The Mystery of Rutledge Hall

"The Cloud With a Silver Lining"

CHAPTER XXXI

"Do you mean that you are going on the Continent?" she asked faintly, wondering why the walls of the little room were contracting and the ceiling coming nearer, as it were, while Stephen's grave voice sounded so distant and far away.

"No," he said, calmly, but looking at her with some anxiety, as he saw how she leaned against the table and how the wild bright eyes seemed to grow dim and the white lids to droop; "I did not mean on the Continent. I thought I should like to see Australia and—Sidney, what is it? You are ill?"

"No, no!"—she had hardly strength enough to stagger back from him as she advanced to her. "No, do not touch me! To Australia!"

"Yes, to Australia. It is nothing of a voyage now, you know." He was trying to speak lightly; but the attempt was a failure, for her movement, so shrinking, so expressive of abhorrence, had stung him with a failure, for her movement, so shrinking, so expressive of abhorrence, had stung him with a sharp pain, like that caused by the stab of a knife.

"To Australia! His words had but one meaning to his hearer. He was going to Australia, while he was free as yet from the punishment due to his crime, to escape the consequences of the guilty action he had committed. He was going to fly, even as Frank Greville had done.

"The thought was a horrible one to Sidney. It seemed to kill the last lingering remnant of hope in the unhappy girl's breast that he was innocent, and it was only as that hope faded that she recognized how strong had been, how in her inmost heart it had been cherished and prized, and how terrible was the wrench which accomplished its relinquishment.

Looking at her with grave tender eyes full of pity and pain, her husband saw how she was struggling against her emotion, against the faintness which every moment threatened to overcome her, and a great tide of pity rose in his heart for her and almost welled over in tears. Could it be possible that this broken-hearted despairing woman was the beautiful if entreating him to leave her where she was; and at the earnest pleading gaze he turned away, unable to meet her eyes.

"Stephen!" she said faintly.

"Dear," he answered, so gently that the tears rose in her wide burning eyes, "do not ask me. I cannot leave you here! How can I leave you, ill and alone?"

She made no answer, but at the sound of the approaching train she rose. Stephen offered her his arm with a grave tenderness of manner, and they went out in the cold keen air. The next minute they were on the way home.

"You are cold," Stephen said, seeing that she shivered as they stopped at Ashford, for the first time breaking the profound silence in which they had travelled.

"I do not know," she answered, almost vacantly, as if she did not understand.

He had given her his arm to lead her to the carriage, and she had accepted his support, feeling that she was too weak to manage without it; and, as they went out slowly with the few other passengers, he felt the little hand which had been lying on his arm clasp it with a sudden frightened pressure. He looked down at her hastily.

"What is it?" he said; and his eyes followed the direction of hers.

A short dark man, rather shrewdly attired, standing near the doorway, stared rather fixedly at them. As Stephen looked up, he turned away sharply and mingled with the passengers hurrying toward a train which was just going to start from another platform.

"Do you know that man, Sidney?" Stephen asked.

"Yes."

"Do you want to speak to him?"

"Oh, no—oh, no!" she answered quickly. "Oh, Stephen, I am so tired. Take me home."

She shook her head dreadingly. Words were impossible now; all her self-control was needed to struggle against the deathly faintness which was creeping over her.

"If you wish me to stay," he went on eagerly, think how happy even such a concession as that would make him, thinking that he would gladly give five years of his life to hear her say that she would rather he did not go. "If, by remaining in England, I can do anything to make your life less hard for you, you have only to say the word, and I will stay. I will stay at whatever cost of myself."

"At whatever cost to myself!" The words sounded clearly in his listener's ears—clearly and distinctly, although the others had been only a confused murmur.

"You do not answer," he went on sadly. "Then, since you do not bid me stay, what can I do but go, Sidney?"

"Nothing," she said. "Go."

For a moment they stood looking at each other across the table in silence; then slowly and unsteadily Sidney moved toward the door. She felt choked and stifling; all was dark about her, although the gas and fire burned cheerfully; there was a strange surging sound in her ears; a curious sensation creeping over her lips. She must get into the open air, she thought feebly, groping her way toward the door; then suddenly her strength failed and Stephen caught her as she fell. Even in her utter exhaustion she did not quite lose consciousness; she knew dimly that Stephen supported her in his arms, and held her tenderly while he poured some water from a bottle standing on the mantelpiece, and wetted her lips with it; and she tried to struggle against her weakness and to tell him that she was better and to disengage herself from his arms. At her first effort to do so he placed her in a chair, and, opening the window, let the sharp north wind into the little waiting-room.

It had ceased snowing during the last few moments, but the snow lay thickly on the platform, on which a porter had just appeared. Stephen glanced at his watch; it wanted five minutes to the arrival of the train, which had been signaled to stop at Lidon.

"Are you able to come with me?" he said gently, bending toward his wife.

"The train will be here in a few minutes."

"Where are you going to take me?" she asked faintly.

"Home."

"To Easthorpe?"

"Yes, to Easthorpe."

She looked up at him, piteously, as to speak without breaking into sobs, which ten minutes before would have been an impossibility, although she was so pale and exhausted that she was unable to come down again that evening.

Bessie was going to remain for the night at Ashford with Miss Greville, Mason said, as she assisted her mistress to take off her furs and her heavy walking-dress; and Sidney was very sorry for her old nurse's absence, for, as an old and valued servant, she would have felt privileged to ask questions which might have been difficult to answer; whereas Mason, having replaced Sidney's walking-attire by a loose cashmere dressing-robe, was quite willing to descend again to the servants' hall, and resume an interrupted flirtation with a footman who was captive to her charms.

Left alone in the solitude of her own softly lighted and warmed apartment, Sidney was at leisure to think of the events of the day; but at first she was too exhausted, both mentally and physically, to do more than repose quietly.

THE MOURNERS.

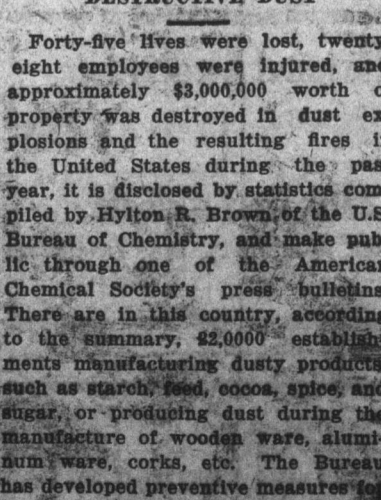

Doleful dirges, they are singing, and their empty hands they're wringing, they are mourning in the midnight, they are weeping all the day; as the dismal wailing places we behold their tear wet faces, they are mourning, they are mourning, they are mourning for the money thrown away. Drearly are the old man's savings; he has handed all his savings to a fakir who has promised great and opulent returns; and his little roll's departed with that fakir stony-hearted, and his ancient heart is broken as the ghastly truth he learns. There are sad-eyed widows weeping for the coin they had in keeping, much desired insurance money, gathered when their husbands died; and the fakirs blithe came lying, with their gall and nerve undying, and they got the widow's rubles, smooth of tongue but venture-wild. Now the "statistical" hollers, "Every year two billion dollars are expended by the people on the disbursement of frauds; never does the fakir falter, he is always out to halter easy, trusting men and women, and relieves them of their wads." Idle are these bald statistics as the driver of the mystic, idle are the ringing warnings of the pulpit and the press, for the easy marks are yearning to get coin without the earning, and we scorn their dippy conduct while we pity their distress. At their folly we are railing, but it's sad to hear them wailing, it is sad to hear them mourning in the twilight heat and gray; it is sad to hear them sighing, people old and weak and dying, calling on the gods to bring them hard-earned money.

And then she turned to her brother, who had followed them into the room, delaying a few moments to remove his overcoat, and resumed her gay chatter as she poured out his tea; and Stephen, appreciating her thoughtfulness, forced himself to answer her as gently. Thus Sidney had some quiet minutes to regain some resemblance of self-control; so that, by the time the dressing-bell rang, she was able under favorable conditions, when mixed with the proper proportion of air and ignited by a flame, spark, or other source of ignition.

No record of a spontaneous dust explosion has ever been obtained.

It seems to be generally known that open lights, electric arcs, matches, lighted cigars, cigarettes and pipes, sparks of static electricity, and the breaking of lighted electric lamps are sources of ignition sufficient to start a dust-explosion when enough dust to form an explosive mixture is present in the air.

Methods of eliminating or reducing the possibility of having present at the same time the two requisites of a dust explosion—a cloud of dust and a source of ignition—may not be so well known.

Plants where consideration should be given to the elimination of the dust-explosion hazard may be classified in three groups: plants handling dusty or powdered material in package form; plants handling such material in loose form; and plants manufacturing or producing explosive dust.

It has been shown that static sparks can ignite dust, and this is given as a possible cause of an increasing number of explosions. Metallic sparks, friction fires, and hot bearings are called important mechanical causes of dust explosions. To reduce the explosion hazard in dusty industries, the Bureau urges measures to prevent the formation of dust-clouds, elimination of all sources of ignition, and where these precautions are impossible, the maintenance of an atmosphere of reduced oxygen-content incapable of supporting a dust explosion. The Bureau announces that its Dust Explosion Laboratory will make tests of samples of dust in plants for owners or operators, to determine explosibility.

Condemn General Sarrail's Tactics

British Press Denounce Method of Suppressing Uprising

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The British press, aroused by accounts of extensive casualties in the suppression of last week's insurrection in Damascus, is strongly critical today of General Sarrail, the French High Commissioner in Syria. Among other things, his reported attempt to overawe the rebels by parading the corpses of executed brigades on camel back through the streets of the city is sharply condemned.

Official reports are awaited to clear up the confusion in the estimates of the casualties, which range from 1,000 to 25,000, the latter figure coming from Arab sources.

None of the news reports indicates that any foreigners were killed. The British and Irish missions and other residents do not exceed thirty, but it is understood that there are more Americans, as their missions are larger, and several Italians.

Very little is known as to the extent since the bombardment beyond the report that there has been a general exodus of the Christians inhabitants. There is no suggestion that further trouble has occurred, but there are ominous hints by persons arriving at Cairo from Damascus that reprisals by the angered natives are possible.

Antiquarians here deplore the reported destruction of many ancient treasures and the damage or ruin of famous buildings which withstood past invasions. History recounts that one of King David's military expeditions wrought havoc in Damascus, while Alexander the Great, the Egyptians, the Turks and the European crusaders have been among the succeeding invaders.

Murray Anderson at Metropolitan

The new Metropolitan Theatre which was opened in Boston about ten days ago is the largest moving picture and vaudeville house in the United States, and was constructed at a cost of some $8,000,000.

The interior decorations, furnishings and equipment are most lavish and thoroughly up to date, and the shows run daily, continuously from 9.30 a.m. and 11 p.m.

CHARGED WITH MURDERING CAPTAIN CLEWS.

SOUTHAMPTON, Nov. 6. Thomas Towers, former First Officer of the Canadian Pacific steamship Melita, was committed for trial at the Hampshire Assizes, Winchester, on a charge of murdering Captain A. H. Clews, commander of the Melita, and attempting to murder two of the ship's officers, David Gilmour and John Holiday. Towers reserved his defence.

DR. CHOWN ON UNITED CONFERENCE IN Nfld.

TORONTO, Nov. 6. With the decision of the Methodist Church to unite with other Canadian Churches, one quarter of the population of Newfoundland have entered the United Church of Canada but have not secured guarantees of their legal rights. In that connection, this Union has features which are not shared by Canadian sections of uniting Churches, and is in some respects unique. In order to clear up the situation, Rev. S. D. Chown, who was Superintendent of the Methodist Church in Canada, and has a long acquaintance with Newfoundland, was requested to visit the Newfoundland Conference of the United Church of Canada and report to the executive of the General Council convening in Toronto shortly. Dr. Chown has returned to Toronto and states that the new Conference has not only ratified legal steps connected with Union, but has also adopted its share of the financial burden involved in maintenance and extension funds with 74,293 Methodists and 1,876 Presbyterians on the island. Action taken effects only Methodists, as the Presbyterian congregation in St. John's is not entering the Conference which assembled October 29th. It is decided to apply to the Legislature at its next session for an Act of Incorporation, by which Methodist population of that Dominion agrees to set aside the use of its name in order to remain in full communion with the United Church in the sister Dominion.

PROCLAIMS HIMSELF GOVERNOR.

LONDON, Nov. 6. In a despatch emphasizing the seriousness of the situation around Damascus, the Cairo correspondent of the Daily Mail says the Insurgent leader, Ramadiah Fakhri Ben Shallah, has proclaimed himself military governor of Syria, under a provisional government.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

"AM I GETTING MY MONEY'S WORTH?"

"Am I getting my money's worth out of this?" That is the question a friend of mine is always asking about the money he spends for luxuries and pleasures.

Perhaps you think I am going to recommend this way. I know I have often pointed out the wisdom of knowing what you are spending your money for, and whether it is what you want most, and whether you get full value for it.

But I also think there is a time to analyze and a time to stop analyzing. A time to reckon what things cost and a time to stop reckoning.

I think this man lets figures get between him and enjoyment.

"Each Man Kills The Thing He Loves"

For instance, he has a car which he can well afford. Now a car to anyone who can really afford it, generally gives us enough use and pleasure to justify the expense if you take the whole expense as one unit and the whole pleasure as another. But this man doesn't do that. He knows what it costs per mile to run the car (a subject on which most motorists remain in truly blissful ignorance) and often when he uses the car to run those miles and asks himself, or his wife, whether he really got his money's worth out of that expense. "You don't think we spent anything this afternoon, do you? Well, going over to the Dodges and back was 30 miles and that detour to the antique shop was 15 miles more. That's 45 miles. At ten cents a mile you spent $4.50. You'd stop to think before you spent $4.50 some other way. You could go to the theatre for that or for a couple of those trips you could buy a new hat. Did you really enjoy it that much?"

