A Tip to Hubby—
Bet you never thought of it, but isn't it just a wee bit selfish to sit there in your big chair, your feet upon the fender, pipe-dreaming, while that little housekeeper of yours works over a sink full of messy pots and pans or finishing up the day's odds and ends? Have a heart, help her keep those rosy cheeks of hers. Be a real sport, step into Stewart's Fancy Bakery and ask for a loaf of Stewart's Homemade Bread, it's the best. Also Xmas Cakes, Mince Pies, Ladies' Fingers, Pastry Shells, Oyster Pattie Shells, etc. Take it home and tell her to quit baking. If it's anything fancy in the baking line Stewart's have it.

The Romance OF A Marriage.

CHAPTER IV.

'At any rate,' she says, with a smile, 'he must have a high opinion of me—a young girl who goes out alone at night and waits with strange young gentlemen! Oh, he must think very highly of me. Well, it is as much as I deserve. I wonder what Alice would say if she knew? I expect the roof would come off. And now I wonder how long they will be?'

And while she wondered she fell asleep; fell asleep in the old arm-chair, Bob's chair. Her head had fallen back, the thick coils of her fair hair unloosed and letting their wealth flow over her shoulders; her beautiful face 'veiled in slumber,' as a poet has it.

Herrick Powis thought her beautiful when he saw her in the Court gardens—he would think her more beautiful still if he could see her now. The Sleeping Beauty who was roused to life by the Prince's kiss could not have looked more beautiful, more enticing than she looked now.

Then there came the sound of wheels, and Bob's voice, instead of the prince's, awoke her.

'Hallo, Paula!' he exclaims, entering the room. 'Asleep, eh? Why didn't you go to bed? What a fat you were to sit up!'

'Oh, you're back, are you?' she says, springing up and shaking the thick hair clear of her face. 'Enjoyed yourself? What's the time?'

'Time? Oh, almost time to get up again. Where's my pipe?'

'Here you are, Bob,' she says, reaching his beloved brier from the mantel-shelf. 'Well, Alice?'

'The Beauty comes in, enveloped in her fleecy dolman, and yawns.

'Beauty, be it remembered, wears a very different aspect going to and coming from the ball. Alice's beauty is not of the endurable kind. A few hours' hard work makes a visible mark upon it.

Somehow the fair face turns yellowish and wan, the golden hair fades into tow; the blue eyes look leaden and heavy, and, as a rule, the temper of Beauty corresponds with Beauty's appearance; but to-night Beauty is triumphant and in the best of humors.

'Up stili!' she says. 'Why didn't you go to bed? Have you been drawn through a hedge backward? Your hair is all down! You look as if you had been dancing all the evening.' A faint flush flies over Paula's face.

'Do I?' she says, quickly. 'Never mind. People who sit up always look more tired than the people sat up for. Of course I have waited. I wanted to hear all about the ball. That's my reward for being virtuous and self-denying!'

Oh, Paula!

'It was a great success,' said Alice, yawning, and crouching into the arm-chair into which she has thrown herself—a great success, a most pleasant evening.'

'And what's your verdict, Bob?'

'Give me a light,' is Bob's answer.

'I'm dying for a pipe. If ever I am so unfortunate as to give a ball, which the gods forefend! I'll take jolly good care to avert the curses of my masculine guests by providing some hole and corner they can smoke in. Haven't had even a cigarette since I started.'

'Robert, don't be idiotic!' says Alice, severely.

'Poor Bob!' murmurs Paula, and she hands him a light, and holds it to his pipe. 'They might have given you a chance of a cigarette.'

'Not even a cigarette,' says Bob, with a groan. 'I thought I smelt one once, and tried to find out where it was, but it must have been a coachman outside.'

'But the supper, Bob?' says Paula, hurriedly.

'The supper wasn't so bad,' he admits; 'but I had to hang on to an old lady—fat, fair, and forty, with a tremendous appetite, and she took up all my time in keeping her supplied; I'll swear she ate six oyster patties, half a lobster—that was mine—and—'

'We don't want to know how much Lady Brabazon ate, Bob; you ought to have been proud to take a lady of title into supper!'

Bob grunts.

'I'll take care to take a lady of no title in next time; then, perhaps, I shall get some supper myself. Is there any liquor of any kind about, Paula? I've had exactly two glasses of Claret-cup; the lady of title—confound her!—drank all the champagne.'

Paula gets some whiskey and water and mixes him a glass.

'Poor Bob!' she says, ruffling his short, yellow locks. 'You've had a hard time of it, it appears!'

'Don't be idiotic, if you please, Paula,' interrupts Alice, severely. 'If Bob has not enjoyed himself, other people have. Other people are not so fond of beer-and-skittles—'

'Only played one game of skittles in my life,' murmurs Bob.

'And it was a most successful evening. I danced every dance.'

'I know. I saw you dancing—' begins Paula, eagerly.

'What!' ejaculates Alice.

'In fancy, I mean,' murmurs Paula, meekly.

'Oh! Yes, every dance. It was a beautiful band—Coote & Tinney's. I wish you had heard it, Paula.'

'Yes. Thank you,' meekly.

'And the floor was perfect.'

'As good as a smooth, gravel walk,' thinks—not says—Paula.

'And—everybody was most attentive,' goes on Alice, smoothing her ruffled hair and eyeing her satin-clad toes. 'Most attentive, especially Stancy de Palmar.'

Here Bob bursts into a laugh.

'Poor Stancy de!' he says. 'If ever there was an idiot—'

'Robert!' exclaims Alice, indignantly.

'Well, it's the truth,' says Bob, eyeing her steadfastly. 'It is, upon my word, Paula. I wish you could have seen him. You know what he usually is, with his drawl and his eye-glasses!'

Paula nods, with a little laugh.

'Well, he was worse to-night. He was, indeed. He couldn't speak three consecutive words without a 'haw, haw,' and the eye-glasses wouldn't stick in his eye, and he'd got on a pair of shiny patent leather boots two sizes too small for him; you could see they hurt him. And his smile! Look here!' and he gets up and limps round the room with a penny stork in his eye. 'Haw, Mith Ethcourt, will you danth thith danth with me? Thankh, awfully obliged. Very good of you. Hot, isn't it? Haw, haw!' There, that's him to the life. I give you my word.'

'Really?' and Paula leans back to laugh at her ease. 'Really, Bob? How delicious! How I should have liked to have seen him. Do it again!'

'No!' exclaims Alice, on whose fair face an angry red is glowing. 'You shall not, Robert. You should be ashamed of yourself! To—enjoy anyone's hospitality and come home to mimic them!'

'But you see,' says the impatient Bob, dropping into his chair, and puffing at his pipe, 'I didn't enjoy it.'

This is unanswerable, and Alice is driven to a little snuff of indignation.

When you wish 'some- thing new to eat' you need BEECHAM'S PILLS. Even when digestion is good, poisons are formed during its processes that unless eliminated irritate mind as well as body.

and I think I shall go up to bed.'

'Do,' they both responded, with suspicious alacrity, and she rises with a little shiver and a yawn.

'Don't let them make too much noise in the morning, Paula; I sha'n't get up to breakfast.'

'Very well,' says Paula, and a faint flush comes into her face. 'Good-night, dear, shall I come and brush your hair for you?'

'No; I'm too tired,' says the beauty. 'Good-night,' and, with another yawn, she takes her candle and departs.

Bob laughs in his slow, silent fashion.

'Dispation doesn't suit Alice,' he says. 'Washes her out. Pity you weren't there, Paula; you'd have enjoyed yourself, no doubt. I thought of you once or twice—'

'Not, really, Bob!' with a little, incredulous laugh.

'Yes, I did,' he says, nodding. 'Fact, Washed you'd been in my place. You see, I was just so much lumber—couldn't dance.'

'Didn't you dance at all?' asks Paula.

'Y—es,' he says, puffing his pipe, 'one dance.'

'Who with?' she demands, bending forward with her elbows on her knees, and her chin on her folded hands, her eyes fixed dreamily on his handsome, honest face.

'Oh,' he says, carelessly—a little too carelessly—with May Palmer.'

'Oh!' says Paula; and Paula's 'oh's' are generally significant. 'With May? That was good of her!'

'So I told her,' he says, starting at the fire-place. 'But she said she didn't mind. Plenty of people wanting to dance with her too.'

'I like May!' says Paula, emphatically. 'She's worth all the Palmers put together. Did she look pretty, Bob?'

'How should I know?' he retorts, stolidly. 'Pretty? Yes, I suppose so. What rum questions you girls ask!'

'I know how she'd look,' says Paula, meditatively. 'Just sweetly, petite and soft and nice, just like the dear little thing that she is! I don't think it right for a sugar-baker to have such a dear little thing like that!'

'You said just now that she was 'sweet,' he says, with a grin.

'And was Stancy de Palmer so attentive to Alice, Bob?'

'I don't know—how should I?—what do you mean? He danced about her a good deal, and got her things to eat and drink, and played the imbecile generally. Hadn't we better get to bed? Did you see to the celt and the puppies?'

'Yes, Bob,' slowly. How is she to tell him about the stranger who is coming to-morrow? And yet she must tell him.

