DISTRESS AND FAMINE IN CHINA.

D. W. R. Morse, Native of Lawrencetown, Annapolis County, Now in China Mission Field, Describes Heart-Rending Scenes in Famine Region.

Dr. W. R. Morse, of Lawrencetown, now of the Chinese Mission field, who has returned from the famine region makes the following report on the present situation according to the China Press.

"When one finds people lying round dead from starvation; when one sees persons dying of hunger by the roadside; when one knows positively of a woman burying a still living child, because she had no food for it and it had to die anyway; when one knows of people eating a dog that had died; when one sees people eating a cake made of grass and weeds with a few kernels of grain scattered through it, from all appearance dried cow manure; when one is asked to buy children; when one sees the roofless houses; when one sees the glassy, tightly drawn, dark colored, wrinkled skin, with teeth and cheekbone and all other bony points projecting; when one sees the swollen face, hands and feet of the starving person soon to die; when one sees people poisoned by the weeds they have eaten for food; when one sees thousands of people begging on their knees for a chance of working for food; and that food either bean-cake, (the remains of beans from which all the oil has been pressed), or kaoliang, which is the seed of a species of corn usually used for feeding pigs or making alcohol; when the one member of the family to whom a ticket is given to entitle him or her to work and thus feed on an average five mouths, is so weak he can earn only 14 cash a day, although the wage paid to him is nearly double the usual wage; and when the people crowd round for medical and surgical relief from the ulcers, skin diseases, and famine fevers resulting from a starvation diet, it seems to me that our duty in N. Kiangsu to save life is supremely imperative.

"Relief has been given without pauperizing, and only in return for labor, except in the cases of those too old, or diseased or crippled for work. The labor performed counts in preventing flood, as is shown by the methods of procedure. Between Sutsien and Tan Shang the dyke along the Grand Canal is broken in a great many places and there are some 20,000 to 25,000 men and women at work. At Tsao Ho, where the writer was stationed, the dyke was so badly broken that it was decided to build a new bank over two English miles long. This dyke is, roughly speaking, seventy-five English feet wide at the base, thirty-two feet at the top, and twelve feet high. The dirt for this is carried in baskets and wheelbarrows from pits dug nearby. These pits are measured and the people are paid for the exact amount of dirt deposited on the dyke. The ordinary Government wage paid is three hundred cash per one hundred cubic feet. We pay from four hundred and fifty to five hundred and fifty cash, and at that rate no one had made more than a starvation wage. Near Tsao Ho there are four other places where the breaks in the dyke are being repaired.

"The work in some ways is very difficult and irritating. There is need of constant watching so as to secure honest administration of funds. The people do not understand why this year they have to work for their food. They say: 'Last year we had flour given us, but this year we have only bean-cake and kaoliang, and have to sweat for the privilege of earning it. Our hearts are not at peace.'

"Bands of robbers infest that whole section of country. Tsao Ho had been twice looted. At Tang Shang, so near were the robbers one night that our workers saw the fire of the looted, burning houses only a short distance away; yet not the slightest disrespect was shown to the foreigners, and we were as safe apparently as we are in Shanghai.

"In the section of country between Sutsien and Tan Shang, Dr. Juskin, of Sutsien is in charge. He has the work splendidly organized, and is carrying out a most difficult, and trying proposition in a clever, dignified, and business-like manner."

Successful Recital

A recital was held in Providence Methodist Church on Friday evening last, by Miss Irene Bewley, reader and impersonator of Boston, Mass., a graduate of the Leland T. Powers School of Oratory of Boston.

The church was not as well filled as might have been expected but a fair audience had an evening of rare enjoyment in listening to Miss Bewley, whose cultured delivery is enhanced by a marked native dramatic talent.

Miss Bewley's principal reading was a dramatized version of "Mrs. Finney Hodgson's" "Burnett Esmeralda" and those who heard the pathetic story for the first time and those who were familiar with it in a generation past found equal pleasure in its rehearsal.

Preliminary to the reading of the play, Miss Bewley gave two monologues in a naïvely entertaining manner. The Methodist choir assisted by other local talent also rendered suitable music.

On Sunday evening in the same church a service of song was held at which Miss Bewley gave one of Henry Van Dyke's classical and charming stories, "The Lost Word," the story of a young man who gave up Christianity for the pleasures and successes of the world, but who found all hollow and unsatisfying until he recovered "the lost word."

Many of Miss Bewley's hearers learn with pleasure that she will return here in a few weeks, when she will favor Bridgetown with another recital.

Record Purchase of Farm Lands.

BRITISH INVESTOR SECURES SEVEN NEW BRUNSWICK FARMS

(St. John Globe.)

One of the largest, if not indeed the largest, sale of farming lands in the history of New Brunswick, has just been closed by Messrs. Alfred Burley & Co. The property included in the deal are seven farms with a total area of 1,061 acres. The purchaser is Mr. W. G. Pine-Coffin, the proprietor of large landed estates in England, who expects on his return to the old country to interest other Englishmen in handling New Brunswick farm lands. Mr. Pine-Coffin was accompanied to this province by Mr. R. F. H. Surr, the agent for the Messrs. Burley in London, England. A company has already been formed in London for the purpose of purchasing a large farm in New Brunswick where the sons of wealthy people can be trained in the agricultural methods best suited to this province before taking up farms for themselves. The farms which have just been purchased by Mr. Pine-Coffin are as follows: 100 acres at Barnesville, Kings county; 100 acres at White's Cove, Queens county; 160 acres at Hatfield's Point, Kings county; 40 acres on the St. John River, Queens county; 181 acres at Hampstead, Queens county; 230 acres at Debee, Carleton county, and 210 acres at Highfield, Queens county. Mr. Pine-Coffin bought the property of Highfield, which is known as the Pearson farm, for his brother, who with his wife and children will live on it.

Mysterious Disappearance Solved

Day's Body Was Found Near Green Bank by Boys Fishing.

The mystery surrounding the disappearance of J. Walter Day, who left his home on April 8th and did not return, has been solved by the finding of his body by four young lads who were fishing on the wharf at Green Bank, when they saw something in the water that attracted their attention, says the Halifax Recorder.

One of the boys cast his fishing line out, and the hook caught in the object, which proved to be the body of a man. They hauled it in towards the shore, and at once telephoned to Detective Kennedy that they had found a body. The boys were Stanley Landry, John Davies, Arthur Davies and Herbert Davies. Detective Kennedy notified Undertaker Spencer, who removed the body to his warehouses.

The body was in such a bad state of decomposition that it was impossible to identify, until the Undertaker had made an examination of the clothing. From letters found in the pockets, the body was identified as that of Day.

The deceased's watch stopped at 8.30 o'clock. The body was found about twenty feet east of the Green Bank wharf.

The deceased was well known throughout the city, and his many friends will regret to learn of his demise, although it is a consoling fact that the remains have been found and the mystery solved. He is survived by a widow and one child.

At the time of his disappearance a reward of $200 was offered for information that would lead to his recovery. Medical Examiner Finn at once held an investigation into the drowning of J. Walter Day, and he gave a certificate of death as follows: "Suicide while temporarily insane."

Two Auto Accidents.

A bad auto accident occurred on the Bear River road Wednesday, the driver, who was the owner of the car being thrown through the wind shield and more or less cut up with the broken glass. The car was also injured.

The same night while Mr. Harry Gavel was returning from Barton he and his car were both somewhat injured owing to the bad condition of the road on Bingley's hill. Mr. Gavel was going slow at the time or the accident would probably have proved fatal. The other occupants of the car were uninjured.—Digby Courier.

Foresters May Have Cottage at Kentville Sanatorium

A proposition has been made by the Independent Order of Foresters to erect a cottage at the Kentville Sanatorium, capable of accommodating eight patients, at a cost of some $3,000.

Superintendent Miller is taking this matter up with the Provincial Government.

This is in line with a proposal that Dr. Walker of this town some two years ago put before Premier Murray and Hon. B. F. Pearson—that cottages, similar to the one now proposed should be erected by individuals, Societies or other institutions around the Provincial Sanatorium at Kentville.—Truro News.

TORONTO BOY KILLED BY AUTO.

Toronto, June 8—George Kettle, aged twelve, died today, after being struck by an automobile. The driver, Roy Robson, a salesman for the McLaughlin Motor Co., rushed the boy to the hospital, and then surrendered to the police. He was released on bail.

While the frequent rains of the present season are having a wonderful effect on the growth of vegetation it is making the planting season a little backward especially on clay soil.

