comes the deepest cut To which I've ever had to bow; I would have bet she wouldn't but Your mother wants a slit skirt now!"

At the City Hall.

Mayor Ellis presided at yesterday's meeting of the Municipal Council. Councillor Mullaly's resolutions dealing with theatrical taxes, and that of Councillor Ryan re increase of salaries, were deferred. The theatrical managers of the city petitioned that the Council make enquiries as to the method of taxation in other cities, and compare local conditions before changing the present system. The petition was tabled. W. J. O'Neill, 149, New Gower St., applied for position as collector. No position vacant. The matter of imposing a tax on bowling alleys, was discussed and was deferred for another week. Morison & Hunt wrote re Sutton's estate. The Council has appointed an arbitrator. The usual pay rolls were passed, after which the meeting adjourned at 4.45 p.m.

The publisher of the best Farmer's paper in the Maritime Provinces in writing to us states: "I would say that I do not know of a medicine that has stood the test of time like MINARD'S LINIMENT. It has been an unfailing remedy in our household ever since I can remember, and has outlived dozens of would-be competitors and imitators."

Enquiry Into Water System.

Engineer Ryan has received instructions from the Council to make a full report of all the pipes taken up and relaid in the city during their term of office, and also to make a statement of all defective pipe in the system, with a view to estimating the cost of replacing the same. A special meeting will take place on Monday next, when the report will be submitted and discussed.

Mid.'s Success in Big Poultry Exhibition.

Mr. Walter Reid, the well-known head-dresser of Water Street, is receiving congratulations from his many friends on the excellent showing which he has made in the exhibition of the Fanciers' Association of Indiana, which took place very recently in Indianapolis. The Exhibition is one of the most important held in the United States, and the judges are eminently qualified men, whose names are familiar to fanciers all over the States. Mr. Reid sent some poultry to the exhibition from this city, and yesterday received a message from the President, Mr. U. R. Fishel, that he had been successful in winning the following prizes: Third prize for Cocker, first prize for Hen, first and fifth prizes for Cockerels, fifth prize for Pullet, also three silver cups for best shaped male, best shaped female and best colored specimen. This is a very excellent showing and it amply repays Mr. Reid for the trouble taken by him in shipping the birds such a long distance. It may be added that Mr. Reid is an executive member of the local Poultry Association and has been a prominent exhibitor in the local exhibitions.

Medical Reform.

More and more the learned physicians turn away from dope and drugs, turn away from old positions, from the bottles, flasks and jugs. When I used to have consultations, measles, mumps or other ills, Doc would hand me out prescriptions calling for a peck of pills. He would straightway send me bedward, with a trained nurse stern and dour, saying to the latter, "Edward, give him dope eight times an hour." All my bedroom was a litter of old bottles, goblets, spoons, and I swallowed powders bitter till I felt like last year's prunes. It was not till I revolted that I rallied from my ills, not until I up and bolted and went hiding in the hills. Now the doc writes "no prescription when I've left my health behind, naught in Latin or Egyptian for the druggist to unwind. "You must live," the doc says, "gently, if you'd keep away from grief; men of careless habits vainly look to druggists for relief. Eat good grub and eat it slowly, go to bed at 10 o'clock, sidestep all the drinks wholly, every morning take a walk." Then he soaks me for an eagle, and I sigh, "no flat! Me the sawbones can't inveigle into such a scheme as that!"

The event of the season was the masquerade carnival at the open-air rink last night. The management was particular in reserving the ice for two days, so as to secure a good sheet of ice, and the masqueraders were particular not to let their friends know what costumes they were wearing. At 8 o'clock the British Band proceeded to the Rink by way of Water Street, playing suitable airs en route. The masqueraders took the ice at 8 o'clock, about 80 in number, and it was a very pleasing sight, and it was witnessed by nearly 1,000 spectators. Some very pretty costumes were to be seen, including angels, fairies, sailors, riding hoods, etc. Nick Carter and Marley's Ghost caused much merriment. We were pleased to see some of our friends from Carbonar among the participants. The British Band, through its leader, Mr. L. Whitman, kindly volunteered its services, for which the management and the public generally are truly thankful. Mr. James Garland with his fine accordion kept things lively during the evening. It was rather unfortunate that snow shower took place shortly after the opening hour which caused a little discomfort, but not enough to stop the pleasure of the masqueraders or spectators. I will send you the list of names with representations for my next notes.