So he analyzes his pleasures, and under that pitiless analysis, enjoyment, which is a very delicate, evanescent, and impalpable thing, is apt to wither.

Don't Annoy Them.

There is a time to analyze and a time to refrain from analyzing.

Of course it is really worthwhile when you genuinely don't enjoy a thing to admit it to yourself and stop doing it. Like going to parties when you would really rather sit in front of the fire with a book. Or playing bridge on a lovely autumn day when you would much rather be taking a long walk into the country.

But when you do capture that sense of exhilaration and stimulation, which I suppose is what we mean by pleasure, don't stop to ask yourself why. "If you touch them they vanish." Take what the gods proffer and don't annoy them by trying to dissect their gift.

Pirate Song

Fifteen Men on the Dead Man's Chest,
Yo ho ho and a bottle of rum!
Grinning in Death at some Devil's jest,
Yo ho ho and a bottle of rum!
The busy surf, with a sullen roar,
Licked the pirate ship as she lay ashore,
As a hound's tongue slavers a festering sore,
Yo ho ho and a bottle of rum!

Fifteen Men and not one alive,
Yo ho ho and a bottle of rum!
What put to sea full seventy-five,
Yo ho ho and a bottle of rum!
Ten half-bred rogues had danced on air,
Their guilts fouled in the hangman's snare,
While three-ten paid for the sacker's town's glare,
And some died fighting, and drunken some,
Stout country lads and the city's scum,
All souls hell-ripe for Kingdom Come,
Yo ho ho and a bottle of rum!

Fifteen Men on a drunken brawl,
Yo ho ho and a bottle of rum!
'Twas each for himself, and the Devil for all,
Yo ho ho and a bottle of rum!
The gunner had gone to a dreadful sleep,
Flung over the wheel in a lifeless heap,
With the cook's knife plunged in his midriff deep,
And there they lay, and a ghastly dew
Had turned their wounds to a livid hue,
But little they cared, that dead men's crew,
Yo ho ho and a bottle of rum!

Fifteen Men on the splintered decks,
Yo ho ho and a bottle of rum!
No need for the hangman to snap their necks,
Yo ho ho and a bottle of rum!
One corpse was fouled in the tangled gear,
With its mouth twisted in a ghastly leer,
And the throat slit wide from ear to ear,
And there they lay, and a ghastly dew
Came out and winked at a job well done,
All scores wiped clean with knife or gun,
Yo ho ho and a bottle of rum!

Men of 'em, rot my bones,
Yo ho ho and a bottle of rum!
Fit shipmates all for Davy Jones,
Yo ho ho and a bottle of rum!
One tall knave lay in the after hold,
To the elbows deep in the scattered gold,
His dead hands clinked when the wrecked hull rolled,
And there they rotted, aye strike me blind!
As dazed lads as one might find,
A reeking cargo to Hell consigned,
Yo ho ho and a bottle of rum!

CONFEDERATION LIFE.

Friends and supporters of the Presentation Convent Schools are asked to bear in mind that the sketch and concert for which preparations have been going on for some time, takes place at the Aula Maxima on Monday. In the sketch "A Bundle of Matches," the following young ladies will appear: Misses Mary and N. Goodland, K. and Mary Howlett, Mary and Stella Meaney, E. Olliphant and M. Corbett. The concert programme includes a piano-forte solo by Miss Mary Meaney, P.T. C.L. vocal solos, recitations and southern selections. The performers have taken exceptional pains to present a high class performance and it is hoped their efforts will be rewarded with a full house.

Little Jack Rabbit
by David Cory

Now, let me see, or rather remember how we ended the last story. Maybe I had better put on my Magic Memory Cap. You Uncle Dave has written so many stories that sometimes his Thinking Hat seems to lose its wonderful power. Well, my Memory Cap is on my head and, quick as a wink, I recall all that has happened. The Circus Elephant was telling a story of the Baby Elephant and Little Jack Rabbit. Yes, sir, he was. He had just told his two small listeners that the Circus Queen was sitting in her little tent, rocking her baby to sleep.

"All of a sudden," went on the Circus Elephant, looking into Little Jack Rabbit's face, "the Clown peeped in 'Hurry Lou,' he whispered, 'all the people are waiting for you!'"

"He's asleep, I think," she answered, and tiptoeing softly away, she jumped on the big white horse and rode into the great tent. For a few minutes the clown stood near the cradle, smiling down at his little son. Then, hearing the trumpet, he hurried out and into the big tent where all the people were waiting for him to do funny tricks on the sawdust ring.

Pretty soon the stars came out and the big round moon lighted the sky country. The evening breeze gently flapped the canvas door to the little tent in which the baby lay asleep, and while everybody was busy in the circus, a tiny fairy came riding on a daisy colored moth from the woods nearby. In her hands she carried a little gold box, set with diamonds and rubies. As soon as the moth had alighted on the edge of the crib, the tiny fairy carefully placed the little box at the baby's feet, singing softly all the while:

"Some day you will be a clown,
Travelling far from town to town,
Then your father will be proud
When you please the circus crowd."

The pretty fairy sailed away on her moth steed.

Trunk. "Let me see. Oh, yes, of course. A little magic clown suit, which would never wear out and would fit the baby perfectly even as he grew bigger and bigger, taller and taller. A wonderful

Tourist Traffic and the Publicity Bureau

ADDRESS DELIVERED AT ROTARY CLUB BY MR. J. F. MEEHAN.

In an address delivered at the Rotary Club luncheon on Thursday, Oct. 23rd, Mr. J. F. Meehan, President of the Nfld. Tourist Bureau, spoke as follows:

(Concluded.)

We have had during the past year valuable assistance from the very life organization, the Bay of Islands Board of Trade. Fortunately for themselves they function in a section of the country which is better equipped at the moment to take care of visitors than is the East Coast, but even there, there is room for improvement and this organization would do well to concentrate on this policy, driving continually for improved conditions, more protection for game, better roads and more and improved hotels.

During this session, the Secretary, Mr. F. E. Outerbridge, was kept constantly busy replying to enquiries from prospective visitors. These enquiries came to him from many parts of the world and show that with very little effort on our part, people are finding out about us.

Outside Concerns Interested. It is true the Transportation Companies do considerable advertising, but they too have learned the lesson of caution and wisely refrain from representing conditions other than actually exist. It must be apparent to any thinking man what a marked contrast there is between the attitude of the Transportation Companies and the people of Newfoundland and the value of the Tourist Trade to Newfoundland. The Furness Withy Co., Ltd., The Red Cross Line, The Munson Line, The Parqhar, Steamship Company, The Newfoundland Government Railway, and the Canadian National Railways, are all very much alive to the possibilities and having had an opportunity to discuss with their experienced representatives, the prospects for Newfoundland, we cannot help but realize how short-sighted we were not to have made some effort to prepare ourselves for what might have been ours had we the initiative to look for it. As we say having discussed the prospects with experienced representatives of the Transportation Company and having obtained their views, we emphatically share their optimism and far-sightedness. They tell us without question that here is a big field, in fact a tremendous field, but suggest caution so that at no time will we exceed our preparations, assuring every visitor the attractions we promised. One very optimistic individual went so far as to outline a programme involving many thousands of dollars expenditure and in doing so was quite confident it would net the country large returns. One suggestion of his was that the Municipality without delay acquire enough land to build an up-to-date Championship Golf Course and arrange every year between June and the end of September to have some well known professional take charge. The claim is that he will easily make his salary and expenses, and the green fees collected will easily cover cost of maintenance and allow a reasonable interest on the capital investment. We do not suggest this but mention it, only to show the confidence in the possibilities held by interested outsiders. Of course it will be understood that this scheme would need to be judiciously advertised and could not be operative for a few years, but as our whole scheme will take some five or six years to properly consummate, the longer we postpone action on these essentials the further we are from realizing the potential value of this Traffic to us as a community and to the country as a whole.

The Hotel An Essential Factor.

One very encouraging feature and one which may be termed the foundation of this whole enterprise is the Hotel now under construction. Any scheme attempted by any organization or government, no matter how aggressive, to attract Tourists, is doomed to failure, unless behind the movement is the security of modern accommodation. This has been proven time and again. Proof that good accommodation attracts must be obvious to anyone who reads the list of passengers sailing by the S.S. Newfoundland, apparently sufficiently encouraging to warrant the owners to build a sister ship and place her in the same service next season. Another very recent proof is the result of the new Admiral Beatty Hotel at St. John, N.B. To cover expenses this Hotel had to be run at 60 per cent. capacity. Since its opening in June it has been operating at close to 90 per cent. capacity and the directors have now prepared a dividend. We predict similar results for our new Hotel and sincerely commend the enterprise of the promoters and assure the shareholders and management of the new Hotel, a full measure of co-operation and ask those who justify the early opinions of failure, to forget it and become boosters.

A desirable project should become a white elephant. Advertise it; write to your friends about it; ask them to spread the news among their friends; Business houses should include cards of it in their foreign correspondence; in fact seek any means to advertise to the world that we have a real up-to-the-minute Hotel. Its success is your success and its failure will bring grave discredit on the citizens of the country.

Financial Assistance Necessary.

This association cannot live without financial aid. This year from subscriptions we realized $1500.00 which was expended principally in advertising and in promotion work. Our needs this year were moderate, but we find them ever growing and this winter we propose to begin seriously to encourage local preparation. We now fairly know our own needs and can discuss the prospects intelligently with any interested parties, and our knowledge and services are at their disposal. Until we see signs of public interest, we cannot of course intelligently estimate our own needs, and our campaign for next year must be moderate, based of course on our accommodation; but we do know that we, no matter how active or aggressive we may be, cannot succeed without the moral support of every individual citizen of Newfoundland. We realize perhaps that we may be considered somewhat visionary, but remember that we have carefully travelled every foot of the way. We have probed the possibilities, we have investigated the prospects and know whereof we speak. We want to convert everybody to turn the whole population into boosters. In fact each and every citizen might become a committee of one to boost the country. You have nothing to be ashamed of. You have as fine a heritage as was ever given to man if you will only realize it. Many visitors realize it and have actually told us so. They claim, many of them that part of our trouble is inferiority complex, which translated means that we think too little of our country and too much about other places. Let us get over this. Too much politics, another man told us. Politics plays no hand, act or part in this game. Government aid and support, Yes, Politics, No. Definitely No. This movement is a Newfoundland movement and should appeal to all Newfoundlanders both at home and abroad. That Newfoundlanders should realize its value is evidenced by the excellent work done by Mr. Victor Gordon at London, Mr. R. H. Tait and Mr. A. G. Gibb at Boston, Mr. J. M. Devine at New York, and J. W. N. Johnstone at Montreal practically without remuneration of any kind. Sooner or later offices will have to be established in these countries, and when this is done in conjunction with the preparations at this end, you can look for some very busy seasons. As we said we need support, both moral and financial. Morally in the sense that we want every able bodied person both male and female to boost for his country. Leave your hammers at home, close your eyes to the prospects of failure and hang out the welcome sign. Visitors tell us they like to meet friendly people. Talk to strangers, in fact, let everybody do anything that shows interest in this work. You will yourself be surprised at the returns.

While on this subject we want to sincerely thank the president, governors and members of the Bally Haly Golf and Country Club for the concessions granted the association this season by permitting our Secretary to issue cards to visitors. This action was much appreciated and is evidence of great interest in fostering this enterprise.

Finality of the Tourist Traffic to Newfoundland.

Finally we need your support to the value of $1.00. We want 5000 members or more in this association at $1.00 each per annum. Not a very great strain on anybody and an investment that is calculated to return large dividends. During our next year's activities from the first of December, we hope to enlist the active support of 5000 members. A campaign will be instituted covering the whole country and we are not anticipating failure. This money will partially enable us to carry out our publicity plans for next year, and when we can show results we feel we can count on the government for the same measure of help as was accorded us this year.

The number of tourists, as far as it has been possible to ascertain, who visited Newfoundland during the past season, was approximately five thousand. Supporting, for the sake of argument, each of these 5000 tourists spent an average of only ten dollars each while in the country, that is $50000 coming to the trade of the country, which we would otherwise have not seen. Of course, many of the better type of tourist, especially those who come here for the fishing, spend many more dollars than ten during their visit. It is interesting to know that the Province of Quebec estimated its tourist traffic to be worth to them in solid, hard cash in 1923, thirty-six million dollars while coming nearer home, the Province of Nova Scotia estimated its traffic as worth seven millions. Therefore, everyone who is interested in the trade of Newfoundland, be he wholesaler or retailer, should appreciate the cash value of the tourist traffic and, if not for sentimental reasons, then for business reasons encourage the aims and ambitions of the Tourist Traffic.

From now On

make it a plan to have your brakes inspected regularly. 60% of automobile accidents are due to faulty brakes—proving that few motorists have their brakes properly attended to. You can hardly expect a ragged, worn brake lining to stop your car in an emergency.

Why take risks when it is so easy to have your brakes adjusted? or replaced with Raybestos BRAKE LINING.

You don't have to "break in" Raybestos brake lining. It grips from the start—takes hold firmly, steadily. What's more, it wears out slowly and evenly until worn thin as cardboard. It is woven solidly.

A few feet of Raybestos on your car—plus occasional inspection and adjustment—will mean that you have done your part to make motoring enjoyable and safe.

