CHAPTER XXIX.
The Coquette's Plea.

"I mean to get him safely out of the way, poor fellow, before the wedding comes off," Charley whispered to me a few days previous to their departure; "and by the time we get back he will have got over his disappointment a little. He is rather down on his luck now, dear old man; but he will never be as stupid as to break that great strong, loving heart of his for the sake of a faithless little coquette like Gwendolen Clitheroe."

"Has he seen her since he knew?" I asked, with a secret misgiving in my mind as to whether my brother would really recover from the blow so easily as his friend seemed to hope.

"Yes; and a very pretty and pathetic little scene it must have been from what he tells me, I fancy," Charley returned, in a tone of withering contempt. "Len, poor, foolish, impetuous old fellow, stormed and raved, and did the high-tragedy business to perfection, it seems, while the lady took refuge in one of those delicate little theatrical touches which women of the Gwendolen Clitheroe type know so well how to employ, burst into tears, and begged to be pitied and forgiven, with a look of despairing resignation on her lovely face that happily does not seem to have taken even Len in very greatly, poor, dear old idiot that he is!"

"It is our fate that parts us," she told him.

"It is a pity that she did not think of all that before!" I replied indignantly. "She knew he was poor from the first, yet she made him believe that she cared for him; and, while seeing how madly he worshipped her, did her best to add fuel to the flame by every means in her power! She does not deserve to be happy!"

"Nor will she be; rest assured of that," Charley replied. "Leave her to time and her own conscience, Lesley; I am much mistaken if these do not bring her punishment."

The marriage, which is creating quite a sensation in Hanbury, is fixed, we hear, for the last week in October; and, meantime, the cool, bright, golden days are dragging along, with their falling flowers and falling leaves, rather heavily to Addie and me shut up in our humdrum little country lodging, with nothing more exciting to look forward to from day to day than those anxiously expected letters from Len and his friend, which arrive with the utmost regularity, and which, filled with delightful little, rosy descriptions of all they are seeing and doing, are growing steadily more hopeful and encouraging in tone with every one.

Of Ernest Warden we have heard nothing, directly or indirectly, since he left. Beyond the fact that he is supposed to have gone abroad somewhere—nobody seems to have any very definite idea where—his departure still remains entirely unexplained.

The old office in which the Wardens have transacted the legal affairs of most of the oldest and richest families in the neighborhood for three generations has passed into other hands, and there is a new name on the bright brass plate on the door of the gloomy-looking old Queen Anne house in the high street, as we pass it in our walks—a circumstance on which Addie makes no comment; but more than once I am conscious of a mist of unshed tears in the sad eyes as they glance toward it. And, meantime, the surprise and excitement occasioned by Ernest Warden's inexplicable departure is beginning to subside in the newer sensation Miss Clitheroe's approaching marriage is creating—a ceremony which, according to report, is to be performed with a splendor and eclat quite unprecedented in the quiet annals of Hanbury; and the anticipation of which is consequently turning half the feminine heads in the town, but of which we make no mention in our letters to Len.

"What a remarkable piece of retributive justice it would seem if even that lost will should come to light!" I remark one evening, as we discuss the wonderful preparations for Miss Clitheroe's wedding, of which every one is talking, over the fire in our homely little parlor. "Only think, Addie, if Mr. Rutherford's missing will ever turns up, all this wealth and position for which she is throwing poor Len over, and selling herself to a man old enough to be her grandfather, would come to him! Wouldn't it be strange if it should?"

"Yes," she replies, looking at me with that little, indulgent smile with which Addie provokingly receives most of my little suggestions and flights of fancy; "very much too strange ever to come to pass, I am afraid."

"Oh, I don't know about that," I reply thoughtfully, turning the piece of toast I am making in front of the cheery little fire that is getting to feel so cozy and comfortable now. "Do you suppose that all the romance of life is confined to your pet novels? Stranger things than that even happen, sometimes; and I always have had such a strong presentiment that the lost will is still in existence, and that it will some day come to light."

"You fanciful child!" she returns, by no means disposed to share in the belief. "Why, you say it as solemnly as if it were a prophecy; but isn't it time for the postman? Shall we wait tea a few minutes and enjoy it over our letters?"

I am only too willing to agree to this proposal. It is the one event of our quiet, monotonous life, the familiar sound of the postman's knock; but I have a strong suspicion that it is not altogether in anticipation of those frequent letters from Italy for which Addie awaits his coming so anxiously.

I do not say so to her, but I cannot help wondering sometimes why Ernest Warden never writes.

After all, it is as well that he does not, perhaps. There is certainly nothing to be gained by writing; and yet I can see how her heart is hungering for a line—a word, even.

Wide as is the gulf that separates them, I feel that it would comfort her to know where he is, and what he is doing. But not even this small scrap of consolation is vouchsafed to her; and, day after day, as the postman makes his appearance without bringing anything in that familiar hand for a sight of which her heart is secretly yearning, I see the little flash of expectancy that has mounted to her face die out, leaving her paler, more despondent than ever.

But not even to me does she mention her disappointment, bitter as it is. However deep her suffering, she bears it in silence, as, shut up in her own room, she toils away through cruelly long hours at her writing until heart and brain are both weary, yet always miserable and dissatisfied with the result; while I, not knowing what else to do, rack my brain over the composition of strengthening jellies or some unexpected little delicacy wherewith to tempt the falling appetite of the poor girl, who every day looks more like a fragile shadow of her old sweet self than ever, or write long consolatory letters to dear, old Len that always contain some message for Mr. Denton—good-natured, kind-hearted Charley Denton—for a sound of whose pleasant voice, for a sight of whose handsome, debonaire face I am beginning to long as I did not think it was in me to long for any one.

"There, dear, that's the last," I exclaim at length, springing suddenly up from my kneeling attitude on the hearthrug, with my face almost as well-baked as the bread. "Isn't that a triumph of toast making? Now, Addie, while you butter it, I'll run out to the gate and see if there is any sign of the postman coming up the road."

"Put something over your head! You thoughtless child, you will be catching your death of cold!" she calls after me; and, snatching my shawl from the back of a chair, I throw it over my head and run, laughing, out of the room.

CHAPTER XXX.

While That Woman Lives.

The day has been wet and stormy, but the rain has ceased now, and the stars are blinking feebly in the twilight sky, although the wind still shrieks and moans like some lost spirit through the well-nigh leafless trees, as I step out into the little front garden with its gravel path, its tiny green plot, and trimly out laurals that impart such an air of suburban respectability to the prosaic little red-brick house in which our lodgings are situated.

A figure—a masculine figure, though the outline is not very clearly defined in the gloom of the tall elms near the road—stands at the gate, as if about to enter; and, with an all-prevailing idea of letters in my mind, I rush toward him, never doubting for a moment that it is the postman.