Mrs. Sam'l Taylor arrived from the General Hospital, St. John's, by train yesterday, and is very much improved in health. She speaks highly of the kind treatment given her by the doctors and nurses at the institution.

On Saturday last when the Bell Island boat arrived, we learned the sad news of the death of Mr. McKenzie. We jotted down the following lines. Perhaps you will think them worth giving your readers:—

Have you heard of the awful accident that happened at Bell Island to-day? When Assistant Manager McKenzie was suddenly called away.

Each day for the past twelve years or so. Over this same road he went. But to-day he was struck by a car going down. And his soul to its God was sent.

"He was one of the best men working here." Is what the labourers say. And his pleasant smile and "good morning, sir." Will be missed for many a day.

John McKenzie was held in much esteem by his wife and family dear. And his brethren of the Masons Free Made him Master a few days ago.

Oh, what a shock the news must have been. To his wife and family dear. To know that the one they loved so well. They could never again meet here.

His death cast a gloom over the Iron Isle. The works were at once shut down. Naught else could be talked of all that day. And deep sympathy filled our town.

May God in His Goodness comfort the sad. And help them to bear their grief. With the thought that some day they'll meet again. In the city of the golden street. CORRESPONDENT. Harbour Grace, Feb. 5th, 1914.

Cascarets' Relieve Sick, Sour Stomach

Get a 10-cent box now. That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, dizziness and sick headache, means a disordered stomach, which cannot be regulated until you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach's fault. Your stomach is as good as any.

Try Cascarets; they immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended. A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet; liver and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing too.

At this juncture enthusiasm was manifested on all sides. The Vics worked for all they were worth. Parsons, in particular, showed up well and through his efforts Thomas was beaten for the second time. This was followed by prolonged applause. The score was now equal and excitement ran high as to which team would get the next goal. Some individual work was displayed by Stick, Parsons and Morison, the latter made a splendid run until overtaken by Hutchings; the latter was making good progress when tripped by Ford who was sent to the fence for two minutes. Hutchings again took possession, exhibited the finest dash for the night and landed the disc in the meshes much to the delight of Crescent supporters.

Play now became hard and fast, though the Crescents had honours in their favour. The fans were in their element as the game grew so exciting. The Stick brothers committed a breach of hockey etiquette and were sent to the penalty box. Although two men short the Crescents kept up the attack. Hutchings again became prominent and passed all opponents except the goal keeper who managed to clear the puck. The gong then sounded for half time, as the game stood 3 to 2 in favour of the Crescents.

SECOND HALF. On resumption play was a little slow, each side giving and taking. Parsons, Brien and Joy were caught roughing it and were despatched to the penalty box. Morison displayed some clever individual work but nothing resulted. Hutchings and Stick made a pretty run but lost to Morison. The Vics pressed hard but their efforts seemed futile. Eventually a scrimmage occurred near the Crescents goal and the third goal for the Vics was registered. This put a different aspect on the match. The time was getting limited and the next goal was looked upon to decide the winners. Each team displayed good work.

Granulation of the Eyelids. Is Cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment—Scores of Uses for the Great Soothing, Healing Ointment. Most people know Dr. Chase's Ointment best as a cure for eczema and itching piles. Nor is this to be wondered at when you think of the remarkable record made by this class of cures. But there are scores of other uses for this ointment, which are only discovered when it is kept constantly at hand. Mrs. Martin, 13 Carroll street, Toronto, formerly of Bowmanville, Ont., writes: "We have used Dr. Chase's Ointment for years, and found it invaluable in treating skin irritations and all sorts of burns and wounds. In fact, we would not be without it in the house. It is a most excellent treatment for granulated eyelids, from which I suffered without finding anything to help me." Whenever there is itching of the skin or a sore that refuses to heal you can use Dr. Chase's Ointment with full assurance that it will prove entirely satisfactory. 60 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanon, Bates & Co. Limited, Toronto.