'Well, let's go. You must be tired of sticking up. Jolly dull evening for you all alone here. Come on.'

'Yes, Bob, Oh, Bob!'

'Well!' with a mighty yawn and a stretching of the great-limbs.

'It hasn't been so dull. I—I haven't been alone. That is—'

'Well, what—what on earth's the matter with you?'—staring at her.

'I—I just ran out after I'd seen the celt, Bob, and I met someone. Don't stare so.'

'I wasn't staring. Do you want me to shut my eyes? Well, who was it?'

'A—a gentleman, Bob.'

'Oh, old Jackson about the call? Did you tell him to call in the morning?'

'Yes, I told him to call in the morning; but it wasn't old Jackson. It was a young man. Bob, what do you think: I've seen a Powis!'

'A what?' demanded Bob, as if she had named some strange animal.

'A Powis. At least he said that was his name.'

'Where—here?'

'No—; just outside.' Oh, Paula! 'We met by—by accident. He is coming to call on you to-morrow about the fishing. I told him he might.'

'All right. But what Powis is it?'

'Herrick Powis is his name.'

'Oh!' says Bob, thoughtfully. 'Herrick—Herrick! Don't know that I've heard of him. Oh, yes, by Jove! I have. Well, you've made the acquaintance of a nice specimen!' and he laughs.

'A nice specimen? What do you mean, Bob?' she demands, open-eyed. Bob laughs in his silent fashion for a moment, evidently recalling something that he has heard or known.

'So he is,' he says. 'If all they say is true, all the Powises are a rum lot; but this one—if this is the one—is the rummist and wildest of the lot.'

'Wildest?' incredulously and curiously.

'Yes; a regular bad lot.'

A deep crimson floods the girlish face, and the dark eye-brows arch expressively.

'This isn't the one, then.'

Bob stares.

'How do you know? You said his name was Herrick?'

'Then there must be another Herrick,' she retorts, with an air of conviction. 'This one I met can't be a bad lot, as you call it.'

'And why not, Miss Know-all?'

'Because—because—oh, because he can't be. Why, he's as quiet and—and gentlemanly as a—bishop.'

Bob leans against the mantel-shelf, that he may laugh at his ease.

'What an innocent you are, Paula! As if that had anything to do with it! Why, the quiet ones are always the worst. Quiet as a bishop, was he? That's good!'

Paula's eyes sink and her lips twitch quickly. Certainly, come to think of it, a bishop would not have invited a young lady whom he had met for the first time to dance on a gravel walk with him.

'I'm—I'm sure you're mistaken, Bob,' she says, argumentatively. 'He—he doesn't look bad.'

'They never do,' says Bob, with an air of worldly wisdom that somehow doesn't suit his honest and simple muddled face. 'Don't you know that it has been decided that a certain person never mentioned to ears polite is one of the most gentlemanly men that walk the earth? I tell you, if this man is the Herrick Powis I've heard of—and there can't be two with such a ridiculous name—'

In a Nutshell.

Like the sun, the modern gas fire warms solid objects—such as the furniture of a room or its occupants—without appreciably raising the temperature of the intervening air.

At the same time the products of combustion in their passage up the chimney fire keep the atmosphere in healthy motion.

That is gas fire science and gas fire hygiene in a nutshell.

SCAPA FLOW SINKING A KNOT.

D'ANNUNZIO SATISFIED.

FIUME, Dec. 15. Italy is to have complete sovereignty over Fiume and all provisions of the Treaty of London are to be carried out under the terms of the compact signed by Premier Nitti and D'Annunzio, according to a statement made by D'Annunzio to a press representative. D'Annunzio is declared to consider that all of his ambitions, which resulted in the seizure of Fiume, have been attained and that an agreement signed with Premier Nitti fully guarantees their realization.

NOT THIS SESSION.

LONDON, Dec. 15. Premier Lloyd announced in the House of Commons this afternoon that no Irish bill would be introduced at this session of Parliament. He promised a statement on Monday next giving an outline of the measure.

THE CONFERENCE PROPAGANDA.

LONDON, Dec. 15. Discussion with reference to the conclusion of peace with Turkey and Hungary and the Adriatic question took place during the recent conferences in Downing Street, Premier Lloyd George told the House of Commons today. Further sittings of the Peace Conference and ratification of the treaties already concluded and execution of their clauses also were discussed. The economic and financial situation was examined in detail and in order to remedy the fall in exchange which was prejudicial to the two nations Great Britain has agreed to permit the issue of a French Loan in England. He said the Russian situation was given full consideration. Upon all questions the Allies were in complete agreement, the Premier asserted and the Conference would be resumed at an early date or one convenient for the Premiers of France, Italy and Great Britain and representatives of the United States and Japan in order to formulate proposals for the treaty with Turkey and finally to dispose of the difficulties arising out of the Adriatic situation.

SUNK BY MINE.

BASLE, Dec. 15. Advice received here today from Stettin, say that the steamer Kriemhild met a ship having on board ten persons saved from a wreck. The advice says these persons declared they were on the American steamer Libertelle, 10,500 tons, bound from New York to Emden, which struck a mine and sank. No trace of the rest of the crew of forty men could be found, it was said.

BUNKER RESTRICTIONS CANCELLED.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15. The restrictions against supplying fuel coal to foreign ships were relaxed today by the railroad administration of the foreign vessels which have been held in Atlantic and other ports, since shortage of coal became acute.

TO DISCUSS IMPORTANT WORK.

LONDON, Dec. 15. Viscount Grey, Ambassador to the United States, has been granted leave of absence from Washington in order to come to England and discuss several important questions with the Government. It was announced by Premier Lloyd George at this afternoon's session of the House of Commons.

THE CAUSE EVIDENT.

LONDON, Dec. 15. The Egyptian Premier on whose life an attempt was made in Cairo today is Yussun Pasha who formed a cabinet in November after the existing cabinet had resigned because of dissatisfaction over the appointment of a commission headed by Viscount Milner, Secretary for the Colonies, which recently arrived in Egypt. It is known here that Egyptian Radicals regarded the new Premier with disfavor because he had not taken a stand against Great Britain.

PROHIBITION ACT CONSTITUTIONAL.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15. The wartime prohibition act was held constitutional today by the Supreme Court.

LIVELY TIMES IN CAIRO.

LONDON, Dec. 15. The police and British soldiers frustrated several attempted demonstrations on Wednesday last at Cairo, according to advices received here today. Lorries laden with troops patrolled the streets, the soldiers alighting where ever the crowds gathered. These were dispersed with sticks, the soldiers being obliged to fire over the heads of the crowds occasionally. The residents paraded with carriage and motor cars, giving vent to their usual cries.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE FOR GREY.

LONDON, Dec. 15. Viscount Grey, Ambassador to the United States, has been granted leave of absence from Washington in order to come to England and discuss several important questions with the Government, it was announced by Premier Lloyd George at this afternoon's session of the House of Commons. A successor to Viscount Grey as British Ambassador here probably will not be selected until Viscount Grey returns to England in January and confers with his Government. Lord Grey may decide to retain the post himself it was indicated, if prospects for American ratification of the Versailles treaty brighten and he can carry out his original plans for the re-establishment of the relations of America and Great Britain on a peace basis. The name of Sir Robert Borden was considered as a successor to Lord Reading during the presence of the Canadian Premier in Paris in connection with the Peace conference, it was understood then that he desired to retain his position in Canada. He has been in the habit of making several visits to this country every year for the benefit of his health, however, and it was suggested that the climatic seasons might influence him in considering.

QUAKES IN ALASKA.

JUNEAU, Alaska, Dec. 15. Juneau and vicinity were rocked at 4:10 this afternoon by one of the heaviest earthquakes experienced here in years. Buildings were badly shaken, but no material damage was reported. It is believed the shock centers about Kaimal Volcano near Kodiak and that that volcano may be in eruption again.

French Leaders Play Game of Politics.

The world was astonished a few weeks ago by the announcement sent out of Paris that Gen. Mangin, one of the most brilliant of the French military leaders, had been deprived of the command in the Rhineland.

According to a man who is in close touch with the French military high command in the Rhineland, Gen. Mangin's recall from the occupied territory was caused by Premier Clemenceau's jealousy of the French high command.

The following interview between the Premier and Gen. Mangin is regarded as authentic, there being little doubt that it took place in Paris, whither Gen. Mangin was summoned by Clemenceau.

Being informed of the dismissal from the Rhine command Gen. Mangin asked the "Tiger": "Are you dissatisfied with my service?"

To this Clemenceau replied, "Not at all." "Do you disapprove of my policy on the Rhine?" then asked the general. "Not in the least," was the Tiger's rejoinder, to which Mangin said, "Then do you think I am going to allow myself to be smashed in between two doors without any reason?" Clemenceau, thereupon, gave his reasons for the general's recall and, in the opinion of Mangin's friends, they were not very convincing. Clemenceau, it is reported, said, "Mangin is too smart to be a general, and the army is too devoted to the general. This I consider a danger to the republic."

