"Well, that's done!" and Mrs. Jack patted the crisp pillow-shams and gazed com-placently around the pretty room,—a guest room that had never yet held a guest,—fresh new and dainty. The breeze stirred the frilled curtains; the late afternoon sun shone on the creamy walls, and the soft light filtered through the young leaves of the chestnut, and faintly tinted with green the lovely

If you really do want us, couldn't Jack meet the colonel at Young's after his business hours on Wednesday, and take him out to your home? But she gives no address! Never mind, you can assure the colonel when you meet him how pleased we are. There's the dinner-bell." That night, as Nan was taking hairpins out of her bonny brown locks, she casually Jack looked puzzled. "Why, didn't I tell you? Colonel-Colonel-Jingo! I've clean forgotten that name for the moment. No matter, it will come to me in the morn-

But in the morning it was just as far away from his memory as ever. There was such a downpour going on in the outside world that Nan insisted that Jack, who had a cold should not go to the city; and Jack, nothing loath, settled himself for a comfortable morning by a bright open fire. Suddenly he threw down his Cousin Elizabeth is such a dear, forgetful soul, she'll never remember she didn't send us any address; but she is very sensitive, and if she gets it into her head that we didn't care about her coming, it will break her heart. Ha! I have it!" and Jack snapped his fingers and executed a jig on the hearth-

"What, oh what?" cried Nan. "Well, I'll go over to the station and tel-

They spent a dismal evening, Jack walking the floor most of the time. "Jove!" he exclaimed. "The situation is worthy of Howells!"

Then the absurdity of their predican was borne upon him, and he roared with laughter. Nan could not see the fun. It was pure tragedy to her hospitable soul. The next morning matters brightened. While they were sitting at breakfast, in the sunshine that had succeeded the storm, the postman brought a letter from Cousin Elizabeth. It contained but a few lines:

"Our plans are changed, dear two, and instead of meeting Jack, the colonel will wait and come out with me on the eight o'clock train. With love,

"Never mind," said Jack. "We'll find out somehow. It's immense, though; having visitors and not knowing their name. But I've thought of a way."

"So have I," said Nan. "We'll see who will find out first."

A Reverend Rogue. The Methodist congregation of the town of Brewnville, Maine, was some three months ago in need of a minister to occupy its pulpit and attend the spiritual wants of members. The vacancy remained unfilled for some little time until the Rev. C. A. Luce was secured as minister, a position which he filled until a few days ago.

Mr. Luce also occasionally preached at Brownville junction. He was an Oddfellow and at times delivered stirring addresses on the benefits of the order. He was energetic in providing entertainment for bis parishioners, and, in his engagements was uniformly successful. A few days ago he made arrangements with "Harper's jubilee singers" to visit Brownville and hold two entertainments. On the occasion of the concert he managed the box office and had charge of the sale of tickets, and the money. The first evening's entertainment passed off in the ordinary manner, but on the second night, after the audience had secured their seats and the performance was under way the reverend gentleman complained to Mr. STOLE THE FUNDS AND LEFT ON A BICYCLE

The next morning, when Nan saw the postman coming down the street she remembered that Cousin Elizabeth had said she was expecting a letter to be forwarded, and so she rushed to meet him, eager to read the address. Just as she reached the door she was met by Cousin Elizabeth, who held up a letter.

"Only one, dear, and that's for me," and away went the envelope into the little morning fire blazing on the hearth, before Nan had a glimpse of the superscription.

Jack grinned.

A little later Nan came back radiant, clasping a square package. She hurried up to her room, undid a pretty blank book bound in soft white kid, tied it up with long yellow ribbons, and laid it on the little desk in the guest-room. Then she went back to her company.

"Dear colonel and Cousin Elizabeth," she said, "we are so happy to have you as our first guests. I knew something was lacking in your room, and it just occurred to me it was a guest-book. So I went out and got one, and now I want you to write your names on the very first page."

Off went Jack into the city, and from there he sent the following telegram to his sister:

After Nan had given her day's orders, arranged her flowers, and settled Cousin Elizabeth on the lounge with a new book, she dressed for the street.

—THERE seems even yet to be a large amount of ignorance among the general public about the simplest rules of the postal service. For example, a great many people appear to think they can send a letter through the mails for one cent postage, if the envelope be left unscaled. If this were allowable it is safe to say that three-fourths of all the letters sent would be so posted, as all business letters, and other communications not of a strictly private nature could then be left unscaled and mailed for one cent postage. This would be about equivalent to adopting a one cent rate of postage at once, and would entail a loss of over one-half the annual revenue from the post-office department, which even now falls short of the expenditure by something over aix hundred thousand dollare per annum.

Another rule which the general public would do well in observing more carefully in that which requires all letters to be addressed to some post office. In every case the post office name should be used and not that by which the community may be known, when different from the official name. A good many people have a shalt of addressing heteroid to the post office. The writers of such letters may know pecchely where they want them to go, but to a postal caler, to be post office. The writers of such letters may know pecchely where they want then to go, but to a postal caler, the problem presented is a different one altogether.