The Tariff Rates.

One of the best things the management of the Tourist Bureau found they had to face was the arriving at a standard and reasonable rate for taxi hire. With this object in view, the Executive of the Association called two public meetings of taximen at which representatives of all the taxi companies doing business in the city attended as well as the owners of several independent taxicabs. These meetings resulted in the taximen forming a Committee of their own and after, we understand, several well attended meetings among themselves, they submitted a Tariff, which has already been published in the Telegram and News. This Tariff was submitted by the Taximen's Committee and was not drawn up by the Tourist Association though, in some instances, the taximen accepted certain reductions suggested by the Association.

However, it would now seem that since the Tariff was published, some of the drivers which were either present or represented at several or all of the meetings, have repudiated any connection with the Tariff and in regard to this matter, the Tourist Association is back practically to where it started. The deciding on a Tariff for City taxi and cab hire is part of the duties of the Municipal Council, and this matter will now devolve upon the new Council to handle soon after it is returned to power. The only satisfactory method, of course, is to compel each taxicab owner to install a meter in his taxi and the Council then to arrange a mileage rate. Whether this is practical in this city or not we are unable to state at the moment, but it is decidedly necessary that a standard rate of fares should be established and maintained before the tourist season opens next year if it is wished to encourage people to visit us and not deter them by charging exorbitantly for driving as was a common custom in the past. On the other hand, of course, certain propaganda should be formulated to explain to tourists that they cannot be expected to be charged driving rates which are prevalent in the States and Canada in that the cost of operating an automobile in this country is very considerably higher.

We wish to place on record our thanks to the Canadian National Railway for their great kindness in placing their office at our disposal for the season free of charge, and to their representative, Mr. R. H. Webster and his assistants for their untiring efforts in our behalf. We owe them all a very deep debt of gratitude for which our sincere appreciation must be their only reward.

Just a few words to sum up. You come here for the fishing, spend many more dollars than ten during their visit. It is interesting to know that the Province of Quebec estimated its tourist traffic to be worth to them in solid, hard cash in 1923, thirty-six million dollars while coming nearer home, the Province of Nova Scotia estimated its traffic as worth seven millions. Therefore, everyone who is interested in the trade of Newfoundland, be he wholesaler or retailer, should appreciate the cash value of the tourist traffic and, if not for sentimental reasons, then for business reasons encourage the aims and ambitions of the Tourist Traffic.

We have explained why we are proceeding cautiously and why the efforts of this association must for the present at least be confined to preparing the ground locally.

We have shown you where you can help both morally and financially with positive certainty of excellent returns. We have great faith in the future of this movement, we want everyone to participate and share in its development.

Travelling is the order of the day, straggle countries possess romance and appeal. Our little country has this appeal to outsiders. Therefore, we ask your help to encourage them to come. To give them facilities so as they can properly enjoy themselves while here and to send them home again happy and smiling to spread the glad news among their friends which is after all the greatest advertising any country can get.

Harold Lloyd and Lon Chaney at the Nickel Monday

AN UNEXCELLED PROGRAMME OF FEATURES WITH FAMOUS STARS.

The Nickel offers on Monday the most unusually interesting program presented in many seasons. The stars are Harold Lloyd and Lon Chaney. Everybody knows what to expect from Lloyd, and in his latest achievement he is even better than ever.

Lon Chaney is seen this time in "The Monster" and enacts the title role. His characterization of Dr. Zerk, the mad surgeon, is said to rival that of his Quasimodo in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," and his clown in "He Who Gets Slapped."

Johnny Arthur, the stage comedian, is the hero; a blundering, helpless young man who aspires to become a detective and win the love of Betty Watson, the town beauty. She is also being courted by another young man, and the mysterious disappearance of the town's wealthiest citizen gives Johnny an opportunity to cover himself with glory, by solving the mystery.

Gertrude Olmsted, the prize beauty of the Elk's contest, has the role of Betty Watson, the girl for whom two

The Mutual Life Pays its Claims Promptly

DELAYS in the settlement of life insurance claims add financial worry to the distress of the bereaved family. The Mutual Life of Canada has always made a special feature of prompt payment of claims, being the first company to waive the 30 to 90 days time limit for settlement, which was the custom in pioneer days.

It is not the desire of the Mutual Life to take advantage of technicalities to postpone or contest settlement of claims. The purpose of this company is to be a refuge and a comfort in time of family trouble and stress. The widowed and the fatherless receive the full benefits provided for them by Mutual policies at the earliest possible moment, and with the least possible worry.

Particulars of Accident at Little Bay

Capt. M. G. Dalton, Ship's Husband, of Newfoundland Government Railway received the following message yesterday, from Capt. Day, of S.S. Home, giving particulars surrounding the death of the late Thomas Best, one of the crew of the ship.

"Particulars as to accident to Thomas Best. He was going ashore with stern line on the wharf at Little Bay Islands, and the line being tight it pulled him back as he jumped. He fell between wharf and steamer and was badly crushed about the body. Dr. Lidstone arrived at the scene five minutes after the accident and did all in his power for the sufferer. He died twenty minutes after the accident." (Sed.) DAY.

Mr. Tifford, of the Government Railway Passenger Department leaves by the express to-morrow for Port Blandford and from there will accompany the remains on S.S. Malakoff to Brookfield, B.B., the former home of deceased for interment.

Westville Runner Coming

Yesterday Mr. J. M. Tobin received word from Halifax that Jimmy Hawboldt, the Westville runner, has accepted the invitation to come to St. John's to compete against our local runners, and that he expects to leave for here by the Silvia sailing from Halifax on Tuesday next. He will be accompanied by Mr. P. W. O'Neill, his trainer. An invitation was also extended to John C. Miles, the winner of the Halifax Road Race, to come, but we understand he could not make arrangements to get away. It is proposed to run two races in the Prince's Rink, a 5 mile on the night of November 16, and a 10 mile race on November 20th. The Halifax Marathon Sweepstake Committee are now making all the necessary arrangements.

S.S. Brake Has Hole in Bow

This forenoon a diver was down under the S.S. Brake, which arrived in port yesterday with water in her forepeak, and found a hole in her bow apparently done through hitting some wreckage. It was at first thought that the leak was caused by loosened rivets. The damage is not extensive and repairs will be effected without unloading the grain cargo.

Schr. Wreckage Picked Up

A message received yesterday by the Deputy Minister of Customs, from the Collector at Herring Neck, reports the finding of a quantity of wreckage from a black painted schooner. The message reads as follows:—"About eight feet of the bow of black schooner, with timbers and sails attached, picked up here yesterday; no name or any marks to identify."

Obituary

JAMES COOK.
The many friends of James Cook will regret to learn of his unexpected passing this morning. Deceased had been indisposed with a cold for the past couple of weeks and was recovering rapidly, when pneumonia set in and the end came in spite of all that medical science or the hands of a devoted wife could do.

Deceased was a son of the late Wm. Cook, Victroler, and carried on business at the Water Street stand for a number of years, after his father's death. Subsequently, he moved to the premises of the late M. O. Regan, LeMarchant Road, where he carried on a thriving business. Of an unassuming disposition, straight forward in business, and every way a highly esteemed citizen. James Cook made many staunch friends who will regret his passing. He leaves to mourn a wife (nee Miss Edwards), two brothers, Tasker, (Hon. Mayor Cook), and Will, and three sisters, Mrs. Worsley, Mrs. Calk and Mrs. Snow to whom the Telegram extends sympathy.

Personals

Miss Helen Lilly, who has been a patient at the General Hospital for the past four months, has been released fully cured.
Mr. Michael Walsh, an employee of the Street Railway, who has been confined to his home for the past three weeks suffering from a severe cold, is now on the mend and will be able to get around again in the course of another week.

SHIPPING LOCAL AND FOREIGN

S.S. August, 25 days from Rotterdam, has arrived in ballast for repairs.
S.S. Newton Bay has arrived to the Marine Agencies from Sydney.
Schr. Grace D. Brown has arrived in port from St. Pierre.
S.S. Hessa, with a cargo of coal from Swansea, has arrived after a passage of 15 days.

We understand that Bowring's Head Office in Liverpool have placed a contract with Messrs. Wm. Hamilton and Company, Ltd., Port Glasgow, for the building of a new steamer to replace the S. S. Rosalind on the Red Cross Service between New York, Halifax and St. John's. The new ship is to be delivered on May 31st next, and will arrive here in June to take up the route. She will be something on the lines of the Stephano but longer, of greater beam and faster. She will be 368 feet in length and 64 feet beam as against the Silvia's 336 feet and 45.2 feet, respectively, and have accommodation for 206 first and 90 second class passengers. She will be strengthened to contend with ice as it is the intention to keep up the weekly service all the year round, as has been done the last few years. The new ship will bear the name of one of Shakespeare's characters, but which has not yet been definitely decided on. She will have 9 or 10 cabins de luxe with baths and smoking room and lounge on the deck above. Her staterooms will have outside portholes. She will be an oil burner, fitted with submarine bells, wireless directional finding, and all modern aids to navigation. Her tonnage will be between 5,000 and 6,000. Capt. Smith will be in command, with Capt. James going to the Silvia. The placing on this route of such an up to date vessel is in keeping with the policy of the enterprising Bowring firm and indicates confidence in the tourist traffic.

Machines for Riveting Skates to Boots

An ingenious machine which will fasten skates permanently to boots has just been imported by the firm of W. & G. Rendell. The machine, which is the invention of Mr. J. Dunne, manufacturer of the well-known tube skate, attaches skates to boots with tubular rivets by a very simple operation. An important feature is that the rivets can be placed in the toes of the skates. The machine in operation was seen yesterday. As an adjunct to the riveting machine, Messrs. Rendell have imported a skate sharpener which will ensure that the temper will not be destroyed. A feature of the sharpener is the holder which keeps the skate in perfect alignment whilst being sharpened. Mr. Hubert Rendell thought whose interest in hockey matters the machines were obtained, will be pleased to show them to anyone interested.

Lord Peel Denies Report.

THAT HE IS TO BE THE NEXT GOV. ERNOR-GENERAL.
LONDON, Nov. 2.—A report in the Sunday Express that Lord Peel would probably be the next Governor-General of Canada, in succession to Lord Byng, is emphatically denied by Lord Peel. "I have not heard a word about it, it is entirely incorrect," His Lordship said.
Lord Peel was Secretary of State for India from 1922 to 1924.

Breaks Hip in Fall

While Mr. James Barrett an elderly resident of Flower Hill, was out taking his usual walk yesterday morning, he slipped on the icy surface crossing Prowse's meadow, and in his fall sustained a broken hip. Three men who happened to be passing went to the injured man's aid and assisted him to his home. Later a doctor was summoned, and after a brief examination had been made the sufferer was ordered to hospital for treatment. Mr. Barrett, is 82 years old, and his many friends will be sorry to learn of his accident.

Obituary

AGNES KENNEDY.

Passed peacefully away, on Oct. 31st, of the Mental Hospital, Agnes Kennedy, aged 31 years, beloved wife of Patrick Kennedy, Shoal Point, Trepassay and daughter of John and Alice (Hay) Daniel's Point, Trepassay. Mr. Murdoch Writes

To the Citizens of St. John's:
The fact that all Candidates offering themselves and asking for your vote and support in the coming Election are putting forward as the main issue Sanitation and Housing is proof that my suggestion that a strong Committee should be appointed to deal with and be responsible to the city in seeing that these much needed reforms are effected. But the mere endorsement of the necessity of improving sanitation and housing will not do the work. What are wanted is practical workers who have studied the subject, who will take advantage of the powers given them in the Municipal Charter; the powers are many, and the way to ensure them is clearly indicated. Two attempts at solving the housing problem have been tried, but as far as one can judge they have not been a success. The principle has not been right. Four walls and a roof may be a house, but what men, women and children want is a Home. The term "home" is the germ of civilization, the unit of social progress. No community rises above its average of individual homes. Its intelligence, courage, honesty, industry, thrift, or any other individual or civic virtue. The home is the nursery of the citizen; nothing which church, school, or state can do will quite make up for the lack of attention to such matters. In the home, then we must acknowledge that no subject can be of greater importance than a discussion of the standards involved in home life. Can we as citizens say that the hundreds of unsanitary buildings, are homes? Our workers have to pay exorbitant rents for dilapidated hovels unfit for human habitation, children are brought into the world in over-crowded, unsanitary surroundings; no wonder our death rate is a disgrace to a civilized community. A strong Committee of Councillors who will put their hearts, their brains and all their energies into this subject, with the whole council at their back can effect these reforms, for it must be remembered that if a few real workers take the responsibility of doing the work, the city also has a responsibility in backing them up and seeing that the finances are found. Citizens, you say you want a clean, healthy city, then fight for it now. The Charter gives the Council the power to appoint a Housing Commission and to assist a Building Society. In my next letter I will outline a "Mutual Benefit Building Society" that will need very little help, if any, which will give every one who really wants a home of their own a chance of obtaining it. Citizens, will you give me your vote?
Yours faithfully,
JAMES MURDOCH.

Our Dumb Animals

REPORT OF CHIEF AGENT FOR WEEK ENDING NOV. 7TH.