Gen. Mangin then visited Marshal Foch, to whom he reported his conversation with the Premier, and Foch, it is said, was indignant at the treatment meted out to Mangin. Marshal Foch's relations with the Government, it is reported, are purely formal, and are strictly limited to matters in which the commander-in-chief's advice is sought.

All Games Ball Games.

Have you noticed that in every popular game or sport the ball plays a very important part? No game without a ball, however big the craze for it may be at one time, has ever lasted, says Pearson's Weekly.

Archery, for example, is played without balls, and yet it is almost extinct as a pastime. At one time it was the only recreation in England.

Ball games were first played by the ancient Greeks and Romans, and consisted merely of throwing and catching the ball. This was found to be an excellent method of strengthening the figure and keeping the body healthy. Nowadays most of the games are played with other apparatus. Also there are rules which govern the games.

The most popular of all sports, of course, is football, then comes cricket, lawn tennis, hockey, and so on down to marbles, indoors we have billiards and bagatelle. If you are thinking of inventing a new game, you can count on a bigger chance of success if you include a ball in it.

How Shall We Get It ?

Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Sir,—An advertisement giving a recipe for "ye olde English Christmas cake" appears in the daily papers, and amongst the ingredients there will be noticed two components—one glass wine and one wine does not tell us how we are to procure the quantity of spirits required. A very vital omission. It is well known that under the Prohibition Act, no physician is permitted to issue a script for liquor, except in cases of illness, or at least that is the letter of the law. What a joke it would be then to ask the family doctor for an order to get wine and brandy to put in a cake. Have common sense you good people who advertise, and if you are going to give us the benefit of cooking recipes, for heaven's sake, keep out of them such ingredients as are impossible to obtain, except for those who have well-stocked cellars, or unless the advertiser supplies the spirits, otherwise your good intentions will fail and your magnanimity become a laughing stock and a reproach.
 Yours truly,
 HOUSEWIFE.

Obituary.

MRS. GERALD McHALE.

There is genuine outpouring of sympathy with Gerald McHale, 3 Hennessy street, in the death, as the result of a very severe cold, of his young wife, Nellie May, to whom he was married less than five weeks ago. The two had just established themselves in their pretty little home in one of the new houses on Hennessy street, when the blow fell. Mrs. McHale, who was 25 years of age, was a daughter of Martin Houlihan, late of St. John's, Nfld., of the staff of Longard Brothers, and a niece of Mrs. Wm. Crimp, 22 Long's Hill, and was a very pretty and attractive young woman. Her funeral took place at 3.30 o'clock on Nov. 21st, to Mount Olivet Cemetery, Halifax.

Grand Bank Pier Destroyed.

A great deal of damage was done at Grand Bank, during the storms of last week, and the Western Pier was destroyed by the sea, the debris falling into the gut and practically closing the entrance to other than small craft. This will prove a serious inconvenience to receivers of freight by coastal boats, and will necessitate the landing of same in boats, which can only be done when water is smooth.

Terrible Experience.

The crew of the Lunenburg vessel Verna D. Adams, which went ashore at Ship Head, on Friday morning, had a terrible experience in the storm that raged for the two previous days. When the vessel, which was loaded with coal, struck the rocks, the seams opened up at once, and after a short while the bottom was pounded out of her. The crew were in a desperate state as it was intensely cold. One man was knocked down by the seas and had his arm, leg and shoulder broken, from the effects of which he died. One sailor, aged 17, became crazed and jumped for the shore and was found later, dead, about one mile from the beach. The vessel had a crew of seven men, and the experience of the survivors will never be forgotten. At Argentinia the storm did an immense amount of damage: 8 fishing boats were driven ashore, and badly wrecked. At Placentia two houses were blown down, and a lot of marine damage done. The tide on Sunday night rose so high that people were compelled to wade through three feet of water, which covered the main streets of the town.

"LITTLE PRINCESS" LAUNCHED.
 DAYSPRING, N. S., Dec. 8.—A fine stern schooner named the "Little Princess" was launched from Leary's shipyard on Wednesday, Dec. 3rd. She is about 200 tons register, fitted with all the latest improvements, including gasoline hoisting power for anchor and sails, also Delco Electric Lighting System. She has been purchased by Capt. A. Kean, of St. John's, Nfld., who will use her in the freighting business. The "Little Princess" is now being rigged and will tow to Halifax shortly where she loads for St. John's.

This enterprising firm has launched a number of these fine vessels during the last three years. The keel is being made for another of the same dimensions.

A Destructive Fire.

Two thousand dollars' worth of property was destroyed on Saturday when the tool-ship of Mr. B. Bowering, contractor, was burned. This tool-ship, which was near the new wings of the Government Sanatorium, Topsall Road, which Mr. Bowering is building, contained, in addition to the tools of more than 100 men who have been employed there, $1,000 worth of lumber. Adjoining the building was a small office for the foreman, and it was a stove in this which set fire to the place. Near the tool-house was the institution laundry and if the latter had caught greater damage would have resulted and possibly the Sanatorium itself would have burned. The house was burned to the ground. No insurance was carried on the building or its contents.

A Beautiful Window Display.

Many hundreds of people stopped on Water St. last evening to admire the beautiful display window of Bishop & Son's Gents' furnishing store. In point of interest this is one of the best display windows for the season. Dressed with American festooning and gold and silver glitters, colored lights and gaily tinted articles of apparel, the window presented a most striking picture of splendour and magnificence. Seen for hundreds of feet away by reflection it was the cynosure of every eye that passed and more than one word of praise was uttered. Mr. Mentifia is responsible for the beautiful display.

Violently Insane.

A lumberman working at Grand Falls became violently insane there a few days ago and had to be put in a straight jacket. He was brought to town last evening for admission to the Asylum. The man belongs to Tizzard's Harbor.

An Empire Passes.

The historic Hudson Bay Company has sold its remaining territory in central Canada. Thereby disappears the last remnant of an empire that once comprised the bulk of the present Dominion, and wielded for two centuries absolute political control over this vast region.

In the settlement of British North America, the Hudson Bay Company played an active part. The corporation, known also as "the Governor and Company of Adventurers and English Traders in Hudson Bay," received a charter in 1670 from Charles II, which gave to them "the sole trade and commerce of all those seas, straits, bays, rivers, lakes, creeks and sounds, that lie within the entrance of the straits and invested them also with "complete lordship, legislative, judicial, and executive power."

The traders of the Hudson Bay Company, whose forts pushed deep into the primeval forests, fought many wars with the Indians and French, but contrived withal to maintain a rich import trade in furs, the essential business of the company. Another century of commercial warfare followed the peace with France in 1763, when Wolfe's victory at Quebec decided the Indian and French war. The advance of the political hopes of Canada caused them in 1869 to surrender "all rights of Government authorities" which they had held for 200 years. The company did retain the right to not more than one-twentieth of the so-called fertile area in the farming regions of the Dominion.

Another half century found the advance of agriculture so rapid that their unbroken soil was of no use to them. Animals for whose fur they traded had been driven to the north and west, where the interests of the company followed them. It

WHAT A DISAGREEMENT!

"No, I don't suppose it's much what she says as the way she says it that antagonizes me." "A little friend of mine used the above words of mutual acquaintance." "The M. A. strong for universal suffrage and had been talking to my friend about it." "The latter had been scolding me of the conversation. I had said specifically what the M. A. had said and had had one or two of her arguments repeated to me." "Those doesn't sound so unreasonable," I ventured.

"No, I don't suppose they are," admitted my friend and then she added the words I have quoted above.

What Made Her An Anti.
 "She has such a high, unpleasant face and she talks so fast, and then she's always talking about the beauty of suffrage," she went on. "Honestly, do believe she's about half what she made me an anti-suffragist."

Isn't that an interesting objection on what a disagreeable mannerism can do?

The woman in question is a woman with a very fine mind. She is witty and exceedingly well informed. She ought to be a help to any cause, but because she has these unpleasant mannerisms she has cancelled her usefulness in this instance and is useless in others.

How Mannerisms Change the Course of a Life.
 Disagreeable mannerisms are unquestionably among the tremendous things in life. They make us less out of beauty, discord out of grace, and sometimes change the whole course of a human destiny.

The M. A. is strong for universal suffrage and had been talking to my friend about it, and the latter had been scornfully telling me of the conversation. I had asked specifically what the M. A. had said and had had one or two of her arguments repeated to me.

"Those doesn't sound so unreasonable," I ventured.

"No, I don't suppose they are," admitted my friend and then she added the words I have quoted above.

What Made Her An Anti.

"She has such a high, unpleasant voice and she talks so fast, and then she's always talking about the beauty of suffrage," she went on. "Honestly I do believe she's about half what made me an anti-suffragist."

Isn't that an interesting objection on what a disagreeable mannerism can do?

The woman in question is a woman with a very fine mind. She is witty and exceedingly well informed. She ought to be a help to any cause. But because she has these unpleasant mannerisms she has cancelled her usefulness in this instance and doubtless in others.

New Mannerisms Change the Course of a Life.

Disagreeable mannerisms are unquestionably among the tremendous little things in life. They make ugliness out of beauty, discord out of peace, and sometimes change the whole course of a human destiny.