New Gang Edger.

Our attention was recently called to an improved gang edger, built by the British, reaching the correction of the treasury sain, in exchange for silver certificates and other government securities, to repay them. Thus, in a short time, the treasury is as nearly depleted as before the bonds were issued. A currency system which permits such feats of jugglery as that is certainly very defective, and there is little wonder, that President Cleveland has larnestly advised a radical change. It is flattering to Canadians, too, to see that the system he recommends, and which finds most approval among bankers and financiers, is almost identical with that now in operation on this side of the line.

Miss Katie Brown, who has been visiting friends in Bear River for some time, has returned and was warmly welcomed.

Miss Edith and Mr. Fred Curry, of Hoton Landing, were the guests of Miss Edith Brown during the Sabbath just passed.

The lecture delivered by Prof. Smith, of the Agricultural School of Truro, was delivered in Shafner's hall, according to posters; but owing to the very violent storm which prevailed on Thursday evening the audience was smal.

Xmas with it pleasures and excitements has come and gone and things have nearly resumed their usual appearance. With us Christmas day was celebrated by the elements in a rather dreary style. Early in the morning rain began to fall, and soon in place of the snow which many had hoped to see, a plentiful supply of mud was on hand.

We see again with us some of our young people who have been absent in their various fields of work. Miss Winnie McGill and Mr. Will Phinney are home from the Normal School, where they are preparing themselves to teach the young ideas to shoot; Miss Tina Randall, from Wolfville; Mr. C. C. Moir, from Cambridge, Mass., and J. W. Messenger, of Lawrencetown, spent Xmas with their friends in this place.

Mrs. James Varner is visiting relatives and friends in Lunenburg.

Quite a number of our young residents are spending the holidays with friends in Halifax.

Misses Bessie and Viviar Annis spent part of the holidays with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Misses Carrie and Ethel Oakes returned nome on Saturday from Wolfville, where they have been spending Christmas.

Mr. Albert Bertaux, who has been confined to his house for some three weeks past with a severe attack of la grippe and pneuming and mr. We also noticed in the congregation on Sunday, Miss Saunders, of Rosette, aguest of Mr. Alvin Starratt; Miss Minnie Bent with Mrs. Cole; and Miss Annie Longley, of Kentville, with her sister, Miss Winnie Longley.

There were two very enjoyable gatherings on New Year's eve, one at Col. W. E. Starratt's, the other at Mrs. L. C. Marshall's. The former was a reception given by Mrs. Starratt to the young men of her Sabbath-school class; the other, a few friends to meet Mr. Morse, of Windsor. Arrived at Halifax on Sunday.

The official train bringing Lady Thompson and family to Halifax, accompanied by the governor-general and Countess Aberdeen and others, arrived at Halifax at 2.30 on Sunday. Three quarters of an hour previously some 3,000 citizens crowded the approaches to the Intercolonial depot and the commanding sites on North street and Campbell road. A squad of police under Chief O'Sullivan, including Deputy Nickerson and Sergeants Collins and Baser, kept the entrance open and only permitted those to pass the turnstile whose duty or privilege it was to do so. The full length of the train shed was heavily draped and the main building inside was veiled. Over the inner central door was a large black cross with white border. The pillars in the waiting room were covered with black drapery as well as the ceiling and doors.

Lady Thompson, the governor-general and Countess Aherdeen and party were brought through from Ottawa under the personal superintendence of General Manager Pottinger.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 30:—A reporter who has just returned from a tour into south western Nebraska says in Keith, Perkins, Chase, Mayes and Dundy counties the destitution is extreme. Almost two-thirds of the people are depending upon charity for existence. Little or no fuel and remarkably mild west better alone prevented loss of little. existence. Little or no ruel and remarkant, mild weather, alone prevented loss of life by exposure. No money in the county treasury to help the destitute. Heart-rendering cases of suffering are heard in every township. The present cold wave will undoubtedly cause great loss of life if it continues.

Miscellaneous.

This is, as you are aware, the latest and inventors. The kinetoscope is to the eye purchasing a bull and heifer calf of the what Edison's phonograph is to the ear, in that it reproduces living movements of the most complex and rapid character. To clearly understand the effect it is necessary

I will give a few notes on their origin, and to explain the cause, but to appreciate the result the working of the invention must be witnessed. The moving and apparently the Province of Quebec. He says, "Being witnessed. The moving and apparency living figures in the kinetoscope are produced in the following manner: Mr. Edison has a stage, upon which the performances he reproduces are enacted. These performances are recorded by taking a series of 43 myself partial to that breed, I will simply photographs in rapid succession, the time quote what English authorities in dairy occupied in taking them being one second matters say of our cow."