Official Announcements Re San Jose Scale

(Special to the Monitor-Sentinel)

Truro, N.S., June 6, 1912.

Dear Sir:—In connection with recent announcements in re living San Jose scale having been found in Nova Scotia, a special order-in-council has been passed by the government as per enclosed statement.

The local government has appointed some six inspectors, former students at the Agricultural College, who will act under G. E. Saunders, B.S.A. of the Dominion Entomological staff, and will during the next few weeks examine all nursery stock that has been shipped into Nova Scotia during at least the past two years. Should they discover any living scale, their instructions are to have all infested trees immediately destroyed. All this is in accord with recommendations made to M. Cumming, Secretary for Agriculture, by the executive of the Nova Scotia Fruit Growers' Association with whom he conferred in Kentville on Monday, June 3rd. It is sincerely hoped, that with the hearty co-operation of the fruit growers of Nova Scotia, any living specimens that may have found their way into the Province, will have been destroyed. It is intended in the future to maintain a strict inspection of all nursery stock brought into the Province from other parts of the Dominion.

Sincerely yours,

M. CUMMING.

ORDER-IN-COUNCIL signed by His Honor the Lieutenant Governor of Nova Scotia at the Government House at Halifax, the 4th day of June, 1912, under the provisions of the Injurious Insect, Pest, and Plant Disease Act of 1911.

(1.) Where any inspector finds living San Jose scale present on any trees, he may order the immediate destruction of such trees and such order shall be carried out under the supervision of the inspector, and in such manner as he may direct.

(2.) Any inspector may himself destroy any trees which he finds infested as aforesaid.

(3.) Any order for destruction made hereunder may include destruction of any trees which, in the opinion of the inspector, by reason of their proximity to trees having thereon living scale, may have become infested.

Extracts From the Injurious Insect, Pest and Plant Disease Act of 1911.

7. "Any inspector may enter any place or premises whatsoever in which he suspects that any such plant disease, insect or pest exists."

8. "Any person contravening or neglecting to carry out or offering any hindrance to the carrying out of any provision of this Act, or of any regulation made thereunder, shall be liable, upon summary conviction, to a fine of not less than twenty dollars, nor more than one hundred dollars, together with costs, and in default of payment, to imprisonment for a period of not less than ten days nor more than thirty."

M. CUMMING.

THE FARM HOME.

This will be a greater, better Canada when our farmers all realize that important as it is to grow big crops, have thoroughbred stock, and splendid farm buildings, there is greater wealth in a modern, comfortable and convenient farm house where future citizens may be raised under the best of conditions and those who have made the home need not end their days in drudgery. Thousands of thoroughbred animals are better housed and more intelligently fed than hundreds of owners and renters of land. Some men hardened by the rigors of physical labor and fierce competitive struggles to the silent appeals of their wives and children for better shelter, food and raiment are guilty without intent of lamentable neglect of more vital things than stock, crops and profits. The ideal that should be cherished by every ambitious farmer is a sanitary, comfortable farm residence, with a modern heating plant, a bath room and cleanly lighting.

Pensions to School Teachers.

Bill to amend chapter 2 of the Acts of 1911, "The Education Act," The purpose of the bill is to change the law as to pensions to school teachers especially those of the academic class and the bill is as follows:

Be it enacted by the Governor, Council and Assembly, that section 127 of the Education Act be repealed and the following substituted:

127. Teachers who have taught in the public schools of Nova Scotia for thirty-five years, or who have attained the age of sixty years after thirty years of service, shall be entitled to retire with an annuity equal to the provincial aid granted to teachers of their respective classes of license; provided, however, that teachers of the academic class shall receive an annuity equal to double the average annual provincial aid they were regularly entitled to draw during the last ten years of their service; but every academic teacher who has served as inspector of schools shall be entitled to receive as an additional annuity after retirement $20 for each year of inspectorial service; and everyone who has also been for at least fifteen years the principal of the schools of the section and in receipt of an average salary of at least one thousand dollars during the last five years of his or her service shall receive an additional annuity of eighty dollars; but no teacher's annuity under this Act shall exceed six hundred dollars.

The first clause of this new section 127 is the same as the old, the second clause introduces the very important change caused by the word "double"; the third clause is the same as before, but the fourth clause is all new.

Trampled to Death by Enraged Bull.

A tragedy took place near Balmoral Mills, Colchester. Robert Munro, an active gentleman of eighty-two years, who was living with his nephew, John Munro, was pounded and trampled to death by an enraged bull, while leading the animal to water, says the Truro News. John Munro, before leaving for Truro that morning, warned his uncle not to take the animal out, but to give him a bucket of water occasionally and that he would attend to him himself on his return.

For some unknown reason and for the first time the old gentleman, untroubled by a young girl, John's daughter, in the house, led the animal out and around an outhouse to the watering place out of sight of the kitchen door.

Hearing alarming cries, she rushed out by the outhouse and found the old man down with the bull tossing and trampling him, the patent leading staff having become detached from the ring in his nose.

On attempting to rescue her uncle and trying to set the dog on the enraged animal, he turned to attack her and the dog ran away. Seeing that she could do nothing there she ran for help to the mills, a half a mile or more away.

Alex. L. McDonald, the miller, instantly and without any weapons, started to the rescue, Walter Ross following a few minutes later. On McDonald's arrival on the scene the bull was standing, as if it were on guard over the prostrate body, ready to renew the attack.

McDonald, a young and powerful man, promptly attacked the animal with a heavy fence stake, which broke in two with the first blow. The animal now turned on him. He fortunately noticed a lumberman's peavey nearby and seized this and renewed his desperate attack on the bull and succeeded with Ross's assistance in driving him away from Munro's body, life being then extinct.

John K. McKay, while driving on his way home by the mills about that time, hearing of the tragedy, secured a rifle and rapidly driving to the scene shot the enraged animal and secured the safety of the people gathered there.

Mrs. West Balmor, formerly of Bridgetown and now at Los Angeles, Calif, has rented Stewart Burns' farm at Yavrus, Los Angeles.

BRITISH CAPITALISTS MEET ACCIDENT.

Auto Accident in Moncton while British Capitalists are Enjoying Auto Drive. Driver and Owner of Car Hurt Badly. Guests Luckily Escape with Slight Injuries.

Moncton, N.B., June 10th:—While the party of British capitalists were enjoying an auto ride this afternoon, a car containing the owner, Mr. Jas. Edwards, a driver, named LeBlanc, and three of the capitalists backed down a steep hill over a twenty-five foot embankment, by which Mr. Edwards sustained perhaps fatal injuries the chauffeur was badly injured and one of the capitalists, Mr. S. Warwick suffered a compound fracture of the arm. The other escaped with slight injuries.

The automobile, which was conveying the occupants to the natural gas wells, was going up a very steep hill when suddenly the car stopped, and the chauffeur tried vainly to throw on the emergency brake but the brake was out of order, and the chauffeur lost his head completely and let go of the steering wheel. The car backed down the hill at a quite swift pace and suddenly shot to one side, breaking through the heavy railing and pitching to the bottom of the gully, twenty-five feet below.

Two cars that were following heard the crash and immediately proceeded to the scene. Mr. Edwards and LeBlanc, who were in the front seat, were thrown clear of the car, while the other occupants who were in the back, were pinned beneath it. The remaining parts of the car were cleared away, and the three Englishmen extricated from their precarious position. Two of them escaped with slight injuries, but the third, who is an architect, sustained a compound fracture of his right arm, and was also badly cut about the face and body.

MR. EDWARDS BADLY HURT.

It is feared that Mr. Edwards is internally and perhaps fatally injured. The chauffeur is also badly injured and suffered two ribs broken. They were conveyed in improvised stretchers to await automobiles, and were conveyed to the hospital, where with the exception of Mr. Edwards, they are resting easily. The automobile was completely demolished, and is a total loss. Mr. Edwards is a man of about sixty-five years of age, and has a wife and three children who reside in this city.

Auto Struck by Engine.

An automobile occupied by J. H. Winfield and A. R. Cobb was run into this (Monday) morning at 8.20 o'clock at the railway crossing at Bedford and both gentlemen had narrow escapes. The auto came to a standstill on the track in the middle of the crossing and the reversing gear refused to work.

Mr. Cobb got out and attempted to move the auto off the track but was unable to do so. At the moment the Ocean Limited was approaching at a fast clip and Mr. Winfield only had time to leave his car before the engine struck the auto, which was thrown from the track and turned over. The auto was considerably damaged.