SELFISHNESS.

If you can step aside to let another pass you on the way

And watch him win the goal he seeks and have no bitter word to say; If you can stop along the road to help another in distress

And never count the time you spend as lost, unto your own success; Then 'twixt all that may befall of failure's frown or fortune's smile—

The clutch of selfishness is strong. Men wish to gain before they give. When we are living at our best we grant another's right to live. But few of us will bear the blows and face the tempest and the storm and shiver with the winter's cold, to keep a fellow being warm.

And few of us will step aside to help by deed or kindly speech. Another man unto the goal which he is striving hard to reach.

If you can step aside and lose your own brief moment to succeed And let its fame and fortune go to help another man in need— Can you your dreams of glory fade and never stop to count the cost And hold the cause which you have served more pressing than the goal you've lost, You've reached the height of manhood here and many prayers your life shall bless And you shall stand before your God as one who conquered selfishness.

The French Champion.

George Carpentier was born at Lens, France, January 12, 1894. He began boxing when only 13 years of age. This was in 1907, when boxing was beginning to be popular and aggressive, and in 1909 scored many victories, defeating among others Charles Ledoux, the French bantamweight champion. During his early ring career Carpentier grew rapidly from a bantamweight to a light heavy weight and beat the European champions in each class as he progressed. His popularity among the French people was unbounded, and he amassed a fortune variously estimated from $200,000 to $500,000. Most of this money he invested in real estate near Lens, where he was born, and he lost everything there by the German invasion. During the war Carpentier was conspicuously daring as an aviator. He was frequently commended by his superior officers and among the many decorations conferred upon him was the military medal, the highest war honor that can be given to a French soldier.

THE MAGAZINES.

I went to buy some magazines, as any sane man would; the merchant showed a can of beans, and said "was just as good." "There are no magazines," he said, "a strike made them suspend; but here's a loaf of graham bread will do as well, my friend. You're not enough of a peacemaker to buy a single mag; but we have codfish, cheese and prunes, and onions in a bag." Alas there are no substitutes for magazines, indeed; I would not give a dozen hoots for life, with naught to read. When magazines are on the stands, appealing to my purse, I paw them o'er with idle hands, and say they're getting worse. But when there are no magazines my nights are flat and gray; I yawn and think of soup tureens until I seek the hay. I miss the gripping, vital tale that used to freeze my blood; and checkers are of no avail, and life's one uplifting screed, which tells how one may rise, though down and out, and gone to seed, and gain a gorgeous prize. An evening without reading means an evening grim and blue; and so I've missed the magazines—no substitutes would do.

Sewer Gas Explosion.

CREATES PANIC AMONG THEATRE GOERS.

New York, Dec. 6.—Hundreds of theatregoers were thrown into a panic last night by an explosion of sewer gas in the White Light District which blew the tops off a score of manholes, sending blue flames leaping above the pavement. The explosion occurred as theatres were opening for evening performances and police reserves had to be summoned to control the frightened crowds.

Hundreds of persons in adjoining buildings rushed into the streets, believing that an earthquake had occurred. Windows were shattered for blocks and electric lights throughout the region were extinguished. A ringing of private burglar alarms added to the confusion. At Broadway and Twenty Seventh Streets a wide crack appeared in the sidewalk.

Several persons were severely injured by flying glass and had to be treated at a Hospital.

AN ONTARIO PROBLEM.—Premier Drury may reduce his own salary, for he is the boss; but how can the two Labor members of the cabinet work for less than the union scale?—Hamilton Herald.

AND BLEW HIS OWN HORN.—A careful examination seems to show that, after all that has been said about it, Gabariele D'Annunzio is the only person who got any self-determination out of the war.—Kansas City Times.

SHREWD OR JOKERS!—The Irishman who turned the exhaust from his illicit still into the chimney of the Royal Irish Constabulary headquarters next door had nothing on the Toronto brewers who used a Women's Christian Temperance Union building as the headquarters of a fully equipped fire water plant.—St. John Globe.

THE RETORT POINTED.—Former King Constantine, from his place of exile in Switzerland, declares that Greece benefited nothing by sticking to the Entente. But by way of compensation it got rid of him.—New York World.

SO SIMPLE.—Simplified spelling is making a lot of progress. To the group-ups who war taut to spel wurdz in the old way the changes being made are somewhat confusing, but that which is a bother to them will prov a blessing to cunning generashums.—Boston Transcript.

THE CLASS CANDIDATE.—Just how a man can assert that he will represent the whole people when he accepts nomination from a class organization and gives that organization the right to force his resignation if it does not agree with his course of action, it is difficult to understand. At the very outset, he becomes the special servant of a particular class, and to hold his position must cater to that class.—Calgary Herald.

No Cause For Alarm

Periodically there arises some scare-monger, seeking notoriety, who by virtue of a little astronomical knowledge prepares for publication a lurid article on what will happen to the earth if certain planetary bodies do certain things, and these articles decorated with display headlines exercise a tremendous effect on neurotic and hysterical persons who invariably fear the worst, and believe implicitly in the truth of such sensational articles, whose charlatanism is all too obvious. The startling stories of the effect the passage of Halley's Comet would have on the world, are not yet forgotten, and dire catastrophies were prophesied of this monster if in its wanderings through space it should happen to come in contact with our globe, but the flaming body passed on its way and the only contact earth received was from the nebulous matter forming the tail, through which this old planet passed without any person, apart from observers and meteorologists, being aware.

The forecast of Professor Albert F. Porta that on tomorrow there would be a terrific weather cataclysm, more destructive than any since the foundations of the world were laid, has had the effect of frightening numbers of people in this city, as well as elsewhere. Many, too many unfortunately, of the hyper-credulous have implicit faith in these predictions made by man, while deriding, ridiculing and treating with contempt the warnings written in the volume of Scripture that "there shall be famine and earthquakes in divers places." But the false prophets who arise and lead many astray, are heeded and trusted, and firm belief is placed in their ravings, because forsooth they claim to have backed them with occult knowledge and the powers of divination and ability to read the lore of the stars. All humanity loves mystery and perhaps that is why so-called revelationists are given the popular ear, and their startling pronouncements taken to heart.

History is filled with stories of panics among peoples, which have placed credence in the utterances of students of the arts of astrology and astrology. So many prophecies have been made of tremendous upheavals, of shifting oceans and removals of mountains, of terrific lightning and thunder storms, of risings of the sea and deluges from heaven, and all the other awe-inspiring phenomena of nature in her wrath, that it is not to be wondered at that superstitious humanity, even in the twentieth century still notes with terror the possibilities and potentialities of what the stars might contain. But, as but few of these forecasted cataclysms have materialised, common sense should take the place of hysteria, when any new disturbance is announced, and faith should not be shaken in the wisdom of the Creator, at whose bidding the forces of nature perform the functions for which they were formed, and must obey the immutable laws that govern them. To every story there are two sides, and the conclusions arrived at by one man, may easily be rendered of no value by another interested in the same science.

That this is so, in the present case under discussion, is furnished by the statement of Professor Truman, an observer of note, who says that the earth is in no danger whatever from the influence of the planets, either upon the sun or the earth, and deprecates the circulation of such terrifying predictions, not only for the disastrous effect they have upon the people, but because when they fail to materialise, science becomes discredited. Having been granted the privilege of publishing Professor Truman's contradiction of the statement of Professor Porta in yesterday's Telegram, we were more than pleased to avail of the favor, believing that it had the effect for which it was intended—to allay any feelings of alarm which doubtless arose from the perusal of the Porta article, and we trust that it had and will have the desired effect, and that no panic will be in evidence to-morrow from people who fear the worst, and refuse to be convinced that all the elemental forces of nature will not be released to bring calamity and devastation upon the earth.

Reid Coaster "Ethie" Lost.

WENT ASHORE AT MARTIN'S PT. BECOMING TOTAL WRECK—CREW AND PASSENGERS O. K.

The Reid Nfld. Co. coaster Ethie has gone ashore at Martin's Pt., 17 miles North of Bonne Bay, and become a total wreck, said a message from Deer Lake, received by the owners last evening. The only particulars in the telegram were to the effect that both passengers and crew had been saved. The news was conveyed from Bonne Bay to Deer Lake by carrier and dog-team.

The Ethie, according to the last message received before the storm interrupted the wires, left Parsons' Pond at 4:10 p.m. on Wednesday last. She had but one trip more to make, when her season's work would have been completed. Considerable freight for Xmas awaited her, and if a substitute steamer is not put on pretty soon big loss is sure to result.

Big Pier for East End.

Two East-End waterfront piers will be taken over and converted into one big one capable of accommodating two 10,000 ton steamers by the A. N. D. Co. of Grand Falls, says a rumour which is given credence by many about town. The rumour goes on to say that the big Paper City Company will erect stores that will be capable of storing many thousands tons of freight. If this is true everybody in the city will be pleased to hear of it.

Ship With a History.

The Canarder Carmania which was in collision with the steamer Maryland off Cape Race, last Wednesday night, is a ship with a history. She carries in her main saloon the Nelson Plate for her victory over the German war vessel Cap Trafalgar in the early days of the war, the Carmania then being an Auxiliary Cruiser.