Attended to the landing of thirty head of cattle from the S.S. Hitherwood, as well as four horses and some pigs. The cattle were carried on deck as usual, roofed over, but were not sufficiently protected from the weather. I called the agent's attention to it, and gave him a copy of the Act. He promised to see that it will be attended to. I also attended to the landing of twenty head of cattle from the Hillbrook. The cattle were all in fairly good condition. Looked after the shipping of two horses to Westville, on the Prospero; they were shipped in boxes. I wish to thank Mr. Foley, at the Coastal Wharf, for having a box made to put them in; also Mr. Flynn, the stevedore, for the great care shown by him and his men in having them secured. Humanely put to death a horse for a West End farmer. The horse was suffering from internal trouble, and was ordered by Dr. Bishop to be put to death. I have been asked by two East End farmers to put to death two horses which have done faithful service, but have passed their labour. Rather than let them fall into the hands of other horse dealers they have decided to have them put to death on their farms and buried. On behalf of the Society I wish to thank those gentlemen for this humane act. Put to death a large dog for Mr. Snow, Eyre'sdale Street. The dog had been around the premises for some time and the owner could not be found. Another dog, which had been wandering around Belvedere St., and had been reported by a lady on that street as having no home—and no owner, was put to death. The lady contributed to the funds of the Society. I was also asked by a resident of the West End to attend to the hauling of rocks for the new theatre. I visited the place and watched the loads, took a note of them and found that some loads were from twenty-seven to thirty hundred pounds. I spoke to the teamsters and told them if it continued that the case would be tested in court. Loads like this down over Signal Hill, without brakes on the carts, were altogether too heavy. Also spoke to the Superintendent, Mr. Cameron, who very kindly promised to do all he could to prevent a recurrence of this. I have spoken to the teamsters on Water Street about having pitboards on their carts; I also think that in loading horses the teamsters should be the best judge of what his horse can haul. I saw a case a short while ago where men had to get behind a cart and push it up out of the coves because the load was too heavy for the horse. I also saw a load weighed off at the Railway Station of thirty-two hundred pounds, and taken away by a small horse. I spoke to the teamster, who said, "We have to do what the storekeeper tells us." In future those cases will have to be brought before court because I know they can easily be avoided. There is no necessity of keeping goods in a store and putting two loads on one horse to get to the Railway Station at 5 o'clock, when they could be shipped earlier or another horse provided to do the extra work. I thank the young man who called at my home to report sheep being out on the Ayre Athletic grounds, and all who have taken an interest in animals.

PUBLIC NOTICE

TO WIT:

Public notice is hereby given to the electors of the City of St. John's aforesaid that in obedience to His Majesty's Writ to me directed and bearing date twenty-second day of October, 1925, I require the presence of the said electors at Wadden Building, 368 Water Street, (entrance from George's Street) in the City of St. John's on the Twenty-eighth day of this month of November, from ten a.m. until two of the clock in the afternoon, for the purpose of nominating persons to represent them in the Municipal Council; and that in case a poll be demanded and allowed in the manner by Law prescribed such poll will be opened on the eighth day of the month of December, in the year 1925, from the hour of eight in the morning till eight of the clock in the evening, in each of the polling stations, as affixed by the Proclamation of His Excellency the Governor, dated the third day of this month of November, in the year 1925.

And further that at said Wadden Building, I shall open the ballot boxes, count the votes given for the several candidates, and return as elected the persons having the majority of votes, of which all persons are hereby required to take notice and to govern themselves accordingly.

Given under my hand at St. John's, this fourth day of November, 1925. THOMAS J. FORAN, Returning Officer.

Effect of Shingling on Health of Girls

DISCUSSION ARISES IN ENGLAND—SEVENTEENTH CENTURY EXPERIENCES RECALLED.

London.—Are bobbing and shingling unhealthy? This question was raised by a Daily Mail correspondent, who quoted from the letters of Mme. de Sevigne how in 1671 the beauties of the French court had their hair shingled, only to renounce the fashion because of violent neuralgia and toothache. A reporter asked six bobbed and shingled women whether they had ever suffered any ill-effects. One girl said: "I had pains in my head for about a week after my hair was first bobbed about three years ago. Very often when I allow my hair to grow fairly long over the back of my neck and have it cut I get a headache. I put it down to catching cold; the headache soon disappears. Another bobbed-hair girl said that she prevented neuralgia by not having her hair cut too closely. The other four girls said that they never had headaches which could be attributed to their short hair. According to a doctor, the effect of going out of doors immediately after having the hair cut on a cold or rainy day would be likely to give a headache or neuralgia to some women. "Many women," he added, "have a shampoo after their hair is cut, and this, opening the pores of the skin, adds to their liability to cold in the head or to neuralgia."

Men and Elephants in Florida. Prehistoric men lived in America at the same time as the mammoths and mastodons, and those now extinct elephants survived in the South 10,000 to 50,000 years later than in other parts of the continent. This is indicated by remains discovered by a joint expedition of the Smithsonian Institution and Amherst College near the towns of Melbourne and Vero, Florida. Says Science Service's Daily Science News Bulletin (Washington): "Preliminary results of the expedition were tentatively announced by Dr. J. W. Gidley, of the Smithsonian Institution, who has just returned from Florida. Dr. Gidley in cooperation with Prof. F. B. Loomis of Amherst, directed the excavations which revealed a crushed human skull, ten feet below the surface in close association with pre-historic animal remains. "Similar deposits were found in three different places near Melbourne and at Vero, showing that the remains are typical of a wide extent of time, but that they were deposited during the same period and in a similar way to the animal bones. "The discovery of the existence of this distinct layer of ancient plants and human relics not only shows that man was a contemporary of the mammoth on this continent as in Europe, but reveals for the first time that the big elephants probably survived for thousands of years longer than has hitherto been thought. Dr. Gidley estimates that these American elephants lived in Florida, perhaps 10,000 years after those whose remains were recently discovered in the former swamps of Indiana, and who have been assigned to the late Pleistocene or Ice Age."

Harbor Grace Notes

A very pleasing event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Driscoll, Victoria Street, on Monday night last, when Miss Gertrude L. Davis, who is shortly to be married, was tendered a miscellaneous shower by some twenty of her friends. She was the recipient of many valuable and useful gifts. Refreshments were served at 10.30 after which another surprise for Miss Davis was in store. Rev. Fickertine, Messrs. E. Simmons, E. E. Parsons, then joined the gathering and presented the bride-to-be, with a beautiful silver tea service, on behalf of the congregation of the United Church and in recognition of her six years of service as organist.

The following is a copy of the address:—
Miss Gertrude L. Davis, Town.

Dear Miss Davis:—It was with great reluctance that we, the Trustees Board accepted your resignation as Organist on the 21st ultimo, and in doing so, we felt that your services for over six years must have involved much self-denying effort. The congregation appreciates to the fullest extent, the efficient and helpful manner in which you have discharged your important duties in the work of the Church.

We have been continually impressed with the manner in which you have so faithfully kept your appointments in connection with the many duties involved in your position. This faithfulness has been manifested by your presence at the services under the most unfavourable climatic conditions.

We recognise that your musical talent has played a very conspicuous part in the form and spirit of worship, and that the congregation has been inspired and edified, while listening to your choice selections with which you have so often favoured us. We shall not soon forget your last rendition—"The Last Chord," as well as many other beautiful selections.

We ask you to accept the accompanying gift, as a slight token of our appreciation of your most valuable services.

As you are about to take your departure to Corner Brook, we most heartily embrace this opportunity of wishing you every happiness and success in your new sphere of activity.

Yours truly,
Pastor,
E. E. PARSONS,
Recording Steward,
E. SIMMONS,
Secretary-Treasurer.

Harbor Grace, Nov. 5, 1925.
To the above Miss Davis made a brief reply, and in a few appropriate words thanked them for this expression of appreciation of her efforts.

She left by Thursday morning's train enroute to Corner Brook, and takes with her the best wishes of her many friends. Her brother Rev. Ernest Davis, who had been on a brief visit to town, left by the same train for his home at Curling.

The members of the Boy Scouts have been busy lately soliciting donations for their annual Jubilee Sale, and the affair was held at their headquarters, Bannerman Street, on Monday night. Mr. Paul Higgins, acted as auctioneer, in his usual good style, and disposed of the vegetables, etc. something in the vicinity of ninety dollars was realised as the proceeds, which will help the boys meet their necessary expenses, as well as encourage them to "Carry On" the good work.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Furneaux and daughter, Dorothea, left here on Thursday to connect with the Sylvia for New York, where they will spend a fortnight before sailing by the Berengaria for their home in England. Mr. Furneaux has been attached to the Imperial Cable Services Co.'s office here for the past three and a half years, and both he and his wife have made many friends during their stay here, who regret their departure, but their good wishes will follow them in the future. Our Scouts and Guides received great benefit through the instruction classes conducted by Mr. Furneaux, and just previous to his departure the Scouts waited on him and presented him with a set of military brushes, as a token of their appreciation.

Mrs. Donald Spence of St. Anthony, who has been visiting friends in St. John's, came to town last week on a visit to her father, Mr. Robt. Telford. Her many friends are pleased to see her this way again, and trust that her stay will be most pleasant.

Rev. Fr. Fitzgerald who for the past year or more has been at Northern Bay, has recently been transferred to King's Cove, where he will assist Fr. Scully. He leaves shortly to take up his new duties, and will carry with him the best wishes of his many friends.

him the best wishes of his many friends.

Mr. Alfred Simmons, who has been on a month's vacation to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Simmons, returned to Deer Lake on Monday last.

Miss Violet Taylor, who recently underwent an operation for tonsillitis at the hospital, St. John's, returned to town again last week.

The many friends of Miss Lizzie Kennedy will regret to learn that she suffered a stroke of paralysis at her home here a week ago. She was unconscious for a couple of days, but there has been a gradual improvement in her condition, and we trust it will speedily increase.

Mr. L. J. Lawton, who had been receiving Mr. E. D. Freeman at Strang's Pharmacy, returned to Bell Island on Tuesday.

Corner Brook Notes

The wedding of Mr. A. R. Stansfield to Miss Meredith Way of Briggs was solemnized at the First United Church, Corner Brook, on Wednesday morning, Oct. 28th, by Rev. Davis, Pastor of the church. As the bride entered the church appropriate music was rendered by Rev. H. Cox, who presided at the organ. Mr. John Way gave the bride away. Mrs. Christopher Fisher, wife of one of the pioneers of Corner Brook, acted as matron of honor. Mr. Geo. Grey, an employee of the A.W. Co., performed the duties of best man, while Miss Margaret Maddock, our Public School Teacher, acted as bridesmaid. The bride looked charming dressed in cinnamon brown gaberdine costume with grey squirrel fur and flowered picture hat to match, and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations, asters and maiden hair fern. The matron of honour was dressed in silver grey Canton crepe

NERVE LIFE RESTORED BY NATURE'S REMEDY

Make no mistake: you cannot hold up your balance of health by resorting to drugs that give but false hopes, or medicines that are a fallacy.

Nature's best remedy has but one name, "Electricity," and this is the only means by which Vitality and Life Power are regained.

Every sign and symptom of nervous debility denotes a physical debasement which only the "Ajax" Dry Cell Body Battery can restore to a perfectly healthy condition.

Hopeless is the outlook of the man who depends upon drugs to restore his vitality. They cannot impart to the system what they do not possess—nerve force. Electricity is nerve force, and what is more, it is the means provided by Nature for restoring Nerve Power. Examine the question for yourself. Send for the Free Book offered below to-day.

You are listless—your blood crawls sluggishly in your veins—you have no desire for the pleasures of life—your stomach rebels—your kidneys fail to act—you are "liverish" and despondent.

These portents indicate that you need now—at once—the regenerative benefits which so freely flow from the "AJAX" Battery.

Simply by one hour's wear a day—in your leisure moments—you can re-bathe your body with the exhilarating boon to the nerves which the "AJAX" re-energizing electrical streams bestow.

It turns the darkest physical night into the glorious daylight of health.

A despondency takes wing—debility vanishes—every faint or weakness disappears, for Nature reasserts herself and Electricity disperses all the ills which threaten your well-being.

Perfect "manhood"—yes—ideal in every respect, this is the inestimable blessing conferred on the "AJAX" wearer.

Manhood, in its richest sense, regained—nothing less.

You can be increased in your own well-being—and to help you we offer a free, post-paid copy of our famous illustrated "AJAX" book. Write for this 32-day Special Booklet for Ladies and Gentlemen, please specify which is required when writing.

In order to save time correspondents should, when writing for the Free Booklet, state their age, sex and full details of their case, for then precise advice can be sent by return mail. All letters are treated in the strictest confidence.

OLD MAN GREEN.
Old man Green, you've never heard of. Papers never used a word of him or anything he did. Seems as though his light was hid day by day from mortal eyes. Wasn't clever, great or wise; Just a carpenter who made Odds and ends and liked his trade.

Old Man Green lived over there In that humble cottage, where Five plump babies came to bless. Those small rooms with happiness; And as time went on they grew Just as rich men's children do; Three smart boys and two fine girls With the prettiest of curls.

Old Man Green from day to day Put up shelves to earn his bread. Took the little that he made Following faithfully his trade. And somehow his wife and he Managed it most carefully. And five children, neat and clean, Answered to the name of Green.

Old Man Green with saw and plane Little from the world could gain. But with that small sum he earned Many things his children learned. "Those Green boys," the teachers said, "Have the stuff to get ahead."

This is all there is to tell. Boys and girls are doing well. Each with courage and with grace Fills in life an honored place. Old Man Green is dead and gone. But his worth is shining on. This is praise, if praise be needed. As a father he succeeded.

and black hat with osprey feathers. The bride's dress was a pale green silk Canton crepe with black picture hat. The groom's present to the bride was a platinum bar pin with onyx stone, to the bridesmaid gold cameo pin, and to the best man a silver pencil. The happy couple left for Spruce Brook to spend their honeymoon, after which they will take up residence at the bungalow lately occupied by Mr. Deal of the A.W. Co. The happy couple are well known here, both being employees of the N. P. & F. Co., and their fellow-workers and friends wish Mr. and Mrs. Stansfield many years of happiness.