Crescents Defeat Victorias In Play Off—A Fast Game—Excitement and Enthusiasm Intense—Largest Attendance of Spectators For the Season—His Excellency Governor Present.

After one of the hardest fought battles ever witnessed at the Prince's Rink the Victorias went down to defeat in last night's hockey match, the first time for the season, the result being Crescents, 4 goals; Victorias, 3.

The attendance of onlookers was unusually large. Crowds gathered around the boards while the galleries were well filled. Prominent among the audience was His Excellency Governor Williams, who, on entering the rink was greeted with the rendition of the National Anthem.

A meeting of the Crescents and Victorias was eagerly looked forward to and anticipations were not in vain as from the time the hockeyists jumped into the arena until the Crescents scored their winning goal there was no let up in excitement and enthusiasm by the supporters of both teams.

He Vics seemed to be the favourites before the game started as the Crescents lost R. Stick, their excellent rover, and this necessitated alterations in their line up, consequently the result was a bit of a surprise even to Crescent admirers.

THE GAME. As soon as the puck was put in motion the Crescents became aggressive while their opponents put up a stubborn defence. Joy had a try for goal and only missed by a narrow margin. The Vics became stirred up and began hostilities. Their forward line got in some combination work but was not very effective as the back division of the Crescents kept the puck clear of the danger zone. Joy tried two more of his long drives but Hunt proved equal to each occasion and saved splendidly. Brien took the rubber in his possession and covered the side of the rink. Through a mix-up near the Crescents goal the puck rebounded from Herder's skates and lodged in the twines, thus making first blood for the Vics.

The Crescents assumed the vim and determination which characterized former hockeyists of that team and before a minute had elapsed M. Stick, in the equalizer. The Crescents continued the attack and Hutchings added the second goal to the credit of his team.

At this juncture enthusiasm was manifested on all sides. The Vics worked for all they were worth. Parsons, in particular, showed up well and through his efforts Thomas was beaten for the second time. This was followed by prolonged applause. The score was now equal and excitement ran high as to which team would get the next goal. Some individual work was displayed by Stick, Parsons and Morison, the latter made a splendid run until overtaken by Hutchings; the latter was making good progress when tripped by Ford who was sent to the fence for two minutes. Hutchings again took possession, exhibited the finest dash for the night and landed the disc in the meshes much to the delight of Crescent supporters.

Play now became hard and fast, though the Crescents had honours in their favour. The fans were in their element as the game grew so exciting. The Stick brothers committed a breach of hockey etiquette and were sent to the penalty box. Although two men short the Crescents kept up the attack. Hutchings again became prominent and passed all opponents except the goal keeper who managed to clear the puck. The gong then sounded for half time, as the game stood 3 to 2 in favour of the Crescents.

SECOND HALF. On resumption play was a little slow, each side giving and taking. Parsons, Brien and Joy were caught roughing it and were despatched to the penalty box. Morison displayed some clever individual work but nothing resulted. Hutchings and Stick made a pretty run but lost to Morison. The Vics pressed hard but their efforts seemed futile. Eventually a scrimmage occurred near the Crescents goal and the third goal for the Vics was registered. This put a different aspect on the match. The time was getting limited and the next goal was looked upon to decide the winners. Each team displayed good work.

Parsons made one of his old-time dashes but was repulsed. Joy and Stick did some excellent shooting but Hunt was as cool as a cucumber and his clever saving elicited much applause. The Vics forward line brought the puck to Crescents territory where Herder received a blow in the abdomen and had to be brought to the dressing room. After being attended by Dr. Fritchard and after a short rest continued the game as it was only a matter of a few minutes when full time was announced with three goals for each team.