A Remarkable Record.

For the twenty-fifth consecutive year Mr. Geo. J. Coughlan, of the Inspector General's office, was on Sunday elected Secretary of the T. A. & B. Society. Mr. Coughlan succeeded Sir (then Mr.) P. T. McGrath in 1894, and has held the position ever since. This is a record.

Schooner Grace Darling Lost.

Schr. Grace Darling, N. Dyke master, with a cargo of fish from Flower's Cove for St. John's, parted her chains Thursday night last, Dec. 15th, while riding out the storm, about 7 o'clock. It is generally supposed she was beaten to pieces on Herring Head Shore and the wreckage driven to sea as no trace of anything can be seen. The Captain and crew landed in a boat, and left for St. John's by S.S. Clyde.

Encountered Terrific Weather.

S.S. Crawley, 7,500 tons gross, on her way from Liverpool to Botwood to load pulp and paper, put into port this morning in a damaged condition. 300 miles off the coast the steamer encountered terrific weather, and was obliged to heave to for three days. During the storm the steam steering gear was put out of working order, and recourse had to be made to the hand gear, which also gave out, and a trying time was experienced in making port. Repairs will be effected immediately.

Ice on Curling Rink.

Eighteen degrees of frost last night resulted in a sheet of ice half an inch in thickness forming, and it is hoped that, by next week, those interested in the game of curling will be able to begin this season's sport. From this it would seem that the skating rinks will soon have ice sufficiently good for skating and that the Rinks will open earlier than on last year.

Why He Wept. Heartbreaking wails broke the silence of the quiet thoroughfare, and old Mrs. Goodleigh rushed forth to the rescue. She just couldn't bear to hear a fellow-creature in such distress. She found a small boy outside her gate, both grimy knuckles rubbing his eyes, while from the cherub mouth emerged the most piercing screams. On the pavement a little way ahead sat an elderly gentleman, who was collecting his scattered wits with the aid of strong language. "Bo-hoo!" yelled the boy, in answer to the kind old lady's inquiries. "That man there slipped on a banana, and—boo-boo—" "Come, come, little man," soothed Mrs. Goodleigh, "it's very kind of you to feel so sorry for the poor man, but there is no need for you to be so upset. He isn't hurt, you see."

The "Ferm" Inquiry.

Finding of The Marine Court of Enquiry Into The Stranding of The Steamship "Ferm" at Knight's Cove Point, Bonavista Bay, on the 9th of June, 1919.

The steamship "Ferm," a wooden ship of 972 tons register, gross tonnage 1,579, was built at Sidel, United States of America 1817-1918; the original owner being Jens Blings, Norway.

The "Ferm" was registered in the name of the Newfoundland Shipbuilding Company, Limited, of Harbor Grace at the office of the Registrar of Shipping, St. John's, on the 15th day of February 1919. She was well equipped with boats, compasses, charts, life-saving appliances and had electric light installed. Her coal consumption was sixteen tons per day, and the maximum speed obtained would be about six knots per hour. Her Captain, Rolf Waldemar Linderup, born in Norway, is now a naturalized British subject. He holds a Master's certificate from the British Board of Trade.

The Chief Officer was Perry Parks, Second Officer C. Jorge, Chief Engineer James P. Holt, Second Engineer Thomas Hughes. Including firemen and crew, the ship's company consisted of twenty-six men all told.

The ship was chartered by Eastman, Gardner & Co., Mobile. Her cargo, with a deck load, consisted of Pith Pine and was consigned to Messrs. Stahl & Son, Rotterdam. The Captain received his instructions from Christopher Hannevig of New York.

The ship left Mobile, Alabama, on the 15th day of May of this year, bound for Rotterdam under orders to call at Louisburg, C.B., for bunker coal, and arrived there on June the first. Being unable to procure coal at Louisburg, she proceeded to Sydney, C.B., and arrived there on June 2nd. Before leaving Sydney, it appears, the ship was in a seaworthy condition. She had three hundred and fifty tons of coal in her bunkers and a reserve of thirty tons on her deck.

The "Ferm" sailed on her voyage to Rotterdam on June 5th, the weather was fine and clear. Cape St. Mary's on the South Coast of Newfoundland, was sighted, and subsequently Cape Race was made, and ahead, at 1.30 a.m., on the 8th of June. A course was then set to pass Cape Spear and Cape St. Francis on the East Coast of Newfoundland, thence through the Tickle between Baccalieu Island and the mainland, thence North to Cape Bonavista, with the apparent intention of making Cape Bonavista the point of departure. This decision calls for severe comment, and, in my opinion, was a most unusual one for the ship to steer especially as quite a number of icebergs were seen after passing Cape Race, and in view of the fact that the Captain had not provided himself with a copy of the Sailing Directions, and that he was totally unacquainted with the coast and prevailing ice conditions. In this opinion I am supported by the evidence of Captain Taylor and Captain Couch. It may be observed here that the passage through Baccalieu Tickle is never used except by small coastal craft or steamers, and in a ship like the "Ferm," the passage should not have been used.

After passing through Baccalieu Tickle, field ice was encountered and coal, and arrived there on June the first. Being unable to procure coal at Louisburg, she proceeded to Sydney, C.B., and arrived there on June 2nd. Before leaving Sydney, it appears, the ship was in a seaworthy condition. She had three hundred and fifty tons of coal in her bunkers and a reserve of thirty tons on her deck.

The reason put forth by the Captain for making Cape Bonavista his point of departure, that "by taking the northern course he would have approximately one hundred and twenty miles of nothing in hand" should be encountered. N.W. winds "and be forced to run to the southward," is correct, as far as the distance is concerned, with the possibility of encountering strong wind from that direction; but the theory of departing from the definite route as laid down on the chart, on the assumption of a problematical wind, is unsound. His statement (R. W. L., 17) that coal is difficult to obtain at the Western Islands may be correct, but the ship had her bunkers full and a reserve of thirty tons on her upper deck, a total of three hundred and eighty tons, her coal consumption being sixteen tons per day.

Taking the distance from Sydney to Cape Race as about three hundred miles, and from Cape Race to the Scillies as about eighteen hundred and seventy miles, at a speed of four knots, the ship would have, under ordinary conditions, a balance of about fifteen to twenty tons of coal upon arrival at the Scillies. By taking the northern route, and making Cape Bonavista the point of departure, the Captain increased the distance by approximately ninety miles. The distance from Cape Race to Bishop Rock (Scilly Islands) is one thousand eight hundred and seventy miles; from Cape Bonavista to Bishop Rock one thousand eight hundred and thirty-one miles; add one hundred and twenty-eight miles from Cape Race to Cape Bonavista and you have one thousand nine hundred and fifty-nine, or eighty-nine miles increase over the direct and regular course.

The Crown having desired the opinion of the Court on certain questions, they are here set out in detail, the answer following each question.

1. Was the steamship "Ferm," when she left Sydney, C. B., on June 5th, 1919, on a voyage from that Port to Rotterdam, Holland, manned with a competent crew and properly and sufficiently equipped for such a voyage?

(A) The ship was properly manned and equipped.

2. Did the Captain act properly and with due care and skill in the matters following:

(a) In hauling in to St. Mary's Keys?

(A) There appears to have been no necessity to close St. Mary's Keys as the weather was fine and visibility good.

(b) In shaping his course northward from Cape Race and proceeding to Cape Bonavista?

(A) Decidedly not; there was no justification for taking this course.

(c) In not going south and east when he discovered heavy ice to the northward?

(A) No; he should have avoided the ice.

(d) In continuing to proceed northward when the ship was in ice in the vicinity of Baccalieu?

(A) No.

(e) In not then stopping, going back or proceeding to the nearest safe port?

(A) He should not have attempted to force his way through the ice. He should have stopped and turned back.

(f) In not making, or attempting to make some safe port after he discovered the ship to be leaking badly on the morning of June 9th?

(A) He did not apparently make any endeavour to save his ship.

(g) In not jettisoning the deck cargo in order to lighten the ship?

(A) An attempt should have been made to jettison the deck cargo.

(h) In waiting until the tide was high to put the ship ashore?

(A) High tide is not suitable for beaching a ship owing to the difficulty of getting her off again, and if the Captain could wait until high tide to beach his ship, he could have gone into some harbour.

(i) In not flying any distress signals or endeavouring to obtain assistance of any sort?

(A) The Captain should have flown distress signals.

(j) In not making any attempt to communicate with, or gather information from, any of the nearby inhabitants?

(A) Every endeavour should have been made to obtain information from the inhabitants of King's Cove, some of whom were out in their boats near the ship.

(k) In putting the ship ashore?

(A) There did not appear to be any immediate necessity to beach the ship. She could have been anchored and lightened.

3. Was the place where the ship was beached, a suitable place for that purpose?

(A) It was unsuitable in so much as it was unnecessary to beach the ship so far away from means of assistance.

4. Was there any more suitable place available for that purpose?

(A) King's Cove would have been more suitable where the vessel could have been anchored.

5. What, in the opinion of the Court, was the cause of the ship springing a leak on the morning of the 9th?

(A) By forcing through and striking heavy pieces of ice.