Fines aggregating $95 were imposed on automobile drivers yesterday for exceeding the speed limit.

The method of catching on to violations is the same as has been used in the past, viz: two officers in plain clothes with stop watches standing at certain distances apart and timing the vehicles as they speed along.

In the cases where lighter fines are imposed extenuating circumstances are shown, that is in cases where the speed limit is but very slightly exceeded.—Halifax Recorder.

PINNED UNDER CAR.

Two cars that were following heard the crash and immediately proceeded to the scene. Mr. Edwards and LeBlanc, who were in the front seat, were thrown clear of the car, while the other occupants who were in the back, were pinned beneath it. The remaining parts of the car were cleared away, and the three Englishmen extricated from their precarious position. Two of them escaped with slight injuries, but the third, who is an architect, sustained a compound fracture of his right arm, and was also badly cut about the face and body.

MR. EDWARDS BADLY HURT.

It is feared that Mr. Edwards is internally and perhaps fatally injured. The chauffeur is also badly injured and suffered two ribs broken. They were conveyed in improvised stretchers to await automobiles, and were conveyed to the hospital, where with the exception of Mr. Edwards, they are resting easily. The automobile was completely demolished, and is a total loss. Mr. Edwards is a man of about sixty-five years of age, and has a wife and three children who reside in this city.

Capt. Longmire's Stable Burned.

Just after the curfew had sounded the hour of nine o'clock last evening, a second peal rang out in a much more emphatic manner than usual, and after a few strokes citizens realized they were listening to an alarm of fire.

A large throng soon gathered at the fire station and followed the hose cart down Granville street until they reached the premises of Capt. W. R. Longmire.

Here it was found fire had made serious headway in the stable. Neighbors had assisted Capt. Longmire to get out the horse and cow and had a stream from the garden hose playing on the fire, when the hose cart arrived. The firemen soon had two streams playing on the building and succeeded in checking the flames and confining them to the stable, which, however, was very badly damaged before the fire could be extinguished. The fire was caused by children with matches trying to find a wasp's nest.

SERMON BY REV. CORTLAND MYERS, D.D., TO THE ORDER OF THE KNIGHTS' TEMPLARS.

(Published by request.)

Mat. 16: 24. "Then said Jesus unto his disciples, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow me"

One of the most dramatic scenes in all history is that hour when Stanley discovered Livingstone in the heart of the African jungle. After his long and perilous journey through the wilderness he came at last upon this old servant of God and man in the heart of that dark continent. You remember that Stanley said to Livingstone that he had been commissioned by England to bring him back home and give him all the honors that any man in this world had ever received, honors from the Queen, honours from the royalty, honours from the people. They were waiting to welcome him with the most royal welcome that any man had ever received on British soil. Then you remember that Livingstone responded to Stanley by saying, "I cannot, I cannot. With all the desire that is reigning in my heart for home (and there is no word in the language so sweet to me, in these wilds, as home) and with all the desire on my part to see my friends once more, I cannot, I cannot go back and desert my duty. I must stay here amongst my people and lift them into the light of civilization and into the Kingdom of God."

Then the pathetic hour arrived when Stanley was to say goodbye to Livingstone and to say it with much regret for he had been in his presence during those weeks to discover the heart of one of God's noblemen and to be led out of his inhumanity into Christianity, for from the hour that Stanley saw Livingstone, Stanley became a devoted follower of Christ. Up to that moment he had been an atheist, now he saw Christ represented in man. When he turned away to bid his farewell, the last farewell to the man of God in the jungles, he took off his hat and waved it, and then paused and as he did so he saw Livingstone pick up an old ladder and with his one hand seize the ladder and his other hand holding a wooden cross, he placed the ladder against the gable end of an unfinished mission hut, he climbed the ladder and fastened the cross on the gable end of the mission hut. Stanley went out through the jungles and back home with that marvelous picture in his memory. And that which was the part of history despatch and of a love of mankind second only to that on the green hill outside of the city wall, is the emblem after all that every man true to himself and his fellowmen and his God must lift up and nail on the heights of his life's work. Remember your own sacred oath, remember "In Hoc Signo Vincis," "By This Sign We Conquer," and there is no other.

First, that sign is the sign of service. When Hugh de Payen in the twelfth century gathered nine followers about him and organized the famous Knight Templar organization, he organized a company of men consecrated to the highest and holiest service amongst human kind. Names have changed, geography has changed, the entire world has changed, garments have changed. Hugh de Payen and his nine followers didn't have these beautiful badges and garments and feathers of modern Knights Templars. They had their own equipment changed through the years, and while garments have changed and the name has changed and geography has changed, the great need of humanity still remains the same down through the centuries. When he organized that company it was for the purpose, they said, of helping the weak and the friendless and protecting the pilgrims on their way to the holy city, and those heroic, courageous, noble knights filled their mission to the very letter and in fact of death every hour they lived. Amongst the world's royalty they are no inner specimens than Hugh de Payen and his kind. But the world's geography has changed so that now instead of going up to Jerusalem amongst the pilgrims, we are going up on a railroad train or may be in an Englishman's automobile. We find no Saracens to cut our heads off or anything of that kind in the world; and yet on the highway of life on this great pilgrimage on which millions of humanity are wending their way the dangers are on every hand and especially to women and children in their weakness and oppression. There is no hour this world ever saw when humanity needs Knight Templars more than it needs them now. We have changed the numbers, there are not nine but millions; we have changed the organization from Bur-

WAS A CONFIRMED DYSPLECTIC

Now Finds It a Pleasure to Enjoy Meals

Here is a case which seemed as bad and as hopeless as yours can possibly be. This is the experience of Mr. H. J. Brown, 384 Bathurst St., Toronto, in his own words:

"Gentlemen—I have much pleasure in mentioning to you the benefits received from your Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets and can cheerfully recommend them. I simply had confirmed dyspepsia with all its wretched symptoms, and tried about all the advertised cures with no success. You have in Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets the best curative agent I could find. It is now such a pleasure to enjoy meals with their consequent nourishment that I want to mention this for the benefit of others."

The fact that a lot of prescriptions or so-called "cures" have failed to help you is no sign that you have got to go on suffering. Try Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets and see how quickly this sterling remedy will give you relief and start your stomach working properly. If it doesn't help you, you get your money back. See a box at your druggist's, compounded by the National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Montreal. 141 lundy to one that preceps around the world and through every civilized land today the Knight Templars are marching on in their victorious march, and remember that when I say that, I say it advisedly, for they are moving in the great company which means at last the ultimate triumph of human brotherhood around the world. It means that they are sharing in no small way in the ultimate triumph of the men who rise highest above all humanity in the world's knightly royalty. They are marching even with Jesus Christ in bringing the Kingdom of God to sweep the earth.

Now let me remind you that this sign of service, which was so evident in the first organization, must stay if the organization remains. We are not to go through this world of curs with hundreds of thousands of men dressed in their beautiful garments and claim no special relation. My fellowmen, your relation must be first, last and always the relation of service, the fulfillment of your prophetic motto for there is no victory in any other symbol for you than in the symbol of the cross.

Life at its worst means self-protection and that means invariably cowardice. The man who is always seeking merely his own safety is always fundamentally a coward. The man who takes the real pathway of service and makes life at its best is the man who is always a hero and cannot not in the last analysis for his own protection, but for the interests and welfare of his fellowmen. And you can find scarcely a man in all the pages of the world's history who doesn't carry that out, for the monuments which stand on this planet today make that statement true. The man of heroism have been the men of service and they have been men whom their fellowmen have always delighted to honor. That is life at its best.

Love at its worst is always trying to make itself happy and in order to secure that result the extremes are undertaken and then the failures are always in evidence, for that path is directly contrary to every principle of human life. Love at its best is always trying to serve another and make that other happy. Now if that principle was carried out, which is the Knight Templars' principle, in every part of human life, and especially in the home circle, there would be no more need on the American continent for the disgraceful divorce courts. If love was just in making another happy, there would be no separation and no more of the breaking of the sacred tie at the marriage altar for love is sacrifice for another.

Light at its worst is always shining for its own sake. Light at its best is being transformed by every raindrop that falls to the earth as its companion, transformed into the glory of the spring morning, transformed into beauty that simply scatters itself in such profusion around our entire world, scattering the darkness and making the flowers and the beautiful world as the home for man. Light is at its best when it enters the realm of service.