In the play off a lively exhibition was served out to the onlookers. After one minute of play Joy captured the puck and shot. Parsons cleared, but Hutchings was on the spot and scored the winning goal for the Crescents. Mr. E. Pinsent was referee. Messrs. W. J. Martin, J. I. Vinnicombe and C. Ellis were timekeepers.

HEARD ON THE FENCE. The game was a hard fought one. The result throws new light on the championship. Count Fieldians, let us see what ye can do. Hunt, the Vics goal keeper, is no "hunt." He saved his team from further defeat.

Parsons was in his old time form. Morison did splendid work. The Stick brothers, as usual, started. Billy Hutchings never played as well before. Joy is certainly an ideal cover point.

When a player gets seriously hurt, such remarks as "He's tired," "he's shamming," is very unparliamentary.

THE CHILDREN.

Poem Found in the Desk of Charles Dickens After His Death. When lessons and tasks are all ended, And the school for the day is dismissed...

And when they are gone I sit, dreaming Of my childhood, too lovely to last; Of love that my heart will remember When it wakes to the pulse of the past...

Seek not a life for the dear ones, All radiant, as others have done; But that life may have just as much shadow...

And the gush of their innocent feet, The group on the green, and the flowers That are brought every mornning to me...

shall miss them at morn and at eve, Their notes in the school and the street; shall miss the low hum of their voices...

above the pines the moon was slowly drifting. The river sang below; The dim Sierras, far beyond, uplifting Their minarets of snow...

Ah, towering pile and stately Ken- tish spire, Ve have 'one tale to tell! Lost is that camp! but let its fragrant story Blend with the breath that thrills With hop-vines' incense all the pen- sive glory...

Verdict in the Edwin Drood Case.

The Jury Compromise on Man- slaughter.—Dukes in Court.—Judge Chesterton's Jokes.—and Snores. An evening of sheer delight! Let us have more of it, and oh! let it be soon!

This was the prevailing verdict on 'The Trial of John Jasper for the Murder of Edwin Drood,' which took place last night at the King's Hall, Covent Garden—devoted as a rule to the purposes of conflicts of another kind—under the auspices of the London branch of the Dickens Fellow- ship, the hon. secretary of which (Mr. Frank S. Johnson) and his colleagues had worked like Trojans (or, better, lovers of the master of English tale- tellers) to secure a notable result.

Notable! It comes nowhere near describing it. Just consider. The trial began at seven o'clock. It did not end till after eleven. The doors were opened at 6.30. For not far short of five hours an audience which packed every inch of the large hall sat and listened while judge and jury thrashed out two mutually exclusive theories of the making away with Edwin Drood. There were dukes and duchesses in the audience; also there were London clerics earning a couple of sovereigns a week, and well nigh all the grades between. Fi- tribute to one of the most democra- tic-minded of authors. Here was a wonder in itself—several thousands of Londoners, largely middle-aged, most of them men, but hundreds wo- men, came to watch the working out of a human story.

Had Dickens Been There? It may be said they only came to see the celebrities in the court, but this will not do. Had that been the case they would speedily have fled. Those who in the second half did tire somewhat gave way because of the Turkish bath-like temperature of the hall, not a window of which appeared to be open. It was not in the least because of lack of interest in the Fellowship's work. There is only one word for that. Everybody, concerned worked with thorough- ness and good-humor, which would have won the master's heart, all the more since the proceeds were to go to the charitable side of the Fellow- ship's work.