ances are resorded by taking a series of 3 photographs in rapid succession, the time occupied in taking them being one second only. Thus every progressive phrase of every single action is secured, and the photographs are successively reproduced on a film of celluloid of the length required for recording a given scene. When this film is passed before the eve at the same rate of speed as that at which the photographs were taken the photographically disjointed parts of a given action are united in one complete whole. Thus, supposing a person to be photographed taking off the coat the successive views representing the phase of action of every forty-third part of a second are injoined up, and the complete operation of aking off the coat is presented to the eyes it would appear in reality. In other words, the kinetoscope is a perfect reproduction takes place is a cabinet about 4ff. high, 2ff. wide and 1ft., 9in. deep. It contains the celluloid film band, the apparatus for reconded on it passes under his view. The chief detail of the mechanism is a flat metal ring baving a slot in it, which make about 2,000 revolutions per minute. The film passes rapidly over the ring, beneath which is a light. The spectator look through a lens on the film, and every action recorded on it passes under his view. This wonder of the age is on exhibition at 169 Tremons street, Boston. Here 15 machines are shown, in which the mest rapid and complex actions are faithfully reproduced.

When to Avoid Candy.

Sugar is one of the heat of the fat-producing foods, writes Dr. Cyrus Edson in the October Leadies Home Journal, in an article on "The Candy exting Habit," and for that reason it is bad for a person, young or old, who are too thin. It is also valuable, how a suffer from a lack of animal heat, and who need building up. Not to much of it though, because there are elements needed in the body which ways will not supply. Sugar is exceedingly astisfying to the apportunity to fill his haversack and both saddle bags with brown sugar. The men of h days before they were able to get a supply of rations, and during that time they lived on the sugar and were perfectly contented with the diet. This story points to one rule which may safely be laid down for all: Gandy should not be eaten immediately be fore meals by either child or adult, because it will destroy the appetite for other food, and that other should be taken first, because of the tood element found in it and which is not found in candy. In other words, the supply of sugar should be adjusted to that of other foods in a natural and common. senseway and proportion

-A despatch to the Montreal Star ar anounces that plans have been prepared at the Public Works Department for a dairy building which is to be erected adjacent to Rideau Hall. Lady Aberdeen is evidently desirous of possessing a model dairy, so that her children and servants may be instructed in the latest methods of butter-making, etc. The building will only be a small one, but it will be fitted up with all the latest appliances. Her excellency is not to enter into competition with the dairy owners of Canada, nor need her purpose be regarded as a fad. Her ladyship is eminently practical, her purpose is obviously to give a fashionable stimulus to dairying as a respectable and highly important calling. By setting will accomplish much, for the example will be followed. It was by methods not alto gether similar, but exercised on the same principle, that she stimulated Irish industries. The good his Excellency is achieving by the interest manifested in husbandry, and his consort by her powerful patronage and example in social and industrial affairs is beginning to be materially felt in the country. Well may the Rideau Hall dairy

A wonderful child, who, at the age of two years, can read with fluency any writing or printing in German or Latin characters, cing correctly the most difficult words, is described in the columns of the Magdeburg Zeitung. Horses' Hoofs Cracking. A state of brittleness is one of the results of the horse's hoofs being too hard and dry, in which state the horny fibres lose their elasticity and their power of resistance. If the horse wears shoes they should be care fully removed and re-set or renewed once a month, or at least within six weeks, and sole and rim be pared down to a proper shape The paring of the hoof should be watched for most horse-shoers slight the paring when the hoof is too hard. A horse with brittle hoofs should not wear heavy shoes with big nails, but rather comparatively light shoes, without caulking. To restore such hoof to a healthy state, it is essential to keep the horn constantly in a proper state of pliability, which may be attained by daily washing and anointing. It will require several months of careful daily attention to the hoof before anything like a normal condition can be brought about. The smith should never be allowed to rasp the hoof above the nailnittings. The washing and anointing may be done twice daily or only in the evening be applied before the water has become en tirely dry on the hoof. Use no axle grease similar stuff. Manuring Orchards.

We often hear complaints that orchard do not bear as they used to, and we do not wonder at it. In early days the orchards accumulated fertility of centuries, and the late years the orchard is usually set out in some plot that has been under cultivation for years, and usually the land is put in som crop each year until the trees come int bearing, in order to cultivate them, and this exhausts the land more or less. After the trees come into bearing no more atten tion is paid to the orchard, as a rule a to this matter orchards would bear as well all the ashes should be put on the orchard as they are the cheapest source of potash to the average farmer. Stable manure is good most profit out of an orchard it should be as well cared for as any other part of the farm."

FRANCIS W. BISHOP,

A writer in the New York Recorder says A writer in the New York Recorder says that most window gardens are filled with a miscellaneous collection of so-called flowering plants, whose few poor, scattering blossoms scarcely pay for their care, and might with plants, whose few poor, scattering blossoms scarcely, pay for their care, and might with profit give place to those without beauty of flower, but whose foliage is at least attractive. Indeed, so often is this the case that many householders are banishing all flowering plants, depending solely upon palms, aspidestras, etc., for their window adornment.