You can run down through the whole catalogue if you please. You can take the great word in human life—liberty. Liberty at its worst is always "I do as I please" regardless of any other man. I move down the pathway of life and shut out every other man. I am here simply for my own sake and my life is to do as I please regardless of any other man who makes the journey of life along with me. Liberty at its best is a long distance away from that. It means always a God-given liberty to die, if necessary, for another man. The highest life one can know is the liberty to serve another and the extreme liberty to sacrifice even life for another.

The first two-thirds of the 19th century Labor Unions could be rightly named humanitarian. Now there has been a wonderful change in the last part of the 19th century and that change has been marked by every man who has had his eyes open. The first Labor Union was for the benefit of humanity and the interests of those most down-trodden and in need. But now the only cry you ever hear is for more pay just for themselves. They have no regard for the rest of society and especially for the under classes and God knows we have had enough oppression from the aristocracy. I have no excuse for it, but we are coming now I fear to a greater oppression by the common people. The great middle class in our society now are willing to dynamite bridges and buildings and murder any man who tries to work. It doesn't make any difference as long as that class in society secure enough for themselves. It is no longer humanitarian. The worst oppression that is going to come to the under classes is by the middle classes. We will have to come to a revolution and a great change if we rise high in the state of civilization.

Any organization in this country that means anything other than anarchy means an unselfish service. Call it labor union, aristocracy, monopoly, call it what you like, we must have the principle of the Knight Templars and the principle of the cross permeating every part of our society.

Some time ago King George of England, whom we delight to honor for his relation to this organization, heard that a Welsh boy had both his limbs severed near his body. He discussed the matter with one of the eminent physicians of England and saw the possibility of the boy being able to walk. Then lovingly and kindly, without anybody knowing that such a thing was done, King George bought a pair of artificial limbs for the boy. Then when the Welsh boy was able to run and move down the road with the other boys, in his delight he made up his mind that he was going to see the King and thank him for his kindness. He walked all the way to reach the palace and when he got there the King was away, but when the King returned and found that he had been there, he sent a message to bring him back another day and give him a royal reception. A little unknown, crippled Welsh boy! When the King saw him, he gave him other presents and placed him one of the homes of England and saw to it that that boy was going to learn a trade and be educated in that school.

That is a greater royalty than the most jeweled crown that ever rested on a man's brow. That is higher in the realms of kingship than any throne on which a man ever sat. That is more heroic than shooting a tiger in the jungle. Let me remind you that there is infinitely more manhood in that than anything else that mortal man can do. There was a day not many years back in your history when the people lived to serve the people. The only ruler this world knows anything about now is the servant of his people and the ruler best known and loved amongst his people and amongst the rest of humanity is, in this day, the ruler who is best known as a sacrificial servant of the people. By this sign we conquer.

Now that sign also means not only service, but it is the sign of sacrifice. On one eventful, memorable day in my life I walked around the walls of the old city of Jerusalem. I was in the companionship of another friend and when we reached a certain place in the wall where there was a narrow opening, under the leadership of a competent guide we passed through that opening and found ourselves in the most famous quarries the world ever knew, Solomon's Quarries. Underneath the city of Jerusalem. As we wandered through that darkness, feeling our way about by the light of a little candle, in the glimmer of that light we made the discovery that here was a huge block of granite magnificently carved, and when we asked the guide what it was for, he said that it was one of the stones that was carved for the temple, but owing to some defect in it, was never used and throughout all these centuries it has stayed there and never been lifted into the light of day or into the glory of that magnificent building.

We went down through Solomon's famous stables, and I remembered down in the heart of the earth that day that right there was the origin of this famous organization of which the Knight Templars are a part—the Masonic Order. There the master Masons formed their organization of this famous organization of the earth is the most sacred Masonic room in the world. No one ever crossed that threshold there except the man who had some knowledge of the principles of this great organization and had the right to enter. But with all my interest in Solomon's Quarries and my interest in the room where the Masonic order was first formed down in the heart of the earth, I walked out and down the Damascus road and then up the hill, the most famous hill in the world, the Hill of the Cross. I stood on the very center of that hill and looked over the city and saw the temple without a single evidence of the glory of Solomon's Temple. It had all been swept away and the last fragment disappeared. I looked in of the civilization that had disappeared through the years and I remembered as I stood on the green hill overlooking the old city, that the one thing that remained in all human life with a power that was increasing day by day was the cross on which the Divine Man died. I looked to the north, and I looked to the south, and I looked to the east, and I looked to the west, and I said, "It all belongs to Him." He has the right, the only right, amongst human kind to swing His scepter over this entire planet, for sacrifice conquers the world. You will find that on all the pages of the world's record and it is the brightest page that was ever made for humanity. That bright page is the page most marked with sacrifice for that is the conquering sign everywhere.

You recall the relation of this country and other countries to China when the indemnity was made and the nations flocked in and claimed they could get of China, and our part of that selfish proposition was twenty-four millions of dollars. A friend of mine told me he went with a friend of his and a missionary to China to see John Hay, that Christian diplomat and statesman second to none America ever had, to thank him for his sacrificial relation to China. This friend of mine said that when they came to find Mr. Hay he had just returned from a meeting with some of the plenipotentiaries and he seemed all excited. He said, "Now gentlemen, you will have to excuse me, I am not just myself. I have been having a warm time. I have had a conference with some of the plenipotentiaries about this affair you have come to see me about and they not only want to take all the indemnity, but they want it paid in gold and that means two dollars for one." Said John Hay, "I said that was outrageous and that it never would be done by at least one country in this world. I said that we ought to give them half of it instead of taking twice as much." Thank God for an American citizen like that! McKinley caught his spirit and they, at last, came to glorify the old flag in a way that it never had been glorified before for they gave back to China twelve millions of dollars. You will not find a brighter page in history than that. You will never find a greater evidence of Christian civilization than that.

It was then that the seed was sown and now the harvest is being reaped for China turns towards America as a great brother nation. China has the most loving relation to this people and her admiration for our democratic government has been her inspiration. That a famous hour rose suddenly in the eyes of the world when Dr. Sun Yat Sen, that great Chinese representative, loomed up suddenly in the light of the public eye! He never had been known before. He was inspired from boyhood to free his people and break the shackles and let China know what the rest of the world knew, and Sun Yat Sen began like many others making small revolutions and gathering some people about him and the result was that the revolutions almost cut off his head. He was educated in this country, he was a Christian gentleman and in his exile he began the real preparation. He began to educate the leaders of his own people at home, he began to educate the Chinese students in America and England and sent them back home and at last the great revolution was on and they sent for Sun Yat Sen to lead the people on to victory. Not to come back with his head off, but with his head on and crowned with honor. I wonder where he received the inspiration. Dr. Sun Yat Sen rose up in the nobility and kingliness of his manhood and for the sake of the Republic and the sake of the people and to accomplish the freedom of China he resigned the presidency. The Senate made note of it, and they said "Nothing in all the annals of Chinese history compares with the sacrificial surrender of Dr. Sun Yat Sen." I wonder where he learned it. Where did he find it? I'll tell you. He discovered that where you discovered your motto and the principle by which you are supposed to live, he had been in the shadow of the cross. He was marked with the mark of Christ. Oh, would to God that in our statesmen's lives and in our political world here in America, this great Western Republic, that element

TORTURED FROM BABYHOOD

"Fruit-a-lives" Cures Constipation

MISS E. A. GOODALL

BROMFISTON, ALTA., Nov. 20th, 1911 "I have been a sufferer since babyhood from that terrible complaint, Constipation. I have been treated by physicians, and have taken every medicine I heard of, but without the slightest benefit. I finally concluded that there was no remedy in the world that could cure Constipation. About this time, I heard about "Fruit-a-lives" and decided to try them. The effect was marvellous. The first box gave me great relief, and after I had used a few boxes, I found that I was entirely well. "Fruit-a-lives" is the only medicine that ever did me any good and I want to say to all who suffer as I did—"Try this fruit medicine and you will find—as I did—a perfect cure." (Miss) E. A. GOODALL "Fruit-a-lives" is the only medicine in the world made of fruit and the only one that will positively and completely cure you of Constipation. See a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-lives Limited, Ottawa.

should be manifest that was in the life of the heathen man Sun Yat Sen! I wonder what we would do! I think we would all be paralyzed if our leaders should do that. The fact in the case is that we all know that ninety-nine per cent. of all the men in political life today are for themselves instead of their country. They are after another office or a higher position. You put one man in America in office and he is all the time struggling by every means that can be used, every means that can be stamped even with dishonesty, to get the next higher office. If you make him Lieutenant Governor, he wants to be Governor and if you make him Governor, he wants to be Senator or President, he wants a second term. How often have you heard in America of a man resigning sacrificially his office for the good of his country?