Mrs. Robert Simmons, who was visiting her parents at Champneys, arrived by Monday's train.

Edward VII. No. 148, Lodge of I.O. O.F. celebrated the first anniversary of its inception in the United Church Hall on Nov. 3rd. There was present a diverse team of twelve representing Exploits Lodge, Grand Falls and with them Rev. Bro. E. Loter, Grand Chaplain of the Grand Lodge. The initiatory degree was worked in an efficient and masterly manner by the visiting Brethren. Eight candidates were introduced into the mysteries of the Order. After the Lodge closed the Brothers and guests were invited to partake of the good things supplied by the Committee. Bro. "Bert" Noosworthy, who is well known for his happy knack of handling the piano, presided at the instrument and the would-be singers extended into the wee sma' hours of the morning.

A very sad accident occurred Wednesday morning, Nov. 3rd, on board S.S. "Strandhill," a steamer chartered by the N.P.&F. Co. bringing coalwood to supply the mill. Just after going to work a labourer named E. McDonald from Little River, Codrô, 18 years of age, while working on the deck where the wood passed ashore, tripped and fell a distance of twenty to thirty feet into the hold of the steamer, falling on his head on the keelson and was almost instantly killed.

The S.S. Humber Arm leaves for U.S.A. Thursday loaded with paper from N.P.&F. Co.

Mr. Theo. Austin left by Friday's train for St. John's to visit his family. "Tommy" has done well and proved himself an able worker and is popular with all who know him.

Mr. Miller of Burgeo met with a slight accident Thursday night, a piece of machinery falling and crushing two of his toes. He was taken to the Hospital to be treated. Too much praise cannot be given the company for the way they look after the sick and injured, having a most up-to-date hospital and staff.

Work is progressing on the Government Building and Public School, and the contractors hope to have things in good shape before the snow comes, although the past few days the weather has been quite cold.

Every room is filled at present at the Glyn Mill Inn, and they have to double up in some of them. If this is any indication, the new Hotel at St. John's bids fair to be a thundering success.

The Company is in need of quite a lot of wood to keep the mills running this winter, and have decided to put camps in on the back of Corner Brook—COB.

WHEN YOU ATTEND AT THE MAJESTIC THEATRE ASK AT THE WICKET FOR A

SWAN SOAP TICKET OR COUPON. It will enable you to get 1000 Extra Votes in the Majestic Theatre Pony Contest.

- You know that every Swan Toilet Soap Wrapper is worth 100 Votes
The front side of a Hudson's Super-Soap Package is worth 100 Votes
The back and front of a Lux Package are each worth 50 votes
So one Lux Package will give you 100 Votes
The large Lantic Red Balls which you cut off a Lantic Sugar Package are worth 50 votes each, and as there are 2 on a package the package will give you 100 Votes
Every Sunlight Soap Wrapper is worth 100 Votes

All other Soap Wrappers & Sugar Containers are Worth Nothing in the Pony Contest

Take care not to lose your votes through buying the wrong kind of Soap or Sugar. Lantic Sugar is the only sugar which will give you container votes. The 2 large Red Balls which you can cut off, will give you 50 votes each, or 100 votes for the two.

The only Soap Wrappers on which you can get votes are Swan Toilet Soap Wrappers and Sunlight Soap Wrappers. Lux is the only flaked soap which will give you votes. A Lux Package will give you 100 votes, 50 votes for the front and 50 for the back.

Hudson's Super-Soap Powder Costs Only Three Cents a Package The Front of a Hudson's Super-Soap Package is Worth 100 Votes

Hudson's Super-Soap Powder is best quality English Soap Powder; it contains no sand or lime. It's cheaper than soap for scrubbing floors, washing greasy dishes and dish cloths, windows, etc.

Each week while the Pony Contest is on, count your Sunlight and Swan Soap Wrappers, your Lux package fronts and backs, your Lantic Red Balls and your Hudson's Soap Powder package fronts. Put them in an envelope, mark on the envelope the number of votes it contains, write your name and address on the envelope and bring it to the Majestic Theatre. Then get busy collecting another lot of votes.

NOW LET US TELL YOU ABOUT THE THOUSAND EXTRA VOTES THAT YOU CAN GET WITH THE SWAN SOAP TICKET OR COUPON.

You will get a ticket or coupon each time you attend the Majestic Theatre; it may be a Swan ticket or some other one, but if you prefer to get a Swan Ticket take care to ask for it. Say "I want a Swan ticket, please!"

WHEN YOU GET THE SWAN SOAP TICKET, bring it with you to the shop where you buy Soap and Sugar. Buy a dollar's worth of Sunlight Soap, Swan Toilet Soap, Lux, Hudson's Soap Powder or Lantic Sugar, and your shopkeeper will fill in and sign the Swan Soap Ticket, giving you a thousand votes, which will be in addition to the votes you get on the wrappers. If you don't buy the dollar's worth of goods you won't get the extra thousand votes, but your wrappers and container votes will still count.

You won't have any trouble making up a dollar's worth of these goods. You can buy 1 cake of Swan Soap, it costs only 10 cents; it's a white floating-toilet soap made by Lever Brothers, who are soap makers to His Majesty King George, so you see it must be a first class soap. Then a package of Lux costs only 10 cents; your mother knows how good Lux is. You will want Sunlight Soap as long as you live, so you can buy 3 cakes of Sunlight, it won't be wasted. You certainly will want a package of Hudson's Super-Soap Powder, it costs only 3 cents, and the empty package is worth 100 votes. Now you always want Sugar in your home, and 3 packages (2-lb. each) of Lantic Granulated will just make up your dollar, or 2 packages of Lantic Granulated and 1 pound package of Lantic Icing will square off the dollar.

If you wish you can buy a dollar's worth of Sunlight Soap alone, or of Lantic Sugar, or you may buy any assortment you like, and you may give your grocer the ticket and buy 50 cents worth one week and 50 cents worth the following week, but your ticket is not worth 1000 votes until you buy the dollar's worth.

REMEMBER! When you buy any of the above articles a cake of Sunlight Soap or a 3 cent package of Hudson's Soap Powder, etc., you get the 100 votes for the wrapper, etc., and when you buy a dollar's worth of any assortment of the articles referred to in this advt., you get one thousand votes in addition to the wrapper and container votes.

"I know exactly what is the matter with you, Jack. You have lost confidence."

"YOU were getting along fine until you had that nervous breakdown, but since then you have been worried and anxious."

"Now you have got discouraged and down-hearted, and it is no wonder you cannot make sales."

"The salesman must have lots of energy and vigor as well as confidence in himself and what he has to sell."

"But you cannot have confidence in anything so long as your nerves are weak and you spend the nights worrying instead of getting good, refreshing sleep."

"Take my advice, boy, and go straight to the drug store and get half a dozen boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Then make up your mind that while you are using this you will get out into the fresh air all you can and forget to worry."

"Now, you may feel pessimistic after all the treatments you have been taking, but I know what I am talking about."

"My nerves were in a worse condition than yours ever were. I could scarcely get a wink of sleep, and did not care whether I got anything to eat or not."

"Besides, I got so irritable and down-hearted that nothing seemed to go right."

"The experience that I had enables me to sympathize with you now, and also to say that I am certain that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will help you."

"It is entirely different to most medicines used for the nerves, because instead of merely stimulating the tired nerves to over-excitation, it nourishes them back to health and vigor."

Now, Jack, you must give the Nerve Food a trial, and I know you will consider me your best friend for telling you 'about it.'"

Here is an interesting letter from another business man who had a similar experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food:

Mr. W. J. Wilson, Grocer, Perth, Ont., writes: "In fitting up this building for a grocery business I worked very hard, and after putting in my stock I continued plugging away, good and hard, too. I commenced to feel myself going down—my weight went from 180 pounds down to 154 pounds. My appetite began to fail, and, of course, upon retiring I could not get a good night's rest. Sometimes after going to sleep my nerves would twitch, and I would wake up with a start, and then lie awake for hours. I remembered having used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food before, so I started in again, and took a good treatment, using about half a dozen boxes. I soon felt my appetite returning, I could sleep well, and commenced gaining in weight, until I felt like a new man. From the benefits I have received from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I cannot speak too highly of it."

Not Naturally
Bad Children

Children are not bad by nature, declares Dr. Edgar A. Doll, an authority on child psychology, who discusses child conduct in Hygiene, a popular health magazine published by the American Medical Association (Chicago). A child's conduct, he says, is called good or bad as it makes life easier for adults or puts us to inconveniences. It is difficult for parents or teachers to apply a standard of conduct based on the child's intent or the child's welfare rather than their own convenience, comfort or pleasure. When, therefore, the conduct of children conflicts with their own immediate happiness, we are prone to ascribe some malicious intent and to look for anti-social motives. Dr. Doll goes on:

"Children commonly fail to do what we consider the right thing, because they fail to understand what is desired of them. They have not been adequately instructed, they have misunderstood, or they have lacked intelligence to understand or to judge well. We must not forget that example is stronger than precept, and that many of the undesirable activities of children are the result of imitation of other children whose social training has been neglected or unsuccessful. "But the study of intelligence does not explain all the difficulties of child behavior. More recently we are beginning to understand that the emotions of children play a much more powerful part in determining conduct than has previously been supposed. We have been inclined to look on children's emotions as consequences of their actions. We are beginning to understand that these emotional disturbances may be the most important determiners of child behavior. Emotional instability is now seen to be both the cause and the effect of misconduct, thus creating a vicious circle of ever-widening scope. "Four types of emotional disturbances are found in children, according to Dr. Doll. These are: "1. Those that are normal to the growing child and reflect the natural influences of the development of his personality. "2. Those caused by some abnormal physical condition, usually subject to remedial treatment or correction. "3. Those arising from strictly social causes. "4. Those due to unfortunate mental organization such as conflicts, attitudes, faulty habits, uncontrolled instincts. "In these days when parents have more time to observe their children, and have fewer children to observe, unusual attention is being given, Dr. Doll notes, to the natural activities of children. This leads to alarm on the part of those who may not be sufficiently informed as to what is normal child conduct. He goes on: "We must not forget that children are naturally restless, active, flighty, volatile in their interests, and with but little sense of responsibility. We forget that both in judgment and in acquired information they do not have the ability of adults. We are, therefore, more inclined to be impatient than just. We are too prone to praise or to blame without much effort at trying to understand. We forget that the child is happier when he does well than when he does poorly, and that his most natural tendency is the desire to please, since this brings him happiness. "While we know that such things as erupting teeth and the physiological changes of adolescence are accompanied by emotional disturbances, we are all too careless in failing to give due weight to them. On the other hand, too much regard for physical factors may result in the child's taking advantage of a too sentimental sympathy. In adult life, we must control our emotions as best we can, regardless of our physical condition. "When we remember that the majority of these emotional disturbances are natural, are normal, are incidental to the child's social adjustments and are of comparatively brief duration, we can save ourselves time, energy and worry by more or less temporizing with the condition until it is outgrown."

Robert's Ruses

CATCHING CROOKS WITH COTTON

When two men were charged recently with having entered premises near the Tower Bridge, a constable stated that he discovered them there owing to his finding broken some black cotton that he had stretched across a gate. This is unknown as a "mark" and is one of many devices the policeman has for trapping nocturnal prowlers. Cotton or thread fastened across doorways has frequently led to important captures. Not long ago a London policeman on night duty noticed that such a "mark," which he had placed on a jeweller's shop, had been disturbed. With another officer he entered the place and caught two thieves who were crouched in the corner of a dark attic. On one of them was a piece of paper bearing the name and address of a man suspected of receiving stolen property.

A Big Haul

The constable went to the address, arrested the "fence," who had a shop in which he carried on business as a "general dealer," and then returned to the shop, where he took off his coat and acted as the proprietor's assistant. In three hours five men came in singly with stolen property that they wished to sell, and one by one they were taken to the police station. Thus the total bag was eight—all through a bit of cotton!

An ingenious idea was hit upon by a constable stationed in a Lancashire village where there were many poachers. He fastened a bobbin of the weaver's silk across the entrance to the house of a poacher, securing it in such a way that when the man came out he carried the thread with him for some distance. This indicated the direction he had taken, and his whereabouts could then be guessed.

"Marked" Padlocks

Sometimes a complete departure is made, because why? thieves know the suspended thread dodge. One has been known to remove that "mark," pass through a gate, and then leave things exactly as he found them, with the result that a robbery has been carried out without arousing the suspicion of the constable on the beat. So some policeman put a bit of stick, a scrap of paper, a stone, or anything else that is handy between gates or in the jamb of a door. Windows and padlocks are similarly "marked." In this way three notorious thieves were caught in a provincial jeweller's shop last year, the policeman on the beat noticing, owing to the absence of his "mark," that somebody had tampered with the padlock. Devices of this kind are particularly common in rural districts, partly because policemen have to cover a good deal of ground, and partly because they learn a lot from gamekeepers, who are experts in "marking."

What the Policeman Heard

One country constable, who had two large halls on his round, had an elaborate system for discovering whether anybody had passed through gaps in hedges. As a further precaution, he used to cover his trail in certain places when the ground was muddy or covered with snow by walking backwards for several hundred yards, so that anybody on plunger bent might think he had gone towards the halls and had not returned. While engaged in this operation one night he heard the sound of footsteps. Daring into the hedge, he looked down the road in the direction of the village, and presently saw approaching a man whom he recognized as a convicted thief. "Well," muttered the thief, as he examined the officer's tracks, "I've gone up there twice to-night, and hasn't come back yet."