"Lesley, is it you, child? They told me you were here alone—you and Adelaide," says a deep, familiar voice, that makes me start as if I had been shot; and, with a sudden catching of my breath, I am looking up into Ernest Warden's eager, dark face.

It is Ernest, sure enough. I decide, with a startled glance into the familiar face under the broad brim of the slouched hat. There is not much possibility, certainly, of mistaking the grand outline of that splendid figure, that, buttoned to the ears in a rough greatcoat, stands so suddenly before me in the stormy dusk at the gate, and my first coherent thought is that I must get rid of him somehow before Adelaide discovers that he is here.

"How is she—how is my darling, Lesley?" he inquires, without releasing my hands from the hard, convulsive grip in which he has caught them.

"She is well—that is, she is better than she has been," I falter, in a hesitating tone. "But, oh, Ernest, what do you want?" I ask, looking nervously up into the handsome, passionate face, handsome still, but, oh, how changed, I think, as the light from the half-uncurtained window falls full upon it. "Why have you come here?"

"Why," he exclaims, with a harsh laugh, "for the very sufficient reason that I could not keep away. What have I done that I should be banished from the presence of the one being my heart yearns for? This separation is driving me mad, Lesley. I cannot bear it, and I will not!" he adds, turning a pair of longing eyes toward the window. "I must and will see her!"

white seeing how madly he worshipped her, did her best to add fuel to the flame by every means in her power! She does not deserve to be happy!"

"Nor will she be; rest assured of that," Charley replied. "Leave her to time and her own conscience, Lesley; I am much mistaken if these do not bring her punishment."

"Do you suppose that all the romance of life is confined to your pet novels? Stranger things than that even happen, sometimes; and I always have had such a strong presentiment that the lost will is still in existence, and that it will some day come to light."

"You fanciful child!" she returns, by no means disposed to share in the belief. "Why, you say it as solemnly as if it were a prophecy; but isn't it time for the postman? Shall we wait tea a few minutes and enjoy it over our letters?"

I am only too willing to agree to this proposal. It is the one event of our quiet, monotonous life, the familiar sound of the postman's knock; but I have a strong suspicion that it is not altogether in anticipation of those frequent letters from Italy for which Addie awaits his coming so anxiously.

I do not say so to her, but I cannot help wondering sometimes why Ernest Warden never writes.

After all, it is as well that he does not, perhaps. There is certainly nothing to be gained by writing; and yet I can see how her heart is hungering for a line—a word, even.

Wide as is the gulf that separates them, I feel that it would comfort her to know where he is, and what he is doing. But not even this small scrap of consolation is vouchsafed to her; and, day after day, as the postman makes his appearance without bringing anything in that familiar hand for a sight of which her heart is secretly yearning, I see the little flash of expectancy that has mounted to her face die out, leaving her paler, more despondent than ever.

But not even to me does she mention her disappointment, bitter as it is. However deep her suffering, she bears it in silence, as, shut up in her own room, she toils away through cruelly long hours at her writing until heart and brain are both weary, yet always miserable and dissatisfied with the result; while I, not knowing what else to do, rack my brain over the composition of strengthening jellies or some unexpected little delicacy wherewith to tempt the falling appetite of the poor girl, who every day looks more like a fragile shadow of her old sweet self than ever, or write long consolatory letters to dear, old Len that always contain some message for Mr. Denton—good-natured, kind-hearted Charley Denton—for a sound of whose pleasant voice, for a sight of whose handsome, debonaire face I am beginning to long as I did not think it was in me to long for any one.

"There, dear, that's the last," I exclaim at length, springing suddenly up from my kneeling attitude on the hearthrug, with my face almost as well-baked as the bread. "Isn't that a triumph of toast making? Now, Addie, while you butter it, I'll run out to the gate and see if there is any sign of the postman coming up the road."

"Put something over your head! You thoughtless child, you will be catching your death of cold!" she calls after me; and, snatching my shawl from the back of a chair, I throw it over my head and run, laughing, out of the room.

WAR REVIEW.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30. (By the A. P.)—There has been no abatement in the strength of the offensive the British, French and American troops are throwing against the German army from Arras to the region of Soissons, and as yet there is no indication that it is the purpose of the seemingly demoralized enemy to turn about and face their aggressors or to offer more resistance for the present than through the activities of the rear-guards. Not alone have the Allied troops all over the battlefield from Arras to Soissons gained further important terrain, but to the north the British have advanced their lines materially in the famous Lys sector and apparently without much effort on the part of the foe to restrain them. Of greater significance than any of the other victories achieved in Friday's fighting is the gain of the French, with whom Americans are brigaded, in the general sector north of Soissons. The latest French official communication records the capture of Chavigny by the French, three miles northwest, and Cuffies, a mile and a half north of Soissons, and the entry into the outskirts of Crozy, a short distance to the northeast. These victories gained only after hardest kind of fighting make more secure the Allied line running northward and outflanking the Aisne on the Chemin Des Dames positions. Also bettering this general situation has been the crossing by the French of the Ailette river at Champs. In the region north of Noyon the French have made further progress crossing the Canal Du Nord at several places, and advancing materially in the direction of the Noyon-Ham railroad line. All around Noyon the French have strengthened the position. All the territory on the north and west banks of the Somme where the British have been operating against the Germans have been cleared of the enemy, and south of Peronne on the east bank of the stream notwithstanding the destruction of the bridges by the Germans. To the north the British almost everywhere are pressing eastward along the highways carrying the Germans before them notwithstanding the desperate resistance that is everywhere being offered by machine guns innumerable and infantry units. Combies is now in British hands and east of Bapaume Field Marshal Haig's men are working along the Bapaume-Cambrai road towards Le Bucqueres and to the north of this region Bullecourt and Hendrecourt on the old Hindenburg line. Both were captured by the Germans in a violent counter attack forced back the British to their western outskirts where at last accounts occupying an old trench system the Germans were being held. Northeast of Arras the British now are only a step away from the famous Drocourt-Queant switch-line, one of the strongest of the enemy's fortified positions which is said to be filled with forces who intend to tenaciously dispute its capture. Southwest of Ypres in the Lys salient the Germans have again begin withdrawal and are being closely followed by the British. The British are holding the important town of Bailleul in this sector. The withdrawal of the Germans seemingly indicates that it is their purpose to blot out this salient and straighten their line towards Ypres. It is a move that is greatly lessening their chance of a drive during the present year towards the Channel ports from this region. There has been a considerable increase in the enemy's artillery activity against the American troops in the Vosges region. Several patrol attacks by the Germans have been stopped by the Americans.

BRITISH TAKE COMBLES.

LONDON, Aug. 30. British troops have captured Combles between Bapaume and the river Somme it was officially announced today by the War Office.

BRITISH OFFICIAL RECORDS IMPORTANT GAINS.