Hundreds of people were refused tickets. Five pounds was offered for a seat yesterday. Newspapers from Russia and Argentine were re- porting the trial. Of the versions of the story put before the court and of the extraordi- nary finding of a jury surely not equalled since a famous trial record- ed by one Lewis Carroll—allusion meant to be complimentary and even respectful, whatever it seem—this is not the time or place to speak. Is not the chronicle of it to be written in a book to be published for the benefit of the charitable enterprise aforesaid? Here it is but to tell of the way of it all. What a judge in Mr. G. K. Chesterton! How ponder- ous he joked ("Staple Inn" a place of refreshment, I presume!) How naturally he snored! And what a grave array of counsel, in Mr. J. Cuming Walters and Mr. B. W. Matz for the one part, and Mr. Cecil Chesterton and Mr. W. W. Crotch for the other! Either they must be practised lawyers, or lawyers must be an easy-learned trade—impossible hypotheses both. A Shavian Joke. And what witnesses, in Mr. Brans- by Williams as Durles, Mr. Arthur Wagh as Crisparkie, and Mrs. Lau- rence Gray as Helena (simply su- perb abstract realism, with not a pin to choose); Miss J. K. Protheroe as the Princess, and Mr. Sheridatt Jones as Bazzard! It seems incred- ible that they had not met in rehearsal, and yet it is true. As to Mr. Ber- nard Shaw as the foreman of the jury, well, when he accused Mr. Clumpack of being really one Nub- bles, and on hearing a witness de- scribed as a musician, remarked that "the case was black indeed," you expected that the night would pro- duce riches of fun from him; and you were not disappointed.

There were, of course, differences between this and an ordinary court. In the latter, "what the soldier said" is not evidence, as we all know. Here, Miss Helena "insinuated her suspicions so that they became con- firmation strong. Again, in the Dickensian forum witnesses tell their story rapidly and naturally. They are not "pulled up" while the judge takes notes. Furthermore, counsel ask leading questions by the bushel. But what of all that? The verdict detail. What matters is that London had one of the most delightful even- ings of intellectual interest and wholesome good humor which it could wish for; and that the needy gain.

And now—since Thackeray and Stevenson's unfinished stories do not admit of such treatment—when will one of the jurors give us the material for such another evening? Name? Well, there is Mr. William de Mor- gan for one. In the end the jury announced that they had compromised on a verdict of manslaughter. No sentence was pro- nounced.—Graphic, Jan. 8th, 1914.

senting chapels, but his view of the music in the village churches, is, on the whole, more favorable. The Death of Little Nell. For she was dead. There, upon her little bed, she lay at rest: The solemn stillness was no marvel now. She was dead. No sleep from trace of pain, so fair to look upon. She seemed a creature fresh from the hand of God and waiting for the breath of life—not one who had lived and suffered death. Her couch was dressed with here and there some winter berries and green leaves, gathered in a spot she had been used to favor. "When I die, put near me something that has loved the light, and had the sky above it always." These were her words.

She was dead. Dear, gentle, patient, noble Nell was dead. Her little bird—a poor slight thing—the pressure of a finger would have crushed—was sitting nimbly in his cage; and the strong heart of the child mistress was mate and motionless forever. Where were the traces of her early cares, her sufferings, and fatigues? All gone. Sorrow was dead indeed in her, but peace and perfect happiness were born—merged in her tran- quill beauty and profound repose. And still her former self lay there, unaltered in this change. Yes, the old freckle had smiled upon that same sweet face; it had passed like a dream, through haunts of misery and care; at the door of the poor schoolmaster on the summer evening, before the furnace-fire upon the cold wet night, at the still bedside of the dying boy, there had been the same mild lovely look. So shall we know the angels in their ma- jesty after death.

"It is not," said the school- master, as he bent down to kiss her on the cheek; and gave his tears free vent, "it is not on earth that Heaven's justice ends."

Great Men and Women

CHARLES DICKENS. (1812-1870).