Shaking his head, he retreated, and that night nothing was stolen.

Safety First—and Last

TESTING A BRIDGE'S STRENGTH.

Some years ago, when a new floor was made for a big bazaar in the Albert Hall, a battalion of Guards was employed to test it after completion. Five hundred men were led into the building and marched round the 24,000 square feet of timber flooring. The test was successful and the floor lasted from 1904 until the new dancing floor was made two or three years ago.

The weight of a crowd is far greater than was formerly supposed. The old idea was that the greatest pressure per square foot of floor was between 80 and 100 pounds, but it is known now that a pressure of 180 pounds is possible if a crowd is packed tightly. So when a new football grand stand is put up it is tested by packing men as tightly as possible upon it.

Sand-Bags as Passengers

Galleries are sometimes tested in similar fashion. When the Princes Theatre, London, was reconstructed four hundred unemployed workmen were paid to mass themselves in the gallery in order to test its safety.

When a new railway bridge is built it is tested not merely by running full trains over it, but by driving a number of immensely heavy locomotives on to it and allowing them to stand there for some time in order to see if there is any settlement.

New omnibuses are tested in a peculiar fashion. When a new design of bus is being tried it is loaded with sand-bags. As many as thirty-eight were used in a recent test to see that the springs were all right.

Next come skidding tests, the bus being run at high speed on a slippery surface and brought to a sudden stop by application of the brakes.

Atishoo! by John Henry

THE RADIO HUMORIST IS INOCULATED.

It was Blossom's idea in the first place. I came home the other evening and said anxiously to my wife in a low voice, "Blossom said, 'John Henry, winter is coming. I suppose,' she said, 'that you will go around half the time with your eyes watering and your nose a deep shade of carmine as usual. You'd better do something about it.'"

Now I don't know why it is, but I'm a martyr to colds. If I go out and there is a slight breeze, all the germs in the vicinity are wanted into my system, and for the next couple of weeks I alternately shiver and burn, and I get headaches, and my nose swells up and becomes an object of reproach.

Home-made, but Ends Coughs in a Hurry

If you have a severe cough or chest trouble, accompanied with a soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing, or if your child wakes up during the night with croup and you want quick help, try this reliable old home-made remedy. Any drug store can supply you with a 16-oz. bottle of Finax. Pour this into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup. Instead of sugar syrup, if desired, this recipe makes 16 ounces of a remarkably cough remedy. It tastes good, and in spite of its low cost, it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It soothes and pines the inflamed spots through tickle and soothes and relaxes the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes with such simplicity, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing. Finax is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and probably the best known means of overcoming severe coughs, throat and chest troubles. There are many varieties of Finax, but the only one to avoid is "Finax" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give shoo-out relief, or your money promptly refunded. The Doctor's Friend

When you have a cold, someone once told me, every time you breathe millions of germs are released, and these germs give other people colds. I think doctors ought to raise their hats when my name is mentioned, because during an ordinary winter I must release billions of germs, and provide a lot of work for the medical profession. They are so good so far as all my friends know, I'm a very good player, and while I don't exactly sing for my supper, I do sing in order to earn enough to buy hats and other luxuries for Blossom. Well, when I've got a bad cold I can't sing, and when I can't sing I don't get paid, and without money Blossom can't buy new hats and things, and that's why she was so anxious that I shouldn't suffer this winter.

So I said, "Blossom, I'll take a dose of quinine, and try to shake it off." Blossom said, "John Henry, you'll do nothing of the sort. This morning," she said, "the news-agent's boy left a copy of the 'Medical Post' by mistake, and I've been looking through it before sending it back, and there's a very interesting article about colds in it. It seems," she said, "that you can be inoculated against colds, so you go to the doctor and be inoculated."

Well, it was easy for Blossom to talk, but I pointed out to her that I knew something about inoculation. When I was in the Army I had needles stuck into me nearly every week for nothing, and I didn't see why I should go and pay money for any unpleasant pastime of that kind now.

A Way They Have in the Army. "Blossom," I said, "you wouldn't talk so glibly about such a serious matter if you'd had medical men's serious grabbing handfuls of quivering, flesh and joyfully jabbing huge needles in to you. And half the time," I said,

"they'd forget to make the necessary entry in your pay-book, and you'd have to wait all done over again." Blossom said she was pained and disappointed. She also said men were all alike, afraid of being hurt. "You'll come with me," she said. "I'll take you to the doctor myself. Just to shame you, I'll be inoculated as well."

So we went to the doctor's, and Blossom boldly bared her arm and was inoculated first. While the doctor was getting another needle ready for me, I heard a little squeak from Blossom, and was just in time to catch her as she collapsed.

I don't know whether this inoculation will really prevent colds, but I do know the doctor says we must have another injection in four days' time, and I'm curious to know whether Blossom will turn up for the second dose.

Personals

(Nfld. Weekly).

We were glad to welcome at the office of the "Weekly" during the past week:

Mr. Arthur W. Gordon, son of the late John Gordon of St. Jacques, Fortune Bay. Mr. Gordon left Newfoundland in 1908 and for five years was in the employ of the National Shawmut Bank of Boston. Later on he was appointed assistant sales manager of the Harvard Automobile Co., of Cambridge, which position he still holds.

His grandfather was the late Capt. Henry Tibbo who, it will be remembered, lost his life by drowning in 1908. Mr. Gordon is married and lives in Watertown, and his mother is also a resident of Boston, living in Brookline.

Mrs. Thos. Quinn, daughter of Mrs. and the late John Hunt, of Argentia, N.B. Mrs. Quinn has been for over 20 years resident in this country and lives in Jamaica Plain.

Mr. Peter Terry, formerly of Newnan's Cove, B.B., who left Newfoundland about ten years ago. Mr. Terry worked with the General Electric Co., in Lynn, for four years, and then went to Flint, Mich., where he was superintendent of street lighting with the Consumer's Power Co. He returned to Boston in June last and is now with the Edison Illuminating Co., and lives in Winchester. His father, Patrick Terry, died in Winchester a little over a year ago.

Mrs. Dr. T. Mitchell of St. John's, who arrived by S.S. Newfoundland on Monday, en route to Canada, where she proposes remaining several weeks. Mrs. Mitchell speaks highly of the service, accommodation and sailing qualities of the Newfoundland, and judging from her appearance, the trip must have agreed with her.

Accompanying her were Mr. Symonds of the Swift Packing Co., and Miss Holloway, of Halifax, whose uncle, Dr. Scovell Flewelling practised in brigas about a quarter of a century ago.

Mrs. Mitchell left for Montreal on Wednesday evening, and will probably visit Boston again before returning to Newfoundland.

Mr. James J. Silvey, formerly of Newfoundland, and now of San Franisco, California, where he has made his home for the past thirty-five years. Mr. Silvey was born in St. John's in 1857 and left there in 1866. Before going to the land of the "Golden Gate" he lived in Boston for over twenty years. He visited St. John's in 1923, where he has a large number of relatives, including Richard Hogan and Wm. Dugan. While in St. John's he attended mass at the R.C. Cathedral, where 57 years ago he was in altar boy.

Mr. Silvey came through the Panama Canal on his way to Boston, and will probably remain in the Hub for some weeks before returning to California.

Mr. C. G. Duley, of the firm of T. J. Duley & Co., the well known jewellers and opticians of St. John's, who has been visiting New York and other American cities on business for his firm. Mr. Duley made only a short stay in Boston and left for St. John's on the S.S. Newfoundland, on Wednesday.

Mr. R. B. Job, director of the firm of Job Bros. & Co., Ltd., of St. John's, who arrived on the S.S. Newfoundland on a business trip to Boston and New York. Mr. Job reports conditions in Newfoundland as very encouraging and is hopeful as to the outlook for the coming year. The firm of Job Bros. & Co., Ltd., is one of the largest business firms in Newfoundland, its activities being spread over a wide area, and they are large exporters of produce to foreign markets.

Hon. S. Milley, principal of the firm of S. Milley, one of the foremost merchants of Water Street, St. John's, and a member of the Legislative Council of Newfoundland. Mr. Milley arrived in Boston on Tuesday, from New York, where he has been on a visit with his daughter, Gertrude, and sailed for St. John's on the S.S. Newfoundland on Wednesday.

Amongst the passengers to St. John's by the S.S. Newfoundland on Wednesday were Mr. and Mrs. H. Y. Mott, who have been on a visit to their son, Tom, and friends in Greater Boston. Mr. Mott is the general clerk of the House of Assembly of Newfoundland and his many friends in Boston were glad to see him.

A Guardsman's Holiday

Eddie Somerset, Lady Kitty Lambton's son, is a glutton for soldiering. He is in the Coldstreams, and not content with manoeuvres leaves London on a "bummer" holiday to spend his two "weeks" leave with the Rifles. Somerset does not know a word of Arabic or even of Spanish, but has armed himself with letters of introduction to both sides.

He has always been an adventurous fellow. Two years he jogged across Albania on a donkey, and finding things dull and no one paying any attention to him grew a heavy moustache, half of which he shaved off.

This caused a pleasurable sensation, and many Albanians who viewed him with pained interest still believe that that is the latest fashion in London.

A Modern Troubadour
Before he left for Rif-land Somerset ought to have had a talk with George Whittaker. Whittaker is not in the same line of business, being a musician, but he only recently got back from fiddling his way, a la troubadour, through the Moroccan Campaign.

"Having sat right through the big season at Covent Garden this summer," said Whittaker, "I felt I wanted something more realistic than operatic thrills. So I packed a haversack and set off from Bordeaux.

"From there I got to Toulouse, and began my first adventure. I started to try and cross the Pyrenees into Spain all alone. I got lost in the mountains, and was rescued on the point of starvation."

Armed With a Violin
Drifting along by way of Barcelona, he got a berth on a tramp steamer for Tangier, and ended the first chapter by getting invited to play chess in the house of a wealthy Arab. Chess is a sort of religious ritual there.

"Then began my attempt to see fighting. Armed with a violin, I played for hours to Spanish officers in cafes, and troops by the roadside. Finally, I was allowed to go from Tangier to Tetuan, the road following the front line.

"Unfortunately we were not sniped at—a disappointment; but the car behind came in for a salvo, and crossing the international frontier a Moorish sentry politely shot our rights to pieces.

"With his rifle he wandered around getting into prohibited territory, and being turned off. Finally he had to leave, to get home in time for the Pavlova season. He was very pleased with this unusual holiday, and highly recommends it.

Fads and Fashions
Circ braid is used in all-over vertical pattern on a street dress of dark blue cloth.

A flat sewer may be posed in the center front of an evening frock as an accent.

A great many frocks of crepe satin use the reverse side as contrast in trimming.

Our Daily Bread Dangers

THE PERIL THAT LURKS IN LOAVES.

Disquieting statements in regard to the conditions under which bread is sometimes made arose in the course of a recent discussion at a conference of the Amalgamated Union of Operative Bakers and Confectioners.

Dermatitis, known as bakers' itch, was, it was announced, spreading among operatives, particularly in South Wales, where one-half of the journeymen in a certain town have had it. Some men, it was further declared, were working with their arms swathed in bandages.

These allegations have since been confirmed to some extent by a doctor, who has stated that one of his patients knows of about seventy affected persons in his area.

SNOODLES

THINGS ARE BECOMING SERIOUS AROUND HERE—SOMETHING MUST BE DONE BECAUSE THE CANNIBALS ARE GETTING HUNGRY AND EVERY NIGHT THEIR TOMMIES BEAT A DOLEFUL DICE. GEORGE 'WHITE WASH' MAY HAVE A FEW HELPFUL SUGGESTIONS TO MAKE—

Concealing Flour's Defects

The outbreak of dermatitis among bakers is attributed to the use of "improvers"—that is, bleaching agents, such as nitrogen peroxide. In America these are prohibited in certain circumstances, as a result of an agitation that arose mainly from the discovery that some millers were adulterating flour with white clay.

But there is no legal restriction on the use of such things in this country, though "high-class" bakers are strongly opposed to it. They contend that, by bleaching, loyer grades of flour can be made to look like qualities for which a higher price is paid, and defects can be concealed in flour made from unsound or spotted grain.

Possibly, too, the use of bleaching agents may affect us in another way. According to some doctors, they bring about subtle changes in white flour that are injurious to consumers.

However this may be, there are certainly possibilities of danger in the treatment bread undergoes on its way from the bakehouse to the consumer. Generally it has four, five, or six contaminations before it reaches the home, where it arrives with more or less "clean" dirt on it, if nothing more.

A few weeks ago the Bideford Rural Council drew attention to this point. Complaints having been made that bakers' assistants in its area delivered bread with dirty hands, probably owing to attending to motor vans, the council suggested that deliveries should wear white gloves.

Sometimes bread gathers, in addition, a little mud on its journey to the consumer. Not long ago a doctor saw a woman drop several loaves in the road, remove the mud from them with his sleeve, and then deliver them to customers, who took them unsuspectingly.

Our whole system of handling bread is unhygienic. For years it has been strongly condemned by sanitary authorities, and yet the movement for wrapping bread is leader-footed. Most progress has been made with tin loaves, ordinary cottage bread presenting some technical difficulties. But numerous bakers are not in favour of wrapping even loaves that lend themselves well to that operation.

One of the most objectionable practices in connection with our daily bread is exchanging. In some towns it is common for loaves to be left in houses for a day or two and then taken back by the roundsman, who gives new loaves in exchange for them. The staple loaves are then sold as such or "re-conditioned" and passed out to other ordinary customers.