LONDON, Aug. 30. (Official)—London and West Lancashire troops made important progress yesterday west of the Seneze river, capturing Bullecourt and Hendrecourt and Les Cagnicourt, after hard fighting, together with the powerful German trench systems protecting these villages. Between Hendrecourt and the Arras-Cambrai road an attack delivered by the Canadian troops early this morning is reported to be developing favorably. Astride the river Scarpe English and Scottish troops continued their advance yesterday, and gained valuable ground in the direction of Eterpigny, Hamblin les Pres and Plovaiv. The village of Remy is held by us. A number of prisoners were captured in these operations. In the valleys of the Leve and Lys-river we continued to push forward.

REINCOURT CAPTURED.

LONDON, Aug. 30. British forces east of Arras resumed their advance this morning, and at an early hour had penetrated another two thousand yards on a front of seven miles, between Bullecourt and the Scarpe, according to advice received here. The British forces have reached within a mile of the Drocourt-Queant switch-line and have captured Rein-court.

BAILLEUL EVACUATED.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Aug. 30 (By A.P.)—It is reported that Bailleul, on the northern outskirts of the Lys salient, has been evacuated by the Germans, and that the British are either entering the town or may soon occupy it. All the country south and west of the river Somme is now free of the enemy.

MAN-POWER BILL ENACTED.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Congress late to-day enacted the man-power Bill, bringing within the army draft all male citizens from 18 to 45 years of age, and sent it to the President for his signature.

HINDENBURG LINE CROSSED.

LONDON, Aug. 30. Troops of Field Marshal Haig to-day crossed the Hindenburg line to the south of Bullecourt. In the Lys salient the British forces are reported to have captured Nolle Boom, three miles south of Bailleul. The Germans have retreated from the town of Bailleul. North of Soissons, French troops, to-day captured Hill 159, and they now hold all the high ground between Soissons and Leury, according to information received from the battlefield this evening.

WELCOME TO GOMPEERS.

LONDON, Aug. 30. (By the A. P.)—The newspapers all print editorials welcoming Samuel Gompers and the American Labor leaders, and give marked prominence to the declaration of Mr. Gompers, that the Labor men of the United States are in favor of a war to the finish without compromise and will have no part in unofficial negotiations with Socialists of enemy countries.

LIBELED FOR $125,000.

A CANADIAN ATLANTIC PORT, Aug. 30.—The Newfoundland schooner Blanca which was towed into port yesterday by a Boston fishing craft which found her adrift off this coast after the crew of a German had failed to sink has been libeled by the owner, captain and crew of the American fisherman for $125,000 for salvage services.

MUTINY AMONG GERMANS.

LONDON, Aug. 30. Twelve hundred German mutineers have joined forces with an armed peasant body and attacked the German forces in the region of Dymera, twenty-four miles from Kiev, according to a Russian wireless despatch received here to-day from Moscow. Fierce fighting has taken place between the Germans and the peasants and there have been heavy losses on both sides.

MORE CAPTURES.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 30.—Log-Aste and Coust St. Meta, southwest of Bullecourt, are reported to have been captured to-day by the British.

MANGIN'S ARMY CONTINUES PROGRESS.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 30.—(Havas Agency)—The battle is progressing favorably for the troops of General Mangin. The Germans are making the most determined resistance against the French army in an effort to prevent it gaining a strong foothold north of the Ailette. A French success in the direction would menace all the enemy's communications. Cavalry was employed mainly by the Germans yesterday, but notwithstanding this display of force the enemy was unable to stay the advance of the French.

POLICE STRIKE IN LONDON.

LONDON, Aug. 30. London outside the little square mile composing the city proper has practically been without police protection since midnight when the famous metropolitan police force went on strike. Traffic usually so well looked after, was left to regulate itself through special constables and private citizens enlisted for the duration of the war to assist the regulars who turned out in hundreds to do the work of the "Bobbies." The police strike became worse as the morning advanced. Many members of the day force joined throughout the Metropolitan area. Only a small number of the older men remained at their posts. Plain clothes men picketed the stations and tried to induce the officers still on duty also the special constables to strike. "An

C. T. JAMES, Editor

SATURDAY, Aug. 31st, 1918.
True Generosity.

The announcement of the generosity of Mr. George W. B. Ayre, in handing over the British Hall, recently purchased by him, to the Directing Board of the Church of England Colleges in this city, at a nominal rental of one silver dollar per year, is one which will come as a pleasant and joyful surprise to every member of the Anglican Communion in Newfoundland, and to those particularly in the ranks who send their children to the Capital for the purpose of receiving a final education. For a long time it has been a fact that there is insufficient accommodation in the city colleges of the Church of England for the number (ever growing) of pupils who desire to attend at one or the other of these institutions. Chiefly so was this the case with Bishop Spencer College for girls. Of late plans have been made to erect a series of buildings, in some central locality, which would be specially built to house the maximum number of scholars seeking tuition, both city and outport. The construction of such buildings could not possibly be completed at an early date, and a number of years would have to elapse ere the project materialized. It is well known that the Directors were not at all satisfied with the present accommodation afforded by Bishop Spencer College, and were desirous of making some other arrangement whereby better provision could be made to carry on and increase the work done by this institution. Mr. Ayre being thoroughly cognizant of this, as well as of the proposal to put up new collegiate halls, and likewise knowing the many difficulties in the way of the Directors, shows himself as a true educationalist and makes an offer hitherto unprecedented in our school annals. He practically gives gratis the whole of the commodious and spacious British Hall to the use of the staff and pupils of Bishop Spencer College, thereby lifting a heavy load from the Directors, and carrying his generosity still further, undertakes the cost of making any alterations that may be necessary to adapt the building to the needs of the College. We do not wonder that the Directors were well nigh overwhelmed with feelings of gratitude and appreciation when this munificent offer was made, and with them we too can say that Mr. Ayre's act is one of the most generous contributions to education in the history of this Dominion. No less will the people of the Church of England in Newfoundland show their gratitude and appreciation of this princely gift, when its true significance becomes known to them, and we think we may safely say without fear of contradiction that their appreciation will best be shown by sending their children to school and giving them all the education possible to fit them for the battle of life. In this way only will the debt, which the Anglican Church members in Newfoundland owe to the liberality of Mr. George W. B. Ayre be repaid, and it is the one way in which we believe, Mr. Ayre would so have it.

The El Paso (Texas) Times says that the Kaiser has contemplated all the property of the Salvation Army in his kingdom and by imperial order dissolved the organization. So the Huns have found one enemy they can lick.

British troops are operating in five widely separated regions in Russia, in addition to Africa, Egypt, Mesopotamia, Greece, Palestine and the Western front, including Italy. It is a record no other nation approaches.

The Kaiser says: "My submarines are fiercely attacking ships carrying troops from America." The results indicate that the "Herc" attacks on troopships are few and far between, but the brave sinking of helpless fishing vessels goes merrily on.

Authorities, Attention!