Someone has described Dickens as "the man who cheers us all up," and he thinks that if Dickens was not the highest writer of English fiction, he fills the biggest place, and is the last whom we could spare. Carlyle de- scribed him as "the good, the gentle, the noble, the high-minded Dick- en every inch of him an honest man. Since Shakespeare, no Englishman has shaken the world with so man- nable parallels to every circum- stance of life. He began to write in 1833, being then attached to a paper in London as reporter, and with the commencement of the "Pickwick Pa- pers" in 1836 he became known on both sides of the Atlantic. These Pa- pers came out in monthly parts and caught the public fancy, and the tale was accompanied in its way by the laughter of all England. While it was still running "Oliver Twist" was begun, also "Nicholas Nickleby" and "Barnaby Rudge" were brought out at a pace hardly paralleled by Scott. And what a company of friends and acquaintances he gives us! David Copperfield, Mr. McAvber, Trotty Veck, Caleb Plummer, Mr. Dombey, Mark Tapley, Mr. Bumble, Scrooge, not to mention Mr. Pickwick and Samuel Weller, and a host of others that all readers of Dickens know (and are they not legion?).

The men and women that Dickens has given us will not readily be let fall from among our acquaint- ances. They have passed into litera- ture in a hundred forms. Number here are the references to them in other books. "I can often tell," remarked Lord Houghton, "a man's own character by hearing his favorite characters in fiction." A most diverting list might be compiled of the characters from Dickens which eminent persons have selected as their favourite. We know that Lord Palmerston thought Sam Weller was Dickens's high-water mark; that the late Lord Salisbury never forgot of Sairey Gamp; that Mr. Chamberlain most rejoices in Wil- kins Micawber. In fact, if one looks through biographies published for the last fifty years, one is almost sure to come across references to the big- grapher's literary favorites, and espe- cially in the characters of Dickens. To Dickens must be given the credit of inventing the mid-Victorian theory of the secular aspect of Christmas, and of his social duties and pleasures, and his "Christmas Carol" and his other Christmas books are responsible for much of the charity and good cheer that accompany our celebration of the season now.

He died rather suddenly in 1870 and the world was the poorer by his death. He was busy with "Edwin Drood" when the pen fell from his hand, and in interesting attempt to clear up the mystery of Edwin Drood's death is found in another col- umn, which describes a mock trial held in London last month, with G. K. Chesterton as Judge.

And who does not know Mrs. Gamp with her watery eye, and her friend Mrs. Harris, though Mrs. Prip did say "She didn't believe there was no sesh person." Can't you hear her now telling Mr. Pecksniff

"If it wasn't for the nerve a little slip of liquor gives me (I was never able to do more than taste it) I never could go through with what I sometimes have to do. 'Mrs. Harris, I says 'leave the bottle on the chimney-piece, and don't ask me to take none, but let me put my lips to it when I am so disposed, and then I will do what I'm engaged to do, according to the best of my ability.' 'Mrs. Gamp,' she says, 'in answer, 'if ever there was a so- ber creature to be set at eight o'clock a day for working people, and three and six for gentle- folks—night watching,' said Mrs. Gamp 'being a extra charge—you are that invaluable person.' 'Mrs. Harris, I says to her, 'don't name the charge for if I could afford to lay all my meller creat- ings out for nothink, I would glad- ly do it; such is the love I bear 'em.'"

Whither go the clouds and wind, so eagerly? If like gaily spirits they repair to some dread conference with powers like themselves, in what wild region do the elements hold council, or where unbend in terrible dis- port? Here! Free from that cramped prison, called the earth, and out upon the waste of wa- ters. Here, roaring, raging, shrieking, howling, all night long. Here in the fury of their un- checked liberty, they storm and buffet with each other, until the sea isashed into passion like their Author, as a rule are not famed for idleness, but Dickens was an exception. There never existed, I think, in all the world, a more thor- oughly tidy or methodical creature than was my father," wrote his daughter, "Mamie." "He was tidy in every way—in his mind, in his hand- some and graceful person, in his work, in keeping his writing-table drawers, in his large correspondence, in fact, in his whole life." But, he could be a huge also, as, for exam- ple, in regard to the furniture in a room in a hotel. He might be stay- ing only a single night, but if it did not please him he would rearrange it all, always turning also bed north and south to meet his views of the electrical currents of the earth!

is an inhabitant of the Arctic Region, and it is possibly the most useful of all the animals which dwell in this part of the world. Unlike the Reindeer, SUNLIGHT SOAP is to be found in all parts of the civilised world, and its great utility is vouched for by millions of contented housewives who would not be without it.