6. Were any measures taken to stop or check the inflow of water after the ship began to leak?

(A) No.

7. Was everything reasonably possible done for that purpose?

(A) Nothing was done by the Captain or crew to check the inflow of water.

8. Were all necessary and proper measures taken to save the ship and cargo between the time the ship began to leak and the time she was put ashore?

(A) Nothing whatever was done.

9. Were all necessary and proper measures and precautions taken by the Captain for the protection and preservation of the ship and cargo after she was put ashore?

(A) The Captain took certain measures for the protection of the ship, but not all that was necessary. It was inadvisable to discharge all the crew. The Court is of opinion the stranding of the Ferm was the fault of the Master. The ship was not navigated with proper care and skill; that a safe and proper course was not steered after, and when, Cape Race was a-beam on June the eighth.

MILLEY'S

No careful or experienced navigator, no matter what may be the speed of his ship, or the necessity to economize his coal supply, would have adopted this course.

Having made Cape Race, the Captain should have shaped his course by the great circle route to make the Scilly Islands. Instead of this, he came up the East Coast of Newfoundland to Cape Bonavista, which is considered a most dangerous headland to approach, as innumerable rocks are scattered profusely about this part of the coast, and especially with the presence of field ice and numerous icebergs, which he could not avoid encountering.

Considering all the facts disclosed in relation to the departure of the S. S. Ferm from her proper course at Cape Race, and her subsequent stranding at Knight's Cove Point, Bonavista Bay, the Captain's certificate is hereby suspended for a period of twelve months from this date.

In view, however, of his previous good record, and certain meritorious services rendered by him to the Empire during the war time, we recommend that he be allowed a Chief Mate's Interim Certificate during the term of suspension.

Dated at St. John's, this 11th day of December, A.D., 1919.

Why Do They Call It Pin Money?

This expression originally came from the allowance which a husband gave his wife to purchase pins. At that time pins were dreadfully expensive so that only wealthy people could afford them and they were saved so carefully that in those days you could have looked along the pavement and found a pin when you happened to be in need as you can and often do today.

By a curious law, the manufacturers of pins were only allowed to sell them on January 1st and each year and when the days came around the men whose husbands could afford to secure pin money from them and get out and get their pins.

Pins have become so very cheap in these days that we are rather careless with them, but the expression has come to mean any allowance which a husband gives a wife for her personal expenses.

Pins were known and used as long ago as 1437 A. D. They were introduced into England in 1540. In 1824 an American named Mott invented a machine for making pins which enabled them to be manufactured cheaply. About 1500 tons of iron and brass are used in pins every year in the United States.

England to the Sea.

(E. R. Verne in London Times.)
Hearken, O Mother, hearken to thy daughter!
Fain would I tell thee what men tell to me,
Saying that henceforth no more on any water
Shall I be first or great or loved or free.

But that these others—so the tale is spoken—
Who have not known thee all these centuries
By fire and sword shall yet turn England broken
Back from thy breast and beaten from thy seas.

Me—whom thou barest where thy waves should guard me,
Me—whom thou suckledst on thy milk of foam,
Me—whom thy kisses shaped what while they married me,
To whom thy storms are sweet and ring of home.

"Behold," they cry, "she is grown soft and strengthless,
All her proud memories changed to fear and fret."
Say, thou, who hast watched through ages that are lengthened, Whom have I feared, and when did I forget?"

What sons of mine have shunned thy whorls and races?
Have I not reared for thee time and again
And bid go forth to share thy fierce embraces Sea-ducks, seawolves, sea-rovers, and sea-men?

Names that thou knowest—great hearts that thou holdest,
Rocking them, rocking them in an endless wake—
Captains the world can match not with its boldest, Hawke, Howard, Grenville, Frobisher, Drake?

Nelson—the bravest of them all—the master
Who swept across thee like a shooting star,
And, while the Earth stood veiled before disaster,
Caught Death and slew him—there—at Trafalgar?

Mother, they knew me then as thou didst know me;
Then I cried Peace, and every flag was furled,
But I am old, it seems, and they would show me
That never more my peace shall bind the world.

Wherefore, O Sea, I standing thus before thee,
Stretch forth my hands unto thy surge and say:
"When they come forth who seek thy empire o'er thee,
And I go forth to meet them—on that day."

God grant to us the old Armada weather,
The winds that lift the heavens that stoop and lour—
Not till the Sea and England sink together Shall they be master! Let them boast that hour!"

CANADA SHIPS $10,000,000 GOLD TO NEW YORK.
New York, Dec. 12.—The Canadian government is shipping $10,000,000 in gold to this city, it was announced today. The shipment, which is purely a Canadian government matter, and has nothing to do with the British government, is said to be for the purpose of meeting some obligations here and also to check the depreciation in Montreal exchange.

Canadian exchange yesterday underwent a sensational decline of $48.75 per $1,000 which carried the rate to $110, or a premium of 11 per cent on dollars in Montreal.
Sale of Canadian grain bills is believed to have accentuated the weakness in exchange rates. This is the largest import of gold from Canada since last June. The gold will be sold on arrival to the Federal Reserve Bank.

Blundering Germany and the Tourist.

Taxing tourists is not a new practice in Europe; foreign hotel guests before the war usually found a small extra charge tucked away in their bills as a reminder of their different status. But doubling and tripling prices for foreigners, as German merchants and hotel-keepers are doing, amounts to the imposition of excess surtaxes which are a disagreeable novelty in the process of charging tourist traffic all it could bear. The excuse, of course, is the discriminatory rate of exchange under which the purchasing power of the American dollar is enormously increased, to the corresponding disadvantage of Germans who have only marks to buy with. But it is not inconceivable that the excuse is father to a perfect willingness to penalize enemy visitors in any manner. It is a characteristically German method of "getting even," but will it pay in the long run? Other countries, it may be supposed, will hardly take the trouble to retaliate with similar tourist taxes, as being economically unsound. No doubt from the beginning of travel the stranger within the gates has been legitimate game for native shopkeepers. A two-price system has long existed in European capitals for his express benefit. But oppressive direct taxation of this order merely defeats its object. It is best for the business or any country that foreign buyers shall come and go on conditions of perfect equality. As respects Germany's own economic rehabilitation, it would be more profitable in the end for Berlin hotel-keepers to offer free board to foreign guests than to seek to "soak" them with prohibitive charges.—Exchange.

Some War Figures.

MOST TERRIBLE LOSS OF LIFE IN HISTORY OF WORLD.
There were nineteen major wars fought in the world in the 117 years from 1793 to 1910. The late war cost 50 per cent. more in money spent than the whole nineteen other wars put together.
The most costly in lives of the previous wars was that between England and France, 1793-1815, a total of 1,900,000 men having perished.
Next came the war of 1854-56, in which Britain, France, Sardinia, Turkey, Austria and Russia fought; 609,797 men were killed.
The more recent war between Russia and Japan came third, claiming the lives of 555,900 men.
In the American Civil War both sides together lost 494,400 men, ranking fourth in loss of life in the great wars previous to the late one.
In the struggle between France and Germany, so disastrous to France, and which played a very important part in the recent peace settlement, 311,000 lives were lost.
Canadians who remember or have read of the American Rebellion, of Gettysburg, of Pickett's charge, or Sherman's march to the sea, of Andersonville, have been wont to look on it as one of terrible slaughter—and it was.
But Russia alone lost more than three times as many men in the late war as were lost by both the North and the South in the Civil War.
Germany lost more than three times as many.
Great Britain lost nearly twice as many.
Austria lost nearly twice as many.
So great has been the development in the engines of death that it is almost impossible to conceive the increase of fatalities in the late war as compared with previous wars.
There were sixty-nine years of war among the various nations in the 117 years from 1810 to 1910.
As nearly as can be learned, 5,098,097 men lost their lives in those wars.
That would mean 73,885 lives lost a year, or about 200 a day.
In the late war there were 200 men killed an hour, about 4,800 for every day of the war; a total of 7,450,300, according to the best available figures. That would be about 1,750,000 a year.
In money cost of previous wars the Greco-British War, 1793-1815, comes first, with its tax of $6,250,000,000.

Pro Patria Disabled.

FRENCH STEAMER IN DISTRESS—ASSISTANCE DISPATCHED.
Sydney, N.S., Dec. 12.—A wireless message from the Pro Patria to Vincent Mullins, local agent of the Marine and Fisheries Department, states that the French steamer is disabled and drifting between one hundred and twenty and one hundred and thirty miles southeast of Sydney. Assistance, when available, will be sent to the vessel.
The steamer Pro Patria, which maintains a service between St. Pierre, Sydney and Halifax, and for the safety of which grave fears were expressed last night, advises by wireless that she is from one hundred to one hundred and fifty miles southeast of Sydney, making one knot an hour with twelve hours' supply aboard. She has asked Sydney for assistance.
The ocean-going tug Crusier arrived at Louisburg, to-day, after having failed to refloat the Greek steamer Platia, ashore at Sable Island. She has been ordered to proceed to the assistance of the Pro Patria, in difficulties off Sydney. The Crusier reports that she had another steamer in tow off Sable Island, but was forced to drop the tow on account of a broken hawser. She does not know the identity of the steamer.
Short of coal and 24 hours overdue at North Sydney, the French coasting steamer Pro Patria is standing to under easy steam about one hundred and twenty miles off the Cape Breton coast waiting for assistance.