On several occasions a large car has been tearing along the Topsail Road at the rate of about 35 to 40 miles per hour, with only one headlight going. Last night this young gent nearly made a mess of things, barely avoiding another car coming in the opposite direction. Unfortunately, in the public interest, the number of the car could not be taken owing to the speed at which it was going and the dust. The authorities must take strong measures with these people of the public will have to take the matter in their own hands, as accidents are becoming too frequent of late. In their own interest the careful motorists should get after hogs of this kind.

Local Coal.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—Future generations of Newfoundlanders will, I am sure, look back with gratitude and admiration for the broadminded sentiments expressed through the columns of your paper from time to time.

Not only has your own pen been active in the support of everything that tended toward general welfare, but the columns of your esteemed paper have always been open to the supporter of any movement that aimed toward the advancement of the country as a whole.

You were the first to suggest the possibility of raising a "victory loan" locally, which ultimately ended in Newfoundland surprising herself, by considerably over-subscribing.

You advocated a subscription which ended in a complete success, and now it is worthy to note you are ardently supporting the effort being made by some of our own countrymen toward raising capital whereby Newfoundland may be able to supply herself with coal.

Coal the foundation of enormous wealth in other countries exists in abundance in this country, and too long, may it be said to our shame, has this commodity been allowed to lie undeveloped.

The late Jas P. Howley, Esq., F.G.S., a man noted for his integrity, practicality and his reputation, when he asserted that he knew of nothing else in the island that could be more cheaply worked, or that would give greater returns for the same amount of labor.

Perhaps it was because he was a Newfoundlanders that his word was not taken as seriously as it should have been, but it is not too late now, in fact the time was never more ripe; here we are paying $16.00 per ton for coal with millions of it at our very doors, and what are we doing as a people? Do we intend to wait for outsiders to come in and show us what we are worth, or are we going to take the initiative ourselves and show others that we have faith in our own resources?

It is certainly time we took more interest in our own welfare. Why should we be sending money out of the country, the one half of which, if employed in developing our own resources, would be the means of improving the financial position of every family in the country, as well as the country itself.

Thanking you in anticipation of space in your valuable paper, and trusting the new coal venture will meet with the success that it merits, I will for the present conclude with the advice, "Newfoundlanders wake up."

Yours truly,
NEWFOUNDLANDER.

A New Form of Sport.

Shaving a motor car up hill, scrambling on board while she runs down grade and taking turns at pushing her along the level, is a new form of pastime discovered by five city sports who left by motor on Wednesday last for a spin around Conception Bay, going as far as Carboner. Leaving the city early Wednesday morning the quintet dashed along the highways at a good rate of speed but on approaching Bay Roberts internal combustion trouble was experienced and when half way up a steep incline something went wrong, and as none of the occupants, including the driver, were familiar with the internal mechanical arrangements of the engine they were at a loss what to do, when one of the number suggested shoving "Lizzie" over the hill. This however was found to be a tiresome but nevertheless popular form of sport which was continued throughout the journey as described in the foregoing. The mule like machine was placed on board a flat car at Carboner and brought to town by yesterday's train.

Hr. Grace Notes.

We were very pleased a few days ago to have a visit from our old friend, Mr. Robert Mercer, of the Telegram staff. Mr. Mercer had been off on a well earned holiday, had visited Grand Falls and his home town, Bay Roberts. We hope his visit to Harbor Grace gave him as much pleasure as we are pained by seeing our friend in such good health.

Miss J. Godden, lady druggist of Bell Island, is in town on a visit, the guest of her cousin, Miss R. Thistle.

Mr. Frank Pinkhart who gave his foot a bad cut a couple of months ago will soon be convinced which form of treatment is most effective.

Naturally and gradually the skin is healed as you apply this soothing, antiseptic ointment. The new skin is soft and smooth, and you did not try this treatment sooner.

SQUID STRUCK IN.—Squid was again fairly plentiful on the local grounds yesterday afternoon and some fine battings were taken.

Miss Florence Dwyer who has been nursing in Boston for several years, arrived last night on a visit to her parents, Sergt. and Mrs. A. Dwyer.

The children of the R. C. Sunday School were given their annual picnic on Wednesday. As the early morning did not show signs of a favorable day, it was decided to hold the treat in the Academy Hall and grounds, where the children thoroughly enjoyed the good things provided for them. A dance for the grown-ups, ended the day's pleasures.

Quite a hard frost was experienced here on Wednesday night. The potatoes are cut down, and it is feared the crop will suffer very much from this early frost.

GREAT AVIATION WORK. LONDON, Aug. 30. The operations of the British forces are steadily increasing in intensity and daring, according to an official announcement. During the course of the past week, seven raids were made into German territory and some German cities were bombed, which Mannheim provided the most notable example of the success achieved by the audacious British aviators. The German defense tactics were temporarily demoralized and paralyzed by the unexpected attack from the bombing machines, flying at a low level, to which is attributed the safe return of all the machines from the raid. During the week 200 tons of bombs were dropped in the battle zone and by day and night vigorous attacks were made on railways and centres of communications behind the enemy.

lines. The German retirement undoubtedly was accelerated by the unceasing activity of the British air force, who cooperated with the advancing Infantry and the Tank units. Their attacks silenced many enemy batteries, and overcame isolated centres of resistance by machine gun fire from a low height. In aerial combats, 74 enemy machines were destroyed and 24 driven down out of control, while 21 British machines were lost. In the northern coastal region many aerial attacks were made at Zebruges, Ostend and Bruges, the latter being raided nine times. The intensive character of the attacks on these coast fortresses is indicated by the record of the last three months, showing that Zebruges was raided 72 times, Bruges 63, and Ostend 64.

THEIR LAST POSITION. WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 30.—This evening there was a fall back upon west of the Hindenburg line, than a line running from Ham to Berlaumont. The Third Army continued its progress of the early morning, in the region of Noyon, has occupied Mont St. Simon, while the Canal Du Nord was crossed at Chevilly. The extent of these gains in territory is insignificant but strategically they are of great importance. The loss of Mont St. Simon means the loss to the Germans of the main defence point of the salient, extending from the Canal to the Aisne, while the French crossing of the Canal Du Nord obliges the retreating forces to quicken their flight or suffer greater losses.

WHAT ABOUT THE ALLIES? BERNE, Switzerland, To-day. era! Mangin now has gained a strong foothold on the north bank of the Aisne, and the plateau north of Soissons, occupying positions of great interest with a view to further operations. General Humbert's troops enlarged their positions around Noyon, completing the conquest of Mount St. Simon, and capturing the greater part of Gennev after most desperate fighting. Several hundred prisoners were taken to-day. The advance of the French, eastward from the Canal Du Nord, was one of the most interesting features of the days operations. They crossed the Canal at two places opposite Catigny and Beauregnis, taking Chevilly and Hill 89, which still further pressed in the western angle of the Aisne salient. Further north the French advanced to the edge of the Canal Du Nord, which they now hold over its entire distance from Noyon to Doay Le Grand, north. General Humbert's men are now firmly in possession of positions around Noyon, without which, the enemy cannot hope to cling along to this salient.