SUNLIGHT SOAP

enjoys a well-merited reputation, it is absolutely pure, and will not harm the most delicate fabric. A piece of Sunlight Soap used in your next wash will convince you of its excellence.

To Churchman.

We very much regret that uninten- tionally, our notice of Candelmas in last Saturday's issue was so very in- complete as to omit several very im- portant points out. As it happens, the information in its entirety is taken from "The Harmsworth Encyclo- pædia" and the error is certainly not to the credit of that publication. Even the little shilling "Pears' Cyclo- pædia" describes Candelmas correctly as "An English and Roman Church Festival." We are glad that the Leisure Hour Page is proving interesting and agreeable, and well- come factors that bring us in close touch with its readers, and in this instance, especially thank "Church- man" for drawing attention to the in- advertence mentioned above.

The Flea.

By GEORGE FITCH. Author of "At Good Old Siskiwit." A flea is an insect kangaroo about as large as a pin head, to the eye, and a little larger than a well drilling out- let to the scene of festal.

The flea has a hard shell and a set of extremely talented legs. Because of these legs the flea can do what no other animal or insect has ever been able to accomplish, it can be in two places at once—under the thumb of an angry man and four feet away, getting ready to jump again.

This is an astonishing statement, but can be proven by several million people who have hunted the flea with murderous intent at one time or another. It is perfectly easy to place a large horny thumb on a small flea

A HAMILTON MIRACLE

Whole Country Amazed at Wonderful Cure of Mr. John Herman

575 JAMES ST., NORTH, HAMILTON, ONT. Gentlemen. Four years ago I was taken down with inflammation of the bladder. During the attacks, which occurred more and more frequently, the agony was unbearable, and I became so weak I could not walk across the floor. The doctors could do nothing to relieve or cure me. My wife sent for a box of GIN PILLS to try and see if they would help me. From the first they did me good—the pain was relieved at once, and the attacks began to come at longer intervals. I continued taking the pills for six weeks, and then, to my surprise and delight, the stone I sent you some time ago came from me and my pain stopped. It is now three years since GIN PILLS cured me. I have had no return of the trouble, and I have not lost a day's work on account of it since. There is not the slightest doubt that GIN PILLS saved my life. Yours gratefully, JOHN HERMAN.

own, leaps up in ravings might- er than theirs, and the whole scene is whirlwind madness. The story of Nell in "The Old Curiosi- ty Shop" is one of the most famil- iar to all readers of Dickens. Who can read unmoved his wonderful and touching word-picture of her death, clothed with such eloquence of sim- plicity? "I can often tell," remarked Lord Houghton, "a man's own character by hearing his favorite characters in fiction." A most diverting list might be compiled of the characters from Dickens which eminent persons have selected as their favourite. We know that Lord Palmerston thought Sam Weller was Dickens's high-water mark; that the late Lord Salisbury never forgot of Sairey Gamp; that Mr. Chamberlain most rejoices in Wil- kins Micawber. In fact, if one looks through biographies published for the last fifty years, one is almost sure to come across references to the big- grapher's literary favorites, and espe- cially in the characters of Dickens. To Dickens must be given the credit of inventing the mid-Victorian theory of the secular aspect of Christmas, and of his social duties and pleasures, and his "Christmas Carol" and his other Christmas books are responsible for much of the charity and good cheer that accompany our celebration of the season now.

He died rather suddenly in 1870 and the world was the poorer by his death. He was busy with "Edwin Drood" when the pen fell from his hand, and in interesting attempt to clear up the mystery of Edwin Drood's death is found in another col- umn, which describes a mock trial held in London last month, with G. K. Chesterton as Judge.