The same principle ought to control in our commercial life as well as our political life. It will be a sad day for America, a day calamitous and that is no exaggeration, when you crown your millionaires and forget your martyrs. When you entrench your Astors and Vanderbilts and Morgans and Rockefeller's and others and forget your Washingtons and Lincolns and Grants and Lees, then God pity America, for the martyrs save America, but most of the millionaires ruin it. The sacrificial principle is the only principle and there is no other.

A great orator told about being on the battle field of this continent in the South during the Civil War. He described the movements of those battalions and of the General on the hillsides and in the valleys and made it all very picturesque, but I have forgotten everything he said about it except one thing. In his wonderful description he said that on the battle field in the crisis the flag went down but another man rushed up and the flag was up. The flag went down and another man rushed up and the flag was up. It went down again, three men shot down with the flag in their hands. Another one rushed up, but the flag went down. Four men shot down with the flag in their hands and then the Colonel rushed up and seized the flag and led his army to a wonderful victory. This world's a little field and it is yours to see to it that the blood-stained banner of the cross does not go down to play. This sign by which we conquer is the sign also of salvation. Service, service, salvation. In our Rocky Mountains there is a wonderful emblem. I presume many of you have seen it and you will never forget it. As the train winds its way higher and higher up the mountain, suddenly someone says, "The Cross," and everybody rushes to that side of the train and there right up

Atlantic City Aldermen Charged With Bribery.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 31.—F. Dougherty, known as "the working man's friend," arrested on a charge of having accepted a bribe of $500 in return for his vote in council for the passage of an ordinance providing for a concrete board walk along the beach front designed to cost a million dollars or more.

William J. Burns, detective, related how he had begun his investigation in April, 1911, and continued until August, when he evolved "a fake" board walk scheme to catch certain councilmen and city officials.

"Harris" became familiar with councilmen, offered several of them $5,000 each to pass the ordinance, providing for the board walk and paid $500 apiece on account.

Smiley, a Burns operator, testified to the installation of a dictagraph in the hotel of William Mallis, one of the councilmen who confessed.

Asked to confirm the reports concerning the "job" in which other city officials are said to be caught, Councilman Sam Phoebus, who had confessed, declared that he knew only "jobs."

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 12, 1912.

The heart of the farmer is gladdened by the present prospect of good hay and fruit crops, the staple products of the Valley farms.

Should these early expectations materialize the province will be the richer this season by several millions of dollars through these two sources and the attraction of the English colonist for Nova Scotia farm lands should be considerably augmented therefrom.

There is ample opportunity in this Valley of ours for turning uncultivated soil into productive orchards. $100 per acre is quoted as the average price for land for orcharding.

The Annual Farmers' Excursion to the Agricultural Experimental Station at Truro will take place on June 21st.

The excursion has become a pleasing feature of the summer's outings for many of the Valley agriculturists and their wives.

There is not only a pleasant excursion to one of the most attractive towns in Nova Scotia at a delightful season of the year, but there is also to be gained the stimulus of meeting old and new friends all interested in a common purpose, and lessons to be learned from expert teachers on the best and most approved methods of farming.

There is both wisdom and refreshment to be gained from such gatherings as these and every farmer's family in the Valley if possible should be represented at Truro on June 21st.

No Liquor on Tables at the Training Camps.

The Minister of Militia Will See That An Example is Set by Officers and Regulations be Enforced.

Ottawa, June 4.—Colonel The Hon. Sam Hughes, minister of militia and defence, has issued orders that no liquor shall be allowed on the tables of the officers' mess in the training camps.

The minister understands that an agitation is on foot to have canteens again in the camps, and those favoring it are stating that liquor can be got near by to camps.

An exchange truly remarks:—No place will ever prosper and grow where a lack of enterprise and push on the part of its citizens is felt.

The Deadly Trail of the Pessimist

Majority Six to One. SYDNEY, June 4.—The plebiscite on the six million dollar shipbuilding and dry dock proposition of the British-Canadian company, of which Sir Henry Pellatt is the president and A. C. Ross the Secretary, carried without excitement to day by a vote of about six to one.

A small vote was polled, the totals being 1,040 to 172, likely due to the customary apathy where no political issue is involved.

CHURCHES LACK SOCIAL OUTLOOK.

"Christ is not straitened in the enormities of the liquor traffic, nor of the social evil, nor of the gambling vice, not in any other evils of today, but He is straitened in the people who lack the social outlook of the Gospel; therefore it is the duty of the Church to give herself earnestly, fervently, with faith in God and faith in man, to the correcting of all moral evils and social problems."

Dr. A. A. Dechman has sold his beautiful residential property on South Queen street, known as the Cassidy-place, to Mr. R. L. Lessel, of Halifax, a well-known Halifax architect. The intended visit of the Duke of Connaught and party to the Maritime provinces, has been abandoned owing to the serious illness of the Duchess, who has recently been a patient at the Victoria Hospital, Montreal, suffering from peritonitis. The Royal party were expected to take part in the historic memorial exercises to be held in the province in August. All will hope for the complete restoration of the health of the Duchess.

The last issue of the Truro Citizen gives an amusing account of a souping which the passengers had to endure on board the "Midland" running from Truro to Windsor on Friday morning last. It was a first class car, well filled with passengers, and the rain fell through the holes in the roof, alike on the just and the unjust. As the conductor called "All aboard!" up went the umbrellas, and there were no less than seven raised over the heads of the passengers.

Mr. George Knodell of St. John, has been making his annual trip to the Valley and was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hoyt last week. Mr. Knodell, who is now one of St. John's successful business men, recalls with pleasure his early days and associates in the printing business in Bridgetown, where he was an apprentice at the calling in which he has made his business success, in the days of the Western News, the predecessor of the Monitor, over fifty years ago.

An important deal in real estate took place on Monday, when the business property of Chas. Williams on Queen Street was purchased by the firm of J. H. Longmire and Sons. The probability is that the firm will remove the present old-fashioned building and put up a modern business stand to suit their business needs. They will have one of the most central and advantageous locations, and the town will benefit by the architectural improvement to Queen street.

His lifeless body was rescued from the water with grappling irons.

The home of Douglas McGowan near Carleton Corner, was damaged by fire on Thursday forenoon. Mrs. McGowan happened to go into the yard discovered smoke coming out of a chamber window. She found the fire running up the walls of the chamber into the roof. The Canadian lobster fishery is, in spite of serious depletion, "the greatest and most resourceful in the world." This statement was made by W. A. Found, of the Marine and Fisheries Department. He further stated that more than 50,000,000 lobsters were annually taken in Canada, and with efficient protection such as the department of marine and fisheries intends to apply to this important industry, it bids fair to maintain its recent important status.

The site, he thought would cost about $60,000 and he would have the company assented to that valuation. The council was favorable to his request.

There is certainly much that is very admirable in Miss Helen Gould, a woman who reflects not merely credit but honor upon American womanhood. One of the richest women in America, she is out of the least ostentatious. There is not a particle of that rabid self-assertiveness about her which amounts almost to a mania with many of our men and women. She also has an old-fashioned sense of the responsibility which great wealth carries. Without blowing a trumpet before her, she spends millions in the most admirable way for charitable purposes. If more rich people were like Helen Gould there would be fewer people afflicted with rabid socialism.

Grant's Brother in Halifax
(Halifax Chronicle 8th inst)

Henry W. Grant, of Boston, a brother of Hubert Grant, now in jail awaiting trial on a charge of murder, arrived in the city last night to arrange for the defence of the prisoner. Mr. Grant has not seen his brother for a long time and the first he knew of the crime was when he saw it in one of the Boston papers. As soon as he could get away he started for Halifax to arrange for the defence of the prisoner.

He states that Hubert was born in Antigonish, but for several years he resided in various parts of the United States, having been of a roving nature. He was on the American battleships Indiana and Wisconsin, and he also served in the Philippines.

WAS INJURED BY RUNAWAY.

He says that Hubert was run over by a runaway horse some years ago, and was badly injured. After that he at times acted very strangely, and became very eccentric. He would absent himself from home for days, and sleep out under steps, and other unusual places. He had a particular fascination for sticking pins through his ears and in the flesh of his fingers. Last autumn the prisoner returned to Antigonish to visit his parents, and while there he got into trouble.

His actions were so strange that his parents wrote and asked Henry to come on and look after him. Henry however, could not leave his place of employment at that time.