President P. Bennett, presided over last evening's meeting of the N. I. W. A. It was decided to form a local as applied for by the teamsters. A reply from the Colonial Secretary was received in answer to the Association's communication re the transfer of the street railway by the R. N. Co. to the Municipal Council or Government, stating that the matter was not being definitely considered. The Colonial Secretary also wrote that the suggestion of the Association that a board of arbitrators consisting of a representative of the N. I. W. A., one from the Government, and the other to be chosen in the regular way, be appointed to deal with the Port aux Basques strike, would be laid before the next meeting of the Executive Council. This meeting was held Thursday evening, but the Association has not yet been informed as to what decision was arrived at. A communication from Mrs. A. E. Earle, President of the Ladies' Branch was received, who stated that she had interviewed the Manager of the Ropewalk and that two girls who had been dismissed, one for being late, the other for refusing to take her place at a machine—had been reinstated. The question of forming a federation of labor was discussed and a committee to confer with the different unions on the matter, appointed. Much discussion on the strike situation took place, many present expressing views, and the matter will be further considered at a special meeting, to be held on Monday night, to decide what stand they will take in the matter.

Adby, the new Provincial Officers for Newfoundland, and Brigadier Morris, the Field Secretary for Eastern Canada and Newfoundland, arrived on the express to-day. Officers from all over the Dominion are arriving by every train, and one Captain S. Locke, from Griguit, our furthest Corps north, arrived a few days ago. Most of them will arrive to-day. The installation of Lieut. Colonel and Mrs. Adby at the No. 1 Citadel, to-night, with united corps will be a most interesting affair, after which the new Provincial Commander will be in the saddle. The great meetings, Sunday morning, afternoon and night, being in the Methodist College Hall, will be easily reached. These will be the really greatest meetings of the Congress. In the afternoon the Commissioner will speak on "Russia," and as he has been there, will be able to give us a most interesting survey of that great country and its present sorrows. The meeting at the Citadel will also be interesting, because the lecture will be on "Japan." The visiting and local staff and field officers are very anxious to be a help and blessing in any and every way they can while they are here. They ask, "Can we do anything for you?"

Community Nursing.

A GREAT SUCCESS. The work of the Community Nurses in St. John's has grown apace. Miss Rogers and Miss Kendall are having a great many more calls for assistance than they can possibly attend to. Their first and most important duty is to visit every newly born infant and when it appears necessary to advise the mother as to its care. Next they visit all sick children when asked by the doctor or parents to do so, and during the hours of four and five each day they are at the office to receive visits from parents asking their help. The work has caught on splendidly and I believe that it is the most beneficial social service work that has been undertaken here in a generation. The reports which Miss Rogers has submitted to me from time to time are sad reading. Our people little know under what unhappy conditions so many of our poorer classes are living. Upon the mothers and children the burden falls heavily. Beyond an occasional visit from a doctor, they have no one to help or advise them, consequently the feeding and general treatment of the children both in sickness and in health, has been often thoroughly improper. A surprisingly large number of children have been found by the nurses with slight defects of eyes, ears, tonsils, crooked feet and legs. All of them could be helped and many cured if there were a child's hospital here where they could be treated. The waste of life and the loss of efficiency in those who survive is a much heavier tax upon the community than would be the cost of the remedy.

I hope to call a public meeting shortly when Miss Rogers will be able to tell the public of some of the conditions that exist here and which demand immediate attention at the hands of the community.

Personal. Rev. W. B. Bugden left by yesterday's train for Catalina to attend the funeral of the late W. N. Snelgrove, which takes place there to-day.

Miss Ethel Martin, eldest daughter of Mr. W. J. Martin, Statistical Clerk, Colonial Secretary's Dept., will leave by to-morrow's express for Saratoga, Toronto, where she will be married, on September 9th, to Mr. Fred Pearson, of Pearce Brothers, of that city. Miss Katie Pearce, who has been visiting relatives and friends in the city, the past two months, accompanies Miss Martin.

Motor Accident.

Yesterday afternoon while going past Parade Street the motor car of Mr. W. R. Warren ran down the six-year-old son of Mr. J. M. Devine, who had attempted to cross the street in front of the car. Mr. Warren tried to prevent the accident from happening by applying the brakes and shutting off power, however, without success, and when the little fellow was picked up and taken to his home, Dr. McDonald, who had been called, pronounced his leg broken, and ordered him off to the hospital. He was driven to that institution in Mr. Warren's car accompanied by his father.

Better Behind His Back.

By RUTH CAMERON.

There is a common notion that it is not quite right to say a thing behind a person's back that one would not be willing to say to his face. Someone brought that up the other day and the Author attacked it in a way which I thought exceedingly interesting. "I always had that idea myself when I was young," he said, "and I should not wonder if I made a good many enemies trying to live up to it. If I had made some criticism of a man behind his back I thought I ought to make an opportunity to say it to his face. And of course a lot of them got sore. Why wouldn't they? I know all right that you don't think I'm perfect, but if you came around and told me the things you didn't feel stirred up. And yet there might be things I wasn't perfectly satisfied with in you. Nobody thinks anyone else is perfect,—except lovers when they're first engaged, perhaps. But what's the use of telling anyone so unless you really have a good reason for trying to give some constructive criticism. Surely there's no sense in doing it just to make sure you aren't saying anything behind their backs that you don't say to their faces. Tommyrot I call that."

What is The Most Interesting Topic In The World?

"But," ventured someone "why say the thing behind a person's back in the first place?"

"Yes," said the Authorman, "I just stepped to give you a chance to say that. Why? Because there's no reason you shouldn't. What is the most interesting topic in the world,—people. And who are the most interesting people,—the people we know of course. Now why on earth should you tar them out as subjects of conversation."

"Couldn't one talk about them without saying anything bad?"

"Ong Doesn't Need To Say Anything Bad."

"Yes," said the Authorman, "one could talk about them without saying anything bad, if you mean anything" malicious or untrue. And one should. But probably not without saying anything that it might ruffle them to hear. Take the grand chef, we've been having about the Hartlets. (The discussions arose originally from a resume of the faults and virtues of a young couple we had recently met.) We haven't said anything mean or untrue, have we? We've just been analyzing them. We all like them mightily well but we do see their little peculiarities and it's interesting to chew these over as well as their good points. I have a doubt they are doing the same for us this minute. And who's the worse? Nobody. But if we bot' got together and said the same things to each other,—don't you think we'd have some ruffled feelings?"

And we had to admit in fairness that there probably would be.

Lachute, Que., 25 Sept., 1908. Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

Gentlemen,—Even since coming home from the Boer War I have been bothered with running fever sores on my legs. I tried many salves and liniments; also doctored continuously for the blood, but got no permanent relief, till last winter when my mother got me to try MINARD'S LINIMENT. The effect of which was almost magical. Two bottles completely cured me and I have worked every day since.