The Pro Patria was due at North Sydney on her regular trip from St. Pierre early yesterday morning. As the day wore on and the storm increased in violence much anxiety was felt and the wireless stations along the coast called repeatedly at intervals without response.
This morning the agent, E. Lacroix, North Sydney, received a message that the steamer was still safe, but very short of coal. Under the circumstances only enough steam was kept up to heat the ship and keep her from drifting. Assistance will probably be sent from either Sydney or Halifax.
The Pro Patria carries her usual general cargo and a number of passengers, including John Cameron, an official of the W. U. cable office, North Sydney, and other Cape Bretoners.

Migratory Birds Act.

Ottawa, Dec. 6, 1919.
Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—I am enclosing a short article to acquaint the people of Newfoundland with the provisions of the Migratory Birds Convention Act. As there is considerable traffic between Newfoundland and the North Shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence and other parts of Canada, it appeared desirable to submit this information to you, so that the public will be informed concerning this new law.

Yours faithfully,
J. B. HARKIN,
Commissioner.

NEWFOUNDLAND.

The International convention of 1916, between the United States and Great Britain, has resulted in the passing of the Migratory Birds Convention Act by the Canadian Parliament. This Act, which is administered by the Dominion Parks Branch, of the Department of Interior, Ottawa, will be well entered, so that visitors to Canada who propose to do some shooting or egging should inform themselves of its contents.

There are open seasons in the fall for the shooting of certain game birds that give ample time for the sportsmen to enjoy this form of out-door relaxation. On the other hand all spring shooting has been banned, as well as the taking of any eggs, or nests, of the protected birds. There is also a permanent closed season on some game birds, such as elder ducks, various sandpipers, plover, and shore birds, whose decreasing numbers made their permanent protection necessary, or which may become under proper management of great economic value, as would be the case with the elder duck.

The following non-game birds are protected by a closed season throughout the year:—Auklets, fulmars, gannets, greben, gullmots, gulls, herons, janglers, loons, murre, petrels, puffins, shearwaters, and terns. It is contrary to law to take their eggs or shoot them at all times.

Migratory insectivorous birds in the following list are amongst those protected throughout the whole year:—Chickadees, flickers, flycatchers, greenbacks, humming birds, kinglets, night-hawks or bull-bats, nut-catchers, robins, shrikes, swallows, vireos, warblers, waxwings, whipp-wills, woodpeckers, and wrens, and all other perching birds which feed entirely or chiefly on insects.

The killing, capturing, injuring, molesting, taking, selling, offering for sale, or possession of any protected bird during a close season is forbidden, and the taking of their nests or eggs, is prohibited.

Heavy penalties for violations of the Act are provided, and power given to seize and confiscate all the guns, boats, vessels, teams, wagons, and other outfits, used for the purpose of violating the Act or Regulations. Any person, not a salaried game officer, who lays any information under this Act, is entitled to one-half the penalty imposed.

The treaty was found necessary to stop spring shooting and other destruction of the migratory game birds, and to check the decrease in the migratory insectivorous birds, which are so valuable to the agricultural and forest growths. The stopping of the spring shooting will undoubtedly increase the numbers available for the sportsmen in the fall, when the open seasons come around, as the birds are not disturbed in the mating and breeding seasons and the natural increase will produce a bountiful supply.

A Dominion warden service has been organized, and points which were not otherwise reached by the provincial service are now being patrolled by an ever increasing force of officers, empowered to enforce the terms of the treaty.

Stormiest Trip on Record.

KYLE TAKES 23 HOURS FROM PORT AUX BASQUES TO NORTH SYDNEY.

North Sydney, Dec. 12.—After one of the stormiest trips she has ever had the steamship Kyle arrived here from Port aux Basques at 2 o'clock this morning, having taken 23 hours to make the run. The Kyle arrived off the harbor on Thursday afternoon but the storm made it necessary for her to run out to sea again. The steamer brought 60 passengers, among them Mr. and Mrs. W. Angus Reid and R. Harvey, of Harvey & Company, St. John's.

En route here the Kyle passed the steamer Canadian Voyager, Captain John McKenzie. The Canadian Voyager was lying to about 178 miles east of North Sydney, riding out the storm.

HASTENING SLOWLY.—Sir Gordon Hewart, Attorney-General of Great Britain, denies that there are any dissensions or waverings with reference to the trial of the deposed kaiser, and declares law officers are continuing most careful preparations for it. Meanwhile the former emperor continues to cut trees, to hunt and to enjoy such other pleasures as life at Amerongen provides, and month passes into month.—St. John Globe.

Her Duty to Tell of Her Experience, States Mrs. Henry

Learned of Tanlac Through Others And Must Now Tell of Own Benefits.

"From a weak, nervous and sick woman to a well, strong and happy one in a long step, but Tanlac enabled me to accomplish it in a few weeks," said Mrs. James A. Henry, a well known resident of Langan Road, Sydney, Nova Scotia, in Turnbull's drug store recently. "It is not only a pleasure but I regard it as a duty to tell you how much Tanlac has benefited me," she continued, "for it was by reading such statements from others that I was put on the right road to health."

"I contracted the influenza during the epidemic and it left me in such a terrible condition I could hardly keep on my feet and was really too run down and weak to do my household work. My stomach had never been strong but this attack left me in such a condition I could not eat anything without distress from bloating and my appetite became so poor I did not care whether I ate at all or not. I was very nervous, too, and would roll and toss all night long and feel so tired out when I got up in the morning that I could hardly dress myself. Then my whole system seemed to give way and I lost so much weight and got so weak I thought I would have to give up entirely. My condition was really deplorable and I was much discouraged because nothing seemed to benefit me although I tried everything I could think of."

"I noticed some statements in the papers about what excellent results other people had gotten from Tanlac and I tried it, too. However, I was in such bad condition that I took the first two bottles without being able to tell that it was helping me. I was more discouraged than ever but I resolved to stick to it for a while longer, and I tell you that was the wisest decision I ever made in my life, for the third bottle of Tanlac took right hold of me, and in no time I was so much improved I hardly knew myself. I have taken five bottles in all and am enjoying better health than I have known in several years. My appetite is splendid and everything I eat agrees with me perfectly. Every bit of my old strength has returned. I sleep as sound as a child every night and when morning comes I feel so refreshed and strong my day's work is a genuine pleasure. I feel years younger than I did."

"I think Tanlac is the finest health builder in the world, and I am sure it will do for others what it has done for me if they, too, will give it a fair trial."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative; in Harbor Street, by Thomas Wakeley & Son; in Placentia, by James Murphy & Son; and in Topsail, by J. K. Bursell.—adv.

Newfoundland Man Lost Life in Store Fire.

New Waterford, Dec. 11.—Thomas A. Guy, of Burgeo, Newfoundland who has resided here for some years, lost his life early this morning in a fire which broke out in the grocery department of the general store which he conducted on the Country road in No. 14 colliery district.

Mr. Guy was evidently suffocated by the smoke when he went into the building in an attempt to save business papers, etc.

He was seen to go into the building shortly after the fire was discovered but, in the excitement, his failure to come out again went unnoticed for a few minutes. When it was realized that he must still be in the building, Police Officer Graham gallantly went to the rescue. Pushing his way into the store, Officer Graham found Mr. Guy's body lying quite close to the front door; apparently the unfortunate man had been successful in reaching the office but had been overcome before he could win through to safety again on his way back to the open air.

ate man had been successful in reaching the office but had been overcome before he could win through to safety again on his way back to the open air.

Officer Graham and others carried the body to a nearby building, and Dr. D. J. Martigan immediately employed all possible means of resuscitation but without avail. The body was somewhat burned about the face and it is believed that Mr. Guy's death was partly due to the swallowing of flames which burst about him as he struggled toward the doorway.

The deceased was a young man of about 30 years of age. He was for some years in the employ of W. J. Matthews, who conducted business at but three years ago Mr. Guy took over the business for himself. Mr. Guy is survived by his mother, a brother, who is captain of an Atlantic liner, and a niece who lived with him and his mother in an apartment above the store.

Obituary.

MRS. JOHN BUCKLAND.

On Sunday, December 7th, the death occurred in Rose Blanche, Newfoundland, of Mrs. John Buckland, one of the oldest and most respected residents of that place. She was an active church worker and a member of the Church of England. She leaves a family of four, two children in Newfoundland and two in Glace Bay. Confine the Poison.

Maxim Litvinoff, the emissary Lenin and the Soviet, who is a London on a mission concerning the repatriation of British prisoners of war, is reported to have proposed a proposition for peace, as well as according to a Copenhagen dispatch Lenin is willing to give up Russia in exchange for free entry into the world with his doctrine of revolution. If that is his offer, the answer of the world will be prompt and definite. Scattering the poison throughout civilization.—St. Thomas Journal.

Nationalization.