SHOCKED BY THE NEWS.

Grant says that he was greatly shocked when he read of the terrible affair and he could scarcely realize that Hubert would be charged with such an awful crime. He feels positive that the prisoner is not in his right mind, as he had no cause to commit such a crime, as that with which he is charged.

BETTER STAY IN CANADA

Cornmeal porridge and milk, brown bread and jelly squares, fruit and peanut butter sandwiches with chopped raisins for luncheon, split pea soup, creamed cod-fish on toast, apple sauce, ginger bread and tea for dinner, is the menu for a forty-nine cents a week expense bill for one person as practiced in Chicago.

The experiment has been tried in the School of Domestic Science, and the dictum has gone forth that the plan is practicable and requires nothing more for its successful application than a knowledge of foods and food values.

The head of the school says that in visiting "poor" families she found either a "feast" or a "famine. Beefsteak and bread would furnish one good meal and the family would starve for a week to pay for it.

"It," says this woman, "working girls can be taught to live well on a small sum they will find themselves not only well nourished, but safeguarded in many ways."

Upholds High Speeding of Titanic in Ice Region—British Inquiry Resumed.

London, June 4.—J. Bruce Ismay told the British court of inquiry today that it had been planned to drive the Titanic at full speed during a few favorable hours on her maiden trip, and that he considered Captain Smith fully justified in going full speed through the ice region, so long as weather conditions made it possible to see ice ahead.

Lord Mersey repeated the question whether the witness thought the captain justified in his action, adding "At either day or night."

Ismay replied in the affirmative. Ismay told the court that the chief engineer had arranged before the steamer left Queenstown for New York that the weather being favorable on either Monday or Tuesday, the vessel would be driven at full speed for a few hours.

Attorney-General Rufus Isaacs asked if that would necessitate additional boilers being lighted. Ismay said that it would. The attorney-general said that Fireman Barrett of the Titanic had testified that additional boiler were lighted on Sunday morning.

Ismay said that a wireless dispatch which Captain Smith had handed him on Sunday, had indicated to him that the Titanic would reach the ice region on Sunday evening. The collision occurred a little before midnight Sunday night.

The witness said that there was nothing in their mail contracts to compel the company's vessels to steam at the rate they usually did in crossing the Atlantic, and that there was no penalty for delay. Ismay insisted that he had nothing to do with the navigation of the ship.

Sir Rufus asked—"What was the use of going at full speed through the ice at night?"

Ismay—"I suppose they wanted to get out of the ice. They would not wait to wait and take a chance of fog coming down. They were justified on a clear night in going through as quickly as possible and even might have increased the speed to get out of the ice fields."

NOT ALL CRAZY.

An American contemporary becomes somewhat defiant at the charge that the population of the mighty Republic is not normal mentally. It sees real hope in and draws consolation from the following alleged facts:

Lombroso's theory that every American is a neurotic is palpably false. The great Italian was deceived by surface symptoms.

There are thousands of Americans who do not want Roosevelt for President again.

There are thousands who do not regard Bryan as a great statesman.

There are thousands of Americans who still believe in constitutional government.

There are thousands of Americans who do not look upon the Pittsburgh millionaire as the highest type of manhood.

There are thousands of Americans who do not want champagne for breakfast, and who have no ambition to clope with chorus girls.

There are thousands of Americans who have invented no new religion, or no new system of economics, and have devised no patent formulas for regenerating the race.

There are thousands of Americans who are not engaged in trying to get rich quick, or in trying to reform the manners and morals of somebody else.

There are thousands of Americans who can be happy away from Broadway or Fifth Avenue.

There are thousands of Americans who do not believe they can get something for nothing.

There are thousands of Americans who work from eight to twelve hours every day, who support their families and pay their debts and save a little something for their old age and live normal rational lives.

We are not so crazy as we sometimes seem.

THAT SUNDAY TRAIN

A correspondent thus writes the Presbyterian Witness re the newly instituted Sunday train service on the I.C.R.

Dear Editor:—

It is a bitter disappointment to many who hoped for better things to see the announcement of a Sunday passenger service from Halifax on the I.C.R. It is the longest and oldest step yet taken, in the Maritime Provinces at least, toward the secularization of the Sabbath. Let every Christian who helped to put the present government in power send a personal letter of protest to Mr. Borden and let every minister appeal to his people not to use that train. Perhaps Mr. Cochrane will then find that the demand for this inquiry is not so great as he thought it was.

Yours truly,
T. STEWART.

A FARM FOR DRUNKARDS.

Judge Merrill of Bangor Sees Need of it and Says it Would Pay for Itself.

Judge John F. A. Merrill of the municipal court, Bangor, believes that a state or county farm for the reception, building up and re-education of drunkards would pay for itself in a short time financially, and would be a great thing for the men.

He has grown tired of sending some men to jail, and doing it over and over again when his experience had fully demonstrated that there must be some different method of dealing with them if they are to be saved from themselves and made good citizens.

His idea is that there ought to be an effort made to save men like one who was brought before him last week. He spent, he said, nearly three hundred days in jail last year, every time for drunkenness, and yet he added that it seemed to him to be reasonable to believe that if he could be taken out of doors, have enough to eat and healthy work to do that his manhood might be aroused.

The plan in its main features is not especially new, but for the first time it is likely to be championed by one who is holding an official position, and who is brought in contact with men of the very class likely to be helped and saved.

The immediate outlay as Judge Merrill admitted would be considerable, but he also contended that in a short time or at least in a comparatively short time, the farm would be self-supporting, and from that time forward it would be a time and money-saver. And in the meantime, before there is a farm for the victims of intemperance, he would very much like to see the experiment tried of having two or three probation officers instead of a single officer, as at this time.

A BAND OF HEROES.

The Titanic's handsomeness are probably the most deserving of being proudly remembered by the British race. With death surrounding them, with the cold waves of the Atlantic hungrily lapping around their feet, with the vessel heeling over till they could scarcely hold their footing on the deck, they played on as if leading the singing of the ship's Sunday service, and probably did more than anything else to steady the nerves of those who, like the orchestra members, were going down to certain death. It is immaterial what tunes they played during those terrible last moments. Their being able to play was the heroic deed, and those who heard took courage from the very act.

BLIND FROM BRANDY

"The stuff was enough to blind an elephant," declared Dr. Knapp, a specialist, when he had analyzed brandy that Wolf Frankenstein, of No. 707 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, had been drinking, asserted the latter in a suit he is bringing for $100,000 damages against Isaac Goldberg, whose place of business is at Pickin and Rockaway avenues, Brooklyn.

Frankenstein asserts that he bought a half gallon jug of the liquor for one dollar and continued to drink the brandy, a small glassful before dinner each day, from April 27th until June 3rd.

On the night of June 3rd, Frankenstein, who is a plumbing contractor, worked until after midnight making out bills. The next morning, he asserts, in an examination filed in the Supreme Court, he knew the sun was shining, but everything looked cloudy to him. For two days objects began to grow darker to him; on the third day he managed to make his way to Mt. Sinai Hospital.

The surgeons there examined his eyes and told him that blindness was to be his lot. They asked him to bring some of the brandy he had been drinking. After analyzing it one of the doctors asked him:

"Are you the man that's been drinking this poison?"

"I was angry," Frankenstein asserts he replied, "and I told him I never drank any poison and never intended to commit suicide."

"Here is the proof," the doctor replied. "This brandy is twelve per cent. methyl alcohol."

Childless Couple Undertake to Gradually Take a Dozen Children.

Chicago, June 3.—Gordon Strong, a real estate dealer, and his wife, who are childless, have determined to put twelve boys on the high road to success. As a beginning they have taken Floyd and Kenneth Keets, six and two years old respectively, into their home and will educate them and will train them for useful lives. The mother of the boys is overjoyed at the prospect she could not give them.

Mr. Strong intends to take a boy each year, selecting them after careful investigation of their family histories. He believes that by the time he has a family of twelve the oldest boy will be ready to go to college and thus make room for a new arrival.

THE HOME

DO'S AND DON'T'S FOR PARENTS.

Don't fail to find out whether you are right or wrong before correcting son or daughter. They may be too dutiful to tell you so, but they will be quick to discover discrepancies in your logic, and they may draw conclusions which will weaken your actual influence and hold upon them.

Beware of administering blows; in the determined, destructive child they will arouse a demon of vindictiveness, the prudent-minded they will degrade; the super-sensitive child's development they will retard; they will destroy his self-confidence, and entice him for association on an equal footing with his comrades outside of the home, and he will constantly be a prey to the overbearing.