And who does not know Mrs. Gamp with her watery eye, and her friend Mrs. Harris, though Mrs. Prip did say "She didn't believe there was no sesh person." Can't you hear her now telling Mr. Pecksniff

"If it wasn't for the nerve a little slip of liquor gives me (I was never able to do more than taste it) I never could go through with what I sometimes have to do. 'Mrs. Harris, I says 'leave the bottle on the chimney-piece, and don't ask me to take none, but let me put my lips to it when I am so disposed, and then I will do what I'm engaged to do, according to the best of my ability.' 'Mrs. Gamp,' she says, 'in answer, 'if ever there was a so- ber creature to be set at eight o'clock a day for working people, and three and six for gentle- folks—night watching,' said Mrs. Gamp 'being a extra charge—you are that invaluable person.' 'Mrs. Harris, I says to her, 'don't name the charge for if I could afford to lay all my meller creat- ings out for nothink, I would glad- ly do it; such is the love I bear 'em.'"

senting chapels, but his view of the music in the village churches, is, on the whole, more favorable. The Death of Little Nell. For she was dead. There, upon her little bed, she lay at rest: The solemn stillness was no marvel now. She was dead. No sleep from trace of pain, so fair to look upon. She seemed a creature fresh from the hand of God and waiting for the breath of life—not one who had lived and suffered death. Her couch was dressed with here and there some winter berries and green leaves, gathered in a spot she had been used to favor. "When I die, put near me something that has loved the light, and had the sky above it always." These were her words.

She was dead. Dear, gentle, patient, noble Nell was dead. Her little bird—a poor slight thing—the pressure of a finger would have crushed—was sitting nimbly in his cage; and the strong heart of the child mistress was mate and motionless forever. Where were the traces of her early cares, her sufferings, and fatigues? All gone. Sorrow was dead indeed in her, but peace and perfect happiness were born—merged in her tran- quill beauty and profound repose. And still her former self lay there, unaltered in this change. Yes, the old freckle had smiled upon that same sweet face; it had passed like a dream, through haunts of misery and care; at the door of the poor schoolmaster on the summer evening, before the furnace-fire upon the cold wet night, at the still bedside of the dying boy, there had been the same mild lovely look. So shall we know the angels in their ma- jesty after death.

"It is not," said the school- master, as he bent down to kiss her on the cheek; and gave his tears free vent, "it is not on earth that Heaven's justice ends."

LONDON, Feb. 6.
Parliament re-assembles on Tuesday. It is believed that amendments will be introduced to the Address in Reply by the Unionists. The Chronicle says to-day that if these take the form of a specific demand for a general election they will be refused. The Telegraph says that the Unionists will accept only the absolute exclusion of Ulster or a general election; whilst the Express says an immediate election is the only solution. The Graphic says 15,000 Englishmen are ready to personally aid Ulster in event of hostilities. Liverpool has furnished a corps of 1,000 strong, London 800 strong, and the forces are being recruited at the rate of 200 a day.

LONDON, Feb. 6.
Cape Town despatches say that it is still doubtful whether the Government will secure a majority when the want of confidence resolution comes to the vote. They say that the Government weakened its position by a declaration that only foreign adventurers had been deported, implying that the Government was entitled to deport political undesirables, so long as they were not born in the country. Moreover, General Smuts referred sneeringly to previous Supreme Court trials as farces, and ridiculed the idea of the waiting for Parliamentary sanction of deportation. He created a sensation by saying that the police had prepared a much longer list for deportation, from which only a selection had been made, adding that a great number of consummate scoundrels still remain in the country. According to the Chronicle, Viscount Gladstone had long wished to resign, but as his retirement now would be liable to misconception, he will remain a few months longer, and be succeeded by Sydney Buxton, President of the Board of Trade, Masterman becoming Financial Secretary.

Dr Rendell Writes.

George Parsons, Esq.
Dear Sir,—With regard to the Ford Runabout which you supplied to me early in 1913, I have to inform you that during the year I ran considerably over 4,000 miles over good roads, bad roads and no roads. I have no mechanical trouble, and my total bill for new parts and repairs amounted to 50c. for a new valve (steam vent) and 30 cents for a front wheel cone. These facts I think speak loudly as to the value and usefulness of this excellent little car.

Yours truly,