The British Labor party has passed a resolution declaring that the effective way to end profiteering and to end the capitalist system of production for profit, and advocating the encouragement of municipal trading. One thing is sure. If production and trading were nationalized by the state there would not be any profits to bother the public.—York Sun, mtdcc.

champs, who is Carpentier's spokesman, at London. He said: "We knew all along that he would beat Beckett. I don't think he will be any more when he meets him. I have seen him in London."

Carpentier is not alone in his opinion. There are many other champions for the same view, including the former world champion, Kild Lewis, formerly world champion, who emphatically declared that the result of the national bout was just as he expected. "A real champion is Carpentier," he said, "and he will be just as easily."

Carpentier was the most soured man in London on Friday, when he held his trail in such fashion that one can't envy him the outcome. Newspapers quote one after another as saying, after a meeting with Dempsey, Carpentier: "He looks so pale and nervous it seems impossible he could be a fighter."

Carpentier had great difficulty in getting to London. He was taken to Cochrane's office to draw a check for $10,000. He drew a check for $18,000. The check was cashed at the North Station cheering club. Carpentier arrived at Paris yesterday.

Carpentier's Name.

Carpentier's name was on the list of the Hamilton Herald. He was one of the hundreds of enthusiasts who gathered for the big fight. Carpentier had a hard time in nearly every round. He had to repeat the word "change the pronunciation to Carpentier." At the finish he contented himself with calling the distinguished citizen just plain, even Carpentier. And the people who had heard him better.

JIMMY WILDE OUTPOINTED.

Waukegan, Dec. 6.—Jimmy Wilde, his first American opponent, was decisively outpointed by Sharkey, a New York bantamweight. Wilde succeeded in winning only two of the ten rounds. He had the better of the first two rounds and the first was even. Sharkey started out to make a big fight and brought the crowd to its feet in two rounds when he knocked the little Welshman down and left to the chin.

Wilde more frequently than Wilde punches had greater force than he lived up to. One of his punches was bad, and there was a little behind his punches. He made a hard punch, as he had in the third. Wilde was clever, but lacked speed. Some of his work was his exhibition of blocking which he did against the ropes in a corner. He jabbed, swung, hooked, and then suddenly he would rush Wilde to the ropes and would crouch and spring, and would then resort to Johnnie's famous jumping act, and would well.

Sharkey weighed 116 lbs. at 7 feet 10 inches. The former had a range of about 11 lbs. at the

JIMMY WILDE OUTPOINTED.

St. John's, Dec. 6.—Jimmy Wilde, in his first American appearance, was decisively out-pointed by Sharkey, a New York bantamweight, to-night. Wilde succeeded in winning only two of the ten rounds, the first being the better of seven and the first was even. The New Yorker started out to make it a tight fight and brought the crowd to its feet in two rounds when he landed the little Welshman with a left and left to the chin. He landed more frequently than Wilde and his punches had greater force.
 Wilde lived up to one of his advertised notices. His judgment of distance was bad, and there was little behind his punches. He was out-pointed by Sharkey, who had a hard punch, as he had himself in the third. Wilde was cool and clever, but lacked speed. The size of his work was his marvelous exhibition of blocking white against the ropes in a corner.
 He called his shoulders with the New York blows and protected himself completely without even raising his arms. Sharkey fought an erratic fight. He jabbed, swung, hooked and cut about, then suddenly tearing at the ropes and rushing Wilde to the ropes. He would crouch and spring, and in the round he resorted to Johnny Jones' famous jumping act, and it did well.
 Sharkey weighed 116 lbs. at 7 p.m.
 Wilde 107 1/2. The former had an average of about 11 lbs. at the ring.

Wilde said Sharkey was a tough one and that he was dazed a couple of times, but he was not hurt. He says he was not himself, that he was a bit overweight, and that his several pounds over his usual fighting weight affected his speed.
 Neither fighter was marked, although Sharkey was bleeding at the mouth as a result of Wilde's left jab.
 Under the Wisconsin law no referee's decision can be given, but it was the unanimous opinion of experts that Sharkey had clearly the better of the match.
 Wilde received $11,000 guarantee.

A BIG SURPRISE.
 Jimmy Wilde's defeat at the hands of Jack Sharkey, was certainly a big surprise, but perhaps "Mighty Atom," was not in the best of shape and may have had an off night, such as hockey, baseball and football players have. Some of the Chicago papers have been getting after Wilde, and accusing him of picking his opponents. But why pick on Wilde, the American boxers do the same, and so do some of our Canadian mixers.
 When I met Wilde on board the Baltic, when the little Welshman was on his way to the U. S., he impressed me as a modest little fellow, who unlike some of the boxers who show down this way, failed to talk of his ability as a fighter. But at that we hand it to him for being a great little business head, and if he is able to get away with picking his opponents, the American promoters are not as wise as we give 'em credit for being.

PARIS WANTS THE FIGHT.

PARIS, Dec. 5.—From the comments everywhere heard, Paris desires to stage a battle between Dempsey and Carpentier.
 M. Decoin, manager of the Wonderland Sporting Club of Paris, said that he had sent a cablegram to Dempsey asking his terms for a twenty-round fight with Carpentier on France's national holiday, July 14. Gaston Vidal and Henry Tate, representing the athletics of France, said they would secure the great Pershing stadium for a battle between the American and the Frenchman.
 "A fight between the American champion of the world and the French champion of Europe must take place either in Paris or in the United States," said M. Vidal. "It would be a sad reflection on the sporting spirit of France and also that of America, if the battle were allowed to take place elsewhere. We understand that there are difficulties in the way of securing a battle ground in America. But this matter can easily be arranged here, and we are going to make a bid for the fight."

M. Decoin, who is backed by Prince Murat, and other prominent sportsmen, said he had telegraphed "Jimmy" Bronson, of Joplin, Mo., who organized the American expeditionary force bouts, to ask Dempsey for terms, and declared that he was determined to make a strong bid for a fight between Dempsey and Carpentier in Paris.

 been missing for several days and was last heard of while visiting a the latter vessel was to the effect that he was not on board and his relatives are now anxious to know where the missing man is. The police have been

George McManus, the Creator of Jiggs.

A quarter of a century ago a teacher in the St. Louis, Mo., high school struck out her hand, and timidly 13 year old George McManus advanced up the aisle of the school room with a picture he had just drawn of a youngster with a turned up nose and a generous sprinkling of freckles.
 That was the first time the famous creator of "Bringing Up Father" drew public attention to his work.

"I expected a whale of a larking from the school ma'am," said the cartoonist the other day, "but, apparently, she felt my dad could give me a sounder thrashing, and so she sent this bit of art with a few others she found in my desk to my father."
 "He was very quiet during supper, and I fancied the strap would get its workout just before bedtime.
 Instead he quietly asked:
 "Did you do that?"

"I admitted it, and without a word he went out of the house. The next morning my father told me to get on my hat and coat and go down to the St. Louis Republic to work. He had brought the freckled drawing to the editor, and it had made a hit. I worked for a year at $5 a week, and then was given a dollar rise. That was 24 years ago and I've been drawing cartoons ever since.

"When I was 21, I went to New York, and drew comics for the New York World. You remember Panhandle Pete, 'Let George Do It!' and twenty other comics that I drew during that time and since.
 The others pass out of the memory of the average reader of funny pages. They all ask: 'How did you strike the popular characters of Jiggs and Maggie?'"

Oh, A Very Friendly Game!

"It was this way: Indebly in my mind since childhood remains the picture of old Billy Barry, the best Irish comedian of his day. My dad was in the show business, and I used to see Barry in his play quite often. I remember every detail of the play. It is practically the same as 'The Auctioneer' of to-day with the change of the leading character. The character portrayed by Barry is the Jiggs of today, and his wife Maggie is the same leading actress in that play.
 They used to have a poker game every night at 9:15 and there were people in St. Louis who would lock into that house just to see the real poker that was played. It was one of those friendly games where the players carried bricks and axes for emergencies.

 "It's the public which makes a comic successful. I tried out a dozen, until 'Bringing Up Father' struck the popular fancy. That was a few years ago.
 "Jiggs and Maggie now make millions laugh in both hemispheres. It is even published in Shanghai, China. The man who is responsible for it is the highest-paid comic artist in the world. He makes his home in New York, and is at his desk regularly every day. He enjoys the profession of amusing people. His conversation bubbles with the same humor that characterizes his cartoons. He sees fun in everything—even in the many penalties of the reputation he has gained as the world's greatest cartoonist.

 "This is the latest," he said the other day, selecting a letter from a pile of correspondence on his desk. "The New York American has just been asked by this chap to decide a wager. He bet that George McManus is a horse thief and a murderer, serving a life term, and is sending his daily comic strips from the jug!"

Of all the poison taken into the blood, the germs and pus contributed by diseased gums (Pyorrhoea) are the most destructive to the human system. If every red blood cell is forced to fight against numbers of germs to the cell, the blood cannot attend to the building up of the body, and it allowed to continue the system is bound to break down and eventually you are an invalid. Kidney, stomach, heart trouble, rheumatism and many other diseases are brought on by diseased gums and teeth.