On the other hand, do not let your children be undisciplined so that they become a nuisance to every outsider. Intelligent training in the positive qualities of good, will, as a rule, leave little reason for the correction of their opposite.

Do not be irritated when your child asks for a reason why he shall do thus or so; intelligent obedience is preferable to that of dumb unreason.

Insist upon co-operation in the household—a sharing of all burdens and responsibilities, mutual courtesy and consideration, good breeding, and a cheerful spirit.

Don't become panic-stricken and interfere unnecessarily when your girl finds a mature woman friend outside of mother, whom she idealizes; a woman, perhaps, who can give her intellectual or spiritual comradeship. You are not likely to have within yourself, good mother, the answer for every need of your child's growing mind. When you have given all you can, be content when she reaches out and gathers also from other sources. Opposition to such a friendship during a girl's age of heroics is apt to drive her to a frenzy of adoration. Selfishness and jealousy must not enter into your love of your child.

Do not attempt to force the development of the girl who is slow in her approach toward womanhood; draw her, encourage her and comrades her. And do not hold back the premature girl by violence and repression. You will only awaken her resentment. Convince her that she will keep her girlish. Keep her at some absorbing study. And if this will not answer, submit gracefully to the inevitable, and teach her to become a noble woman.

Don't humor and cater to any one member of the family at the expense of the others, unless there is sound reason for a special dispensation. Your partiality will be instantly detected, and, if not openly, will be silently questioned and resented.

Do not allow your child to inflict the slightest pain upon any dumb animal. When he does, it is the seed of criminality gathering life and vitality.

Don't fail to investigate intelligently when you find that boy is not getting along well in his school work. Don't storm and drive at him. Don't jump at the conclusion that he is stupid and cannot learn. He may be possessed of a strong masculine logic, a demand for the reason behind his task that his woman teacher is not able to answer. If she is not, she will irritably compel him to silence, and destroy his interest. Know these facts when they exist, and put boy under male instructors.

Don't let him grow away from you. He becomes shy and awkward when he feels himself growing large and unwieldy. This is the time when you lose him if you are not wise. You torment him with constant correction. You tell him brutally that he is always in the way. You laugh at him, snub him, and discredit him. When he outgrows this age and takes on the grace and charm of young manhood, it is too late. Your heart cries out to him in vain. You have chilled the expression of his affections and have taught him to hold them in dignified reserve. You will never find each other again. Both will have forgotten the way.

Realize that the boy, as well as girl, needs affection. The little perfunctory demonstrations that you are half ashamed to bestow will not satisfy him. He has a great, warm heart. If you do not discover this in time, some one else will.

Punctuality is one of the chief virtues in a well ordered home—whether it be a small or large house. Meals must be prepared and served at the pre-arranged hour.

I'd rather be a Has Been Than a Might Have Been by far, For a Might Have Been has never been, But a Has was once an A's.

THE VALUE OF CHEERFULNESS.

There are but few persons in the world who fully realize the real value of cheerfulness. Perhaps you have never noticed it, but the happiest and most successful people in the world are those who are unfailingly cheerful under all conditions. They may receive a hard knock now and then, as most of us do, but it leaves them smiling; just as if it had never occurred. They know sorrow and trouble, like the rest of us, but when it is over they do not let it dampen the spirits of those with whom they come in contact by constantly grieving and worrying over the past. They do not forget that they will live longer and will live happier if they keep themselves sweet by their cheerfulness.

The story is told of a young girl who was employed by a large business house. One morning, greatly to her surprise, she received her dismissal. Knowing that she was not guilty of having broken any rules of the firm, she went to the manager and asked the reason for her dismissal.

"Well, I will speak plainly," he said. "It was because you spent half of your time grieving over your troubles. And you seek to enlist the sympathy of the other employees by crying over your troubles and constantly talking about them. You get their sympathy this way, but it takes up the time of the firm and more than that, there are others about the office who have a harder time than you have and yet say nothing about it. Your face is constantly clouded and it dampens the spirits of those about you and they lose the company's time in sympathizing with you and your troubles, many of which are imaginary ones. Now, when you get into the habit of cheerfulness, then you can come back. But I have found in a long business experience that cheerfulness has a high value in cash and ability."

Water defines cheerfulness as good spirits; a state of moderate joy or gaiety. But cheerfulness is more than that. It is something which will keep the life of its possessor pure and sweet and youthful long after advancing years have set their mark on the brow and made the hand unsteady and the step uncertain. It is a fountain of perpetual youth; not of physical youth, not of youth in years but of spiritual youth.

"What is it that keeps Mrs. Bland so youthful?" said a young person recently. "I am sure she is not less than fifty, yet in looks she does not seem a day over thirty, and in actions she is younger than I am."

"The reason is," was the reply, "that she does not let things worry or depress her. She always looks on the bright side of things. I have known her for ten years or more and I have never seen her frown or heard her speak a cross word. I would give all I have to be like her."

The answer was a true one. Worry and anger will make the life shorter and more bitter. Cheerfulness and love, for the two usually go together—make the life sweet and sweeten the lives of all those who come in contact with it.

"Be of good cheer," said the Saviour of mankind to His disciples, and never has the command been heeded that happiness and prosperity and love did not follow in its train.

All the world loves the cheerful person, the person whom sorrow cannot discourage.

ON JUSTIFYING ONE'S SELF.

A certain young woman who had been given a chance to make good in a very big position lost this chance recently.

And the reason, as expressed by her employers, who, by the way, were quite as disappointed as she, was simply that she didn't know how to receive criticism. Whenever her employees criticized her, she always fought back. Instead of being grateful to them for giving time and energy to try to make her a successful business woman, she was angry and resentful at every criticism. Instead of profiting by their suggestions and corrections, she always tried to justify herself.

Now to try to vindicate one's self when one knows that a criticism is undeniably unjust, is right and reasonable; but always to fight to justify one's self, no matter what the criticism, is decidedly the opposite.

And yet there are a great many employees—and others—who always adopt this latter course. Even when they know in their hearts that they have made mistakes, they try to prove otherwise to those who criticize them.

Of course it is not at all easy to tell when a criticism is just. To be able to weigh a criticism of one's self calmly and dispassionately, and see where it is right and where it is wrong, is a fine art. Even a most upright judge finds it difficult to decide a case fairly when his own interests are involved. But one can at least make some effort to do this.

Mistakes make the greatest foundations in the world for success. But they should not be used for anything except the foundation. Once you try to incorporate them into the building itself, you make sure to build a failure which will come crumbling down about your ears sooner or later. Will you then argue and contest with the master builder who helps you to recognize these mistakes? Will you try to deceive him and incorporate some of them in the building in spite of him? Or will you listen to him calmly and thoughtfully, and thank him for his help.

According to which course you take you will prove yourself a big or little man.

For it is only the little people who cannot endure criticism. Sir Walter Scott in his journal mentions an anonymous letter sent to him from Italy, full of acid and acute criticism on his "Life of Bonaparte," and instead of resenting it and justifying himself, he remarks with commendable tact and wisdom "Its tone is decidedly hostile. But that shall not prevent me from making use of all its criticisms where just." If Scott had been a lesser man he would have scoffed at the criticism, and concluded that the anonymous writer was merely some disagreeing ignoramus.

Again, Epictetus, after hearing a scathing criticism of himself, comments gently, "He little knew my other shortcomings or he would not have mentioned these alone."

Wait a splendid watchword that would make for those of us who are inclined to be resentful of all criticism to remember when we open our mouths to justify ourselves.

FOOD FOR CHILDREN.

Children require food that will promote the growth of bones, muscles and the different organs of the body. The more active the child and the more rapid the growth, the greater the demand for nutritious food. Lack of necessary food for bones, such as the mineral constituents, results in disease of bones, deformity, defective teeth, weak nerve and brain power.

Calcium, so important for the child in the formation of bones, may be obtained by the eating of eggs, rice, milk, whole wheat, rhabarb, various cereals and all vegetables of the carbohydrate group.

Phosphates, so essential for brain, nerve, and bone may be had from the whole wheat bread, wheat cereals, shredded wheat, milk, apples, fish, etc. For the building of muscle, eat eggs, cheese, beef, mutton, beans, peas, lentils, whole wheat bread, etc. The blood building foods are those rich in iron—spinach, asparagus, yolk of egg, beef, cabbage, dandelion leaves, apples, cherries, strawberries, carrots, beans, peas, potatoes, etc.