Yours gratefully,
JOHN WALSH.

TO ACHIEVE A BEAUTIFUL FOOT.

Very low heeled footwear is inimical to the beauty of foot, instep and ankle. Woman's foot require some support under the bones of the arch which are more delicately adjusted than the bones of a man's foot, so woman should wear a moderately high heel on all her boots, slippers and boudoir mules from girlhood to old age, if she desires to retain an arched instep, a trim slender ankle and a sprightly step.

Some women who are very proud of their feet never wear slippers at all out of their bedrooms or occasionally with a dinner gown. For walking, dancing, and standing about in formal costume, button boots that support the ankle are donned, and the high buttoned boot now so fashionable, comes in many fetching styles and shoes that one may suit every need of the day's occupation with correct and yet comfortable footwear.

The feet should be bathed in hot water at night and dipped in cold water in the morning, to keep the flesh firm and resistant. Feet bathed only in hot water are apt to be soft and flabby, and easily acquire corns and callous flesh. Once a week rub the soles of the feet with half a lemon. Then rub a little vaseline into the skin with the palms of the hands. Callous places should be kept down with a bit of fine sandpaper or a man-cure file, but the foot treated to a dash of cold water once a day and rubbed with vaseline and lemon once a week will not be likely to acquire callous places.

The toes may be massaged at the tips to keep them tapering and supple, and the nails may be treated like the nails of the fingers, a bleach being applied with an orange stick under the rounded ends of the nails and the outside being pushed back carefully to preserve the curve at the base of the nail.

Stick to the beach and latte and drill; The paws from over there is fine. But let us slackening of will—No idle hand or wheel that's still—Weaken our far-flung battle line. On what the cause so well-bought. Who stops to-day, assists the Hun.

Good news is now our joy to read. But let it not our senses dull; We have not passed our hour of need. We must not pause nor slacken speed. Nor tarry in the battle's full. We must keep pace with them who make Each line advance for freedom's sake.

Until the victory is complete. We must not count the danger o'er; We must not shake the furnace heat. Nor come to toll with lagging feet. The things we make are needed sore. Drive home the blow! Let no wheel cease. Until the Hun shall beg for peace.

Victims of "Triumph" in C. B. Port.

A Cape Breton Atlantic Port, Friday.—The trawler Triumph is armed with two machine guns and manned by a crew apparently as conversant with the French language as with the English tongue, according to Captain Raoul Royer, master of the St. Malo banker Notre Dame de la Garde, who, with 18 members of his crew, arrived here last night on the tugboat M. O'Toole, which picked them up at another small port on this coast where they had landed earlier yesterday after rowing about the North Atlantic in dories for over 24 hours.

Held Up By Armed Trawler.

Capt. Royer told The Record's correspondent that he had told the authorities the he was held up on a certain noted fishing ground, not far from here, by an armed trawler which was flying the English flag and consequently was enabled to approach closely without arousing suspicion. When nearly alongside, the stranger ordered the crew of the schooner to quit their vessel within 10 minutes. After the men got in their dories a boat's crew from the raider visited the schooner and sank her with three bombs.

Captain and Mate Questioned.

The captain and mate of the Notre Dame were ordered on board the trawler, where they were closely questioned in excellent French by the officers of the trawler. Finally they were allowed to leave the scene of the sinking, and, after 24 hours at the oars, made a small port on the Cape Breton coast from whence they were brought here by the tug. Nine other survivors of the schooner landed in dories at another small port, and are on their way here now.

Armed With Machine Guns.

Captain Royer said that in the excitement of the moment he did not notice the name of the raider, but had no doubt that the trawler was the Triumph which has sprung into such notoriety during the past few days. One thing he did notice was that she was armed, not with cannon of any size, but with two machine guns. During the time he and the mate were on the trawler's deck they could see a large submarine on the surface about half a mile away. When they left in their boats for the coast the trawler joined the submarine, and the two moved away, steering to the eastward.

1,400 Quintals of Codfish.

The Notre Dame de la Garde was a schooner of 260 tons, belonging to St. Malo, France, and had 1,400 quintals of cod on board when she was sunk. The French Consul is looking after the interests of her crew. The crew of the American schooner Sylvania, who landed here yesterday, have been forwarded by the United States Consul to their homes in the States.

"How's Fishing?" Asks Triumph, Then Sank Ship.

A Cape Breton Port, Aug. 24.—French and American fishermen whose vessels were sunk by the raider Triumph a few days ago arrived here on Friday from another Cape Breton harbor, where they had previously landed, and told a graphic story of the surprise attack upon them by the converted trawler.

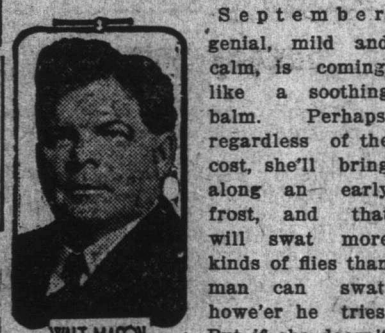

The two fishing vessels were on the banks when the Triumph, in the guise of a friendly craft, came within easy hailing distance of one of them and called "How's the fishing?" Without waiting for an answer the officer on the trawler pulled a revolver and pointing it at the captain of the fishing schooner ordered him and his crew to take to the boats in 10 minutes. Meanwhile, a submarine had come to the surface and lay about a mile distant.

The crews of both the fishing craft obeyed the command, having no other course open to them, and the Germans boarded the vessels. First the French flag, which one of the vessels was flying, and the American flag on the second, were pulled down. Then bombs were placed in the vessels and they were sunk.

The survivors reaching here told of six other vessels sunk near their own. The sailors from these other boats have already landed at Nova Scotia ports.

SEPTEMBER COMING.

September, genial, mild and calm, is coming, like a soothing balm. Perhaps, regardless of the cost, she'll bring along an early frost, and that will swat more kinds of flies than man can swat, however he tries. But if she doesn't bring that boon she'll soothe our spirits pretty soon; she'll heal, with breezes cool and sweet, our chigger wounds and prickly heat. September comes, so don't depend, but save the coin to buy a bond; the fourth big war loan will appear before October's dawn is here, and in the crisp September air we surely ought to do our share. For then we're full of pep and snap, and fit for frolic or for scrap, and we can hustle up the mon, and look upon the stunt as fun. The summer is a long ordeal; like false alarms all people feel; they're wiled and they're all run down; ah, then it's hard to chase through town to rustle seeds for any cause, however good it is or was. But in September, when the breeze puts ginger in our spines and knees, and makes us feel like yearling colts, exertion brings no jars and jolts. And we can dig up many bones, and welcome Uncle Sam, his loans, and start the autumn feeling right, our consciences all shining bright.