Partly because bread is highly absorbent, sanitary authorities condemn this custom, and it has been suggested that many obscure cases of disease may be due to it. At all events, the treatment to which bread is subjected in some houses is not such as to recommend it even to a moderately fastidious person.—THE BITS.

38,000 Miles in Sail Boat
CIRCUMNAVIGATED THE GLOBE IN 34-FOOT CRAFT.

San Pedro, Calif., Nov. 2.—Circumnavigation of the globe in a 34-foot sail boat has been accomplished by Harry Pidgeon, 64 years old, photographer, known to many as the "library navigator." He made port here after travelling 38,000 miles in a small cockleshell craft, "The Islander," since he set sail from San Pedro, Nov. 18, 1921. "The Islander" traversed seas notorious for bad weather. Leaving San Pedro, she went to the Marquesas Islands, South Sea; to Torres Straits across the Indian Ocean to Mauritius, and then southwest to Capetown. Thence she made St. Helena and crossed the Atlantic to Panama.

She left the canal zone last August 7. Pidgeon was dubbed the "Library Navigator" because of the unusual manner in which he obtained his seafaring knowledge. With books from a branch library here he spent what time he could spare from the construction of the Islander in studying navigation. All his information about sailing was acquired in this way.

HER NERVES BETTER NOW

Received Much Benefit by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chatham, Ont.—"I started to get weak after my second child was born, and kept on getting worse until I could not do my own housework, and was so bad with my nerves that I was afraid to stay alone at any time. I had a girl working for me a whole year before I was able to do my washing again. Through a friend I learned of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and took four bottles of it. I gave birth to a baby boy the 4th day of September, 1922. I am still doing my own work and washing. Of course, I don't feel well every day because I don't get my rest as the baby is so cross when I get my rest. I feel fine. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and am going to keep on with it until cured. My nerves are a lot better since taking it. I can stay alone day or night and not be the least frightened. You can use this letter as a testimonial and I will answer letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. CHAR. CARSON, 27 Forsyth St., Chatham, Ont.

HIGH SALARIES ARE PAID TO HOCKEY STARS.

OTTAWA, Nov. 2.—The sporting editor of the Citizen, in an article which will appear to-morrow morning, commenting on the salaries paid hockey players, states that "in the National Hockey League the salaries appear much higher than those in any other circuit. In proportion to the time employed and the time required, hockey stars of the present day, draw down much more than big league ball players."

After stating that only a few years ago, the average hockey star was satisfied with a contract calling for a few hundred dollars, the article points out that in 1918, Eddie Gerard was considered the highest paid hockey star with a contract for $1,100. Last season, the Montreal Club paid Dunc Munroe $7,000 and purchased Noble from the Toronto St. Pat's for $7,000.

High Salaries.

"This year," the article says, "with New York and Pittsburgh added, the contract calls for higher figures than ever. Conacher, former Argonaut football star, now with Pittsburgh, is said to be the best paid player in professional hockey. 'Conny' is understood to have a three-year contract at $7,000 per season. Billy Birch recently signed up with New York at $6,500 for three years and George Simpson had to be guaranteed $6,000 before he would attach his name to a New York contract.

The article further states that "the Montreal Maroons are said to have recently offered to pay $20,000 for Howie Morenz of the Canadiens and $15,000 for Babe Dye, of St. Pats. New York were offered $25,000 for Billy Burch and $15,000 for Charlie Langlois. It will thus be seen that hockey, with Happy Day getting $6,000; Leonard Conacher, $7,500; Billy Burch, $6,500; Joe Simpson, $6,000 and Sprague Cleghorn, $5,000, is certainly getting into the big money class."

WANDERERS DEFEAT MOUNT "A".
Mount Allison went down to defeat, at Seakville, last Saturday, when the Halifax Wanderers trounced them to the tune of 25 to 3. Capt. Ray Smith scored the only try for Mount A.

CARPENTER SIGNS.

Will Meet Jimmy Delaney in California Some Time in January Next.
PARIS, Oct. 31.—Georges Carpentier, former light-heavyweight boxing champion of the world, has signed articles to meet Jimmy Delaney, St. Paul light-heavyweight, in a ten round bout in California, between January 31st and January 31st, 1926.

Jack Doyle, Los Angeles promoter, announced recently that he had mailed articles to Carpentier, offering him 30 per cent. of the gate receipts and $5,000 for expenses, for a ten round bout with Delaney in Los Angeles. Carpentier has said that if he wins this bout he will seek a meeting with Paul Berlenbach, present light-heavyweight holder, in New York.

TUNNEY AND RISKO.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 31.—Gene Tunney, New York, and John Risko, Cleveland heavyweight, have been signed to box 12 rounds to a decision at Public Auditorium on the night of November 12, the opening contest of a local indoor boxing season, the promoter, Hinkel, announced to-day.

CHAMPION SURPRISED.

ELIZABETH, N.J., Oct. 31.—Jimmy Goodrich ran into a surprise here last night in defence of his lightweight title against Gene Johnson, of Elizabeth, the latter receiving the verdict of newspapermen at the ringside after ten fast rounds.

Goodrich, who did not appear in his best condition at 133 pounds, obtained an early point lead, but was outboxed and outpunched by Johnson in the last four rounds.

DEMPEY TRAILED.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 31.—One of the largest sport crowds ever assembled in Mexico is expected to turn out when Jack Dempsey appears at the bullring to-night, in two exhibition matches of two rounds each, with Jack Lee and Jack League, his sparring partners. Crowds continue to trail Dempsey in the streets. Despite much sight seeing and entertainment, the heavyweight champion has gone to the country for a brief workout daily.

Cardiff City Defeats Aston Villa.
LONDON, Nov. 2.—Saturday's League football was featured by a number of upsets, chief among which were the defeat of both Aston Villa and Newcastle United, each trimming taking place on the home ground. ARTICLE No. 3

A rather interesting question has been submitted to the writer. "If your partner bids no-trump and second hand bids two hearts, with what type of hand should you double?" There are two separate and distinct cases in which the partner of the no-trump bidder should double an adverse over bid on his right. For example, suppose the dealer bid one no-trump, second hand bid two hearts and you hold the following hand:
Hearts—K, J, 7, 4
Diamonds—A, J, 10, 5
Spades—K, 10, 2
Don't you think you should double two hearts? If your partner has a no-trump hand, it should be impossible for the heart bidder to make his contract. On the other hand, it would be difficult to score game at no-trump or a suit bid. On the other hand, suppose your partner bids one no-trump, second hand bids two hearts and you hold the following hand:
Hearts—J, 10, 9, 7, 5
Diamonds—K, 7, 4, 2
Spades—10
Don't you think you ought to double two hearts with this hand? If your partner has a sound no-trump you should defeat the two heart bidder by two or three tricks. These hands are not inconsistent. They merely specify the two types that justify a double of an adverse two bid over partner's no-trump.

The same player has suggested that with strong hands of the first type, it would be better to double with the understanding that the original no-trump bidder should bid his best suit. This type of informative double has been tried out many times but is not considered good tactics. The whole purpose of the informative double is to force partner who has not yet bid to show his suit. To extend this principle to one who has already bid is carrying the principle too far. By bidding no-trump, teams won. Serious injuries to players unfortunately marred several matches, and in every case these occurred early in the game. The initial skipper of Tottenham Hotspur, Grimsdell, broke his left ankle at Leicester, and this means that he will be unable to appear for some time to come. Despite this handicap the Spurs put up a magnificent struggle. Osborne, who was also prominent last week against Liverpool, registered three goals for Tottenham. The Londoners, however, had to accept defeat, Leicester taking the game by a two goal margin.

Cardiff City pulled off the most creditable performance of the day by travelling to Villa Park and taking the home team into camp by a couple of counters. Cardiff were weak due to the demands on them for the initial game against Scotland. They nevertheless took the measure of Aston Villa and chalked up the Villa's second defeat of the season.

Created Surprise.
Birmingham created much surprise in visiting the Tyne-side and handing out a 3 to 1 trouncing to Newcastle United. This was totally unexpected, coming as it did on the heels of the Northumberlanders fine win over Huddersfield Town last Saturday.

The London district came out fairly well on the general average of games. Arsenal won from Everton at Highbury and West Ham trounced Manchester City at Upton Park.

Brent was the most outstanding man on the Arsenal team, scoring three of the quartet of goals. The victory brought the Highbury Club up into fourth place in the standing.

Sunderland recorded their second draw in succession when they held Liverpool to a two-two count on the Mersey Side. Incidentally this was Sunderland's third drawn game out of four played. Sunderland continues to lead the first division with an aggregate of 21 points.

Harper, of Blackburn Rovers, was another last-trick artist, getting all of his team's goals against Burnley, who dropped the game 3 to 1. This, Burnley's fourth defeat in succession, served to precipitate them into the cellar with Cardiff City holding an edge over them in goal average.

Notable Victory.
In the lower divisions the Metropolitan district had reason to be half congratulatory for Brentford achieved a notable win over Newport while Fulham's "comeback" at the expense of Darlington was a feature of the day's results. Chelsea continued to hold their unbeaten record but they were nearly going down at Oldham before eventually recovered.

Flycatcher's position in the Southern section of the third division seems unassailable and already they are as good as promoted unless something unforeseen happens to knock them off their game. Their defeat of the Rovers at Bristol was a valuable accomplishment.

A player declares himself as having at least two quick tricks distributed in at least three suits. To ask him to give further information is unnecessary. If he has greater strength than indicated by his no-trump bid, he should be allowed to show this strength voluntarily without being forced to do so by his partner's informative double. He has done his duty by bidding no-trump. If he is overbid, his partner should not take up the burden. If he has a good suit, he should bid it. If he has a hand that justifies a double, he should double. If he has a hand after justice he should trump bid, he should bid it. If his hand does not justify any such action, he should pass. It is then up to the no-trump bidder to make another bid if his hand justifies it. Auction is a partnership game and the object of the bidding is to find the best bid of the combined hand, the best bid for twenty-six cards, not thirteen. This can be best arrived at by bidding after partner has bid rather than by use of the informative doubles which force bids, because forced bids are always hard to read. They may have strength and they may not. Never voluntarily place yourself in a position where you must guess as to your partner's strength if there is any other way open. Guesses, no matter how brilliant, can never cope with cold, hard facts.

In this connection a restatement of the nature of a business double is pertinent. A business double is a double made for the purpose of defeating the bid, or any double is a business double. Any double is a business double, but a business double is a double, or any double of an original suit bid of four or more, or a double of an original two no-trump. In this connection please note that after partner has bid a no-trump and opponents have overbid and the partner of the no-trump bidder has doubled, such a double is a business double and made for the purpose of defeating the bid.

Little Bits of Science

WHAT THE PROFESSORS SAY
The attention of scientists and laymen the world over has been focused on the recent meeting, at Southampton, of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, at which vital problems of interest to everyone were discussed by experts. Below are points from some of the most noteworthy addresses—

It is highly probable that a change in climate will greatly affect the activities of the human race within a measurable number of years. It is not impossible that the sites of our present centres of civilization will be buried under glaciers, and that a genial climate, the present inhospitable regions around the poles.

Facts about Falls
If a mouse fell down a mine shaft of three hundred feet it would merely bump itself on landing, give itself a shake, and run away. A rat would break its bones, whereas all that would remain if a man or a horse had a similar adventure would be a splash.

It is the female mosquito that bites us; the male is a compulsory vegetarian and does not court the society of the human being. There are 1,400 known species of mosquitoes in England, and they are an intolerable nuisance in many districts, including the London area.

Already we are able to photograph viruses magnified three thousand diameters in one-tenth of a second, and to make a series of photographs in rapid succession. Later we hope to be able to photograph bodies as small as one-five-hundred-thousandth of an inch. Even now it would be possible to prepare a cinema film of extremely small organisms, such as the anthrax bacilli, one-hundred-thousandth of an inch in diameter.

The Earth's Temperature.
The earth is like a steam boiler jacketed with a layer of asbestos, the central portion, whatever its nature, occupying about three-quarters of the earth's radius, with an outer shell of rocks. If this is so, it will take at least a hundred thousand million years for the internal temperature to fall to half of what it originally was.

The agricultural labourer with his knowledge of animal life, his weather fore, his skill in building or thatching the rick, his power to drive a straight line with the plough, is a better educated man, even though he left school at thirteen, than many a clerk who suffered complete immersion in a secondary school course and, satisfied with the benefits of his baptism, has since then only become a little more skilled in figures and filing.

An Amazing Appetite.
Large animals have the advantage in water. A man coming out of his bath carries one pound of water with him. A mouse coming out would carry its own weight, while a fly in similar circumstances would be loaded with fifty times its weight. Small animals have to have more food because the heat has to do relatively more work. A mouse thus eats one-third of its own weight every day.

To be an insect you have got to have a certain amount of complication. A curious point is that there is no insect so small that it cannot be seen with the naked eye.

To love your work may be to reduce your wages. Simply through liking their jobs, many men and women depress the rates of pay. Few object to the rates being reduced in this manner, however, for those who earn them accept pleasure in their work in lieu of money.

SUZANNE POWERS, was seen this past season in "Tarnish," "The Potters," and "The Bluebird."
She writes: "Women who have adopted the new severely plain mode in hair-dressing find in Stacomb a delightful and effective aid. Very few women can achieve this desirable effect without it." (7)

Pale, Tired Mothers Should Beware of Chronic Fatigue

Many a discouraged mother thinks that her thin, pale, tired-out condition is due to exhausting housework and care of children—when as a matter of fact the real cause of all her distressing ailments is chronic fatigue.