Potatoes (the old stand-by) contain all the inorganic elements of the body except flourine. They contain a quantity of potassium salts—good for nerve and muscle. The eating of the jackets of the baked potato is highly recommended if they are thoroughly masticated.

Children have an appetite for sugar because they need sugar. Nature cries out for it with an insistence proportioned to its necessities. It has made weakly, puny children stout and robust by satisfying that which appears to the mother to be a revolting craving.

It furnishes the needed carbohydrate material to organisms that have, as yet, little or no power to digest starch. Thus, milk-sugar is a part of the natural food of the infant. Sugar by the lump (or pure candy) is better for the child when at play than with meals. If sugar is used on cereals then milk should be discarded; if milk is used, avoid the sugar—the combination is a very trying one to the stomach. —Edward B. Warman.

HEALTHFUL VEGETABLES.

Water cress, we are told in a recent magazine article, is an excellent blood purifier.

Lettuce is soothing to the nerves and relieves insomnia. Tomatoes are good for a torpid liver but should be avoided by gouty people.

Spinach has great aperient qualities and is far better than medicine for sufferers from constipation. It is also excellent for kidney troubles. Beets and potatoes are fattening. Parsnips possess the same virtues as sarsaparilla.

Apples, carrots and Brazil nuts are excellent for sufferers from constipation, and the first two are also good for gouty people.

Raw carrots cure indigestion, also nerve troubles. When cooked they are good for asthma.

Celery wards off rheumatism, and is a nerve tonic. Dates are nourishing and laxative. The juice of grapes is laxative, but skin and seeds cause constipation.

Bananas are beneficial for chest complaints.

Onions are good for all nerve disorders, have a soothing effect upon consumptives, and are excellent for colds, coughs, la grippe and pneumonia. They are also a preventive of insomnia.

Cranberries are good for malaria and erysipelas. Parsley aids digestion and reduces flesh.

Asparagus stimulates and strengthens the kidneys and causes perspiration, thereby ridding the system of impurities.

Cabbage purifies the blood.

HINTS ON ENTERTAINING.

Don't forget that it's people that make a good time infinitely more than things. In other words, the prime requisite of a jolly party is a congenial crowd. Get a congenial crowd together just let them talk, and feed them nothing but lemonade and cake, and they'll have a better time than an ungenial gathering had with the most delicious fare and offered the most elaborate entertainment.

Be sure to have at least one of those folks who "make things go" on your list. Everybody has at least one or two such in his acquaintance. They may not be any cleverer or more popular than other people, but they happen to have this gift. Look over your list of guests to see if you have invited one of these folks, and if you haven't, get hold of one by hook or crook.

Be sure to have some game to begin with which will break up the ice; no matter how silly it is, so that it dissipates the slight stiffness which even a crowd of congenial people are apt to feel, when they have been bidden to a formal gathering.

And that brings me to my last suggestion. Don't have your party a formal gathering. To my mind, formality is the death-blow to enjoyment, and I am delighted to realize that the formal party of the last decade is rapidly disappearing. Eleventh-hour inspirations and telephone invitations are the order of the Twentieth Century hospitality, and for my part I hope the pendulum will never swing back in the other direction.

DON'T MAKE THE WRINKLES DEEPER.

Is father's eyesight growing dim, His form a little lower? Is mother's hair a little gray, Her step a little slower? Is life's hill growing hard to climb? Make not their pathway steeper, Smooth out the furrows on their brows— Oh, do not make them deeper!

There's nothing makes a face so young As joy, youth's fairest token; And nothing makes a face grow old Like hearts that have been broken. Take heed lest deeds of thine should make Thy mother be a weeper; Stamp peace upon a father's brow— Don't make the wrinkles deeper.

Be lavish with thy loving deeds, Be patient, true and tender; And make the path that ageward leads Aglow with earthly splendor. Some day, thy dear ones, stricken low, Must yield to death, the reaper; And you will then be glad to know You made no wrinkles deeper.

Co-operation to Bring Down Cost of Living.

Co-operation is the only cure for the present high cost of living. It is the only way by which the producer and the consumer can be brought in touch with each other to the advantage of both. Co-operation has proved successful in many countries and under many different circumstances. The Danes have made it a perfect system. There, practically all the business of supplying is done through the co-operative agencies scattered broadcast all over the face of Denmark. The farmers co-operate in both selling and buying. The sellers of the products of the farm are men of the highest order, the farmers paying salaries for the right men, as high as $10,000 a year. That in Denmark is as much as $20,000 in Canada. They find it pays them. They do as the great corporations do, pay big wages to the man with the big brain. The Danes buy their supplies by the ship load at the lowest prices because they pay spot cash. Thus the Danish farmer sells his products for the highest price possible and he buys at the lowest possible. The seller of Danish farm products is ever on the alert to show the producers just what they must do to get the highest price that can be got by any one. That has had a most beneficial effect, so that today Denmark leads the world in several lines of production such as butter and bacon, producing the best goods in the market and getting the best price. No Danish products can be shipped out of the country that do not pass a rigid inspection so that everyone knows "if its Danish, its right." Co-operative production of coal, and of the necessary things of life used generally is sure to come. Government ownership is co-operation. Municipal ownership is the same. The principle is generally accepted among people who do not get all their ideas from the agencies of the trusts and the big interests. There is no more reason why the people of Nova Scotia should pay from five to six dollars for two thousand pounds of common coal than that they should pay fifty dollars for it. They are paying two prices as this paper has pointed out dozens of times and proved to the last word. Why do it then? Because Nova Scotians are a easy going lot of people that will swallow any sort of fool dope offered them, so long as there is a "reason" attached. Coal can be distributed to the consumer throughout the chief towns and ports for not more than three dollars the long ton of 2240 pounds. It has been sold right here in Dartmouth for that many a time. It should be sold for $2.50, and no doubt could be if the attempt was honestly made. The only reason the double price is paid, is because the people who pay and we all do, are silly fools. The remedy is in the hands of the people themselves, and can be applied any time the people see fit. When the people get sick of being bled white to pay dividends on watered stock then they can get cheap coal through co-operation as others do.—Dartmouth Patriot.

The Tourist Traffic

The Hants Journal (Windsor) says:—The Tourist Committee appointed by the Board of Trade held an adjourned meeting last evening at the office of the Mayor. Mr. R. U. Parker, the Passenger Agent of the P. A. Railway, was present. During a lengthy interview he fully explained to the Committee the facilities which were being offered for the advancement of the tourist traffic through the Annapolis Valley. The Committee has been energetically securing information and is now in touch with tourist authorities, and while it will probably be too late this year to see any immediate effects, it is anticipated that the best results may be expected. It is proposed to purchase a hotel site, which Mr. Parker inspected and approved of in the highest terms. It has also been decided to interest hotel people and offer inducements for their building in Windsor. Efforts are being made also to secure local accommodation for the tourist. Special difficulties seemed to present themselves, but the highest hopes are entertained of having in the near future a hotel erected in Windsor which will draw throngs of tourists and be a credit to the Town.

What Right Method in Farming Has Done.

(St. Andrew's Beacon) We don't believe in "knocking" the maritime farmer. It isn't all sunshine and silver with him, although prices of farm produce may be soaring. But we do think that the farmer of today who closes his eyes to the teachings of science with relation to agriculture, is not a good farmer. There is probably no population in the world that makes a closer study of practical scientific farming than that of Denmark, and the result is seen in what that little kingdom has been able to accomplish in the way of agricultural development. That equality of good results can be procured by the Danish farmer outside his own land is shown by the following statement from the pen of Rev. J.A. MacGlacken, of Bridgeport, N. S. Writing upon the subject of agriculture in the New Glasgow Chronicle, he says: "I have a Danish neighbor who has made a garden in one of the bleakest spots on Cape Breton coast. Six years ago he bought, for a trifle, four and a half acres of bare bluff facing Lingan Bay. Today it is worth, including a fine nursery plant, $15,000. As one item he has sold 40,000 cabbages this year, one of which weighing twenty pounds grew fifteen feet from the cliff. Last spring he bought a waste wild piece of land, half way to Sydney, for $600. He put an English farmer in charge and from the five acres tilled he sold, last summer, vegetables that netted $1,427. He got an average of $1 per bushel for his potatoes, and he says he could have sold 4,000 bushels instead of 400. And others hereabouts are catching the contagion, and gardens are appearing where once was waste and wild. The fault, therefore, is not in our stars or in our soil, but in ourselves, if we are undrains."