Fads and Fashions.

A French blue voile frock has collar and cuffs of corise voile. Nothing is prettier than the bell style for transparent sleeves. One can hardly tell the new fall coats from the coat dresses. The new Georgette blouses are embroidered in silk carpet stitch. Clifton frocks and silk gowns have insertions of dyed crochets. A dainty fan is of rose-point lace mounted on carved ivory sticks.

In Memory

OF CAPT. GUS O'BRIEN.

The Blue Puttees Boys are holding a service for the fallen hero of the Boer War, who sailed away on the Florizel to fight the foe for the Motherland.

And we welcome them with all our heart. We glory in the deeds they've done. They've won a place for Newfoundland among the greatest nations 'neath the sun.

Yet, whilst rejoicing, still we feel the pang of grief as the lads go by. For in the ranks we do not see That dear old chum of yours and I. They say 'him' that that great big drive.

He paid the price to keep us free. Thy call 'o' Death, but still he lives. As in days of old, in sweet memory. St. John's, Aug. 28, 1918. P.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 30. It declares that the surrender of Rova, which is a mere heap of ruins was unimportant from a military point of view.

"CANTON" Account Registers!

Merchants everywhere realize that to be successful, and to get best results from their business, they must do the largest possible volume of business with the least help. This is the reason why so many Computing Scales, Cash Registers, Oil Tanks, Meat Slicers, Cheese Cutters, etc. are being sold. All these specialties are expensive and it pays to buy the best made. Bookkeeping in any business is an expensive proposition. Any system which will make bookkeeping easier and avoid mistakes is of great value. Many Account Registers of various styles have been placed on the market, they have proven very valuable in saving time and avoiding mistakes. It was found however that in order to be of real value, any account register must be kept in a fireproof cabinet.

At present the market is flooded with so-called "fireproof" cabinets containing Account Registers. The walls of most of these cabinets are so thin, they cannot possibly resist an ordinary fire. Some of them have glass covers which are easily broken. Some have different compartments requiring transfer of accounts from one compartment to the other, all of which takes time.

The "Canton" Register has recently been placed on the market which overcomes most of these difficulties. It consists of a strong, well-made metal cabinet. The walls are made of special heat-resisting material, and are double, with one inch air space between; this gives much better fire protection. It contains receptacles in which may be filed account slips or in which a separate book may be kept for each customer. No index is required and only one writing is necessary. These cabinets are made in different sizes. For instance: our one hundred account cabinet contains space for one hundred steady customers, also for an equal number of transient or occasional customers. This cabinet occupies a counter space of 13 1/4 by 20 inches and is 24 inches high. They are built in six sizes at following prices delivered to your store:—

100 account	24 inches	$137.00
200 "	26 "	$158.00
300 "	28 "	$222.00
400 "	30 "	$255.00
500 "	32 "	$340.00
600 "	34 "	$390.00

To give an idea of the substantial construction of these registers we might state that our 300 Account Register weighs about 265 lbs. This Register was patented November 21st, 1916, and is the last word in fireproof cabinet construction. Any standard pads or sale book can be used.

French Red Cross Fund.

Acknowledgment and Note of Thanks From French Consul, Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I wish to acknowledge receipt from Mrs. K. Emerson, Hon. Treasurer, of $5,475.06, being the net proceeds of the "French Fund" this year, and I avail myself of this opportunity to thank Mrs. K. Emerson for her good offices in this connection. This amount has been transmitted to the French Office in Paris in a cheque purchased at the Bank of Montreal of this city.

I also wish to publicly express my gratitude to all the ladies and gentlemen who so generously contributed to this splendid success, especially to: H. E. the Governor and Miss Armorel Harris, whose distinguished patronage was kindly given from the start; Colonel Rendell and Hon. Tasker Cook, who has been in the forefront this year as well as last year; Sir P. T. McGrath, who, as a member of the French Fund Committee, kindly undertook the advertising, and the Editors of the Daily Press, in the same connection.

In the matter of the Bannerman Park Concert: The Municipal Council and Mayor Gosling, for permission to use the grounds; the C. L. B. and C. C. C. bands and Bandmasters Morris and A. Bulley; Dr. V. Burke, Captain Tait and his men, for the military; the W. P. A. ladies who, under the advice of Mrs. Gosling and Mrs. John Harvey, so generously contributed to the sale of refreshments, particularly Mrs. Alford and Miss Mackay, Miss Cashin, Mrs. Squires, Mrs. Fraser, Mrs. Duley, Mrs. Sterling and Miss Furlong.

For the Flower Day, I am sorry that it is not possible to name all the ladies who sold or supplied flowers for our wounded, and I must be satisfied to offer my heartfelt thanks to the convenor, Mrs. Charles Mackenzie Harvey, who managed the whole affair on her own and made it a record success, the proceeds being the largest amount contributed towards the Fund this year. Special thanks are also due Mrs. John Browning, who so skillfully managed the advertising part.

In the matter of the Subscription List: The Board of Trade, the Director Mr. Winter and Secretary Mr. Payne, and so many of the prominent business firms of St. John's.

For the Sale of Work and Garden Party held at Quinipiac, Mrs. Cooper, promoter, Mrs. Charles Emerson for the use of her beautiful grounds, and all the ladies who helped in selling or buying.

Least, but not least, the general public, who met our various appeals with such a ready response.

To all I tender by best thanks and hope to be soon able to publish the corresponding acknowledgment of the French Government.

Yours sincerely,
P. SUZOR,
French Consul.

At Rest.

Yesterday afternoon, the funeral of the late Miss Florrie Ryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan of Theatre Hill, took place, a large number of friends attending. The remains were enclosed in a handsome casket, which was literally covered with floral offerings from friends of the deceased young lady. At the Cathedral, the prayers for the dead were read by Rev. Dr. Carter, and interment followed in the family plot, at St. John's Cemetery. Among the mourners were: Mrs. M. F. Cashin and J. D. Ryan, many prominent citizens. The arrangements were looked after by Undertaker J. T. Martin.

In the present temper of the American people, manifest sympathy for many will have little effect. BIG BEN is a house-

All Westclox Alarms run true

The Western Clock Company builds them in the patented West-clox way—the better method of clock making that won Big Ben's success. Needle-fine pivots of polished steel greatly reduce friction.
Westclox run on time and ring on time.

That's why they say "Westclox are best clocks." And you will, too, so look for that family name, Westclox, on the dial of the alarm you buy.

of gentle breeding and brave manhood. When it is used as camouflage to hide the mean little soul of an ill-mannered boor it becomes about as desirable a distinction as the Iron Cross.

Premier Clemenceau is confident that America will give the Germans the knockout blow and that the war will be over within a year. These are his statements to Senator Lewis, of Illinois, recently. It begins to look as if the great German war machine had broken down for keeps and M. Clem-enceau's prediction may be nearer fulfillment than we think.