Don't confuse chronic fatigue with the ordinary fatigue you feel after a good long walk. Chronic fatigue comes from within. Your organs and muscles have become debilitated due to lack of sufficient organic iron in your blood. To conquer chronic fatigue you must strengthen your system by restoring this organic iron to your blood. But don't take the older mineral iron medicines which many doctors now say do little good. Take organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which is like the iron in your blood and like that in spinach and lentils. Unlike ordinary mineral iron it will not injure the teeth or disturb the stomach, but is promptly assimilated.

Take Nuxated Iron for just two weeks and you'll be astonished how much stronger and better you feel. Money back if not improved. All good druggists.

ON EDUCATION.

On conversing a short time ago with a prominent and enterprising business man, he spoke in the following terms:—

"We have entirely lost the markets for some of our products. We are destroying the partridge-berry market by our deception and carelessness; the markets for herring and lobsters are gone and likewise that of the squid, through the failure of curers and the exporters to produce an article of food such that repeat orders would testify to its edibility. I don't know whether it's through lack of education or not, but give a Newfoundland rope enough and he'll hang himself."

Here is a matter for grave concern. The habit of exploiting our fellow-men by trying to foist on them food-stuffs that are not what they are expected to be, is equal to the offence of obtaining money under false pretences. Honesty of method inculcated into young minds would have a beneficial effect on this baneful habit. Our schools provide an opportunity for the exercise of this desirable trait.

Education is defined as the development of all the powers of man. The unintelligible sound learning from the infant's lips are an indication that he has begun his education which will continue as long as life lasts. Education, therefore, does not begin, after that, at any specific period in life. It is not, as it is generally supposed to be, an interruption in the general flow of life. Rather it is the taking advantage of the provision that has been made for the broadening out of life's river, where depth of thought is cultivated and practised and where breadth of view is obtained. The narrow, singular mind is given an opportunity to broaden out so that its tentacles may secure a hold over the plurality of subjects which relieves life of its monotony and insipidity. Viewed superficially, there may be nothing particularly educative in the perusal of a history, or the study of geometry, or the reading of a book of English prose; but the apparent insignificance of these acts will be productive later of a deeper appreciation of our civil liberty; a better realization of our inter-dependency; a truer statement of fact, a more logical process in the proof; a quickened aesthetic faculty, an improved power of expression.

The development of mankind finds its parallel in the growth and expansion of the individual mind. The human ancestor lived in a continual terrifying fear of the natural elements. Natural phenomena were to him the expression of the disapproval or displeasure of fierce and vengeful gods. They must be pacified and propitiated. The best was none too good to obtain their favor or to abate their anger. Consequently, the flower of the tribe or family suffered an ignominious death to appease the wrath and vengeance of these supposed omnipotent deities. It took many thousands of years of mental development before a certain one nation of people realized that all ranked had a common conscience and was and still is—pursuing a common destiny under a God of Righteousness. The mind of the juvenile in its earliest stages sees no aim or purpose in life. Truly, he lives in the present. The business of knowledge is to fit him in the right place so that he will not be a discordant note in the harmony of the universe.

The writer contends that it is the duty of the state to see that all its future citizens have acquired at least an elementary education. If the children's guardians and parents are so careless as to allow their children to grow up without being able to read or write, it is the duty of our rulers to compel them to change their minds. Any legislator who has the welfare of his country at heart will recognize the truth of this and will do his best to see that illiteracy is obliterated in the oldest British Colony. Of course it is always easier to pass by a difficulty than to face the issue fairly and squarely. It requires men of conviction, of persistency of purpose and standing on the ground of pure conviction to advocate a reform which may prove a bit arduous and distasteful. The time seems to be opportune for a few men of calibre to test the opinion of the people of this small Dominion as to whether they are satisfied to allow illiteracy to prevail in the land. The dividends accruing to the time and effort spent in this much needed statutory law would be sure and certain. They would be seen in the lasting benefit conferred on those whom it would reach. A marked improvement in the cultural life of our communities would be the result. We would be held in higher esteem by our sister Dominions and by foreign countries. There would be progress in all the different phases of our national life. The humiliation of being debarred from another country because of the inability to read and write would become a thing of the past.

The argument is sometimes advanced that our people are fishermen and on this account do not need to be educated. What a fallacy! Fortunately its supporters are few. Besides, the argument is easily nullified. Is a fisherman any the worse for pursuing his calling because he can do a bit of calligraphy or read a newspaper? Rather is the opposite the case. We have known fishermen to be fifty per cent. better in their labours because of the early training given to their mental faculties. True, others without this requisite have made a success in various occupations, but how much better would they have performed the same work if the basis of reason had been laid in early life. Besides, the opinions of others engaged in the same calling could be consulted. Much can be learned about any job through study and comparison; and so our contention that all men should be literate is again supported.

There has been a legacy bequeathed to present and future generations by those who have lived before us. Every individual born can lay natural claim to it. But before it becomes of any value he must be able to enter in and take possession, but preparation much precede participation. The duty, then, devolves upon someone to prepare the legates for the inheritance of this priceless treasurehouse of knowledge stored up by the giant intellects of the past.

"Stone walls do not a prison make Nor iron bars a cage." So wrote one of our poets. He was voicing a spiritual and a moral truth. Liberty of spirit and freedom of mind is in direct proportion to the individual's capacity for exercising his mental faculties. In a material sense we are chained to the atmosphere that surrounds us. It is impossible to escape from the cords that bind us to our surroundings. If man rises in the air and passes the limitations marked out for him, he pays the penalty with his life. The bounds are set, over which we cannot pass. It is not so in the realm of the mind. There is no delimitation there. Hawthorne wrote that Newton may be said to have spent the greater part of his life up among the multitudinous worlds that appear as pin pricks of light above our heads at night, so much he taken up in the contemplation of the order of the universe. The soul of man cannot be circumscribed by outward circumstances. You may imprison him, but if he is innocent his freedom is as great as ever. But first he must know what constitutes freedom of spirit. The embryonic seeds of conscious liberty must have the soil of tried and tested knowledge for their growth and the sunshine of an enlightened and intelligent leader to promote it. Solid and informative knowledge obtained from good text-books and capable and efficient instructors will lay the foundation of that truth which makes us free indeed.

True patriotism manifests itself in a desire to promote the welfare of our native land. True religion shows an inclination to improve the moral and spiritual life of the people. When the two combine the impossible can be achieved. But there must be prophetic vision. A common aim and a common objective welds together a people and is the outcome of that desirable condition of things when none is for a party and all for the State. An anticipation for intellectual uplift and a little work performed to bring it about, will ensure that our vision will not have been in vain. The old Jewish prophets were undismayed by their depressing surroundings and peered into the future, envisaging a state where better things could be expected. Without this anticipation the desert would have never blossomed as a rose. Wherever true patriotism lies in our thoughts, wherever there are philanthropic tendencies, they must be expressed verbally or literally that the sense of responsibility may be quickened in the ordinary citizen on the vital subject of national education. The "common consciousness of the community" must reach out to, and long for, the time when the paralyzing influence of illiteracy will be forever banished from the land; when we will be too "wise" to be regarded as ignoramuses, claiming interest in nothing except "logs, dogs and boys." ROYAL-KENDALL COAL SAVER.

Wise folks look ahead to winter now: this is the time to buy and install this new coal and labor saving device. Dozens here have tried it the last two winters and saved at least one-fourth their coal, and a third of furnace labor. And prices this year are cheaper than last year.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

The Department has found it necessary to effect a change in the matter of paydays. In future pay-days will be observed as follows:—

Mechanics, Labourers and other workmen will be paid on Saturday of each week. Bills or accounts for services rendered or goods supplied will be paid fortnightly, on the FIRST AND THIRD SATURDAY of each month, excepting petty bills for vegetables, firewood and forage, etc., purchased from residents of outlying settlements which will be paid every SATURDAY.

All bills or accounts properly certified and on hand in the Department for approval and audit on the preceding TUESDAY will be available for collection on the following SATURDAY.

The above also refers to allocations in connection with Roads and Special Grants.

In the event of any SATURDAY being a whole holiday, bills must be in the Department on the preceding MONDAY and payment will be available on FRIDAY.

All those concerned will please govern themselves accordingly.

Schooner Kassaga Arrives at Aquaforte
IN BATTERED CONDITION.
The schr. Kassaga, Capt. Sidney Hill, which left Wesleyville on Tuesday last, bound to this port, arrived at Aquaforte last evening, badly battered by storm. The vessel has fourteen souls on board and much anxiety for their safety was expressed yesterday. The glad tidings that she had arrived safely at Aquaforte was contained in the following message from Capt. Hill, to the owner, Capt. Ed. Bishop:—"Made Cape Pine this morning; boat split in two by heavy sea; lost nothing off deck; head canvas blown partly away; all well."
The Kassaga has 1,000 qts. of cod fish on board and 16 casks of oil on deck. Included in those on board the vessel are Mrs. Hill, wife of the captain and their two children, Mrs. Edgar Hanu and Mrs. Geo. Mullett. They will proceed to the city by train.

Damaged Ellerdale Reaches Halifax
Grain-Laden Ship Which Struck Off Newfoundland to Enter Dry Dock.
HALIFAX, Nov. 5.—The British freighter Ellerdale, Capt. Smith, which went ashore some time ago near St. Anthony, on the west coast of Newfoundland, sustaining more or less damage to her bottom, and which was later released from the rocks by the Quebec Salvage and Wrecking Company's tug, Lord Strathcona, limped into port here yesterday morning, and was assisted into dock at Pier 25, South Terminal, where she is now discharging her cargo of grain. She is due to enter dry dock after discharging operations will have been completed. The underwriters and Lloyd's representative will then commence a survey of the vessel to determine the exact amount of the damage. It is expected that the steamer will be here for a considerable time for the purpose of having repairs effected.
When the Ellerdale went ashore she was bound to Quebec from Montreal with a full cargo of grain. Word was sent to Quebec of the vessel's plight, and the Lord Strathcona was rushed to the scene of the grounding. After some time had elapsed the vessel was refloated. The wrecking tug accompanied the damaged freighter to Halifax.

Wedding Bells
DAWE—KEARSEY.
A very pretty wedding took place on Nov. 1st, at the Rosary Church, Portugal Cove, when Mr. William Kearsay led to the altar Miss Alice Dawe of Flatrock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Gough, P.P. The bride was handsomely attired in a dress of tan crepe de chene and hat to match, and carried a bouquet of white roses and maiden hair ferns, and was attended by the groom's sister, Miss Josephine Kearsay, who looked charming in a dress of navy blue crepe de chene and hat to match. The groom was supported by the bride's brother, Mr. Frank Dawe. After the ceremony was performed the happy couple motored to the home of the groom's parents, Windsor Lake, where supper was served to over 50 guests, after which a very enjoyable time was spent by all. The presents received were numerous and costly, amongst them being a handsome one from Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Bearns. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Kearsay join in wishing them much happiness.—COM.

Big Attractions at the Majestic Next Week

CELEBRATED DANCER AND MIND READER.

The public are anxiously awaiting the arrival of Mem-O-Rea, the man who is designated to possess a thousand minds. As you will note by today's advertisement, if you have any secrets, stay away from the Majestic. This does not naturally mean that if you have a skeleton in the closet, it will be disclosed, because there are many things which will occupy the minds and attentions of the public. Another attraction is Miss Rita Johnston, who is known as the champion international dancer. She is some "dancer" if the press reports are to be relied upon. Anyway, the public will learn for themselves the correctness or otherwise of the way many complimentary references accorded her.

The feature is "Fools in the Dark," starring Patsy Ruth Miller. By reason of these added attractions, the night prices return to the old rate of 30c, whilst the Matinee prices will remain the same as at present.

Free Pony Votes at the Majestic next week.

Appreciation

The C.L.B.-C.C.C. Bands desire to express their sincere thanks to the following for cups and medals donated for their racing events, Nov. 4th: His Honor Mayor Cook, Sir Richard Squires, The London New York & Paris Assoc. of Fashion and an ex-C. L.B. Officer. Also to Mr. J. M. Tobin for acting captain of the course, Mr. S. P. Gillen as starter, Messrs. J. Bell, R. O'Toole, E. Robinson and J. Halley as Judges. We appreciate the kindness of His Hon. Mayor Cook in presenting the prizes and also Mr. G. Langmead for engravings. Last but not least we wish to thank the Competitors who are ever ready to come forward to assist the Bands when asked.

To our Patrons we feel grateful also for their patronage and impress upon them that we will be continuing our concerts in the Ring from Monday night, Nov. 8th, until further notice. A programme of the latest music has been prepared which we are sure will meet with your approval. DON'T MISS IT.

In Abraham's Days

There is a temporary exhibition at the British Museum of antiquities recovered from the Ur site. Ur of the Chaldees is mentioned in the Bible as the original home of Abraham.

In the collection are pigmy women in finesses, trills, or accordion players, and wearing all sorts of good-luck charms, consisting of the heads of lions, bulls, and frogs.

Four or five thousand years ago children learnt grammar and arithmetic. Teaching tablets were unearthed upon one of which was inscribed "The Property of the Boy's School."

Another exhibit is a vase intended to be inlaid in a casket. Upon it is a beardless figure with long hair, resembling a modern type of intellectual.

Tablets were found on which (in the form of twelve columns) the accounts of a factory run by a Temple were recorded. The Temple received wool from farmers for tiling or rent, and distributed it to women slaves for weaving.

A strict account was kept of the weight of wool issued, of the amount