Major Hingston, S.J., a Chaplain of the Canadian Army who is in Boston at present states in an interview that the atrocities of the German soldiers are beyond belief and that their hatred of the Cross has been demonstrated by their savage attacks upon every structure which bears the symbol of forgiveness. Speaking of Marshal Foch Father Hingston says that the great soldier is a man of deep religious feeling and does not allow a day to pass without receiving the Sacraments. Foch, he says, firmly believes that Providence through the intercession of Joan of Arc, intervened at the first Battle of the Marne and drove back the German hordes. A materialist will scoff at such a belief, but to those possessed of a deep religious faith there is nothing wonderful in the statement. Certain it is that the Battle of the Marne was a miracle of warfare, and able generalship on the part of the French is not the answer, as the German forces were overwhelmingly superior both in guns and men. What was it that suddenly paralyzed the German effort when victory according to all the rules of warfare should be in the grasp of the Hun? Explain it how we may the Battle of the Marne was something entirely different from our preconceived ideas of warfare. It was thinking mind the great onslaught partook of the supernatural. As Hauptlet says "there are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio, than are dreamed of in your philosophy," and it is pleasant to think that the God of hosts was on the side of glorious France on that momentous occasion.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—I notice that the Food Control Board is calling for a meeting of the Importers of Cheese and Butter, but, sir, if they are going to put out more laws as a result, like the Board has re sugar, it is time for some one to get a leather medal made for each of them, as a more silly thing was never put to the public.

What is it for, anyway? It would require a Philadelphia lawyer to pick out what they are after.
Surely they don't think it is car-tailment.
The law says that not more than 50 pounds is to be sold or bought at one time or in instalments, but please note that a person can buy the fifty and it does not say that they may not buy one lot on Saturday night and another on Monday morning.

Perhaps that is what they were after to give the Hon. Patrick and a few others a chance to lay in a good stock, while some of the rest of us that cannot afford to lay out a large sum on Sugar but who have to buy it in small lots will go short.

Where is the family that requires more than 50 pounds, and with this law there is no limit as there is no time stated when a person can buy the second fifty.

Of course if persons want 55 pounds they have to apply to the Board and they will be able to check them if they apply too often but in those times there are not many that can afford to lay out a large stock like this and there should be some limit to the time.

Had there been, there would have been some sense in it, but now it is a farce and ought to be kept in the Museum for future generations to see what THREE LEVEL HEADED GEN-TLEMEN (?) of the 19th Century put to the Dominion as governing the sale of a commodity that everyone knows is scarce and ought to be willing to do with as little as possible.

What do you find now as a result of this? Why, sir, there are families that have bought over their usual quantities and have enough to last them for months.

If the Sugar question is so critical why not put the limit to 20 pounds, and this to last an ordinary family of say 5 persons a month, or better to allow them as they are in the States so much to each person per month.
This would be to my mind the most sensible way and not like this, as it

Obituary.

MRS. JOSEPH FRELICH.

To-day we chronicle with sincere regret the sudden passing of Mrs.
Joseph Frelich, which occurred at the residence of her brother-in-law, Mr.
S. Frelich, 59 Prescott Street, at 4:30 yesterday afternoon. The deceased lady arrived at the home of Mr. Frellich and was chatting pleasantly, apparently in the best of health, when suddenly she was overcome and fell to the floor. Quickly a doctor was called for, but nearly every doctor in town was phoned for before Dr. Arch Tait was reached. Examination showed that death had intervened, caused through apoplexy, and which had occurred almost instantly and without pain. Mrs. Frelich, who was in her 25th year, was a native of Crainstochawa, Russian Poland, and came to Newfoundland five years ago. A husband and two children, to whom we extend sympathy, are left to mourn.
The funeral takes place from the residence of Mr. S. Frelich, 59 Prescott Street, at 2:30 p.m., Sunday. No flowers.

DAYTON Money Weight Scales!

After deciding to locate in Newfoundland, we wished to obtain agency for the best computing scale made. We visited all the leading cities of the United States and Canada as far west as Chicago. We visited three computing scale factories, all of which offered us their agency. We talked with hundreds of users of various types of computing scales. The result of our investigation showed us that the Dayton Money Weight Scale was absolutely the best computing scale made, and that it would outwear any two computing scales of the swinging pendulum type.

We therefore closed the contract for the sale of Dayton Scales and have sold a number of them in St. John's and the various outports. Every scale sold is giving perfect satisfaction.

We are also agents for the Dayton Silent Meat Slicer and Dayton Cheese Cutter.

Electric Lighting For Outports!

For a number of years there has been a growing demand for a satisfactory electric lighting system for use in the outports. There are dozens of so-called "farm lighting systems" on the market. Almost without exception they are unable to produce a steady flickerless current, without first charging storage batteries and then taking the lighting current from the batteries. In using this system they are up against many difficulties—batteries of fair capacity are expensive; they require constant attention. When they are new, about 15 per cent of the current is lost when passed through batteries; after one or two years this proportion rapidly increases; this means that a large proportion of the current is wasted; batteries that will produce 110 volt current are very expensive, therefore the manufacturers of most battery systems use what is known as low-voltage. A low-voltage current will only give a satisfactory light when used close to the battery. If the current is carried by wires to other buildings a short distance away, a great deal of energy is lost and it gives a poor light.

Low-voltage systems cannot use standard lighting equipment such as lamps, electric fans, electric irons, electric toasters, etc., but require special low-voltage apparatus from the factory.

After comparing the various lighting systems on the market, we found one that overcomes all these difficulties. It is known as the Unielectric Lighting Machine, which is the only machine of its kind made. It consists of an engine specially designed for electric lighting purposes, directly attached to a special dynamo and electric governor. This outfit will produce a steady flickerless 110 volt current without having to depend on batteries; it will use all standard equipment in common use. Wires can be run from the engine in any direction up to two thousand feet without change.

Three of these lighting machines have been in use in Newfoundland. Monsignor Readon, Placentia, lights Church and Foundland from one to two years and are giving perfect satisfaction; Rev. Father Maher, St. Lawrence, lights Church, Presbytery, Convent and School; G. C. Fearn & Son, Placentia, light their shop, office, fish stores, saw mill, blacksmith's shop and ship yard. We have also ordered for them an electric lighting machine to be run by current from Unielectric machine and to be used in shipbuilding.

We are now installing the Unielectric Lighting System for Mr. Fred Ayre in his country residence. The Unielectric Corporation of Detroit are doing their best to supply the demand for these machines, but do not expect to be able to furnish them at present prices except for a very short time. They have promised us three more machines at present prices if orders are sent in promptly.

Anyone interested in the best country lighting system ever made will receive one of our catalogues and full information by writing us.

The Unielectric Engine is built for continuous service. The engine is equipped with the sliding sleeve valve and is guaranteed for five years.

A small inexpensive battery can be attached to wires to allow the use of a few lights when machine is not in operation.
